Former Wilfrid Laurier University Athletic Director Daffy Nite was the victim of a roast last week. The former football coach was roasted by his former players and coaches who turned out en masse to celebrate with Daffy. Said one player, "I've never seen Daffy so well dressed. He was wonderful. It was in very good taste."

PUBS BOARD REVERSES HIRING DECISION

Pig chucks Chuckham

The WLU Board of Student Publications has reversed a hiring decision made earlier this year by replacing editor-elect/Kirk Chuckham with Baskerville Todd

Chuckham: pigged out

The surprise decision came about last Friday after Board members visited a friend living in Willison Hall, known only as The Outlaw. While at Willison Hall, they viewed sex shows and even participated in an orgy. It was during the course of the orgy that board members met Todd, who was encased in electric tape.

Board member Karen Thwart told The Sin that Todd was wrapped in tape "so that he won't burst when you penetrate him." Thwart took a liking to Todd, and convinced other Board members to "give him a try."

While it is true that Todd is a guinea pig, it is felt that this is only a minor drawback.

"For one thing, he will certainly be impartial. He will be fair and reasonable when it comes to writing editorials about WLUSU," said Student Publications President Andrew Labatts.

WLUSU President Kevin Plyers is "ecstatic" that the paper will have a guinea pig for editor. "That means he won't be able to attend ad hoc or board meetings and write nasty things about us. There's no possible way he can climb all those stairs," Plyers noted cheerfully.

Board member Matt Tridentimo has already petitioned the school to build elevators and ramps everywhere to facilitate Todd's journeys around the school. "Let's get off our asses and do something," he shouted. "I want action by tomorrow morning, or I'll build the damn things myself!"

WLUSU declined to pass Tridentimo's motion, and has planned to form 187 committees to "look into the matter." The first committee will be ready to report

"possibly in the first few weeks of 1988, or shortly thereafter," Plyers said.

Meanwhile, Chuckham is somewhat taken aback by the fact that he has been thrown out on the street. "That little fucking furry rodent" is the only comment he had for reporters.

Labatts felt obliged to explain that the move was not some sort of commie pinko imperialistic plot against Chuckham. "It was Todd's devotion to duty that convinced us. He has already taken up residence in the newspaper offices, and has turned down a salary offer. Fresh lettuce daily from Marg at the dining hall is all he's asked for (no maple leafs please). I don't know about any communist plot," Labatts said.

Drop students Bovey suggests

The Bovey Commission has submitted its preliminary report suggesting that Ontario's post-secondary education problems could be solved by eliminating the student from the system.

At a press conference yesterday, Edmund Bovey, who is heading the three-man task force studying ways of streamlining the province's universities, said that operating schools without students is a "fresh, innovative approach to education, and it would substantially reduce costs and improve the efficiency of each and every institution and the system as a whole."

"Administrative problems would be greatly eased," said Bovey. "For example, registrars would not be constantly bothered by students — who have no idea of just how difficult life in a bureaucratic setting is — with their petty troubles."

Bovey said the students themselves would benefit if Education Minister Bette

Stephenson accepts the proposal. "They would be spared the trauma of having to select irrelevant, totally useless courses after their first choices have been booked solid, and they wouldn't have to stand in registration line-ups for hours on end," he said. "And let's face it; there aren't any jobs for them to go to when they're done, anyway."

Bovey said the reduction in administrative costs would "more than make up for" the loss of tuition fees. However, he doesn't think the move would result in a loss of jobs.

"We're sure we could find places for anyone displaced by introduction of this system," said Bovey. "But we think that, even without students, there won't be a reduction in administrative and support positions. If some have to disappear, we can always create new ones. We have before."

The report has been submitted to Stephenson and she is expected to take action by the end of the week.

Broadbent calls leadership vote

In an attempt to put themselves back in the public eye and back up in the polls, the federal New Democrat Party has decided to hold a leadership convention in September.

The decision was announced by NDP Leader Ed Broadbent shortly after an emergency caucus meeting late last night. Broadbent said the decision was made because the party is frustrated and annoyed by the Conservative and Liberal leadership contests which have "stolen the headlines" and the Gallup polls points over the past year.

"We have tried to bring forth and discuss the issues which we feel are most important to Canada — devastating unemployment, crippling interest rates, destructive inflation — but nobody seems to want to listen to us, particularly you people in the press," Broadbent told a trio of reporters after he emerged from the meeting. "How do we compete with Jaws IV or The Man From Glad? We just figured, if you can't beat them, join them, and we've put aside our noble principles until we can regain the prominence to make the people of this country realize that we know what's best for them."

Nobody in the party plans to run for the leadership, so Broadbent is expected to win by acclamation. However, he has not officially declared his candidacy, and some NDP MPs have suggested that the party consider going without a leader.

"Look what it did for the Conservatives after Clark called for their leadership convention last February," said MP Svend Robinson, referring to the Conservative rise in the Gallup poll after former leader Joe Clark decided to call the leadership campaign which put Brian Mulroney at the helm of the PCs. "It certainly can't hurt. I mean, things couldn't get much worse."

The convention, tentatively scheduled for September 8, will be held at Reggie's Roller Rink in Moose Jaw.

CONDO CRAZE

It seems that those WLUSUC type people down the hall have found themselves a summer residence. Page Four has learned that the crosswalk Commissioner's office has made a downpayment on a $950,000 condo on Toronto's posh lakeshore. The WLUSUC digs come with three large bedrooms, four baths, a gallery, den and monster kitchen.
Page Four notes that the summer board meeting will be held here and that it will act as a rest stop for weary WLUSUC-ites during the long day of summer.
We wonder what happened to the concept of holding referendums.

COLOURFUL CROSSWALK CONTEST

Are you ready for a new contest, kiddies?
Page Four is infinitely proud to announce the organizing of the "paint the crosswalk contest." Beginning tonight and continuing for one week, we will be venturing out to College Avenue to judge the new entrants in our contest.
The rules are simple. Every night for the rest of the week, people will be welcome to wander out into the danger zone and paint their own original crosswalk. The painting must be done on College between Queen and Fred streets. At the end of the week, a lucky winner will be chosen and have his or her illustrious crosswalk placed at the corner of College and Alice.
All participants should send credit for their drawings to The Toronto Sun, c/o Page Four. Get your spray cans ready!

BE TRUE TO YOUR SCHOOL

Page Four has learned that WLUSUC has booked the Beach Boys for a four-night stand during next year's Orientation Week. Page Four can hardly wait. Page Four knows ahead of time what the encore song will be every night.

HOLY BATJOKE

A recently-heard riddle on Batman has the SIN staff in stitches up here. For your ever-increasing catalogue of bad jokes, here goes:
Bat Question: If there are four men in a boat in the middle of the ocean with one cigarette each and no matches, how do they light their cigarettes?
Bat Answer: Throw one cigarette overboard and the boat will be a cigarette lighter.
Yuck!

A QUARTER PAST THE LIMIT

Page Four remembers a summer WLUSUC meeting that among other things passed a resolution that no machine in the Games Room will cost more than 25¢ per game. So why is Dirk so daring? For the non-player, Dragon's Lair is the newest video game to enter the fair Games Room. It also plays for 50¢. Not to worry, though, the format was recently changed so that you can now blow away five Dirks before the game endeth. Used to be you could only be bad enough to lose three men before you sacrificed your turn. Who says WLUSUC isn't looking out for the little guy?
Nuff said.

Hello! I don't like you!

A recent survey of Laurier students shows that 94 per cent of all the people we say "Hi" to in the hall are either complete strangers or people we don't like. Dr. Jack Strechmarque conducted the survey over a period of weeks in the WLU Concourse.

"Most of the time we don't even know who we're saying hello to," Strechmarque said. "Many times we stupidly yell at someone across the Concourse only to find that they are someone completely different. Then we have to pretend someone else yelled it, or we pretend we are yelling at an imaginary person behind them. Either way, we look like complete assholes."

When asked about what we do when we see people we don't like, Strechmarque noted that this is a very interesting topic.

"Most of the time we try to drop our eyes and pretend that we don't see the people, even when they're walking straight towards us and have already had eye-contact. The old "pretend to be reading" or "start up a fake conversation with the stranger beside you" methods are commonly used to keep morons and other undesirables from starting conversations of nauseatingly embarrassing proportions."

When asked for further comments, Dr. Strechmarque stared blankly into the distance and started yelling the name of an attractive female in his psychology class.

Laurier men up in arms

On Sunday, April 1, the first meeting of the WLU ad hoc committee on men's issues was held. The committee, formed only recently, is legitimizing its existence based on the recent round of action taken at Laurier to protect what the committee calls "feminist takeover of our basic rights."

Committee chairmale Dave Doctortee says that the group is looking at a number of areas where they feel men's rights have been either neglected or subject to reverse discrimination. The first of these areas is the annual Tamiae stagette. The committee feels that the posters advertising the event are blatant exploitation of the male body.

"We want to be respected for who we are, not just what we are," says Doctortee. "You can bet your hairy chest that you won't see pictures of Orson Welles' naked butt splattered all over those posters. It disgusts me. Here we are, an institution of higher learning and supposed liberal thought, and there still are women who condone this 19th century attitude."

Doctortee then went on to explain the committee's biggest project, an escort service to parallel the one WLUSU will be running in the fall. The purpose of this second service, Doctortee said, is to protect male students from the WLUSU service.

"With all those vigilante escorts walking around town, males walking home alone run the risk of being falsely accused of god know what! The onus of proving innocence is going to be on us—just one more example of our being discriminated against in the name of equality."

Fry the Frogs

This is an English speaking country. Let's leave it that way. The French in this country are trying to ram their stupid language down our throats. Well, it won't work. Regardless of what the Constitution says, English is the God-ordained tongue of this land and no Charter of Rights and Freedoms written by that tyrant Trudeau can change it.

Who wants to speak that language, anyway? Only socialists, unionists, and internationalists want to speak French. V/e true honest conservative people, loyal to the Crown, know what language is the one true tongue, and that is the Queen's English. Not French, not Ukrainian, but ENGLISH.

Don't let these self-serving politicians fool you; nobody wants to speak French, not even Quebecers. They want to speak the best language in the whole world, maybe even the universe — the language of Shakespeare, Milton, and Benny Hill. That is, of course, English.

But what of Brian Mulroney's support of so-called French rights? This fine man, who will put the unions and the Russians in their place, throw out the parasites who are in power in Ottawa, and give big business everything they want (as it should be), is allowed maybe just one mistake. Brian, your support for these marauding francophones shows that you, too — just like your predecessor, that wimp Joe Clark who isn't qualified to lead a pack of Boy Scouts — can be a dink.

We would be a lot better off with Neil Fraser at the helm of the PC Party. Yes, the man who came up just a few inches short in last year's Conservative leadership race. The principled purveyor of the anti-metrication campaign. The one who said that if God had wanted us to go metric he would have given us 10 disciples and not 12.

If God had wanted us to speak French, he would have given us long legs and slimy skin.

We're an English country, by God, and we're going to keep it that way. So you better not parley-voos that Francaize, or else. Capiche?

SIN READERS' CHOICE FOR LIBERAL LEADERSHIP

I. DUNNO
TORONTO SIN

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

WHILE WALKING the streets of Toronto the other day I came along a large pile of dog droppings. I think the people that let their dogs do this are irresponsible and totally ignorant of the rights of others. It was a very large pile and it had a very offensive stench. I can't think of a dog large enough to unload so much.

B.S. Skumbuket
(Are you sure you weren't in front of Harold Ballard's house?)

SEX, SEX, sex. I walk down Yonge Street, and even though it's supposed to have been cleaned up, there are movie houses and magazine stores on every other block. How disgusting!

Jack Prestmaterial
(We agree that something should be done. These places should be on every block, you commie.)

SO WHO says television isn't dangerous? Why, just the other day, my little angels were watching Dukes of Hazzard while I washed the dishes. I heard a scream of pain and rushed to see what was wrong. Fred (he's my eldest; he's seven) was sitting on Barney (the little tike; he's four). Barney was screaming to beat all hell, then he got atop Fred and split his nostrils open. Then he sawed poor Fred's leg off, and tore his liver out. Well, Fred's got a bit of his dad's mean streak in him, and nailed Barney's head to the floor. Just then, I looked out through the hole in the wall, and I sees this tank pull up. Thank heavens, the mister was home! He gave them both a real scolding before chaining them to the back of the tank for a scrape around the block. I wish they'd take violent shows like the Dukes of Hazzard off the air.

(Those shows aren't so bad. At least the kids will know how to fight those fucking commies.)

I THINK I finally figured out what the problem with the country is today. Renay Leveck is a commie who wants to split this great land in two and sell it to those damn stinking pimple-picking proletariats from Commieland. What we should do is split that damn Leveck in two and feed him to the hungry Russian Bear. And take his goddam stinky cigarettes, too. Stinking Commie. I heard his mother wears army boots—and red ones at that. (Well, you heard wrong! Renay's mother has never worn boots in her life, and to suggest that she wore red ones is deplorable and dispicable. We agree with everything else, but make sure you get all the facts next time, fella.)

TODAY'S EMPHASIS on physical fitness has really gotten out of hand. Everyone is more concerned with the way they look than the life they lead. People are exercising their bodies and not their minds, and this leads to a shallow, stupid society. Personally, I never exercise and weigh 450 pounds, but I am enlightened and better-read than anyone I know.

Hugh Mungous
(That's great— tell us, how much literary value is there on a Joe Louis cake label?)

Recently, a poll showed that the majority of Canadians were decidedly against holding cruise missile tests here in Canada. Yet we still had them. Why does the Liberal government in this country consistently oppose Canadians in their views and policies? Why does whatever it wants anyway? (Listen, the government has a tough enough job fighting the red threat of communism. Who cares what you think, anyway?)

GUBER P. Dink's column entitled If A Tree Falls In The Forest, There's A Commie Around To Hear It.

As a member of the Waterloo and Region Amateur Gynecologist's Save The Trees Association, I take offense to a number of remarks made by Mr. Dink.

1) Mother Nature is not a "hosebag who spreads her legs for the commies."

2) Just because Smokey the Bear wears a red hat, he is not a "perverted pinko pus-sucking pest."

3) And, finally, Mr. Dink, it would not be prudent to nuke the trees just because they turn red in autumn!

(Death to the redwood!)

LETTER OF THE DAY

TODAY'S LETTER is "B." As letters go, B is right up there in second place, which is more than you can say for H, which is 8th. B is a very important letter, because without it you couldn't have important words like breast and bountiful. Oh, and when you're describing commies, the letter B comes in very handy in words like bastard and bitch (as in "son of a ..."). Another thing about the commies, they have a different alphabet, which is called the acrylic alphabet. In it, they don't have a B, although they have two really silly squiggles that look like B. They pronounce it real funny, like "bay." Have you ever heard anything so stupid?

Once, I had a friend with a speech impediment. He couldn't say the letter "C," the poor guy; all he could do was fill in B instead of C. The poor bunt. You see how important B is?

Where would the playwrighting guy be if he had the opposite affliction? To C or not to C, that is the question; whether 'tis nocler to suffer the slings and arrows....you get my drift?

Hey, here's a fun game! Let's see if we can write a paragraph in which every word starts with B. Ready to begin?

Back behind Bob's bar, by Bill's bakery, Betty Bountiful bit Barry behind Barry's basketfern. Barry beckoned Bob's busty barmaid Bertha back behind Bob's bar, by Bill's bakery. Beyond Berlin, Breznev bounced blue balls backwards before blowing Bora-Bora beyond Bob's bar. Barry's baboon's breath belted bacteria baiting Bob's busty bountiful barmaid.

Beautiful, bisn't bit? Bgee, BI breally benjoyed bdoing bthat bprobably bas bmuch bas byou benjoyed breading bit.

So you see how important the letter B is. The best thing about B is that the commies can't pronounce it. They are real assholes, but that's tomorrow's letter.

PETER NOTWORTHATHING

As Chairman Trudeau finally leaves the office of what remains of the fine institution of Prime Minister, a position that he and his immoral wife have totally destroyed, we must realize that the task is not yet finished.

We God-fearing, true-blue Canadians know that there are still thousands, possibly millions of those godless, bilingual, smuk-sucking, fluoridating, chess-playing, worthless pinko commies running amok in this great country of ours. Why even now those jazz-listening, dope-smoking, Volvo-driving hoodlums are waiting in the wings to usurp the power in this country and invite the Ruskies in to molest our women and carry away our children.

We must stand on guard. Our nation is in particular danger with a federal election on the horizon. We voters must ensure that the left-wing, milk-sop, knee-jerk Liberals are not entrusted with another four years of power.

Let's slam the socialists now. Bury them six feet deep and keep piling the dirt on. The Trudeau type of Liberal must never be able to think about running for office again.

In his book UNIONS, COMMUNISM, AND ARTIFICIAL TURF, Phillip P. Paranoid points out just how close we are to a take-over by these homosexual, anti-monarch, soccer-playing swines. Why even right now a member of our federal cabinet is visiting Nicaragua, that rat-infested hole of Spanish-speaking atheists.

We cannot forget, either, those damn socialists in Manitoba who are trying to shove Satan's own language down our pure Anglophone throats. What's next, Trudeau — Russian as our official language?

I can cite yet another example of harp seal-loving, whale-saving cretins trying to set their sights on our free Western world. Just last year in California, a woman who refused to wear eye glasses was not given her driving license.

I believe she had every right to refuse to wear the contraptions that will someday be responsible for setting in motion the Russian takeover of Canada.

She contends, as do I, that the Russians are slowly cornering the eyeglass market.

The Russians are waiting until over three quarters of the free world needs corrective lenses. Then the swines will pull the plug on eyeglass manufacturing and we will all be too blind even to see the Russians marching down the 401, let alone shoot them out of the sky with our god-given cruise Missiles.

Our continuing struggle against these art-loving, social-working, mealy-mouthed peaceniks will be won only after their pointed little heads have been bashed into the ground and they are thrown into prison where they will hopefully be gang-raped every day for the rest of their natural born days.

So, if you happen to see one of those long-haired, shifty-eyed, traitorous bastards on the street, don't talk

IT LOOKS like a guy can't get a job without an education anymore. I went to grade 9 and then quit, but after four years I can't get a job. Even Dickie Dee refused me because I couldn't handle the intellectual demands. What ever happened to the days when an honest guy could work hard and get a job?

Fred Kreton
(I think those days went out with lobotomies, although it sounds like you got one of the last ones available.)

WHAT IS this crap?

How dare you, as a newspaper, have the nerve to put opinion into your editorial and comment pages? Just who do you think you are? What gives you the right to look at the situation and then pass comment? I want the facts. Just the facts, thank you. If I wanted comment I would read the Star, the Globe, or watch Peter Trueman on Global. There is no room for opinion on the editorial pages of this newspaper.

Bo Ring
(No comment. Think about it.)

WE AT B-1 Little House would like to question the authority of the Food Services staff to strip-search our kitchen. Two of their henchwomen barged into our lounge unannounced and unidentified, and proceeded to rummage through our kitchen, rooting around for stolen paraphernalia. Who are these women? Where do they get off pulling stunts like this—questioning our morality and violating our human rights? This is our home. How can we feel secure with the knowledge that mere cafeteria women are allowed to run rampant through our residence? What is this, a police state?

B-1 Little House
(You better believe it is. It all goes back to the War Measures Act of 1970. Residences haven't been the same since.)

Who says the Vatican doesn't control this country?

It has become increasingly clear that the Liberals, led by a French-speaking Catholic, will be cancelling the visit of her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II but will welcome, with open arms, that Catholic from Poland. If it isn't the commies who are trying to take over this country, it's the Catholics. Trudeau happens to be a member of both groups. I'm glad he's quitting. Stupid communist Catholic.

Johnny Quick
(Here, here — please write us more often.)

Who says the French Catholics have equality in this country?

It has become increasingly clear that the goddess Liberals, led by an atheist, will be cancelling the visit of his Holiness Pope John Paul II but will welcome, with open arms, that monarchist from England. If it isn't the atheists who are trying to take our heritage from us, it's the Protestants. Trudeau happens to be an atheist who has sold his soul to the English. I'm glad he is quitting. Stupid atheist sellout.

Jean Vite
(Shut up and die — never write to us again.)

I cannot understand our federal government. Are they trying to pull the wool over our eyes? I mean, what's the story here? Come on, Pierre, quit pulling our leg. Who's kidding who? We're damned if we do, damned if we don't. But, seriously Pierre, enough is enough. Look who's calling the kettle black. Send us up the creek without a paddle, will ya? Where's the fire? If there are two scoops of raisins in every package of Raisin Bran, does that mean there will be more raisins per 10-ounce serving from a small box than from a big box? Check this out.

I say you can't fit a square peg in a round hole. So why do we drive on parkways and park in driveways? You can't get blood from a stone. It's not quite the cat's meow. Let the buyer beware.

So where do we go from here? Remember, a penny saved is a penny earned. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, and a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.

Anyway, Pierre, turn out the light, the party's over. There'll never be another you. Go west young man....

Murder solves probs

I am having a few problems with my landlord. The ceiling in the kitchen fell through last month (I have a basement flat) and he just laughs at me whenever I complain about it. He will not let me into my apartment after midnight. I am not allowed to drink, smoke (anything!), have women in, use the phone, eat, or go to the bathroom. He insists on having rent payments two years in advance and I catch him spying on me continually. Is there anything I can do?

Stu Dent, Waterloo
Hey, loser type, I suggest you kill your landlord and then go to Legal Aid.

I sent my car in for repairs over three years ago and I have still not got it back. Everytime I phone the dealer he says it will be ready next week. Occasionally I see the car being driven around Waterloo (it is the only Edsel in this town) but the dealer says it has been in the garage all this time. I never got an estimate on the car when I took it in but the mechanic says it will cost $7500 if I ever want to see my car again. Do I have any rights at all?

V. Hickleless, Oshawa
No, you do not have any rights. I recommend you buy a bike.

Books lifted, prices raised

Because of increased shoplifting, WLW Bookstore prices are being raised once again. Store manager George Bourgeois said in an interview that the store will not be able to survive without the general increase.

"This year alone, over seven dollars in merchandise has been taken. In one day alone, two people were caught stealing — they both had Crunchie bars. Because of this constant pilfering, we have no alternative but to raise the price of textbooks by 45 per cent."

Bourgeois was asked if another increase is predicted for next year.

"Certainly. We're kind of looking forward to it, what with it being our twentieth consecutive boost. I don't know how much we'll jack the prices, but we're having a party to commemorate the event, so the price hike will have to cover the cost of party hats, cake, punch and other necessities."

Don Valley en route to stardom

Last Saturday night's performance at Kitchener's refurbished Trojan Storage indicated that Don Valley and the Parkways will soon be heard from again. Playing their unique blend of rockabilly and acid rock to a partisan crowd, the band showed great potential in Ontario's lackluster pub scene.

Taking to the stage shortly after 10:00 p.m., lead singer and guitarist Zeff exhibited the charm and humour for which he is rapidly becoming infamous by encouraging the audience to "Listen up!" The screaming guitar intro which followed was a pleasant combination of feedback and grind chords.

After years of refusing to pander to any specific audience, the Parkways have apparently decided to give the people what they ask for. Their set features several well-known tunes, including such showstoppers as I Want To Live Like Greg Godovitz and Chewing Carp.

Bass player Rene "Wolf Eyes" Des Blondes even stepped to the microphone for a catatonic ballad version of Sweeney Todd's immortal Roxy Roller. The crowd embraced these innovations as the next big thing.

Backstage over booze and smokes, the enigmatic Zeff confided to Sin reporters that the name Don Valley was actually a pun on the name of his grade eleven physics teacher, Leonard Dorstopoulos. "We wished to create an independent, fictional persona to represent the alienation which fame brings. You know, like Pink Floyd or Duran Duran or Pia Zadora.

Zeff, along with the keyboardist Cowboy Lebon, has carefully outlined the Parkways' ascent to notoriety. In 1979, the group engineered a plan which they entitled The Road To Superstardom. In it, they would book a concert hall and not show up. This became prohibitively expensive, but gave the musicians valuable experience in refusing to do encores.

Then they hit upon another, more devious plan which they called The Other Road To Superstardom. In it, they would not book a hall, but show up anyway. This was cheaper and provided needed experience in not being asked to do encores.

Last year, Don Valley and the Parkways hit upon their most ingenious plan to date, Another Other Road To Superstardom. In it they would book a hall, show up, and let word of mouth ensure their untold fame. "This perfect plan combined the complexity of modern day marketing techniques with the simplicity of not having to make any more plans," claims Zeff.

The future is by no means uncertain for the band. After their current tour winds up in South Porcupine, Ontario, the boys intend to return home to sign a recording contract with a "really big" company.

"We've made several offers," said Zeff. "All we need now is some neat synthesizers and hair cuts and stuff."

HOLLYWOOD IS ALL AGOG

GORGEOUS ANTHONY

HOLLYWOOD — Glitterville is abuzz this week over events of mammoth significance corporate sponsorships. Fresh from his big gig with Pepsi, wonderkid Jackson Michaels has signed a contract to capitalize further on his enormous talents and endorse International Arts Machines. The several television ads comprising the $742 billion IAM deal will make young Jackson richer than all but seven of the world's nations. The legalese specifies that he must lose a limb in a pyrotechnical accident during the taping for the TV spots.

A similar promotional contract involves German crotch-throb Nina, who was captured on film earlier this week as she entered the headquarters of Proctoring/Gambling. Affirming rumours that the star was about to sign for $7.42 million, Harry Pitsfeel, Neat Vice President for the Underarm Division, told us that "Nina's potential may be greater than even Martina Navratilova's."

Out in the Pacific, humble hunk Tom Select says being the most desirable man in the English-speaking world is no big deal. "Where were they ten years ago when I was hocking smokes? Sometimes the fickleness of the public gets me so riled up I just want to go out and do irreparable damage to Hawaii's delicate, government-protected natural beauty." Little huffy, aren't we, Thomas?

In unrelated music news, Van Ailin's principal David Lee Rath has been kicked out of the band by namesake guitarist Eddie. Citing Rath's outspoken views, V.A. says that the band "had to continue to be a mover musically and try to ignore the recent political outrage which Dave has been bringing to his compositions."

Meanwhile, Rath has defiantly formed a new group under the competitive title Van Wailin' and is touring the east coast, hoping to run into Eddie and others. "If we run into one another along the way, I'm going to screw all of his groupies and kick the piss out of the little ant," jibed David. Rath's Van, as the nickname goes, will be appearing at University of Waterloo in May.

Finally, kiddies, European sweetie Nasti Kinky confesses that she has become very fond of felines since her starring role in Cat People. "I have several wonderful recipes," she said before being whisked off to an ultra-expensive resort in the Dutch Antibes.

WLU as Devil's Island

Wilfrid Laurier University will be the site for some very interesting happenings next year. Paramount Pictures has approached the university in hope that the Laurier grounds could be used for filming their upcoming film, Papillon: Part Two.

"Well, the movie is about the main character, I forgot his name, getting caught and sent back to Devil's Island," producer Dick Dyck said. "We want to have an even more authentic prison setting than in the first movie, and by the looks of Laurier, we may have the best set in the whole world."

Noting the similarity between Laurier residence rooms and Devil's Island jail cells, Dyck seemed very excited about the prospect of filming at Laurier.

"Everything here is so much like a real prison, it's amazing. Some things will have to be changed though. For instance, the food in Papillon is bad, but we can't use the stuff your dining hall serves. Devil's Island is cruel, but they didn't want to kill the prisoners."

How to Use Your Chart
 Locate your month of illegitimate birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional, and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers, if this isn't asking too much, to obtain your Bio-Sex.

Your computerized biorhythm

Bio-Sex Readout:

0-5 Moron Cycle-

6-10 Catatonic Cycle-

11 - 15 Positive Cycle -

You might as well drink heavily until tomorrow, although you probably don't have to be told that, judging by the fact that you are stupid enough to believe in this moronic biorhythm crap.

This is your positive cycle. With this score, we're positive you're a jerk. And most probably some sort of fascist.

Get your hands out of your pants and look for a job. Sitting around reading this idiotic paper is the most intellectual endeavour you will attempt today.

Asshole-graph

Bernie Beady Eyes

April 5, 1984

You're obviously a dynamic, intelligent, rich person as evidenced by the fact that you're spending your birthday reading this garbage.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your head is spinning around because of decisions about work. Decisions like finding a job, for instance. You will have romance problems if your genitalia is reminiscent of that of a six-year old.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Taurus people are pushy jerks who fart in public and try to pass it off as the smell of snow thawing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) They say Geminis have two personalities, and today you'll probably have two sexual preferences. If you can't find a partner of the opposite sex, you'll settle for someone of the same sex.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Like other Cancers, you are dull. Today will be dull, you will be dull, and the rest of the week will be dull. Why do you keep reading this? You are boring.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) If you are born in this time of the year, it means that your parents conceived you in a hot, springtime passion. As such, you were unwanted. They've never loved you and never will. You've been a burden since birth.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22) Pretty smug, aren't you? Well, keep smiling. Knowing Virgos, you're sitting on a bus right now and your fly is open. See, I told you.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 23) Don't spend a lot of money that you don't have and never will. This means you, Puerto Ricans.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22) Sex is on your mind constantly. You will probably roll this paper into a cylinder and abuse yourself. You probably won't have time to read this, you're so eager.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21) Your parents planned to have you born at this time of the year so they could combine your Christmas presents with your birthday presents. Obvious evidence of a complete lack of affection. See LEO.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19) Try and stop your drinking. Don't use this paper as a funnel to get Raid into a Canadian Club bottle. Consider drying out.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 19) Some hippies might have sung a song about you, but you're still a scumbag.

PISCES (Feb 20-March 20) Don't set your sights too high, you'll just get disappointed. This means that you shouldn't tackle anything that will earn you more than $5000 a year. Don't worry about success so much: you haven't a hope in hell, so take it easy.

Impotent females hard up

DEAR CRABBY: I'm about going out of my mind. My roommate has got to be one of the noisiest guys I know. All day long he blares his stereo playing the loudest music and at night he snores so loud it sounds like thunder. How can I shut this guy up? I've tried what seems to be every conventional method in the book but nothing has worked.

GOING DEAF

DEAR GOING DEAF: If you're going deaf, what's the worry?

DEAR CRABBY: What do I do? I have five essays, one seminar, a book report and a research paper for Psychology all due this week. Next week I have four final exams in two days. I'm going crazy!

FRIED BRAINS

DEAR FRIED BRAINS: Quit your pitiful sniveling. Don't whine to me for your being so fuckin' lazy all year long and for not knowing how to kiss ass.

DEAR CRABBY: What would you do if you were me? I have a tendency to be impotent until I write exams. At every exam I get an erection. It's so frustrating — needless to say distracting!

HARD UP

DEAR HARD UP: I hate to break the news to you but females don't get erections, so how do you expect me to pretend I'm you? However, if I were in your shoes, I'd probably try to take more courses that require exam writing.

DEAR CRABBY

DEAR CRABBY: When it comes to etiquette you seem to have all the answers. My husband and I have a heavy wager on this one, so the answer is important. Is the man supposed to walk in front of or behind the woman when walking up and down stairs? I believe in front because then he can't look up her skirt while going up stairs and can catch her fall if she tumbles going downstairs. My husband says otherwise. Who is correct?

SHORT-SKIRTED

DEAR SHORT-SKIRTED: I did not graduate as Emily Post's best student! Why the hell should I answer all these etiquette questions? It's Emily that wrote the book and is making the money — not me! Don't be so lazy — read the book!

Author a Laurier fan

Area writer W.U. Charles has happily agreed to allow us to print an excerpt from his upcoming book, A Day at Laurier. A Laurier alumnus, Mr. Charles felt that the last paper of the year would be a good place to show WLU students a teasing tidbit of the work which is due for publication within the month. (Please keep in mind as you read that Mr. Charles has some concentration problems, and his mind has a tendency to wander. Realizing this, everyone should be more than able to overlook his occasional propensity to digress to less than germane topics.)

An excerpt from A Day at Laurier:
When the trees change their colour, and a firm chill is in the air, we all realize that it's back-to-school time, even for those of use in higher education. Whether we are in the around to stare at women in tight sweaters, university life is something everyone should have the opportunity to experience.

There's an atmosphere at a university that is found in few other places. Wilfrid Laurier University is my alma mater, and only a few other places have its flavour, its panache. Other institutions are similar to Laurier, but none of them have all Laurier's special assets. Princeton has buildings like Laurier, Harvard has Laurier's halls, Cambridge its rolling hills, Yale its scholars, and Harmony Lunch its food. But nowhere is there another Laurier. Millhaven would be a lot like it but the walls are too high. Laurier. There's no life like it.

WLU BIDS FOND FAREWELL

DAFFY HAD GREAT TASTE

Last Monday at the university dining hall, former athletic director Daffy Nite was roasted by members of the university, the local media, and special honoured guests.

"The Roast Daffy Nite celebration was a complete success," said organizer and new athletic director Rock Newball. All who attended were said to have had the evening of their lives.

Friends, football players and members of the university administration gathered around the tables of the dining hall to bid their fond farewell to the man who slaved over the athletic director's desk for almost 40 years before finally deciding it was time to call it quits.

Because the university gave so much to him over his stellar career at WLU, the administration decided it was time Daffy gave something in return. The idea of a roast came quickly to mind.

Tickets were sold for $25 each, but the steep price was well worth it for the once-in-a-lifetime meal guests were treated to. Tickets sales went well, and a profit of over $12,000 was made on the roast. Newball was quite pleased with the profit, which will go towards the new football coach's salary of $225,000 a season.

"Thumper" Kelso, Nite's replacement on the football field, was pleased with the evening. "There was not a more fitting way to say good-bye to someone of Daffy's character. I enjoyed myself thoroughly."

Ex-football greats at WLU returned to their alma mater to thank Daffy for giving the push in the right direction. Bruto "The Axeman" Jaffitskoni was the most vocal of the group, but his sentiments were indicative of how they all felt.

"I'll always remember Daffy as one of the greatest coaches in football — for his guidance, leadership, fatherly advice and, most of all, his great taste. After years of eating dining hall slop, it's nice to eat high off the hog for a change."

Daffy's last prayer

Former athletic director Dave "Daffy" Nite is seen saying his last prayer after learning of his impending doom. Daffy's only comment was, "I suppose if you have to go, you might as well go hog-wild."

Malleters club the continent

By BRUNO GALANNO
Staff Writer

The Wilfrid Laurier University croquet team completed its first season last Saturday with what proved to be a very exciting finish to a very successful year. The organizer and coach of the team, Alonzo "The Mallet" DePadesta, was very pleased with the way the inexperienced but determined team performed. Finishing regular season play in fifth position overall, "The Mallet" was overjoyed about making the wildcard playoff spot after beating out a very tough and physical University of Yellowknife squad.

Last weekend, the North American Semi-finals were held in the Ohio Valley, the world's largest producers of metallic night wickets. Going up against the U of V Yellowbirds, ranked number two in the continent, the Golden Hawks were obvious underdogs. But much to the surprise of the Yellowbirds, the Hawks gave them a very close match, particularly in the cross-country division, where Jim Bob Wong forced cross-country champion Boris MacTavish into extra wickets only to lose in sudden death on the back seven.

When asked to comment, Wong stated that "I feel we might have been able to take them but we were at an extreme disadvantage. We were used to playing Queensbury rules on the harder and faster Canadian courses. This tournament was played under Nigerian rules, which is meant for soft and rolling courses. We didn't do too badly once we got used to the moats, but by then it was too late."

In summing up the year, we asked De Padesta what the most exciting moment for him was. He felt it had to be when the team was playing in the Lithuanian Invitational.

"Europeans take their croquet very seriously," said DePadesta. "As a matter of fact, the Lithuanian people have a saying: The rich were born with a silver spoon in their mouth, but the Lithuanians were born with a wooden mallet in their hand. This also explains the large number of bowlegged women in the country."

One of the big problems for the croquet Hawks has been injuries. Two of the team's top wackers, Wally Funguy and Limpy Rutherford, have been out most of the season with shattered heels. Alonzo blames this rash of injuries on team safety convenor Sean O'Reilly.

"O'Reilly hasn't played the game in years," DePadesta fumed. "Croquet is a lot rougher now, it's more aggressive. Letting people play in their bare feet is just asking for trouble. I feel you just can't take too many precautions. Right now we have a petition in to make it mandatory for all players to wear athletic supporters to prevent eye injury."

We asked Alonzo about the problems of the use of cocaine and steroids in croquet. "It's becoming a real problem, especially in the Women's Power Stroke division. We're trying to put a stop to it. The ICAAUCSPM (International Croquet Association Against the Use of Cocaine, Steroids, and Polyurethane Mallets) has infiltrated RASPUTIN (Russian Association of Steroid Promotion Under The Influence of Narcotics) to prevent the production of women who look like Rosie Greer with a bad case of the sniffles."

"The Mallet", as Alonzo is affectionately called by his wife, hopes that croquet will be incorporated into the Olympics by 1988.

Buzzard flies league

Harry Buzzard, owner of the Toronto Make Believes, announced at press conference yesterday that the team would be playing in the Oh-You-Ay-Ay hockey league next season. After a disappointing finish in '83-'84 with a 26-44-9 record, Buzzard has given up all hope.

However, after a few days of serious contemplation in his Make Believes Gardens dungeon, Buzzard found light at the end of the tunnel. The Believes could win at least 12 games to finish at .500 every season. The 24-game season would not be as tiring for his at times useless excuse for a hockey team.

The only disadvantage, he feels, is that his players will be much older than the university crowd. Power naps after hockey practice and a daily supply of Fred Flintstone vitamins will make the team as good as new, he hopes.

If the team fails to advance to the playoffs, Buzzard has one last alternative before exchanging the team for a tobacco farm in Delhi.

"We've still got the Oh-Doubleyou-I-Ay-Ay hockey league," Buzzard said. "After all, we should be able to beat a bunch of girls who should be at home pushing a broom instead of stick-handling a puck."

Thumper dumps Daffy

In his first official capacity as Director of Athletics, Rock Newball has named former Toronto Sin Sports Editor "Thumper" Kelso as Head Coach of the WLU Golden Ducks football team. Kelso was signed last week to a multi-year contract reportedly worth $225,000.

"We are indeed fortunate to have someone of Thumper's caliber join our staff," said Newball at a crowded press conference last week. "We are confident that under her leadership WLU will be a strong contender for the Vanier Cup."

Major problems facing the new head coach will be in the area of recruiting top-notch prospects to replace seasoned veterans who toiled under former coach Daffy Nite. Another problem facing the rookie coach will be the scenario in the dressing room. How will "Thumper" handle those footballers running around in just their game socks? Kelso feels that she can handle that problem, but is concerned about how she will be treated by the Toronto Sin sports staff.

"Thumper" plans to introduce a new offensive scheme called the Lonesome Polecat. In this formation, the quarterback lines up in the shot-gun formation with everyone else lined up on the line.

With one back and 11 linemen, it could cause havoc in the OH-YOU-AY-AY.

GUMP TO GEORGE

Off-ice drag queen

Boy George's secret is finally out. After months of speculation on just what-in-the-name-of-god Boy George is, doctors has announced that he is both a human being and a male. Boy seems quite happy that the secret is out, and now he wants to continue his singing career without any more talk about his sexuality.

"I enjoy dressing and singing the way that I am, thank you," Boy said. "I've always wanted to tell the public who I really am, but I've been kind of squeamish. You see, I'm really Gump Worsley."

Yes, sports fans, Gump Gump as a star goalie with the Montreal Canadiens and the Minnesota North Stars, but in 1975, all traces of Gump vanished. No one on the North Stars knew where he was, and they assumed that he'd gone the route of Terry Sawchuk, who is six feet under. Not so, says Boy "Gump" George.

"I am Gump Worsley, and I would still be if it weren't for an accident in 1975. Lou Nanne was practicing slap shots from the blue line, and I told him I'd go in the net and practice making a few saves. Wouldn't you know, on the very first shot Lou caught me in a bad spot. As soon as it happened, I remembered that I had forgotten to put my jock strap on. Voila...Boy George!"

Asked if he has considered coming back to hockey, Boy said that he would only go to a hockey rink to sing the national anthem and stare into the shower rooms after the game.

Jumper lands in slammer

LONG JUMP

Olympic hopeful Brute Arclust was disqualified from the Honduras Invitational last week for failing to arrive in time for the 9:00 a.m. start. Arclust was apparently held by local police for questioning after an exotic table dancing performance the night before the competition. It seems that Arclust was arrested for thrusting parts of his body at the female patrons.

SIN Flashes

Baron Thorpette was recently found unconscious in the changeroom of the Toronto Uglynuts. When later questioned about the incident, Thorpette said she had no idea how she ended up in the changeroom in the first place. "Well, I couldn't have done anything fun, because I hate big football jocks."

WEIGHTLIFTING

Curly V. Tooquickshoot showed his prowess at a recent weightlifting meet in the Soviet Union. He attributes his success to carrying heavy steel weights in his knapsack to work every day and eating his Wheelies every morning.

MUD WRESTLING

Recently demoted SIN editor Kirk Chuckham has taken up the sport of mud wrestling to take his mind off his troubles. His only comment to the SIN was, "After being defeated by a rodent, how much lower can you get?"

An interview with Brian Mulroney.

In a recent interview with the new leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, we asked seven key questions. His answers to these questions will be of interest to every young Canadian.

Question: Mr. Mulroney, both in your leadership campaign and in your speeches since last June, you have stressed the need for improved productivity and a serious research and development strategy. What precisely does that mean for Canada's youth?

Brian Mulroney: The answer can be expressed in three words: jobs, investment and growth. Jobs because employment opportunities for Canada's 545,000 unemployed youth can only be secured in sectors with a real future. Investment because research and development, that is expenditure in new products, new ideas, new processes, provides the basis of tomorrow's winning sectors. Growth because without it, there is no basis for making our way in the world, for tackling the tragedy of 1.6 million unemployed Canadians.

Question: Is there anything specific you would do to get jobs for youth?

Brian Mulroney: We will provide increased incentives to employers to hire and train young people. A Progressive Conservative government will significantly expand wage subsidy programs, such as the career access program. We will also substitute a program of refundable employer tax credits, to credit employers with a portion of their income, or federal payroll taxes, where they agree to hire and train young people for a fixed period. We will greatly improve existing "information exchanges" through which young people become aware of job opportunities. Clearly, as job displacement centers, the Canada Employment centers are not performing adequately. And we will institute programs specifically designed to address chronic unemployment which tragically plagues certain regions of Canada.

Question: Is our record in R & D really so bad?

Brian Mulroney: Just look at the figures. Under 15 years of Liberal rule, we actually reduced our spending on R & D from 1.29 to 1.13 of total GNP. All of our industrial competitors are spending almost double that, while Japan has a goal of spending 3%. Put it this way: there is one company in West Germany spending more on research than all of Canada combined! The Progressive Conservative Party is committed to increasing our R & D commitment to 2.5% of GNP. We've got a lot of ground to make up in the technology race.

Question: How does R & D relate to our unemployment crisis?

Brian Mulroney: Someone once told me that while love makes the world go round, research and development makes it go forward. The National Research Council estimates that for every additional one per cent of GNP committed to R & D, 800,000 jobs are created. Look around at the sectors which are growing: pharmaceuticals, computers, electronics, biotechnology, telecommunications. These are all sectors where the R & D component of spending is very high. They are also the sectors creating new jobs.

Question: Is R & D important only for high tech sectors?

Brian Mulroney: On the contrary, R & D is important for every sector, including traditional sectors like forestry, mining and agriculture. Look at how our enormous productivity improvement in agriculture has been assisted by our research efforts in disease control, pesticides, weather prediction and animal husbandry. That's why I say the real challenge facing Canada is to apply new technology in old as well as new industries.

Question: You are almost calling for shock treatment to our economy.

Brian Mulroney: When 545,000 young people are out of work, when we have a negative balance of trade in high technology goods of more than $7.5 billion, I recognize a crisis at hand. We must formulate a dramatic, innovative, and long-term tax system to increase investment in technology. We must assure that meaningful jobs exist for our youth.

Question: You seem to have a personal interest in this subject.

Brian Mulroney: Anyone interested in the future of this country or the world at large has to take a personal interest. These new technologies - silicon chips, satellite technology, biotechnology and the like - are having a profound effect on our society. They are both a curse and a blessing. But I think that when we can get our government programs relevant again, we can get real growth and jobs for our people.
