ROOSEVELT CANDIDATE DEFEATED ON WAR ISSUE

There was an important congressional election in Wisconsin last week when the Democratic New Deal Roosevelt hand-picked candidate Amle, went down in a horrible defeat before Republican Candidate Smith. The same district last year formerly having a Democratic congressman before the last presidential election, gave Wendell Willkie a majority of 600. This past week enough Democrats left their party to give Republican Smith a majority of more than 12,000.

Roosevelt made a plea on the necessity of electing Amle to support the administration course on the war issue. Big tops from the New Deal speaker's bureau campaigned every nook and corner of the district. A score or more precincts that usually give heavy Democratic majorities this year turned down Roosevelt's candidate for the Republican nominee.

This election result should be the answer to the New Deal graft war program that is loading the nation with billion dollar debts to be paid by tax payers in future generations, meantime Democratic politicians are being made millionaires on even a greater scale than the upheaval following the Tea Pot Dome scandal of the First World War.

Regardless of the fact every poll shows only twenty per cent of the American people are favorable to entering the war, the New Dealers continue the war program to the tune being hummed daily in the press and over the air by the war mongers.

The Democrats evidently forgot what it cost their party following the Wilson entrance in the war and the demand for the World Court and other artful catch phrases. It was the same Roosevelt as a candidate for vice president on a ticket headed by James M. Cox, when both bit the dust on the world court and League of Nations issue.

This time the "Invincible Roosevelt," as he terms himself to his associates thinks he sits solid on the throne with more than 4,000,000 on the government payroll. We shall see what we shall see in the light of the Wisconsin upset.

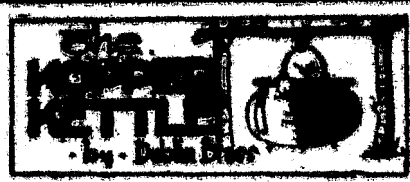

"OILY FRANK AND BLOODY JOE"

The gasoline situation along the Eastern seaboard is one of the greatest jokes of the century, a planned scheme to frighten the nation into a higher war fever that "Oily Frank" can send more war supplies to "Bloody Joe" in Russia, the head of the Communist party for the entire world. It was he who ordered all the land owned by individuals taken over by the government under a decree that there could not be private ownership under Communism.

Now the nation learns there is an abundant supply of gasoline for everyone. Secretary Ickes was the "gas outlet" for spreading the scare program in the interest of the war mongers. Three years ago the oil interests wanted more pipe lines but "Oily Frank" objected saying it would lead to trust methods of control. Today he is scooping out millions to build oil lines in all directions, even one from Maine to Montreal, Canada.

While the cry was the loudest about the gasoline shortage the railroads reported there were 25,000 tank cars on siding empty and ready for use once they were wanted. The New Deal war mongers replied that the cost of transportation was of minor consideration, especially under the financial leadership of "Oily Frank," who knows about as much of the value of a dollar, as a dog does of a holiday. Now we are told the shipment of so many tank cars would tie up transportation.

The position of the New Deal on oil is about the same as on supply of aluminum. A few years ago "Oily Frank" was about to hold up the opening of the Andrew Mellon Institute, costing many millions of private capital, in Washington. The Mellon family developed the aluminum industry and organized a company to expand the business known as the Aluminum Company of America. In as much as "Andy" was about twenty-five years, ten minutes and three seconds in ability ahead of the "New York Fifth Avenue Playboy," whose Papa provided a life-time guardian for the Mellons family finances, it would not be expected that the Mellons knew what they were doing, other than organizing a "trust." Following the visit of King George, "Oily Frank" soon was converted to the needs of more aluminum for war planes for England. Then too, somebody whispered in the ear of the White House occupant that the Bank of England owned a block of stock in the "trust" amounting to some fifty millions and from that day on you nor anyone else has heard a complaint about the "Aluminum Trust." There is nothing so appealing to "Oily Frank" as hearing a voice from abroad. The New Dealer out in the "sticks" must leave his conscience in the wood shed when he sits down to swallow Roosevelt, King George and "Bloody Joe."

A few days ago we heard the chairman of the defense bond sale committee state that the likely quota for Ohio citizens would be one billion dollars.

On the basis of population this would be around $145 for every man, woman and child in the state, inmates of prisons and county institutions. A family of man, wife and three children would be expected to purchase $725 of the Roosevelt war defense bonds regardless of whether the head of the house was on WPA or president of a bank. This would be about $4,640,000 for Greene county.

It is intimated that the administration in Washington is much concerned over the slow sale of defense stamps and bonds through the post office and banks. It is very disturbing to them that the lower bracket laborers in industry drawing ten and twelve dollars a day have not invested in proportion to income. Large industry and wealthy people have purchased the largest per cent of bonds so far.

We asked the question as to who was to conduct the campaign for the sale of bonds when the final pinch came in view of the present slow sale. It is said the administration has several plans. One is to force banks and saving institutions to use deposits of customers and hold the bonds for the bank's patrons. Another is to enact a special "incentive tax," which is now being considered by the administration, whereby a certain percent of all money coming into the hands of industry, retail merchants, laborers and farmers must go towards purchase of the Roosevelt war bonds. If not the tax is to be applied which will be a penalty for not purchasing.

Civic organizations of all kinds, clubs and even the dinner clubs are to be organized for the war bond drive as was done back in the first World War. However, this time publicity is to feature the result as much as the campaign to influence the sale of these bonds. Rural banks are said to have the lowest per cent of war bond sales and the New Dealers are expressing themselves as much disappointed that farmers are not responding in view of benefit payments. It is hinted the administration has a plan to make every government employee from scrub woman to cabinet member respond in this purchase or face losing their job, even the classified list is being included. The AAA and recently appointed defense committees in each of the 7800 counties in the nation are to be drilled for the bond sale canvass under the lash of the Washington whip. After the bonds are sold then comes the special tax to cover everything and everybody to pay off the bonds in the future and this will take more than one or two generations.

We read an interesting article in the "Indiana Farmers Guide," the leading agricultural publication in that state whereby the government proposes to erect in each county in the United States a "Cathedral" to house Agricultural Agents, in every county in the nation. The cost will be paid by the general public in government taxes. Then more taxes will be collected to heat and light these institutions proposed by the paternalistic department. The Guide carries pictures of the proposed "Cathedrals," built on block-house lines.

Continuing the Guide comments on the number of ag. agents there are of the various varieties that roam over country and states. The cost of erecting the proposed buildings in the 48 counties in Indiana is estimated at $2,700,000, not including the central administration building that would likely be erected in the capitol of each state. One suggestion is that all farm land in each state be assessed a special tax to erect these proposed buildings. The surprise is that Wickard and some of his brain-trusters do not propose the farm building program as necessary for national defense. We suggest that members of the AAA and the 57 varieties of farm politicians drawing pay monthly wear a special uniform during business hours and when on the platform trying to sell the Russian farm program to the American farmers.

The necessity of a federal housing plan for farm politicians must be admitted when the AAA alone has 98,000 men on the government payroll. It is even suggested that these proposed buildings be "air conditioned," due to the fact federal employees are not required to "earn their bread by the sweat of their brow." Recently there was a meeting in a Northern Indiana city of the field agents of just one farm governmental agency. The gathering met at a certain hotel, the best in the city, and 65 rooms were reserved for the sixtivity agents. These 65 politicians supervised farm activities in fourteen counties. The entire expense of rooms and board was paid by the Agriculture Department out of government tax funds.

Do you as a farm bureau member smoke the celebrated co-op cigarette, or did you know that your farm organization was in the cigarette business? We did not, until we heard Ed Bath, lobbyist for the Ohio Farm Bureau, advertise the new co-op smokes over the air. He was plain in pointing out he did not smoke, just selling farmers who smoke the idea they should buy their own product. Ed says the cigarette has all the merits of the best advertised brands, including the famous Turkish tobacco. Some of these days under our progressive New Deal farm program we may expect to hear some farm agent using the air to sell some of that famous "Scotch" that is shipped to this country in 24 quart cases, all in the name of "defense." When that happens farm bureau membership should increase.

Mothers of girls in New Deal families have an important decision to make other than following the White House policy of cocktails for the boys and girls and "beer and hot dogs" for the informal gatherings. Writing in a well known monthly magazine Mrs. Roosevelt defends the plan of conscripting girls of ages from 18 to 24 for a year of military training and service. She has a different plan now than some months ago when girls were to be put in army camps the same as men. She wants to eliminate the ugly term of military and just use the camp as sort of a "picnic for a year." We imagine that whole plan is more for the training of girls in an educational way to follow the Communistic ideals of the cunning yet clever feminine Roosevelt. Marriage and divorce would be a popular subject and one in which the First Lady has had wide experience in presiding over a home with a record for number unbroken when it comes to divorced sons and daughter.

The Hon. John Brown, head of the Agricultural Department in the Bricker administration, gave the writer a statement of the fine service of A. B. Evans of this place, who has served only a few months on the board by appointment of Gov. Bricker. Not only Mr. Evans but the exhibitors of hogs, the department presided over by Mr. Evans, have found numerous improvements

A sense moment from the sky-drama, "Flying Blind," as captured players Jean Parker, Richard Arlen and Roger Pryor battle enemy spies in the sky.

The aviation melodrama series produced by William H. Pine and William C. Thomas—off to a flying start with "Power Dive" and all but grounded with "Forced Landing"—rises herewith to a level of sustained suspense and melodramatic thrill achieved by no other film of equivalent budget in today's market. At bottom a comedy concerning the operation of a plane service for Los Angeles couples bound for Las Vegas and matrimony, the production builds up a backlog of laughs against which is set flaming abruptly a battle in the air and on land between foreign agents, covetous of a National Defense device, and some Americans who, after plenty of fighting and a forest fire, outwit them the hard way. It's timely material and it carries conviction. Direction is by Frank McDonald and a fast pace is maintained without sacrifice of coherence or plausibility. John W. Rogers served Messrs. Pine and Thomas as associate producer.

Farmers insist that those who have excess wheat quotas should refuse to place either bond or pay the penalty forcing the issue in arrests with the cases to come before juries.

Lightning Burns Peterson Barn

A barn on the Arthur Peterson farm along the Pennsylvania railroad west of town was struck by lightning Wednesday afternoon during an electrical storm and burned. The barn is on what was once known as the Kyle farm at the "deep fill."

In the barn were a number of railroad section hands, none of whom were injured. Finding the building a blaze the men started to form a bucket brigade but not with success. The men sought shelter from the rain.

In the building were three sheep which burned along with 35 tons of alfalfa hay. The loss to building and contents is placed at $2,500.
A dwelling nearby was not in danger at any time.

Letter From Camp

The following letter was received recently by Mrs. Sadie Mitchell, and was written by her son Lloyd.

Dear Folks:— Well, here I am way out in Arkansas, about 710 miles from Camp Forest, Tenn.

We are having a pretty good time, just like a camping trip so far. We are the Red Army. The war was supposed to start this morning. I have a time writing any more—so many things to do. My truck is running fine. I sleep in the rear of it every night. Nice and dry and off the ground and away from the bugs.

We had a very nice trip down here. Stopped quite often and never got into camp before 8 or 9 o'clock every night.

Sure is warm down here in the woods.

Boy! Am I sleepy? I was working last night so I am sleepy today. Well Mom, tell everyone I said hello and I'll see you in October—I hope. So bye, Bye.

As Ever, Your Son

FARMERS HOWL DOWN AAA HECKLERS AT WASHINGTON

We get a report from Washington C. H. that an effort was made by AAA representatives, those on the government payroll to heckle speakers at the wheat protest meeting Wednesday night. The crowd howling the New Dealers down and made them admit their interests first were their salaried jobs and that they operated under orders from Washington regardless of what the farmers wanted.

Mr. Justin Hartman assisted in the service when Miss Frances Smith, Columbia City, Ind., became the bride of Mr. Cecil Thomas, Washington C. H., Sunday afternoon. Mr. Harold Thomas brother of the groom was best man. All three were graduates of Cedarville College. The ceremony took place at "Quaker Hill" Friends meeting center at Richmond, Ind., with Dr. Cordier, professor, Manchester College, officiating. The bride and groom left for Marion, Ala., where both will teach in Lincoln School, under the direction of the American Missionary Association. The groom and Mr. Hartman toured Europe in 1929.

Regent-Rooney Tackles Business Career In New Hardy Hit

Andy Hardy faces tragedy for the first time and Mickey Rooney again proves his versatility in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Life Begins for Andy Hardy" opening Thursday at the Regent theater. The latest film of the popular family series finds Andy in dramatic situations never before confronted by the Caryl youth. It gives Mickey a chance to again prove his ability with a strong emotional role.

Early Ohio History

Under Ohio's first constitution, the Supreme Court consisted of three judges, four being provided for later. The law required that court be held once a year in each county, and that a session in hand be held once a year at the seat of government.

When the number of counties was greatly increased, it was almost impossible to cover the circuit, as travel was mostly on horseback over sometimes almost impassable roads and over trails.

In 1834, the judges held court in seventy-two counties requiring nearly 2500 miles of travel. And in the year mentioned, there were 1459 cases on the trial docket.

Judge Wright, in the preface of his Reports states, that "the judges are occupied in hand three or four weeks annually. If that time and Sundays are deducted from the year, and the usual allowance is made for travel, the Court to clear its docket would be under the necessity of deciding, on the average, about seven cases a day.

REVELATION: A MESSAGE TO PERSECUTED CHURCHES

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 1:3. GOLDEN TEXT—Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.—Revelation 2:10.

The Revelation is so little known that we need part of our first lesson for an introduction to the book. The fact that this is a "revelation" which God gave to Jesus Christ, "to show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass" (1:1), should make us all eager to study it. But it is significant that the promise of special blessing to those who do read (1:3), and a solemn warning against tampering with the book (22:18, 19). Quite evidently God places great importance on the reading and study of this book. Can we do less?

The book is not easy to interpret, and men have differed greatly as to its meaning. There are four general schools of interpretation: (1) The preterist, which places it all in the past. Since many of its predictions have not yet taken place, this view seems untenable. (2) The idealist, which regards the book as being entirely symbolical of spiritual principles. There is truth in this view, but it does not cover the historical events mentioned in the Revelation which are yet to take place in the world. (3) The historicist, which regards the book as mainly an outline of church history. This too fails to account for prophecies yet unfulfilled. (4) The futurist (which seems to be the best view); namely, that chapters two and three, which relate to actual churches then in existence, also outline the entire history of the church, and that the remainder of the book relates to future events. This is the interpretation which is largely held by conservative Bible teachers.

A brief outline of the Revelation is found (1:10) in the book itself:

- 1. "The things which thou hast seen" (John's vision)—chapter 1.
2. "The things which are" (the seven churches)—chapters 2 and 3.
3. "The things which shall be" (the six sevens; namely, seals, trumpets, plagues, vials, dooms, and wrath)—chapters 4-16.
Our lesson portion brings before us two of the seven churches of Asia—Ephesus and Smyrna—with their lessons for our day.

UNCLEAN MILK SOURS QUICKLY

Bacteria Growth Causes an Unpleasant Taste.

By E. W. NEASHAM (Extension Educator, Louisiana State University.)

Sour milk is probably the greatest cause of loss to the milk supply, and yet it is one of the most simple troubles to control.

Clean cows—clean sterilized utensils—small-top milking pails—these are the three most important factors in improving the quality of milk. There is normally present in milk from a very few to many lactic acid bacteria, the organism which causes milk to sour. When milk is first produced it contains about .13 per cent lactic acid, not enough to be detected by the taste. As the organisms grow and convert the sugar into lactic acid, they soon produce enough to cause the milk to taste sour.

About 80 per cent of all bacteria that gain entrance to milk come from the utensils, the remainder coming from the dust of the air, dirt on the flanks of the animal, and from the milk.

In cleaning utensils, they should be rinsed immediately with cold water as soon as emptied, then washed in as warm water as hands can stand, containing a good dairy or washing powder (not soap or soap powder). Wash thoroughly with brush. The final cleaning step is sterilization, the one that destroys or kills the bacteria. Sterilize with steam or boiling water having a temperature of 212 degrees F.

Dirt and fecal matter which cling to the udder, flanks and body of the cow introduce organisms which produce undesirable odors and flavors. They also form gases from the sugar of the milk.

To prevent falling dirt and hair going into the milk the use of the small-top pail is highly essential. Each year the most important utensil that can be used in improving the quality of the milk.

In order to control the growth of organisms, the milk should be kept at a temperature of 50 degrees or lower. At such temperature the growth practically ceases or is so slow as to be of little importance.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By Florence C. Wood

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Soy Beans

The saga of the humble bean tells how a little-known farm product has skyrocketed to fame in 20 years. Each year the soybean industry has become the dependable cash crop of thousands of farmers. The 1940 crop of 80,000,000 bushels will sell around a dollar a bushel, bringing a tidy sum to agriculture and adding vast new markets for the farmer.

The crushing of soybean oil has become a great new industry with nearly 100 mills operating in the important Midwest growing centers. Each year the soybean is crushed and the great bulk of the 62,000,000 pounds of oil goes into the making of oleomargarine.

Other products in which the oil is used are glycerin, linoleum, cellulose, rubber substitute, soap, printing ink, core binder, candles and lecithin which is used in medicines and leather tanning. Soybean meal is being converted into glue, fertilizer and stock and poultry feed.

Soy casing goes into paper sizing and waterproofing of textiles. Meantime new food uses are multiplying as cereals, wafers, salad oil and candy are marketed.

Soybean plastics go into automobile parts amounting to 10-15 pounds of beans per car. Soybean oil is the base of lustrous enamel for cars as well as a new kind of water paint. Soybean casing is spun and woven into a firm upholstery fabric which will soon appear in automobiles. At the Ford River Rouge plant, soybean plastic automobile bodies are being made experimentally, which, if adopted for all Ford cars, would require 700,000 bushels of beans in this field alone.

Principal producing states are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Ohio. The bean has a tariff lobby in Washington, a listing on the Chicago grain board and the New York Producers' Exchange.

Agricultural Notes

The dairy cow can supply at least one-fifth of the farm family's food supply. One of the main objectives in growing winter cover crops is to increase soil fertility. Blackstrap molasses is palatable and relishes by livestock. It has a mildly laxative effect.

New Americans

By Charles Bruce Lassale

"Let your money go to the land from which your forefathers came, but let your heart be with the America that is now and is to come."

Thus spoke an officer of a great state at "The Festival of the Mothers". In the densely populated area of an eastern county, a century of progress was being celebrated. The committee on program very wisely suggested that foreign-born citizens and their children be given a distinct part in the anniversary occasion. They responded readily, and, in an afternoon's program in a great amphitheater sang and danced to the delight of a large representative audience.

The first group to appear was an Italian brass band. The sons of sunny Italy won frequent applause, and their colorful uniforms were pleasing to the eyes. The Magyars came with Hungarian songs and folk dances. They were followed by the Roumanians and Slovenians. Each nationality was in charge of a talented director and a pianist. Music and artistry literally poured from them, and amply pervaded the summer atmosphere.

An orchestra of German men appeared. They were directed by a lady violinist. The fair leader would deftly play the violin in accompaniment a few minutes, and then whip up the playing of the men with right hand gestures and using the bow as a baton. It was an enthusiastic performance which brought warm commendation from the audience.

Polish people also presented an orchestra, and danced the Mazurka. The Slovaks gave drills and exhibitions on parallel bars. Interspersing the afternoon's selections were the state officer's address and solos and duets from the new Americans. In closing, the "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by the performers and audience, and the pledge of allegiance repeated.

It was a significant occasion. The hearts of everyone seemed to be attuned to the essential purpose of those happy hours, and were cheered by the beautiful summer day.

Memories of other lands pervaded the minds of many in the vast throng, but they were only memories. Their loyalty and devotion to America seemed as firm as those whose ancestors came across the Atlantic in the long ago. The second generation speaks English as well as the descendants of Mayflower passengers. Their background of culture makes a worthy contribution to the American scene.

In the course of time, only the family names will suggest the ancestral heritage. A joy that this America was apparent. Happiness pervaded the atmosphere. Expressions of gladness echoed and reverberated throughout the spacious stadium. The festival scene so thrilled the state speaker that he closed his able address with the climactic declaration that "To be an American is greater than to be a king!"

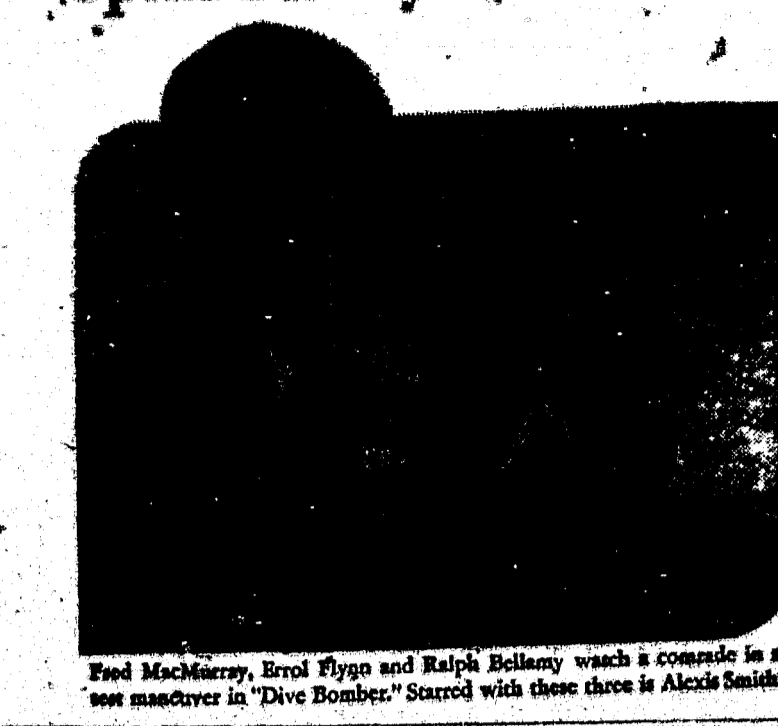

If a fine morality comes into honest fruition in America, why should it not become the ideal land? If a loving response is given to a beneficent Creator, why should we not become a country of spiritual stalwarts? If the coming of former overseas nationals in a brilliant spectacle such as this can take place in a favored American locality, and all over the United States, why cannot the whole world adjust itself to peaceful association? The answer is that it can, if statesmen and citizens catch the vision.
