Complex of misdeeds unfolding

WASHINGTON (AP) — An "incredible complex of misdeeds in high places" is unfolding in federal grand jury investigations that have led to the indictment of a former U. S. senator, a Justice Department prosecutor says.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Will R. Wilson, chief of the department's criminal division, said grand juries in New York City, Baltimore and Washington, D. C., still are looking into corruption allegations against top government officials.

As yet there have been no trials nor convictions in any of the cases. "One thing leads to another," Wilson said in an interview. "Sen. Daniel B. Brewster has been indicted, but the other matters are still being developed."

Wilson referred to the indictment returned here Dec. 1 against Brewster, who was defeated last year in his bid for a second term in the Senate. Brewster was accused of accepting $24,500 in bribes from Spiegel Inc., a huge Chicago mail-order house.

Wilson said the three-city inquiry began after the department received reports that lobbyist Nathan P. Voloshen, 71, had peddled influence through the office of his longtime friend, House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass.

The investigations have been under way for months and now touch on matters far removed from the allegations against Voloshen.

Wilson said the three grand juries, after looking into the Voloshen case, found evidence involving other senators and congressmen.

The inquiry now has been expanded to the affairs of other legislators, including Sen. Russell Long, D-La., and members of the House and Senate Post Office Committees.

Friday, the Washington Star named Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., Rep. Arnold Olsen, D-Mont., and former Rep. James H. Morrison, D-La., as being under investigation. All have denied any wrongdoing.

Published reports on Voloshen's activities include accusations that the lobbyist operated freely out of McCormack's office in close association with the speaker's chief aide, Martin Sweig.

North Viets driven from jungle area

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troops drove North Vietnamese from jungle bunkers northwest of Saigon Saturday in a short but fierce battle in a sector where the enemy is reported building up forces.

In the central highlands, North Vietnamese shot down a U.S. helicopter, killing all 11 aboard, including an American colonel and a South Vietnamese tactical zone commander. The officers were observing one of the scattered clashes that dotted South Vietnam all day.

In the main fighting, 55 miles northwest of Saigon, U.S. troops and South Vietnamese irregulars were sweeping a battlefield where 23 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed the previous day.

The battle raged for half an hour, and allied forces reported 44 North Vietnamese killed. There were no U.S. casualties but four of the irregulars were killed and two wounded.

Officers said the fighting broke out as allied troops, including infantrymen from the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry division, advanced through jungles just northwest of a U.S. fire base blocking enemy infiltration corridors from Cambodia, 13 miles away.

A North Vietnamese force of unknown size opened up from concealed positions.

"That whole damn area is wall-to-wall bunkers," one American officer said.

U.S. fighter bombers, helicopter gunships and artillery pounded the enemy bunkers. The action broke off in mid-morning when the North Vietnamese withdrew. Field reports said they left behind a 60mm mortar with 70 rounds, a heavy machine gun, a dozen assault rifles and a Chinese communist-made field radio.

Other air cavalrymen clashed twice with North Vietnamese in the same general area but there were few details. Two Americans were reported killed and five wounded.

Enemy losses were not broken down but the allies claimed 104 North Vietnamese were killed in the three battles and in a fourth just south of the demilitarized zone. The battle near the zone dividing the Vietnams was fought by North and South Vietnamese.

The U.S. helicopter was shot down about 15 miles northeast of Dak To as the officers observed a ground operation in the jungled hills, South Vietnamese headquarters said.

Calley refuses to answer news questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — First Lt. William L. Calley Jr., who is maintaining a public silence on charges he killed 309 Vietnamese civilians, has been questioned 2½ hours by a special Army panel at the Pentagon.

Calley was tight-lipped and looked straight ahead Friday as he made his way quickly through a crowd of newsmen and photographers upon his arrival. He declined to answer questions.

He left the building by another route after appearing before a hearing which seeks to learn whether field officers tried to cover up any mass killings in their initial investigation after a U.S. military operation in March 1968 at My La.

Calley was the leader of a platoon which took part in the operation and is the only one charged with murder so far in the alleged massacre.

The probe is not connected with the court-martial of Calley which is expected to start early next year at Ft. Benning.

On Thursday, the investigating panel heard from Capt. Ernest Medina, who was Calley's company commander. Medina later told newsmen he had neither ordered a massacre nor saw or heard of one, although he said he did shoot one wounded Viet Cong woman he thought was about to harm him.

Meanwhile, Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard and Army Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland said the alleged My Lai massacre should not be considered an indictment of all U.S. soldiers.

"I can assure you the Army is not attempting to hide anything," Westmoreland said while visiting Ft. Campbell, Ky., Friday. "We will continue to pursue our investigation and any trials that may result with diligent thoroughness and full respect for the due process of right of the accused."

If bickering continues

Scott sees tax veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans renewed their attacks on the battered tax reform-Social Security bill Saturday but Democrats said they doubt President Nixon would veto it. Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the GOP leader, told reporters that, "if it gets any worse" he would think the President might well decide not to sign the legislation. But Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana dismissed any such speculation as premature. He noted that much reshaping of the final product undoubtedly would come in the Senate-House conference on the measure.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., senior Republican on the Finance Committee who will be a conferee, agreed that the conference must revise the bill drastically.

In fact, he said, many senators who voted for a variety of Social Security and tax benefits added to the bill last week told him they assumed the conferees would kill them.

"This is sheer hypocrisy," Williams said.

The Senate now has added about $12 billion of revenue-losing or benefit-increasing provisions, he said, commenting:

"I propose that we rename this bill, 'The Christmas Tree Act of 1969.'"

"It will take the American people a long time to pay for all the Christmas presents we are voting them in this bill."

Sen. Gordon Allott of Colorado, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said Senate action so far has been "highly irresponsible."

"Of all taxes," he said, "the tax of inflation is the most unfair burden on our people, and this bill as it now stands will fan the flames of inflation."

The Senate continued work on the measure Saturday, with an unusually large number of members on hand—more than 80—for a Saturday session.

It plodded through a series of amendments but leaders abandoned any hopes they had of passing the legislation during the day.

Managers of the bill now predict final action next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Brandt makes progress on new W. German look

By PETER REHAK BONN, Germany (AP) — In his second month in office, Chancellor Willy Brandt can check off substantial progress in his campaign to give West Germany a new look.

The most recent illustration of the "new look" was the Common Market summit in The Hague where, according to some observers, Brandt deserves a good measure of credit for getting French agreement on the start of talks with Britain.

It wasn't all Brandt's doing. A lot of other things, like the political demise of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, were going for the arm.

But Brandt's clear initiative in calling for the talks with Britain and the other applicants was in sharp contrast to the cautious ways of his Christian Democratic predecessor, Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

Even when Kiesinger was not being overshadowed by De Gaulle, he painstakingly avoided doing anything that might aggravate the French.

Brandt, Bonn's first Social Democratic chancellor, seems to have no reservations about using his country's economic prowess to twist the French

He has a larger view of Europe and evidently more common ground with Britain's Labor government and Scandinavia's Social Democrats than his predecessor.

Brandt said after The Hague meeting that his success represented only a minimum of the accomplishments West Germany had hoped for. He was careful to pay tribute to France in reporting on the summit to the Bundestag, West Germany's parliament, but there seems no doubt that he won't hesitate to step on French toes in the future.

Say universe could be much larger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The universe may be several times larger than previously believed, astronomers say after studying observations made in the first year of the space agency's Orbiting Astronomical Observatory.

The 4,400-pound OAO2, described by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as the most complex unmanned spacecraft ever orbited, has been studying the sky in a nearly circular orbit 400 miles above the earth. This is well beyond the obscuring effects of the atmosphere.

NASA made public some of the findings since the OAO was launched last Dec. 7:

— "In studying the ultraviolet radiation from stars and galaxies, which does not penetrate earth's atmosphere, OAO2 discovered that many galaxies are much brighter in this radiation than astronomers had expected."

— "This unexpectedly bright ultraviolet radiation means that some of the very distant galaxies are intrinsically extremely bright objects. Since they appear so faint they must be very far away, perhaps several times farther than was previously assumed."

— "OAO2 has confirmed that hot stars lose as much as the sun's total mass in the relatively short astronomical period of 100,000 years, or the equivalent of the earth's mass in a single year."

— "The space observatory has established that the hottest stars are somewhat hotter than has been inferred from ground-based observations. Similarly, some slightly cooler stars are cooler than has been assumed."

Exchange 58 Egyptians for 2 Israeli pilots

TEL AVIV (AP) — Climaxing one of the most elaborate, prisoner swaps in recent Middle East history, Israel today exchanged 58 Egyptians for two Israeli pilots held in Egypt.

The three-way exchange package, which also involved Syria, resulted from weeks of behind-the-scenes international activity. The International Red Cross handled final arrangements.

The first chapter in the deal unfolded Friday when the Israelis freed 13 Syrian prisoners—including two MIG pilots—in return for two Israeli passengers held captive in Damascus for 99 days after their TWA airliner was hijacked.

Only when the second exchange was made at El Qantara on the Suez Canal today, were correspondents given permission to tell about the whole trade.

In the Israeli-Egyptian exchange, Israel returned 52 civilians and 6 military men, including an air force pilot, Maj. Nabil Said, 32, whose fighter-bomber was shot down in Sinai last July 24. Cairo, in return, released Maj. Nissim Ashkenazi, 30, one of Israel's top combat pilots who was shot down over Egypt Aug. 19, and Capt. Giora Rom, who parachuted into Egypt after his Mirage Jet was hit Sept. 11. Rom suffered multiple fractures and was hospitalized.

A military spokesman said the bodies of three Egyptian military men also were sent across the canal by boat. The civilians included several groups of Egyptian boatmen and fishermen caught inside waters over which Israel claims jurisdiction. A group of six Egyptians trying to cross into Jordan, plus several others caught in an Israeli raid into upper Egypt in October 1969 also were included in the exchange.

The Egyptian pilot, Maj. Said, met Israeli and foreign newsmen the day after his capture. He talked freely, saying he had received some of his training in the Soviet Union. But no Russians were involved in combat in Egypt, he said.

The entire exchange deal was sure to stir bitter controversy in Israel. Many Israeli hawks oppose swaps involving hijacked civilian passengers on grounds of honor and say that they only open the door to future hijackings.

On the battlefield, Israeli air force planes crossed into Jordan today to attack a suspected commando base south of the Sea of Galilee, military spokesmen said in Tel Aviv. All planes returned safely, the Israeli command said.

In Amman, Jordanian officials said a 12-year-old girl was killed and two other civilians were wounded in the raid. Spokesmen said three houses also were damaged in the seven-minute raid by two rocket-firing jet fighters.

Question of sainthood points up differences

LONDON (AP) — A question of sainthood brought out this week one of the differences remaining between the Church of England and the Roman Catholic Church in this country.

Jon Cardinal Heenan has said he thinks the time is "most opportune" for the canonization of 40 martyrs who died under the direction of English monarchs. Archbishop Michael Ramsey, the Church of England primate, says such a move could harm the ecumenical cause in this country, and speaks of a "siege mentality" in Roman Catholic ranks.

The 40 martyrs, more than half of them priests, met their fate in the reigns of Henry VIII, Elizabeth I and James I soon after the Church of England broke with Rome.

Some were hanged, drawn and quartered—the traitor's death—because they would not recognize the monarch as "supreme head on earth" of the Church of England. Others, including several women, died because they hid fugitive priests in their homes.

The cause of the martyrs was first raised in 1874 by Henry Cardinal Manning. In 1886, Pope Leo XIII beatified 20 of the 40, thus permitting their veneration.

While in Rome for the recent synod meeting, Cardinal Heenan told the Pope: "It would hearten the Catholics of England to see these champions of the Pope's authority raised to the altars."

Archbishop Ramsey has not commented on this but has referred inquirers to a memorandum he drew up three years ago. His opinion was sought then by the Vice-Postulation for the Cause of the Forty Martyrs, which operates from England's Jesuit headquarters in Mayfair, London.

"There is not only the prejudice of ultra-protestant people," he points out, "but there is also the 'siege mentality' which is apt to possess Roman Catholics in England."

"By 'siege mentality' I mean a kind of polemical self-consciousness which is far different from the spirit of the meeting between His Holiness the Pope and myself in March 1966."

"The 'siege mentality' is, I believe, bound up psychologically with a kind of martyrdom complex deeply, and of course, intelligibly, rooted in history. Ought we not on both sides to be getting away from this?"

Dr. Ramsey suggested that "while some ecumenical language is used, the final outcome is that the Martyrs are to be invoked so that with the aid of their prayers non-Roman Catholic Christians in England may be brought within the Roman obedience."

One injured as autos crash on icy streets

Streets made slippery by the light snowfall began to take their toll in rising traffic damage, according to Saturday morning reports by police.

At 4:58 a.m. Saturday a car moving west on 3rd Street, driven by Jeffrey L. Brokaw, 18, 729 E. Mark St., slipped out of control, jumped the north curb and hit a tree on the boulevard.

A PASSENGER, Miss Susan M. Lynch, 20, 278 E. 4th St., was taken to Community Memorial Hospital by Praxel Ambulance for treatment of facial and leg cuts. Her condition was termed satisfactory Saturday by hospital sources.

The 1960 model car had damages to the front left portion estimated at $500.

A collision at Sanborn and Louisa streets Friday at 12:05 p.m. also was investigated. Robert G. Paine, 45, 826 E. 5th St., and Diane M. Patzner, Fountain City, Rt. 1, Wis., met in the intersection, police reported. Paine was moving north on Louisa and the Patzner car was going east on Sanborn Street. Damage was estimated at $600 to the Patzner car and $400 to the Paine car.

POLICE said slippery conditions also contributed to a collision Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at the West King-Grand Street intersection. Harry A. Wood, La Crosse, was driving south on Grand and Mrs. William Palbicki, 131 E. King St., was driving west on King Street.

The Wood car received $300 worth of front end damage and the Palbicki car had $400 worth of damage on the right side.

Mondovi council hears auditor

MONDOVI, Wis. (Special) — Hugh Buchanan, Department of State Audit, explained the recent audit to members of the Common Council meeting Tuesday evening.

Buchanan stated that all records were in good order and that all monies of the various departments had been properly accounted for.

Council members approved the following appointments to the Mondovi public library board of directors: John P. Herpst and Mrs. John Lee, one year; the Rev. Ruwal Freese, two years; and Mrs. John Tanner, three years.

The following appointments were approved to the Mondovi Planning Commission: Albert H. Unger to fill the unexpired term of Harold Haugland, deceased, to 1974; Robert Stoughton to the unexpired term of Wesley Holden, resigned, to 1970.

The council authorized the extension of Buffalo Street from Memorial Drive to North Washington St.

A resolution was passed requesting the county highway committee to set up a project for the improvement of County Trunk "H" from Riverside Avenue, to the south city limits, including a new, wider bridge. The resolution also included requesting federal aid for this project.

Gordon Retzlaff explained the dissolution of the Area Industrial Development Corporation. The board of directors will recommend to corporation members that the balance of funds left after paying back the shareholders, be turned over to the city to be kept for industrial development only. They recommended that a five member committee be appointed to act on matters of industrial development with council approval.

A resolution was adopted stating the council's intent to accept these funds if the membership should approve the recommendations of the directors. The funds would be invested until needed.

The claims committee was authorized to approve late bills before the end of the month.

Issue warrants for three Elgin youths

ELGIN, Minn. — Warrants have been issued for three Elgin youths following a fracas at the basketball game here Friday night. The three will be charged with disorderly conduct, according to police officer Merle Prescher.

Fred, Alvin and Jerry Johnson were asked to leave the game. The three had apparently been drinking and were unruly and when asked to leave, struck Richard Pederson, principal, and Charles Weisbrod, school superintendent. They were evicted before police officers arrived, according to Prescher. Two of the boys are reportedly home on leave from service.

The complaint was signed by the school board and issued by Justice of the Peace Vilas Loos.

LOOK TO THE FUTURE . . . Former Winonan, Dr. William Stumpf, assistant professor of environmental design at the Environmental Design Center at the University of Wisconsin, discussed "Winona: Alternatives for the Future" at the annual Guest Day luncheon of the Winona Branch of the American Association of University Women

Design expert warns against 'crisis planning'

An expert in environmental design returned to his native Winona Saturday and warned of the danger of allowing circumstances to force the community into a situation in which it charts its future development on the basis of what he described as "crisis planning."

Speaking at the annual Christmas season Guest Day luncheon meeting of the Winona Branch of the American Association of University Women at the College of Saint Teresa, Dr. William Stumpf suggested the organization of what might be known as a Winona Regional Environmental Awareness Group which would be concerned with long-range development of all aspects of community life.

AN ASSISTANT professor of environmental design at the Environmental Design Center at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, Dr. Stumpf noted that such a group's three-fold primary objectives might be:

- To identify, record and communicate what Winona is or is not.
- Develop constructive attitudes — to counteract any apathy that might exist in certain segments of the community — with a broad concern for the future.

• Create an action mechanism that would guide planning and development for the community for the next 50 years.

DR. STUMPF, who has had extensive experience in product and industrial design and directs a study on environment and leisure at Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago, addressed AAUW members and guests on "Winona: Alternatives for the Future" in conjunction with the Winona branch's current study topic on "The Human Use of Urban Space."

He prefaced his remarks concerned with Winona's future potential with a discussion of what a good environment is and how man relates to his environment.

He observed that people are affected by their environment physiologically — in terms, for example, of clean or polluted air and water and noise factors — and psychologically, in the choices afforded the individual in his adaptation to his environment.

FACTORS involved in making choices, Dr. Stumpf explained, include the ability and competency of the individual to make choices and the choices, physical and social, awaiting him in his environment. "Can we say," he asked, "that a quality environment is one in which people are aware of its intrinsic values and the choices it affords; accordingly, the people should have the competency to recognize these choices."

He listed various criteria of a good and a bad environment and, applying these to the Winona area, found that the community measured up very well.

IN A POOR environment, Dr. Stumpf explained, high density population is found; there is a lack of privacy; safety and pollution hazards exist; there's a low level of educational opportunities with the community highly dependent on state and federal revenue sources; there is evidence of a sense of alienation of self from the community.

In Winona, on the other hand, Dr. Stumpf found that there is a "permissive environment; one in which within a matter of minutes you have access to 'pleasuring and recreational activities; generally speaking, you can sleep not bothered by noise; you have a safe community with an extremely low crime rate; there are good educational opportunities and you

Conrad has alternator, radio problem

HONOLULU (AP) — After 15 hours, a bad alternator and a problem with a radio, flying grandfather Max Conrad arrived in Hawaii Friday "a little bit tired."

Conrad, 66, landed at Honolulu Airport in his specially equipped twin-engine Piper Aztec, which he hopes will take him on an around the world flight in the coming weeks.

"The alternator went out about half way. It made me a little anxious," said Conrad, formerly of Winona, Minn.

Although the plane is equipped with two alternators, Conrad said if the second one went out he would be without electricity to operate navigation equipment.

"Then how do you find these islands?" he asked.

Conrad plans to take off today for Tarawa, 2,400 miles southwest of Hawaii.

Seguin honored at La Crosse soil meeting

ELEVA, Wis. (Special) — Watford Seguin Sr., Eleva Rt. 1, Wis., was one of six persons honored Wednesday evening at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Soil Conservation District Association's Supervisors conference held at La Crosse.

Seguin was presented a plaque signed by Milton Stelrecht, Spooner, president of the association.

Reports given at the morning session included forestry, education and youth, watershed and water resources, soil stewardship, and research of the northern Great Lakes.

The afternoon session featured four discussion groups, topics being sediment, the other end of erosion; agricultural pollution, the farmers' plight; underground water pollution, and surface water pollution.

Servicemen's addresses

Addresses of servicemen stationed in Vietnam should be received in the editorial office of the Winona Daily News no later than Thursday. Addresses will be published in the Dec. 14 edition.

From today—seven digits

From today forward, it's seven-digit dialing for all Winona area telephone users.

Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. equipment was switched this morning to an updated system that conforms with most telephone networks throughout the nation. By so doing, it makes direct long distance dialing (DDD) possible here for the first time.

WINONA telephone users now will have to dial all seven digits in order to get any local number, according to Dan McDonnell, Northwestern Bell manager here. Winonans also will hear a new dial tone, he added, but there will be no clicking sound while numbers are dialed.

In addition to Winona, Kellogg, St. Charles and Chatfield have been added to the DDD network, McDonnell said.

One advantage of DDD is speed, McDonnell explained, and another is that it makes some calls eligible for bargain rates. DDD calls placed at certain times will be charged at lower rates because they occur at other than peak traffic periods. DDD calls are station-to-station only. Billing is done automatically by computers.

IT REQUIRES about 30 seconds to place a DDD call, compared with a minute and a half, or more, for the same call handled through an operator, McDonnell said.

Operators will continue to be needed for person-to-person and credit card calls.

Calls between exchanges in Fountain City, Wis., Minnesota City - Rollingstone, Minn., and Winona now can be placed merely by dialing the seven-digit exchange numbers for each. It is no longer necessary to place one or two digits ahead of the exchange prefixes.

Two trustees named for St. Mary's

Jacobs Coughlan

Two new members, C. Bernard Jacobs and Thomas P. Coughlan, have been appointed to the St. Mary's College board of trustees, according to Brother Francis Wray, F.S.C., board chairman.

Jacobs is president of National City Bank, Minneapolis, and Coughlan is president of National Bank of Commerce, Mankato. Appointments are the result of revisions in bylaws of the board which have increased the number of lay members.

Before rules were revised the board consisted of six Christian Brothers, the Bishop of Winona and two laymen. Now the board must have at least 12, but not more than 39 members. The college president will be a board member but no other faculty or administrative personnel are eligible for voting membership.

Present board members are appointed for terms of one to five years but none may hold the position for more than two consecutive five-year terms.

The college has five officers under the revised system. The president is chief executive and he is appointed by the board. The president in turn names the college's four vice presidents. Their fields of responsibility are academic affairs, student personnel, business affairs and development and public relations.

Trustees elect the board chairman. In the absence of the college president the vice president for academic affairs becomes acting chief executive.

Medina sues Time for $110 million

BOSTON (AP) — Capt. Ernest I. Medina, charging he was held up to ridicule and contempt, filed suit against Time, Inc., Friday in federal court, asking $110 million in damages.

The suit was filed from the office of F. Lee Bailey, Boston lawyer who represents the Springier, N.M., native.

Medina's suit said the case is based on the current issue of Time magazine, which carried statements of a soldier connect-

Jeane Dixon column begins today: see Women's Section

The world-famous seer, Jeane Dixon of Washington, D.C., who foretold the assassination of John F. Kennedy, will write a daily astrology column for the Winona Daily & Sunday News starting today.

In addition, from time to time as they occur, Mrs. Dixon will report her prophecies and predictions concerning persons and movements of national importance.

JEAN DIXON, who looks on her "sixth sense" as a gift of God, has never profited financially from her unusual powers of prophecy, puts her column receipts into a tax-exempt charitable organization, The Children to Children Foundation, designed to help children around the world.

The Jeane Dixon Horoscope Column is different from others in that it utilizes her psychic powers and is led each day by an inspirational quotation out of the wisdom of the past.

She foretold the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the assassination of Mahatma Gandhi, Churchill's defeat in 1945, Truman's re-election in 1948, the partition of India, the Red takeover of China, Russia's first Sputnik, the rise of Khrushchev and his downfall, the ecumenical council, the outcome of the six presidential elections from 1944 to 1964, Regan's victory in California, the plane crashes that took the lives of Carole Lombard and Dag Hammarskjold, the suicide of Marilyn Monroe and, in 1966, the ouster of Sukarno and the failure of communism in Indonesia.

Many of these were documented in the 1965 book, "A Gift of Prophecy: The Phenomenal Jeane Dixon," by Ruth Montgomery, which has sold more than three million copies around the world. Dr. Daniel Poling, former editor of the Christian Herald, called it "perhaps the most important volume that has appeared in the field of prophecy since the Biblical prophets."

VISIONS ARE the rarest of her gifts. "A vision is very sacred and very divine; a vision is given to you, and at God's timing, not yours," she has said. "Some years I am given three visions, some years none at all." Most of her predictions, therefore, come from psychic channels: Vibrations received through touching the fingertips of a person, other forms of ESP (extra-sensory perception), the horoscope of a person, and through the crystal ball.

"I don't really need my crystal ball," she has said, "but it helps sometimes. For me, it's like a television set. It brings in what's happening in the world."

Jeane Dixon has made some predictions that have proved mistaken, reported the Wall Street Journal, Nov. 17, 1965, "but on the whole she has been accurate to an uncanny degree." Jeane Dixon ascribes two reasons for her occasional wrong predictions: She saw the correct symbols but misinterpreted them; and, in the case of psychic reactions which have to do with events that are man-made, men change their minds and thus the course of events.

She was born in Medford, Wis., but grew up in Santa Rosa and Los Angeles, Calif., where her brother, Emy Pinekert, became an All-American football player. At 21, she was married to James L. Dixon, a Los Angeles auto distributor, who shortly thereafter moved to Detroit on defense projects. After Pearl Harbor, the Dixons moved to Washington, D.C., where Jim became a dollar-a-year man handling real estate for the War Department. Jeane's fame as a seer quickly spread among servicemen, government leaders and foreign diplomats.

After the war, Dixon set up his own real estate office in Washington and Jeane entered the business, partly to get away from the flood of people seeking her psychic readings. Life magazine described the Dixon house in Washington as looking "like the inside of a Fabergé Easter egg," filled with carvings of angels, madonnas and kittens, and with magnificently canopied beds slept in by Calvin Coolidge and Empress Eugenie. Her backyard is a nursing home for stray dogs and cats. Her favorite pet is Mike the Magic Cat, who she believes has psychic powers of his own. She is a devout Catholic who goes to Mass every morning of the week. "God wants our lives to be balanced, and mine is," she said. "I have my feet on the ground and my fingertips in the heavens." She often wears an antique cross of gold and amethysts around her neck. She neither drinks nor smokes and, while not a vegetarian, her diet consists primarily of vegetables, fruits and juices.

It Happened Last Night

Julie a B'way star after 12-year wait

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Julie Wilson's name is up on the marquee over the title of "Jimmy" at the Winter Garden and she takes several bows each night—then starts the long 1-hr.-and-45-minute ride home to the trees and grass and fresh air of Summit, N.J.

"I take the subway to 33d St. starting at about a quarter to 12, then the tube to Hoboken, then the Erie-Lackawanna train to Summit (first stop Newark) and I get home about 1:30 in the morning," Julie was telling me in Sardi's.

"I enjoy the train ride. I sit down and put my feet up and read the papers. And it's so lovely out there when I get home. I grew up with grass and trees and I wish I could take the show back to Omaha."

Julie, a Middle Western beauty who was a chorus girl at the Copacabana, and a sleek, slick, elegant cafe singer, checks her children, Holt, 6, and Mikie, 5, when she gets home. Then has a snack and gets to bed at 3.

"I get up at 6 to send Holt to school at 6:45, and Mike goes to nursery school at 9:30. Then I bury the phone under a lot of pillows and hit the hay again at 9:45. When Mikie comes home from school at 11:45, I've grabbed a couple of hours. If there are no appointments in the afternoon, I may sleep another hour."

IT SOUNDS difficult, but Julie's cheerful because, she says, "It was 12 years since I could get a stage role."

"'Pajama Game' — 1956. I must have had 150 auditions since. 'They didn't want me for this show. They said, 'You're not fat, and Jimmy Walker's wife was fat. I said, 'I'll think fat. I'll wear all the padding and all the falsies I can find.'"

"The big audition was a Saturday in July and it seemed like 110 — and I had a cold. Mikie was sick, I was a mess, and I've never been at such a low ebb. I felt fat and frumpy. I leaned against the piano and read the lines. And I sang the songs. "Every other audition I've been dolled up and in my best voice. Well, Monday, they called that I had the part. I'm convinced after that experience that it's timing and fate."

One of Julie's ex-husbands, Harvey Bernhard, (she's got two others) sent her an opening night salute, "Seven years of bad luck has ended — can only get better now," and Julie believes it.

"I have no complaints now — and it's been a long time since I had no complaints."

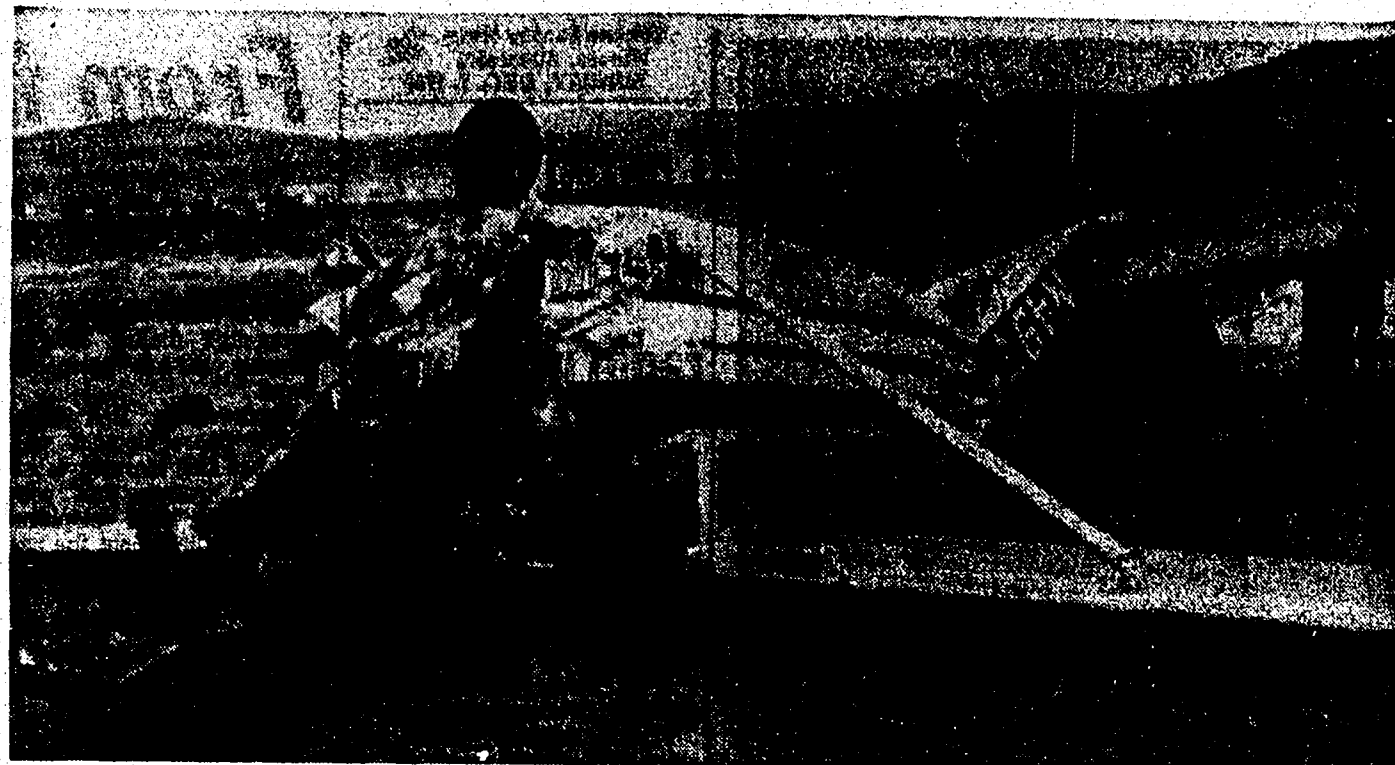

Mary Lou Wilson got into the Copacabana chorus in 1944, was persuaded by "Curly" Harris to change her first name, was then discovered as a singer by manager Barron Polan, whom she married in 1951 — and became one of the toasts of London in "Kiss Me, Kate" and later in "South Pacific."

"I married Harvey Bernhard in Las Vegas while I was there getting a divorce. What a loose woman! And I had to wait till I was 30 to make all my mistakes."

MICHAEL McALONEY, actor and producer, husband No. 3, but now also ex, is her devoted fan. They were married in '61 and divorced recently.

The slinky sexpot with the crack in her voice says, "I guess I'm going to wind up being a loner. But it's wonderful to be friends with all your ex-husbands. I'm thinking of starting an alumni association of my exes."

THE WEEKEND WINDUP . . . Woody Allen was asked if he had to wear glasses all the time. "No," he said, "only to find the world when I wake up in the morning." . . . Keir Dullea's gift to his wife: bite-sized Shih Tzu dog (weight, 8 oz.) . . . Author Irving Wallace suggested Dustin Hoffman for a top role in the filming of his book, "The Seven Minutes" . . . Richard Brooks described his

EARL'S PEARLS: Zsa Zsa Gabor said it: "In school I was taught that money isn't everything, that happiness counts more. As soon as Mama heard this, she made me change schools."

Comic Pat Henry, who opened at the Copa Thanksgiving night, says, "It was quite a switch, playing to an audience that ate too much, instead of one that drank too much." That's earl, brother.

Walker Reade Jr. opens his 75th theater this month, The Ziegfeld (with "Marooned") . . . Composer Hayward Morris got a NY Film & TV Festival Award for his score for "Windows" . . . Roland Gammont's book, "All Believers Are Brothers," includes statements on religious faith from David Ben-Gurion and the Shah of Iran . . . Actor Joe Sirola passed the $500,000 mark in earnings from TV and radio commercials . . . Dancers Tybee and Johnny Brasca will be in George Englund's movie, "Zachariah," described as a "rock western."

Golfer Jack Nicklaus will design the second golf course at the Playboy Club in Lake Geneva, Wis. . . . Las Vegas Caesars Palace will get a rock group: Blood, Sweat & Tears . . . Anthony DeBenedetto and Pasquale Caputo recently worked together. (That's Tony Bennett and Pat Cooper) . . . A film now being shot has so much backstage hassling that several cast members are keeping diaries, for magazine articles later.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Someone wondered if the success of the Jets' ace kicking star Jim Turney had made him conceited. "I doubt it," said a fan, "he's still wearing the same size shoe."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Values have changed. Now we

Japan will resist yen revaluation

New York Times News Service TOKYO — Finance ministry officials here are concerned that a steep rise in Japan's foreign-exchange reserves may increase speculative pressure for revaluation of the yen.

A key finance ministry official interviewed here emphasized his government's determination to resist any such pressure and retain the present rate of 360 yen to the dollar.

JAPAN'S gold and foreign exchange reserves, which stood at about $2.9 billion at the end of 1968, jumped to a record high of about $3.5 billion in November, the Bank of Japan and the Finance Ministry have announced.

Leading Japanese banks in Tokyo predict that the country's monetary reserves will rise to the $4 billion mark at the termination of fiscal 1969, ending March 31, 1970.

The balance-of-payment surpluses came about mainly as a result of a substantial trade surplus and a large net inflow of long-term capital accumulating from record foreign investments in Japanese corporate stocks.

"The Japanese government has no intention of revaluating the yen, though much speculation is being made about it in this country and abroad," Haruhisa Segawa, chief of the International Balance of Payments Division of the Finance Ministry, said.

"THE QUESTION of the foreign-exchange surpluses here," he continued, "is not the amount itself but a quick pace with which they step up. Japan's monetary reserves are not high as compared with those advanced countries."

Were odds weighed?

It wasn't by chance that birth dates in the last six months of the year predominated in the draft lottery the other day, according to a University of Southern California mathematician.

He figures that the chances of the actual results occurring if each date had had an equal chance are about five times out of 1,000.

He guesses that they probably placed the capsules containing the numbers into the bowl in a chronological order and that in the course of shuffling the capsules, the months tended to stay together. He surmises that the first six months may have been placed in the bowl first and they tended to stay together and be drawn last.

Do we hear someone saying that he's playing the game under protest? — A.B.

And more numbers

The University of Illinois at Urbana, confronted with more applications than facilities for freshmen, has also decided to do it by the Numbers. The least qualified will have the same chance as the valedictorian of the high school class to get one of the available spots.

The Numbers game has infinite possibilities for simplifying our lives and reducing human error. Take the matter of grading students. It's an onerous task for the instructor and inevitably it is somewhat subjective. The solution is simple. At the end of the quarter put the appropriate Number of grades, based on the traditional curve, into the fish bowl and pull them out one by one, attaching them in order to the alphabetical list of students. To make it utterly fair, you could start at the bottom of the list next quarter, even in the middle. What could be fairer?

Same way with women's clothing. The selection is ridiculously large. Too many decisions to make. Why the hem length alone is an agonizing ordeal for women. Only random selection will save American women from a breakdown. The result will be right, for it was decided by those magic Numbers. Personal taste and judgment are too prone to human error.

Another thing, Christmas gifts. Just keep tab on how much time your family spends on deciding what to buy for each other. It's unnecessary. Get out an inventory list from a big department store. Every item has a stock number; put 'em in a fish bowl. Your Christmas shopping is all done. The number of pulls, of course, also would be determined by lottery. Beautiful.

Repeat in unison. I believe in Numbers; they are better than people. — A.B.

The senator as poet

*Most wretched men
Are cradled into poetry by wrong:
They learn in suffering what they teach

—Percy Shelley

A few months ago everybody was asking what Sen. Eugene McCarthy was up to, and it was agreed that no one really knew. One day he was quoted as saying that he wouldn't be a candidate in 1970, which everyone assumed meant not a candidate for re-election in Minnesota. The next day he corrected the reports: He hadn't said he wouldn't be a candidate anywhere.

About that time we did learn that he and his wife had separated, and soon we also learned that he had been spending some time writing a book, "The Year of the People," which is an account of his surprisingly vigorous campaign for the Democratic nomination for the presidency. It apparently has enjoyed a reasonably good sale, plus some serialization, although some reviewers have diminished the book for its superficiality.

There were reports too that he was writing poetry, and, sure enough, an early fall issue of McCall's magazine, had McCarthy verse entitled, "Ares," in which he condemns "mathematical wars . . . of kill and overkill."

And now another of his poems, "Three Bad Signs," published in the New Mexico Quarterly, has won him a $500 award from the National Endowment for the Arts. He probably will return the prize to the foundation, which we trust does not suggest that he disagrees with the high value placed on the 66-line poem but his interest in preserving the foundation's funds.

We suspect that the social status of the poet in the United States is depressingly low — if you're a poetry lover — and it's probably still lower in the club of the Senate. Maybe the fact that it is possible to get $500 for 66 lines might give some pause in their disdain for the metered line, but more importantly, to have an accomplished poet in the Senate gives that body an extra dimension, which we find attractive.

The fact that the poetical senator happens to be from Minnesota may cause some distress among the citizens of this state, but there's every indication that the senator and his constituency have written each other off for one reason or another, but probably not over the importance of poetry in the Senate of the United States. — A.B.

Gesundheit

'Tis the season to be merry — despite a cold. Nearly everyone has one at least once a year, sometimes as many as five, according to the Minnesota State Medical Association. Even so it's not easy to catch one; close contact for several hours may be necessary before cross infection occurs. Low temperatures and inclement weather may help you catch one, but they don't cause it. But dry, hot air may. All in all, the single most important factor in catching a cold is being alive. Having one proves you're human. — A.B.

The rope trick in Finland

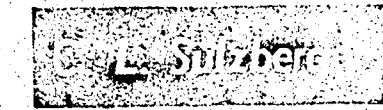

HELSINKI — If you except one arm of northernmost Norway, Finland is the only European country touching the Soviet Union which is not governed by a communist regime. Its social and economic systems are based on free enterprise; its politics embrace several parties; its trade is diversified; and even its heavy weapons are purchased from both East and West.

AS LONG AGO as 1949, in Stalin's menacing time, President Paasikivi, this country's great postwar statesman, told me: "Our position has always been and, of course, remains pro-Western despite our geographic proximity to Russia." Today's President, Urho Kekkonen, Paasikivi's protegee, insists that this is still the case.

That is to say, although Finland is linked by treaty with the U.S.S.R., in which each pledges to consult the other in case of war with Germany or its allies, the Finns regard themselves as neutral. Even Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko employed that word at the United Nations current assembly.

Kekkonen, an athlete and ski enthusiast who is in astonishingly fine condition for his 69 years, likes to say: "Some people in the West find it hard to believe that Finland can follow the policy it is following with such success and independence. They think it is like the Indian rope trick."

The president is obviously aware that his critics grumble he is too willing to follow the Kremlin's lead. He scoffs at this. "If we pursue a policy in our own national interests," he says, "we cannot abandon it just because others complain that it might be in Soviet interests."

NOT SURPRISINGLY, Kekkonen's main obsession is pressing for world peace, and he is naturally delighted that the SALT arms limitation negotiations chose Helsinki for their first session. Under Finland's constitution, the president is directly responsible for foreign policy, and he evidently relishes this aspect of his role. He says:

"In order to promote development of peace, Finland has suggested three moves: (1) — The creation of a nuclear-free zone in all Scandinavia; (2) — The demilitarization of the border area of Norway and the Soviet Union where the two blocs (NATO and the Warsaw pact) meet; and (3) — the holding of a European security conference in Helsinki."

Obviously, none of these suggestions is displeasing to the Russians who have urged similar ideas for years, either directly or through friendly capitals. But no one can argue with Kekkonen's contention that the proposals suit Finland's own desires.

Russia is neither historically nor currently popular with the Finnish general public. Nevertheless, the president's logic that geography and power relationships dictate exceptional friendship with Moscow is now widely accepted.

THERE ARE many legends of the exceptional courage and fighting prowess of these people but one heard frequently nowadays is about two Finns boasting in a bar. Says the first: "Of course, one Finn is equal to 10 Russians." Says the second: "Naturally. But what happens when the 11th Russian comes along?"

Kekkonen himself believes that there is a growing Russo-Finnish personal bond. He adds this rather odd example: "The Finns had very close relations with Lenin between 1905 and 1917, and several times they saved Lenin's life. The Russians are a sentimental people, and they remember this."

Despite the dour appearance of his rugged frame and naked-shaven head, Kekkonen is a sentimentalist. Although he does everything possible to insure a smooth course of Soviet relations, it is well known he twice tried to see the disgraced Khrushchev during Russian visits. He knew this was unpopular with Khrushchev's successors, but he had liked him enormously. Each time he was politely rebuffed.

THE ESSENCE of Kekkonen's philosophy is that there can be everywhere the kind of amiable coexistence prevailing between communist Russia and its tiny capitalistic neighbor; that it is not necessary to change ideologies or social systems to obtain friendship.

For centuries, he recalls, dynamic Islam fought dynamic Christianity. Finally, both wearied of religious war and grew to accept each other without trying to impose their respective creeds. Likewise, today, he says: "It is possible to have communism and capitalism coexist peacefully and effectively without either one changing its system — along those very same lines that developed over the years between Christianity and Islam."

Life on the expense account

WASHINGTON — Having an expense account is said to be the aspiration of every American boy who keeps his hair cut these days, but, as the following correspondence suggests, it is not a convenience without hardship.

"Dr. Swindler:
"I have just received your itemized expense account on which you attempt to hijack the company for $913.22 for your recent business trip to France. Your charge of $120 for 'lunch for General de Gaulle' is disallowed, as is your charge of $2.50 for 'roast chestnuts for Madame de Gaulle.'"

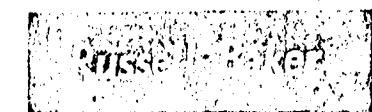

"A check of the newspaper shows that the day on which you claim to have been entertaining the De Gaulles in Paris, they were vacationing in Ireland. You also bill the company for $77 for 'cocktails for the American Ambassador.' This is disallowed, as the State Department informs me that the ambassador was on home leave in the United States throughout the period of your trip to France.

"The charge of $32.98 for purchase of hip boots required for four of Paris sewers' is patently fraudulent, but I am going to allow it. As the company has paid for these boots, however, they are company property, and I want you to mail them to me next week by parcel post. They had better have 'Made in France' written on them."

(signed) "The Auditor."

"Dear Con Artist:
"First you try to gull the company with a transparent fiction about De Gaulle and hip boots and the American Ambassador, and then you try to collect a cool $232.48 with no effort whatsoever to render a plausible accounting of expenditures. I've a good notion to take this matter to your department head."

(signed) "The Auditor."
"Dear Auditor:
"I am a very busy employe of our company. Our company does not pay me to write great fiction. Yet you undertake to criticize and defame me on grounds that the fiction in my expense account is 'transparent.' Are you an auditor or an expense-account critic?"

"If you want a perfectly plausible account of where the $232.48 went, I'll give it to you: French money baffles me. I'm always getting 1,000 franc notes confused with 100 franc notes. In all likelihood, somewhere along the way I accidentally left a thousand franc note ($200) in payment for a 100 franc ($20) dinner check. The other $60 probably dropped through a hole in my pocket. That often happens, because my pockets are in terrible disrepair."

"Now, will you please send the $232.48? My wife wants to go to the grocery this weekend, and prices are rising fast."

(signed) "Impatient"

"Dear Artful Dodger:
"Your explanation is entirely too plausible for your own good. Since you admit to throwing the money away, the company, of course, is under no obligation to reimburse you. If you care to submit an itemized accounting of how the $232.48 was really spent, the case will be reconsidered."

(signed) "The Auditor."

"Dear Department Head:
"May I have the next week off? I have been requested by the auditing department to try my hand at a sensitive, witty and perceptive piece of fiction. About that trip to Rome — can't somebody else make it?"

(signed) "Guy De Maupassant."

Jenkin Lloyd Jones

LOS ANGELES — A beard tries to tell you something. And I am wondering if, in this computer age, we couldn't come up with at least a semiscience that would help us understand what it is saying.

I have been out to the 20th Century-Fox lot observing Raquel Welch do a scene for "Myra Breckinridge," and I got this far-out thought sitting in the commissary, watching the beards go by.

I don't mean actors' beards because even where they are genuine they are phoney. That is, an actor making a picture doesn't control his beard. It is the product of his role or at least the director's conception of it. It tells nothing about the man.

BUT WHAT struck me, as I looked at all these characters who are in the movie business but not on camera, was the high incidence of facial foliage. It was running at about seven-to-one over what you would find at the Rotary Club in Cedar Rapids. And this is significant.

Because most people in show business are egocentric. And the egocentric man is inward-looking and concerned about his image. So when he grows a beard he generally does so for one of two reasons — to portray himself to the world as he sees himself or to make the world see him as he would like to be seen.

The big thing about a beard is that it is manageable. It is the most manageable thing about a man except his clothes. He can tinker with his nose or his ears only by expensive plastic surgery, and there is absolutely nothing he can do about the height of his forehead or the distance between his eyes. A beard is to a man what a hair-do and a wig are to a woman — an easy way to infinite variety.

That's why, as beards gradually struggle back into a degree of acceptability, we should learn to read them.

MY IDEA is to get a group of graduate students in psychology at some big university launched on a beard-reading project. First, they should break beards and sideburns down into — let's say — 25 classifications: Full, spade, Van Dyke, square, Franz Josef, Fu Manchu, Mephistopheles, Col. Sanders, Dundermyer, mutton chop, and so on.

Then they should go forth and interview in depth about 5,000 beard-wearers. Not only would it be important to learn their politics, philosophical bent, economic status and ambition, but also their self-image. Then the character profile together with the appropriate beard classification could be fed into the computer and a sort of this-beard-equals-this-kind-of-man pattern ought to take shape.

I favor this, not because I think that analyzing graybeards or even mature beards is necessary of itself. After all, these characters are well-known to their acquaintances. But they might give a clue to the young beards that crowd the campuses and hang around the psychedelic discotheques.

When Junior shows up at Christmas vacation with a beard, the family consternation is usually excruciating, and the question is not merely whether they dare take him to church, but whether they shouldn't hide him altogether.

BUT JUNIOR has the beard because he is trying to communicate. He may be saying, fundamentally, to hell with church and country club and your friends, politics and values. But the beard can mean a lot more than that. It can reveal who Junior admires and what he aspires to and how he sees himself. Or it can be a simple cry for attention by a lonely kid who hasn't found out how to be noticed in any other way.

You can't, of course, read too much into these things. When I was in the World War II Navy we had a ship's barber who trimmed himself up to look exactly like the devil. But on the day we finally got back to San Diego he appeared clean-shaven, in sparkling whites and rushed down the gangway into the arms of a dumpy little wife who, I learned later, had been supporting herself as an evangelist.

Nevertheless, you can make a shrewd guess at the politics of the kid who tries to look like Ho Chi Minh or Che Guevara. The sloppy, uncombed and unwashed beards in the student union basement tell as much as the dirty clothes about the search for primitive values.

A YOUTHFUL counterfeit of Michelangelo's Moses or Brigham Young could indicate a yen to be a patriarch and law-giver. And the dashing goatee and mustache may point to the self-image of the predatory and irresistible rooster.

In this day of deadly standardization beards may be no bad thing. After all, a man has a right to put a face of his choice toward the world. But we who still love our razors ought to be able to read the fuzz. Think what it would mean to frantic parents!

Dehumanization

Man's ascent through the millennia must be seen as a ceaseless striving to break away from the non-human cosmos. The age-long groping for freedom is an aspect of this blind striving to step outside the iron necessities which rule nature. The attempt to make human affairs as precise and predictable, as scientific, as a process in nature is an attempt at dehumanization.

The equation, human nature equals nature, if read from left to right, gives us not only the scientific approach of Marx, Darwin, Freud and Pavlov but also the approach of ruthless soul engineers such as Lenin, Stalin, and Hitler who experimented with blood, and treated men the way the metallurgist treats minerals.

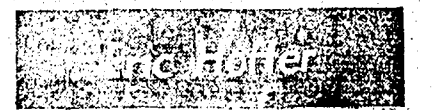

WHEN READ from right to left the equation gives us the magical approach, the belief that nature, not unlike human nature, can be influenced by words, and by other means which had proved their efficacy in the manipulation of human affairs.

Thus both the scientific and the magical approach postulate the oneness of man and nature, and both are agencies of dehumanization. The communists and the Nazis embraced both the scientific approach, of treating man as matter, and the magical approach, of trying to change reality by the power of words, by slogans and incantations.

In human affairs all genuine opposites reflect the archetypal opposites of man and nature. Life and death, city and country, civilization and barbarism, free and slave, God and the devil, and perhaps even man and woman are such genuine opposites. On the other hand, oppressors and oppressed are not true opposites since both are dehumanized.

The same is true of the natural and the mechanical: Both are the opposite of that which is uniquely human. You dehumanize man as much by making him "natural," by making him one with rocks, vegetables and animals, as by turning him into a machine. Nature, after all, is a perfectly automated machine. To build something in the image of nature is to build a machine.

WHEN YOU automate an industry you modernize it; when you automate a life you primitivize it. Man is God-like when he makes nature pliant and obedient, but he becomes an anti-God when he automates human beings and makes them pliant and obedient. For God turned malleable clay into man while the anti-God turns man into malleable clay.

When a society becomes dehumanized, fences are usually built around it to keep the animals from running away. The Albanian guide who told tourists that the electric border fence was there to keep Albanian animals from straying into Yugoslavia was using the word animal in a taxonomic sense which includes man.

Green Thumb helps city beautification

We are fortunate in Winona to have a Green Thumb crew working in our park system. These senior citizens have been doing a wonderful job in beautifying our park areas.

Green Thumb men are doing jobs that cannot be accomplished by the regular employees due to lack of funds or available manhours.

The following is a list of projects that the Green Thumb men worked on this past year: Cleaning up the debris at Prairie Island after the spring flood; brushing and trimming trees at Latsch and Prairie Islands; brushing on the south shore of Lake Winona and in the wooded area of Wincrest; assisted in brushing and clearing trees for a new road at the airport; cleared a path for the engineering survey crew for the preliminary survey of the new Riverbend Industrial Park; cleaning of the new Levee Plaza; and assisted in planting of trees in the Sunset and Hike additions.

The Green Thumb crew consists of seven men including a working foreman. The program is financed by funds from the Economic Opportunity Act and by local and state in-kind contribution. If the city had to finance these various work projects, it would have cost thousands of dollars in wages.

What a pleasure it was to see a whole page of our Daily News devoted to the pre-Thanksgiving message "Offer Thanks With Prayer" — Mr. Gorman's thoughts on The Lord's Prayer. The pictures illustrating the article expressed reverence and faith, the faith so sorely needed in these crucial times. My thanks to you and the staff for presenting this 'surprise' offering to your readers.

Will we always have fresh water?

By DR. GLENN T. SEABORG
Chairman, U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, in Phoenix Quarterly Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel

Our technological age is forcing the future upon us with alarming rapidity. And in the process we are being made painfully aware of the necessity of paying greater attention to the relationship between technology and environment.

Our basic environment, the earth, hasn't changed. But our use of its resources has changed enormously, and with little regard for the quality of that environment which supports us.

AT THE ROOT of this change has been our growth in sheer numbers. From one-quarter of a billion at the time of the birth of Christ the population has grown to almost four billion and will approach seven billion by the year 2,000. As a social animal, man has concentrated in urban communities and developed a highly interdependent system of making and exchanging goods and services. And through our advancing technology, we are producing changes in our environment faster than nature can absorb and reprocess them.

For centuries we have used the air and water with no concern over the extent to which nature could recycle the waste. Up to recent decades we have gone along changing things in our natural environment without noticing, sometimes even ignoring, harmful implications. We have transformed matter into energy through combustion.

We have refined, processed and changed the forms of innumerable natural materials. Now suddenly our streams are polluted, our lakes oxygen-starved and our atmosphere fouled with smog. This physical evidence of our neglect is alarming. And projections of what could come should we not take the proper action create even greater apprehension.

FOR EXAMPLE, project our water situation. Our need for clean, fresh water is increasing rapidly. Our current consumption, about 370 billion gallons per day, will rise in 20 years to over 600 billion gallons per day. While modern technology has made us extremely efficient in converting natural materials, we have shortsightedly overlooked the necessity of helping nature convert the waste back into usable, nontoxic matter. As a result, by 1980, according to a report by the National Academy of Sciences, we will be producing enough sewage and other waterborne wastes "to consume all the oxygen of all the flow in dry weather of the 22 river basins in the United States."

Ignorance and economics are no longer legitimate excuses for pollution. We are learning the hard way that the price of fresh water and a livable atmosphere is assistance to nature by adjusting and revising our technology so that it works with, not against nature, in supplying and resupplying our life-sustaining needs. Today we are finally beginning to realize that we do not want to "conquer" nature but to "co-exist" with it in a system where man benefits — but not at the expense of nature.

There are very few problems we face today which, strictly from a scientific and technological standpoint, could not be solved within a reasonable period of time. Technically, we have the means to control population growth and to produce enough food to sustain a much larger population than is expected by the end of this century. And we know how to keep our rivers clean and our air free of pollutants.

THE DEVELOPMENT of biodegradable detergents by industry is just one specific example of the sort of thing that can be done when we make up our minds to deal with a problem. We are building smokeless nuclear power plants. We can filter raw sewage before it enters our waterways. We can develop exhaustless electric automobiles, desalt sea water, build new cities and relocate much of our industry. And most people today agree we can, with some effort, eliminate poverty in this country.

What we need to do now is learn, as a society, to take the long view, to think along broad lines emphasizing human goals and values. We have relied on a crisis-to-crisis approach to handling our environmental affairs. We react to floods, to droughts, to smog, to traffic jams and to riots. But time and our rapid growth are working against us in this reaction technique. And most of our problems do not just come and go. They are growing in number and are cumulative in their effect.

Oahu escapes further damage

HONOLULU (AP) — The storm-battered north shore of Oahu Island escaped further damage early today when an expected monster surf created a critical 10 feet lower than predicted.

More than 1,700 residents had been evacuated as the north shore, on the opposite side of the island from Honolulu, braced for towering walls of water.

The surf peaked at 30 feet at high tide, not high enough to cause property damage. This was 20 feet below the waves that smashed 58 homes and caused $1 million in property damage Monday.

Today's waves had been predicted to hit 40 feet, the height they reached Thursday. A mid-Pacific storm some 1,000 miles northwest of Hawaii spawned the massive waves, officials said.

Sales volume up in October

An informal survey of retail business conducted by the Winona Area Chamber of Commerce shows that firms responding averaged a 6.6 percent increase in October sales from levels of the previous month.

Twenty-five replies were received in answer to the 61 requests for figures. Eighteen firms reported increased sales for October and seven showed sales declines.

Twenty-two firms reported that sales for October, 1969, were higher than those for October, 1968. The average of all such increases was 13.7 percent.

Surveys of sales volumes will be conducted each month, the chamber offices indicated.

Rest case against seven charged with conspiring to incite riots

CHICAGO (AP) — After 10 weeks of often interrupted testimony, the prosecution rested its case Friday against seven men charged with conspiring to incite rioting during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Thomas A. Foran, the U.S. district attorney, presented 54 witnesses. More than 30 were policemen involved in the undercover surveillance of the defendants during the convention in August 1968.

The government also introduced some 50 exhibits, including newsreel film strips and tape recordings of the crowd scenes and violent confrontations between police and demonstrators.

Two major witnesses—William Frappolly and Irwin Bock, both police intelligence agents— took up nearly two weeks of the prosecution case. Most of their time on the witness stand was spent in cross-examination.

The defense lawyers, William M. Kunstler of New York City and Leonard I. Weinglass of Newark, N.J., engaged prosecution witnesses in detailed questioning which usually was several hours longer than the direct examination.

Since the trial began Sept. 24 in U.S. District Court, the defense has made 12 motions for a mistrial and one motion they styled "stop the trial." Judge Julius J. Hoffman has denied all of them.

With a few exceptions, the government's case was built on public speeches or conversations involving the remaining defendants—David T. Dellinger, 54; Abbott "Abbie" Hoffman, 31; Thomas E. Hayden, 30; Renard C. "Rennie" Davis, 29; Jerry C. Rubin, 31; Lee Weiner, 31; and John R. Froines, 31.

A dozen or more witnesses testified they heard one or another of the defendants urge demonstrators to arm themselves or to fight police.

The defense attorneys' approach during cross-examination varied with the witnesses. At times, the defense attacked witnesses' credibility, at other times their memory. Frequently they have brought out that the witnesses did not see any of the defendants fighting police, throwing objects or doing any other violent deed.

The only overt acts in evidence before the jury are these:

—Hayden let the air out of the tires of a police car.

—Froines purchased a quantity of butyric acid, a foul-smelling substance deposited in two Chicago hotels during the convention. Three girls were arrested for dropping tissue soaked with butyric acid in the hotels. They pleaded guilty and were sentenced to six months probation.

Froines and his six codefendants, if convicted of conspiracy, could be sentenced to a maximum of 10 years in prison and fined $20,000.

Frappolly and Bock were the witnesses the government used to attempt to knit for the jury the conspiracy allegations. Frappolly testified that he infiltrated war protest groups and observed as many as six of the defendants together during the convention week.

Bock testified about more than 20 speeches and conversations involving one or more of the defendants.

The trial is a major test of the federal antiriot provisions of the 1968 Civil Rights Act. Under terms of the act, the government charges that the defendants "conspired to cross state lines with the intent to incite rioting."

It appears that it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove that any defendant actually engaged in rioting to obtain a conviction.

Weinglass has said, "It is the first law whereby the federal government is trying to impose criminal penalties for a state of mind... Every other federal law requires an act."

Kunstler has referred to the law as "crossing state lines with a state of mind." Both have called the trial a "political First Amendment case."

Prosecution testimony also was interrupted by some activities by the defendants and other defense motions such as one to adjourn it Oct. 15 so the defendants could participate in Moratorium Day. All were denied by Hoffman.

Delay in the first month came mostly from sharp exchanges between Bobby G. Seale, an eighth defendant who claimed he was not properly represented, and the judge. Hoffman had him tied to a chair and gagged for a time. Later he declared a mistrial in his case and sentenced Seale to four years in prison for contempt.

The jury of 10 women and two men has been sequestered since a few days after the trial began.

St. Louis Co. officials get extra week

DULUTH, Min. (AP) — St. Louis County officials Friday were granted a week to prepare their cases in a court fight instituted by the county public defender.

Involved in the case is the county's refusal to pay the defender's budget.

The continuance was issued by Judge James Murphy of Grand Rapids, who was sitting in Duluth District Court.

The judge is sitting on the case because local judges disqualified themselves because the county officials also appoint judges.

Murphy presided at the hearing Friday on Public Defender John Durfee's petition for a writ of mandamus that would force the county board to fund the public defender's budget.

The county board last week refused to grant salary increases included in the budget and substituted an eight per cent salary increase for Durfee's current staff.

The increase matches that of other county employees.

The board also refused Durfee's request for an additional public defender. Robert Lucas, who had resigned as an assistant county attorney, had been hired by Durfee.

C. Paul Jones, state public defender, appeared Friday in Durfee's behalf. He said state law is "explicit" and gives the county board no discretion in setting Durfee's budget.

Jones referred to a 1965 state law which he said requires that public defender's budgets, once approved by the state Judicial Council and certified by judges in the district, must be funded in the county.

Durfee's budget had been approved by the council and certified by the district judges.

County Attorney John Arko, representing the county board, argued that the county can not be forced to fund a budget unless it has the funds to do so.

He said the public defender's budget must be funded by the St. Louis County general revenue fund, which he said cannot afford the $66,500 approved by the council.

Arko said he also plans to appeal the state Judicial Council approval of the budget without consulting board with regard to the financial condition of the county.

South Viet soldier is still largely untested

New York Times News Service SAIGON — The South Vietnamese Army now has new automatic rifles, dozens of new helicopters, fighter-bombers, patrol boats and artillery pieces, and hundreds of new trucks and tanks, and it has undergone untold hours of training. And it has the backing of the world's most powerful nation. But the South Vietnamese soldier is largely untested in major combat, and the problem of motivating him is a critical one for the main-line divisions.

DESPITE all the efforts to implement President Nixon's Winona Sunday News 11a Winona, Minnesota SUNDAY, DEC. 7, 1969 policy of gradually turning the combat burden over to the Saigon government's forces, the members of those forces continue to manifest little willingness to do more than skirmish. The lack of motivation stems from many things, including war-weariness, low pay and bad living conditions. The primary factor seems to be the constant shortage of good leaders that has plagued the military establishment for years.

Data gathered by the New York Times during a three-week countrywide survey of South Vietnamese military preparedness show that while the recently expanded million-man government force is beginning to become more involved in combat — more South Vietnamese soldiers than United States soldiers are now killed each week — the brunt of the attack against the enemy is still being carried by the 500,000-man American force. U.S. units account for two of every three North Vietnamese and Viet Cong reported killed.

THERE ARE still entire divisions that have not been involved in significant fighting for months. Weeks have passed without even a brief mention in war communiques of some of the government units positioned along the invasion routes leading to Saigon.

The pattern is not uniform, however, for in the rolling hills of the central highlands, from Southwest of Banmethuot to the Cambodian border, a major test of the South Vietnamese army's ability to take on regular North Vietnamese army units has developed in the last three weeks.

A well-equipped, well-trained enemy force of at least two regiments — about 5,500 men plus artillery — has been maneuvering in a thickly wooded area along the border, apparently preparing for a full-scale assault on the isolated Special Forces camps at Buprang and Ducap.

A ROUGHLY EQUAL force of South Vietnamese troops was rushed into the area to reinforce the Green Beret-trained mercenary units defending the hilltop camps. In recent days bitter running battles have developed in the dense forests that surround the camps.

The first direct clash between sizable South Vietnamese and North Vietnamese units in several months is also, to some degree, a test of the credibility of the "Vietnamization" program. So far, in the opinion of the American advisers here, the South Vietnamese have held their own.

The beleaguered camps are still intact — although three smaller fire bases were abandoned — and the government troops have generally been fighting well. At least they have shown a willingness, albeit under considerable American pressure at the command level, to push out from the security of the camps to engage the enemy units.

THOUGH performance in other areas has been less satisfactory, allied commanders say they are confident that the South Vietnamese will achieve a reasonable measure of combat proficiency in good time.

Lt. Gen. Julian J. Ewell, who commands all U.S. forces working north and west of Saigon, believes that the situation is "beginning to jell." A number of his aides believe that if the South Vietnamese continue to make progress at the current rate, an American division can be pulled out of the Saigon area before the end of next spring.

Nixon scrambles for solution on grid plaques

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, scrambling like a quarterback about to be pounced on by a 300-pound tackle, has decided to give a plaque to the undefeated Penn State football team as well as the winner of Saturday's Texas-Arkansas game.

Nixon found the blitz was on Friday on the eve of his trip to Fayetteville, Ark., to view the big Texas-Arkansas game and to present a plaque designating the winner as the nation's top team.

At one point, it was announced the plaque was intended only as a memento for the winner of this particular game. It was pointed out to Ziegler, however, that the plaque reads: "To the No. 1 college football team in college football's 100th year."

Then, switching signals at the line of scrimmage, Ziegler announced Nixon would present Penn State a plaque to recognize the Nittany Lions' record of 21 consecutive victories, the nation's longest current winning streak.

She raises puppies to pay for college

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mary Leisner is working her way through college by growing pups. In a two-room apartment. Right now she has 12 Afghan hounds and an Irish Setter.

Lots of students find classes and lectures a chore; I find them a welcome relief," says Mary, a slender blonde sophomore at the University of Pennsylvania.

She started breeding and selling Afghans in August 1968 and paid a semester's tuition with her first litter. The pups bring about $200 each.

"Puppies need a lot of attention. My studies are suffering. So am I. It's costing about $50 a week to feed them."

The 10 pups are barricaded in the bathroom with a 3½-foot-tall street sign nailed to the doorway. Mary and her sister use a wooden milk carton to boost themselves in and out.

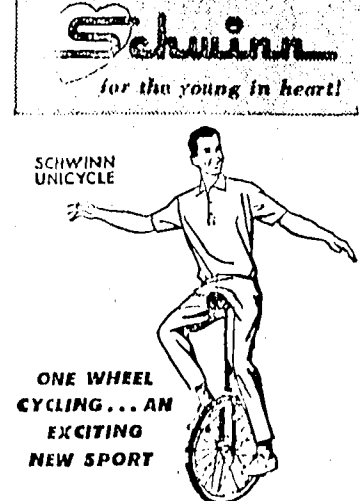

Some problems Mary didn't count on: One night the pups got into fabric dye and all turned green. Another time they closed the bathtub drain and flooded the place. And then there was the hamper raid...

The effective use of missiles and large guns to support combat operations is the responsibility of the Artillery branch of the U.S. Army. And at the present time, numerous vacancies exist for young men interested in training in this field.

Men working in the artillery field are concerned with the installation, operation, maintenance and use of such items as mortars, howitzers, rockets, and missiles. Assignments in the field range from small artillery units serving throughout the world to the Army Air Defense Command. This command, located only in the continental United States, is responsible for protecting the Americas from aggressor air attack.

Individuals interested in the artillery field should have a background and interest in electronics and mathematics, some mechanical ability, and practical experience in the operation and maintenance of motor vehicles. A preference for outdoor activity is also important.

Men meeting these basic qualifications who are interested in serving with an artillery unit either within the U.S. or overseas are invited to investigate the Army's guaranteed artillery training today. For more information, interested young men are asked to contact Army Recruiting Sergeant Leonard Carria at the Winona National Guard Armory every Wednesday between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Crack down on Roman traffic

ROME (AP) — Rome's new traffic commissioner presented his constituents with a bitter-sweet Christmas present today.

For pedestrians he banned cars from the Trevi Fountain piazza of "Three Coins in the Fountain" fame. For drivers, Carlo Rosato promised heavy fines for rush hour parking violations and more towaways.

Rush hour parking is banned but thousands of motorists have obtained special permits from the city or arrange for a freelance parking attendant to make a deal with the cop on the beat. The result is traffic chaos from dawn to dusk in the ancient city's streets.

State court puts legal ax into elm tree

ST. PAUL (AP) — The Minnesota Supreme Court applied a legal ax today to a 75-foot elm tree.

The court ruled that the tree, subject of a dispute between Minneapolis neighbors, is a nuisance and must come down.

The problem began in 1942 when Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bergin planted an elm sappling 15 inches from their lot line at 5437 Woodlawn Blvd.

Trouble was brewing in 1954 when Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Holmberg built a chain-link fence along their homesite next door. The tree was six inches from the fence but only two inches from the boundary line at that time.

By 1968, when the matter got into court, the troublesome elm had grown to a height of 75 feet, a diameter of 2½ feet and was wrecking the Holmberg's fence.

In a 10-page ruling, written by Justice Martin Nelson, the high court ordered the Bergins to hack down the tree at an estimated cost of $295.

In some cases, the court said adjoining land owners have held joint ownership of trees and hedges on boundary lines. In such cases, the court said, one owner can not chop down the tree without the permission of the other.

In this case, the judges ruled, the tree belonged solely to the Bergins and because a nuisance when it grew across the property line.

Said the court: "The law is clear that one cannot exercise his right to plant a tree in such a manner as to invade the rights of adjoining land owners."

"When one brings a foreign substance on his land, he must not permit it to injure his neighbor."

The Holmbergs said they had to spend $150 for a new sidewalk because the tree's roots wrecked their old one. And the big elm, they said, had caused an unsightly hump in their yard as well as damaging their fence.

Ghana's adventure into democracy is threatened

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — Ghana's venture into democracy shows promise but looming political and financial crises threaten to divert its path.

Riding on Ghana's experience are the hopes of a handful of West African nations, including Nigeria, where soldiers in power have promised what only those in Ghana have done: restore civilian rule after fair elections.

A Supreme Court ruling has unseated Komla A. Gbedemah, leader of the opposition National Alliance of Liberals which took a thumping in the Aug. 29 elections.

The decision, piled on earlier moves against the alliance, leaves the opposition virtually powerless, with only the free-swinging party paper Evening Standard to make swipes from the wings.

Whoever commands the government is toe to toe with what is described as the world's biggest per capita debt. The nation of eight million owes roughly $1 billion in debts left by Kwame Nkrumah, deposed in 1966.

Nkrumah's legacy fills pages from a towering—and empty—$22.4 million conference center to dozens of nonpaying state corporations.

Britain and the other major creditors have agreed to meet to decide on new debt arrangements. Ghana wants a rescheduling. The alternative is partial or total repudiation, dangerous to the credit rating.

Ghana's new government is having difficulties because, as one diplomat observed, "They have yet to grasp the problems at the highest level." Cabinet ministers are largely inexperienced in their posts.

There has already been one embarrassing misunderstanding. The prime minister told a news conference on a Friday he wanted to open up a bit with South Africa. The next working day, Foreign Minister Victor Owusu called in reporters to clarify the stand. He blasted South Africa.

In general, Accra and the hinterlands have loosened up. Visitors note a marked change from Nkrumah's tight hold and the security-conscious National Liberation Council that replaced him.

The nation's growth is at less than one per cent a year. Thirteen per cent of all export earnings go toward servicing the debt.

All range from 79 to his own 95, which he reached Nov. 23 when his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Ernst, Wandrey and his son, William and wife observed the occasion with him.

He has two more sons, Edwin and Alvin, Detroit, Mich.; six grandchildren, and 10 great-grandchildren.

Formerly of Elgin, Gust has been at Hillcrest 1½ years. His health was fairly good until July, and since then he's had to spend more time in bed.

Venue change requested for Prior Lake man

FARIBAULT, Minn. (AP) — A change of venue was requested Friday by attorneys for Harold Johnson, a 39-year-old Prior Lake, Minn., man charged with murder and kidnapping. The attorneys submitted two motions and indicated they intend to file a third, requesting that the trial be held elsewhere than Rice County.

Johnson has been charged in connection with the death of Sandra Meinke, 14, Webster, Minn. The girl disappeared from her home Aug. 31 and her partially clad body was found Sept. 11 in a wooded area near Montgomery, Minn.

H. P. Dilworth and John Connelly, counsel for Johnson, asked in Rice County District Court for a bill of particulars. Specifically, the attorneys requested information on the exact place the girl's body was found, the number of wounds and abrasions on the body, the manner in which the wounds caused death, and the names and addresses of all persons present at the time of the alleged kidnapping and of all witnesses the state will call during the trial. A second motion requested that Judge Daniel F. Foley order the state to produce certain evidence for the defendant and his counsel to inspect prior to the trial.

A change of venue motion, to move the trial out of Faribault and the county, was not filed but the attorneys indicated they would do so.

Judge Foley, of Albert Lea, set the trial for Feb. 3, subject to his ruling on the change of venue motion. He said he would hear on Feb. 2 any final motions that the lawyers might choose to present.

Sheriff Pat Smith said on Sept. 12, following discovery of the body, that the Meinke girl had been hit over the head with such force that her head was fractured. He added that a gag in the victim's mouth indicated the assailant had to silence the girl.

Also 15 percent boost in monthly benefits

Senate approves $100 Social Security minimum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has surprised even its most enthusiastic advocates of Social Security increases by voting a $100 minimum payment as well as a 15 per cent boost in the monthly benefits.

But there is a question whether the House will accept the portion of the amendment increasing the current $55 minimum for individuals at the bottom of the scale by 82 per cent to the new $100 figure.

The Senate was called into an unusual Saturday session today to continue working on the tax reform measure. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he was hopeful the Senate could pass the bill today, but Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., floor manager of the bill, said he did not expect passage before next Tuesday.

The $100 floor for Social Security payments was written into the tax reform bill Friday by the 48-41 adoption of an amendment sponsored by Mansfield and one of his assistant Democratic leaders, Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia. To finance the increased payments, the taxable wage base would be raised from the current $7,800 to $12,000 in 1973. The increased benefits, which would be effective Jan. 1 and go to some 25 million beneficiaries starting in April, would cost an estimated $6.2 billion.

The increase would give a couple a new minimum of $150 a month. Democrats handling the bill originally had planned to add a rider calling for a straight 15 per cent Social Security boost. This would have raised the minimum payment, for example, from $55 to $64.

The 15 per cent across-the-board rider was sponsored by Long, who said he was sure it was all the House would accept.

The House Ways and Means Committee approved such a 15 per cent hike earlier this week. When Long offered his amendment, Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., tried to substitute for it President Nixon's proposed 10 per cent Social Security increase.

This lost 56-34 on almost a straight party line vote. Then Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., contending the $54 minimum payment of the Long amendment was too small, tried to raise it to $70. He was beaten 46-44.

Before this vote, Mansfield and Byrd announced they would come in later with their much bigger minimum figure.

Their proposal won the votes of 40 Democrats and eight Republicans; 28 Republicans and 13 Democrats voted against it.

The Mansfield-Byrd proposal would mean added benefit payments of $2 billion a year more than the $4.2 billion for a straight 15 per cent increase.

Social Security Administration officials said 8 million of the present 25 million recipients now receive less than the minimums set in the amendment.

Byrd and Mansfield declared their proposal was the effective way to bring old persons out of poverty.

In 1973, the Social Security tax rate will have increased to 5.65 per cent each for employer and employee.

Each would pay $678 in that year on a $12,000 base, as compared with $440.70 of the $7,800 base stayed in effect.

The present tax is $374.40 with a 4.8 per cent rate. The Senate voted 53-32 for another amendment which would cost $1.9 billion a year by allowing parents to take a tax credit of up to $325 for expenses of a college student starting in 1972. Sponsors were Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo.

Push use of DDT in developing nations

New York Times News Service ROME — Developing countries should continue the controlled use of DDT and other organo-chlorine insecticides on their crops, according to experts at the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization here.

With no cheap, safe substitutes available, they explain, these nations will suffer crippling agricultural setbacks, if they hastily follow the example of the United States in curtailing the use of DDT.

THE EXPERTS' view emerged in the course of interview during the organization's biennial conference here last month.

In the sessions, several of the 121 member nations, who approved the organization's $70 million budget for the next two years and generally applauded its cautiously optimistic indicative world plan for agricultural development through 1985, asked pointed questions about the safety of DDT in farm use.

In response, a report to a conference technical committee said that DDT and its chemical relatives make up "50 to 75 percent of all insecticides used in developing countries." Unless the World Health Organization, whose scientists will meet those from the food organization here this month

"considers that the human health hazard of DDT use outweighs the benefits, FAO will continue to endorse proper, restricted use of organo-chlorine insecticides," it said.

Behind that cautious phraseology is read concern among specialists that the case against DDT has not been proved. On the contrary, the case for it, in controlling pests ranging from malaria-carrying mosquitoes to locusts to cotton worms is well-documented, they say.

WABASHA, Minn. — Lonnie Carrels, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Carrels, Wabasha, has received a life-saving award from the Rochester Exchange Club.

Lonnie is credited with saving the life of Rebecca Wolfe, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Wolfe of Wabasha, May 15. Lonnie, freshman at Wabasha High School, was out riding with his father and saw Sharon on the bank shouting for help. Lonnie's father, who doesn't swim, stopped the car and the boy jumped in and rescued the girl.

Caledonia's KLM diversified

RICHARD KNUTSON

CALEDONIA, Minn. — One of Caledonia's industries, KLM Manufacturing Company, specializes in making milk-handling equipment components but branches out into making stainless steel parts for physics laboratories, soil testing equipment for forestry laboratories, fabricating aluminum swimming pools, and almost anything along the machining business that the blueprints call for.

KLM started with two area men, Jerry D. McEvelly, Caledonia, and W. C. Lockhart, Brownsville, who were in the business here of manufacturing milk handling systems. They purchased their valves and other machined parts from Lawrence Klomp of Kenosha, Wis.

When Klomp's leased building was to be sold about 2½ years ago, he was persuaded to move to Caledonia and join the business. Thus KLM came into being.

CALEDONIA Development Corporation came into the picture by helping secure quarters large enough for Klomp's turret lathes, benders, punch presses, etc., for the welders and other equipment McEvelly and Lockhart had, and for a stock pile of steel, stainless pipe, etc.

A cabinet and woodworking shop built by the late Hans P. Nelson for his lumber company was rented. The building went out of use long before Hans Nelson's grandson, Peter, organized the Peter Nelson Construction Company. For a time the building was used as a subsidiary to a toy factory centered in a downtown building now owned by Leland and Helen Johnson. The toy factory was started about 1937 by Connie Nelson and C. D. Guillaume.

The factory building, at 400 W. Lincoln Street, is of adequate size for the machines and 11 factory employees. There is office space where Klomp reads blueprints to estimate production costs for inquiring customers. There is room for the bookkeeper, Wayne Swenson, and file and working space for Lockhart, the sales manager. He is on the road most of the time making sales contacts. McEvelly, a welder, works in the shop.

KLM MANUFACTURING is incorporated with Klomp as president, McEvelly as vice president, and Lockhart as secretary-treasurer.

Besides all the kinds of valves, elbows, tees, manifolds, pipelines from milker to bulk tank, moisture traps, gravity filters, feeder lines, milking machine claws, tank drains, teat cups and other items especially for the dairy business, KLM makes bumpers and auxiliary gas tanks for motor homes, parts for tractor cabs and specialties like machinery for ice cream packaging which carry designs, like Christmas trees, into holiday brick ice cream.

The company also fabricates stalls for milking parlors, adjustable mechanic's platforms, hand trucks, milk carts—diversification to keep the work interesting, also, repair work is done for area milk plants and creameries and for businesses and farmers who need machining and welding done.

IN AUGUST, KLM completed fabricating its first swimming pool, 40-by-70-foot construction of 3/16 inch aluminum. The metal was cut into sheets 4 by 10 feet which were welded according to design.

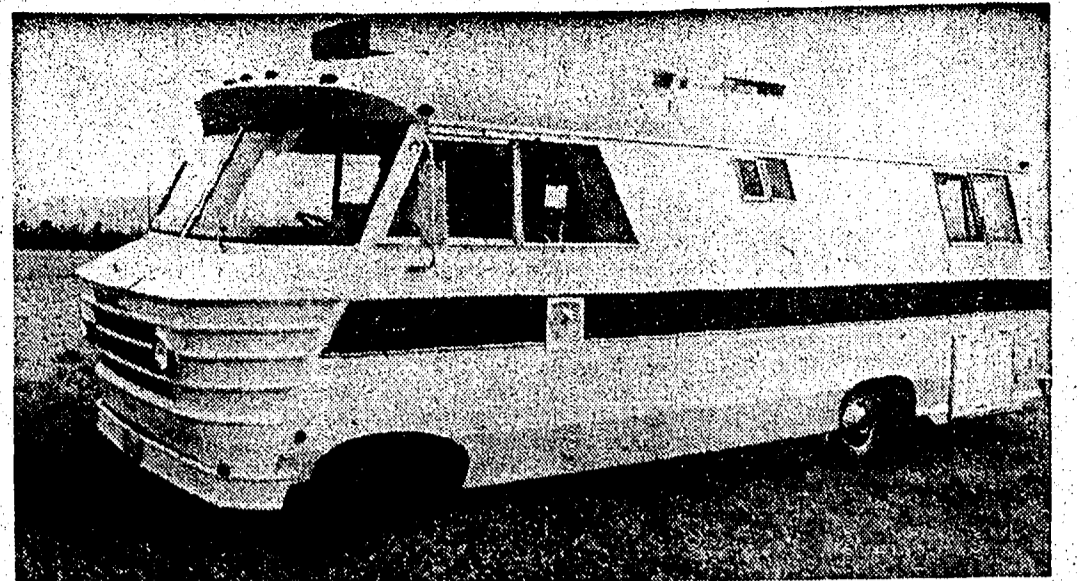

The work was done for Richard Knutson, Freeburg, originally of Dodge Center. In the construction business, he switched to pools after he and two associates began to design them. Operating under the name of Oa.kmount Manufacturing, Caledonia, he sold the pool fabricated here to Carroll College, Helena, Mont.

The welded sections, four of them 40 feet long and two, 30 feet in length, were loaded onto a semitrailer truck, hauled to the location and assembled there.

Knutson, a sheep farmer on the side, said that aluminum pools are a new concept and will require less maintenance and last longer because they will not crack. Because the heating and filtering systems are built into the rim of the pool, there will be no breaking of pipes.

Work will start soon on fabricating a pool which is to be installed at Rushford in the spring. Aluminum sheets for this construction are stored in a warehouse building that KLM uses.

Harvard students win agreement

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — About 75 black students who seized Harvard University's main administration building Friday came out with an agreement to have some of their demands met, but they also face disciplinary action.

The six-hour invasion was led by the Organization for Black Unity, which is made up of various Afro-American groups at Harvard.

The demands included one that the contractors on Harvard construction projects be required to hire black workers for 20 per cent of the work force and that black painters' helpers be upgraded to journeyman status.

The agreement, reached between the blacks and Harvard Law School Prof. Archibald Cox, calls for establishment of a joint committee of Harvard and the OBU to see that more blacks are hired.

Ernest R. May, dean of Harvard College, told newsmen after the blacks vacated University Hall that he will file disciplinary charges against the students.

He said their takeover violated a faculty resolution adopted last spring, which set up guidelines—and limits—for student conduct during any protest demonstration on Harvard grounds.

In Friday's demonstration, the blacks went into the building when it was opened for the day, asked an employee to leave, then barred the doors to others.

Dean May, using a bullhorn, ordered the blacks to leave the building, and warned them four times that failure to obey could result in either charges of trespass or citations before a faculty disciplinary body.

NSP says it will build 6 new plants in 10-year span

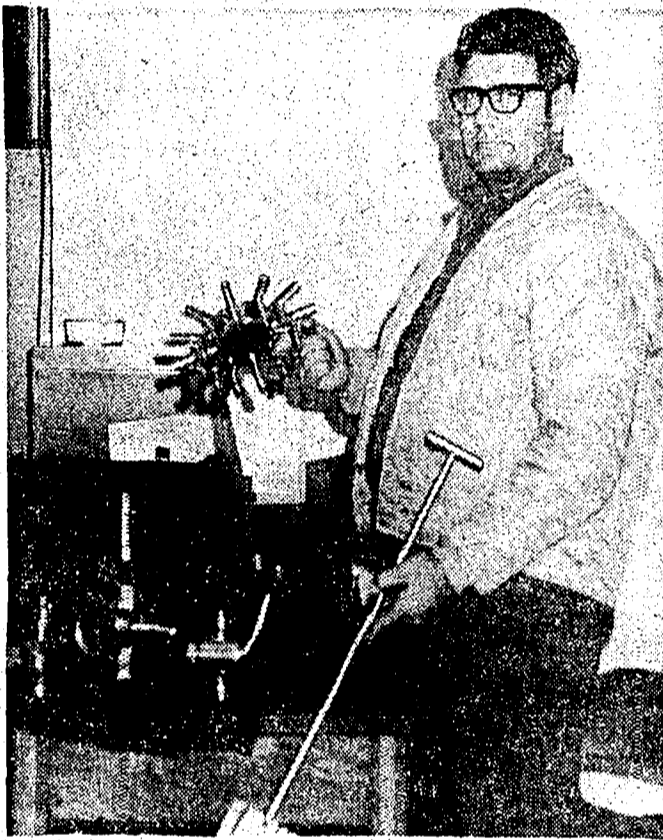

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The state's largest utility says it will build at least six new generating plants between 1974 and 1985.

And all six facilities will be about twice the size of the 545,000 kilowatt nuclear station nearly completed at Monticello, Minn., said NSP Vice President David McElroy Thursday.

McElroy said the six plants will be constructed at sites yet to be selected. These locations, he added, will be near the Twin Cities but the utility will break precedent by seeking public discussions on where they would be constructed.

The vice president said no decision has been made whether the six facilities will have nuclear or conventional power.

The six sites will be in addition to facilities currently being built, or in planning stages, at Monticello, Prairie Island and Inver Grove Heights, he added.

Hardin states beef imports to be controlled

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin Thursday said the United States will continue to administer beef import laws that are fair to both this nation and those abroad.

While pressure on the United States from foreign countries has increased on the import issue, Hardin said, "it seems to me that no one can justifiably expect one area of the world to take unlimited supplies when others are not prepared to do the same thing."

Hardin's remarks came in an address prepared for release Thursday night to the Fourth General Assembly of the Inter-American Cattlemen's Confederation (CIAGA), a private, non-regulatory organization.

The four-day assembly, first of its kind in the United States, has drawn livestock leaders from 20 Western Hemisphere nations.

Ma Ma Junce celebrates 105th birthday

BEMIDJI, Minn. (AP) — Ma Ma Junce was 37,251 days old Saturday and she is resting after her 105th birthday party Friday night at the Beltrami Nursing Home.

Actually, Saturday was her birthday, but the party was held a night early so that more people could attend. Ma Ma Junce didn't mind, she was pleased by the party.

Ma Ma, whose English name is Mary Bigbird, was born Dec. 6, 1864, at Rice River, near Mahanomen, Minn. She is a Chippewa Indian who spent most of her many years on the Red Lake Reservation.

Friday night's party featured the usual cake and ice cream but it was also an evening of Indian pride. A pow-wow included in the birthday celebration, with Red Lake residents dressing in their native costumes for the party.

And Ma Ma had a hearty chuckle when her picture was taken.

Through an interpreter—she only speaks Chippewa—she said, "There is a man taking my picture because I'm going to be 105. After I'm dead and gone they can still look at my picture."

Ma Ma is still alert and cheerful and enjoys visiting with friends. She likes to talk about her early days, when her family lived in a tent in the summers and in a wood house in winter.

New generation probes 'growing' concern

Bob Stanford
Before and after

'It looks better'

"Why do most men wear short hair?" asks Bob Stanford, West End Trailer Court.

"I wear my hair long because I think that I look better in long hair than I did in short hair. Just like a person may prefer one color of clothing over another because they feel they look better in this color."

"To me long hair signifies peace and love and this world could use more of both of these. One day you will be going to the House of Our Leader. How can you dislike my hair and yet praise a man who wore longer hair than I? I do not classify myself with Jesus; I think I'm more along the Santa Claus line (who also has long hair). I don't bring the presents that he does on Christmas, but I try to bring the happiness. "In the past 14 months that I have gone without a haircut I have noticed quite a change in people's attitudes toward me. My neighbors and relatives still realize that I'm still the same person I always was but that I need a haircut. Most people who see me on the street dislike me the minute they see me. These people I do not understand. No one should pass judgment on anyone without knowing something about them.

"People I don't even know tell me to get my hair cut. What if I were to tell them not to cut their hair. Would they listen to me? So why should I listen to them? Everyone is entitled to their own opinions.

"I have gone through an awful lot of hassle because of my hair. Just about everyone that sees me either stares, points, whistles, calls me names, or threatens me."

By VI BENICKE
Sunday News Staff Writer

Why are guys wearing long hair? The long hairs are laughed at, criticized, ridiculed and even threatened by those who are "offended" by their appearance.

So why do they persist in the fad? What are they trying to prove? What are their reasons for wearing long tresses?

Parents, as well as other individuals, are curious as to the reasons. To explain their motivations, these members of the new generation agreed to be interviewed.

Jim Grant

'It's my right'

"I have the right to look the way I want to and nobody's got the right to tell me how to look," said Jim Grant, Winona.

He dropped out of college at Winona State, where he attended three years, to play rhythm guitar for the Ferraris, a rock and roll group.

"I have always been headstrong," Jim admitted. "When I wanted to do something I would do it."

"Some people really hate long hair on guys. I don't know why they should get so up tight about it 'cause it's such a small thing."

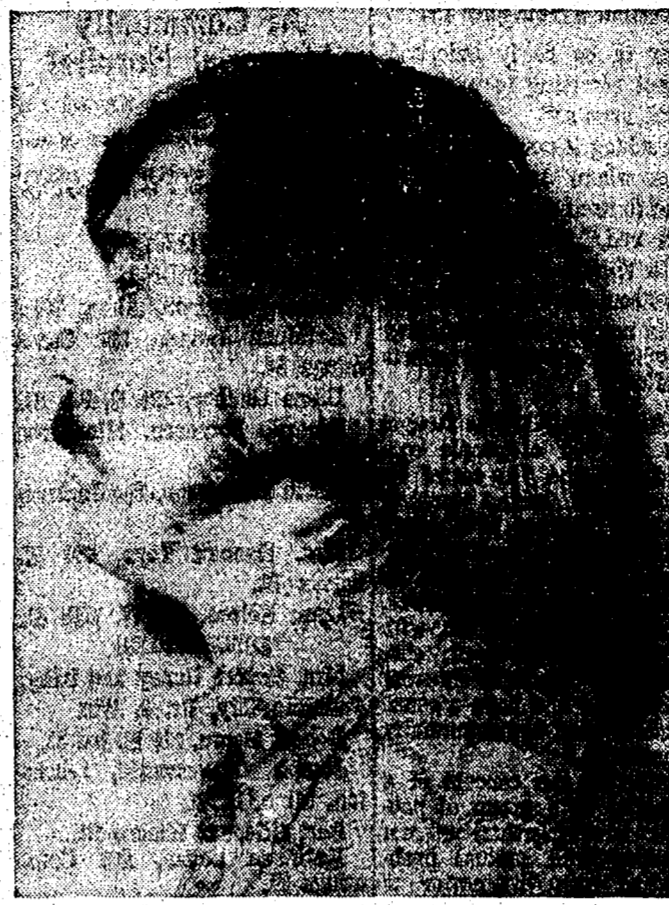

"Most people think they are good citizens; they fly the flag and do other patriotic things. On the other hand, they yell a name at somebody across the street just because he's wearing his hair longer than they think he should be. It's none of their business, anyway, as far as I am concerned!"

"I used to try to reason with people who didn't like my long hair. Now I just turn and walk away if anyone gives me trouble. A guy can take so much abuse, if people insist upon making my business their business for some reason or other."

"It's hard to get a job in Winona if a fellow has long hair. Anything sticking out over the ears is too long. I can't see any reason for turning a guy away unless he's working in a bakery or around food."

The last time Jim saw a barber was in the fall of 1966. He got it cut just before starting college because he wanted to take some physical education

Terry Skaar

Symbol of revolt

Terry Skaar

Terry Skaar, 22, a senior at Winona State College, has his reasons for being a "long hair."

"Long hair on guys is one of the symbols of an intellectual revolution which is going on, with peace as the ultimate goal; it signifies a desire for more freedom for young people."

Terry, a native of St. Paul, is majoring in psychology and social science. He is thinking seriously about teaching in a ghetto school "because that's where they need teachers who can help the students with their many problems in adjusting to their environment."

In this fast moving 20th Century, said Terry, our "free society" is slowly being choked to death with the ever present threat of nuclear power, the unjust Vietnam war, pollution of air and water, racism, crime, drug abuse, dissension, the pill, free love and parents advising, "do as I say, not as I do." Is it any wonder that there is a generation gap and that young people are revolting for something better? asks Terry.

"There should be understanding without any preconceived notions. In our society anyone who deviates from the norm may be accused of not loving their country or being an anarchist, etc. Contrary to common belief, the young people love their country as much, and maybe even more, than other citizens. That's why they are doing what they have to, their only alternative. The youth certainly should not be disenfranchised from their country for loving it and wanting to help better it."

Terry maintains that people don't judge individuals for what they are inwardly; they don't even take the time to find out. Long hairs are judged by their outward appearance, which is being very superficial. "Two admonitions, addressed to the prejudiced reactors, would express my thoughts beautifully: 'Judge not, lest ye be judged yourselves' and 'One cannot judge a book by its cover.'"

Tom Stoa

Why not?

My first reaction to the question of 'why wear your hair long' would be to ask 'why not?' said Tom Stoa, Winona Rt. 3.

"On reflection it seems so utterly ridiculous that anyone could be upset by the length of one's hair. But when somebody jeopardizes the status quo quite a violent reaction sets in."

"It must be admitted that a major reason for wearing long hair is that it is contemporary fashion. Ever since the Beatles rose to popularity it has been the 'in thing' to grow your hair longer than mainstream society wants you to."

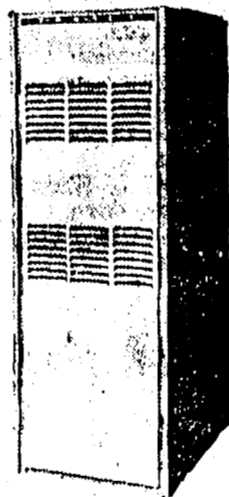

"And as society accepts one style, people will move on to another. This can be readily observed even here in Winona — the average hair length on boys is becoming a little bit longer month by month. Before very many years my hair will be nothing at all unusual and everybody will be wondering what the big fuss was about back in the '60s."

"Long hair is also a symbol of dissent and rebellion. As long as somebody tells us that we can't wear our hair as we please (a form of self expression, a right guaranteed to us in the Constitution) we are going to purposely grow it out to prove our freedom. Long hair is also political in another way in that it is for many symbolic of their rejection of America's status quo."

"We are trying to throw off the drab 'dark suit-white shirt-tie-short hair-corporate uniformity' shown by the older generation, trading it for what we hope to be a new era of individuality. We are folding, bending, stapling and mutilating our IBM cards."

appear to be fairly independent, not resorting to excessive federal grants." Describing a community as a "place where membership is an end to itself and not a means to an end," Dr. Stumpf held that in Winona "you can grow up without being prejudiced. This is not possible in a large city where everything reflects prejudice."

IF A COMMUNITY is thought of as a group of people concerned with the lives of its members and taking care of its general welfare with attention to individual freedom, Dr. Stumpf added that Winona, as well as all other communities, "should be concerned, too, with the people who do well; concerned that the high-achievers be recognized and have a sense of pride in what the community has produced."

Considering the concept of a community as a group of people who have a mutual interest in dealing with mutual problems and with the power to deal with them, Dr. Stumpf pointed out that Winonans enjoy an opportunity to have their community desires to be translated into effective action not possible in large cities.

LOOKING AT the community as an effective complex of home, education and work, Dr. Stumpf remarked that improvement might be realized in Winona, perhaps, with somewhat broader job opportunities appealing to young people. While recognizing the cultural opportunities existing in the community, Dr. Stumpf also saw the possible need for even greater extension in this area and expressed the thought that Winona might benefit from having an adequate facility housing a cultural center.

HE ACKNOWLEDGED that there may be existing agencies which might perform certain of these functions but added that there's a need "for people who have lived here, who know Winona's values, to collect information and talk effectively with state and federal people in arguing the case for Winona." He warned against any future planning being limited only to Winona and its environs and stressed the need for considering all factors in the wider area of Wisconsin and Iowa which have an impact on Winona.

MRS. STEPHEN J. Turille, branch top chairman, introduced the speaker.

The Christmas season meeting in which guests are invited to the luncheon is a traditional event for the Winona branch.

Three Winona colleges will receive federal grants for the College Work-Study Program for the first half of 1970, according to a weekend announcement by Rep. Albert H. Quie.

Funds pay 80 percent of the salaries of an estimated 247 students at the Winona colleges.

The College of Saint Teresa allotment is $18,621 for 93 students; the St. Mary's College allotment is $9,862 for 41 students and the Winona State College, $30,155 for 113 students.

Sheriff probes hit and run

Winona County sheriff's officers said Saturday they had a belated report of a hit-run collision on Highway 61-14 in which an unidentified car crowded another into a guard rail.

The report was filed by the victim of the incident, Paul Santelli, 18, a St. Mary's College student. Santelli said he was about 12 miles southeast of Winona, headed toward the city, when the incident occurred about 12:30 a.m. Friday. He said another car forced him off the road and then sped away. His description was sketchy and he was unable to give a license number of the offender.

Officers said the 1969 model car had about $600 damages on the right side. Santelli was unhurt and was able to drive the car to Winona after the accident.

THREE COUNTIES, Lake, Cook and Otertail, have turned down zoning completely, he said, and Pine County has delayed zoning for a year.

Approximately 130 people were present at the meeting.

Truck snaps off city power pole

City police were called to check a single-vehicle accident early Saturday afternoon, according to headquarters reports.

At 1 p.m. a tank truck owned by Burmeister Oil Co., 352 W. 2nd St., veered into a power pole and snapped it off. The accident occurred as the truck, driven by William C. Burmeister, 22, 403 1/2 W. 3rd St., approached the intersection of Highways 61-14 and 43 from the south.

Burmeister told police the brakes locked as he prepared to stop for the traffic signal, pulling the vehicle to its right and causing the collision. The pole, owned by the city, was valued at $150 but there was no apparent damage to the truck, police reported.

Mitchell gives solid personal endorsement to MacGregor

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — U.S. Atty. Gen. John A. Mitchell Friday gave a solid personal endorsement to the senatorial candidacy of Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn.

MacGregor is opposed for the Republican nomination by state Atty. Gen. Douglas Head. The Democratic candidate in next year's election is expected to be former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Mitchell, spoke at a $100-a-plate fund raising dinner for Congressman MacGregor at the Metropolitan Sports Center in Bloomington. He also held a news conference on his arrival in the Twin Cities area.

The U.S. attorney general praised MacGregor for being a legislative leader in the fields of crime control and civil rights. As a preface to his prepared speech, Mitchell called attention to a gift to him from the Bloomington Police Department.

The gift was a night stick on which was engraved, "To the attorney general of the United States, the top cop."

"I appreciate that no end," Mitchell said, "since as Attorney General of the United States some of your duties do provide that you be the top cop."

"And I think it's appropriate that it be so designated because I believe that the Attorney General of the United States, in that area and that capacity, should be a top cop and not a sociologist because I think that law enforcement is what we need in that area."

Mitchell devoted his remarks to three subjects:

—Cynicism in America;
—The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration;
—And civil rights.

Mitchell called cynicism an "alarmingly present disease" in the nation. He said this cynicism expressed itself in a despair that elected government "has lost its relevance to the aspirations of our citizens."

As evidence, he cited a survey by the national violence commission which indicated that whereas in 1952, 81 per cent of the persons surveyed said they thought voting was the most efficient way to influence government action, in 1968, only 55 per cent felt that way.

Mitchell says the Republican Party has to prove that government "can be relevant to the aspirations of the majority and the minority groups."

For this reason, he said, that administration "has been purposely low key in its public statements and in the presentation of its new programs."

"We don't want to offer more hope than we can realistically deliver," he said.

Mitchell pointed to the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) in the Department of Justice as the Nixon Administration's "most ambitious plan to stop local street crime."

He said the administration believes that primary responsibility for control of crime in the streets must rest with state and local governments. Mitchell said this policy avoids putting state and local officials "at the mercy of a Washington bureaucrat a thousand miles away."

Mitchell pronounced racial discrimination "morally, legally and socially wrong" and said it must be "eliminated if we are to survive as a nation of free people."

But he cited strong resistance to integration by school officials, community hostility and the undesirability of having judges and lawyers dictate educational policy, as chief obstacles to "instant integration."

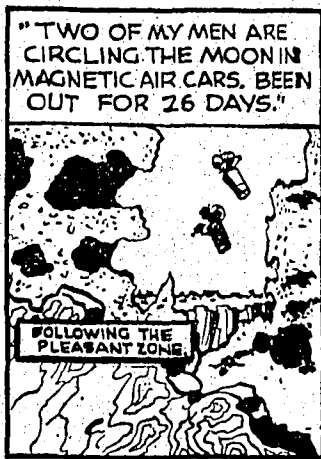

"As a result," he said, "a great many school districts under court orders have found themselves involved in impossible plans put together by well-meaning judges and lawyers without the benefit of an educator's experience."

To your good health Answers to your questions

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: My father was recently put on a Phase No. 4 Ulcer Diet. I am wondering if you have available any kind of menu suggestions. — M.A.P.

Ulcer diets are sometimes numbered, No. 1 being frequent feedings of milk and cream — when the ulcer has to be treated with maximum gentleness.

As the number increases, it means that more variety of solid foods is added. The exact progression varies — depends on who is handling it and what the patient needs.

Therefore I can't tell you explicitly what "Phase 4" means for your father, but I would suspect that it must be a fairly liberal one, including such items as meat, fish, or fowl (broiled, baked or roasted, but avoid fried or spiced); cooked fruits and vegetables with low fiber or seed content; no spicy or highly-seasoned foods.

I am sure his doctor has menus available or — more likely and easier for you to fit into your menu-planning — lists of foods which are allowable and of others which must be avoided.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What do you think about gold shots for gout? — Mrs. G.O.

These shots have been used for arthritis, but I would see no value in them for gout, which is best treated by changing the chemical balance of the body's system.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 10-month-old baby is not crawling yet, but she is up on her feet trying to walk already. I realize that many babies don't go through the crawling stage, but also have heard this affects coordination, and that babies who don't crawl are poor readers in school. Is there any truth to this? — T.Y.

The matter is controversial. Some studies are reported to indicate that, when a youngster was taught to crawl, coordination, and later reading, tended to improve.

It is my understanding, however, that many experts on reading do not believe that there is a relationship.

It could be, I presume, that there have been cases of non-crawlers who didn't read well, but the question remains whether this is isolated coincidence or cause-and-effect. I'm willing to keep an open mind on this, but so far I don't see why there should be such an effect.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother died at the age of 93, and was in bed for 22 months. I took very good care of her. She refused to go to a hospital. She said at her age nothing could be done, that she had lived her life and wanted to die at home.

Have I done wrong by keeping her at home? The death certificate said chronic myocarditis due to senility. Would you explain this to me? — Mrs. H.R. You cared for her all those months, and that was where she preferred to be. I think you are to be respected for it and certainly have nothing to regret.

She developed some changes in the heart muscle due to her age — you could very well say that her heart finally wore out. After 93 years!

In a hospital, drugs and oxygen might perhaps have kept her feebly alive for a few more hours or days. On the other hand, because she didn't want to go to a hospital, she might have died much sooner there.

No, you did nothing wrong. You did right.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I bought a package of figs, washed them and bit into one. I took a piece of broken glass from my mouth, but before I realized it, I swallowed the fig with some more glass. The glass was really crushed.

About two hours later I took two ounces of castor oil, because my husband suggested it for a quick bowel movement. I don't know whether the glass fragments passed on through.

Do you think there is a possibility of the fragments working through my body elsewhere? — Mrs. J.H.

No, the shattered glass will not "work through your body elsewhere."

The best first aid in such cases is to eat bread or other solid food so the fragments will become trapped in the stool and thus pass out without harm.

The castor oil probably did no harm, but I don't advise it. It could, because of its purging action, prevent coating the glass with protective food particles.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know when the change of life, or menopause, or whatever other name it is called, starts. Just what takes place, and how long is this change of life? — Mrs. R.T.

It usually begins in the middle 40s, occasionally earlier, sometimes as late as the early 50s. Ordinarily — and this is variable — you become adjusted to the change in a couple of years or so.

What takes place? The ovaries stop functioning, and there is a considerable change in hormonal activity. It would take too long to try to explain the whole matter in the column, so why not write for my booklet, "Make Menopause Easier"? Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy.

So many women would avoid much annoyance if only they would learn the facts about menopause, and what to do for the symptoms, before menopause starts, rather than after they've gone through a year, more or less, of disagreeable symptoms.

Our wish for a 'tasteful' holiday season

By MARY KRUGER
Sunday News Women's Editor

THE Christmas season is full of joy and festivity—and the perfect time to spread joy with something fancy and tasty to eat, too.

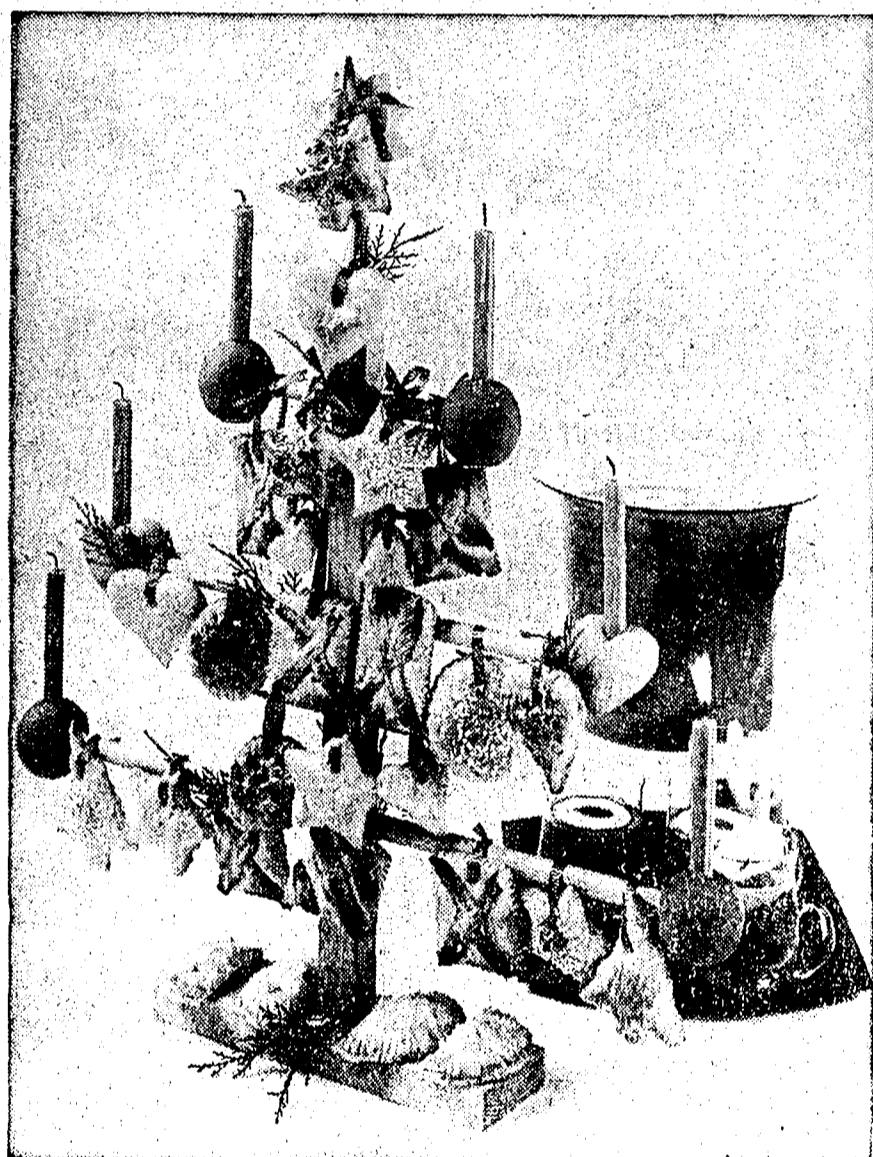

Gay as the holiday season itself are the many cookies, candies, pies, breads and puddings Winona and area homemakers are preparing for the busy season that is upon us once again.

To give our readers a sampling of what others plan for the holidays, we are featuring favorite recipes of our readers with the hope that a large variety of recipes will make the season just a little more happy and perhaps less monotonous for those who bake a great deal.

Granted, many of the recipes seem to be for use only during the yuletide season, but many of them can be filed for use at other times of the year as well.

A touch of candied sugar or cinnamon candies will give a festive look. Food coloring is also used for candies and frostings at Christmas but without it they are a welcome treat at any time.

Readers are asked to send their favorite Christmas recipes to the Winona Daily & Women's Department so they may be published before Christmas, our way of wishing you a merry Christmas and a happy holiday season.

Frozen Nesselrode Mousse

MRS. WARREN HAESLY

|--------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 5 egg whites | 1/2 C. rum extract |
| 1/2 tsp. cream of tartar | 2 tsp. lemon juice |
| 1 C. sugar | 2 C. heavy cream |
| 5 egg yolks | 4 oz. chopped mixed candied fruit |
| 1/8 tsp. salt | |

METHOD: In a large bowl, let the egg whites warm to room temperature (about 1 hour). Add cream of tartar to egg whites. With electric mixer at high speed, beat until soft peaks form when beater is slowly raised. Gradually add 1/2 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating well after each addition. Continue to beat until soft peaks form.

In a small bowl, with same beater, beat egg yolks and salt until thick and lemon colored. Gradually add remaining sugar, beating well after each addition. Gradually add rum extract and lemon juice; beat until they are well combined. Beat heavy cream until stiff.

Gently fold rum mixture, candied fruit and whipped cream into egg white mixture. Turn evenly and gently into a large serving bowl. (2 qt. size) Freeze until firm.

To serve, garnish with candied cherries and angelica leaves, if desired. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes before serving. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

FOR SUNDAY, DEC. 7

Your birthday today: Your coming year has a strong drift toward crisis and conquest in all matters relating to material values. Plans must be revised to fit harder conditions. Intuitive promptings become stronger and should be heeded. Today's natives often have premonitions of coming events.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your home and neighborhood this Sunday are infinitely preferable to travel or activity in public places. Local visiting may produce sudden tension and annoyances.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You must quietly consider the plans and schemes of mate or partner and the confusion and stress caused by lack of cooperation from strangers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Disagreement is so easy this Sunday. Avoid getting into squabbles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Friends and relatives are comfortable to meet today, but nothing else is in proper perspective. Pleasure seeking is expensive beyond dreams and produces little results. Frugality will bring more enjoyment later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): No matter how you look at it, the day turns out to be strenuous. Any trifle is enough to upset somebody around you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Tolerance can avert misunderstandings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Find a middle course. Avoid commitment wherever you can. Leave financial deals and vocational questions for the workweek.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Nobody is going to agree completely with any of your plans today, so make sensible compromises without complaint.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): For once physical expression is not quite as satisfying as purely mental exploration. Find a scene of beauty and contemplate its details and changes. Leave business alone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It is difficult to change plans to fit new conditions. Some people are not on hand to occupy their usual places. If you are asked to fill the empty spot in the interim, do so gracefully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not indulge in your usual habits this Sunday. Visit some less familiar locale and seriously play visitor.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your patience is of prime importance to your own success and those around you. If you must comment, keep it simple and go right to the heart of the matter.

FOR MONDAY, DEC. 8

Your birthday today: The coming year requires that you simplify your life, but with care and much planning. Whatever you give up is apt never to return. If you are to get full joy in the future, however, it is essential to give up many bad habits, and old attitudes, and old personal resentments. Let romantic interests develop naturally without demands for long-term commitments.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The week begins with a sudden release from recent tensions. Enjoy getting back to work. Catch up on matters involving strangers and people who live far away.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If you are trying to fulfill your obligations, good luck is more than likely to come along.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good humored cooperation is a lot easier today. Share your ideas so they can be tested.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Everything you do today brings better results.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Add something special to your work during this period. Enlist old friends and relatives to help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): News comes to you from strange sources.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get moving early. Travel is rather productive for new contacts as well as progress in creative ventures. Correspondence should not be neglected now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A favorable surprise is indicated in financial or material form. You may receive a favor from somebody who does not wish to be noticed. Take immediate advantage of all opportunities without fuss or quibble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your plans are subject to revision and sudden progress. Correspondence and personal visits take on stronger importance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you have persons doing things for you, give them a chance to function properly to see what they can accomplish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Old and new friends are beneficial and receptive to your projects.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Business progresses well. Your new idea may be a winner. Determine how you can apply it.

Town & Gown pre-Christmas program today at WSC

Following in the footsteps of Jesus and seeing, through the eye of the color camera, things Christ saw describes, in general, the theme of the second annual Town & Gown pre-Christmas program to be presented this afternoon at 3:45 in Somers Hall auditorium, Winona State College. The program is entitled "Strolls and Scrolls in the Holy Land."

The presentation is open to the public without charge.

FROM 3:45 to 4, Dennis Aase, a senior student, will play a program of organ music.

At 4 p.m. Dr. Lyman Judson, who has made two walking-filming visits to every section of the area that Jesus traveled, will illustrate his lecture with colored slides, many of which have never before been screened in public.

The lecture will be divided into four parts. During the first part, guests will be escorted on a short walk to Bethlehem from the nearby fields. Approached through groves of olive trees, Bethlehem is a small community on a hill. The most important landmark in the old City of David is the Church of the Nativity, built centuries ago over the grotto in which Mary gave birth to Jesus.

Part Two will be introduced following a three-day hike of approximately 75 miles to the village of Nazareth, cupped in a depression surrounded by hills. Here, where Jesus grew to manhood, Mary made daily visits to the town's only well and upon which the townspeople depended for their total water supply.

FROM JUST outside Nazareth, Jesus could see snow-capped Mount Hermon, the source of the River Jordan. Descending from the top of the nearly ten thousand-foot mountain, melted snow water flows only ten miles before reaching the Sea of Galilee, more than six hundred feet below sea level. In this region Jesus did much of His teaching.

Part Three follows Jesus who, near the end of His ministry walked or rode on a donkey to Jerusalem. It will include Dome of the Rock, the Garden of Gethsemane and Golgotha.

THE LECTURER will also escort the guests along the desert highway that plunges down from Jerusalem to 10,000-year-old Jericho and the Dead Sea, including visits to the inn to which it is said, the Good Samaritan brought the man who had fallen among robbers; Mount of Temptation; the Dead Sea and the caves in which were hidden many of the so-called Dead Sea Scrolls. He'll show scroll fragments.

The final 15-minute portion of the program will be under the direction of Walter Hinds of the Y-Teens to entertain older adults

Friday evening members of the Y-Teens from the YWCA will present a skit for senior citizens at the Older Adult Center, Valley View Tower. The program is scheduled to begin at 7:30 after which refreshments will be served and members can enjoy informal card playing.

Wednesday, older adults who have preregistered will attend the annual Jaycee Christmas dinner, to be held at the First Congregational Church.

Slag day will be on Monday and games day Tuesday, with the Mmes. Delbert Frahm and Pearl Brehm taking care of registration, and the Mmes. Amanda Wanek, Gertrude Phillips, Marie Beck, Elizabeth Thompson and Vern Smelser on the lunch committee.

The newly organized choral group will meet with Mrs. Marguerite Pace, director, and Mrs. Helen Foreman, accompanist, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. The advisory board will be meeting at 2 p.m. Friday and Kard & Klatter Klub will also be held Friday.

Thursday afternoon Mrs. Lester Stevens gave a talk on the Holy Land, and showed slides which she took on her trip there four years ago.

music department of Winona State College. He will sing Christmas carols, then lead the audience in group singing.

Annual holiday concert to be Thursday at CST

The annual holiday concert department of music will be given in the college auditorium of the College of Saint Teresa at 8 p.m. Thursday. The concert is open to the public. There will be no charge.

A unique feature of the 1969 holiday concert will be the unusual amount of variety in media and style. Music from the Renaissance to the present time will be performed by solo singers and pianists and by wind, string and vocal ensembles. Appearing for the first time will be the campus string quartet, established this year by Sister Genevieve Speltz, and a consort of recorders directed by Dr. Donald Echelard.

Members of the consort have been selected from students at the college who are preparing to teach at the elementary level.

Opening the holiday concert will be the campus string quartet playing "Quartet in F Major" (K.370) by Mozart, with movements Allegro, Adagio and Rondo. Members of the quartet are Helen Winston, violin; Bernadette Schaefer, violin; Sister Genevieve Speltz, viola, and Alfred Speltz, cello.

A group of selections by the Teresian consort will follow. Included will be "Greensleeves" (1580), an arrangement from William Ballet's manuscript Lute Book, descant and tenor.

"Rustic Song" (from the Peasant cantata), Bach, two descants.

"Allegro," Mozart; "Adagio" and "Allegro" from Concerti, opus 6, Corelli, two descants and treble.

"Now What Is Love," Jones (from the Second Book of Songs and Ayres, 1601), soprano, two descants, treble and tenor.

Members of the Teresian consort are Ann Foster, soprano, Evansville, Ind.; Sister Anne Marie Steffes, O.S.F., Rochester, Minn., descant; Constance Mayer, descant, Shakopee, Minn.; Patricia Leon, treble, Bogota, Colombia, South America; and Dr. Donald J. Echelard, tenor.

Pianist Teresa O'Connor, New Rockford, N.D., will play three solos: "Allegretto," "Andante," both by Shostakovich, and "La Soiree Dans Grenade," Debussy. Miss O'Connor studies with Dr. Elizabeth Hollway.

Ann Foster, soprano, Evansville, Ind., will sing three selections of Faure, "Clair de Lune," "Après un Reve," and "Automne." Miss Foster studies voice with Sister Lalonde Ryan and Mrs. Bernard Johansen. Accompanying Miss Foster will be Deborah Rausch, Bismarck, N.D.

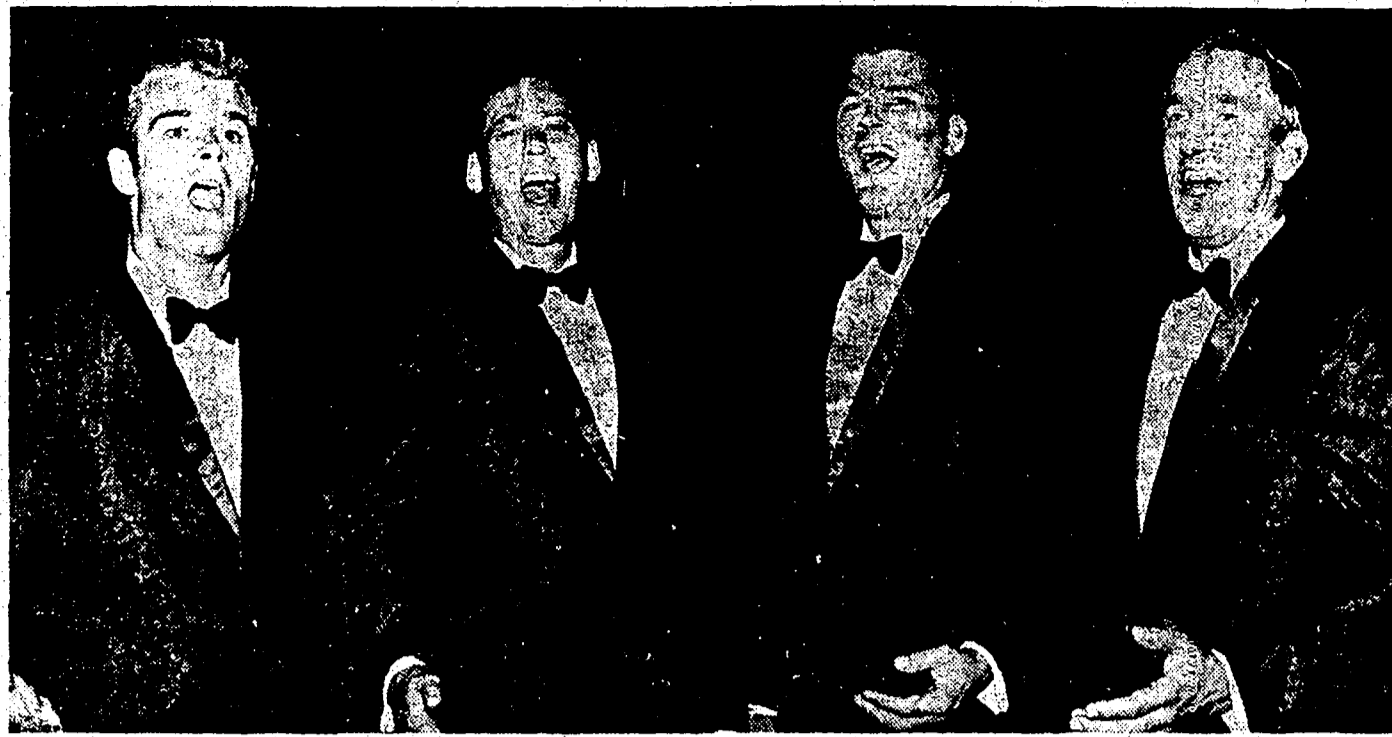

Three selections will be presented by pianist Deborah Rausch: "The Cat and the Mouse," Copland; "A Short Story," Kabalevsky, and "Polonaise," MacDowell. Miss Rausch studies piano with Sister M. Ethelreda Fisch.

Soprano soloist, Sister Cecily Schroeffer, O.S.F., will sing Barber's "Hermit Songs," "The Praises of God," "The Desire for Hermitage," "The Monk and His Cat" and "Sea-Snatch." Sister Anne Marie Steffes will accompany Sister Cecily.

Final selection of the holiday concert will be "A Ceremony of Carols," Britten, by the triple trio. Included will be "Procession," "Wolcum Yole!" "There is No Rose," "Balulalow," "This Little Babe," "Deo Gracias," and "Recession." Mrs. Bernard Johansen prepared the Triple Trio for the Holiday Concert.

Members of the Triple Trio are: Soprano, Victoria Birnbaum, Minneapolis; Ann Foster, Evansville, Ind., and Deborah Nolan, Austin, Minn.; second soprano: Joan Ellen Anderson, Portage, Wis.; Anne Pierce, Crookston, Minn., and Anne Wolf, Burnsville, Minn.; alto: Anne Hrabec, Rochester, Minn.; Mary Kay Karasch, Mauston, Wis., and Constance Moe, Fargo, N.D.

THE BUTTERCHORDS . . . A group from Barron, Wis., who call themselves, the Butterchords, will be featured at the 14th annual Barber Shop Parade Saturday at 8:01 p.m. at the Winona Junior High School Auditorium. Members of the Butterchords are John Syndergaard, lead; Don Ellefson, tenor; Jim Forsman, baritone, and Ed Thompson, bass. Tickets are available at both Ted Maier Drug Stores, Farrells Barber Shop and from members of SPEBSQSA, the sponsoring group.

Only a preview? You must be kidding: Rams' Allen, Vikings' Grant

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It may be only a preview of more important things to come, but you'll get a strong argument from a couple of guys if you think there'll be any "holding back" in today's slam-bang collision between the Los Angeles Rams and the Minnesota Vikings.

In reality, there's nothing more than prestige, pride and a couple of lengthy winning streaks at stake since both teams already have wrapped up divisional titles, setting up a Dec. 27 showdown between the two for the National Football League's Western Conference title.

But, from the way both Viking Coach Bud Grant and Ram boss George Allen are talking, today's meeting sounds like the REAL thing . . . not just a preview.

"We'll play to win and play tough," barked Allen, whose team hasn't been beaten in 11 games this season.

"You don't improve by sitting on the bench or taking things easy. We'll play this game like we've played each one the past four years . . . and I'm sure the Vikings will play the same way."

"We anticipate a rugged contest," said Grant. "The Rams have the best record in the league, they're undefeated in 11 games and they're certainly the best team we've played all year."

Meanwhile, Dallas, only divisional leader that hasn't sewed up a championship, should claim the Capitol crown easily today against Pittsburgh, which has lost 10 straight since an opening triumph.

Second-place Washington, which travels to Philadelphia, has an outside chance of overtaking the Cowboys—but one more Dallas victory, or a Redskins defeat, will send the Cowboys against Cleveland's Century Division champs for the Eastern Conference title Dec.

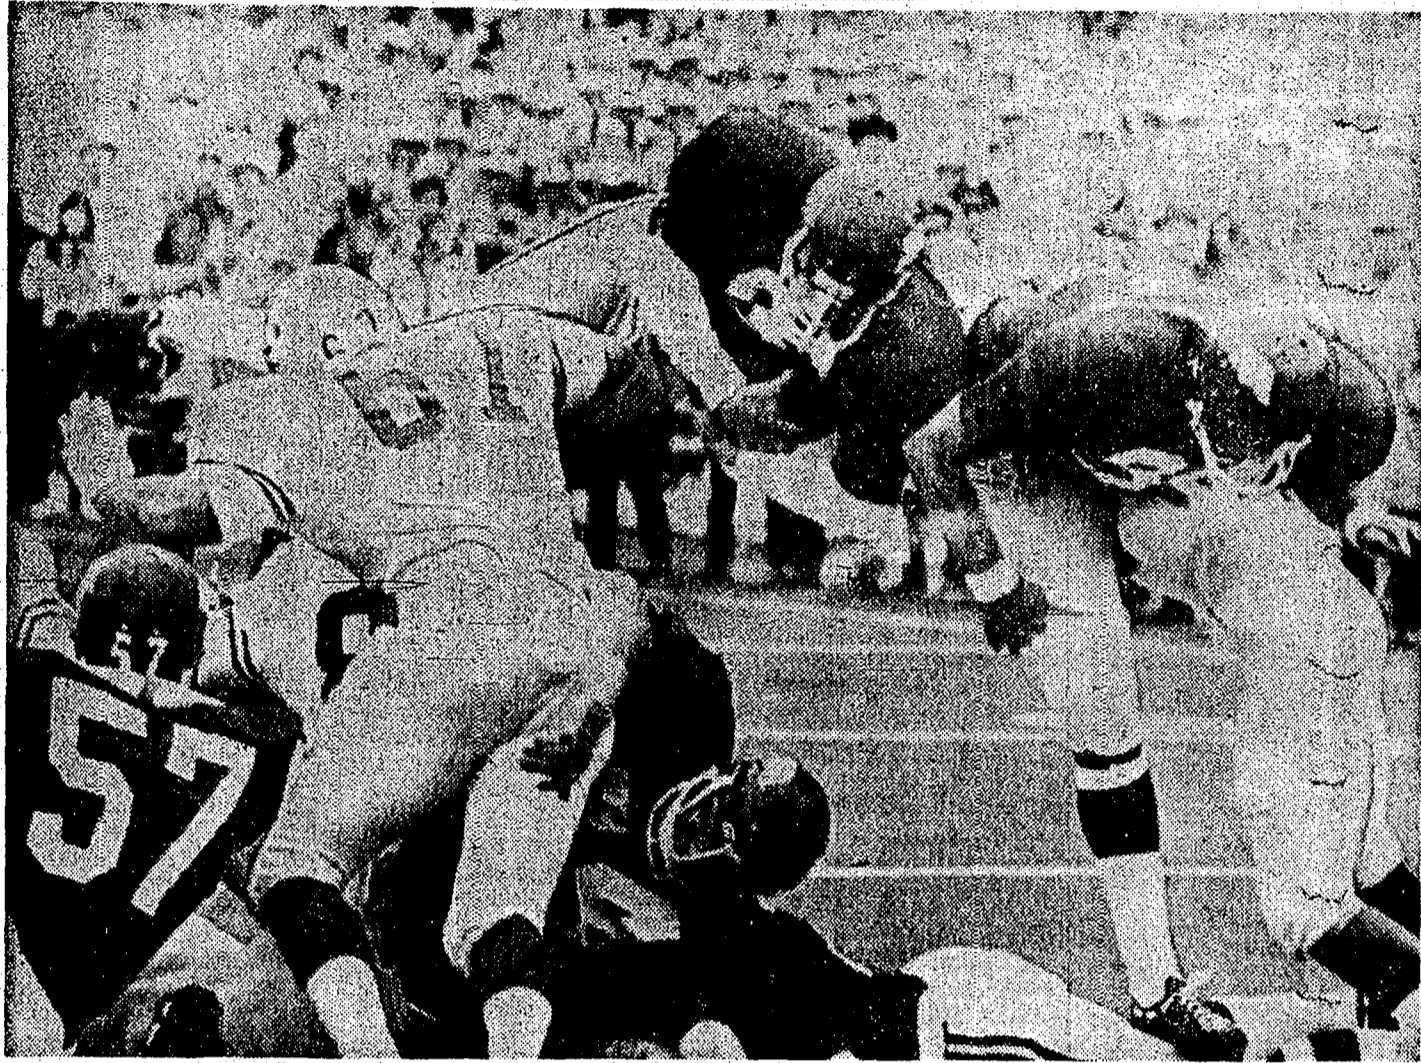

28. In other games today, Green Bay travels to Cleveland, Detroit goes to Baltimore, St. Louis is at New York and Atlanta plays host to New Orleans. San Francisco entertained the Chicago Bears this afternoon. In the American Football League today, it's Boston at San Diego, Buffalo at Kansas City, Cincinnati at Oakland and Denver at Miami. The New York Jets were at Houston this afternoon.

The Rams-Viking clash not only marks the first time in league history that two teams have had such lengthy winning streaks on the line during a regular season game, but also matches up LA quarterback Roman Gabriel against Joe Kapp and the Rams' Fearsome Foursome against Minnesota's Purple Gang.

The Fearsome Foursome—led defense is the best in the league at dumping quarterbacks (47 for 370 yards), but the Purple Gang is a close second (45 for 371 yards). The Vikings lead the league in defense and rank first in pass interceptions with 25. But Gabriel has been intercepted only three times—lowest in the league—and Minnesota's Bobby Bryant (the NFL's leading interceptor) was a doubtful starter.

Dallas was expected to have all of its starters in healthy condition for the first time in weeks, and that should be all the Cowboys need for their third straight Capitol Division title.

ARKANSAS SCORES . . . Arkansas tailback Bill Burnett leaps past Texas linebacker Glen Halsell (67) to score in early first period action of championship game in Fayetteville. A Texas fumble set up the touchdown. (AP Photofax)

Bruins topple Gophers 72-71 in overtime

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Henry Bibby connected on a jump shot from the edge of the key with 44 seconds left to play and handed the fourth-ranked UCLA Bruins a 72-71 overtime basketball victory over the inspired Minnesota Gophers Saturday.

The Bruins sent the game into overtime when Sidney Wicks tipped in a shot with two seconds to play to tie the game at 68-68.

The Gophers, who led UCLA by as many as seven points with almost six minutes to play, had the ball with 23 seconds remaining in the regulation, but Larry Mikán threw the ball out of bounds on an attempted pass to Larry Overski.

John Vallely, leading UCLA with 21 points, scored the first overtime basket with 4:50 remaining. Ollie Shannon, Minnesota's leading scorer with 29 points, hit a jump shot at 1:27 and sank a free throw as the Gophers took a 71-70 lead.

Both teams missed shots before Bibby connected, and Shannon missed a jump shot attempt from the free throw line with ten seconds left to play.

Thomas leads 49ers to win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rookie running back Jimmy Thomas exploded for two 75-yard touchdowns and Bill Tucker added three more scores, leading the San Francisco 49ers to a 42-21 NFL victory over the Chicago Bears Saturday.

Thomas, a 22-year-old speedster from Texas-Arlington, first scored near the end of the second quarter when he broke through the left side of the Chicago line, shot past Chicago cornerback Joe Taylor and safety Dick Daniels and dashed 75 yards to the end zone.

It was the longest 49er run from scrimmage in 11 years, but Thomas was far from through.

Texas gambles to nip Arkansas 15-14

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Guffy James Street bolted 42 yards for a touchdown and pulled off a fantastic fourth down gamble Saturday to rally top-ranked Texas to a 15-14 victory over number two rated Arkansas, giving the Longhorns the South west Conference championship, a Cotton Bowl berth and a possible national title.

Arkansas' frenzied Razorbacks had to settle for the bitter-sweet consolation prize—a rate with Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl.

The pulsating battle which saw Texas rally for 15 points in the final quarter after trailing 14-0 through three rugged quarters was witnessed by President Nixon, some 50 million persons on national television and a jammed 44,000 persons in Razorback Stadium.

Texas, now undefeated in its last 19 games, will meet Notre Dame New Year's Day in the Cotton Bowl. Street, a 175-lb. senior quarterback slapped Texas to life with a 42-yard touchdown early in the fourth quarter when it appeared the Longhorns were destined to be defeated by the scrappy Razorbacks.

The winning touchdown was set up on a fourth and three situation at the Texas 43. Street called time out to discuss strategy with Texas coach Darrell Royal. The Longview, Texas product faked into the line, dropped back and found end Randy Peschel behind Arkansas' Gary Moore. Peschel leaped and snared the ball before he tumbled out of bounds on the Arkansas 13.

Ted Koy bulled 11 yards and Jim Bertelsen crashed across for the tying score from two yards out with 3:59 to play. Happy Feller kicked the winning point.

BLAIR, Wis. (Special)—Andy Reitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex B. Reitz, Blair, was a member and the captain of the Lawrence University cross-country team, which finished sixth among 10 Midwest Conference Schools.

Reitz, a senior, finished 32nd in a field of 70 conference runners at the Midwest Meet in Chicago. He was one of three letter-winners who returned.

Packers will continue youth movement

CLEVELAND (AP) — Green Bay will be using youth today in hope of frustrating the Cleveland Browns' desire to settle some old scores.

The National Football League won't have any bearing on the season's title outcome. The Packers have been eliminated from Central Division title consideration, and Cleveland has wrapped up the Century Division crown.

That frees Packer coach

Phil Bengtson to continue to try out his ever-younger lineup.

With Bart Starr sidelined with shoulder injuries, center Ken Bowman out with a broken hand, and Dick Himes likely to replace veteran tackle Forrest Gregg, Green Bay is left with two starters over 30—Boyd Dowler and Carroll Dale, both pass receivers.

"These young fellows are all enthusiastic," Bengtson said about his sophomores.

"Our main goal is to win Sunday, but we're hoping to give our young people more exposure."

The Browns are hoping to settle some grievances with the annoying Packers. Green Bay hasn't allowed Cleveland to win a game in their last six meetings.

Starr, then in battle fettle, turned Travis Williams loose on the Browns in August, and Green Bay swept to a 27-17 victory.

In 1967, then-rockie Williams hustled a pair of kick-off returns to the end zone in Green Bay's embarrassing 55-7 conquest of the Browns.

He wasn't much help in 1968, but is now one of Green Bay's blessings.

This season, Williams is Green Bay's top rusher, gaining 403 yards in 98 carries. He's the No. 3 pass receiver, catching 20 for 182 yards.

He is the club's touchdown leader, having scored six.

WSC tops Chicago five; Redmen topple 92-66

Besonen hits 26 points in third victory

By DAN NYSETH
Sunday News Sports Writer

Winona State College Saturday night scored its third consecutive basketball victory of the season, humbling Chicago State 61-45 at Memorial Hall.

The Warriors had little trouble, rebounding quickly from a 3-0 deficit to score the next 13 points of the game.

THAT SPURT set the complexion as Ron Ecker's Warriors controlled the contest throughout, placing two men in double figures in the process.

After building the margin to 29-17 at halftime, the Warriors rapidly turned it into a rout after intermission.

Winona State scored the first nine points after intermission to open the margin to 38-17 and maintained leads of 20 or more points through most of the second half.

It was only after both coaches had cleared their benches that Chicago State was able to cut into the lead, trimming it to the final 16 point margin near the buzzer.

The big gun for the Warriors was Don Besonen, who led the early onslaught along with Steve Protsman. Besonen flipped in 26 points to lead both teams.

PROTSMAN, after scoring six points early in the game, finished as the Warrior runnerup with 11.

The only Chicago State cager to hit double figures, was Sam Kiddle with 19 points.

In the final analysis, it was again the scrappy and stingy defense that has characterized Ecker teams that played a major role in the victory.

It was proved in the first half when the Warriors allowed the visitors a quick lead, then shut them off effectively for the duration.

The Warriors dropped behind 3-0 at the outset only to storm back and stake their claim to victory.

Trailing 3-2, Protsman slipped in a field goal for a 4-3 Winona State lead and the Warriors never again trailed.

They quickly jumped the margin to 10-3 and then to 13-3, Besonen and Protsman each scoring six points in that spurt.

THE BIGGEST margin of the first 20 minutes was 25-11 on a field goal by Besonen.

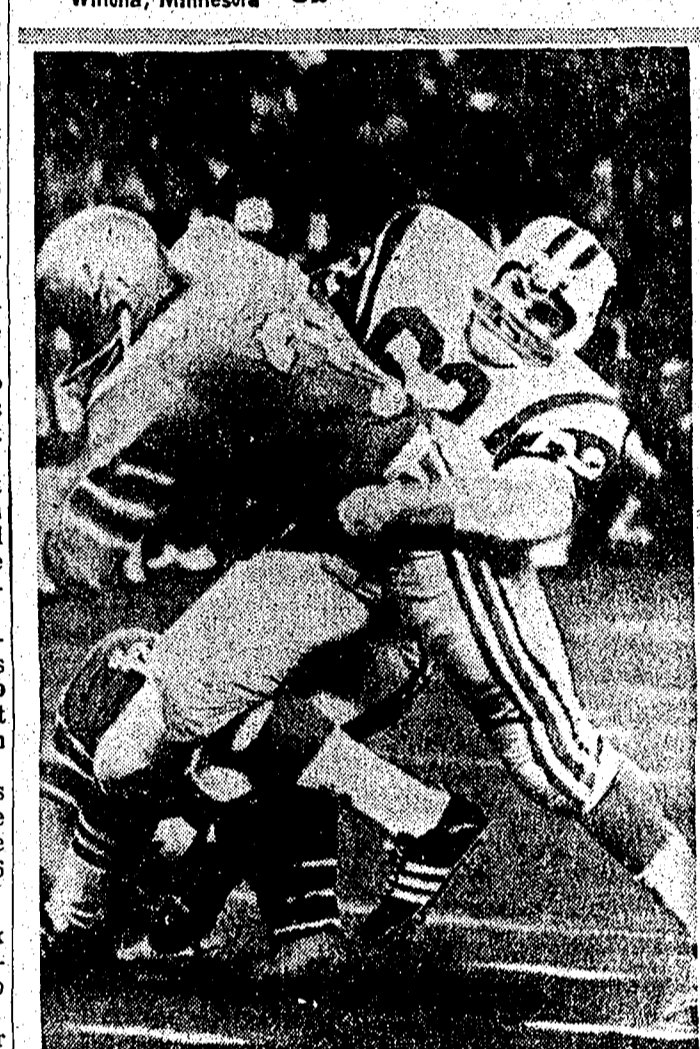

The victory was the Warriors' third straight of the season, while Chicago State fell to 1-1, the victory coming over Chicago Circle earlier in the week.

Next action for Winona State will come against Lea College of Albert Lea, a nonconference game beginning at 7:30 Wednesday night at Memorial Hall.

Jet steals stop Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The New York Jets set a club record by intercepting six passes Saturday to pave the way for a 34-26 victory over the Houston Oilers and nail down the Eastern Division championship in the American Football League.

Joe Namath threw two touchdown passes for the Jets but it was the New York defense that smashed the hopes of the Oiler club that, with one game to play, still has a chance to enter the AFL playoff as the Eastern runnerup.

An interception and a fumble gave the Jets a 14-0 lead after only 3 minutes and 32 seconds of play and another interception made it 21-0 before the Oilers could start moving behind Bob Davis, a third-year quarterback understudy who was activated off the taxi squad only on Thursday.

Davis cut the Jet lead to 21-10 at halftime but New York pulled away again at 34-10 before a pair of late fourth period Houston touchdowns and two-point conversions gave the Oilers a chance for a tie as the final seconds ticked away.

After the final Houston touchdown, the Oilers recovered an on sides kick at the New York 43 but four passes fell incomplete and New York took over with two seconds to play.

Martin batters Liston to win in ninth round

Martin, 119, Philadelphia, trailed throughout the first seven rounds because of Liston's constant left jab.

Liston, 219, Las Vegas, floored Martin in the fourth round of the scheduled 12-round bout, but Martin quickly got up. Frequently it appeared that Liston was going to knock out Martin, but the 37-year-old former champion didn't come up with the big punch.

Liston, a 13.5 favorite, had won his last 14 bouts after losing twice to Cassius Clay in 1964 and 1965.

Zone defense wilts SMC in late going

STEVENS POINT, Wis. — A zone defense employed by Stevens Point in the late stages of the second half wilted St. Mary's and sent the Redmen to their first basketball defeat in three starts here Saturday night.

St. Mary's, after leading 35-34 at halftime, was beaten 92-66.

THE TALE of the loss was written in the final seven minutes and 10 seconds. Trailing by only one point—65-66 at 7:10—St. Mary's could score only one point the rest of the way and Pointer guards Quinn VandenHeuvel and Bob Henning quickly spurred their team to supremacy.

Henning was the chief culprit, getting 13 of his 22 points after intermission to key the rally. VandenHeuvel finished with 20.

St. Mary's was led by 25 points from Joe Keenan and 17 from Jim Long.

St. Mary's fell to a nine-point deficit early in the game, then rebounded to claim the lead 19-18 on a Long free throw at 7:08.

At that point, it appeared the Redmen were beginning to generate a victorious outburst as they swept to an eight-point lead before Point trimmed it to one at halftime.

BUT the Redmen got the first three buckets of the second half to forge ahead 41-34.

But Stevens Point fought back to tie it 45-45 at the 5:18 mark. From there, the lead sea-sawed until the Pointers generated the late rally.

St. Mary's, which Monday night will meet Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa, now stands 2-1 on the season, while Stevens Point is 1-2.

Tanniehill loses in semifinals at Iowa State meet

AMES, Iowa — The four Winona State College wrestlers who Friday advanced beyond the first round of the Iowa State College invitational tournament here, Saturday, were beaten in semifinal competition.

The losers included 158-pound stalwart Jim Tanniehill, who last year won the AAU championship and placed third in the college division tournament.

Tanniehill was beaten 5-4 by Abens of Iowa State after pinning Meyer of Nebraska in 3:28 during first-round competition.

In fact, it was Iowa State that played the curpiel, all four Warriors falling to wrestlers from that school.

Dave Oland, who pinned Graham of Missouri in the first round, was pinned in 5:56 of the semifinals by Krum, at 134; Bill Hitesman, who decisioned Sterling of Missouri 12-2 in the first round, was decisioned 8-0 by Martin at 167; and Leo Eckerman who pinned Nebraska's Lyons in 4:20, was decisioned 7-0 by Peterson at 190.

All four were to compete for third place Saturday night.

Warriors who turned in wrestlingback victories and Saturday night bid for fifth place were: Larry Cedar (118), Jim Boguniewski (134), Mike Doody (142), Pete Sandberg (150), John Bedtke (177) and Craig Halvorson (191).

Free throws propel Winhawk win

By HOWARD LESTRUD
Sunday News Sports Editor

It took five free throws, three by 6-3 senior Steve Gilbertson and two by 5-11 senior co-captain Mike Kenney in the last three minutes of play to send Winona to a 55-50 hard-earned win over stubborn Faribault in the Winona High gym Friday night.

That Big Nine Conference victory upped the Winhawks' conference mark to 2-0 while Faribault is 0-2.

Gilbertson made one of two attempts at 3:20, drilled two throws at 2:48 and Kenney sewed up the game with a pair of charity points with 1:01 remaining in the contest.

Both teams had trouble finding the range from the field with the Falcons making 18 of 54 field goal attempts for 33.3 percent while the Hawks meshed 18 of 55 for a cool 32.7 percent.

"We sure made tough work out of it tonight," sighed a relieved Hawk head coach John Kenney following the game. "They always scratch for everything they can get and they sure showed it on the boards tonight."

Coach Dan Smith's Falcons outrebounced the Hawks 22-17 in the first half while Winona held the edge on the boards in the second half 24-17. For the game Winona outrebounced Faribault only by two 41-39.

A bothersome zone press aided the Hawks in the late going. "I thought they (Winona) would have speed on us but we kept up with them," said Smith. "It was definitely our best game of the season," he added.

Both teams ran into scoring snags in the second half. Each team scored only 22 points for the half and each team had 14 points in the third period and eight in the final quarter. The point difference was developed late in the second quarter.

Trailing 23-20 with just over two minutes showing on the clock in the second quarter, Winona shifted its fast break offense into high gear and registered nine straight points off it.

Gilbertson started the surge with a pair of 12-foot field goals. Kenney then stole the ball and drove in for a layup at 1:49 and drew a foul. He sank the free throw. Gary Bauer, who fouled out of the game with 44 seconds left in the third quarter, made two free throws at 1:39 to push the Hawks out front 29-23.

Both teams played on close to even terms the remainder of the second quarter with Faribault outscoring Winona 5-4. The Hawks sat on top at the half by five 33-28.

Gilbertson and Hazelton were the big guns for the Hawks in the first half. Gilbertson fired in 11 points and Hazelton chalked up 10. The Falcons notched 10 of their 28 first half points from the free throw line.

In the third quarter the Falcons began working the left side of the Hawk defense and enjoyed success. Bob Maas banked in two close-in shots in the early going of the third period to pull the Falcons within one at 33-32.

Junior Joe Ferguson, 6-5 post man, rammed home a 20-foot jumper at 6:45 to put the Hawks up 35-32. Bauer sank a 14-footer 33 seconds later and Gilbertson dropped a free throw at 5:52 to put the Hawks ahead 38-32.

White, the only Falcon scoring in double figures prior to Friday, went to the free throw line and arched in two free throws to make the score read 38-34.

Two free throws by Bauer and a drive-in shot by Gilbertson with one minute remaining in the third period put the Hawks up by seven at 47-40 but Randy Hachfeld flipped in two throws with 49 seconds left in the period to make the third quarter score read 47-42 in favor of the Hawks.

The Falcons repeated their quick third quarter start in the final period by hammering home two fielders in the first 1:18 of play to pull within one 47-46. Kenney's jumper put the Hawks up 49-46 but Hachfeld and 6-7 Randy Pearson both made two close-in buckets to put the Falcons in front 50-48. The clock showed 5:15 left.

Sports and How

By HOWARD LESTRUD

Joe Kapp is one heck of a football player. Only one thing about the Viking quarterback is that even though he helped lead the Vikings to a second straight Central Division title, fans are still getting down on him.

Why do fans criticize and oftentimes boo Kapp? Kapp does not look classy on the field, he does not have a quick release of the ball, he does not run well, he does not look like a professional quarterback, but yet he gets the job done.

KAPP'S INTESTINAL fortitude has brought his football career a long way and may even lead the Vikings to the world championship.

As a person off the field, Kapp is still not impressive. Two years ago, this reporter had a personal run-in with Kapp at the site of the Viking training camp, Mankato. I asked Kapp, Gary Cuzzo and Bob Berry to pose together. Since Kapp was the regular the year before and it was not known who was going to be Grant's top man in 1968, I asked Kapp to hold the ball high in the air and have the other two reaching for the ball.

Kapp

"Who do you think you are?" Kapp wise-cracked. Another example of his obnoxiousness came last week after the Vikings whipped Detroit. He was asked if he overthrew Dave Osborn on one play. "No, I think Osborn should have caught the ball."

Kapp could be more humble off the field, but I have no arguments with his success on the field. He has the qualities of a winner.

Cuzzo

OTHER COMMENTS of local fans are reprinted below:

"He's a wise guy."

"I have to go along with him."

"Cuzzo is more steady."

"He does a good job on the field."

"He may be the most awkward and lack the most polish of any quarterback but he is the best in the business."

"When Joe Kapp looks bad on a play, he has the habit of really looking bad."—Jerry Burns, Viking Asst. coach.

"He's tops on my list."

"He's been pretty lucky."

Morrall

"EARL MORRALL the second."

"He's kind of like Fran Tarkenton, because you don't know what to expect from him."

"I'm kind of leary about him, because I honestly think he gets rattled in many situations."

"Cuzzo may be a more talented quarterback but Kapp has a hidden quality of really leading the team."

"He is much improved from last year."

"I don't have too much faith in him."

"He's strong physically and has the knack of still completing a pass when he's going down."

"Unloads a pass when he doesn't have to."

"Even looks bad when he's doing well."

Nixon

"I CAN'T SAY he isn't a good quarterback after that exhibition (seven touchdown passes) against Baltimore."

"He might not be an artistic success as a quarterback but he gets the job done."

"The players believe in him."

THIRTY-SIX YEARS ago President Nixon was a 155-pound lineman on what little Whittier College in California called its varsity football team.

The team never made any of the big bowls. In fact, Richard Milhous Nixon had a short and successful football career. He failed to win his letter.

But now the sports-minded President will receive more than his W. The National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame is making him the recipient of its Gold Medal Award, a medal that annually goes to an "outstanding American with a lifetime devotion to the game."

Nixon will receive the award Dec. 9 as the climax to the 12th annual awards dinner in New York's Waldorf-Astoria.

"My first lumps in life came on the football field and on the bench where I spent much time," Nixon says.

ONLY IN EXISTENCE a month, Southwest Minnesota State College's (Marshall) wheelchair basketball team scored another first in the school's short history—an opening victory over an established opponent.

Organized by health and physical education instructor Lew Saver, a squad of seven rehabilitation students have adapted quickly from the conventional style of the round-ball spot—dribbling, passing or shooting over two pushes, six seconds in the zone underneath, "delicate" play with only light body contact (screening allowed), no falling from chair without penalty and 20-second time limit to progress upward.

The Mustangs recently whipped the Minneapolis Wheelchair Sportsmen Club at Hopkins 29-27.

DAIRYLAND

W.L.	W.L.
Osseo-Fairchild 2 0	Alma Center L 1 1
Augusta 2 0	Independence 0 2
Whitehall 1 0	Cochrane-FC 0 2
Eleva-Strum 1 0	Blair 0 2

The second round of Dairyland Conference games found Osseo-Fairchild, Augusta, Whitehall and Alma Center recording victories.

A u g u s t a's win was the classic example of a nerve-wrecker. The Beavers scored a field goal with two seconds remaining to claim a 73-72 victory. John Dickinson scored the last two points. He finished with 10 for the night. The Beavers' Greg Frase and Wayne Stanek finished the evening with 25 and 22 points, respectively.

One minute provided the 12-point margin of victory as Whitehall downed Cochrane-Fountain City 70-58. Three of C-F-C's leading scorers fouled out of the game near the final minute. Whitehall's Ralph Rasmussen won the scoring battle by flipping in 26 points.

Steve Rogness led Osseo-Fairchild to a 76-65 win over Eleva-Strum by scoring 29 points. Kim Nelson of the Cardinals paced all scorers by pushing in 24 points.

Balanced scoring characterized Alma Center's 74-50 win over Independence. Alma Center finished with five men in double figures, while Independence had four.

AUGUSTA 73, BLAIR 72

A John Dickinson basket from the free throw line with two seconds remaining gave the Augusta Beavers a come-from-behind 73-72 triumph over Blair.

With eight seconds remaining in the contest, Blair's Kerry Jacobson went to the free throw line and sank two free throws to put the Cardinals out front 72-71. Augusta fed Greg Frase who took a shot but was tied up by Terry Galstad. After the tip, Dickinson gained control and showed in the winning points.

Dickinson finished with 10 points for the victors. Teammates Frase and Wayne Stanek had 25 and 22 points, respectively. Galstad led Blair with 18. Jim Heim had 15. Wayne Vehrenkamp 14 and Jeff Otterson 10.

WHITEHALL 70, C-F CITY 58

With the score tied 58-58 with only a minute to play, the Norsemen took advantage of Pirate foul trouble and scored 12 points to truck away a 70-58 win.

C-F-C's three leading scorers, Dave Peck (16 points), Dave Brommerich (12) and Jerry Baertsch (11) all fouled out near the game's final minute. With their scoring punch impaired, the Pirates just couldn't keep pace.

For the Norse, Ralph Rasmussen dumped in 26 points and Jeff Dahl followed with 15. Both teams enjoyed respectable free throw records. C-F-C scored on 18 of 24 and Whitehall had 20 of 27.

OSSEO-FAIRCHILD 76, ELEVA-STRUM 65

Osseo-Fairchild rallied in the second half to overcome a slim 27-24 halftime lead held by Eleva-Strum to defeat the Cardinals 76-65.

The strength of the win came on 24- and 28-point production in the third and fourth quarters, respectively.

STEVE ROGNESS lead the winners with 23 points. Chieftain Greg Laufenberg connected for 17 and Ron Johnson tossed in 15.

Kim Nelson lead all scorers with 24 points. Fellow Cardinal teammates Bob Kundtson and Dennis Barneson scored 14 and 11 points, respectively.

ALMA CENTER 74, INDEPENDENCE 50

Anytime a team has four players in double figures, it is a good bet that that team will end up on the winning side.

That wasn't so at Independence Friday night as the Indians' put four men in double figures, but the Hornets of Alma Center came up with five men in double figures and won 74-50.

Leading the Hornet assault were: Chuck Comstock 15, Keith Carey, Jeff Scholve and David Bates with 13 each and Rick Schefer with 10.

Leading the losers were Tim Rebarneck and Bruce Brandenberg with 14 each and Ray Warner and Gary Gunderson with 10 apiece.

CENTENNIAL

W.L.	W.L.
Wabasha 1 0	Mazepa 1 1
Goodhue 1 0	Randolph 1 1
Elgin 1 1	Farib. Deaf 0 2

Wabasha and Goodhue did their parts to shake up the league standings to a considerable degree after Friday night action. Wabasha came out on top of a 68-48 score against Mazepa and Goodhue whipped Randolph 60-39. Both of the losers in these games had owned 1-0 records prior to the evening contests.

Mike Kasper tossed 22 points into the nets for Wabasha and Goodhue's attack was spearheaded by Al Ike McNamara who pitched 19 points through the hoop.

Faribault Deaf lost its second straight game of the conference season as Elgin's Watchmen mounded them 87-34. Fred Lorenson tied an all-time Elgin scoring record by hitting 24 points in the contest.

WABASHA 68, MAZEPPA 48

"I thought it was going to be a long night," said Wabasha coach Duke Lorez when his Indians led behind 8-2 early at the hands of Mazepa.

A STRONG surge the rest of the way brought the Indians their first win of the season 68-48. The slow-starting Indians ended shooting a respectable 41 percent from the field while Mazepa shot a chilly 33 percent.

Leading the Wabasha attack were Mike Kasper with 22 points, Keith Johnson 15 and Jeff Plank 14. Ken Kerkhoff led Mazepa's Indians with 18 and Larry Vanler Walker added 11.

Top Wabasha rebounders were Johnson with 12 and Gary Glonski with 10.

The Indians led 26-23 at halftime and 44-42 after three quarters but a 28-point spurge in the final period made the game a rout.

ELGIN 87, FARIBAUT DEAF 34

Elgin bombarded Faribault Deaf 21-3 in the opening period and set the pace for an 87-34 win.

The Watchmen outscored the Hilltoppers 22-14 and 10-8 in the second and third quarters respectively and put the lid on the game in the last quarter outscoring the Deaf 31-13.

FRED Lorentson tied an all-time scoring record of 872 points with his 24 point performance. He shares the record with 1965 graduate Steve Richardson. Dave Phipps poured in 20 points to place second in the scoring column for the night.

Rollin Otness scored 15 points for the Hilltoppers in a losing cause.

Elgin barely got by the school for the Deaf in the pregame squeaking out a 41-40 win.

LaCrescent whips Trojans for first time in its history

LA CRESCENT, Minn. — History was made in the town of La Crescent Friday night as the Lancers registered their first win over Rushford 81-78 in the history of the school system.

The Lancers entered the game 0-10 against Mike Jerešek's Rushford Trojans.

The game was the first Root River Conference game for each club. Coach Rollie Johnson's Lancers are now 4-0 on the season.

"This victory really tickled me, because our team is quite inexperienced but the boys really played a game," said Johnson.

Rushford jumped out to an early 6-0 lead and built a 21-15 lead at the end of the first quarter, but La Crescent poured in 31 points to only 12 for the Trojans in the second period to take a commanding 13-point lead at 46-33.

"I told the boys at the end of the first period to keep their heads up, look for the open man and get the ball to him. They did just that," Johnson said. "I also felt that we had to attack them instead of them attacking us," he pointed out.

Each team scored 21 points in the third quarter and the Lancers still had a 13-point advantage of 67-54. In the final period the Trojans put on the pressure by outscoring the Lancers 24-14. "If the game would have been one minute longer, the outcome may have been different," said Jerešek.

Mike Kearns, a 5-11 Lancer guard and the most experienced player on the team, poured in 27 points. Ron Wiedman was next with 21 points and Steve Robinson added 10.

The Trojans had four men in double digits. They were Ken Benson, 5-11 sophomore with 23; Jack O'Donnell, 6-2 center with 21; Bill Haugen, 6-0 forward with 14 and Barry Johnson, reserve center, 5-11 sophomore with 12.

La Crescent's Larry Vonderoh, 6-8 senior center, scored only seven points but was a tiger on the boards with 18 rebounds.

Rushford led in shooting percentage from the field, making 29 of 49 for 59.2 percent. La Crescent canned 32 of 63 shots for 51 percent. From the free throw line, Rushford made 20 of 33 while the Lancers cashed 17 of 27.

"They were getting the boards on us and that's what hurt," said Jerešek. The board strength by La Crescent helped make up for 30 turnovers. Rushford had only 15.

La Crescent outscored Rushford at every position, with Vonderoh of course being the tallest man on the court.

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) —

Pat O'Connor, for the third straight fight, has reinjured his right hand as a question mark again clouds his boxing career.

The 19-year-old O'Connor, who has a 15-0 record as a middleweight, sustained a hairline fracture of a bone between the wrist and knuckles in a Wednesday night victory over Hurricane Joe Zacchus of Nigeria.

It was announced Friday after examination by Mayo Clinic physicians that O'Connor would have the hand placed in a cast for six weeks.

The new fracture is in a spot where the bones were fused from a previous surgery in July after O'Connor broke the hand against Bob Riley at LaCrosse, Wis. He originally injured the hand last March in a fight against Duane Horsman.

Tigers clobber Mabel

ROOT RIVER

La Crescent	1 0	Rushford	0 1
Caledonia	1 0	Lewisston	0 1
Houston	1 0	Spring Grove	0 1

It appears that the Root River Conference will be equally balanced during the basketball season as it was during the football season after opening league games Friday night.

In the two headliners La Crescent trimmed

Rushford 81-78 and Peterson clobbered Mabel-Canton 86-47. In other league games Caledonia ripped Lewisston 60-44 and Houston whacked Spring Grove 67-41.

La Crescent's victory over the Trojans of Rushford marked the first time in the Lancers' five-year history that they had beaten a Rushford basketball team.

Mike Kearns led the win with 27 points. Dale Hegland led the Peterson onslaught pouring in 26 points.

PETERSON 86, MABEL-CANTON 47

"We just ran out of gas," said a dejected Mabel-Canton basketball coach Ron Landherr after he watched his Cougars breeze to a 19-14 first quarter lead over Peterson and then fall behind 44-30 at halftime.

The Tigers of Peterson roared to an 86-47 final and their fifth straight victory of the season.

After the first quarter the Tigers scored more than 20 points in each of the remaining three quarters. Peterson notched 30 points in the second frame, 20 in the third and 22 in the final stanza.

Dale Hegland, 232-pound Peterson center, led all scorers with 26 points. Terry Hightum, a smooth 5-11 senior guard, was next for the Tigers with 20.

Sophomore Val Gudmundson had 17 points.

Craig Martin and Bob Kelly scored 13 and 11 points, respectively for the Cougars. The Cougars were hampered early in the second period when Kelly, the team's leading scorer last year, drew his third foul.

HOUSTON 67, SPRING GROVE 41

Leading 18-10 shortly after the start of the second quarter, Spring Grove developed the cold shooting hand and scored only one more field goal in the period while Houston jumped to a 32-20 halftime lead. The Hurricanes held on to record a 67-41 victory.

Jan Bremseth, who hit 15 points for the night, sank 12 of Houston's 22 second stanza points. Following him were Mark Bedore and Bob Jacobson with 11 and 10 points respectively.

Spring Grove's high scorer was David Johnson who had nine for the night.

The Lions also suffered from a cold free throw shooting evening hitting only 13 of 31 while Houston was connecting on 19 of 29.

Chatfield	W L	Harmony	0 1
Spring Valley	1 0	Grand Meadow	0 1
Preston	1 0	Wykoff	0 1
Lanesboro	1 0	LeRoy-Out	0 1

Chatfield, Spring Valley, Preston and Lanesboro all came out with wins Friday night in the first slate of conference games.

Chatfield socked Harmony 72-67 as Bill Powers and Tom Lovejoy each flipped 23 points into the basket. The Gophers' pressure zone defense was the big element in Harmony's downfall.

Jeff Ernster hit 19 points for the Spring Valley Wolves as his team whipped Grand Meadow 75-64. Mike Baudoin of the Larks, though, took game honors with a total of 23 points.

Although trailing 15-11 after the first quarter, Preston came back to hand Wykoff a convincing 81-61 defeat. Bluejay Kiey Anderson contributed 27 points to his team's winning cause.

Lanesboro dashed ahead of LeRoy-Out 69-43 at the close of the first quarter and sailed to a 69-43 verdict over the luke-warm Cardinals. Jim Sorom stuffed 22 points into the nets to set the pace for both teams.

CHATFIELD 72, HARMONY 67

Three quick buckets resulting from a pressuring zone press in the second quarter turned the corner for the Chatfield Gophers and gave the Gophers a 72-67 victory over Harmony on Harmony's home court.

Bill Powers, 5-11, and Tom Lovejoy, 6-0 center, led the Gophers with 23 points each and Mark McBroom chipped in with 13.

Dick Erickson was high point man for Harmony with 21. Following him were Jim Harstad with 13 and Mike Saxe 12.

Each team had a hot night from the field with Harmony shooting 48.8 percent on 22 of 49 and Chatfield clicking on 27 of 58 for 46.9 percent.

SPRING VALLEY 75, GRAND MEADOW 64

Spring Valley used a five-point first quarter lead as a springboard in quest of its 75-64 win over Grand Meadow.

The Wolves played the Larks to a 20-point to 20-point stalemate in the second, but increased their lead by four 52-43 by outscoring Grand Meadow 18-14 in the third frame. Spring Valley added another two points to its lead in the final quarter outscoring the Larks 23-21.

The Larks trailed by 16 with three minutes left in the third quarter and narrowed the lead to four, but the Wolves' tight man-to-man defense kept the Larks at bay.

Jeff Ernster paced the Wolves with 19 points. Ron Sauer tossed in 15 points and led in rebounds with eight. Rick House rounded out the double figure scoring for Spring Valley with 12.

Grand Meadow's Mike Baudoin led all scorers with 23 in a losing cause. Teammate Bruce Peterson chipped in 12, while Russ Kennedy contributed 11.

In the B-game the Spring Valley team came away with a 41-34 win.

PRESTON 81, WYKOFF 61

Wykoff jumped off to a 15-11 first quarter lead but gave up the lead to Preston at halftime 33-32. A fired up Preston team came out of the locker room at the end of intermission and quickly ended all hopes of a Wykoff upset by outscoring the Wykoffs 20-11 and sealed the victory in the final eight minutes with a 27-11 quarter score.

Bluejay Kiey Anderson led the attack with 23 points, Jeff Knies and Bruce Hoff each added 16 points. Knies played a major role in that fourth quarter driving scoring ten points on six of seven free throws attempted and two field goals.

Wayne Heberich was high man for Wykoff with 19 points. Gary Schavel followed with 17.

LANESBORO 69, LEROY-OUT 43

Jim Sorom led the Burro onslaught by pouring in 22 points as his team fashioned a 69-43 pillage of LeRoy-Out.

Other double figure scorers for Lanesboro were Ron Bothun with 15 and Keith Eide and Craig Johnson who canned 11 apiece. Joe Wherry had 14 for the Cardinals.

The Burros came up on the better end of the free throw situation as well, converting 13 of 19 while LeRoy notched nine of 20. A 44 percent field goal mark graded Lanesboro's scorecard at the close of the contest. The Cardinals made 35 percent of their field shots count.

Plush retreat has all the comforts of home

Winona group hunts in comfort

By LEFTY HYMES
Sunday News Outdoor Writer

Four Winona businessmen who were guests at a private hunting club in Missouri are still talking about the luxuries and their hunting experiences. "It was out of this world," said one member of the group. The four-man party left

Winona aboard Larry Conway's plane at 4:15 a.m. Nov. 12 and three hours later was stationed in a water-fowl blind at Mound City, Mo. Dressed for the hunt before leaving, the group had been transported from the Mound City airport to the hunting area by jeep. In addition to Conway, other hunters were president

Gordon Espy and vice president Norm Schellhas of Merchants National Bank and Willard Matzke, local manufacturer and big game hunter. They were the guests of D. J. (Tex) Witherspoon, Omaha, Neb., owner of the 93 Gibson stores, one of which is located in Winona. Their base — Gooselore Lodge — is located just a half mile from the Missouri hunting area and is one of the nation's plush retreats. The lodge houses 10 guests and includes luxuries beyond a hunter's dream. Tex and his friends — 10 in all — were not guests only for hunting, but also for food and entertainment, highly rated features of Gooselore Lodge. An Omaha businessman, whose hobby is gourmet cooking, prepared dinner for the evening. After dinner it was drinks around the fireplace and reminiscences of other hunts until bedtime, well after midnight. At 5 a.m. swamp buggies were ready to transport hunters to their assigned blinds. It was still dark when they got under way. As day broke, hunters settled down in the heated blinds which are fitted out in the same luxurious style that characterizes all the lodge facilities. With goose decoys spread out, they waited for the birds to swing in over the blinds. Lodge rules are strictly enforced and each hunter is well schooled in advance. No shooting at birds out of range is tolerated. No drinking is allowed in blinds or during hunting hours. Women are not allowed at the lodge or in blinds. Miscellaneous other rules apply to fire prevention and other safety precautions. Silence prevailed as hunters waited for geese to arrive. There were snow geese, Canadas and blues in the mixed flocks that were fired at during the morning.

Closed season won't restore pheasants

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—Jack Connor is a retired outdoor writer and widely known sportsman of Minneapolis who has made an extensive study of Minnesota's pheasant problem.)

By JACK CONNOR
Pheasants have all but vanished in some parts of the best pheasant range in Minnesota. Statewide they're down about 50 percent, and as much as 95 percent in parts of west central, western and southwestern counties.

So says Richard Wettersten, director of the Minnesota Game and Fish Division. But you can get a lot of argument on how it all came about. Reasons range from loss of habitat to bad winters, pesticides, lack of restocking, predation and changing farm practices.

The Department of Conservation is concerned, too. So much so that it closed the pheasant season in 1969. Why? BECAUSE, SAID Conservation Commissioner Jarle Leirfallom, if the pheasant population is down below levels that will provide a satisfactory hunt, it is just good public policy to yield to the wishes of license buyers and close the season.

That won't restore the birds, however. A closed season was tried in 1947, but the next year pheasant hunting was actually worse. So don't expect any miracles in 1970. The trouble with the pheasant is he's just too dependent on winter weather and spring hatching weather and on farming practices. The rough winters of 1961-62, 1964-65 and 1968-69 each cut Minnesota's remaining pheasant population in half.

The Dakotas are luckier. Their drier climate produces a greater acreage of small grains, which is good nesting cover, so pheasants bounce back quicker from population losses in winter storms. Minnesota farmers now raise about twice as much corn and soybeans (the row crops) as they used to. They raise only about half as much small grain. So nesting area is drastically reduced. Nearly 50 percent of young pheasants are hatched in small grain fields.

CLEAN FARMING has hurt the birds, too. Fence rows are all but eliminated and farmers are even plowing roadside ditches. Those ditches used to raise about 25 percent of all young pheasants. When pheasants were first planted in the state in 1904, and stocked again from a small game farm on Big Island in Lake Minnetonka about 1915, ideal pheasant nesting and wintering habitat was abundant. Small grains were a principal crop, ditches and fence rows were a tangle of wild growth, and drainage of sloughs to farm them was unknown.

The birds had plenty of places to hatch and thrive, and they did. They found the abundant cover and absence of competition from other upland game to their liking. They increased naturally through the dry 30's to the point where we were harvesting a million roosters a year as recently as six years ago.

In the past 10 years they've been hit hard by clean farming, row crops and bad weather, says Wettersten. He believes the future goal of pheasant seasons would be more realistic if it was set at 500,000 roosters, instead of a million in the annual harvest. And that's achievable with extensive habitat development. Predators and pesticides also have been blamed for the pheasant decline. Let's consider predators first. According to Maynard Nelson, state game research supervisor, the Department did an intensive study in southern Minnesota during 1960-62 on pheasant predation. In a four-square-mile area it controlled all species of predators, removing 434 predators in the three years of study. The principal predators were skunks, raccoons and crows.

miracles in 1970. The trouble with the pheasant is he's just too dependent on winter weather and spring hatching weather and on farming practices. The rough winters of 1961-62, 1964-65 and 1968-69 each cut Minnesota's remaining pheasant population in half.

Foxes were found unimportant as nest predators. PHEASANT NEST success was increased noticeably by the predation control, but high costs made a large scale program economically unfeasible. Of greater importance was the fact that increased numbers of pheasant chicks mysteriously disappeared by fall. The hunt-able bird population was not noticeably improved though about 80 percent or 90 percent of the predators had been removed, concluded Nelson. South Dakota undertook a similar predator control test in 1964, only on a much larger scale. It intensively destroyed foxes on four 100-square-mile areas and destroyed all predators on four more 100-square-mile areas. No control at all was done on four additional 100-square mile areas to check against the control areas.

Nevertheless, pheasant populations declined 42 percent on the fox reduction areas, 34 percent on the areas where all predators were controlled and 68 percent on the areas with no control. Severe winter weather caused the numbers of birds to decline, just as they did in Minnesota.

Yet fox numbers were reduced about 75 percent in South Dakota, and raccoons, badgers and skunks about 75 percent. But the size of fox litters increased markedly following fox removal. Trapping out one fox just made room for another to move in. It was like trying to maintain a vacuum, and all nature abhors a vacuum.

As for pesticides, Iowa uses about three times the pesticides and fertilizers used by Minnesota farmers. Yet, last year Iowa harvested 1,700,000 pheasants, it was brought out at a public pheasant symposium held in October, 1969, in St. James, Minnesota.

If pesticides used on Iowa corn crops were killing the pheasants, how could that state harvest so many more birds than Minnesota? The answer is that Iowa has milder winters than Minnesota and not so many birds are lost in winter storms. NELSON TOLD the St. James symposium that present research on DDT pesticides showed less than one part per million in pheasants compared with 12 parts per million in humans. "So pheasants have been doing a lot better with DDT than we have," said Nelson. "This doesn't mean that we shouldn't strive to find substitutes for the so-called 'hard' pesticides. It just means that we shouldn't be fooled into believing that all will be well with the ringneck when pesticides are better regulated."

miracles in 1970. The trouble with the pheasant is he's just too dependent on winter weather and spring hatching weather and on farming practices. The rough winters of 1961-62, 1964-65 and 1968-69 each cut Minnesota's remaining pheasant population in half.

Voice of the Outdoors

Snowmobile Problems
John Dowd, Winona County forester, told us his winter troubles over a cup of coffee the other morning. One of them is snowmobiles. He pointed out a need for education in this field, and related some of the hazards to forest and trees that these winter fun machines have created.

The one he worries most about, it appeared, is using the machines in forest plantings. In the past, thoughtless fun seekers have made paths back and forth through patches of evergreen seedlings, doing extensive damage. This, he pointed out, also applies to natural growth of young trees in woodlots and on bluffsides. The trees are run over, bent and cracked.

The Memorial Hardwood Forest, where the young growth of timber is encouraged by fencing out trouble makers and allowing no grazing, is one, for some reason, that is often invaded. Fences are also out and restrictions disregarded. Snowmobile trails may later be marked in some of the forest areas, but that is still in the future. Today's snowmobile riders are asked to cooperate.

Jeeps Destructive
Along this line of thinking, the use of four-wheel drive vehicles in recreation areas can also be destructive. These vehicles have been allowed to run wild along the North and South branches of the Whitewater River, tearing at the creek bed, starting new rock slides and doing as much damage as a major flood. Such just-for-fun sport certainly does not benefit our trout fishing.

Neither do such actions fit into a wildlife refuge area, such as the Whitewater refuge, where one of the purposes is to control erosion by developing natural cover and reforestation. We have not checked the laws governing the use of such machines on public property, but if there is not some legal regulation to stop such senseless damage, it surely should be a job for conservation-minded legislators at the next session.

We are certain that Dick Doeror, father of Whitewater refuge, the Memorial forest, and other nature-preserving projects, never thought the present generation of outdoorsmen would destroy willfully what so many had worked to save. Incidentally, Dick Doeror is to be the speaker at a meeting of the local chapter of the Izaak Walton League at their Prairie Island cabin Dec. 11. The public is invited.

Hawk matmen tripped up by Faribault

FARIBAULT, Minn. — A rugged and ready Faribault High School wrestling squad stormed to a convincing 34-6 Big Nine Conference victory over Winona here Friday night. The Falcons won 10 of 12 matches, eight by decision and two by pins. Tom Reed, 112-pound Winhawk junior and Tim Meinke, 154-pound Hawk senior won the only two matches for Winona.

Reed decided Dave Wickstrom 4-0 and Meinke decisioned Lee Dettmer 5-2. In two close matches Jerry Tindal lost a 2-1 decision to Mark Shiels in the 120-pound class and 145-pound Gary Ziebell dropped a 4-3 decision to Phil Ryan.

"We just were not ready for this meet mechanically; we made a lot of mistakes," said a disappointed Hawk coach Dave Moracco. "We just have to be deep at each weight in order to win in this conference. Moracco handed a lot of credit to coach Dick Shiels' team. "He has a well balanced team and they were ready for this one."

The closest fought match of the night was in the 120-pound class. Neither Tindal or Shiels scored in the first period. Shiels scored in the second period on an escape and a reversal. Tindal's lone point came on an escape. Moracco had praise for District Three champ Meinke who remained the only unbeaten Hawk with Reed.

The Hawks return to Big Nine action Friday night hosting Albert Lea.

The Heath hen: a saddening loss

By NELSON BRYANT
New York Times News Service
NEW YORK — Wandering through a portion of the so-called great plain on Martha's Vineyard a few weeks ago, I came to an open acre where for some reason the gnarled and twisted scrub oaks that cover much of the area could not grow.

Pausing to watch a small doe on the opposite side of the field that was not yet aware of me, I thought of the heath hen, the strange and wonderful bird that completed its journey to oblivion on the Vineyard plains 36 years ago.

The Heath hen, or eastern prairie chicken, was once plentiful throughout the East, but by 1839, it existed only on Martha's Vineyard. For a century then it was protected from hunters by law on several occasions and was given total protection in the early 1900's.

In 1908, less than 60 birds were still alive, but this number had increased to perhaps 2,000 in 1916 when a great fire swept the plain in the spring, catching the females on their nests. In retrospect, it is clear that this fire destroyed all chance for survival of the species.

Accurate counts of the birds were aided by its spring mating habits. In April and May, the male heath hens gathered in certain open areas on the plain to feed, dance, posture and make the incredible sounds that stirred the imagination and pens of those who were fortunate enough to hear him.

About the size of a ruffed grouse, the heath hen often made a mournful hooting, a sound one observer said might be duplicated by blowing across the open mouth of a small vial. When flying, it often gave vent to what sounded, when heard in the early morning mists or in the falling light of evening across the vast, storm-buffed plain, like a burst of demonic laughter.

By 1929, only one bird survived — a male. It came alone to a field on the farm of James Green in West Tisbury and went through an abbreviated version of the usual mating ritual. In 1930, it appeared again, but omitted any courtship maneuvers and uttered no sound. It came to the same spot once more in the spring of the following year and then was seen no more. Shortly after this, as a boy, I worked for Green. He taught me how to fork hay onto a horse-drawn hayrack and how to unload it in the hot, rich-smelling barn. He taught me how to handle my end of a two-man cross-cut saw and he also let me hide in the weathered heath hen observation house at the edge of his field. I spent many hours in that tiny building, hoping to see or hear the bird whose race had already vanished from the earth, and saw instead crows tumbling down a bright spring sky, sun glistening on wheeling gulls, and heard only the wind in the twisted pitch pines, the rustling and songs of thrushes in the scrub oaks and the distant hollow roar of the Atlantic three miles away. The goblins of the enchanted plain were gone forever and the world was poorer than a boy could know.

Winona B squad loses to Falcons

Hayfield lashes Dover-Eyota '5'
EYOTA, Minn.—Hayfield took command early, establishing a 20-12 lead at the first-quarter break and then coasted to a 70-44 Wasioja Conference triumph.

Jim Proeschel sank 25 points for the Vikings and teammate Kerry Linbo added 13. Greg Smith and Bill Hammed hit 16 and 11 points, respectively, for Dover-Eyota. The Eagles connected on eight of 20 free throw attempts while Hayfield had 14 of 25. The second half saw the Viking defense become somewhat more stringent, allowing its opponents just nine points in the third quarter and eight in the final period. Hayfield also held a comfortable rebounding edge in the contest.

NEUMANN'S Bargain Store

'Lemon power' soured by judge

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP)

— Arthur Harris' unhappiness over his new $9,000 Lincoln Continental does not justify parking the car in front of the dealer's agency with a lemon sign on it, a Common Pleas Court judge says.

Judge Harold M. Missal has issued a temporary injunction forbidding Harris to do again what he did on Nov. 22—park the car in front of Milton Weiss, Inc., with a large sign on the auto depicting a lemon and saying: "Lemon—By Milton Weiss."

Judge Missal said Harris "failed to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the car in question is a 'lemon.'"

Multi-purpose holiday trims

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

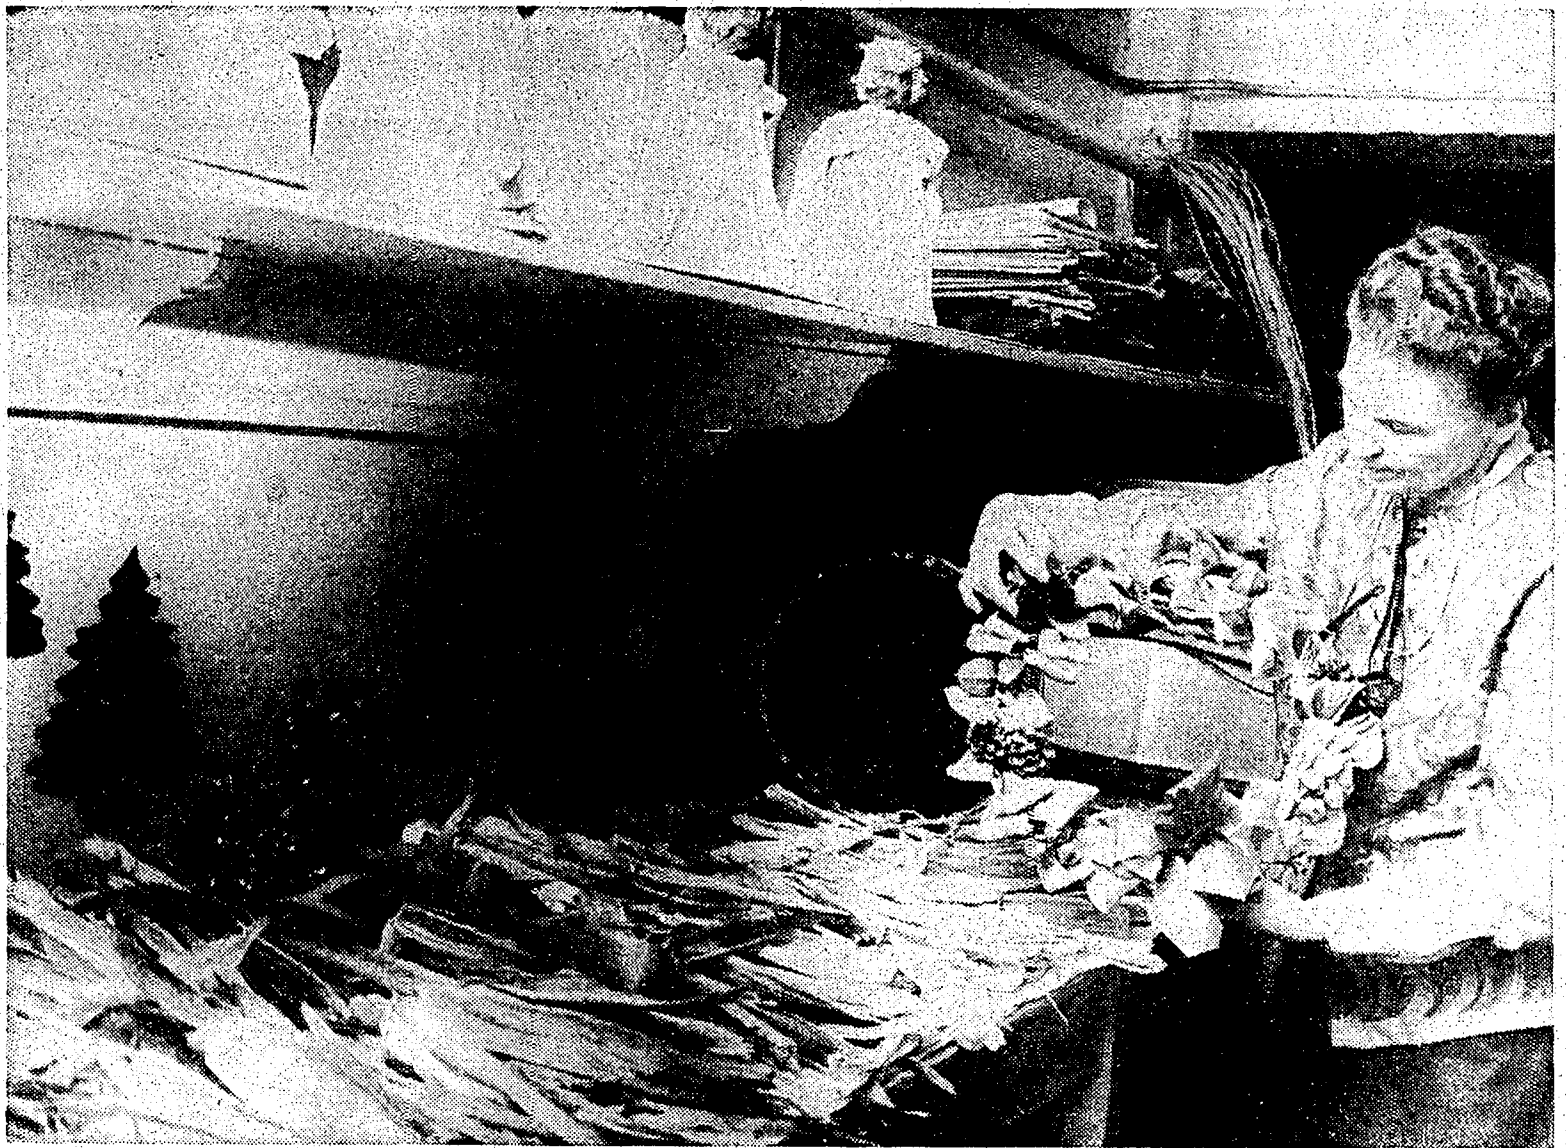

HEARDED about the latest holiday put-on? It's gift trims fashioned from colored tape that can be taken OFF the package and put ON you. Glittering bells ring out a cheery greeting from this box top. Actually they're paper cups, split in half, and coated with gold glitter. Yule ornaments serve as clappers, while plastic-coated cloth tape is used for leaves and bow. All or part of topping can be peeled off package and worn as a corsage. And, for matching bell earrings, just glue two-inch triangles of paper into cone shapes and string three in a row for a pair of chiming accessories.

IF Santa is your favorite holiday decoration, fashion his chucklesome likeness on a package, as seen below at the left. Also, a smaller version of this versatile topping can be made as a gift tag and later worn as a lapel pin or cuff links. Snip the jolly face from pink construction paper and tape it to the box (or, in the case of the diminutive accessories, to a circle of cardboard). Hat and facial features are cut from colored tape, while fur and beard are formed by twirling tape-covered pipe cleaners around a pencil. The result is a fun Santa whose curvy, curly beard provides a three dimensional touch.

FINALLY, what telegraphs happy holidays faster than a "Noel" greeting? A bright red tie box—below right—suddenly lights up when white tape spells out the letters, with crystal glitters adding neon highlights. Also, tiny tape letters can be snipped and stuck to ribbon. And, as Melissa Newman, featured in the 20th film, "The Undeclared," discovered, streamer can be used as a necklace or hair bandeau for a look-alike "gift and giver" decoration.

NATURAL MATERIALS . . . Mrs. Arthur Kern, arts and crafts supervisor for the Winona Park-Recreation Department, stands at a bench covered with corn husks and other items drawn from nature used in the construction of a Yuletide wreath. Mrs. Kern is inserting a pine cone in the wreath whose base is a wire coat hanger bent into a circular shape and covered with corn husks. Various decorative accents may be added and, in some cases, the wreath is sprayed lightly with gold paint.

The joy of creating your own gifts, decorations

Hands and heart go into Christmas

By C. GORDON HOLTE
Sunday Editor

“Oh, the Yules of yore, they’ll come no more,” went the refrain of an old ditty that’s long since gone the way of Christmas Past but the regretful prophesy has been proved false by the resurgence in recent years of interest in old customs of preparation in the home of gifts and decorations for the Yuletide season.

The joy of Christmas may be in the giving but more and more are discovering the enjoyment, too, to be realized in the making — the fashioning in sewing room, home workshop and kitchen of personalized gifts, decorative items that reflect the spirit of Christmas in the home.

One of the Winona area’s most enthusiastic exponents of the ages-old tradition of making gifts and decorations from materials at hand is Mrs. Arthur Kern, 228 E. Sanborn St., supervisor and instructor in arts and crafts for the Winona Park-Recreation Department.

Today’s Sunday Magazine cover photograph shows Mrs. Kern with a number of Christmas gift and decorative items she says can be made in a surprisingly short time with scrap materials.

The two angels, for example, can be made, Mrs. Kern says, by almost anyone in two hours or less with some scrap cardboard bent into a cone shape to provide the basic body form. Pieces of newspaper soaked with wallpaper paste give a papier-mache covering for the cone and a discarded light bulb becomes the head.

The angel on the right has been wrapped with remnants from an onion sack and scraps of cloth become the white robe for the angel on the left. Scrap yarn or waste string, dipped in wallpaper paste is coiled to shape for hair and the angel may be placed on a lazy susan, surrounded by a wreath, for a decorative table centerpiece.

Mrs. Kern turns to nature for materials for a Yuletide wreath. An old coat hanger shaped in a circle is the base which is then wrapped with corn husks. Loops of corn husks, wired to wood pegs, are inserted into the circular form to give full body to the wreath with inserts of milkweed pods, cellophane-wrapped hickory nuts and hard candy clusters affording color accents.

A bow of colorful ribbon may be attached but Mrs. Kern advises against using any bow too large that might call attention to it, rather than the wreath.

The possibilities for converting scrap materials into decorative items are limited only by individual imagination, Mrs. Kern emphasizes, explaining how tin cans can be made into Christmas tree ornaments, angels and candle holders; and small scraps of felt can be decorated with discarded beads and glitter for tree ornaments and wall hangings.

THE Little Drummer Boy is a legendary figure on the Christmas scene and provides a theme for a festive decoration that can be made easily in your own kitchen.

The popcorn drum is in tune with the season and even the junior hostess can take pride in making it all by herself by following step-by-step directions. For a youngster's Christmas party it might be fun to provide each of the guests with a pair of popcorn drumsticks for a take-home favor.

The drum, itself, is really a crunchy popcorn cake shaped in a springform pan so after the party's over the ribbons and rickrack can be removed and the drum broken up for nibbling . . . or it can be saved through the holidays as a table decoration.

Here's how to make it:

POPCORN DRUM

4 quarts warm popped popcorn Materials:

- | | |
|------------------------------------|---|
| Quickie Glaze: | 2 wooden hibachi skewers, 13 inches long |
| 1 1/3 cups light corn syrup | 1 circle (7 1/2 inches) white cardboard |
| 1 1/3 cups sugar | Gummed foil stars, gold or red |
| 1 teaspoon salt | Green ribbon, 1/2 inch wide |
| | Red ribbon, 1/4 inch wide |
| | Gold rickrack |
| | Colored, round-headed straight pins |
| | 2 small sprigs plastic greens |

Keep popcorn warm in a 300-degree oven. In a heavy medium saucepan, combine corn syrup, sugar and salt. Bring to boiling over medium heat; boil 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Pour syrup slowly over popcorn and toss to coat. Drumsticks: Shape two 1 1/2-inch balls for heads of sticks. Insert skewers; set aside. Drum: Quickly pack remainder of coated popcorn into a buttered 8-inch springform pan, reserving some for rim. Place cardboard circle, decorated with stars, on top for drum head; form a rim 3/4-inch high around edge of circle with remaining popcorn. Cool and remove from pan. To apply finishing touches: Using pins, fasten green ribbon with rickrack on top around drum just below rim and at bottom; zigzag red ribbon between green ribbons, fastening points with pins. Tie greens to skewers near drumstick heads with red ribbon.

Note: To make large drum, make 1 1/2 times the popcorn recipe and form in a 10-inch springform pan. Decorate as directed above.

A Popcorn Drum Centerpiece

Treat your guests sweetly

WHEN carolers, relatives or surprise guests turn up on your doorstep this Yuletide, treat them to coffee and a slice of a spectacular Holiday Wreath fable centerpiece. It's a show-off dessert that tastes as good as it looks.

Semi-sweet chocolate chips, coconut and cherries are the jewels that give the opulent look to a flavorsome, buttery shortbread that can be sliced to suit any appetite.

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour | 3/3 cup chilled butter |
| 1/2 cup confectioners' sugar | 1 egg |
| 1/2 teaspoon baking powder | |

Combine all ingredients in a medium bowl. Using a pastry blender, cut in the butter until the mixture is crumbly. Form the mixture into a ball.

To make the wreath: Mold dough into a roll approximately 24 inches long. On a large ungreased baking sheet (15 1/2"x12") shape roll into a circle, pressing ends together. Flatten dough to about 1/8-inch thickness and 3 to 3 1/2 inches wide. Turn up and crimp inside and outside edges as for pie crust. If the dough gets too soft to handle, chill 10 to 15 minutes.

Alternate Suggestion: To make two strips, divide dough in half and make two 12-inch long rolls. Proceed to shape and flatten rolls and crimp as directed above.

Bake wreath or strips in 350° F. oven for 15 minutes. Shortbread will be very light brown. Remove from oven, cool and fill.

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 egg | 1/4 cup chopped nuts |
| 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar | 1 cup (one 6-ounce package) semi-sweet chocolate chips |
| 1/2 teaspoon vanilla | 2 1/2 cups shredded coconut |
| 1 tablespoon flour | 1 tablespoon egg white |
| 1/2 teaspoon baking powder | Red and green maraschino cherries, drained or candied for decoration |
| 1/4 teaspoon salt | |

Combine egg, brown sugar and vanilla. Blend in flour, baking powder and salt. Add nuts, chocolate chips and 3/4 cup of the coconut. Mix together. Spread filling onto wreath or strips; return to 350° F. oven. Bake 10 minutes more.

Toss remaining coconut with egg white and distribute over baked filling. Garnish with cherries, as desired. Cool and serve. Yield: 16 to 18 slices.

Mixes solve gift problems

IF the holidays bring problems like a gift for Johnny's teacher . . . an elderly aunt . . . for the postman . . . a helpful neighbor—then you can bake the perfect answer right in your kitchen.

With the use of convenience mixes you can prepare a variety of tasty gifts with little or no effort and less time than a shopping trip would require.

Bake Mince-meat Gift Breads, prepared from a date bread mix, in colored foil muffin cups or in soup cans. When cool, the breads may be glazed or frosted and decorated with candied fruits. Then wrap them in clear cellophane and tie with Christmas greenery and a ribbon.

You'll want to keep extras of the gift breads, as well as the Cranberry Nut Bread, for guests who drop in unexpectedly during the busy season. Made with a nut bread mix and chopped cranberries with grated orange peel to bring out the flavor, this bread is excellent served warm or cold. The breads, of course, can be made in advance and wrapped in aluminum foil for freezing until the time for giving arrives.

Mince-meat Date Rounds: Prepare as directed above. Turn into 4 greased and floured soup cans. Bake at 350° for 30 to 35 minutes until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean.

Holiday Gift Breads

Tiny gifts make big impression

WHILE home-baked cookies and fruitcakes are the most popular Christmas gifts from the kitchen, have you ever thought about giving a jar of fluffy hard sauce to go with the Christmas pudding or mince pie?

Here are some recipes for some old-fashioned goodies including Spritz Cookies, Miniature Nut Fruitcakes and Mince-meat Crescents. The cookies may be packaged in an apothecary jar or a dime store cookie jar. The Miniature Nut Fruitcakes may be presented in a dish, a basket or on a board covered with clear plastic wrap and tied with a bow. Mince-meat Crescents might be lined up on a small tray or inexpensive plate for holiday hostess gifts.

SPRITZ COOKIES

1 cup (2 sticks) margarine, softened	1 teaspoon almond extract
$\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar	$\frac{3}{4}$ teaspoon salt
1 egg	2 $\frac{1}{4}$ cups flour

Cream together softened margarine and sugar. Add and thoroughly blend in remaining ingredients.

Force dough through cookie press onto ungreased baking sheets in desired shapes. Garnish as desired. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 10 minutes, or until done. Makes 6 dozen.

MINIATURE NUT FRUITCAKES

2½ cups chopped English walnuts	$\frac{3}{4}$ cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 cups (1-pound jar) candied mixed fruits and peels	2 eggs
$\frac{1}{2}$ cup dark seedless raisins	$\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon baking powder
$\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped candied cherries	$\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 $\frac{1}{4}$ cups unsifted flour	$\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon ground allspice
$\frac{3}{4}$ cup (1½ sticks) margarine	$\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon ground cloves
	$\frac{1}{2}$ cup orange juice

Thoroughly combine English walnuts, fruits and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup flour; set aside.

Cream margarine with brown sugar until fluffy. Add eggs and beat at medium speed for 2 minutes, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Sift together $\frac{3}{4}$ cup flour, baking powder and spices. Stir into margarine mixture alternately with orange juice.

Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) for 30 to 35 minutes, or until done. Remove from muffin cups and cool on wire racks. If desired, brush with warm corn syrup to glaze. Makes 24 individual cakes.

MINCEMEAT CRESCENTS

1/2 cup (1 stick) margarine 3/4 cup ready-to-use mincemeat
 1 package (3-oz.) cream cheese 1/3 cup sugar
 1 cup unsifted flour 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

Cream together margarine and cream cheese until well blended. Mix in flour. Shape dough into smooth ball; wrap in wax paper or aluminum foil. Chill one hour or until ready to use.

On a lightly floured board roll dough out to 1/8-inch thickness; cut with 3-inch round cookie cutter. Place about one teaspoonful of mincemeat in center of each round. Fold over; press edges together. Place on ungreased baking sheets.

Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 15 minutes, or until done. Combine sugar and cinnamon; roll cookies in mixture. Cool on wire racks. Makes about 2 dozen.

HARD SAUCE

1/2 cup (1 stick) margarine, softened 1 cup unsifted confectioners' sugar
 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

In small mixer bowl, cream margarine at high speed of electric mixer until light and fluffy (about 5 minutes). Gradually beat in confectioners' sugar. Stir in vanilla extract. Chill about one hour.

Serve over steamed pudding, plum pudding or gingerbread. Makes about 1 1/4 cups.

Spread Holiday Cheer

Disguised by Christmas wrappings, household plastic cartons can assume a more noble identity . . . that of holiday gift containers.

LEAVE a clever — and edible — calling card behind when you pay Christmas visits this year. Your "holiday Potpourri" gift is a tangy blend of cheeses and spices, which you quick-mix yourself.

Pack your cheese spread in colorful "crocks"—which you can decorate using plastic containers (such as those in which cottage cheese, ice cream, or process cheese spreads are sold).

Crocks can be covered with stick-on paper or regular Christmas paper attached with rubber cement or tape. For a freely opening lid: Be sure to tuck the upper edge of the cover fabric up under the "lip" of the container. On lid exterior, cover only the product label, leaving lid sides unencumbered. Decorate with Christmas notions.

For a usable handle, loop ribbon under container (before covering) then tie in a bow on top. Or, simply stripe your container with bright holiday packaging tapes.

Holiday Potpourri: Mix together one part American blue cheese, crumbled, to three parts grated cheddar. For each cup of cheese used, add any or all of these ingredients: A dash of salt; 1/4 tsp. each of dry mustard and Worcestershire sauce, and 1 tsp. each of butter, minced onion, and cracked pepper (optional). Slowly blend in buttermilk until mixture reaches the consistency of soft cheese spreads.

QUESTION — Has Sally Field, who is so cute on "The Flying Nun," had her baby yet? My friend says she read something about it in the papers but I must have missed it. Please fill me in on the facts. — B. S., Bridgeport, Conn.

ANSWER — Sally Field, who is Mrs. Stephen Craig in real life, gave birth on November 10th to a seven-pound, four-ounce baby boy. The Craigs named their son Peter Joshua.

QUESTION — Did Desi Arnaz pass away this year? I'm not one of those morbid rumor mongers who write your column about celebrities passing away. I am truly interested in knowing whether Mr. Arnaz is alive. If he is, what is he doing these days? — Mrs. A. M., Tiverton, Rhode Island.

ANSWER — Desi Arnaz is alive and living in Hollywood! He was the executive producer of "The Mothers-In-Law" TV series and is working on many TV projects for the future.

QUESTION — I enjoy watching "To Tell the Truth" which is shown in our area once again and my particular favorite on the show is Kitty Carlisle. What does Miss Carlisle do besides this show? Is she an actress or a singer or what? Also, someone mentioned she was married to a very famous man. Who is he? — C. J., Westport, Conn.

ANSWER — Miss Carlisle is a singer-actress who is more or less retired. She was married for years to author-playwright-director Moss Hart. Mr. Hart passed away some years ago.

NEW LOOK . . . Although Doris Day has become a smart-looking San Francisco secretary on her Monday night series, she still maintains the family atmosphere with a Mill Valley farm, run by Buck, played by Denver Pyle, who takes care of her two boys during the day. Doris calls Denver her "security" on the series.

Chance to dress up a little Doris Day Show changes format

By CHARLES WITBECK

Doris Day is a sucker for dogs. She acquires canines like some actresses pick up jewelry—they just come out of the blue. A black part-schnauzer, part-poodle with soulful eyes and a pure poodle guarded Doris in her studio hideaway recently as she talked about the Monday night TV show, dogs, clothes, new cars and her old band days.

"I'm a lunch bucket lady," she says. "I told at night. One reason I was happy making movies, we didn't have to work at night."

Those band days, touring with the Les Brown outfit, hardly jibed with the singer's idea of living. She didn't like to perform in front of crowds, and hated those late hours. Maybe it's her German blood. A night lady she isn't.

DORIS had been awakened at 4:45 that morning by five assorted pups, sprawled over her bed, suddenly barking their heads off, and she wasn't upset. Later, when it was time for work, she hopped into a limousine in her bathrobe, accompanied by four dogs including a collie, put her feet up, and looked out the dark glass window. The star feels a little guilty about that dark glass, but since she's in a bathrobe most mornings, it's a necessity.

Miss Day never drives a car any more, she toots about in a limousine as befits a movie actress. She owns a station wagon and attempted to take a spin (Continued on Page 14)

If everybody bought a snow-blower and a snowmobile when they advertised in 96 degree weather, maybe we'll have a snow-less winter.

I saw one of those chefs on television . . . and was he embarrassed. Not only did he burn his casserole but they showed it again on instant replay.

A new Swedish movie is so sick it has been rated Rx.

Folks who keep wishing to get away from it all seem to forget that one of these days they will.

ROBERT MITCHUM
In "Young Billy Young"

Mitchum star in western action film

Searching to find his son's murderer, Robert Mitchum becomes deputy marshal of the corrupt Western town in which he hopes to find the killer in YOUNG BILLY YOUNG, opening Wednesday at the State Theatre.

He befriends would-be gunslinger Billy Young, played by Robert Walker, teaching him some of the tricks necessary in the gun-toting days and aiding the smart-alecky young fellow when he kills a card sharp in self defense.

The town's boss advises the new lawman to play along with him but Mitchum, aided only by young Billy and Lily, the latter a dancehall girl portrayed by Angie Dickinson, establishes law and order and settles his personal vendetta.

Against overwhelming odds, the young and ill-equipped Royal Air Force pilots turn back Hitler's Luftwaffe in a recreation of World War II's BATTLE OF BRITAIN, playing through Tuesday at the State.

A cast of top British actors headed by Sir Laurence Olivier, Michael Caine, Sir Ralph Richardson and Trevor Howard is seen in the drama drawn from the 16 weeks in the summer and fall of 1940 when the fate of Britain hung in the balance following the fall of France and Hitler was readying plans for the invasion of the island.

Children's classic on special bill

The Brothers Grimm classic fairy tale about the miller's daughter who was forced to spin gold from straw for the king, RUMPELSTILTSKIN, will be seen as a special children's matinee feature today at 1:15 and 3 p.m. at the Winona Theatre.

Spectacular sky-diving backgrounds a drama in which the leader of a barnstorming trio falls in love with the faithless wife of a dull small-town businessman in THE GYPSY MOTHS, playing through Tuesday at the Winona.

Burt Lancaster is seen as the leader of the sky-diving team and Deborah Kerr is cast as the beautiful wife he offers the chance for freedom from boredom but who cringes at the thought of entering into a life of uncharted adventure.

The festering self-doubts of a middle-aged couple's childless marriage are explored in 3 INTO 2 WON'T GO, arriving Wednesday at the Winona.

Rod Steiger plays the paunchy, blustering husband, a traveling executive for a London firm who tries to bolster his ego with a succession of easy pickups. Claire Bloom is his wife who, unable to solve her problems, has withdrawn into an austere life bounded by household demands and visits to her difficult mother who has been banished to a rest home by her husband.

The climax builds when one of the husband's latest pickups, a tough, amoral teen-ager played by Judy Gleason, arrives at the couple's home and confronts the wife with a false tale of her becoming pregnant.

COMING THURS. — "TWISTED NERVE"

Fiction characters lose their color

By CHRISTOPHER LEHMANN-HAUPT

New York Times News Service

THE GANG THAT COULDN'T SHOOT STRAIGHT. By Jimmy Breslin. 249 Pages. Viking. $5.95.

On hearing that Jimmy Breslin was writing a novel, one of his admirers is supposed to have remarked, "Why not? He's been writing fiction for years."

That may be true, but it's not true enough, because the distinction of Breslin's newspaper columns — apart from their tough-guy sentimentality, which some people ate up and others found indigestible — lay in the unlikely fact that they were not fictional.

They sometimes seemed fictional. He had lifted a stone off a world that had never seen the light of day before, and the creatures that came scuttling out were unbelievable. The likes of Fat Thomas and Marvin the Torch were a little too much. Even so, one had to pay attention to them, if only because Breslin presented them as facts, and because he told the truth about the rest of the world. And they were interesting because of that small chance that they were not fiction.

TRANSFERRED into a purely fictional world, the blood runs out of them. That's two strikes against "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight"; it's a novel. The third strike is that it isn't a very good novel.

Sure, the book is filled with things that Breslin fans drunk up. It's about the Mafia — a world that Breslin appears to know as well as anyone around equipped to report it. It brims with brutal archness: "Out in the ocean, a rope is put around the man's neck. The other end of the rope is attached to an old jukebox. The jukebox is thrown overboard. The man invariably follows."

Breslin's situation is promising. In the opening sentence of the novel, Anthony Pastrumo Sr., "one of five big bosses of the Mafia gangsters in New York," conceives the revival of the six-day bike race as a suitable setting for petty thievery, lucrative gambling and cheap entertainment. That whetted my interest. A six-day bike race would make a good comic vehicle. I could see Breslin's characters slithering, hacking, conniving around the infield and the stands, while imported Italian labor churned around the track.

BRESLIN'S joke is that in order to organize the race, the Mafia chieftain must deal with a dissident group in his gang, a collection of "reform Italians" led by Kid Sally Palumbo, who has grandiose ambitions but is totally incompetent (hence the title).

But instead of using the bike race for his climax, Breslin sacrifices it to Kid Sally's nincorn-pooper. Because Kid Sally fails to arrange for the removal of the motor pool from the armory in which the race is to be held, the bicycle track can't be built, the opening-night crowd riots, the race is aborted, and Breslin is stuck with all characters and situations he has gathered for the great race. From that point on, the novel coasts to a predictable and repetitive conclusion that leaves threads hanging and far-fetched subplots unresolved. Not funny.

They have paid Breslin a bundle to turn "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight" into a movie. If they follow his plot and leave out that bike race, they're crazy.

Art by a roving loner Heade works on exhibit

There is a well organized art exhibition at New York City's Whitney Museum of American Art, the first one-man show of the works of Martin Johnson Heade (1819-1904), an intriguing figure with a varied repertory who was much neglected until his rediscovery in the 1940's and 1950's with America's 19th century artists, usually associate Heade with his most familiar subjects — orchids and Brazilian humming birds, often combined in a single painting.

But as the show demonstrates, this roving artist who traveled for many years through North and South America and Europe was a loner who also did landscapes, seascapes, stormy scenes, sunrises and sunsets and many still lifes of other flowers — apple blossoms and magnolias among them.

THE EXHIBIT was organized by the art department at the University of Maryland, with major cooperation of Boston's Museum of Fine Arts (which has the Karolik collection) and of the Whitney.

The more than 60 items were selected by Theodore Stebbins, Jr., associate curator of American art at Yale University. The show will be at the Whitney until Dec. 21.

Stebbins' essay in the show's catalogue points out that the artist's long career falls into three periods. The first, 1840 to 1858, is relatively unimportant. He was mastering "the popular styles of genre, portraiture and allegory." Then from 1859 to 1883 there was his major period of landscapes, seascapes and still lifes. From there on he continued to work in his earlier modes.

As a creator of still lifes, says Stebbins, Heade "began as a Victorian painter of flowers and fruit;" by "the seventies he had developed an 'out of doors' growing still life; and by the nineties he was involved with a personal trompe l'oeil style, paralleling that of Peto and Harnett."

HEADE is known to have done about 100 landscapes, with one of his favorite themes the salt marshes of the eastern seaboard. He became a master of marine paintings in the 1860's and Stebbins remarks that his "great marine paintings are more surreal than any other American paintings of the nineteenth century."

This artist was not a member of the Hudson River School. "Though his work often seems close to that of the Hudson River School in subject or approach, he is more properly classified with the tradition of Allston and Ryder, the painters of the inner self, of the romantic and the imaginary," comments Stebbins.

John I. F. Baur, now the Whitney's director, was one of the art experts who several decades ago realized Heade's worth and wrote several articles about "his relationship to other mid-century painters of light," whom Baur called American luminists.

What someone should have pointed out, somewhere along the way, was that Heade was quite a colorist. The current show is full of examples.

He seemed to revel in the use of lush pinks and greens, of gleaming whites and blues, of misty tones contrasting with his more vivid imagery.

STEBBINS' essay sums up. "Heade must be considered a major talent of the nineteenth century. As an artist, his range and productivity were unique. . . . He was a romantic who, thought of himself as a naturalist, a compulsive traveler who missed the great sights of his time, a speculator who was always too late. His personality and his art were both out of place in their time, and they made his worldly failure inevitable; perhaps only now can his art be given its due."

Last week's correct Prizewords solution

- ACROSS
- CHEERY not cheeky. The clue reflects an attitude of approbation, favoring CHEERY rather than cheeky.
 - EXPORTS not experts. Statistics may be subject to expert interpretation, etc.; but they are hardly, specifically, "statistics for experts." EXPORTS is more satisfactory in this respect.
 - SNORTS not snores. A person who SNORTS in derision, etc., may directly give offense. One hardly takes offense at something a person does innocently and unconsciously (snores).
 - FIRE not hire. If slackers are FIRED, it may make little difference to the amount of labor available. On the other hand, men would only be hired with the object of making a definite and useful addition to the labor force.
 - FEW not new. She may, if she is critical enough, find FEW clothes exciting. No dress-conscious woman finds new clothes, in general, exciting.
 - LOAD not loaf. He will have no time to loaf. He "may" have no time to load.
 - ACTS not arts. ACTS is quite apt, some being more popular than others. It is doubtful if the arts in themselves (as distinct from exhibited works) have "general appeal."

27. CONTENTS not contests. The CONTENTS of wills can sometimes lead to harsh words when they are eventually disclosed. Contests of wills, when people are at loggerheads, can just as well be preceded and accompanied by harsh words; there is no reason for them specifically to "lead to" harsh words.

DOWN

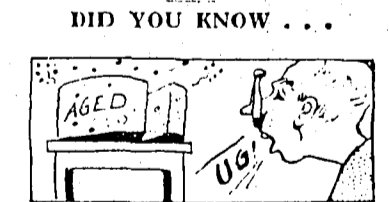

- CHANGES not chances. In broad terms, there are many CHANGES in the world, of course. The idea of "chances in the world" is too vague; it should be chances of something, or chances for somebody.
- YEARS not fears or tears. "Indulgently" suggests a sort of fond tolerance; but one may well feel, if anything, somewhat shame-faced about one's childhood fears or tears. When looking back on one's childhood YEARS, many escapades may come to mind which can now be viewed with an indulgent smile.
- ROPE not hope. ROPE is used in mountaineering, of course. Rather than "hope" (which reflects the wrong sort of attitude) the climbers would have a reasonable degree of confidence, or optimism.
- PARKING not parting. The clue suits something that one person does, favoring PARKING. It takes at least two people to part.
- MYSTERY not mastery. Specifying "crime" is a pointer to MYSTERY. Also, a critic admires mastery, not this or that "sort of" mastery.
- LAST not fast. A skilled driver has no objection at all to driving fast, though he may, of course, prefer not to have to drive too fast. LAST can be an inconvenient position in which to drive.
- WAITING not wanting. The clue clearly refers to a man who is being kept WAITING. A man wanting to make a call may be about to step into the booth!
- CATCH not match. A party mood can aptly be viewed as infectious, favoring CATCH. To "match" anything infers a conscious choice, and one can hardly match a mood.
- CAVE not cafe. Since there is little guarantee of privacy in a cafe, CAVE is the stronger answer.

WEEKEND BIRTHDAYS
 Best known in his own time as a writer of sea stories, Joseph Conrad is now more admired as a novelist of moral exploration and a master of narrative technique.

He was influenced by the technique of Henry James. His greatest novels were "Heart of Darkness" and the popular "Lord Jim."

Conrad's earliest novels, including "Almayer's Folly" and "An Outcast of the Islands," are full of romantic description, with a mysterious, mystical atmosphere with much analysis and brooding.

He described men's characters being tested in conditions of extreme danger and difficulty. Almost all his mature novels are concerned with moral dilemmas, isolation and the psychology of men's inner urges.

"The Nigger of the Narcissus," "The Secret Agent," "Under Western Eyes," "Victory," "The Arrow of Gold" and "The Rescue" are examples of this psychology.

The son of a Polish nobleman, writer and militant nationalist, Conrad led an adventurous youth. From 1878 to 1894 he worked at sea on British merchant ships, rising to the rank of captain.

As a boy he educated himself by reading widely in Polish and French, but he began to learn English only when he became a seaman.

He was a naturalized British citizen. In 1895 he published his first novel, "Almayer's Folly," left the sea and began to write.

He is regarded as a major 20th century novelist and a master stylist.

Others born Saturday include Henry VI of England, Wally Cox.

Dear Abby:

Correction will restore her image

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We recently moved to this town, bought a nice home in a good neighborhood and settled down to become part of the community.

Now comes my problem: Last week, while shopping for the usual items one needs after a move, I foolishly laid my purse down on the counter to look at something, and in a matter of seconds, my purse was gone. The person who took it then hurried to another store where she was picked up for shoplifting. She refused to identify herself, so the police looked in the purse she was carrying and found MY identification. The next day the newspaper published the police report which stated that I had been arrested for shoplifting!

Abby, I told everyone I know how the mistake was made and thought they would surely believe me. I was wrong. Some of my neighbors are treating me very coldly and when I try to explain the circumstances to others, I get the impression they think I'm lying.

What can I do?

DISAPPOINTED N PEOPLE

Abby

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: If your local newspaper has not published a CORRECTION of the error, they certainly should.

And you have every right to insist upon it. In the meantime, hold your head high, and be aware that people are inclined to believe what they want to believe. And the "nice" people will give you the benefit of the doubt.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who used to be a school teacher. Now she's married and has a four-year-old kid. She bought herself a paddle to hit the kid with whenever he says "Huh" instead of "I BEG YOUR PARDON." You can hear this kid yelling his head off about 30 times a day.

Personally, I don't approve of hitting kids with anything but the open hand and I wish you'd put this in the paper with your answer because she reads your column every day.

NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: Apparently your neighbor's method of "teaching" isn't very successful. If it were, she wouldn't have to paddle the kid 30 times a day.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my daughter-in-law. I thought we were close up until a few months ago. (I hope I don't sound "catty" but now I suspect Zelda was so sweet to me because she didn't have a washer-dryer then, and also she used to complain a lot about how she hated to cook, and I would invite her and my son for supper nearly every night.)

Well, Zelda had a baby a few months ago and now everything is changed. This is our first grandchild so need I tell you how thrilled we are.

In the first place I practically have to have an "appointment" to see the baby. I am told what "hours" I should come, and if I drop in unexpectedly she won't even let me in the baby's room to look at her! Also she even tells me how to hold the baby. (Abby, I've had seven of my own, so I don't think I need any lessons.)

Don't tell me to wait until she brings the baby to ME. She brought her only once and she stayed exactly 21 minutes!

Please tell me what to do as I don't want to be a pushy mother-in-law, but I don't want my grandchild to grow up without being able to recognize me.

HURT IN BUFFALO

DEAR HURT: Don't DO anything. Be patient. Baby care is still a novelty to Zelda. In time the novelty will wear (and so will Zelda), and I'll bet you will see a good deal more of both of them.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "MARTY": When your wife no longer cares how late you come home, it's later than you think.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

ANY WOMAN who irons BOTH SIDES of her pillowcases just isn't going to be ready in time for the merry-go-round that calls itself the HOLIDAY SEASON.

Christmas used to last 12 days, but you'd better start your list today or the First Day of it may find you giftless.

Some enterprising fellow could make himself rich this season if he could figure out a way to make a woman's shoe that is bigger on the inside than it looks on the outside.

Or figure out a recipe box that wouldn't lose all the holiday favorites categorically.

MY CANDY RECIPES always end up in the bread division of the card system and the Kringles slip slithers back till it joins old photographs in the back of the box. No wonder my holiday baking is always delayed.

This year Science has on the shelves Instant Linen. The sheets last about seven days . . . so when THEY are worn out, so is YOUR welcome, it seems.

I wonder if you get a refund if the towel you are using after a shower suddenly disposes itself into shreds.

Even the Gee-Haw-Whimmeydiddle is less dangerous than that!

December is not the month to start worrying about the wolf at your door—just keep feeding him on the installment plan.

BUT DO KEEP YOUR FEET DRY. Or else you are apt to discover that even a holiday spirit and a good disposition are no match for a bad cold.

Her production crew, cast 'mother-hen' Doris Day not too long ago, but couldn't find the ignition. As for the new cars, phooey.

"They're dreadful," she says. "There's no room in the back to put your feet. Where do they go—out the window?"

At CBS Studio Center where the Doris Day Show is filmed, the Day dogs have the run of the place. They even accompany their mistress to the projection room and look at show footage. If Doris looks bad they bark.

ONE MADE a fuss on the set when a strange man walked into the living room, and the actress asked the fellow to identify himself. He was a crew member who worked up high on a stage catwalk — slightly out of smelling and seeing range.

Miss Day takes great comfort in her cast and crew, composed of some who've been with her since early Warner Brothers picture days.

"I'm not gooey," she says, prefacing remarks on the staff, "but the crew is a part of me. They mother-hen me. They tell me the time since I hate wearing a watch, and they keep track of things like 'Did you have your vitamin 12 shot?'"

"My green man brings me heather, Denver Pyle (Grandpa) checks my wardrobe, and my new boss, McClean Stevenson, is a find. Denver is my security. He helped a lot last year after my husband's death, and he'll come in, though not on call, just so I'll have someone to read lines to."

WHEN THE SHOW changed format this fall to Doris Day, widow and secretary to a San Francisco magazine editor, it gave the actress chance to dress up a little and wear all those sports clothes she is so crazy about. Doris may not be a night owl, but she digs clothes, and wears many of her own outfits on the series, avoiding the more sophisticated cuts.

"I don't want to get too uptown this year, but I'm wearing what I like," she explains.

Doris leans toward light fabrics, simple in cut. She doesn't like to feel her clothes and avoids heavy suits. She can't wear mini-skirts and steers away from button suits ("they make me look like a pigeon.") She also passes up long sweaters on camera because they make her legs look short.

With the new time on the network's big night, plus a format change, the Doris Day Show shot up in the ratings, and the star has emerged from a difficult transition period. The career will continue, but Doris says, "if I marry again I could give it all up."

CARE OF CARPET & RUGS

Today, we are glad to bring you some helpful hints on how to take care of your floor covering. We hope you find this useful.

For removal of lint, dust and surface soil use your carpet sweeper daily and then use a thorough vacuum cleaning once a week to prevent soil from becoming embedded in the carpet.

Professional cleaning is advisable once a year in most cases. This may be done right in the home by professional cleaners using shampooing, or if you have purchased your carpet from us originally you may want to use our commercial shampooer. There is no charge for the use of it and you can expect excellent results. Removable rugs may be sent out for shampooing or dry cleaning.

Immediate removal of spots and stains is most important. Remove the excess liquid with a blotter or absorbent cloth. Sponge the spot with a solution of one teaspoonful of detergent in a quart of water, adding a teaspoonful of white vinegar on stubborn spots. Avoid getting the carpet too wet, and then dry it as quickly as possible.

"Sprouting" (rising of tufts above the pile level) is corrected by snipping off the loose tufts. Rising tufts should be clipped but NEVER pulled out.

Shading and fluff of carpet is not a defect. It simply means that loose bits of material are coming through the surface and these are removed by the vacuum until fluffing gradually stops.

See a leaf emit water

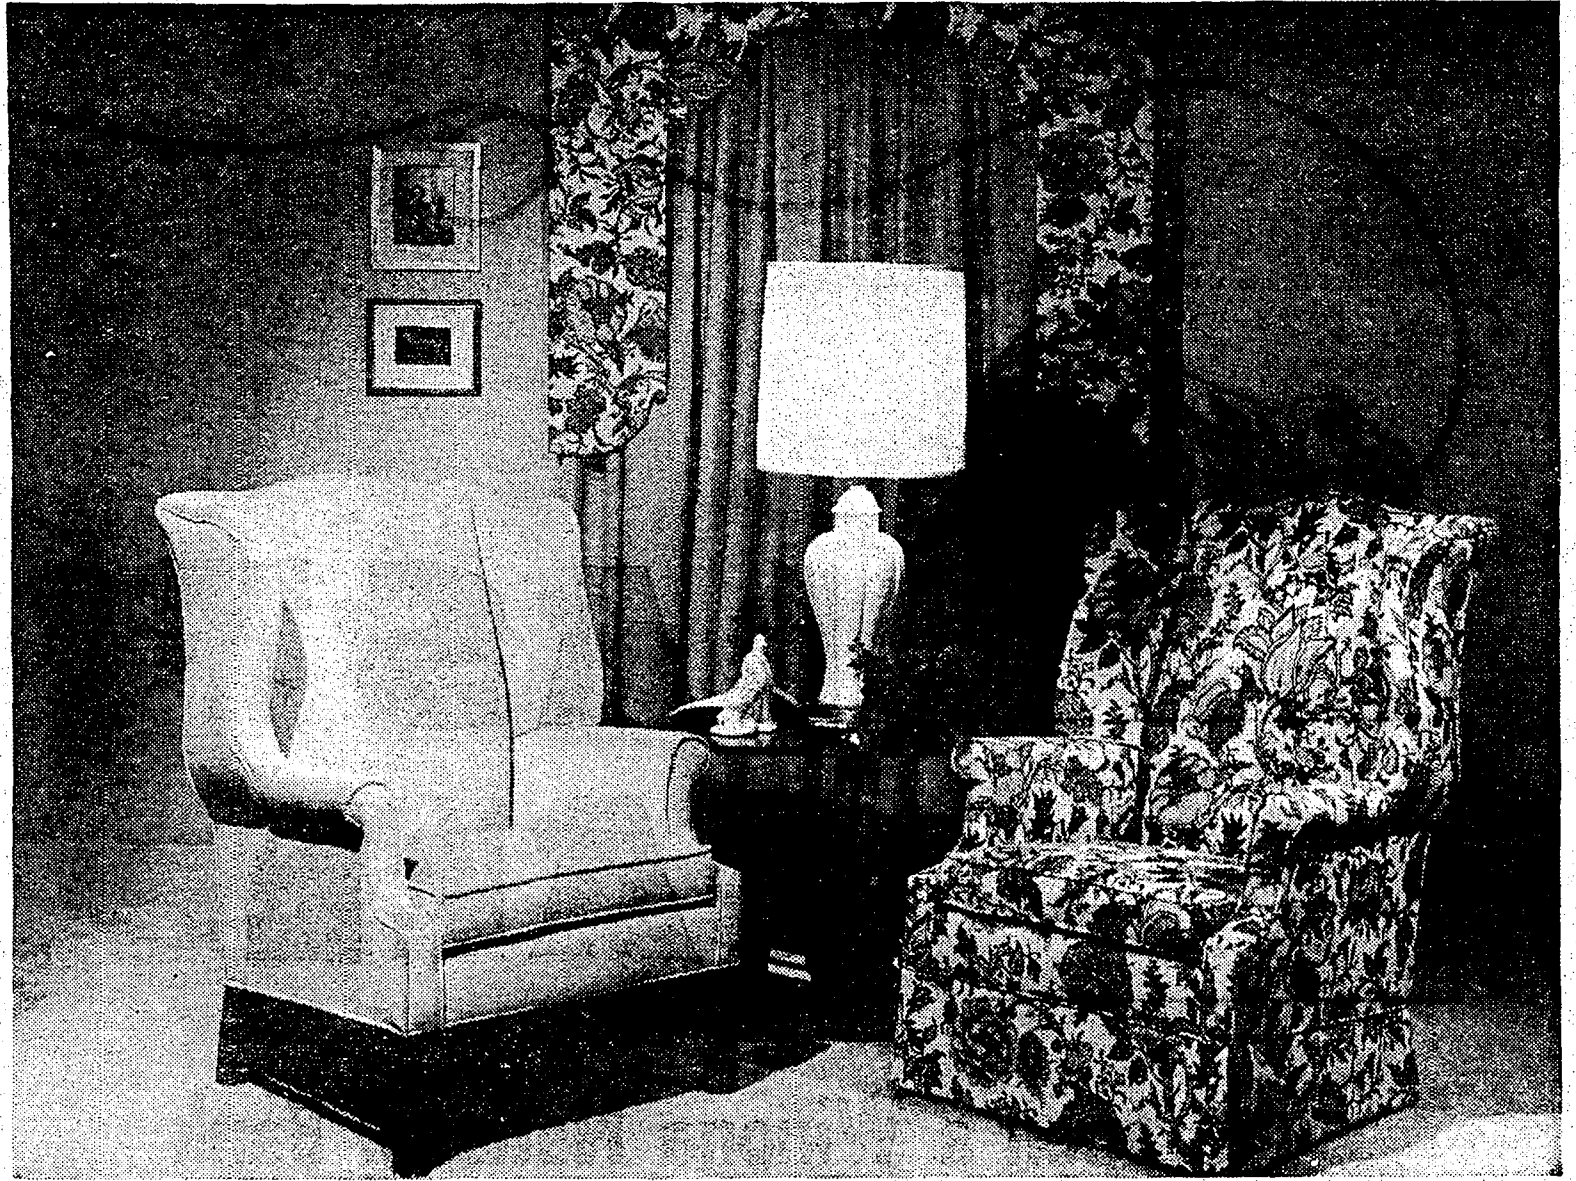

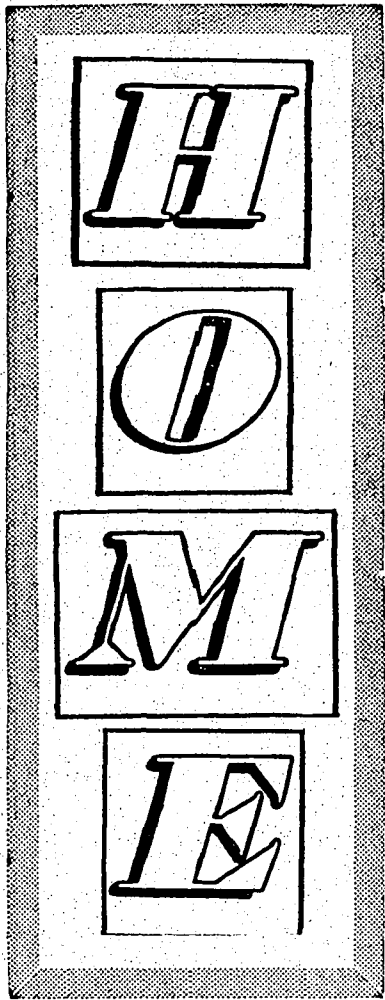

PROBLEM: Transpiration.

NEEDED: A large thick leaf of a plant complete with all its stem, two glass jars, cardboard, modeling clay, water, sunlight.

DO THIS: Make a hole in the card, place the stem through it, and seal it with clay. Place the card over a jar of water so that the stem reaches into the water, and place the second jar over the leaf. Put the jars in the light.

WHAT HAPPENS: Water traveling up through the stem is evaporated from the leaf, and may be seen to collect in small drops inside the upper jar. Sealing the stem in the card insures that no water will evaporate directly from the lower jar into the upper one.

The process in which leaves give off water, evaporating it into the air, is called "transpiration" and is an extremely important fact of biology.

New chairs bring color, freshness into a room

Is "Something for the House" on your Christmas season buying list as a gift for the family or simply to brighten the home for the holidays? Think of chairs, then, because there's hardly a living area in which a new chair can't provide, at minimal cost, a new touch of color and comfort. When you're planning a purchase, too, remember that a new way to bring color and freshness into a living room—and on a low budget—with a very custom-made appearance and an economical approach is to use matching patterns for window treatment and upholstery. The selection of an exciting, gay pattern also allows for the use of accent accessories such as pillows, vases and the like in your setting. In the setting above, notice how the patterned valance makes a complimentary background for the chair on the left covered with an elegant velvet. The patterned fabric is protected against soils and stains. The wing chairs are of chippendale design with the provincial wood finished base or tailored kick pleats. Both have solid oak frames and spring construction.

Comfort, of course, should be the key word when you shop for an all-family chair. And it is when you consider a recliner like the one at the left with deep, soft cushioning and a tufted barrel back. Only 33 inches in width, it's ideal for bedroom, family room and living room uses. It has a metal reinforced solid hardwood frame and a completely counter-balanced mechanism and spring. Covered in glove soft vinyl for long wear and easy care, it's available in any color selected. There's also a choice of three proportioned sizes . . . the regular height back at 39 inches, tall at 41 inches and extra tall back at 43 inches.
