Administration

Martin Peter Gunderson, principal of Tri-State and final "oker" of appeal to Superintendent Harkness, may be found at work behind his desk in the inner office—his blue deep-set eyes thoughtful, his strong features ready to break into a smile, his husky frame calm. He inspires confidence.

Guy Wellington "Duke" Cook, assistant principal, attendance executive counsellor of boys, greets the comer with a boyish smile and a chatty manner. Of varied experience Mr. Cook obtained some of his education at the University of Paris, was a superintendent of Doland City schools from 1923 - 1942.

Mrs. Irene Jaderquist who could be singled out by her red-blond-gray hair and the twinkle in her eyes, is Tri-State's able curriculum adviser and girls' counsellor. Sympathetic and quietly gay would describe her.

Arthur Grant Ramey, the gracious blue-eyed gentlemen whose office is situated adjacent to the teachers' room, is supervisor of assistant teachers and of school activities.

History of Tri-State

The high school in Tule Lake Project opened its doors to more than 2,000 students on September 14, 1942.

Floyd Wilder headed the faculty as principal; Glen Walker was vice-principal. For many weeks previous they and Mrs. Irene Jaderquist, girls' counsellor, had labored to start a high school from "scratch." With the encouragement of Kenneth Harkness, superintendent of project schools, they had laid plans for a complete and modern high school.

Although there had been institute and much planning, when the good-sized staff of caucasian and colonist teachers and colonist assistant teachers called their classes to order on September 14, barrack rooms were unlined, there were few benches, no chairs, no tables, no cupboards, no text books, no pencils, no papers.

As weeks went by and students moved from one hot dusty classroom to another, chairs were gradually substituted for benches, barracks were lined and sealed. Late in September the school paper made its appearance. Students chose to name their school Tri-State and their paper Tri-Stater. They voted blue and gold for school colors and a golden eagle for their symbol.

Just as school was beginning to get organized, the harvest season came and school was forced to close in order that students might aid in harvesting crops from the project farm. Almost the entire month of October was lost.

November and December brought growth to Tri-State High. Several school dances were held. The constitution of the student body was approved. Election of officers was held early in January. Edward Yoshikawa who had long served as temporary chairman, was elected president. A Hello Day was being planned. At least, everybody felt, "Tri-State is rolling."

The enforced vacation while there was colony-wide registration, was another set-back for the high school. Tri-State was not in session from February 9 until March 18. During this time Mr. Wilder and Mr. Walker resigned. Martin P. Gunderson and Guy Cook replaced them as principal and assistant principal. A number of teachers resigned.

Would Tri-State be the same when it opened? The answer was in the affirmative. Hello Day came off as planned. An April Fool edition of the Tri-Stater united everyone in a good laugh. Clubs, classes, home rooms enthusiastically started plans for the big April 30 carnival, the purpose of which was to raise money for a school annual.

The six classes, with elected officers, began to function as units. The school court and student patrol became realities. Club activities expanded. Boys' and girls' spring athletic programs brought inter-class competition.

The activities of the music department have been many and varied. The string ensemble performed at the inauguration ceremony of the student body officers and at the city council reception for Mr. Coverely, project director. The junior and senior orchestra were active at the Christmas program held at the tent factory. At the Y. P. C. C. conference of April 3 the band played and the boys' sextet entertained. The orchestra, the boys' sextet, girls' glee and mixed chorus performed at the Easter pageant held April 23. The brass section played an active part in the Easter sunrise service held at 4608. Music Week gave the music department another opportunity for public performance.

"Let's go Hawaiian" was the theme chosen for the carnival held on April 30 from 2 until 10 p. m. The crowning of the king and queen and of the prince and princess was staged at 2 p. m. at the center of the school grounds. About 40 concessions were open during the day; dart games, waffles, hot dogs, hamburgers, tamales, soda pop, telegrams, handbooks, movies, a dog show—to name a few. A Yearbook Swing was sponsored by the student government, refreshments being sold by the Scholarship Club. Ricky Matsufuji's Downbeats were featured.

Tri-State became self confident. Tri-Staters watched with anticipation the construction of their new school buildings.

General Regulations

Attendance

Tri-State High has set as a standard the California compulsory education law, which states that all children under sixteen must attend school and that those older may, with the consent of parents or guardian, leave school.

An absence from Tri-State is classified as one of the following:

Excused:

- a. Illness of pupil (the only excuse recognized by the state school code .
- b. Necessary visits to the dentist, doctor, health center, clinic or hospital. (Visit to dentist is not counted as absence when computing average daily attendance).

Unexcused without penalty:

- a. Death or serious illness in immediate family.
- b. Religious holidays.
- c. Appearance in court as witness.
- d. Emergencies (such as accident in home)

Unexcused with penalty:

- a. Truancy.
- b. All absences not listed above.

Tardiness:

All tardy students are sent immediately after entering class, to the attendance office. Here they fill out tardiness record forms which are recorded in the office. All tardiness is unexcused except that caused by illness or emergency.

Passes:

Students must have signed excuses from parents before being granted readmission slips to classes.

When a student wishes to leave class, he must have obtained from the teacher a "pass slip" to carry with him while on his mission. This, after it is signed by the person to whom he was sent, must be returned to the teacher who issued it. Students found on the campus without pass slips are subject to penalty.

When leaving the school grounds to go on business elsewhere during school hours, a student must have with him a leave slip issued by the office. This must be returned, properly signed.

Lost and Found:

All articles found and turned in to the office are checked for identification. Those unclaimed are from time to time listed in the Tri-Stater or in the Student Announcer.

Health Clerk:

The health clerk is in the office during school hours. A few of her many duties are to send ill students home when it is necessary, to call the hospital in case of emergency, and to apply first aid treatment.

Study Halls:

All students are required to attend one study hall during the day. If a student has no study hall scheduled before eighth period, he must take study that period. However, if he has no class eighth period and has attended one study period before that time, he need not stay at school beyond the seventh period. No study halls are scheduled for first period in the morning.

Work Permits:

If parents of a student who has reached 16 request permission from the high school principal for the student to be granted a work permit, it will be granted with the understanding that permits may be recalled if W. R. A. policy later is to carry out the 18-year old compulsory attendance law.

A student will be refused a permit for part-time work if he has one or more of the following difficulties:

1. One or more failing grades.
2. One or more incompletes.

3. Two or more D's.
4. Overdrawn cuts (that is, more than one unexcused absence for a class during the entire year).
5. Disciplinary trouble in class.
6. Impaired health.

If a student above 16 takes out a permit for full-time work and discontinues school, he may not re-enter school until the beginning of the next school period.

Student Government

The constitution drawn up by the students of Tri-State High School is founded upon the principles of democracy. This means that every student is considered an important part of the school community.

As in all American schools, the constitution was drawn by duly constituted representatives of the students and was ratified by a majority vote.

Publications

The Announcer

Daily a bulletin is issued by the office. It contains both faculty and student announcements. Those desiring to have information printed in the Announcer must have the item in the office by the preceding noon.

The Tri-Stater

The school paper is issued once a week by the journalism class, under the editorship of the Commissioner of Publications. It is a mimeographed paper varying in size from two to four pages.

The Annual

An annual, printed by an outside firm, is to be issued during the spring. Part of the cost will be defrayed by student money raising schemes, part by the sale of the year book itself.

Sports

Boys' Athletics

Although the athletes of Tri-State High School do not compete with outside schools, their athletic program has variety.

Such sports as football, basketball, volleyball, tumbling, barbell, boxing, track and softball were engaged in.

Tri-State is greatly handicapped by lack of proper playing facilities. Equipment of all kinds is insufficient. A gymnasium, a track and a football field are greatly needed. With the completion of the gym unit of the new school plant now under construction, boys anticipate an enlarged athletic program next year.

However cooperation between instructors and pupils has made possible some satisfactory activity this year.

During the cold and wintry weather, students participated in indoor sports such as boxing, tumbling, and barbell. During the warm months they played all kinds of outdoor sports.

The athletic field is located to the southwest of the school campus. There the five basketball courts, set up by Hi-Y boys, are placed. Nearby are the five volleyball courts, and, beyond, a large field where softball, football, and other outdoor sports are played.

Girls' Athletics

Despite lack of equipment, and shortage of teachers, the girls' physical education department has been running smoothly under the leadership of Mrs. Alice Swetek.

Before the construction of basketball and volleyball courts, girls vigorously took part in exercises, social dancing and games. During the latter part of the winter, they were given a real treat when instruction was offered in tap, acrobatic and ballet dancing by Tulean Dance Studio teachers.

During the spring of 1943 basketball and volleyball competitions were held. A Girls' league was formed; the League sponsored a baseball tournament and competitions in basketball and volleyball.
