The Struggle of What to Put On Your Domain

My entire life I have been given strict instructions from teachers about numerous assignments. I have always been told what I need to do and how I need to do it. When given the opportunity to make a domain, I am faced with the struggle of freedom in deciding what I want to post and how I want to do it. While it is a challenge, I think it's important and contributes to the growth of one's creativity.
