Why "Nothing Else Tastes Like White Spot"™

When Nat Bailey founded the White Spot® in 1928 he always maintained: "Nothing short of perfect will do!" And he went to great lengths to ensure every product served was a reflection of his commitment to "the best."

In those early days that meant grinding all the beef for hamburgers. Creating and blending secret mayonnaise and relish recipes to create our famous "Triple O"® sauce. Chipping his own chips. Making homemade ice cream. Baking his own hamburger buns. And whatever could not be made, was ordered to exact specifications. Take the extra long dill for example. It had to stretch right across the hamburger or it came up short in Nat's eyes.

Today, that same commitment to quality and freshness is the hallmark of our business. We produce virtually everything we serve in our central kitchen and bakery. At our Commissary we're still chipping our own fries with potatoes fresh from the Fraser Valley, baking our own buns and pies, blending our own special Triple O sauce, and making sure everything we serve – from apple pie to clam chowder – is nothing short of perfect. And that's why "Nothing Else Tastes Like White Spot."
