Psalm 100

Psalm 100

Make a joyful noise unto the LORD, all ye lands. Serve the LORD with gladness: come before his presence with singing. Know ye that the LORD he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture. Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name. For the LORD is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations.

I can think of no more appropriate passage of Scripture than Psalm 100 to open this report. It expresses exactly our reactions to the events of the past year.

As one of the newer translations renders verse 1, we have much about which to “shout joyfully!” Our students continue to achieve great things, both while in the midst of their educational experiences here at Cedarville and after they leave us and go on to their careers, ministries, seminary, or other graduate training. We also have much to shout about concerning faculty and staff achievements and in terms of physical growth and development. We began the past academic year with another record enrollment and conferred a record number of degrees at graduation in June. We received national recognition from U.S. News and World Report and Yahoo! Internet Life magazines. We continued to develop and enhance our quality campus in many ways, including the opening of a new dormitory complex, the dedication of the Apple Technology Resource Center and new athletic fields, and the refurbishment of the Athletic Center. We also witnessed the beginning of the Student Life Center construction, and we are eager for its completion later this year. Indeed, we have reason to “make a joyful noise.”

We also “serve the Lord with gladness.” We retain our unswerving commitment to the Word of God, providing an education consistent with biblical truth. Our theme for the past year, “Practicing the Power of Prayer,” resulted in some of the most phenomenal moving on our campus community that I can recall. Hundreds of young people committed themselves to fervent prayer lives. Many witnessed clear, undeniable answers to prayer. Many in the College family found that prayer was their only resort. Others found prayer to be the springboard to other avenues of service. All found prayer to be exactly the source of strength, comfort, and energy that God promised it would be. We are delighted to serve God.

Finally, we are privileged to “enter His gates with thanksgiving.” We thank God for giving us the honor of ministering to the lives of young people and having a positive influence on the next generation of Christian leaders. Is there any better way to spend our lives? We are especially thankful to have the opportunity to be a part of what we call the “Cedarville Experience.” As you review the record of the past year contained in this report, you will understand better why we are so thankful. It is our rare privilege to help young people develop these four attributes: a Heart for God, a Mind for Christ, Friends for Life, and Service for Eternity. We thank God for His favor.

We also thank you for the part you play in making the Cedarville Experience possible.

Heart for God

Since, as Dr. Paul Dixon maintains, chapel is the “heartbeat” of the Christian college, then Cedarville College certainly has a healthy, strong pulse. Chapel, de-emphasized by many other Christian schools, remains alive and thriving at Cedarville. This daily hour of fellowship and Bible teaching allows students and faculty to maintain their focus and unity while pursuing a heart for God.

Each year, the administration prayerfully selects a chapel theme for the coming academic year. In keeping with last year’s theme of “Practicing the Power of Prayer,” chapel speakers such as John MacArthur, David Jeremiah, Kay Coles James, and the College’s own Paul Dixon challenged listeners to a victorious prayer life.

“No one can deny that chapel is the life force of Cedarville College. I personally love Bible conferences [with] speakers like Joe Stowell and Alistair Begg.”

Scott Lehr

Student Body Chaplain for 1999-2000*

“The theme ‘Practicing the Power of Prayer’ served as a constant reminder to me to be observant and attentive to God’s Word and His instruction about prayer. ... I learned to look to God and to plead with Him on the basis of His mercy and grace rather than on the basis of my so-called ‘righteousness’ (Daniel 9:18).”

Wes Tillett

*Senior comprehensive Bible major from Rensselaer, Ind.
Advisory 7 member*

The daily integration of biblical principles into the classroom is another factor that sets Cedarville apart and illustrates the College’s heart for God.

“At Cedarville, we are committed to discovering God’s truth wherever He has chosen to reveal it. We search for His truth in the Scriptures, but we also seek aspects of the truth that He has revealed elsewhere—in the laboratory, in the library, in literature, and many other contexts as well. Then we endeavor to connect those pieces of God’s truth together so that we can see better the picture that God alone can see perfectly. Integration, then, is part of the way in which we love God with our minds. It is, in reality, an essential part of our worship.”

Daniel Estes, Ph.D.

Assistant Academic Vice President and Professor of Bible

Clearly, chapel is not the only way that Cedarville students pursue a heart for God. The abundance of voluntary student groups for discipleship, Bible study, and prayer reveals that students have a sincere drive to know and serve our Lord better.

Seekers

Approximately 250 students are involved in Seekers, a student-led discipleship opportunity. Small groups of participants meet weekly to hold each other accountable in Scripture study and application. “Chapel had a huge impact on me while I was a student at Cedarville,” shared Joy Fagan, instructor of Spanish and Christian education and framework provider for the

Seekers program, “but it was a commitment to having quality time with God that has sustained me. Chapel will provide a foundation for students, but ten years down the road, it is the daily time with God in His Word that will help students persevere through the tough times.”

Prayer Force

As a weekly prayer partnership for female students, faculty, and staff, Prayer Force has set three goals: pray for revival in personal lives, the campus, the country, and the world; serve the campus through prayer and encouragement; and build unity between Christian women. Group Leader Rachel Reno, a senior secondary English education major from Edmond, Okla., remarked, “It is exciting to see the encouragement, energy, and dedication this year’s women have towards praying for others in the College family.”

Elijah’s Fire

Junior preseminary Bible major Eric Wentz (Midland, Mich.) witnessed the powerful impact of Prayer Force and, as a freshman, was convicted by the Holy Spirit to begin a similar group for campus men. Now known as Elijah’s Fire, the group involves approximately 120 men who meet weekly in small groups for prayer and accountability. Senior preseminary Bible major Ryan Spazak (Syracuse, N.Y.) shared, “We are hoping [the concept of Elijah’s Fire] will spread nationally. We hope the guys will take this ... wherever they go.”

FIRE by Prayer

FIRE by Prayer, which stands for Finally It (the Gospel) Reaches Everyone by Prayer, concentrates on prayer for unreached people groups. Students pray that God would call missionaries to these people groups, provide Scripture translation, and begin Bible-believing churches. Group Coordinator Jeanne Moynihan, a senior biology major from Waterford, Conn., explained, “Our goal is that God would move on all our hearts to have compassion and to pray for those who do not have the gospel available to them in their ‘heart language.’ In addition, our prayer is that the Lord of the harvest would send forth laborers into the field (Matthew 9:38). As we encourage ourselves and fellow students to truly apply this verse, we are asking the Holy Spirit to show us what our part could be for these unreached people.”

Mind for Christ

With more than 100 programs of study available, Cedarville provides students numerous avenues for pursuing an education consistent with biblical truth. The recent addition of theatre and computer science majors will allow students to nurture a mind for Christ in two more areas.

Theatre

A comprehensive theatre major has taken the stage at Cedarville, offering students unique preparation for sharing Christ with our culture through drama. Students are given a broad education in stage performance, technical theatre, theatre history, dramaturgy, and religious drama. The classes are thoroughly Christian while thoroughly familiar with current trends in professional theatre.

Cedarville students have already attained prestigious internships at The Muse Machine (the largest arts-in-education program in the nation), The Mark Taper Forum (one of the largest regional theatres in the nation), and The Los Angeles Film Studies Center (a Christian link to the mainstream film industry). Professional internships will continue to be a vital part of the theatre program.

“The opportunities for the Christian to use his or her skills to impact our culture and our churches for Christ are endless,” commented Dr. David Robey, director of the theatre program and professor of communication arts.

Approximately 30 students have declared themselves theatre majors and approximately 100 non-theatre majors are involved with each campus drama. These and many other aspiring thespians will be able to take advantage of the new drama facility (shown above with Dr. Robey), which is part of the College’s new Student Life Center. The facility will include a 400-seat auditorium, rehearsal room, make-up lab, dressing rooms, and one of the finest design studios in Ohio. With this top-notch facility and a new theatre degree program, Cedarville is positioning itself to make an impact for Christ through theatre arts in the next century.

Computer Science

Because of student demand, the College now offers a new computer science major. Based primarily on previously existing business, engineering, math, and science courses, the major offers a core of classes from the department of science and mathematics. “Our number one goal is to produce students who are faithful and obedient to God, regardless of what the world is or does,” shared Robert Schumacher, assistant professor of mathematics, “and our second goal is to provide current technical skills without compromising the first goal.”

Students will be ready for a variety of venues after graduation, including graduate school, teaching, business-oriented work, code writing, and software design. Currently 32 students are taking advantage of this new program.

In another year of strong academic achievements, Cedarville students demonstrated that they desire to use their minds for Christ. The following is a sampling of honors brought home by Cedarville students.

- ◆ Derrick Doherty, a junior preseminary Bible major from Forked River, N.J., received a 1999 undergraduate fellowship from the Partnership for Excellence program of the Fund for Theological Education (FTE).
- ◆ A team of six engineering students (shown at right) earned the grand prize in the sixth annual International Padnos Design Competition, a competition which recognizes innovative and environmentally-responsible student engineering projects. They were invited to publish their research report in the Technology Journal of Franklin Institute. The team's machine, which efficiently removes rod guides from oil well sucker rods so that the sucker rods can be reused, benefits the oil industry by decreasing supply costs, increasing profit from old oil wells, and reducing environmental waste.
- ◆ The Cedarville College student chapter of the Society of Technical Communication (STC) received the Student Chapter Achievement Award for best student chapter in the nation.
- ◆ Mechanical engineering design teams took first and second place at the third annual Senior Project Showcase of the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers (OSPE). This was the second year in a row that Cedarville produced the OSPE's first place team.
- ◆ Jess Gamiere, a senior criminal justice major from Mentor, Ohio, was named Outstanding Criminal Justice Student of the Year by the Ohio Council of Criminal Justice Education. Gamiere (shown above receiving the award) has since begun graduate work at Cleveland State University's Marshall Law School.
- ◆ Cedarville's debate team excelled at the National Education Debate Association's tournament. Besides winning numerous awards for individual performance, Cedarville won first place in the Open Division and second place in the Novice Division. Team coach Deborah Haffey received an award for best debate program.
- ◆ The Cedarville College Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE) team earned a regional title at the 1999 SIFE Regional Exposition and Career Opportunity Fair. Their regional title allowed them to compete against 15 champion teams from the U.S., Central Asia, and Brazil at the Hallmark Cards/SIFE International Exposition and Career Opportunity Fair.
- ◆ A mechanical engineering design team (shown above) won third place at the American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ASME) Region IV Student Conference for their running machine. The machine eliminates impact as the athlete runs, preventing leg and knee injuries during training.
- ◆ The College's Summit Challenge team (shown above) took third place at the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE) Region II Summit Challenge. The team constructed a remote-controlled robot which used a paint roller arm to secure metal bearings and place them into a bin. Cedarville's robot competed against ten other schools in a race to capture the most bearings.
- ◆ Cedarville was the only engineering school in the state to have a 100 percent passing rate on the Fundamentals of Engineering Exam, the first step towards the Professional Engineer (PE) ranking.

Mind for Christ

Friends for Life

Cedarville College works to provide students with healthy, quality extracurricular activities that promote well-being and foster friendships. The College's athletic, cultural, and social events and facilities are all designed to enhance the quality of student life at Cedarville, help young people develop their abilities, and give opportunities for making friends for life.

Athletic Action

Cedarville's recreational activities program offers students 10-15 intramural sports and other recreational sports per quarter, ranging from sand volleyball and ultimate frisbee to rock climbing and cardio-kickboxing. In 1999, approximately 1600 students and 25 faculty and staff members were involved in the intramural sports program, allowing them to participate in team activities, develop friendships, and maintain healthy exercise habits.

In varsity sports, Cedarville athletes had another excellent year of personal and team accomplishments. For example, John Krueger, a basketball player from Brownsburg, Ind., was named AMC Player of the Year and NAIA All-America Third Team player before graduating in 1999. Athletes and coaches earned the following additional accolades:

- ◆ 1 NCCAA Regional Championship
- ◆ 1 NCCAA Region Coach of the Year
- ◆ 5 NAIA All-Americans
- ◆ 12 NCCAA All-Americans
- ◆ 14 NAIA All-America Scholar-Athletes
- ◆ 20 NCCAA All-America Scholar-Athletes

In an effort to provide the best possible environment and opportunities for students, a number of additions and improvements now grace the campus.

The Athletic Center gym floor has been replaced with a cushioned maple floor that should help prevent injuries. Numerous other improvements have been made which make the gym more practical, as it can now be used simultaneously by basketball and volleyball teams for practices.

Because a new dorm complex, women's soccer field, and Student Life Center construction site stand on the old baseball and softball diamonds, new baseball, softball, and soccer fields have been added on the north side of campus. Each of the new diamonds has drainage and irrigation systems and high-quality top dressing, making them better able to handle the elements. The new fields have been described as the finest fields in Cedarville's conference.

Cultural Celebration

Each year Cedarville brings performers such as Aaron • Jeffrey, Twila Paris, and Phillips, Craig & Dean to the College for evenings of Christian entertainment and encouragement. The College also hosts the Artist Series and the Lyrica Series, giving students a taste of classical music by world-renowned musicians and local music greats.

Students involved in orchestra, symphonic band, lab band, brass choir, concert chorale, or Jubilaté (mixed vocal ensemble) have the chance to make music of their own while forming friendships and worshiping God through music. Theatre, another integral part of the College's activities, allows students to grow together as they bring poignant and humorous drama to the College stage.

Social Setting

As enrollment continued to climb and Bethel Hall was torn down, the need for more student housing became critical. The Johnson, Green, St. Clair complex, opened in the fall of 1999, was built to help with the College's housing needs. Johnson Hall provides rooms for 125 women, St. Clair Hall houses 125 men, and the Green Conference Center offers an area for students to socialize and make friends for life.

"The opportunity to be one of the first students to live in the new dorm has been a valuable addition to my Cedarville College experience. I have been able to make numerous friendships with the guys in my hall, which have already benefitted me socially, academically, and spiritually. I am looking forward to the rest of my time at Cedarville and am thankful to have the opportunity to take advantage of this great facility."

Edward F. Vander Bush III

Sophomore marketing and management major from Downingtown, Penn.

Friends for Life

Service for Eternity

After students complete their years at Cedarville College, they leave with much more than a diploma in hand. Nurtured by chapel and devotional time, they hold a heart for God. Their studies have developed in them a mind for Christ. Extracurricular activities have provided them with friends for life. However, one of the greatest attributes that students leave Cedarville College with is a passion for service for eternity.

There are many ways in which students can serve. Some ways are very evident and well-known; others are obscure and perhaps known only to the Lord. While no one can begin to list the unheralded ways in which some of Cedarville's students may serve, the following are more visible ways that students have committed themselves to service for eternity.

Community Ministries

Each year Cedarville students minister to churches and community organizations in the southwest Ohio region through a variety of local opportunities. This year, students chose to minister in the following ways:

- ◆ Counseling/Crisis Pregnancy Centers
- ◆ Evangelism/urban outreach
- ◆ Tutoring
- ◆ Youth outreach
- ◆ Correctional facilities visitation
- ◆ Hospital/Ronald McDonald House service
- ◆ Nursing home/disability visitation
- ◆ Service in local churches

“It has been so exciting to see the way God has worked in junior high youth to make them leaders in the youth group, and eventually, I believe, leaders in the church. I also have seen God work in amazing ways within the team of Cedarville students, changing us so that we would be better tools in His hands. ... I have discovered beyond a doubt that youth ministry is the area where God wants me to serve.”

Andrea Endicott

*Senior organizational communications major from Liberty Center, Ohio
Jr. high youth group ministry participant*

National Touring Ministries

The touring teams from the Cedarville College Division of Christian Ministries seek to present a fresh expression of the gospel through music and drama. In the past year, the teams ministered to more than 365 churches, camps, and schools during weekend, spring break, and summer tours. The touring team ministries, listed below, provide students with an incredible opportunity to use their interests, gifts, and abilities for Christ.

- ◆ Abundant Life Singers
- ◆ Kingsmen Quartet
- ◆ Swordbearers (music)
- ◆ The Master's Puppets
- ◆ The Lifeline Players (drama)

International Missions Involvement Services (MIS)

More than 200 students, faculty, and staff members chose to spend their summers, Christmas break, or spring break in short-term missions trips on six continents. Individuals and teams assisted field missionaries and spread the gospel through the following means:

- ◆ Broadcasting/engineering
- ◆ Orphanage ministry
- ◆ Christian education
- ◆ Music
- ◆ Drama
- ◆ Nursing/medical service
- ◆ Soccer camps for children
- ◆ Basketball evangelism
- ◆ Teaching English as a second language
- ◆ Sign language
- ◆ Vacation Bible School
- ◆ Construction

Service for Eternity

Student Life Center

The Student Life Center, currently under construction, will advance the quality of student life at Cedarville College in much the way recent academic buildings and the Dixon Ministry Center have advanced the quality of students' academic and spiritual lives. The Student Life Center will combine a number of functions under the same roof, including:

- ◆ Student Dining: Overlooking Cedar Lake, the dining hall will accommodate a growing campus population.
- ◆ Student Recreation: The Student Life Center will provide areas for game rooms and lounges, including a commuter student lounge and a student snack shop.
- ◆ Student Services: Student-oriented agencies and organizations, currently spread around many buildings on campus, will have several key locations within the Student Life Center. Some of those include the Student Government Association (SGA), the student radio station (WSRN), career services, campus activities, counseling services, and financial aid.
- ◆ Student Post Office: The new facility will provide a convenient location for students to receive their mail and an adequate area for mail processing and distribution.
- ◆ College Bookstore: The expanded floor space of the Student Life Center's bookstore will provide far more effective service to students, faculty, alumni, and guests.
- ◆ Theater: The new theater will help take the drama program to a new level and position the College to prepare more Christians to make a greater impact on our culture for Christ through the arts. The facility will include a 400-seat auditorium with a lift for the orchestra pit, rehearsal rooms, dressing rooms, a make-up lab, and computer design studios.

Student Life Center Update

- ◆ $14.7 million has already been committed toward the $21 million cost.
- ◆ Multi-year commitments are encouraged for giving through 2002.
- ◆ Construction continues on schedule; expected completion date is July 1, 2000.
- ◆ Official dedication weekend is scheduled for October 20-21, 2000.
- ◆ Construction progress can be viewed via the College website at www.cedarville.edu.

For more information, contact the office of development at Cedarville College at 1-800-766-1115 or clarkm@cedarville.edu.

“I believe that the new SLC is going to be an excellent turning point for Cedarville College. For the first time in a long time, all of the areas designed for the improvement of student life will be together under one roof. Furthermore, being the world-class facility that it is going to be, it creates a sense of pride for the student body here at the school.”

Student Costs and Scholarships

A Cedarville College education is competitively priced almost 30 percent below the national average for private colleges. The combination of academic quality and competitive pricing has consistently earned Cedarville College national recognition for providing an outstanding educational value to its students.

Cedarville College is able to keep its cost below the national average by avoiding the common practice of tuition "discounting." Many institutions charge tuition and fees far in excess of the actual cost of providing the education. This tuition surcharge is then used to provide financial assistance to those students with "demonstrated financial need." The college collects the excess tuition and fees and then redistributes those funds as institutionally-funded scholarships, grants, and other financial aid as a way to recruit students. Consequently, families that can afford to pay the inflated cost often end up paying the total cost for themselves and a portion of the cost for others. Unfortunately, this policy forces families with adequate financial resources to assist students completely at the discretion of the institution.

Cedarville College believes there is a better way to provide financial assistance while keeping educational cost to a minimum. Donor-funded scholarships allow the individual to designate the use of his or her gift and to share in the blessings of providing direct assistance to those in need.

Cedarville College scholarship donors have the privilege of sharing in our mission. Each scholarship gift helps to provide a Bible-based education for students who demonstrate a desire to serve the Lord. Scholarship donors are able to shape the world around them by helping students involved in areas of special interest to them—a particular academic major, career goal, financial need, or academic achievement. An endowed scholarship can be a fitting way to honor or memorialize a family member or a loved one. An endowed scholarship gift may be the only means by which some students are able to finish their education. A scholarship gift will provide multiple blessings, because it affects not only the life of the individual student, but also the lives of those the student touches after graduation.

One such scholarship is the Gray-Paxson Scholarship. This scholarship was established in 1997 and funded by a 1937 Cedarville College graduate, Clarence Gray. The purpose of this scholarship is to attract students with exceptional academic talent, character, and leadership potential to careers in classroom teaching by providing full tuition awards. To qualify, students must have high ACT or SAT scores and maintain a minimum cumulative grade average of 3.5. The desire of the donor is to increase the Christian teaching influence in the public school classroom. Therefore, the scholarship award provides incentive for outstanding students to pursue public school teaching careers.

In 1999-2000, we anticipate that the 124 donor-funded scholarships will provide over $425,000 in awards to Cedarville College students. Awards of this type help Cedarville College base tuition and fees on the actual cost of education.

Scholarship funding continues to be a high priority for the year 2000 and beyond. Interested persons may donate to a general scholarship fund or may establish a separate, endowed, named scholarship agreement for specific interests. Separate, endowed scholarships require certain funding levels. For more information, please contact Kim Longo or David Bartlett in the office of planned giving at 1-800-766-1115.

Additional Giving Program Offers Greater Opportunity

In 1999 the College added a fourth giving program, the Chairman's Council, to its list of annual fund opportunities. This complements the three current programs: the Torch Club, the Charter Society, and the President's Associates.

Created to honor the chairman of the board of trustees, the Chairman's Council recognizes those who give $5,000 or more to the annual fund. "This falls under the umbrella of our President's Associates program, which recognizes those who give $1,000 or more to the annual fund. We had some who asked to be challenged in their stewardship plans, so we thought it appropriate to create this new level," shared Jeff Brock, development officer. Accountable for annual fund programs, Brock oversees the President's Associates and Chairman's Council on behalf of the president's office.

Already several have initiated partnerships at the Chairman's Council, yet partners within each of the giving programs are equally important. "We have more than 400 donors involved in our Torch Club program, giving a minimum of $120 each year, and almost 100 donors within Charter Society, giving $500 each year. Many in those two programs give way beyond that," Brock continued. "Collectively, our giving programs cover almost half of the annual fund need of $1.3 million." The annual fund fills the gap between what students pay and what it costs Cedarville to provide a student's education; that gap stands at approximately $500 per student.

"While we offer some benefits to those who are involved in these programs, we find that those who become involved care little about that. They simply have a heart for our students and wish to help them with their education. Every student has a gap that must be covered, and every gift that helps cover that gap is, in a way, a grant to them," Brock noted. "Whether one commits through the gifts of a local church, personal one-time gifts, or College giving programs, the end result is that students' lives are touched. That is what the annual fund is all about."
