NEWS LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENTS

COLUMBUS—Gill tags which bear "Ohio" on one side and serial numbers on the other have been attached to hundreds of bass, rock bass, bluegills and channel catfish used in re-stocking Ohio lakes and streams in an attempt to trace the movements of fish and to check the rate of their growth for scientific purposes.

A new high in summer and fall good health may be recorded for Ohio this year as the result of heavy spring rainfall, it was predicted by Dr. W. H. Hartung, director of the state Department of Health. "The dust particles that carry the bulk of disease germs have been forced out of the air and into the ground by the hard rains," Dr. Hartung said.

The results of an unusual combined primary and election, conducted May 7 in the new Northfield Center township, Summit county, by the Summit county Board of Elections, have been filed with Secretary of State George S. Myers. The primary election was held under an old law, dating back to the town meeting era, which permits an election board to set a date at which nominations for township officials will be made and following which the election will be held.

It is a big task to handle and censor even a single month's volume of mail at Ohio penitentiaries, according to a report on mail made for April to Warden James C. Woodard. During the thirty-day April period, 15,062 incoming and 7,503 outgoing letters, as well as seventy-five packages, were handled by the mail department at the penal institution. The penitentiary population is 4,000 inmates.

THE BOYLAND TRAIL

At the Old-Time Shootin' Match

It has often been my thought that Cedarville was a very unusual town, especially in its earlier days, and before swift transportation destroyed its quaint individuality. I am of the opinion that it required only an adequate commentator to turn many of the incidents of simple romance and human interest into very fine story copy. I am sure I have recognized several local characters in Wilbur D. Hooker's "Gentleman Ragman," and Hal Reid certainly used local settings in some of his stirring melodrama.

The following incident occurred many years ago in the course of an old time shooting match held on the site of Shamblee Ork's pasture. "This was all before my time, yet I recall that even in my boyhood day contests of this kind were still held at the same location each year along towards Thanksgiving. I was always on the scene to get a job 'settin' traps' for the clay pigeon targets.

In the earlier days, glass balls were used in place of clay targets, and most of the guns were of the muzzle-loading type. There were only one or two breach-loading guns in town when my father was a boy, and the ammunition used was home loaded in brass cased shells. The conventional type of shot gun shell of the present day was either unknown or too great a luxury for our early Cedarville sportsmen. The incident which I am about to relate took place even before shot gun trap shooting became common in our community. The story, was often told me by my father, who witnessed the occasion as a boy.

The contest in question was held just before a certain Thanksgiving day more than sixty years ago. It was a match between rifle marksmen, the target being live turkeys mounted with their legs thrust into holes bored in a box. The contestants, for a stipulated fee, were permitted a single shot at the prize, placed at some forty rods distance from the toe mark.

Here a plank was placed slantwise on a bear keg as a rest for the shooter, he lying prone on the plank with his rifle steadied across the keg. Unfortunately, I have forgotten the names of most of these early participants but there were among those present as spectators—mere youngsters at the time and too young to "pint" the long barreled rifles, Al Gline, John Cross, Johnnie Marshall, Al Keiner, Dave Tarbox, Frank Tarbox, Charley Huffine and "Jockey" Irvin.

It happens that the Turkeys set up as prizes for the party sponsoring the match (a local saloonkeeper) were not exactly choice fowls. They appeared not to have fared well during the past summer and to have been denied certain vitamins which contribute to normal growth and heft. At the match got under way it was at once apparent that skill would be required to bring down such understated birds. Soon a decisive voice was set up by the contestants as shot after shot was fired without effective result.

More often the Turkeys sat unperturbed and uncast as the bullets whizzed by. The targets were dubbed "cranes," "kill deers," and "pore, scrawny, half growned peewees," and strong imprecation rained against the accuracy of the range measurement. But the manager remained adamant through all the clamor, collecting his fees and chuckling merrily at the consistent misses.

Finally, after several hours of shooting, only one or two of the more expert marksmen had managed to cop a prize. One of these, however, had held his aim exceptionally true and brought down three of the birds, whereupon he was straightway barred from further trials.

Blossom Time

fifte roared another bird fopped over the box. Loud was the exclamation of dismay set up by the manager at this sudden display of unerring marksmanship. He threatened to bar Hooker from further shots but the youth argued long and hard with the result that he gained a reluctant concession of one further try.

Hooker measured a heap of powder on his palm and poured it into the muzzle of his trusty weapon. Upon this he dropped a rag wadding and rammed it home with the wooden rod. Then placing a cap on his pin, he cocked his piece, got himself down on the plank and went through the careful assumption of taking a bead in the general direction of the turkey. In due course, the trigger was pulled, and the ancient rifle let go with a mighty roar. At "about" the same instant there came a peculiarly hoarse, echoing discharge from the direction of the shed. In deed, it was accepted as an echo by all save one, more observant than the rest, who by chance had observed a burst of smoke lifting from the rear of the outbuilding. For a moment he watched it in abject wonderment, but only for a moment, whereupon he exploded with such a burst of side-splitting exuberance that those about him thought him suddenly bereft of his reason. He offered but one comment. It was "Geech—A'mighty! that that gun o' Hooker's has got a powerful echo."

If any among those present observed a few moments later, a lank figure carrying a rifle and three turkeys sneaking along the line fence from the rear of the shed they placed no significance upon it.

BLUE EAGLE DEAD BIRD IN SOUTH

If there ever was life in the Roosevelt-Johnson species of the Blue Eagle, it was not known in the south. If there ever was a section where resentment is openly on the surface it is among several hundred southern publishers we have met.

Many say NRA works just like prohibition. The former was for Johnson's Wall Street friends while prohibition in the south was only intended for the "nigger," a term just as popular there as before the Civil War.

WHAT A DEMOCRAT THINKS OF BRAINTRUSTERS

Now and then we find a Democrat who does not hesitate to open up his soul and confess that even all is not well within his party and that he himself has reason to ask: "Where are we drifting?"

Having had ten days association with publishers of all brands of politics from forty-four of the states of the union, we have had the opportunity to at least form some conclusions from this cross-section of publishers representing 12,000 or more publications in the nation.

One thing is certain if NRA is to be the campaign issue for the Roosevelt administration in 1936, Franklin D. will never see a second term. One might just as well conclude that Sen. Huey Long, Father Coughlin, Dr. Townsend, or some other of the present day first pagers will sit in the Whitehouse.

With governmental action in many ways affecting thousands of publications in the country it would be expected that the Roosevelt New Deal would find a place in convention discussions. There are very few newspaper offices in the nation that give a warm welcome to the brain-truster idea of government.

"Of all the quivering, vacillating, responsibility dodging gangs ever assembled under one canvass in Washington the NRA is the greatest show on earth. Clothed with unbounded authority, it has a legal division that is without doubt the most impractical setup ever made by our government. It is the finest impeding gang of letter writers and 'you can't do that'ers ever given powers in this country.

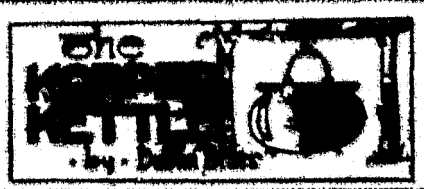

"The depression, we are told, was only a state of mind. If you don't believe it, it isn't. We saw falling prices, and debt moratoriums and increasing unemployment and were asked to disbelieve our senses. To hypnotize ourselves. Rents unpaid, hungry and ragged children were realities too strong for disbelief, so democracy came to power with college professors to initiate the New Deal with its codes and fumbles and combinations and opinions and experiments.

It is next to impossible to sort a fellow who is out of sorts.

How true—Few of us care for the other fellow's cares.

The thing that concerns many people is not who discovered America, but who is to lift her up when full inflation hits her.

Secretary Wallace, agriculture dictator under the New Deal, spoke in Alexander, La., last Saturday, but had little to say about Sen. Huey Long, although that Parish (county) is very strong against him.

The payment of the Bonus would bring more than $530,000 to Greene county but if Roosevelt stands by his promise of a veto it will be up to the Senate to over-ride it.

The dairy industry is on a large scale and very profitable. At the experimental farm we saw a fine herd of Angus cattle, also other breeds, and the result of cross breeding from the wild bull of Africa as well as from India.

Farm Cash Income Continues To Rise

Income in Four Months of 1935 Rose 45 Per Cent Above 1934 Level

Gross cash farm income in Ohio, in the months of January through April, was 45 per cent larger than in the same period a year ago.

Income from dairy products rose nearly one-third, he says, owing to price increases for milk and butterfat.

Income from sales of farm products in April was about 14 per cent higher than in March. Prices of hogs and sheep held at about the same level during the two months.

Potato prices continued low. The farm price was 40 cents a bushel in April compared with $1.15 a year ago.

The principle increase in April income was from poultry and eggs. The rise was 50 per cent in April over March income. This rise was due to an increased production of eggs considerably above the usual April quantities and a contra-seasonal rise in egg prices.

The dazzling, glamorous Mae West, screenland's curved-line "How am I Doin' Girl" takes the movie spotlight at the Regent theater, Springfield, where her latest picture, "Goin' To Town," will open a week's engagement, starting Friday.

Temperance Notes

Sponsored by Cedarville W. C. T. U.

State liquor stores in Ohio were closed on Good Friday but that did not raise them any higher in the estimation of the Christian citizens of that state.

Texas legislature is trying to find some way by which it can legalize the sale of liquor in spite of the Constitution. Why bother? What does the liquor crowd care whether the sale is legal or illegal?

The Ministers' Casualty Union of Minneapolis gives us the information that, America slaughtered over 86,000 of her people last year on the highways—an increase of 16 per cent over 1928 and the worst record in history. More than a million people were injured!

An insurance journal reports that of drivers involved in accidents, the number found intoxicated increased by 24 per cent. Every person who uses a street or highway is exposed to the increased hazard caused by drivers with alcoholic judgment and reactions.

On April 2, eleven precincts in Chicago voted on local option and eight of them voted the saloons out. A strong tide of resentment is rising throughout the country against the law-breaking liquor traffic.

The W. C. T. U. leaders have come out in criticism of the proposal of the ten years "education campaign" just announced by a group of prominent eastern opponents of prohibition and apologists for so-called moderate drinking of beverage alcohol, including such sponsors as Nicholas Murray Butler and John D. Rockefeller, Jr. "Instead of being a plan to blaze an entirely new trail toward solution of the liquor traffic," as the moderationalists aver, their proposal would inevitably serve to bring back on a vaster scale all the old evils involved in the liquor problem in pre-prohibition years." Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, W.C.T.U. president, declares that nation-wide acceptance and adoption of the moderationalist attitude would "menacingly expand, by tens of thousands, the number of drink addicts in America." Christian Century.

The flood of time is rolling on. We stand upon its brink, whilst they are gone. To glide in peace down death's mysterious stream. Have we done well? —Percy Bysshe Shelley.

A Toronto, Canada, paper says: "The city of Toronto, with 100,000 people on relief is said to be spending $12,000,000 a year on alcoholic drink."

Prohibition reduced the average number of drunks in the Salvation Army hotels in Chicago from 250 to 6.—Evangeline Booth.

Bernard Shaw says that a nation that spends its money on champagne before it provides milk enough for its babies, is silly, stupid and will go to the bad.

Ohio citizens have swallowed $15,000,000 worth of booze the past year. Figures on how much food, fuel and clothing this would have bought.

Detroit, Michigan, one of the few cities to publish a thorough analysis of traffic accidents, reports a 90 per cent increase during the first nine months of 1924 in accidents due to drinking. This city also reported a 62 per cent increase in motor injuries to pedestrians who had been drinking.

Some one sends us a newspaper clipping from Niagara Falls, N. Y., reporting President Roosevelt's participation in the initiation of nine young men into a club in which he handed each young man a quart of champagne. Rev. J. F. Knotts, Methodist superintendent of the Linn district, in a sermon said: "I want to say that the best moral sense of the country expects something better than that from the President of the United States. I want to say that when the foundation of this republic is being shaken and serious minded citizens are deeply concerned about the future, while elder statesmen and young prophets know not which way to turn; when a large percentage of people are trying to drink us and the rest of the country into prosperity and when the national capital is struggling with legislation to meet the greatest crisis since Washington laid down his mantle, a President could set a better example than handing a quart of champagne to each of the nine young men who were initiated."

Mother-Daughter Banquet

Held Friday Evening.

The annual Mother-Daughter banquet under the direction of the Y. W. C. A. of Cedarville College, was held last Friday evening at Alford Memorial, about one hundred and fifty guests being present. A three course dinner was served under the direction of the Social Committee.

Following the dinner the toast program was presided over by Miss Carma Hostetler, president of the Y. W. C. A. The address of welcome was given by Miss Eleanor Bull. The response on behalf of the Mothers was given by Mrs. Robert L. Deans, Jamestown.

On the musical program Misses Dorothy Cory and Eleanor Bull rendered vocal duets, and Miss Anna Jane Wham, two vocal solos.

The guest speaker of the evening was Mrs. E. A. Simister, Xenia. The program closed with a quartette number by the Orange and Blue Soranaders composed of Anna Jane Wham, Georgia Skinnell, Dorothy Anderson and Harriett Ritener.

CHAIN LETTER SCHEME WORKS HERE ALSO

The "Chain Prosperity Letter racket, or a new 'Get Rich Scheme' is under way here regardless of what Postmaster General Farley has to say about using the mail for such purposes.

Everything is included from the ten cent variety to the $25 class. It is a so-called prosperity stunt.

Statisticians say that the ten cent variety continues to grow without a single person dropping out, the early investors will get 15,625 letters with donations amounting to $1,652.50.

CEDARVILLE PHONE RECORD

Ohio has more telephones than are in service in Mexico, South America, Central America, and the West Indies combined and nearly as many as all of Canada, according to a compilation of world statistics just completed by the Bell System.

This state has more than 950,000 telephones, as against 845,000 in those tropical areas, while the Canadian total is 1,200,000.

Cedarville's share of the Ohio total is 250 and this figure is increasing, according to H. W. Cleaver, commercial manager for The Ohio Bell Telephone Company in charge of this exchange.

This nation continues to lead in the number of telephones in relation to population, with 13.29 telephones per 100 inhabitants, compared with 1.54 telephones for the world, as a whole. The first 20 countries ranked according to the number of telephones per 100 population as follows:

United States, 13.29; Canada, 11.15; New Zealand, 10.01; Denmark, 9.99; Sweden, 8.51; Switzerland, 8.81; Australia, 7.35; Norway, 7.00; Hawaii, 6.58; Great Britain, 4.78; Germany, 4.48; Netherlands, 4.14; Belgium, 3.86; Finland, 3.74; Austria, 3.55; France, 3.19; Latvia, 3.19; Argentina, 2.64; Uruguay, 2.14; Japan, 1.50.

Washington, D. C., with 35.31 telephones per 100 population, or better than one telephone for each three persons; is the world's best developed city from a telephone standpoint. It is closely followed by San Francisco, with 35 telephones per 100 inhabitants, and Stockholm, Sweden, with 31.95. There are 53 cities in the United States with more than 200,000 inhabitants and they average more than 19 telephones per 100 population.

Superiority of American telephone development is indicated when this figure is contrasted with development in the following principal Capital cities: Berlin, 10.85; Brussels, 10.72; London, 9.07; Madrid, 5.77; Paris, 14.18; Rome, 7.58; Tokio, 3.56; Vienna, 3.39.

"The ratio in Cedarville is 14.73 telephones per 100 population," said Manager Cleaver.

During the twentieth legislative session, December 5, 1881 to February 4, 1882, on the election of Governor Ethan Allen Brown as United States Senator, January 19, the latter year, Allen Trimble, Speaker of the State Senate, became acting Governor.

It was at this session that ex-Governor Worthington, who had been elected the previous fall, took his seat as State Representative. The reason given was his great interest in the canal project, for which he used his great influence.

A special session of the Legislature convened May 20, 1822 to reform the congressional districts. Congress had allowed one member of the National House of Representatives for every 42,000 inhabitants, making Ohio entitled to fourteen members of that body, which placed her fourth in that respect among the States of the Union. The legislature adjourned after a three days meeting, it being Ohio's first special session.

Mrs. Walter Purdon of Marion was a guest this week of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tarbox.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Kuehrmann of Indianapolis, Ind., spent the week-end with their son Prof. O. W. Kuehrmann and family.

Wallace Describes His Granary Plan
Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, speaking to the Ohio Council of Farm Organizations and guests, at Wooster last week, said the "ever-normal granary" plan simply represents a combination of methods to provide short-time farm credit on farm-stored crops, to limit speculative profit, and to preserve a crop reserve large enough to prevent shortages.
Every one of the methods which would be used under the ever-normal granary plan is familiar to farmers, and has long been advocated by farmers, he said.
Here's how the plan would operate, as Secretary Wallace described it:
"Under the plan in years of large production the surplus over domestic and export demands would be pledged to the Government as security for loans. Under such an arrangement no longer a price-depressing factor, waste of the product and expense of movement would be avoided.
"Under the plan in years of low production a short crop, the farmer could pay off his loan by selling on the higher market. But if the crop again were low, the Government would come into possession of the stored commodity, the Government would not have to move the product or sell them. It could agree to turn them back to producer as compensation for a reduction in acreage sufficient to assure a better price for the stored commodity and the next year's crop. There would be no hauling charges. The stores involved would have been on the farms all the time.
"This payment in kind for adjustment, which would make the complete ever-normal granary plan possible, is provided for in the AAA amendments now before Congress.
"Under the ever-normal granary plan only producers cooperating in the adjustment program concerned would be eligible for the commodity loans. Thus the tendency toward overproduction in times of high prices would be curbed.
"Under the ever-normal granary plan was illustrated by the 1935 crop corn loans, under which farmers in the Corn Belt stored 270,000,000 bushels in sealed cribs, and were advanced $120,493,000 against this collateral. They finally sold it on a favorable market, paying off the loan, and gaining through increase in corn value $52,900,000 above such costs of the loan as interest and insurance. The corn thus carried over provided valuable feed resources the next year, when the crop was short."
