A Forward Look

Cedarville College will observe its eightieth anniversary during the academic year 1967-68. This will be a time of reflection as we review the accomplishments of the yesterdays, but it will also be an experience of anticipation as we look forward into the tomorrows. We are a long way from our final goal.

Like Caleb, who at eighty-five said, "Give me this mountain," Cedarville College in this report sets forth an entire range of objectives and looks forward at the good old age of eighty to conquering them by the grace and help of God.

In pressing on to these new heights, we must remember that we have come this far because of others who took the "mountains" in the years gone by. It is quite unlikely that Caleb would have been successful without the aid of his close friend, Joshua. The dedicated people who began this Christian college in 1887, and others who sacrificed for its continued existence along the way, share the victories with the present administration which took over its operation in 1953.

In our forward look with its plans and program, we must never forget that "Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb . . . because he wholly followed the Lord." Trust and obey have always been the key words for victory in the Christian experience. Trusting God involves believing His Word when the wisdom of men may dictate an opposite philosophy of life. Obeying God requires that we step forward to claim His promises when the world says the goal can never be reached. In these days of atheism, materialism, and spiritual decline, there have been, and there will continue to be, appeals for us to depend upon human agencies and philosophies more than upon the God who has safely brought us thus far. To yield to such temptations will spell our defeat. We will not then conquer the mountains, but the mountains will fall on us to our ruin.

Spiritual vitality and academic excellence are not opposite and unreconcilable extremes. They can and must be a part of any Christian college. The trustees, faculty and administration of Cedarville are committed to the emphasis of both. For this reason the following pages of this report have been prepared for your consideration. We extend a most cordial invitation to our friends to join us in celebration as we come to this milestone in our history. We welcome your commitment to the attainment of the future goals of Cedarville.

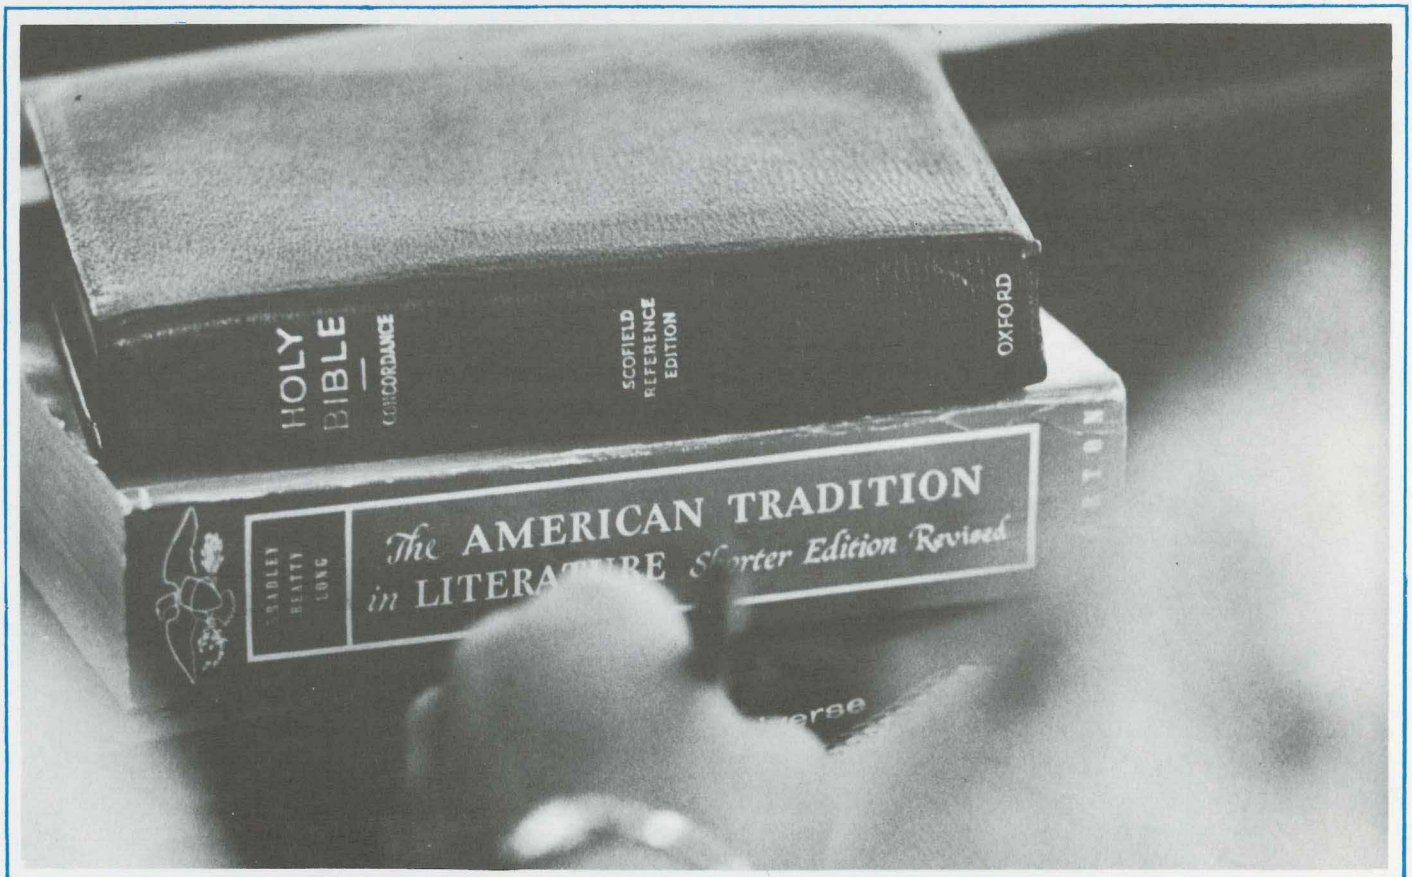

How easily these mountains could be conquered and every goal achieved if each one of us would say in the words of another, "I am only one, but still I am one. I cannot do everything, but still I can do something; and because I cannot do everything, I will not refuse to do the something that I can do." If you and I will be willing to do the something we can do, then the goals presented in this report will meet with great rejoicing.

Our Program

Our young people of today are faced with the problem of preparing themselves for a complicated twentieth century which includes diversified fields ranging from microbiology to astrophysics.

To meet the complexity of our society, many young people are going to attend a liberal arts college. Will they attend where they can be equipped spiritually as well as academically to face the challenge of our times? We believe that the Lord has raised up Cedarville College to meet this need.

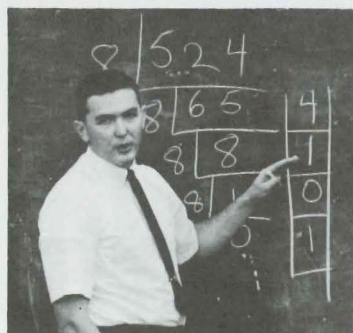

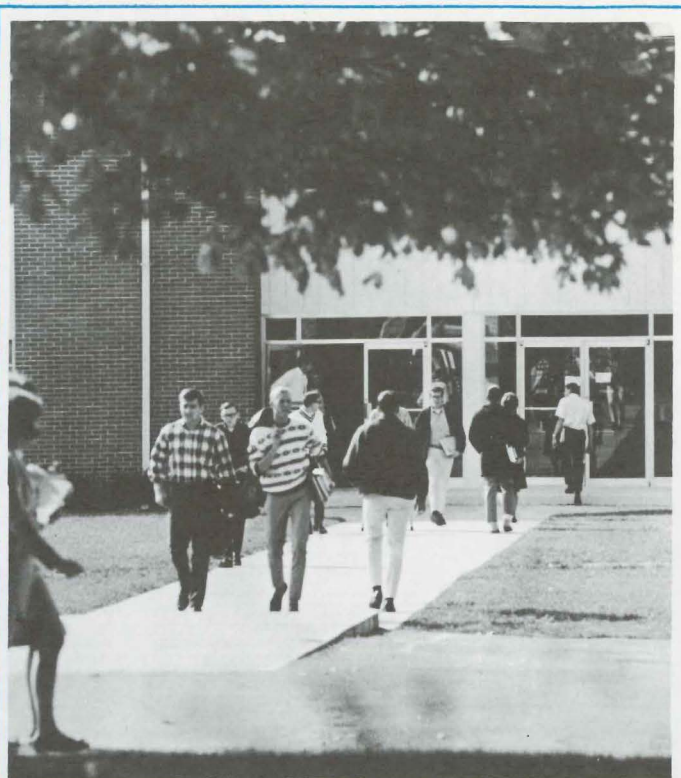

Cedarville College exists "For the Word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ." Its purpose is to provide a four-year arts and sciences program that will equip the graduate academically to succeed in his chosen profession, but even more important is that all classes are integrated with a Christian philosophy that will help the young person to mature spiritually and find God's will for his life.

Cedarville is responding to the challenge of the future by offering a program that develops the whole man socially, academically, and spiritually.

A wide curriculum is offered to the student at Cedarville.

Accounting	English
Bible	History
Biology	Mathematics
Business	Music
Chemistry	Physical Education
Christian Education	Secretarial Science
Elementary Education	Sociology
	Speech

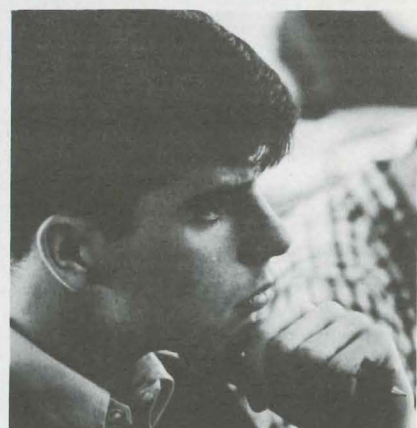

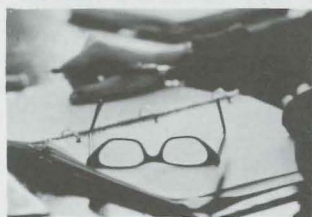

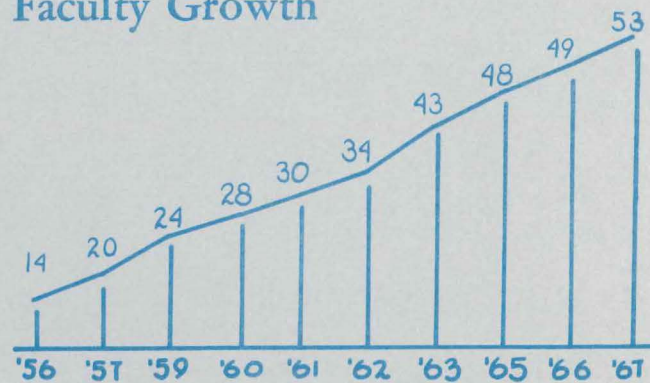

The college is a member of the Ohio College Association and the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges. In 1963, the State Department of Education of Ohio provisionally approved our teacher-training program. The college has engaged the services of a consultant to help us in our pursuit of accreditation by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

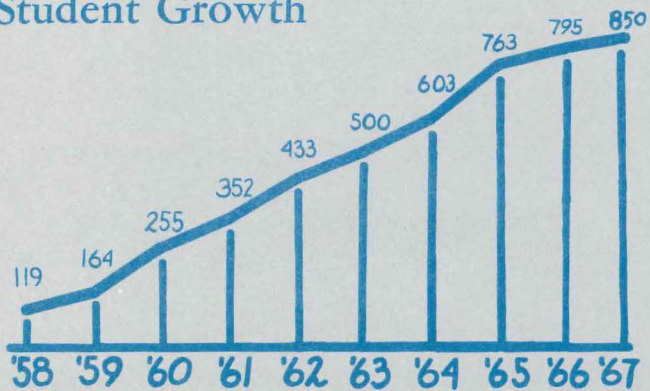

The Cedarville College faculty is rapidly developing into a mature and well-qualified teaching and professional staff as more and more members complete their doctoral programs. Almost all of the faculty now hold at least masters degrees. Half of the faculty have been at Cedarville for at least five years, and the average number of years of teaching experience numbers ten.

A significant development this past year was the change from the semester to the quarter calendar. This step provided an impetus for several curricular changes including the reorganization of the general education program and the strengthening of almost all major fields through reorganization and addition of courses.

Outgo

Today, no student pays for the entire cost of his education. Therefore, part of the expense of the school has to be supplied by churches and interested friends of the college.

We are without apology a Baptist college of arts and sciences that exists to train young people from our churches with the finest academic education in an atmosphere of high spiritual standards. We believe our churches want a fully accredited liberal arts college, and we are on the threshold of achieving this goal. But it will cost considerably.

The Federal government plans to spend six billion dollars for education in 1967. Higher education will receive 4.6 billion of this amount or almost as much as will be spent on our entire space program. Fifty new junior colleges were built in 1966 by tax money. The trend toward secular education raises a question. Is there a need for Christian higher education? The success story of Cedarville College eloquently answers this question in the affirmative.

While other colleges depend upon Federal funds, Cedarville College has never received one dollar of city, state, or Federal tax monies. The chart on this page reveals that we are largely dependent on student fees, gifts from churches and interested friends of the college.

A college with our convictions cannot expect the same help from foundations, businesses, government, etc., that other colleges enjoy. Therefore, the burden lies upon us. Are we willing to pay the price?

Do You Appreciate the Ministry of Cedarville College?

Do our churches need a liberal arts college to prepare young people for lives of fruitful service in a complicated 20th century? Is Cedarville fulfilling its purpose?

Would You Like to Share in This Ministry?

Churches and friends respond to our needs because they appreciate the ministry of the college. You may have an interest in some particular aspect of our college program. Rather than suggest one program for all, the following pages list several opportunities. One of them may be of special interest to you.

Memorial Opportunities

Friends of the college who wish to think of their gifts in terms of specific rooms, units, or equipment, may choose from a variety of memorial opportunities available. A memorial may be established in the name of the donor or in the name of one designated by the donor. Permanent plaques, suitably inscribed, will mark all selected memorials. Payments on all memorial gifts may be made over a three-year tax period.

New Annual Giving Clubs

You may not be able to give in terms of a commemorative room or other large memorial gift, but possibly you can take part in our Share Club Plan. This plan will allow each donor to select his or her appropriate degree of participation. If the college is to reach its objective, every friend of Cedarville College must participate in a manner consistent with ability.

The word "share" has deep meaning. It signifies the opposite of "assess" or "tax." To be able to share something of yours with a person or an institution which you love and admire is no hardship — it is a privilege and a joy. Everyone who has the future welfare of Cedarville College on his heart should welcome the opportunity to share in its development.

Churches, individuals, or organizations already giving regularly to the college will automatically be included as shareholders and receive the appropriate certificate.

Also, donors participating in the memorial opportunities listed on the preceding pages will also receive the appropriate shareholders certificate.

Leadership Shareholder

An individual, married couple, church, or organization contributing $1,000 or more to the college during the fiscal year is honored by membership as a Leader Shareholder.

Dedication Shareholder

An individual, married couple, church, or organization contributing $500-$999 to the college during the fiscal year is honored by membership as a Dedication Shareholder.

Loyalty Shareholder

An individual, married couple, church, or organization contributing $100-$499 to the college during the fiscal year is honored by membership as a Loyalty Shareholder.

Honor to Whom Honor is Due

It is the desire of the college to show our appreciation to those who are shareholders in the college. Our gratitude will be expressed in two ways: (1) A Membership Certificate will be mailed to each shareholder. This attractive parchment certificate can be displayed in your church or home as a proud reminder to others that you are a shareholder in the college. (2) Our Annual Report that will be published in the fall of 1968 will be listed by Share categories but without amounts.

Christian Stewardship and Estate Planning

Most Christians are conscientious stewards during life, but many do not realize that stewardship need not end at the grave. Through proper planning, they can provide security for their loved ones as well as give a substantial gift to Christian higher education, missions, a local church, or other charitable causes that are upon their heart.

Many procrastinate because they know little about planning for the distribution of their estate. The college hopes to provide a valuable service by offering information on the different ways that one may provide for their loved ones and at the same time leave a gift for the Lord's work. The college has retained one of the foremost organizations in the United States which specializes in tax laws, trusts, and estate planning to help the college establish a gift and estate planning program. Two members of the development staff have been professionally trained to provide personal counseling for interested individuals.

Cash Gifts

Money gifts are tax-deductible up to 30 per cent of your income. The donor may "carry over" his deductions in excess of 30 per cent of the adjusted gross income for a period of up to five years.

Stocks and Bonds

By giving stock to Cedarville College, you can save on capital gains taxes. The full market value of the stocks, at the time of the gift, will be tax-deductible.

Real Estate

By giving real estate directly to the college, you can save capital gains taxes. The entire amount may be deducted from your income tax over one or more years.

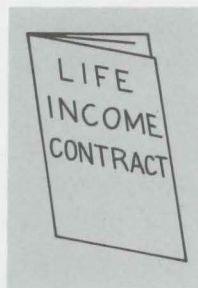

The college has prepared the following helpful booklets that are provided free upon request:

"Making Your Will"

is a booklet that tells you what you should know before you see your lawyer.

Any bequest to Cedarville up to and including the total estate of the testator is exempt from Federal estate tax. As a result, a larger bequest may be made to Cedarville because of the saving of taxes which would otherwise be payable.

"The Life-Income Contract"

booklet will tell you how a gift to Cedarville can pay you an income for the rest of your life. The question and answers in this booklet will help you to judge whether this is the best way for you to give to Cedarville.

Gift Annuity

A Cedarville College gift annuity meets the need of many people who would like to make a gift to the college but are unable to make an outright donation since they need the income from their assets during their lifetime.

Trusts

You can save costs and delay in probating your will by setting up a trust.

Life Insurance

You can name Cedarville College as beneficiary for a percentage of the proceeds of your policies, or you can make the college secondary beneficiary.

We have pointed out some of the opportunities available in estate planning. There are many ways in which these possibilities can be used to meet your needs. We caution our friends that no one program is best for everyone. Your particular circumstance will determine the course you should follow. An estate plan must be tailored to meet your own objectives. A confidential conference with one of our professionally-trained development officers can be arranged without cost or obligation by returning the enclosed information card.
