Full employment: two magic words

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The term "full employment" is in 'vogue' with today's economic seers and policymakers. But the magic words don't always mean what they seem to say.

An AP News Analysis

For example, an avowed goal of President Nixon's economic policy is full employment by mid-1972. Yet some of his advisers admit they'd be reasonably happy if, by that time, there were as many as 3.5 million men and women still looking for jobs.

And the President wants to balance the "full employment budget" for fiscal 1972, starting next July 1. He may do that, but he could still have a real, financial deficit of $10 or $12 billion.

What does full employment mean, then?

In customary Washington usage nowadays, it means getting unemployment down to about 4 percent of the labor force.

That would still leave at least 3.3 million people jobless.

Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers told questioners he thinks of 4 percent as "the midpoint of a full employment zone." Other officials acknowledge that anything up to 4.5 percent—and maybe a little more—would be a reasonable goal for mid-1972.

And that would represent a solid gain, because many expect the rate to climb above 6 percent in 1971 before it starts down. Few think it will get as low as 5 percent any time next year.

The term full employment became embedded in the language during the Great Depression of the 1930s, when it was a pie-in-the-sky target of the Roosevelt New Deal.

The definition was vague, but it was achieved in World War II. Over-achieved, in fact, because the wartime labor shortage was as acute as the time or meat shortage.

In many respects the country's war production effort was limited by lack of labor. Even so, there was still 1.2 percent unemployment in 1944, the year of peak homefront effort.

This was less than what the experts call normal "frictional" unemployment. Frictional unemployment represents newcomers to the labor force who haven't yet found work, workers who quit to hunt another job, some who were laid off but hope to be called back; others who are idle because of weather, or who are waiting for a call to work from a cannery, lumber mill or other seasonal or sporadic employer.

A quarter-century ago it was generally assumed that the frictionally unemployed—plus those who couldn't get work because of illiteracy, instability or other handicaps—would add up to 2 or 2½ percent of the labor force.

If Laird can find a way

Accelerated withdrawals seen

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird will explore ways to accelerate the withdrawal of U.S. troops when he visits Vietnam next month, sources say.

Pentagon officials say cutting the current U.S. troop strength of about 343,000 in half during the coming year is a reasonable goal.

At that level, the United States might need only volunteers in Southeast Asia.

Laird's public position, as he told a news conference Tuesday, is to "meet or beat" a troop ceiling objective of 234,000 by next May 1, as set by President Nixon.

The defense secretary refuses to project beyond that date, but according to every indicator he is anxious for a faster pace.

After an expected lull in withdrawals for a couple of months as insurance against a possible enemy lunar new year offensive, the pullout pace is likely to speed up again.

Pentagon authorities now forecast that the U.S. troop level by next May 1 may be down as low as 275,000—or 9,000 under Nixon's stated objective.

The U.S. ground combat role is due to end by then, and the drive to turn over to the South Vietnamese the more complex air and logistics support functions will accelerate.

Even as the reduction of U.S. combat activities and casualties has claimed more public attention, the United States has been working to prepare the South Vietnamese for the support role.

Training in such fields as aircraft and helicopter operations, aircraft and weapons maintenance, and other technical tasks, takes longer than conventional infantry and artillery instruction.

It is in these technical areas that Laird hopes to spur a speedup.

Pentagon officials expect no serious opposition from U.S. military leaders in Saigon. What the South Vietnamese reaction may be to such prodding is open to question.

Defense planners aim to pare the U.S. presence in Vietnam to an advisory force of about 40,000 men by the summer of 1972. At the peak of U.S. involvement, the United States had a total of 543,400 uniformed men in Vietnam on April 30, 1969.

How long an advisory force would remain in Vietnam could hinge on whether and when the United States and North Vietnam reach a political settlement of the war.

South Viets drive deep into Cambodia

Dayan begins campaign for cease-fire

SAIGON (AP) — Thousands of South Vietnamese paratroopers have pushed 40 miles into Cambodia today, trying to break a North Vietnamese stranglehold on the Cambodian government's northern front.

"The aim of the operation is to relieve the pressure on the Cambodian provincial capital of Kompong Cham," South Vietnamese military headquarters said.

Kompong Cham has been under siege for several months. Cambodia's third largest city, it lies on Highway 7 along the Mekong River, 47 miles northeast of Phnom Penh and 120 miles northwest of Saigon.

Field reports said 2,500 of the South Vietnamese army's best troops were landed by waves of helicopters into rubber plantations northwest of Kompong Cham on Monday. A communique said the paratroopers met little initial resistance, and a spokesman said two minor contacts were reported Tuesday with four North Vietnamese killed and one paratrooper wounded.

The South Vietnamese spokesman said it appeared that a sizeable North Vietnamese force that earlier had been reported in the region had pulled back for the time being, thus accounting for the light contact.

Two joint forces of South Vietnamese and Cambodian troops were reported moving from west and east in an attempt to clear the 32 miles of Route 7 west of Kompong Cham to the district town of Skoun.

A linkup was expected soon.

Only small clashes were reported across South Vietnam. U.S. officials reported an American was killed and five wounded when two helicopters were shot down and another was hit by enemy fire.

Two GIs were killed and three wounded in other actions in South Vietnam.

Reports reaching Saigon said 25 Vietnamese were killed and 50 wounded from two explosions Monday night in a crowd of 500 people in a Mekong Delta village 44 miles southwest of Saigon. Earlier reports put the casualty toll at 17 killed and 87 wounded.

TEL AVIV (AP) — Defense Minister Moshe Dayan reportedly began a campaign today for a permanent cease-fire along the waterway arranged by the United Nations.

Dayan invited the chief U.N. truce observer, Maj. Gen. Ensis Silasvuo of Finland, to Jerusalem to discuss the "object" of the current standstill scheduled to expire Feb. 5.

But informed sources said Dayan asked Silasvuo during the half-hour conference to go to Cairo "to work out and consolidate a proper extension of the present cease-fire." The initiative reportedly was prompted by Dayan's discussions last week with President Nixon in Washington.

Dayan told newsmen he and Silasvuo discussed ways to safeguard the truce and the situation of seriously wounded Israeli servicemen held prisoner by Egypt. Israel wants the United Nations to seek their release. King Hussein of Jordan continued his swing through the West and arrived in Bonn for talks with Chancellor Willy Brandt and Foreign Minister Walter Scheel.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt sent Hussein an urgent appeal to "put a final end" to animosity between the Jordanian army and the Palestinian guerrillas, the Cairo newspaper Al Ahran reported.

The note urged both parties to abide strictly by the provisions of the September Cairo agreement that ended Jordan's 1-day civil war, the newspaper said.

Further fighting in Jordan, it said, "continues to drain the eastern front at a time when the moment of decision is approaching with the end of the current cease-fire period."

The Egyptian president also sent messages to leaders of Syria, Libya and Sudan—Egypt's partners in a projected Arab federation—calling for joint action to solve the Jordanian problem.

'Explosive' economic game plan forecasted

NEW YORK (AP) — The most daring game plan to evolve during the next few weeks will likely have more to do with the pre-election economic policies of the Nixon administration than with postseason football bowl games.

Present indications are that after playing two years of defensive ball control, the Nixon team is planning an explosive second half, even if it requires they give up a few points to the foe.

That much can now be deduced from reports that the Council of Economic Advisers hopes to achieve a real growth in the economy of 8 percent, a figure more than double what many economists figure would constitute a good year.

Such a plan would involve more spending by government and a relaxation of monetary restraint by the Federal Reserve Board, which largely controls monetary policy.

The chief goal of such a game plan — or at least the most likely result — would be a sharp decrease in unemployment from the current rate of 5.8 percent or more of the civilian labor force to something near or less than 5 percent by election time.

And, many economists believe, a corollary of such a program might be a continuation of inflation at a rate well in excess of the goal originally sought by the administration. It would be a concession to the foe.

However, if inflation does continue at a rate of 4 percent a year, it could bring with it a renewal of pressures on the dollar, which some foreign governments continue to feel is over-valued in relation to other currencies.

Either way the game is played from now on, the focus is likely to be on the 1972 election. As the administration learned in the past two years, there is a long lag before economic policies bring desired results.

The big problem for the administration is that while it can outline a game plan it cannot put it into being without the cooperation of other elements, somewhat in the way a coach must rely on the weather and the inspiration of his rooters. The President does not have the power to dictate events.

Economic upturn signs 'missing'

By BILL NEIKIRK
WASHINGTON (AP) — With industrial production taking a fourth straight monthly slide, signs of a hoped-for economic upturn continue to elude the Nixon administration.

The six-tenths of one percent decline in the key economic indicator in November came despite settlement of the United Auto Workers' strike against General Motors.

While the drop was not as severe as October's decline during the height of the strike, it still reflected a lag in the economy.

The Federal Reserve Board Tuesday attributed most of the drop to a slack of output in business and defense equipment and industrial materials.

But the board offered one hopeful note.

Economic Advisers, was quoted as giving Republican senators Tuesday a "moderately optimistic" view of the economy in 1971.

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., said McCracken predicted a mild decrease in unemployment in 1971, "but not of a startling nature." In November, unemployment stood at 5.8 percent of the work force, highest in 7½ years.

In other news of the economy, the government reported the nation's economy passed the $1 trillion mark Tuesday.

President Nixon celebrated the event by unveiling a new Gross National Product clock, an electric device that ticks off the nation's output in goods and services at the rate of $2,000 per second.

Nixon said the nation would not be able to propose government health, education and welfare programs without such "an enormously productive economy."

The GNP clock, which ticks off inflation as well as growth in the economy, cost about $6,000. Commerce Department officials said.

Senate doves blocking aid-to-Cambodia issue

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate doves have blocked temporarily further action on providing aid to Cambodia, claiming the Nixon administration seeks not money but a "political instrument like the Gulf of Tonkin resolution."

"We ought to be very careful about going down that road a second time," said Sen. J. W. Fulbright, R-Ark., in referring to the 1964 legislation that opened the way to escalation of the Vietnam war.

Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, learned with Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, Tuesday to block action on a $550-million foreign aid bill despite a set of tight restrictions on $255 million earmarked for Cambodia.

Neither senator would indicate when he might permit a vote. But Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield set aside some time today for continued debate before calling up an appropriations measure containing funds for the supersonic transport plane.

Adding to confusion over the Cambodian aid program was action by a House-Senate conference committee weakening yet another set of restrictions on U.S. involvement in Cambodia.

The conferees, in approving a $66.69 billion defense money bill, barred use of U.S. combat troops in Cambodia. But they tacked on a paragraph which Mansfield said nullifies the intent.

That paragraph, included at the insistence of House conferees, says:

"Nothing contained in this section should be construed as prohibiting the President from taking action in said areas designed to promote the safe and orderly withdrawal or disengagement of U.S. forces from Southeast Asia or to aid in the release of Americans held prisoner of war."

The restraints in the aid bill, approved Monday by the Foreign Relations Committee, include a prohibition against ground combat troops and advisers in Cambodia. There is a statement that approval of aid is not a commitment to defend the country and a requirement that the President inform Congress 30 days before giving Cambodia additional emergency assistance.

The authorization bill had been expected to sail through the Senate. Only the day before, in what amounted to a slightly unorthodox cart-before-the-horse procedure, the Senate had approved actual appropriation of the aid. Included, however, was a proviso that bars spending until the authorization is approved — a procedure that sometimes is ignored.

Against that backdrop, Gravel introduced an amendment to strip all new Cambodian money — $155 million — from the authorization bill. The remainder of the $255 million is to repay funds transferred earlier to Cambodia.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, assistant Republican leader, said adoption of the Gravel amendment "would very seriously jeopardize withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam."

Emasculation just a rumor, police say

The Winona Police Department has asked local news media to clear the air of rumors circulating in the city about an alleged child emasculation.

Assistant Chief John Scherer said this morning that rumors that an eight-year-old boy had been emasculated in a shopping center rest room near here were completely unfounded.

The rumor flared up here, he said, after a letter to the editor appeared in Monday's Daily News. Since then, all local law enforcement agencies have been plagued with telephone calls about the incident.

In denying that the incident took place, Scherer noted particularly that the woman was not to be blamed in any way. "The woman is genuinely concerned," Scherer said, "and — being a mother with small children — she has a right to be concerned."

The assistant chief said that public concern about the rumored incident led him to order juvenile division Sgt. James Hill to conduct a thorough investigation to trace the rumor.

Sgt. Hill's report, completed this morning, states that the Rochester Police Department originally received an anonymous telephone call reporting that an eight-year-old St. Charles boy had been emasculated by a group of youths in a rest room at the Apache Mall Shopping Center, Rochester, on Nov. 13.

An extensive police investigation ran up against a stone wall, Scherer said, and detectives there were unable to find any evidence that the event occurred.

Rochester authorities pleaded for information through the news media there, but were unable to come up with anyone who knew anything about the incident.

Their final conclusion was that it had never happened.

Walker accepts recount figures; drops court action

WALKER, Minn. (AP) — The loser in a race for a House seat in District 58A has accepted recount figures and will drop further court action, his attorney said Tuesday.

DFLer Bill Walker of Brainard originally was named the 11-vote winner over Conservative M. K. "Dutch" Cragan of East Gull Lake in the Nov. 3 election.

The recount requested by Cragan showed Walker the winner by five votes.

Woman is slightly hurt in accident

One person received minor injuries Tuesday in one of two accidents reported in the city.

Helen Hornberg, 521 E. 3rd St., was treated for minor injuries at Community Memorial Hospital and released.

She was hurt at 9:58 p.m. Tuesday at East 5th and Hamilton streets when the car in which she was a passenger collided with another.

She was riding in a 1965 model sedan driven by Paul D. Fakler, Sugar Loaf, which was northbound on Hamilton when it collided with a 1959 model sedan driven by Jac J. Smith, 17 St. Charles, eastbound on 5th.

Damage ran $750 to the Fakler car and $950 to the Smith car, police said.

Charges are pending as a result of that accident.

Lake City man hurt while snowmobiling

LAKE CITY, Minn. (Special) — A rural Lake City man was listed in good condition this morning at St. John's Hospital, Red Wing, where he was taken Saturday evening after receiving severe facial lacerations in a snowmobile accident near Hay Creek, between Red Wing and Goodhue.

He is Roger Meyer, 37, Lake City Rt. 1, who cut his mouth, lower lip, chin and right cheek when he accidentally ran into some barbed wire fence.

Meyer underwent surgery for 3 1/2 hours that night to have the cuts sutured.

His wife was seated behind him on the snowmobile at the time of the accident. The barbed wire tore the hood of her parka when it glanced over her head.

The Meyers were in a party of six, who were out for an evening of snowmobiling. The accident happened about 9:20 p.m., as the Meyers' machine went down into a ditch, en route to a field.

Burglaries of homes continue

City police detectives today are investigating two more in a continuing series of house burglaries, according to Assistant Police Chief John Soberer.

Roger Yeske, 467 W. Howard St., told police at 4:28 p.m. Tuesday that his home had been entered during the day while he was out.

Entry was gained by prying open a back window, Scherer said. The home was ransacked, but no list of missing items had been turned in by 9:30 a.m. today.

The other burglary was at the William Wooden residence, 917 E. 5th St. Wooden reported at 9 a.m. today that his home had been entered sometime during the night through some unlocked rear french doors.

Missing, Wooden told authorities, is $75 cash and $55 worth of women's clothing and undergarments.

In other police action, Glen Van Fossen, 3675 9th St., Goodview, told police at 2:38 p.m. Tuesday that his $72 coat was stolen from a rack at the Williams Hotel.

Reported at 9:45 a.m. Tuesday was a vandalism incident at a laundromat at the West End Trailer Court. A flowerpot was thrown through the front door there, authorities said, doing $40 damage.

Goodfellows need more contributions

The Winona Goodfellows program of buying badly needed Christmas gifts for needy youngsters is being endangered by lagging contributions, it was announced today.

Collections for the fund are running several hundred dollars behind the pace of last year's giving. An urgent appeal was issued today by Goodfellows headquarters for additional gifts to finance vitally needed purchases for less fortunate children of the community.

Actual expenditures have exceeded the income, reported Mrs. James Harris, fund secretary, but hopes are that incoming donations will balance the books. More importantly, she said, the extra funds will assure that no deserving child is bypassed.

Present plans call for finishing the gift purchases by Friday, before schools are dismissed for the holidays. Mrs. Harris said the fund's dilemma is complicated by the fact that prices have risen and that a given amount of money buys less this year than last.

Drury pleads innocent to all charges

ROCHESTER, Minn.—Former Wabasha County Attorney Edward J. Drury pleaded innocent this morning in Olmsted County District Court when he was arraigned on 30 indictments and two presentments.

Judge O. Russell Olson continued bond at $10,000 and Drury was returned to the Wabasha County jail.

Appearing with the defendant were his court-appointed attorneys, Robert Dunlap, Rochester, and Patrick Foley, Minneapolis. Paul Anderson, from the attorney general's office, represented the state.

Counts against Drury are: two presentments for aggravated forgery; one indictment for aggravated forgery (on six counts); 11 for misconduct for an attorney; 15 indictments for theft and three indictments for making fraudulent statements.

All are felonies with the exception of misconduct for an attorney—that is a misdemeanor.

Rural Eleva woman killed by shotgun blast

By VI BENICKE
Daily News Staff Writer
ELEVA, Wis. (Special)—Mrs. David (Grace) Franzwa, 24, Eleva Rt. 1, (Norden) was shot and killed about 10:40 p.m. Tuesday in the living room of her farm home.

Richard Ellingson, Whitehall, Trempealeau County coroner, said he has not made a ruling on the death, pending further investigation. He stated she died of a gunshot wound.

She was taken to Buffalo Memorial Hospital, Mondovi, by the Mondovi Ambulance Service and was pronounced dead on arrival. This morning the body was taken to Sacred Heart Hospital, Eau Claire, where an autopsy was performed.

THE SHOOTING is being investigated by Trempealeau County District Attorney William A. Matka; Ellingson; Sheriff Stanley Amundson and Milo Johnson, special investigator.

Franzwa told the Daily News this noon that he was in the process of cleaning his 12-gauge shotgun just prior to the shooting.

The blast struck her in the chest from a distance of 2 1/2 feet, as she was lying on the couch in the living room, according to Franzwa.

"If it would have been an inch lower it would have gone right into the davenport; it would have missed her completely," said Franzwa, who was sitting on a rocking chair, about 2 1/2 feet from his wife, with the supposedly "unloaded" shotgun on his lap.

Franzwa reconstructed events which led up to the fatal shooting.

HIS WIFE WAS changing furniture around, making preparations for the arrival of a new automatic washing machine, which was to be delivered this morning.

While she was making the changes, he was in the basement hooking up the water pipes for the new machine. When he came upstairs he brought two guns with him, a 22-rifle and the 12-gauge shotgun, that his wife had been after him to clean for some time, he said. He took the shotgun out of the case and stood it and the encased rifle in a corner of the kitchen while he went into the living room to hear the weather report on television.

His wife went out into the kitchen to get some dirty clothes out of the old wringer type washer and then brought them into the living room and placed them in a clothes hamper which was standing next to the rocking chair on which Franzwa was sitting.

"Then she brought the shotgun, some cleaning oil and a cloth to me and laid them on my lap, because she thought I was trying to get out of cleaning the guns. She wanted them cleaned and put upstairs out of reach of our little boy.

"WHEN SHE put the gun on my lap the barrel was pointing in the direction in which she was walking back and forth so I turned it around so that the barrel faced the davenport.

"In the meantime I had not noticed that she had gone over and laid down on the davenport. I wasn't really watching what I was doing with the gun, since I was watching television. When I reached my hand around the gun to open the chamber on the pump shotgun I must have hit the trigger at the same time.

"The blast from the shotgun struck her as she was lying on the couch, about 2 1/2 feet away," said Franzwa.

Franzwa said he had a habit of falling asleep in the rocking chair at night while watching television. So he surmised that is why his wife brought the shotgun in to him, to make sure he would clean it so it could be put away.

Last time he used the shotgun was two years ago, he explained, just before he left to serve in the Army. During his absence, he added, the shotgun had been loaned out to different persons. There was just one shell in the shotgun, which Franzwa said he believed was empty.

THE FORMER Grace Christianson, she was born Dec. 1, 1946 in Eau Claire to Mr. and Mrs. Jay Christianson. She was a graduate of Eleva-Strum High School and worked at Investors Services in Minneapolis prior to her marriage.

Survivors are: her husband; a son, Tommy, 2, her parents, Eleva, and a sister, Mrs. Larry (Judy) Hilliard, Mondovi Rt. 1.

Kjenvet & Son Funeral Home, Mondovi, has charge of arrangements, which are incomplete.

A SURPRISE VISITOR . . . Santa Claus hurried over from his temporary home in the Mall to wish everyone a Merry Christmas and distribute the gifts from around the tree. Here he's giving one to Mrs. Mabel Roberson.

Historical group hears Yule tale

The Winona County Historical Society Museum at 125 W. 5th Street was packed to overflowing Tuesday night for the annual Christmas party.

The program featured a chapter read by Brother Theodore from his forthcoming book, "I Grew Up in West Burns Valley," which will be published under society auspices in January. Brother Theodore described the excitement of his brothers and sister at the West Burns Valley home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Voelker.

"Visions of Sugarplums," the chapter title, describes the extensive holiday baking on the old wood-burning stove. There was excitement engendered in the children when their mother locked herself in the parlor to surround the as yet unseen Christmas tree with heretofore hidden gifts. The arrival of Santa Claus late that night, brought the tinkling of reindeer bells which sounded much like the bells worn by Colonel, the family horse, on his many trips to town in preparation for the holiday.

Christmas Eve supper of oyster stew, fried potatoes and eggs brought a chuckle from many in the audience whose memories traveled back with Brother Theodore's account of a Luxemburger Christmas in the years from 1908 to 1912.

While the group awaited the arrival of Santa Claus at the museum, Ray Taggart led in group singing of Christmas carols, with Mrs. Henry Hull at the old-fashioned organ.

Following distribution of gifts, a lunch of Christmas cookies and coffee was served.

Dr. L. I. Younger, society director, introduced Brother Theodore and John Waldow, president, reminisced on the Christmas season in days gone by.

Report Anderson to ask more than $2 billion

ST. PAUL (AP)—Governor-elect Wendell R. Anderson is expected to present a budget of well over $2 billion to the 1971 legislature.

Capitol sources reported Tuesday that state agencies have submitted to Anderson budget requests close to $3 billion, one-third more than was budgeted by the 1969 legislature.

The last legislature spent about $2.1 billion for the current biennium.

Meanwhile, Anderson apparently has abandoned his plan to budget for only one year, an idea he proposed during the campaign.

House Majority Leader Ernest Lindstrom said Tuesday that Anderson had advised him that he will submit the traditional 2-year budget.

Changes in Alma school lunch program are announced

ALMA, Wis.—Vernon V. Martzke, Alma superintendent of schools, has announced that parents of children who are unable or find it difficult to pay the full price for the school lunch program may be eligible for free or reduced lunch prices.

Recent revisions of Public Law 91-248 has established new criteria for participation in the program. Families who feel that their children may be eligible may obtain application forms from the superintendent's office. Completed applications will be reviewed promptly, according to Martzke, and will be held in strict confidence.

Nelson Tire Service is purchased by eastern firm

By C. GORDON HOLTE
Daily News Staff Writer

The purchase of the 54-year-old Nelson Tire Service, one of the nation's largest volume tire dealers which also operates three tire retread plants, by Brad Ragan, Inc., was announced jointly today by B. E. Ragan, president of Brad Ragan, and T. H. Underdahl, Winona, principal shareholder and president of Nelson Tire.

Involved in the exercise of an option to purchase by Brad Ragan are the group of companies owned by Underdahl who will continue to serve as president of Nelson Tire and become executive vice president and director of Brad Ragan.

The Nelson Tire group operates throughout the midwest in tire replacement and retread centers which service heavy off-the-road vehicles used primarily in construction and mining and operates retail tire and appliance stores.

BRAD RAGAN operates similar facilities principally in the Eastern states and the Carolinas.

Nelson Tire, which was founded by Underdahl's uncle, Henry Nelson, in New Richmond, Wis., in 1916 and began operations in Winona in 1923, will operate as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Brad Ragan with no changes in personnel.

Underdahl said today that "Brad Ragan is a publicly-held company that will soon be listed on the American stock exchange and the move will strengthen Nelson Tire operations. Plans will be announced shortly for expanding the retread plant in Goodview."

Nelson Tire has sales, manufacturing and service plants and offices in nine cities across the nation with the largest of three retread plants located near the Winona city limits on Highway 61 in Goodview.

UNDERDAHL will continue to retain Marangoni U.S.A. Midwestern Leasing Co. and his interests in real estate leased to Nelson Tire whose headquarters offices are in the former Owl Motor Co. building at West 4th and Main streets.

Ragan said the combination will give Brad Ragan a broader geographical base and "should afford more operating economy, enhancing the company's financial stock significantly. Also, the company's management and personnel organization will be further strengthened."

The Winona operation was opened 32 years ago by Underdahl's father, R. H. Underdahl, and has experienced continued growth throughout the years. The Goodview retread plant was opened in 1962, has been expanded by two additions and automated equipment installed during the past year was directed to increasing production to at least 4,000 retreads a week.

The firm also sells more than 100,000 new tires a year and is one of the largest dealers in the United States for Goodyear tires which have been sold by Nelson Tire ever since the New Richmond shop was opened.

WINONA HAS been headquarters for a complex involving plants and offices in Minneapolis, Gary, Ind., Madison and Milwaukee, Wis., and Oakland and Lodi, Calif. Approximately 90 of Nelson Tire's more than 300 employees staff facilities here that include the 60,000-square foot Goodview retreading plant, general offices, retail tire and appliance store in 38,000-square foot quarters at 4th and Main and warehouses at the former Nelson Tire headquarters at West 4th and Johnson streets and an 18,500-square foot building at 1004 W. 5th St., the former Winona Wagon works which originally was acquired as a tire recapping plant.

A fleet of more than 130 trucks transport tires from throughout the United States to retread plants.

City landfill site will open next Monday

By FRANK UHLIG
Daily News Staff Writer

Opening of a new city landfill next Monday and closure of the present Homer Road landfill were announced today by city officials and James Murphy, operator of the newly designated site. Murphy will run a regulation landfill on his farm in Wilson Township, about nine miles from the city's center.

The present disposal area, operated for the past 7 1/2 years by Bruce Carpenter, Homer, will close down at 3 p.m. Saturday. Its closing was forced by newly tightened regulations of the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA).

Known as the Winona Sanitary Landfill, the new facility is located on Wilson Township Road No. 17. It is reached by following Highway 43 to the extreme upper end of West Burns Valley. A large directional sign at that point indicates where to turn. The landfill is 1.9 miles from Highway 43 via the township road.

OPERATED IN accordance with PCA regulations, the new landfill will employ the trench method of disposal. Materials must be compacted in the trenches and covered daily with specified thicknesses of earth.

Every individual, contractor, commercial or industrial organization using the landfill will have to apply for an annual permit. The permit will cost $2. In addition, those depositing solid wastes will be charged a schedule of fees.

Retuse hauled in compacting trucks can be dumped for 45 cents per cubic yard. Un-compacted refuse can be dumped for 35 cents per yard. Junk appliances, furniture or similarly bulky articles will cost 50 cents each for dumping.

Each private auto hauling refuse to the site will pay a $1 fee and a standard pickup truckload will cost $1.50. All fees will be collected at the site at the time refuse is deposited, according to the announcement issued today.

HOURS FOR the landfill will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, and 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays. The site will be closed on all Sundays and legal holidays.

As specified by the County Board of Commissioners, the landfill will be available for use by all residents of Winona County.

City Manager Carroll J. Fry said today that city residents probably will find it more economical to employ private trash haulers than to take their own rubbish to the landfill.

Murphy acknowledged that the permit and fee-per-load charges are likely to discourage individuals from hauling their own rubbish. He said that this would tend to limit traffic to the facility and should materially reduce the littering problem along roadsides. Regular haulers are required by law to use fully covered and enclosed vehicles to keep contents from spilling en route.

CITY RESIDENTS also will have the option of taking their own refuse to a transfer station, according to plans outlined to the City Council Monday night by the William Miller Scrap Iron & Metal Co., the prospective operator. The station will be set up on a trial basis at 222 W. 2nd St. The Miller firm will set up a schedule of fees matching those to be charged by Murphy, the council was told.

City garbage collection remains unaffected by the change, as far as residents are concerned. It will continue to be collected by Refuse Disposal Inc., under a contract that expires 3 1/2 years from now. The collection firm will haul its materials to the new landfill, however.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A Hennepin County grand jury indicted a Minneapolis man Tuesday for first degree murder in the shooting of a Minneapolis cabdriver Dec. 5.

Claude Watts Jr., 36, is accused of killing Lawrence Terzick, 27, of Minneapolis.

Watts was to be arraigned today in District Court. He was being held in lieu of $50,000 bond.

LONG RIDE

SOCORRO, N.M. (AP) — Jenaeane Ryan is only 18, but she wanted to do something while a New Mexico Tech coed to tell her grandchildren some day.

So, she and a classmate rode horseback 80 miles from college to her home in Albuquerque.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — It was about an hour before show time Tuesday and already the cadets, officers and civilian guests were crowding into the field house at the U.S. Military Academy.

Bob Hope, looking fresh and relaxed, a few minutes earlier had held a news conference in West Point's Hotel Thayer and talked about his annual Christmas tour. This is his 20th.

"I like to show the troops that we're for them and I'm out to give them a few laughs," Hope said at the news conference.

Then, a few minutes later, he stood before some 8,000 people in the field house trying out a monologue. It was very long, and as he worked from the cue cards, it was obvious he was listening to the laughter and thinking about cutting and pruning.

Again, he talked of the tour, saying the troupe planned to keep going "until we find Howard Hughes." But his Army jokes were the best—"A military genius: Anyone who can find his way out of the Pentagon" evoked a deep-throated roar from the cadets, equal in volume only to the reception received by the pretty girls who sang and danced.

Unless actually present when Hope and company are in action, it is hard to envision the complications of mounting a tour for his 83-member troupe which is now on its way around the world.

At one point a fuse blew with a loud pop and the floodlights and public address system collapsed. Hope, undaunted, went into a little dance and the audience enjoyed every minute of it.

The cadets saw the basic Hope show. The television audience on Jan. 14 will see essentially the same material edited to fill 90 minutes.

To the TV viewer, the annual Hope Christmas show is a moving experience because the servicemen overseas are seen enjoying it so much. The cadets here did, too.

Peter Lawford notes changes

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Peter Lawford, wearing bluejeans and looking worn and weary from a TV show, returned to the Waldorf Towers on a recent afternoon — and found 50th St. blocked off and barricaded. President Nixon was expected any minute.

"Where you going?" a security officer demanded of Lawford, looking at him in his bluejeans.

"To the Towers."

"What for?"

"I live there."

The security officer looked dubious and told him to go to 49th Street. Lawford proceeded there, where police again looked him over. A security officer recognized him from TV and recalled when, as brother-in-law of John F. Kennedy, he was one of those who got protection.

"Things have changed, haven't they?" said the security officer. "Yes," said Lawford, "in only 10 years."

The knockout punch that Muhammad Ali dealt Oscar Bonavena in the 15th round was worth $5,000,000—the most precious single fistic wallop in the history of the world.

His image tarnished, his performance disappointing, he finally floored the wild bull Oscar, emblazoning the way to a championship match with Joe Frazier that will have staggering payoffs. They should label the one that finally kayoed Oscar "the $5 million punch."

Muhammad arrived at Toots Shor's after 2 a.m., unmarked physically and egotistically, for a party for the Garden's Harry Markson. Asked about a forecast that Frazier would take him in six, Ali said something like this: "He'll take me in six . . . He needs another fix" . . . or something like that.

Johnny Carson was pretty hurt and surprised when Mike Zannella, his talent coordinator, left to join Dick Cavett's show. (Craig Tennes took over.) Producer Fred Cordoba says he's very happy and isn't moving.

Mystery man Howard Hughes was in N.Y. Thanksgiving — to see a certain lady . . . so say some friends here who believe he's not in the Bahamas now. The attempted Las Vegas takeover by the Hughes Tool Co. is not expected to affect Jack Entratter, boss at the Sands, nor other top executives at other hotels.

Casey Stengel appears Thursday on the Merv Griffin 90-minute baseball-dinner special. CBS had hoped to cut his speech to three days and run it as a telethon . . . TV Radio Mirror for January collectors' issue with its fascinating "50 Golden Years of Radio & TV" . . . Burglars took stripper Sherry Britton's mink coat — and also a couple of pounds of her beaded G-strings and bras. Wonder what a burglar'll do with those.

Pity the poor off-B'way actor who was moonlighting as a cab driver. Now he's on strike on two jobs simultaneously . . . Ted Chinnel reports a fellow in San Francisco saying, "Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today on overtime" . . . Frank Gifford's up again as possible lead in "The Love Machine," since Brian (Flipper) Kelly had to drop out due to motorcycle injuries. Also in the running: George Peppard, Frank Langella and John Phillip Law.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . . Jack Dempsey said, after the fight, he thinks Frazier'll handle Clay. Adam Clayton Powell agreed — at Jilly's he said that "Ali is my pal, but Frazier will whip him" . . . First casualty of the taxi strike: the Apartment cafe, which shuttered till the cabs roll again.

Greta Garbo, behind dark glasses, saw "The Rothschilds," and actress Leila Martin said, "She stole every scene from me—it's the first time I've ever been upstaged from the orchestra" . . . A Las Vegas hotel, which still doesn't have a holiday attraction, offered Totie Fields $100,000 for two weeks (but the Riviera, to which she owes an appearance, wouldn't OK it).

Joe Namath called Pier 52 to ask if he could show up in a sport shirt — he can't get the cast in his wrist through a narrow sleeve. (They said sure.) After the fight he was at Bachelors III, and so were David Merrick and Astronaut Buzz Aldrin . . . While George Segal, Claire Bloom and Hilly Elkins watched "Little Big Man" at Cinema I, Cinema II next door (showing "Trash") was being robbed.

Connie Francis is off to Las Vegas to see boyfriend Issy Marion, who owns a beauty salon at Caesars Palace . . . A Madison Av. shop's selling ties with erotic designs at a mere $8.50.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Frank Valli bought a handy guide to New York—it lists the museums, the theaters and who's on strike this week.

EARL'S PEARLS: Al Gottlieb doesn't think Jackie Gleason's income is so great: "Figure it out pound for pound, I make as much as he does."

Darren McGavin saw a H'wood bookstore with porno books at a discount, and a sign that said: "Dirt Cheap." That's earl, brother.

Whitehall used clothing outlet changes days

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — The used clothing outlet, located in the town hall on Main Street in Whitehall, sponsored by the Western Dairyland Economic Opportunity Council, Inc., and the Social Services Department, has changed the days that it will be open.

Now the agency will be open Thursday and Friday instead of Tuesday and Wednesday to coincide with the day that food stamps are issued and with the schedule of the Social Security representative.

The outlet will be open every Thursday afternoon and all day Fridays, beginning this week.

The agencies urge families in need of used clothing to come in on these days and select what they can use.

A plea has been made for good, used boys' and girls' winter coats and mittens, jackets and winter footwear. The items may be brought in on the above mentioned days.

Bomb explodes in Saigon military hotel

SAIGON (AP) — A bomb ripped through three floors of a U.S. military hotel in downtown Saigon tonight, and first reports said two American officers and two Vietnamese were wounded.

"Thank God it was dinner time," said Sgt. Bernard Strawn, 31, of Albuquerque, N.M., the hotel supervisor.

"Most of the officers were out of the building to dinner. I would have had some killed had they been in the building."

Strawn said the bomb ripped through an apartment complex and caused extensive damage to the second, third and fourth floors of the six-story Le Qui Don billet. It normally houses about 100 U.S. officers.

An $8.50 value at public library

Occasionally a nonresident of the city will complain that the Winona (city) Public Library annual nonresident fee—presently $8.50—is high. The relative fairness of the fee is indicated by a report this week that the nonresident Hennepin County library cards will be raised to $15.

The Winona figure is arrived at in the simplest of ways. Library operating costs paid for with tax monies are divided by the number of registered resident borrowers (about 10,700 now) and the result is the nonresident fee. The formula was suggested by the state attorney general.

This fee entitles the holder to use the reading rooms, to call on the professional help of the reference librarians, to borrow books, periodicals, recorded music and framed reproductions of famous art and other library services.

The library, somewhat generously, includes an entire family in one nonresident card. As for students, it requires a nonresident card when they do not have a Winona address.

At present there are about 150 nonresident borrowers at the Winona library, some of whom live in Wisconsin. By comparison Hennepin County has only 244. There a number of libraries—including those in several counties—have banded together into the Metropolitan Library Service Agency. Any eligible borrower at any one of the member libraries does not need a nonresident card for any of the libraries.

Several times an effort has been made to establish a Winona County library system. Should the Winona County Board of Commissioners ever be persuaded of the value of such a system, all county residents would automatically be eligible borrowers at all of the member libraries. — A.B.

Boondoggle gets a new lease on life

Every so often a new word or expression pops up in the lively, colorful form of English spoken by most North Americans. Mostly they're like comets, flashing into view, catching everyone's attention briefly, then fading from view. A few turn up again periodically, however. Such a one is that durable of his New Deal proposals.

Boondoggle, according to our dictionary, means "something of little value." It's further noted that the term got into common usage about 1935. That was in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's first term and the word was some critic's description of one old term standby, "boondoggle."

Boondoggle has been showing up lately in public communications circles—editorial columns, letters to editors, places like that—in connection with the big SST controversy. And it does fulfill a purpose for the SST opponent who needs a good all-purpose epithet to use in mixed company. If necessary, he could turn to a variety of nicknames—Nixon's TFX, the Flying Snowmobile, Boeing's Billion-Dollar Bundle, the Taxpayers' Trauma, etc.—but nothing really wraps it up quite so well as that 35-year-old slang standby, "boondoggle." — F.R.U.

The President thinks of 1972

Anticipated political circumstances in the early fall of 1972 certainly were as significant as economic problems in the winter of 1970 when President Nixon this week nominated John B. Connally of Texas as secretary of the Treasury to replace David M. Kennedy.

In that sense it was Richard Nixon leader of the Republican party and candidate for re-election as President, who named a prominent conservative Democrat from a large state to his Cabinet.

The President's reference in his announcement for the need to approach economic problems "in a bipartisan manner" was a candid expression of his hope to get the nation's most critical domestic problems out of the political arena, just as he has achieved success, to some degree in restoring foreign affairs to the bipartisanship that flowered during World War II and more or less persisted until the Congress, normally Republican and Democrats, divided into hawks and doves over Vietnam.

Although not a recognized fiscal authority, former Texas governor Connally will bring to the Treasury and Cabinet a viewpoint that will be helpful first in formulating policy and second in interpreting it.

His presence in the official administration family will not silence the Democrats in their criticism of the President's economic policies, an unhappiness which they exploited so effectively in the November elections, but it will give the Nixon administration a broader appeal as its leader prepares for the 1972 election.

Part of the responsibility of a party in power is to take those steps which it believes will enhance its image with the voters and assure its continuation in power.

The President obviously is in pursuit of that goal. — A.B.

Dr. Max Raftery

Sometimes things get published that shouldn't. Playboy magazine, for instance, is singlemindedly devoted to this simpleminded proposition. Conversely, once in the bluest of blue moons comes along a little unpublished nugget which positively cries aloud for publishing and wide dissemination.

Such a gem of purest ray serene is "Educators' Apocrypha," written by a fellow Californian, Jim Carey of Hillsborough. With a reminiscent eye on Ambrose Bierce, I prefer to think of it as the "Devil's Decalogue," and herewith present it without comment as a service to my more stiffnecked educational colleagues with the hope that these new 10 commandments will be as good for their professional souls as the great Originals, handed down smoking from Sinai, were for souls in general.

"And it came to pass that the prophet came down from the mountain unto the tribe called Educators, and he spake unto them the commandments that he had heard upon the mountain:

"I. Thou shalt change the way and the course of the school to educate the Whole Child. And this shall be a sign to thee that the old law of reading and writing and arithmetic shall give way to the new world which shall divert the children to the greater good of psychological adjustment and group participation in the new society.

"II. Thou shalt expand the curriculum and it shall encompass all of life and especially family life.

And as part thereof, thou shalt include training in the plumbing and gymnastics of sexual behavior. For unless the brethren of the tribe of educators do these things, the children shall grow without knowledge, and their ignorance and wickedness shall be like unto that of their fathers and their fathers' fathers before them. For how shall they beget families without training?

"III. Thou shalt not question nor shalt thou have in thee any doubt or skepticism. And all that is said unto thee by the leaders shall be unto thee holy truth. And any fad or mass movement advocated by thy association shalt thou follow, yea, even unto absurdity.

"IV. Thou shalt be liberal in all things for thou knowest and teachest the need to reshape society. And thou shalt not conserve of the old ways for they were wicked in all things. And the children shall be conformed to a common thought and attitude in support of the new society. And good shall come of this in thy days, for dissensions and cruelty and competitiveness and individuality shall vanish from the earth when all men think in unity.

"V. Thou shalt use the children entrusted unto thee for experiments of the mind and of the spirit and of society. And because thy cause is holy and thy intent pure, no man shall indict thee, even when thy adventures beyond academic instruction go awry. For the children of man shall be sacrificed to the greater good of the New Society.

"VI. Thou shalt speak in tongues, and thy jargon shall confound thy enemies. But fear not that thy jargon also confoundeth the brethren of the tribe, for thy jargon shall be only for creating an image of mysterious wisdom.

"VII. Thou shalt multiply thy tribe that more may share in the glories that the tribe of educators bringeth to the world. And quantity shall rule over quality in thy tribe.

"VIII. Thou shalt take for thy labors an ever-increasing reward. For thy labors are good, and they are difficult beyond the labors of other men.

"IX. Thou shalt not take measure of thy work, nor permit any man to compare the performance of the least of thy brethren with the performance of thy most able brethren. For thy tribe may not increase and prosper so greatly if men may demand of thee increased effectiveness. For the blind confidence of men shall sustain thee, and thy refuge shall be in Tenure.

"X. Thou shalt conceal thy contempt for parents, lest they be aroused from their indifference. For parents even more than their children shall be thy burden even unto the end of thy days."

Yea, brother, verily. Likewise hallelujah and even hosanna!

Boggs vs. Sisk

WASHINGTON—They are shaking the ladder upon which Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana has every right to ascend to the post of Democratic leader of the House in the new Congress assembling in January.

Rarely has illogic, to which the art of politics is unfortunately no stranger, been so pervasive as in this instance. For Boggs is being quietly challenged by a man, Rep. B. F. Sisk of California, whose chief credentials appear from the outside to be a simple, humanly understandable but not very logical desire for the job.

THE REASONS why Boggs should have for the asking the traditional promotion from chief whip, or assistant leader, to leader are merely sensible.

First, he has for 15 years served his party in the hard, nitty-gritty jobs—seven years as an assistant whip and eight years as chief whip. Second, it is not debatable that his is one of the truly first-class minds of the House. Third, he is the ranking member of the powerful Ways and Means Committee.

Fourth, no man in the House has more often put his political life on the line in resolute support of a politics of rationalism—that is, of a moderate liberalism that has always rejected mere theatrical screaming as the alternative to getting things done.

Finally, perhaps the greatest of all the Democratic party's debts to Hale Boggs is that in 1968 he took on the job from which many another ordinarily stout fellow fled in terror. This was the appallingly thankless task of acting as chairman of the platform committee at the 1968 Democratic national convention.

HOW CAN IT BE, then, that such a man should appear to be in genuine danger of losing the normal promotion to the perfectly decent but somewhat ambivalent member who is Rep. Sisk of California?

Digging down into the enigma suggests some answers—none very good but all very real. Sisk, a member of the House Rules Committee, which controls the traffic of bills to the House floor, has somehow managed to seem to be both liberal and conservative more or less at the same time.

An editorial in Christian Science Monitor

Perhaps one of the most futile areas to comment upon is the world of fashions. Fashions and fads like underground rivers, operate at a subintellectual level. Further, there is a widespread belief that taste unlike actions and motives, cannot be criticized. And the cynic might say there is little point to trying to curb fashions because they quickly obsolesce themselves anyway.

Still there are, at times, implications in fashions or in the promotion of them, that are worth the registering of disapproval. Two cases: An ad for American mink coats: "Owning a mink coat is something like earning the Distinguished Service Cross. It proves that you've fought life. And won. . . . So go ahead. Be the first on your block to buy a mink during a recession. That's status." Crass.

The fad of bullet or cartridge belts for women is likewise out of taste. Perhaps there is a bit of fun in the notion of woman guerrillism.

man! Let us pray to God to grant good health to Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn!" The writers pass a resolution urging publication of "Cancer Ward." That is the last heard of it.

Notes from underground

Satisfaction from the future alone, your imagined future; find urgent meaning in events and do nothing with the perception but store it away.

For Solzhenitsyn, none of this is disabling. He writes for himself, to tell the truth. He has the confidence to survive without an immediate audience, as he survived stomach cancer and eight years in prison camp.

The extent of his courage is difficult for us in the West to grasp. It is brought out with the drama of unadorned fact in a fascinating book just published in London, "Solzhenitsyn: A Documentary Record." The book, edited by Leopold Labedz, is a collection of statements by and about Solzhenitsyn in his struggle for artistic freedom.

Particularly interesting are transcripts of Soviet Writers Union meetings. On Nov. 17, 1966—before the renewed grip of censorship was felt in full—the Moscow section discussed "Cancer Ward," Solzhenitsyn's novel that uses a hospital cancer ward as symbol for a diseased society. Members had read the first part in manuscript.

"IT IS OBVIOUS to everyone that 'Cancer Ward' must be published," says one, dismissing talk that the book was dangerous. "In Dostoevsky's notes we find the words: 'What would it have been like if Tolstoy had led.'"

The emotions of that meeting are so clear, the feeling that Solzhenitsyn is the first Soviet writer to rank with Tolstoy and Dostoevsky. At the end a woman member rushes forward and shouts: "Wonderful ion. Soon after the war, in which he became a lieutenant colonel, he won a seat in the House of Commons.

Heath sees politics more in terms of practical policies and executive attitudes than ideological distinctions.

Heath considers himself a man of catholic all-round views and not particularly marked by the influence of any man, although he freely acknowledges debts to Churchill, Eden and Macmillan.

ON THIS KIND of broad subject—his interest in a multiplicity of things—he talks with easy freedom. He sees himself subject to many broad influences—people, the sea, music, mountains.

At 54 he is a vigorous, ruddy man who likes to read a lot, walk whenever he can, occasionally play golf. He enjoys wine, watching ballet, attending opera, theater. He greatly fancies driving fast cars before his present position put a stop to that. He relishes travel, pictures, architecture. Before he became prime minister he would often fly off to European art exhibitions.

However, Heath's consuming love

STOCKHOLM—In a world of megatons and onrushing technology and new forms of political control, words still have their mysterious power. That was the unexpected and moving lesson at this year's Nobel Prize ceremony.

Here were some of the great physicists and chemists and medical researchers and economists of the world, met to receive or give professional homage. Yet for them, and others watching, the significant figure of the occasion was a man treated as an outcast in his own country, officially ostracized by his profession, afraid even to come to Stockholm—a man with no power but his words.

PAUL SAMUELSON of MIT, the laureate in economics, told the audience: "I speak from the mind. If Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn had been here to speak from the heart, all of us would be the better for it; every individual, every country, without exception."

Sir Bernard Katz of London University, laureate in Medicine spoke of his own debt to colleagues. Then he said of Solzhenitsyn: "Unlike myself, whatever he has done, he has done for himself; there are no collaborators."

If ever a man had to draw on himself for the hope that makes life possible, it is Solzhenitsyn. He has been expelled from the Soviet Writers Union, leaving him without official status or source of income. In the last five years he has been able to publish in the U.S.S.R., only one small story. Today is his 52nd birthday, and he has never been outside the Soviet Union.

Heath: I—man for all seasons

LONDON—Although Prime Minister Edward Heath is well known to many American leaders including President Nixon, whom he visits this week, he is insufficiently familiar to the United States public, partly because he is a shy man although not in the least bit timid. Moreover, in some respects he resembles Nixon in being exceedingly pragmatic but not by nature endowed with charisma.

For Britain—and therefore the Americans accustomed to British statesmen—he is a rather unfamiliar kind of leader in background, style and even in his hobbies. Certainly he represents a break with the traditional type of Tory, coming from the modest middle class without aristocratic family, regimental ties or inherited attitudes. What he has already accomplished—and this is considerable—he accomplished for himself.

HE WAS ORGANIST in the chapel of his Oxford College and retains a passion for music. He plays the piano so well that he recently accompanied Yehudi Menuhin, a feat unlikely to be carried off by any other chief of government. Had he been able to find a patron it is indeed possible he might have chosen the organ as a career.

But he always had politics in mind and was president of the Oxford Un-

William S. White

He is benefiting, too, from the sad reality that a purely rational stance in public life—Boggs' stance—is all too often off-putting to many people. Sisk is a pleasantly effective member on the record. Boggs, like most politicians of high talent, is not strong on his personal "public relations" and is always putting the issues ahead of the personal touch.

For a Southerner, he is quite liberal. In consequence, he faces loss of support of at least a part of the Southern old guard.

Women voters oppose trade bill

The point of Anthony Lewis's article "Trade reverberations" in Thursday's edition of this paper, that the proposed trade bill may potentially harm U.S. trade more than it will aid it, is well taken.

The League of Women Voters of the United States shares the concern that enactment of the House-passed trade bill

To the editor

Abortion choice of individual

In many cases the American government has attempted to legislate morality. The truth of the matter is that such legislation can be "successful" only if it reflects the collective morality of the populace and if the community demands its stringent enforcement. The present abortion statutes fail to meet these criteria. We are saddled with an unenforceable law stemming from religious ethic and the fear that if abortion becomes legal society will cease to perpetuate itself.

PRESENTLY anyone who desires an abortion can get one. The position that the woman places herself in is a degrading one and she is vulnerable to exploitation and physical hazard. Abortion mills are prevalent and their operation virtually uninterrupted by police or other authorities. The demand for the proscribed services of the abortionist is increasing and his prosecution is nearly impossible because there is no complainant.

Abortion has aptly been termed a "crime without a victim." Whether or not the fetus is "alive" is of little consequence. It has not yet attained viability, or the capacity to live outside of the mother's womb.

The answer is not, as suggested in a previous letter, a sexual prohibition or complete abstinence from sexual relations. Better and more widespread use of contraceptives is more desirable than abortion. It is not, however, a question of alternatives. It will be some time yet until contraceptives become universally available and to say at this point that our knowledge of birth control is sufficient to eliminate the need for abortion is wishful thinking.

An abortion performed in a hospital is a simple, inexpensive operation involving little risk. At present the high fees of the illegal market introduce the element of economic discrimination. Women who desire abortions but who are financially unable to obtain them are prevented from terminating unwanted pregnancies. The legalization of abortion would stabilize cost realistically in proportion to the service rendered. Trained medical personnel and sanitary conditions would be available. All those who desire to terminate pregnancy should be allowed to do so. Medical, psychological and economic factors are all of importance.

THE CHOICE always and finally lies with the individual woman. If she herself believes that abortion is contrary to religious doctrines then she will never seek an abortion. But, if she does not hold that view it should be her option to be relieved, without undue hazard to herself, of what she feels to be a burdening pregnancy.

Those champions of morality who feel that America is becoming corrupt and decadent have the constitutional right to their own liberties, but while hollering "Bill of Rights" they had better remember that they are doing little good as guardians of purity and that others are entitled to those same rights.

KATHI KUHLMANN

(HR 18970) threatens to lead the U.S. into a world trade war, and even though the LWV supports some of the bill's provisions, the LWV feels that taken as a whole the bill's restrictive provisions far outweigh those which are acceptable.

The league opposes the following provisions:

1. Mandatory quotas on textiles and footwear
2. Mandatory quotas on mink and glycine
3. The provision locking-in the quota on oil, prohibiting the president from changing from a quota to a tariff system of oil import control
4. The relaxed "escape-clause" provision, which includes a semi-automatic "trigger" mechanism under which countless industries could receive import relief.

Upon reflection we find that the bill threatens the farmers, firms and workers who depend on export for their livelihood with massive foreign retaliation. Moreover, it is likely to work hardship upon the consumers affected by the possible or even probable increase of fuel, textile and shoe prices.

The league urges all those concerned about this legislation to express their views so that people responsible for making U.S. trade policies may have a truer appreciation of the nation's feelings and not interpret silence as a sign of disinterest or approval.

Abortion laws cruel, unfair

Regarding the abortion controversy:

In the first place, there have been several erroneous statements made concerning the various stages of development a fertilized female egg passes through. Three to four weeks after conception, the egg is referred to as an embryo. After the third month of pregnancy, it is known as a fetus, and of course, it becomes an infant only after its birth, not before.

The fetus is not considered viable, or capable of sustaining life on its own, until the 24th to 26th week of pregnancy. Until this time, it cannot scientifically be considered a separate entity, but merely a dependent part of a body, alive only as much as are other dependent organs and tissues of that body.

When and if a soul is breathed into a growing being is a question best left to students of theology. Neither science nor law acknowledge the existence of soul in any form, and this is a fact that religious proponents of the anti-abortion laws would do well to remember.

Therefore, the decision concerning removal of the embryo or fetus should legally rest solely with the person involved, and not with the state, the church, or the person's peers.

The anti-abortion laws are a prime example of the church having exerted undue pressure on the state, resulting in the undermining of the individual's rights. With the United States Constitution guaranteeing each individual the freedom of religious belief or non-belief, this cruel and unfair set of laws should never have been put into effect.

It may be noted that several states have already relaxed their out-dated laws relating to abortion, and indications are that this condition will soon become nationwide.

We have a long way to go, but as in the proverbial one thousand miles, the first steps are finally being taken.

PCA approves plan for recycling cars

ST. PAUL (AP)—The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA) approved Tuesday a plan for the recycling of junked and abandoned autos which it will propose to the 1971 legislature.

The program, to be financed by a 65-cent surcharge on Minnesota automobile license plates, would offer state subsidies to encourage the hauling of old autos to processors who would crush them into junk metal for reuse.

The plan adopted Tuesday was revised slightly from the plan which won preliminary approval from the PCA last month.

The original plan, product of a 10-month, $25,000 study, recommended that all such processing operations be licensed. Under the revised, only those processors and haulers who take advantage of the subsidy would be licensed.

The program is designed to subsidize local government or other groups which contract with a firm for auto removal and recycling. Under present conditions, the price of scrap metal is so low that processors do not find it profitable to seek out the old autos.

Pope cancels weekly public audience; flu

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI canceled his scheduled weekly public audience today because of an attack of influenza accompanied by a slight fever.

The pontiff is 73. His personal doctor, Prof. Mario Fontana, said "the fever is so light that His Holiness can take care of normal church affairs with his aides."

Excess mercury found in 20 percent of tuna

By G. C. THELEN Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration says Americans can keep on eating canned tuna although excess mercury has been found in more than one of every five cans sampled.

Should housewives continue to buy all the canned tuna they want and feed it to their families?

"Absolutely," said FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards. "This is not a health hazard."

Edwards' advice to consumers came as he disclosed government test results showing 23 per cent of canned tuna tested so far contained poisonous mercury higher than the FDA limit of 0.5 parts per million. The most found was 1.12, or twice the government limit.

Industry is now recalling 921,600 cans with excess mercury after a check of 139 tuna lots.

FDA officials believe virtually every major tuna brand will be involved in recalls as soon as sampling is expanded during the next 30 days to include all 30,000 lots packed in 1970 for American consumption.

Brooke's daughter wins divorce, goes back to college

BOSTON (AP)—The 21-year-old daughter of Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., has obtained a divorce.

A spokesman for the senator said Tuesday that Remi Brooks Hasler obtained an uncontested decree last February from Donald R. Hasler of Milford, N.J., whom she married June 22, 1968.

The spokesman added that she has returned to Northeastern University, which she attended before the marriage.

Edwards said the 0.5 guideline is extremely cautious and "offers a substantial margin for safety."

"I want to re-emphasize the point that given present levels of tuna consumption in this country, the relatively low levels of excess mercury content found to date and the fact that even his excess is being removed, we are confident that the American consumer is now and will remain safe from risks of mercury poisoning," he said.

Dr. Albert C. Colby Jr., deputy director of the FDA's bureau of foods, said a person would have to eat two cans of tainted tuna a day for a year before he would be poisoned.

Mercury taken into the body can cause blindness, insanity or death.

Japan is the only country where mercury poisoning from fish consumption has been reported. The Japanese eat more fish than Americans and the mercury level causing harm was 10 to 80 times the U.S. limit, Edwards said.

The tuna findings are the first major confirmed ones involving mercury contamination of ocean fish. High mercury levels have been reported previously in fresh water fish exposed to industrial mercury discharges.

The source of the ocean mercury is unknown. But government scientists say it is probably natural deposits of the metal on the ocean floor that work their way into the aquatic food chain.

Edwards said the tuna industry will monitor all future packs for excess mercury. Any imported tuna containing more than the 0.5 limit will be seized, he said.

Doctors' Tests In Treating Nervous Tension Headaches Now Made Public

Non-Narcotic Tablet That Needs No Prescription Proves Just As Effective As The Expensive, Leading Pain-Relief Prescription Of Doctors.

If you're one of the many who get tense, nervous headaches, these latest tests by doctors should be of the greatest importance.

In recent medical tests doctors proved a famous tablet that needs no prescription gives the same complete headache relief as the expensive, leading prescription of doctors.

These doctors' tests proved, beyond a doubt, that Anacin is just as effective to relieve tension headaches, yet Anacin needs no prescription and is far more economical.

With Anacin, headache pain and its nervous tension vanish in minutes. Despite its strength, Anacin is not narcotic. You can take it without getting dizzy or an upset stomach.

Next time take powerful, fast-acting Anacin. Anacin Tablets give the same complete headache pain relief as the leading prescription product for which doctors wrote 21 million prescriptions last year.

Expect McGovern to be first to declare for '72

By WALTER R. MEARS and Carl P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, impelled by what he calls the frustration of powerlessness in the Senate, will soon become the first man to declare for the presidency in 1972.

But there may be political frustration ahead as McGovern begins an open campaign to overcome the lead he concedes Sen. Edmund S. Muskie holds over a crowded field of Democratic prospects.

When the South Dakota senator makes the official declaration next month, it will be but a formality. For more than a year he has waged an obvious if unannounced drive for the 1972 nomination.

"We've been working for over a year now, trying to see whether there was a basis for a candidacy," McGovern said in an interview. "I'm pretty well convinced there is."

It is a small one. One national poll ranks McGovern seventh on a list of eight potential candidates, the choice of two per cent of rank-and-file Democrats.

But the 48-year-old senator insists he can overcome the long odds. "I'm inclined to discount the polls at this point," he says. "All they do is give an indication of what your recognition factor is."

That indication can hardly be heartening.

But, McGovern says, once he declares for the nomination a nationwide cadre will rally to him. "What I'm told is that if I'm serious about running, they'll be serious about supporting me."

He goes on: "My chances of getting the nomination depend on working on it over a long period of time. I don't think anyone is going to get it handed to him this time."

Compared to his most formidable prospective rivals—Muskie, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Hubert H. Humphrey—McGovern is little known, and he concedes he has an educational job in front of him to make his views known to the country.

And, because of his small recognition factor, the presidential primaries loom particularly important to McGovern. He needs a strong showing to prove he can win, and to attract support from the professional Democrats, now lining up with Muskie.

"I'm going into a number of primaries, but I haven't decided which ones," McGovern says. "If you can't do well in a number of primaries, you can't do well in the fall."

The first primary is in New Hampshire—solid Muskie territory. McGovern does not rule out a New Hampshire race, but says he would not expect to win there.

There is political peril in that, for if McGovern enters, Muskie would have someone to run against, and almost certainly someone to defeat. And that would make New Hampshire a far more valuable prize.

With all of these factors a high wall against his chances why does he bother?

"I suppose the thing that impels me to be a candidate," he says, "is that I just can't take the frustration any longer of sitting there in the Senate where you can see the mistakes that our national leadership is making, but are powerless to do very much about it."

"I have no trouble at all understanding the sense of frustration and powerlessness that afflicts citizens across the country because I feel the same sense of it through these continuing policies that are weakening the nation, and I feel unable to do something about it."

"The chance to do something about it is in the presidency," McGovern says.

McGovern also claims he can do a better job than other prospective candidates in sharpening and defining the issues for the run against President Nixon.

For a decade, he says, he has been speaking "more accurately and more prophetically" about Southeast Asia than his rivals, as well as about the problems at home.

McGovern says the Vietnam war remains "the transcendent issue in American politics today."

It is an issue he has pushed, particularly as a chief sponsor of legislation to compel U.S. withdrawal by the end of next year.

The H a t f e l d-McGovern Amendment was defeated. But McGovern campaigned for it on national television and helped raise $500,000 to promote it. He was a key man, too, in a 1970 campaign drive that raised over $1 million for liberal Senate candidates.

And he still has the mailing lists of donors to those causes, a valuable commodity for a man who soon will be seeking support and contributions for a presidential campaign.

McGovern said he is confident he can raise the money to begin his campaign, and to operate his campaign outpost, located two blocks from the Capitol, where the current staff of five will be increasing in the months ahead.

He says $250,000 to $300,000 could finance "a pretty good campaign" during 1971. "It might go to twice that."

In 1972, of course, the cost would skyrocket, as the presidential primary season opens.

As heir to some support previously held by the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, McGovern waged a brief, largely symbolic presidential campaign in 1968. He attracted a handful of votes—146%.

That effort was, in effect, an antiorganization candidacy; this one, McGovern says, is not.

"I don't want to emerge as the antiorganization candidate, but I'm not going to let the organization keep me from being a candidate, either," he says.

"I don't intend to run against Ed Muskie, or to run against other Democrats," McGovern says. "I intend to run against Richard Nixon."

McGovern to tell plans on Tuesday

DENVER (AP)—Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said Tuesday he will announce next month whether he will make another presidential bid in 1972.

Much of McGovern's comments in a news conference were preceded by the qualifier: "If I become a national candidate..."

About the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, McGovern said Republican Mayor John Lindsay of New York cannot be considered a likely possibility.

"He has about as much chance of being nominated by the Democrats as I have of being named by the Republicans," McGovern said.

He said, however, he would welcome Lindsay into the Democratic party, but added it would be difficult for Lindsay to switch parties despite his differences with some GOP leaders.

McGovern said if he should run again, he would be talking to the backers of the 1968 McCarthy campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The McCarthy people are still around and will be heard from in 1972, he said.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., ran a losing campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1968—primarily as a peace candidate. McGovern also ran with a top priority on ending the war.

President Nixon is "sincerely wrong" in his approach to the Vietnam war, McGovern said here.

The news conference preceded a speech by McGovern before the Midwest Electric Consumers Association.

Ice breaking season begins on Great Lakes

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Ninth District U.S. Coast Guard headquarters says the 1970 Great Lakes ice breaking season began early Tuesday with the freeing of the steamer E. M. Ford near Green Bay, Wis.

The Coast Guard said the steamer had mechanical difficulties during the night and required help from the cutter Mesquille to get through early ice to a cement company dock at Green Bay.

Committee will decide on Queen

By JANET STAJAR
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted Tuesday to place the fate of the never-say-sink Delta Queen in the hands of a House-Senate conference committee.

The committee will attempt to iron out an agreement that would allow the 46-year-old mostly wood sternwheeler back on the Mississippi River.

As it stands now, the riverboat falls under the thumb of the Safety at Sea Law requiring vessels carrying 50 or more overnight passengers to have metal superstructures.

Because of the law, the privately-owned queen ceased her runs several weeks ago at New Orleans.

In Congress, the Queen resurfaced time and time again.

A bill to exempt the Queen from the Safety at Sea Law for three years until another excursion vessel with the needed safety regulations was built failed to gain Senate-House approval.

The conference committee tactic was a last ditch effort to save her. It won passage by a 255-73 vote.

If the conference committee hammers out still another plan, separate Senate and House approval is still required.

House members debated over an hour on the Queen's future. Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., said the Queen was "probably the safest riverboat ever constructed."

Rep. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, claimed that the risk is far greater for people to ride in their cars today than in the Queen.

Chairman Edward A. Garmatz, D-Md., of the House Merchant Marine Committee which wrote the safety law, said "Congress should not gamble with the lives of passengers."

"I hope the Delta Queen never burns, but if it does, the blood will be on the Congress and not the experts who told you it was unsafe," Garmatz said.

Appointed to the conference group were Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., Rep. William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, and Rep. Harold D. Donohue, D-Mass.

Wisconsin Resources Department blasted

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — A spokesman for a private environmental protection group complained Tuesday to Gov.-elect Patrick J. Lucey that the Department of Natural Resources hasn't been showing adequate management of Wisconsin resources.

John P. Wilson, director of the Wisconsin Ecological Society, said his group feels the department "has devoted a disproportionate amount of time and money to promoting intensive use of state resources at the expense of protecting those that require it."

He made the remarks during one of Lucey's hearings on Wisconsin's 1971-73 state budget needs.

Housing project reservoirs in Menominee County were cited by Wilson as examples of what he called ill-advised use of natural facilities. The developers, he said, got state permission to dam three creeks "against some highly expert advice." He said a conflict of "philosophical interests" within the department led to approval of the reservoir development.

The department staff is "weighted in favor of engineers," he said, calling for more biologists.

The department's record includes a pair of "outrageous situations" concerning solid waste, Wilson said.

The department lagged for six months before reporting the Town of Green Bay to the Justice Department for action against artesian well pollution from a town dump, he said.

The other case, he said, involved issuance of dump permits to a paper company "in a beautifully wooded ravine with an intermittent creek that drains to the Fox River."

Hickel: presidential staff members created 'isolation'

By STAN BENJAMIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel says presidential staff members came between him and President Nixon, and created an "isolation of thought" at the White House.

Staff members meddled in department affairs, Hickel said, and may have tried to keep him away from the President because they feared he could persuade Nixon in favor of programs they opposed.

Hickel, fired by the President Nov. 25 after two stormy years in the cabinet, told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview: "There is a direction going in the White House, at the staff level, that I disagree with."

He carefully avoided any criticism of President Nixon, however.

In fact, said Hickel, whenever he did see the President he found him receptive, ready to "light up" at a good idea.

Hickel, heading back to Alaska today—"to spend Christmas with friends, to rest, to think"—was vague on his future, but indicated he will try to bring a positive, hopeful attitude to the public—unlike the "negative" political campaign he said the Republican party waged this fall.

To the youth of America, whom he saw as disappointed at his dismissal, Hickel said: "Don't give up."

Here are excerpts from the interview:

Q—Gov. Hickel, how do you feel now about the hectic two years that ended with a personal dismissal by the President?

A—Men sometimes think to themselves, "If I ever get there, this is what I'll do," but so often when they get there, they really lose the reason why they wanted to get there. I never lost that reason....

Q—And that's why I feel so free as I leave because I have nothing to apologize for....

Q—After you were fired, you wondered out loud why the President had hired you in the first place; did he give you any idea, in the beginning, what he wanted you to do?

A—No, not at that time. His statement when he introduced me was that he wanted me to bring vision and a new approach to Interior, and that's exactly what I was trying to do.

Q—I was carrying out what I thought was not only my viewpoint but that of the administration, and at no time was I ever (Editor's Note:—"The last shall be first as far as this administration is concerned," President Nixon commented Jan. 24, 1969, at swearing-in ceremonies for Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel, last of the Nixon Cabinet to win Senate confirmation.

Twenty-two months later, Thanksgiving Eve, 1970, the words had a hollow ring for Hickel, the millionaire former Alaska governor. He became the first Cabinet member booted out of his job.

In his first interview with a newspaper reporter since he was fired, Hickel outlined to Stan Benjamin, who covers the Interior for The Associated Press, his ideas on politics and the circle of aides around Nixon, and his advice for the young.)

criticized by the President for those many controversial actions....

Q—You mean while you were secretary, the President was occasionally saying: "You're doing a good job?"

A—Yes. Especially on environment and pollution matters.

Q—Then how do you account for the strained relationship that developed between you and the White House?

A—Any man in the White House with those burdensome

Hickel's request for conference rejected by aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — A month after requesting a meeting with President Nixon last September, former Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel was turned down in a three-sentence letter from a lower-echelon White House aide.

Hickel wrote the President, asking a chance to discuss with him the secretary's just-ended tour of four nations. The Associated Press obtained copies of the Hickel letter and the Oct. 13 reply from Hugh W. Sloan Jr., assistant to Special Presidential Assistant Dwight Chapin.

Sloan wrote, in part: "As much as the President would like to be able to meet with you in this regard, the unusually heavy schedule which has been planned for the coming weeks makes it impossible for us to arrange an appointment for you. However, the President is most grateful to you for making this offer and sends you his thanks and warm good wishes."

Hickel's meeting with the President came Nov. 25 when he was fired by Nixon for what was called a lack of mutual confidence.

You once said if you could have talked with him or his aide, John Ehrlichman, for five minutes, you would not have had to write your famous May 6 letter. Was that a frequent problem?

A—I had never pushed as hard as I did that day. But it was more an isolation of thought than an isolation of individuals. It was really an attitude. I think men who try too hard for a job have to compromise too many things. I came totally free. I came to do a job, not to get a job; to do a job for 200 million Americans....

Q—If you capture that intent you've got Wally Hickel's approach to the problems, and you've got his problems with the administration....

Q—That sounds like the popular notion of a little "in-group" isolating the President and controlling his "input." Is that your view?

A—I think many members of the White House staff got involved in departmental things far beyond necessity. I think they wanted to be helpful; it doesn't necessarily make them bad men. But if the system gets going in the wrong direction, it makes it impossible to solve some of the enormous problems we're faced with.

Q—You have also disagreed with the tactics of the 1970 Republican political campaign. How do you assess its effects?

A—We had so many positive, good things to talk about that there just wasn't any reason to run a negative campaign.... It was the negative attitude, more than anything, that I thought was not acceptable to the American people.

Q—What do you think America's youth will think about the chances of working within the present system, after seeing you fired?

A—In the letters we get, obviously they're disappointed that this kind of thing had to happen.

Q—We've received thousands of telegrams and letters... saying: "He (Nixon) didn't fire a man, he fired an idea."

Q—Well, what would you say to a teen-ager who asked, "After what happened to you, why should I bother to try?"

A—I would say: Don't give up. There are some great opportunities. And the ideas that we're working for are attainable within the system. We're going to work in that direction.

HEADING FOR ALASKA... Former Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel is leaving Washington today for Alaska "to spend Christmas with friends, to rest, to think," Hickel, shown recently, was fired by the President last Nov. 25 after two stormy years in the cabinet. Agnew: best campaign strategy is to divide voters, attack

By WALTER R. MEARS
SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — Defying his Republican critics, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has declared that the only way to have an election is to divide the voters and the only way to campaign against entrenched politicians is to attack.

Agnew invited Republican governors to debate politics with him today at a private breakfast session, and to persuade him if they can that the administration erred in its 1970 campaign strategy.

But the vice president said he is convinced there was no mistake in his campaign course.

"I've come here in this time of trial and tribulation to consult with my brothers and, if necessary, to debate with them," Agnew said Tuesday night at a banquet which was to have ended the Republican Governors Conference.

Seventeen governors were expected today at the breakfast meeting, arranged at the last minute.

Agnew said at the banquet that if the governors convince him the administration should change its political strategy, he would plead their cause when he returns to Washington.

But he made a heated defense of his campaigning.

"During Campaign '70 we divided along traditional adversary lines, and that's our free system," Agnew said. "You know, nothing was more unreasonable to me than the cries of 'Mr. Vice President, you're dividing the country.' What is an election if it's not an attempt to divide the voters of the country between two or three candidates who may be seeking an office?"

As for complaints about the tone and style of his campaign, Agnew said:

"When you have to fight the establishment or an in-group, there's only one way—attack. And we attacked, we think constructively. Everything we said was certainly not negative."

With that, Agnew appealed for unity among winners, losers, Democrats and Republicans.

However, the conference has been marked by complaints about the administration and the campaign and Agnew's defense seemed certain to escalate differences with some GOP state executives.

Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon, who has called Agnew a "hatchet man," termed the vice president's remarks "that rotten, bigoted little speech."

"It was an incredible misunderstanding of what the mood of America is," said McCall, who spent 30 minutes talking politics with Agnew earlier in the day.

McCall said he told the vice president "it was very difficult for a person who has been a hatchet man to serve on a national ticket" and that Agnew's response "was that the election generally would have been a catastrophe for the Republican party unless the very strongest campaign methods were used."

Republicans lost 11 governor-ships in the Nov. 3 elections, and they have spent a sizeable part of their Sun Valley conference complaining about it—without producing any consensus about the reasons, or a way to enhance GOP prospects next time.

One bloc of governors critical of the administration tried for two days to arrange a meeting among themselves to discuss the future of the party. They never got around to it.

In the end, Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas suggested a get-together at his Winrock ranch. No date was set.

Rockefeller was one of the Republican governors defeated for re-election Nov. 3 when GOP governors shifted from a 32-18 majority to a minority.

The governors did not put together any semblance of a united front on matters of political policy.

They did vote Tuesday, 14 to 2, to endorse the Nixon family assistance plan, with California's Gov. Ronald Reagan the chief dissenter.

AGNEW AND HIS AUDIENCE . . . Vice President Spiro Agnew, the principal speaker for the state dinner given for the Republican Governors Association at the close of their 1970 winter conference, has his audience laughing heartily at some of his remarks. (AP Photofax)

U.N. Assembly nears end of 25th session

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly today winds up a session at which it marked its 25th birthday and saw Red China come closer than ever before to winning a seat in the world forum.

It was a session in which the Asian-African group threw their considerable numbers into a drive to isolate South Africa and Portugal and eventually drive the white supremacist regimes out of the United Nations.

Communist China got a foot in the door this year with a 51-49 vote endorsing membership for the Red regime. But there were 25 abstentions, and Peking was blocked by the usual U.S. resolution requiring a two-thirds vote for entry.

The surge in support for Peking brought acknowledgement from the United States that a new situation existed and that Washington was reappraising its position.

The emphasis in American speeches at this session was on keeping the communists out, United Nations rather than on keeping the communists out, and many delegates predicted that Washington next year would abandon its insistence that Chinese representation is an "important question" requiring a two-thirds majority for approval.

The agenda this year included 11 items dealing with race segregation in South Africa, colonialism in Portugal and white rule in Rhodesia. The assembly adopted six resolutions calling for a propaganda campaign against apartheid in South Africa, including preparation of special documents on the subject by Secretary-General U Thant and weekly broadcasts by the Organization of African Unity in cooperation with the United Nations.

In the field of disarmament, the assembly called on member nations to ratify a draft treaty banning nuclear weapons from the ocean floor.

The assembly also called on the United States and the Soviet Union to cease deployment of nuclear weapons systems as an aid to their strategic arms limitation talks (SALT).

Another resolution called for suspension of nuclear weapons tests, both in the atmosphere and underground.

The United States hailed passage of a resolution which it hopes will help Americans held prisoner by North Vietnam. The resolution, plainly aimed at Hanoi, threw U.N. support behind efforts of the International Red Cross to obtain compliance with the Geneva conventions on treatment of prisoners.

Turning to the rash of plane hijackings that have plagued governments on both sides of the Atlantic, the assembly called on all countries to crack down on aerial piracy by punishing or extraditing perpetrators.

Cities cutting services because of fund squeeze

By BROOKS JACKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cleveland may close its police academy. Los Angeles may join New York and Detroit in laying off city employees and Philadelphia probably will cut back municipal services.

Money, of course, is the problem. The nation's largest cities are caught between a rock and a hard place — between rising wage and welfare costs and static income.

As a result, officials are warning that the already evident cutbacks in services may be only the beginning unless the federal government provides a money tranche.

An Associated Press survey of nine cities gives this picture:

BOSTON
Increased veterans' benefits and teacher salaries have boosted the current budget $8 million over estimates while income remains as expected. Seventy percent of the city's income is from property taxes, which local officials believe to be the highest in the nation at $156.80 per $1,000 valuation.

City Budget Director Richard Wall sees no way of increasing city income without a big boost in the property tax rate, say by another $30.

CHICAGO
Projected expenditures for the year starting Jan. 1 are 6.5 percent above 1970 while revenues are expected to rise only 4.8 percent, despite a 17.7 percent increase in the property tax. The city plans to hire 500 more policemen and 65 more environmental inspectors in 1971, but Budget Director G. Edward Bedore says federal aid will be needed after that if there is to be continued growth of services.

CLEVELAND
Strikes and economic recession have cut into returns from the city's 1 percent income tax, dropping revenues $1.4 million below estimates. Police and firemen got automatic wage increases and the city then had to settle other wage demands, putting next year's bill for increased labor costs at $11.3 million, according to Finance Director Philip Dearborn.

Voters recently defeated an increase in the income tax to 1.8 percent, and Mayor Carl B. Stokes, threatened to cut the city's 13,300-man work force by 3,200, close the police academy and shut down winter recreation programs. Clevelanders would have to carry their own garbage to the curb, he said, because 400 garbage collectors would be laid off. Voters are now asked to approve a more modest tax increase to 1.6 percent.

DETROIT
Tax collections are running 2.6 percent behind expectations, due in large measure to the general economic slowdown and the General Motors strike. Meanwhile, arbitrated wage increases for police and firemen have upped expenditures by more than $4 million, or 0.8 percent.

Walter R. Greene, chief executive assistant to the mayor, says without increased outside aid he foresees a continued freeze on hiring of new employees except for police and health workers, drastically reduced purchases of new equipment and the possibility of more employee lay-offs. More than 400 were laid off for various times this budget period. "Even with these reductions, a substantial deficit would be inevitable," Greene said.

HOUSTON
This Texas boom town is in better shape than most, officials say. Revenues are higher than expected this year, by $3 million. Deficits are prohibited by law. No tax increase is anticipated, and natural growth is expected to swell revenues again next year.

The City of Angels has dipped into reserves for more than $23 million this year because of higher - than - expected outlays, mainly for salary increases and construction of a new city hall annex. The city expects only a 2 percent rise in revenues next year, while expenditures historically have gone up at 11 percent per year. Dr. C. Erwin Piper, city administrative officer, says that means that without new aid city job vacancies won't be filled next year. "As a last and stringent matter it may be necessary to lay off some employees or curtail the time worked by all employees and cut their hours and wages 10 percent," he said. "As a last resort, we could curtail services to the city."

ST. LOUIS

Revenues are down about 4 percent from estimates due to the General Motors strike, while city employees got an unbudgeted $2 million raise. The city has in the past suffered cuts in such services as street and building maintenance, recreation and housing code inspection. Many areas are being discussed for possible cuts next year.

The plight of the cities is mirrored in another AP survey of 50 state budget officials. It shows rising prices, lagging business and swelling welfare rolls have forced some states to cut services this year, with more drastic cuts forecast for next year.

McCormack to be reimbursed for office expenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Rules Committee says retiring Speaker of the House John W. McCormack will be reimbursed for operation of his Boston office for the first two years of his retirement.

A resolution passed Tuesday also gave McCormack two staff employees whose salaries would be paid from House funds. The total pay of $38,000 for the two was expected to be reduced by McCormack to $27,000 or less. With 42 years of House service McCormack qualifies for an annual pension of about $50,000.

VISITS DOWN
EDMONTON, Canada (AP) — Elk Island Park officials report that in July there were 52,904 visitors to the park, 6,810 fewer than in the same month last year. The park is 35 miles east of Edmonton.

Wisconsin legislators won't get pay increase

By FRED MILVERSTEDT
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A proposal to increase salaries of Wisconsin legislators by 10 percent reached the end of the line Tuesday on a 4-3 vote by the Board on Government Operations.

The action closed the door on a motion that had been recommended by the Legislative Compensation Council, the director of the Bureau of Personnel and the State Personnel Board.

The council had been created by the legislature to examine the feasibility of pay hikes. Wisconsin ranks 10th in the nation in legislative salaries.

If the proposal had succeeded, 117 of 133 lawmakers would have drawn $9,790 a year as opposed to the $8,900 they now receive, effective Jan. 1.

BOGO's vote by five Republicans and two Democrats, displayed a non-partisan flair that could lend strength to Democratic Gov. - elect Patrick J. Lucity's recent appeal for austerity in state spending.

All four votes in opposition were cast by Republicans. They are Sens. Walter Hollander of Rosendale and William Draheim of Neenah, and Reps. Byron Wackett, Watertown, and John Shabaz, New Berlin.

Favoring the raise were Democratic Sen. Martin Schreiber of Milwaukee, the lieutenant governor - elect; Rep. Richard Pabst, D-Milwaukee, and Rep. Russell Olson, R-Kenosha.

Shabaz, speaking of a "responsibility factor in line with the additional austerity" said: "This is the first blow we can strike for it.

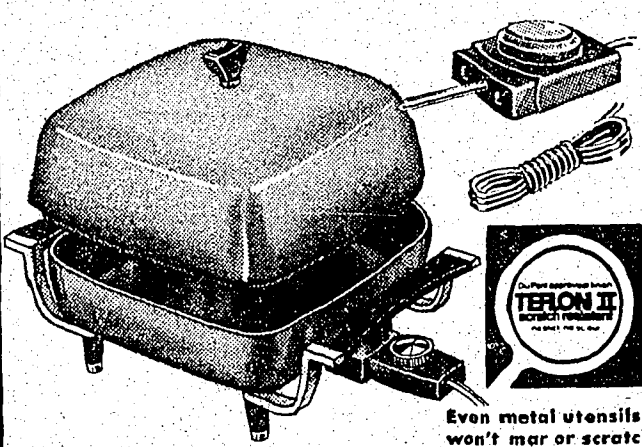

We have to set the example." Hollander stressed that current salaries "are adequate," and challenged: "If any member does more work than I do, step forward."

Wackett said he would "vote on no raises for anyone 'until we put the teachers back in the classroom.'" He has been a strong critic of the practice of state university professors devoting excessive time to research rather than instruction.

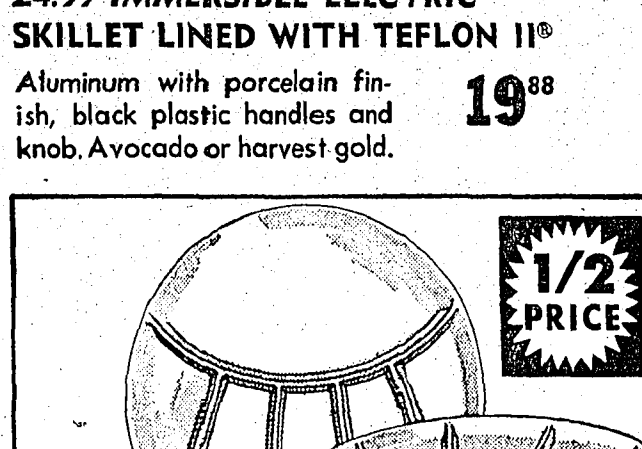

Schreiber explained his vote there are indications Wisconsin will "definitely be moving toward 'annual sessions' that would merit more work and more pay. Although the BOGO meeting was open to the public, only six persons stepped forward to express views.

Goal never attained by industry following war

After the war, industry raced to satisfy the pent-up civilian demand released after years of rationing and austerity. The millions of war plant workers and demobilized servicemen were hired swiftly. The dreaded postwar depression never came. But neither did full employment. The 2.5 per cent rate was achieved in only one postwar year, 1953, and that was the result of an economy overheated by the Korean War.

That year also saw the start of a recession which boosted unemployment in 1954 to an average 5 per cent. It was the first of three recessions which plagued the administration of Dwight D. Eisenhower—each longer than the last and each leaving the unemployment rate at a higher level when recovery came.

The last of these slumps undoubtedly helped to defeat Eisenhower's vice president, Richard M. Nixon, when he ran for president in 1960.

When John F. Kennedy took office, with unemployment around 6.8 per cent, he readjusted the "full employment" goal. Kennedy's economic advisers, headed by Walter W. Heller, looked for a goal that might be realizable. They came up with 4 per cent, as what they called an "interim objective."

That goal finally was reached; unemployment ranged from 3.6 to 3.8 per cent in each of the last three years of the Johnson administration. This was the climax of a nine-year boom that was fueled by the biggest tax cut in history and, later on, by the Vietnam war, the biggest federal deficit since World War II, and a serious inflation.

The Nixon administration undertook to slow the inflation gently, to avoid painful unemployment. This feat did not come off. The policy of "gradualism," a steady application of moderate fiscal-monetary restraints, has produced only inconclusive results in moderating the inflation, while unemployment has risen every month for the past year.

The unemployment rate, which averaged 3.5 per cent in 1969, reached 5.8 per cent in November, partly because of the General Motors strike. About 4.6 million Americans needed work.

To restore "full employment" by the middle of 1972 would require giant strides in production for the next 18 months—gains of up to 8 per cent in real output in some quarters.

To help generate this growth, Nixon is accepting two big deficits without quibble—an estimated $15 billion this year, perhaps $10 or $12 billion in the budget now being drafted for fiscal 1972.

But he is insisting, so far, on balancing the "full employment budget." This is not an actual spending plan but an economic concept. It is the level of federal outlays which equals the amount of revenue that would be generated if the economy were running at a full employment rate—that is, with only about 4 per cent joblessness.

Kleppe under consideration for high level posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Thomas Kleppe, R-N.D., is under consideration for "at least two high level positions in the Nixon Administration," Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., said Monday.

Kleppe gave up his House seat for an unsuccessful attempt to unseat Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D.

MacGregor, who also gave up a safe House seat in an unsuccessful Senate bid, refused to name the jobs Kleppe may land.

MacGregor will become counsel to the President for congressional relations when his congressional term expires in January.

Name Wefald agriculture boss

By GERRY NELSON
ST. PAUL (AP)—Jon Wefald, a 33-year-old college instructor who ran unsuccessfully for state auditor, today was named state Commissioner of Agriculture by governor-elect Wendell R. Anderson.

Wefald is an instructor in American history at Gustavus Adolphus College in St. Peter, a post he will give up to take over the agriculture job in January.

Wefald's appointment was among six announced today by Anderson at a forenoon news conference. Others were:

E. I. "Bud" Malone, Minneapolis, reappointed Commissioner of Labor and Industry.
Richard C. Radman Jr., St. Paul, appointed Commissioner of Manpower Services.
Ted Smebakken, Minneapolis, news secretary to the governor.

Mrs. Wanda Moore, Minneapolis, a staff assistant in the governor's office.
John Haynes, Minneapolis, a staff assistant.

Wefald lost to Republican Roland F. Hatfield in the auditor's race. He also ran unsuccessfully for Congress in the 2nd District two years ago.

The post of Agriculture Commissioner is vacant, following the appointment of former Commissioner Robert W. Carlson to a spot on the state Public Service Commission. The salary is $20,000 a year.

Malone, 47, is the first appointee to be retained by Anderson in a major state office from the administration of Gov. Harold LeVander. Malone was appointed by the Republican governor in 1968 and doubles as a member of the state College Board. The post pays $18,000 a year.

Radman, 53, is secretary of the St. Paul Building and Construction Trades Council. He succeeds Republican appointee George J. Vavoulis in the $21,000 a year post. Radman, also a vice president of the Minnesota AFL-CIO, is the first Anderson appointment from the ranks of organized labor a group which furnished substantial support for Anderson's campaign.
Vavoulis reportedly will be named to a federal job as Midwest administrator of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The appointments brought to four the number of Anderson's choices for major state offices. He had previously named Arthur C. Roemer as state Tax Commissioner.

Anderson has yet to announce his choices for the politically sensitive jobs of Highway Commissioner, Conservation Commissioner and Administration Commissioner.

All of the department heads will be subject to confirmation by the state Senate.

Smebakken, 37, has been a reporter for the Minneapolis Star for 11 years. He served for the past three years as the newspaper's political writer.

Mrs. Moore, 38, is a member of the board of directors of the Minneapolis League of Women Voters and is active in numerous civic groups. She ran for the Minneapolis School Board in 1969. She is the wife of Cornell Moore, an attorney.

Numbers 100 or below eligible to go in January

WASHINGTON (AP) — Men in the 1971 draft pool with numbers of 100 or below will be eligible for the January draft call, the Selective Service has announced.

The Pentagon Saturday announced it would call 17,000 men in January.

The Selective Service says 100 will probably be the top draft number for several months. The highest number selected for 1970 was 155, and many boards never approached it.

Not affected by the first 100 priority are the "extended priority" group members. The extended group is eligible for the first three months of the year and must be called ahead of the 1971 pool.

Possible CIA-Douglas connection disclosed

By JOHN BECKLER
WASHINGTON (AP) — A possible connection between the Central Intelligence Agency and Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has been disclosed by House investigators.

In their search of material submitted by Douglas to combat efforts to impeach him, the investigators came across a shadowy veteran of international intrigue with apparent links to the CIA who was associated with Douglas in a literacy project in the Dominican Republic.

Shortly after this was reported Tuesday, the Supreme Court said Douglas would read a short statement today, but would not answer questions.

The investigators were re-buffed by CIA Director Richard Helms in their effort to learn more about the agency's role in the project, if any, or its connection with Sacha Volman.

Volman, a native of Russia who has taken part in uprisings in several countries, was head of a Dominican Republic foundation that helped Douglas on the literacy project.

The references to Volman and the CIA are highlights of a 924-page report released Tuesday by a special House committee that investigated impeachment charges against Douglas.

The committee, headed by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., announced two weeks ago it had found no grounds for impeachment.

Included in the report is a dissent by Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., who said public hearings, with witnesses testifying under oath, should be held before any conclusion is reached on impeachment.

The Celler committee investigation is based on a study of thousands of documents and interviews by the staff with a few key individuals.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, who touched off the investigation with a House speech attacking Douglas last April 15, said he would renew efforts in the new Congress starting next month to have full-scale public hearings.

Ford accused Douglas of a wide range of misconduct in his April speech. One charge hinted that Douglas visited the Dominican Republic in early 1963 to help Las Vegas gamblers get a foothold in the Caribbean island nation.

The committee asked the CIA for any document in its files "that sets forth the precise relationship of Sacha Volman . . . to any program or other activity of the CIA during the period January 1960 to the present."

Replying for the CIA, Helms said only that its record showed the Albert Parvin Foundation, of which Douglas was president, gave funds for the literacy project to the Center for Economic and Social Studies, headed by Volman.

Rule against decision by Mrs. Gandhi

By MYRON L. BELKIND
NEW DELHI (AP) — The Supreme Court of India ruled today that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi acted unconstitutionally in abolishing princely rank, pay and privileges for 278 maharajas and ordered them reinstated.

Mrs. Gandhi told Parliament her government will continue the fight to end the institution of royalty "by an appropriate constitutional means."

The 8-3 decision after 21 days of testimony restored $6.4 million a year in privy purses, royal titles, and such other perquisites as exemption from many taxes, free utilities, free medical allowances and duty-free imports.

Calling the abolition decree by President V. V. Giri "inoperative," the court issued a writ of mandamus forbidding further executive action against the maharajas. The decision also ordered the government to pay the costs of litigation.

The court's ruling in the class action suit filed by eight maharajas rejected the government's claim that the president had the power to abolish the privileged class without parliamentary assent. The decision held that Giri has no "political power transcending the constitution which he may exercise to the prejudice of the citizens."

The court did not rule whether Parliament could pass a constitutional amendment abolishing the princely privileges. It said this "is not, and cannot, be debated in this petition, for no such constitutional amendment has been made."

The decision threw Parliament into near pandemonium. Rightist opposition leaders demanded that Mrs. Gandhi's government resign, and leftists and members of her Congress party urged that the legislative session be extended past Friday's scheduled adjournment for consideration of a constitutional amendment to overrule the court.

The maharajas were given their annual stipends and other privileges in an agreement with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, Mrs. Gandhi's father, when India gained independence from Britain in 1947. In return, the rulers of the princely states surrendered 587,949 square miles of territory and 89 million subjects—48 per cent of India's area and 28 per cent of its population—to the central government.

No trial set in regulation of nuclear plants

ST. PAUL (AP) — U.S. District Judge Edward Devitt said Monday that he will rule without a trial in a case involving the state's right to regulate nuclear power plants.

Devitt said Monday that since neither party, Northern States Power Co. and the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA), disputes the facts in the case, the issue can be decided without a public hearing or trial.

The judge said he will decide the case on the basis of testimony filed by both sides.

NSP has challenged the state's claim that it can regulate nuclear power plants. NSP contends the jurisdiction rests solely with the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Twelve states plan to file briefs in support of the PCA. Devitt said NSP has until Thursday to respond to briefs filed by the other states.

BULLPEN ON FILM

NEW YORK (AP) — Bullpen, a 23-minute 16mm sound and color film documenting the role of relief pitchers, is available for group showings on a free loan basis. Write Panasonic, PO Box 3062, New York, N.Y. 10017 with dates desired.

The film stars relief pitcher Tug McGraw of the New York Mets and highlights such veteran relief hurlers as Johnny Murphy, Joe Page, Hugh Casey, Elroy Face, Ron Perranoski and Hoyt Wilhelm, still a major league pitcher at 47.

During the 1970 major league baseball season relief pitchers appeared in more than half of all games played. Forty years ago starting pitchers completed nearly 80 percent of the games.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION . . . This 80-by-100-foot state Highway Department building, under construction off Highway 74 south of St. Charles, Minn., will house road maintenance equipment to be used

She'll enjoy your card or letter

It isn't likely that Mrs. Constance Quarve of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Home, Rushford, Minn., will have a visit from close relatives this Christmas, for her husband died many years ago and her only son, Archie, lives at Denver, Colo.

Connie, as residents of Good Shepherd call her, will be 80 on April 9. She's worried about her former farm on Highland Prairie near Peterson, her address before she moved to Rushford. Her son, graduate of Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, and a civil engineer, was to take care of it, but she still worries.

Born at Crookston, Minn., she later moved with her parents to Grand Forks, N.D., and returned with them to the South Fork area near here when she was 16. Her four brothers have died, one sister lives at Queen's Lodge, Edmonton, Can., and the other, Gladys Miller, lives at her home. Connie didn't say where.

So you see Constance Quarve, although Mrs. Quarve treated kindly at the nursing home, is lonely. A Christmas greeting from friend or stranger will prove that others are thinking about her. She'll smile at a reassuring word.

Mrs. Quarve

So will the following, many of whom are forgotten the year around or live alone:

Meat plant operations to be reviewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department will begin Wednesday to review meat plant operations in nine states, including Minnesota, to determine whether they will be taken over by federal inspectors.

The deadline for states to have meat inspection programs at least equal to federal standards was Tuesday. The Wholesale Meat Act of 1967 gave each until then to have new programs for all plants operating within a single state.

Only about 15 per cent of the nation's meat is produced in the single-state plants. All the rest is federally inspected.

Intrastate meat plants in North Dakota already have been placed under federal inspection and those in New Jersey are scheduled for takeover next month.

Officials said 13 states complied by the deadline and the remaining 26 states have filed applications asking for certification of their programs. These are in the process of being surveyed and determined.

Officials speculate that perhaps 12 states, including the two already designated, will end up under federal inspection.

The 1967 law originally gave states until Dec. 15, 1969, to develop inspection programs along federal lines. Only three—Florida, Maryland and California—met the earlier deadline.

Except for North Dakota, all others were given another year by the Agriculture Department to complete action on their programs. The law allowed the extension as long as "significant progress" was shown.

Coast Guard tries to keep ice out of Green Bay

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Coast Guard escorted a cargo of cement Tuesday in an effort to keep Green Bay open to navigation before winter ice seals the Great Lakes bay.

The steamer E. M. Ford headed for the port of Green Bay, anchored Monday about 15 miles up the bay. The buoy tender Mesquite of Sturgeon Bay smashed through the ice three inches thick Tuesday to clear a path for the Ford, which was carrying a load of cement.

Huron Cement, whose fleet includes the Ford, said it has one more freighter to get into the port before ice closes the bay.

Illinois voters adopt new state constitution

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois voters have adopted a new state constitution that streamlines the tax system and bans job and housing discrimination. But they apparently rejected a separate proposal to give the power of the ballot to 18-year-olds.

With 10,292 of the 10,916 polling places in the state reported, the totals were 1,072,297 votes in favor of the new state charter and 786,683 opposed.

The new measure needed only a simple majority of the ballots cast in the statewide referendum Tuesday. The present constitution is 100 years old.

The victory of the new document reflected a heavily favorable turnout of Chicago area Democrats, led by Mayor Richard J. Daley, who favored the new Constitution with some reservations.

Voters outside the Chicago area—Cook County—rejected the charter, 456,325 to 386,333.

Topcoat weather and lack of interest kept the turnout of voters to near 30 per cent statewide, but the figure was close to 40 per cent in Chicago.

The draft constitution was supported by a broad coalition that included leaders of both political parties, business and civic groups and most news media.

Power utilities upset over nuclear standards

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Power utility spokesmen registered disapproval Tuesday of proposals that Wisconsin increase federal limits on the amount of radioactivity a nuclear-powered electric generator plant could dump into lakes and streams.

Minnesota has adopted standards that are more rigid than those set up by the Atomic Energy Commission. Spokesmen addressing a Department of Natural Resources hearing urged Wisconsin not to follow Minnesota's lead.

SOL BURSTEIN, vice president of Wisconsin Electric Power Co., said his company is ready to keep radioactive discharge at "as low a level as possible" and questioned whether state limits could be more effective than the AEC limits.

Burstein's remarks were made during discussion of the Point Beach nuclear plant, which Wisconsin Electric and Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co. are building five miles south of a Kewaunee plant on Lake Michigan.

Evan James of Green Bay, vice president of Wisconsin Public Service Corp., which is helping build the Kewaunee

Opponents of the new charter, most of them opposed to its revenue article, were headed by the Illinois AFL-CIO.

Mayor Daley said he considered the revenue article unfair not only because it prohibits a graduated income tax because it provides that the ratio of corporate to individual income taxes never shall exceed 8-to-5.

The charter specifies that women will have equal rights with men in dealing with the government and outlaws racial bias in employment and housing.

It grants broad home rule taxing powers to some cities and counties that consider the state legislature not sympathetic enough to local problems such as urban blight and faltering transit systems.

Four other proposals were presented separately to the voters:

- The vote for 18-year-olds, apparently defeated with incomplete returns showing account of 978,519 to 824,194 against.

- Abolition of the death penalty, rejected 1,139,708 to 627,522.

- Replacement of three member districts in the Illinois House with single-member districts, turned down, 986,502 to 786,683.

Staley happy farmers being called militant

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Oren Lee Staley, president of the National Farmers Organization, says farmers ought to be glad to be called militant.

"It is the greatest salute that anyone can give to the NFO as long as it means staying within the laws and working within the system," he explained.

Staley, whose organization opens a three-day meeting today, said that by working together, "farmers can cripple the political machinery of any county in rural America."

Discussing the recently passed federal farm bill, he termed it "the worst since farm legislation began in the 1930s. It is based on the theory that you have to keep farm prices as low as possible in order to move into the work markets—a theory that can destroy the family farm structure."

Staley, 47, from Rea, Mo., is now serving his 15th consecutive term as president of NFO.

plant, said he would not hesitate to swim in the lake near the plant "when it's warmer than today." Daniel Gaffney of Suamico, a lonely dissenter to the power company representatives' arguments, appealed to the state to adopt rules stronger than those of the AEC.

"What does the state of Wisconsin propose to do if it is suddenly discovered that the water of Green Bay is unpalatable?" Gaffney asked the hearing.

NORTHERN States Power Co. has filed a federal court challenge to Minnesota's radioactive limits, urging that only the AEC has the authority to regulate nuclear facilities.

A ruling in the case is expected early next year. Meanwhile, Wisconsin has entered the case as a friend of the court, allowing Wisconsin attorneys to question witnesses.

Conservationists, already concerned about nuclear plants pumping heated water into fishing streams and lakes, have described even small amounts of radioactivity as an unnecessary additional hazard. A Madison lawyer, James O'-

La Crescent stands firm on snowmobiles

LA CRESCENT, Minn. (Special) — The La Crescent Village Council, at a special meeting Monday, stood firm in the matter of its snowmobile ordinance recently enacted.

Snowmobiles will not be allowed to operate on village streets, sidewalks, alleys or boulevards or private property in the village without the owner's consent.

Following a lengthy review of the ordinance, the council made these changes:

Hours allowed for snowmobiles, from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.; permission from written to oral for a snowmobiler to use another person's property and the permission does not have to be registered with the village hall as previously stated by Mayor Martin Miller, and the addition of a statute which allows all state and conservation laws to apply unless otherwise stated under the village ordinance.

Snowmobilers must still make requests to use such places as the village park or ball diamond, it was pointed out.

In other business the council enacted an ordinance regulating abandoned property which will allow for the disposal of such property. An ordinance providing for the licensing of bicycles, regulating their use, and providing penalties also was passed. This ordinance also repeals ordinance No. 10, on bicycles, which has been on the village books for many years and is outdated.

A dog ordinance, which repeals all old dog ordinances, was also passed regulating the licensing of dogs and other laws regulating dog control.

The La Crescent Village Council voted to join with the county in resisting and objecting to any turn back to the county or village of state service drives within the village. At the present time all such service drives are maintained by the village.

The present radar, a Custom Signal Radar, was purchased by the council at a total price of $1,785; $175.53 of this amount has been paid in rent and applies toward the purchase price. An application for one-half of the total cost will be made for reimbursement under the Federal Safe Street Act. Other quotes on radar equipment was for a Mark VI Stevenson radar for $1,697.30 and for a Decatur Electronic radar for $1,396.90. The council approved of the one the police department is renting because of its mobility.

A special meeting will be held before the end of the month to finish all old business.

State mercury levels in fish reported high

ST. PAUL (AP) — Mercury levels in fish taken from four water areas in Minnesota are high enough to pose potential danger to humans, a state-federal task force said Tuesday.

The areas are the St. Louis River from Cloquet to Lake Superior, the Mississippi River from Grand Rapids to Anoka, the Red River from Moorhead to the Canadian border and Lake Minnewaska in Pope County near Glenwood.

The task force said fish taken from the waters should be eaten no more than once a week.

The study included 13 lakes and four rivers in all parts of Minnesota. High mercury concentrations were not found in 13 of the 17 areas.

The state-federal group said the source of mercury in fish in Minnesota is not known. The group said there are no large industrial users of mercury.

Mercury has been used in the past in the manufacture of paper, as a fungicide for treating seed grain, as a fungicide in some paints and for various medicinal and dental uses.

Investigations will continue, the state-federal group said, but only on a sampling basis. The task force said shortages of funds and equipment would prevent a check of fish from every one of Minnesota's lakes and rivers.

Federal guidelines say that mercury concentrations over 0.5 parts per million are regarded as unsafe for human consumption.

Diary account says My Lai thought 'hot'

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The detail of a bookkeeper, a young GI kept a diary while in Vietnam. The night before Company stormed into My Lai, Thomas H. Patsch wrote:

"We are really going to hit something tomorrow. We are going to hit four places. It's a really hot place."

In the soldier's parlance, "hot" means an enemy is waiting, ready to fight.

But when Company got to My Lai, Patsch testified Tuesday at Lt. William L. Calley's court-martial, "it looked like a deserted village."

Patsch and other witnesses testifying in defense of Calley who is charged with murder of 102 My Lai villagers that day, say their impression of the foe came from the company commander, Capt. Ernest Medina. Patsch said he made his diary note after Medina briefed the entire company. Patsch, 23, a bookkeeper for a Johnstown, Pa., oil distributor, said he wanted "something to remember the day by."

He was not asked while on the witness stand whether he recorded any details of the March 16, 1968, assault.

Calley was almost unmentioned in the courtroom as witnesses testified about Medina's role. The defense hopes to show that Calley was only following superior orders—including Medina's.

Medina himself had been through a task force briefing, Roger Alaux Jr. testified.

Alaux, who had been a prosecution witness earlier, said also that while troops were gathered after My Lai near the South China Sea some prisoners were interrogated by Vietnamese national police and then shot to death in a shallow ditch.

"Kill everything that breathed," is how Salvador Lamartina of New Orleans understood Medina's instructions.

He was the second My Lai soldier to testify Tuesday that he followed what he understood to be Medina's intent.

Charles A. West, a tall, mustached former sergeant from Chicago—now a student in Seattle—said his squad caught 10 Vietnamese and shot them.

Asked to characterize Medina's tone at the briefing, Michael Bernhardt, a 24-year-old surveyor from Tarpon Springs, Fla., said: "Inflammatory."

He said he saw two groups, each of about 20 Vietnamese civilians, shot to death by American soldiers. Medina was at one such scene, Bernhardt said.

Later, the former rifleman said, Medina told the company an investigation was under way.

"He said he advised us to be quiet because he'd back up anybody who might be in trouble," Bernhardt said.

IDS negotiating for block in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — IDS Properties, Inc., is negotiating for the purchase of an entire block in downtown Minneapolis, it was reported Tuesday.

The block is between 8th and 9th streets and 3rd and 4th avenues south.

IDS Properties, Inc., a subsidiary of Investors Diversified Services, Inc., reportedly wants the block for future development.

Street battles felt in Poland

WARSAW (AP)—Plane and telephone services were cut today between Warsaw and the Polish seaports of Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot following street battles there between crowds and militiamen. At least one person was reported killed and about 100 wounded.

Polish officials had no comment on the reports.

The Swedish Consulate in Gdansk told the Swedish Embassy in Warsaw that demonstrators took to the streets Monday and Tuesday in the three neighboring cities on the Bay of Danzig, stopping streetcars and looting shops. The consulate said the crowds apparently were protesting price increases announced Monday.

A curfew was ordered for the three cities between 6 p.m. and 5 a.m., and meetings in public places were prohibited at all hours.

"At least one person has been killed in street clashes, and around 100 others were reported wounded," said an official at the Swedish Embassy.

It was not known if the situation was under control today, but radio monitors in West Germany heard a broadcast from Gdansk urging all persons to return to work this morning.

Radio Free Europe, the anti-Communist American organization which broadcasts to Eastern Europe and monitors broadcasts from there, gave this report it said came from a Polish newsman in Gdansk:

"Arsonists were working in a consistent way and stubbornly. When fire brigades wanted to intervene they were prevented from doing so. Cars were destroyed, firemen beaten. People watch from the windows of high buildings. They are workers. They are shocked."

Raisin Nut Rolls Beverage
RAISIN NUT ROLLS

This delicious coffeecake is made with yeast.

2 packages active dry yeast
1/2 cup warm water
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 1/2 cups unsifted flour, fork stir to aerate before measuring
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup 1/2 one-quarter pound sticks butter
4 egg yolks
Raisin Nut Filling, see below

In a small mixing bowl dissolve yeast in water; stir in sugar and vanilla. Into a medium mixing bowl turn the flour and salt; with a pastry blender cut in butter until particles are small; add yeast mixture; stir well. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well with a wooden spoon after each addition.

Cover and let rise in warm draft-free place until doubled—1 hour. Turn out half the dough—it will be very soft—on a well-floured pastry cloth; with a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin roll out to a 12 by 9 inch rectangle. Spread with half the Raisin nut filling to about 1 inch from edges. Roll up from 12-inch side; seal well. Place seam side down on buttered cookie sheet. Repeat process with other half of dough. Let rise as previously—1 hour. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until golden-brown—about 30 minutes. Makes 2 rolls.

RAISIN NUT FILLING: Mix together 1/4 cup 1/2 of a 1/4-pound stick soft butter, 1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar, 1/2 cup chopped medium fine walnuts and 1 cup golden raisins.

THE LOCKHORNS

Dear Abby:

'What can I do about vicious rumor?'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: There is a girl in our small town I'll call Mary, who has been telling others that our son is the father of her child. It is quite possible, as he was separated from his wife at the time. However, Mary is the available barfly type, and almost any of the young men around town could be responsible. I don't know why our son had to be singled out for this dubious honor.

Our son has since reconciled with his wife and they moved out of town long before this rumor got started.

However, the 12-year-old sister of Mary told our 11-year-old daughter at school that they were "related" because our son and her sister "had a baby together." Although we never discussed it with our daughter, she responded that her brother was already married to someone else and Mary must be crazy. Then she ran home from school and cried about it in my arms.

Can we do anything about this? We told our daughter to ignore the other girl and forget the talk.

Mary is raising the baby, and is just as available as ever. There has been no legal action taken against our son. In fact, I doubt that he even knows about the child's existence. I have never met Mary and am not about to. Your advice will be greatly appreciated.

NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO: Let sleeping dogs lie.

DEAR ABBY: When someone asks me, "Do you mind if I ask you a personal question?" I never know what to say. Any suggestions? SHY

DEAR SHY: Say, "Not at all. Do you mind if I don't answer?"

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 and have this steady boy friend I'll call Buddy. His parents live in a different town so he rents a room in town near his work. I live with my parents. Here is my problem:

I have been helping Buddy out by doing his laundry at home. I also do my family's laundry. Well, my mother gets mad and yells at me every time she sees me doing Buddy's laundry.

Will you please tell me why it bugs my mother because I do Buddy's laundry? The work is not for her. I'm not complaining. Why should she? NO NAME

DEAR NO NAME: Your mother is probably "bugged" by the sight of her 17-year-old unmarried daughter doing "wifely" chores for her boy friend. It's my guess that if she liked Buddy more, she'd complain less.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a nice young man who used to be a wild, hippie type, but he is reformed now, and if he hadn't told me about his past I wouldn't have known anything about him, except there is one little telltale mark which gives him away. He has a rather ugly hole in one of his ears. He said he used to wear a "pirate's" earring in it.

Is there any way this hole can be filled up? It may not be noticeable to others, but it bothers me a lot. BOTHERED

DEAR BOTHERED: Level with him. A plastic surgeon should be able to repair it so there will be no trace of his ever having had a hole in his ear.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Don Burleigh spoke of his recent experiences as a Peace Corps teacher in Niger, Africa, at the Thursday meeting of the Wesleyan Service Guild at Central United Methodist Church. Slides accompanied his talk.

The country which is Moslem in culture, consists of villages composed of a series of walled compounds in which families live with their animals, Burleigh explained.

Niger is a region of deserts with dried, prehistoric riverbeds and little vegetation, the speaker noted. Children take responsibility early in life and, as a result, few children attend school even though the schools are government supported. Most of the girls attend teachers' training school since that is the only profession open to women. Burleigh taught English in a secondary school in a village of 5,000 persons.

Mrs. Margaret Erickson, Miss Mabel Danuser and Mrs. Elizabeth Henthorne were committee members for the month. Gifts were brought for the residents of Etta-Dell Nursing Home. Mrs. Henthorne was chairman of the project.

A pledge service concluded the meeting. Gifts pledged by the members are used for the support of a young girl from the Philippine Islands who attends Children's Garden School in Manila.

Your horoscope — Jeane Dixon

FOR THURSDAY, DEC. 17

Your birthday today: A growth cycle begins in which you face psychological limitations. A challenge from outside stimulates you to get out of ruts, even comfortable ones, and make a fresh start in a more open field. Little comes easily now, but once gained, it stays with you. Emotional needs find many erratic episodes of fulfillment. Qualities of loved ones present perennial puzzles. Today's natives have a strong streak of personal independence.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your money flies, especially around young people. Work at serious matters; pay no attention to scandalous stories. Family squabbles fade out if you just leave off.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Check your shopping list, making sure it has only what you really want to buy. Be prepared to mediate between factions in your group; avoid involvement in new issues.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Personal arrangements should be let alone. Check facts and personalities in your career; be stubborn on the job (for good reason), rather than at home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Frittering away time at hobbies is merely an avoidance of expressing yourself. Speak up, ask reasonably for what you want, arrange appointments.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Follow your own ideas, particularly where there's any element of chance. Choose work which doesn't involve close collaboration. Others don't share your enthusiasm.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Discount rumors; much is left out. Wait to see where changes are going before disagreeing. Your example makes a big impact on some who say little.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your sympathy makes all the difference in your family and community. Care in handling work is essential. You have competition, newly arrived, of a quite personal nature.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Expect to work in unaccustomed conditions. There are no shortcuts, either in your career or in your homelife. Simple candor in both areas helps.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): This is a day of sudden confrontation, an event where you run into a blank wall, if you have been unwatchful. Get expert advice and play for time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be an opportunist today: for once it's quite all right to take the easiest way out. You might even get a pleasant journey at little or no expense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your life and work swings along briskly. Take nothing too seriously for the moment; get some fun out of everything. Repay a favor. Add a little to your savings account.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The simpler the plan the better it works. Do only what is essential to your well-being. Take a vacation from every burden you can lay down. Lend nothing now.

Revise figures on number aboard Korean ferryboat

SEOUL (AP) — Police today revised the number of persons aboard the ferryboat that sank in the Korean Strait early Tuesday and said 310 of them are dead or missing.

Police said 322 persons, not 276 as reported earlier, were aboard the 362-ton Namyung Ho when she went down on her overnight run from Cheju Island, south of the Korean peninsula, to Pusan.

Twelve persons were rescued Tuesday, and eight bodies have been recovered. Authorities said they had almost no hope of any more survivors in the icy waters. But the search by Japanese and Korean boats and Korean and American planes continued.

To Your Good Health 'My mother would have to know.'

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 17-year-old girl and I think I have a very serious problem. Having all the symptoms, I am almost positive. I think I have the venereal disease gonorrhea.

I tried calling our family doctor but he told me I couldn't see him without my mother because I was a minor. That's the last thing I could ever do. I've also been told that county health centers help young girls and do not charge very much.

The symptoms are burning of the urine two days after; discharge started a week and a day after; continuing itching. I will be 18 in six months. Is there danger in waiting that long to go to a doctor on my own? Can it be cured with penicillin or pills or something, or do I have to go to a hospital? — S.C.

Our modern "sex freedom" isn't as enlightened as some people seem to think — and an alarming increase in venereal disease is one of the consequences.

You did the right thing in going to your doctor; he was in error, because your state is one of quite a number which now have laws permitting physicians to treat minors for V.D. without consent of parents.

Your best bet would be to go back to him and ask him to check with the health department. He'll find that I'm right about your state having this law. (I have checked it to be sure).

You have the classical symptoms of gonorrhea, and the sooner you are treated, the better for you. Until you are cured, I trust you will take pains not to pass the disease along to anyone else. (Chances are, the boy you got it from knew he had it, so I don't think much of him.)

No, you don't have to go to a hospital. There's no fixed time as to how soon the disease will begin causing permanent damage if not treated. It is, after all, an infection, and can cause such things as scarring of the Fallopian tubes to the extent of making it impossible to have children later in life.

If your family doctor still won't treat you without having your mother along, then go to another doctor.

Since some strains of the gonorrhea germ now are known to be developing resistance to penicillin, it's wise to go back for a re-check later, in case added treatment with another antibiotic is necessary to finish the job.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told there was an article in the paper recently that tuberculosis is curable. Could you give me what information you have on this? — P.A.F.

I wouldn't now what article you mean, but the facts are

Lord Snowdon undergoes surgery

LONDON (AP) — Lord Snowdon, 40-year-old husband of Princess Margaret, has undergone minor surgery of an undisclosed nature.

A spokesman for the London Clinic, where the operation was performed, said Tuesday Snowdon's condition was satisfactory and "We are hoping he will be able to spend Christmas with the royal family at Windsor."

these: presently available medications are extremely effective in suppressing TB infection.

Whether "curable" is the right word may be quibbling over what words mean. But as long as a TB infection is suppressed, and kept suppressed, the patient is to all practical intents "cured."

True, he must guard against the infection becoming active again, but that can be done very effectively today.

The important points are to be watchful, and discover TB as early as possible, and then to start treating it immediately. TB is disastrous chiefly in cases that haven't been discovered soon enough, or have been treated inadequately.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does low thyroid function cause sterility? — Mrs. E.P.

It can have a distinct effect in making it more difficult to become pregnant, but that isn't quite the same as "causing sterility."

Head to appeal ruling on Reserve Mining Co.

ST. PAUL (AP) — Minnesota Atty. Gen. Douglas Head said Tuesday he will appeal a district court ruling which permits Reserve Mining Co. to continue discharge of taconite tailings into Lake Superior.

The ruling was issued by District Judge C. Luther Eckman in Lake County District Court at Two Harbors.

Head's office and the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA) had sought in the court action to force Reserve to shift its disposal system from the lake to an on-shore site.

TACONITE tailings are finely-ground rock particles left as waste after taconite ore is processed into pellets for use in blast furnaces to make steel. Reserve operates its taconite plant at Silver Bay on the North Shore of Lake Superior.

Head said he will appeal to the Minnesota Supreme Court, but added that he was "pleased" at one portion of Eckman's ruling — a finding that taconite particles are remaining suspended in the lake water and are drifting outside a nine-square mile area in which the company is allowed to discharge its tailings under 1947 permits.

Judge Eckman, in his 28-page order, retained jurisdiction of the case and said he would open it again unless Reserve and the PCA agree by next May 15 on a plan to modify the discharge.

Head said the court can and will take authority again if necessary and render a final decision in the event no mutual agreement is reached.

JUDGE ECKMAN said that in his opinion the 15 years of discharge "has had no measurable adverse or deleterious effects upon the water quality of Lake Superior insofar as to its drinking quality or any conditions affecting public health, affecting fish life or the reproduction thereof or any interference with navigation."

Head said he also will urge the PCA and the State Conservation Department to begin immediate hearings on whether Reserve's 1947 permits should be revoked.

Head said he plans to ask the U.S. Department of Interior and the federal Environmental Protection Agency to demand of Reserve a plan to cease discharge of the tailings. The plan was due Dec. 1, Head said.

"I am disappointed by, and disagree with, Judge Eckman's ruling that it would be unreasonable to require Reserve to comply with the effluent regulation," Head said in a statement.

The PCA regulation in dispute prohibits the discharge of liquids containing more than 30 milligrams of suspended solids per liter. Head said the taconite plant discharge contains 30,000 milligrams of solids per liter, an amount equal to 67,000 tons daily.

ECKMAN directed Reserve to install equipment by May 15, 1973, to assure that the "fines" — taconite particles — settle to the lake bottom. Head said that ruling is not sufficient to protect the quality of the lake waters.

"Lake Superior is now the purest of the Great Lakes, and we cannot permit it to become another Lake Erie, a dying lake," Head declared.

Chill Wills gets star in Hollywood Boulevard walk

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Veteran western actor Chill Wills, 69, has achieved a star in Hollywood Boulevard's sidewalk.

The two-foot, brass-outlined star is one of 1,600 implanted since 1953 along Hollywood Boulevard and Vine Street by civic boosters to create a "walk of fame." Each contains in brass the name of an entertainment celebrity, past or present.

Chill's unveiled Monday in front of Grauman's Chinese Theater, is next to the late Basil Rathbone's and near the late Dick Powell's.

The leathery-faced, 6-foot-2 actor said he had been in show business since he was 11, shortly after his father gave him a guitar and he began singing at Baptist revivals around his native Seagoville, Tex.

He made his movie debut in "Boom Town," a 1939 film starring Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy, and later was the voice of Francis, the movies' talking mule. He was nominated for an Oscar in "The Alamo."

New method 'tricks' body on transplants

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Two scientists say they have developed a method to isolate a substance from human cells that, injected into a transplant patient, may "trick" the body into accepting a donated organ.

Drs. Ralph A. Reisfeld and Michael Pellegrino of Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation said Friday their work could solve the major problem of transplantation—rejection by the body of a foreign organ.

"We have isolated and purified transplantation antigens from human cells in test tubes which could be injected into a recipient so that his body accepts someone else's organ," Reisfeld said in an interview.

Antigen, he explained, is a substance that when introduced into the body stimulates the production of an antibody.

The problem of rejection has been so formidable, he said, that efforts to transplant organs such as the heart have almost stopped after most failed.

"The key factor," he added, "is that the body of the recipient recognizes most tissue transplants as foreign. Then, the same antibody system that protects people against infections goes to work and destroys the transplant."

Under the new process, Reisfeld said, "white blood cells would be drawn from a prospective organ donor by growing them in tissue culture in the laboratory. The antigens in the donor cells would then be extracted and injected into the recipient."

This would desensitize the patient, he said, and "trick" his body into accepting the donated organ.

"So far we've worked only with animals and the results are most encouraging," Reisfeld noted. "But with additional tests and approval by the Food and Drug Administration we will be able to test our process in humans within a year."

Julie Eisenhower attendant at friend's wedding

GLEN ROCK, N.J. (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower has honored a childhood pact by serving as an attendant at the wedding of a girlfriend here.

The appearance by the President's daughter was a well-kept secret.

Julie was an attendant at the wedding of Linda La Barre and Alan Detrick in St. Anthony's Church Sunday. Linda and Julie have been close friends since they met in Key Biscayne, Fla., a dozen years ago.

They made a girlhood pact to take part in each other's weddings, and Linda was a bridesmaid for Julie and David Eisenhower two years ago.

"I think one of the reasons for the secrecy," said a friend of the bride's, "is that Linda knew Julie would never want to overshadow the wedding."

Keister named WSC grid coach

Bob Keister

Bob Keister, an assistant for the past 10 years, was named to succeed Madoe (Moon) Molinari as head football coach at Winona State College this morning. The announcement came from the office of Dr. Robert DuFresne, president of the college. Molinari last Thursday resigned from the post he held for 12 years. "I feel real good," said the 37-year-old Keister after the announcement was made. "I'm real happy to have this opportunity and to have the confidence of the administration. And I want to thank everybody involved in it." Keister has been defensive coach under Molinari since his arrival at Winona State in 1960. He is also the Warriors' head track and field coach, a position he has held throughout his tenure here. The new Warrior coach was also head wrestling coach for one year, 1961, and held an assistant basketball coaching job for a year, also in 1961, under Coach Bob Campbell. "This is a tremendous challenge to me and I'm willing to accept it," noted an elated Keister. "And I hope to keep our program on the highest level. I'm looking forward to next year already." Keister is a graduate of Mason City High School, Mason City, Iowa, and attended Mason City Junior College for one year and Wartburg College, Waverly, Iowa, for three. He was an All-Northwest Junior College defensive tackle and a two-year All-Conference tackle at Wartburg.

He spent one year as an assistant coach at Wartburg before taking an assignment as line coach at South High School, Omaha, Neb., for three years.

Graduated from Wartburg in 1958 he received his B.A. in physical education from Wartburg and his masters from Winona State in 1961. He also did graduate work at Mankato State in 1968.

Keister and his wife, Carman, have three children, Beth Ann, 11; Bruce, 9; and Karin, 7. They live at 18 Glen-Mary Road.

Random Ramblings

By STAN SCHMIDT, Sports Editor

A coach's dilemma

Since my arrival at this desk in mid-May, more head coaching jobs have changed hands than you can shake a stick at.

John Kenney relinquished the basketball reins at Winona High; he was replaced by Dan McGee. John Nett turned over the football coaching job at Cotter to Ed Hall. Ed Spencer left the Hawk baseball job in the hands of Jerry Raddatz.

Ron Ekker went to the University of Minnesota and Les Wothke brought a new offense to the Warriors' basketball court. Marv Gunderson retired as the Hawks' grid coach, leaving Dean Brown in the not-so-enviable position. And, in the latest move, Moon Molinari ended his career at Winona State; his successor was named this morning — Bob Keister.

So where have all the coaches gone? And why have they decided to call it quits? The first question is the easy one. All of the retired — except Ekker — are still in town. All are still teaching and Nett and Molinari are still coaching in other sports, Nett the Rambler cagers and Molinari the Warrior golfers. The why of it all isn't so easy. Although each has given a slightly different reply, it boils down to a coach's dilemma — no talent.

Schmidt

No animals, no zoo

As is often said, if you don't have the animals you can't build a zoo. Nobody seems to have the animals these days, except, perhaps, the Hawk swimming team and Winona State's basketball and wrestling contingents.

So why didn't those coaches go out and get the animals they needed? How can they when they're hampered at all steps?

The Winona State football program can't offer a scholarship to the blue-chip player it needs to compete with the rest of the NIC, which apparently hands out free rides quite freely. And, although Moon has done the most with the least in the past, you can't do it every year. In the present situation, you simply have to offer some funds to attract the big players.

Well, what about the Warrior basketball team? Simple. There's an organization called the Cagers Club which is doing all the funding. They can offer that blue chipper a free ride, or at least supplement his income sufficiently enough to bring him in.

On the prep scene you can't obviously offer a scholarship. So all the talent must come from the lower levels. Herein lies the problem — and a big one it is.

Lower levels fail in duty

In the grade school and junior high levels, some of the coaches aren't teaching the kids the right systems. These coaches aim for a win and forget about the varsity.

Winning isn't the important thing here, you've simply got to teach them the fundamentals of the game so that the varsity coaches can get down to the details, the finesse of the game. By the time they get to the varsity — and even to the sophomore level, they should have the fundamentals down pat.

Such isn't so in the present situation. Dan McGee is doing something about it in his basketball program. He's getting the kids the fundamentals at the right age and can't teach an old dog new tricks.

And Dean Brown hopes he can do the same on the gridiron. But they need support from the junior high level. And it doesn't look like they're getting all the support they need.

In order to get a winning varsity team, the lower levels have to start from No. 1. And they just aren't doing it right now.

Blues triumph 2-1

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota North Stars met the Montreal Canadiens at the Metropolitan Sports Center tonight after a disappointing 2-1 loss to the St. Louis Blues Tuesday night.

Minnesota played one of its best National Hockey League games of the season at St. Louis, but two power play goals by the Blues' Bill Sutherland made the effort worthless.

Sutherland scored his first goal at 2:02 of the first period and added the winning marker 36 seconds into the second period.

Charlie Burns scored the North Stars' only goal, on a deflection of a shot by rookie Billy Heindl at 1:45 of the second period.

The North Stars outshot their West Division rivals in all three periods and finished with a 39-24 shooting edge.

Glenn Hall provided stellar goaltending for the Blues. Cesare Maniago put forth a superior effort in goal for the North Stars.

The Blues had to hang on desperately for the final 30 minutes as the North Stars took one rush after another at Hall.

The game at St. Louis was the third loss of a tough, four-game road trip for the North Stars.

J. P. Parise, who returned to the Minnesota lineup after missing two games with bursitis in his left shoulder, said before the game that the North Stars knew it was time to start trying harder.

"It is time," Parise said, "to get moving. We can play better than we have, and we are going to play better."

"It looked like a shooting gallery out there," St. Louis Blues Coach Al Arbour barked after the game.

Arbour saw the volleys as those being fired by Minnesota and lodged loud complaints despite the Blues' triumph.

"It's nice to get the two points, and that's about the only thing good about it," St. Louis' first-season coach and former star defenseman snapped.

"When they controlled the puck, we were skating around out there all over the ice. I was very disappointed, because it was a game we knew we wanted to win bad and we didn't play well."

Despite an early Blues pace exceeding that of their 1969-70 Western Division NHL championship season, the 37-year-old Arbour saw little to cheer.

"I figure that the last three games we've played have been real bad," he said. "We've got to be more consistent. We've got to play position hockey."

Upsetting to Arbour were the 39 shots with which the North Stars peppered veteran goaltender Hall to 26 fired by the Blues.

Bradley, fouls fatal to WSC, lose 95-83

PEORIA, Ill. — Winona State's basketball team proved that it wasn't playing "out of its league" here Tuesday night, but with four of five starters departing the game on fouls the Warriors fell to Bradley University 95-83.

Don Besonen, Jerome Beckley, Steve Protzman and Jim Jabrosky all were forced out of action on five fouls during a crucial nine-minute span in the second half when Bradley surged ahead. With 12:40 to go in the game Winona had actually taken a 59-58 lead, but the Braves outscored the visitors 17-2 in the next three and one-half minutes to take control.

Winona, suffering its first loss in four starts under first-year Head Coach Les Wothke, chipped a 15-point deficit to as few as seven points in the waning minutes, but the seemingly endless barrage of free throws by the host team accounted for the final margin. Bradley, a member of the Missouri Valley Conference, boosted its season record to 5-0 with the victory.

The Braves held a 41-39 edge at halftime, but Winona managed to tie the score four times in the second half before going ahead by one point after just over seven minutes had been played. Rich Schultz, a surprisingly agile 65-center for Bradley, scored three straight baskets during the Braves' spurt, and finished the game with 25 points.

Al Smith, a 6-1 all-around guard for Bradley, equalled Schultz' performance with 25 points. Sam Simmons, Jim Zimmerman, and 5-4 guard Frank Sylvester were each instrumental on defense hounding the warriors into frequent turnovers with a relentless press.

Game scoring honors went to Winona's Bill Ochs with 29 points. Ochs, a senior sharpshooter from Bloomington, netted 22 of the points in the second half as the Warriors made a determined effort to prevent Bradley from turning it into a rout. Ochs had received a lot of harrassment after hitting only four of 20 field goal attempts in Winona's victory over La Crosse Dec. 7, but he definitely had his "eye" back Tuesday night.

The Warriors will be seeking to regain the winning formula when they take on Chicago State University tonight in Chicago.

But everyone gets up for Cavaliers, too Big difference in N.Y., Cleveland

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON NEW YORK (AP) — There's a world of difference between the champion New York Knicks and the hapless Cleveland Cavaliers, but Coach Bill Fitch complains that other National Basketball Association teams "get up for us just like they do for the Knicks."

After all, he says, "Who wants to be the first established club to lose to us?"

The Knicks don't, although it was hard to tell during Tuesday night's lethargic first period, which ended with Cleveland on top 23-22. Then, Walt Frazier, Dave Stallworth and Mike Ilford combined for a 15-2 burst to start the second period and the Knicks were off and running to a 110-92 triumph. Elsewhere in the NBA, Buffalo nipped Los Angeles 113-111 in overtime, Chicago trimmed Baltimore 115-97, Philadelphia trounced San Diego 122-98, San Francisco defeated Phoenix 129-123 and Detroit beat Portland 111-103.

In the American Basketball Association, Denver defeated Carolina 126-116 and Memphis shaded Texas 146-141 in overtime.

Cleveland's loss to the Knicks was the fifth in a row and 32nd in 34 starts for the first-year expansion team. The Cavaliers have already had losing streaks of 15 and 12 games and have beaten only their expansion brethren Portland and Buffalo.

"I'm not an optimist even when I've got more bullets than the other guy," said Fitch. "But we went to Milwaukee to play the Bucks and the weather was so bad only one plane got there all day . . . ours."

"I've been preaching ball-handling, that there's no way to get in trouble defensively if we have the ball. So last week against Portland we win the tap and Johnny Warren lays the ball in the wrong basket. Most teams hold up one finger to indicate a set play. We do it to point which direction we're going."

Despite New York's 15-2 spurt, the Cavaliers stayed within range until the Knicks ran off 15 consecutive points late in the third period for an 81-57 bulge.

"Our games are all like instant replays," Fitch said. "It's the same script we've been following. We play people pretty even for a while and then we have one or two bad spells. If we could get someone to go for 30-minute games in this league we'd be tougher than hell."

"I'm going to be the world's worst coach this year, but I've got to make damn sure I'm not the world's worst teacher. We've got to stay with it and hope things get turned around."

Iowa considering Holloway, Viking assistant, for coach

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Head football coaching vacancies at Iowa and Illinois are officials of those universities searching in Minnesota and North Dakota.

Lee ready as either backup or starting QB

By PAT THOMPSON

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings will leave the wintry Twin Cities Friday, a day early, for their final regular season game against Atlanta Sunday and Bob Lee says he is ready — either as the backup or starting quarterback.

Lee started the last two victories against Chicago, 16-13, and Boston, 35-14, while regular Gary Cuozzo recovered from a sprained right ankle.

Cuozzo was available to play against Boston and probably will see some action against the Falcons in his final tuneup for the National Football Conference Semifinal playoff Dec. 26 or Dec. 27 at Metropolitan Stadium.

Lee passed for 268 yards and two touchdowns against Boston.

"The last couple of weeks may have removed doubt from some people," Lee said. "I feel if the opportunity arises again, I can go in there and do the job. I feel I still have a long way to go to make the grade as a pro quarterback but I have the confidence that I can do the job."

Cuozzo guided the Vikings to a 9-1 record before he was injured in the first half of a 20-10 loss to the New York Jets. He has passed for 1,545 yards and six touchdowns, completing 47 percent of his passes.

Lee has connected on 34 of 69 attempts—49.2 percent—for 507 yards and four touchdowns.

Lee, a three-year veteran from the University of Pacific, supports Coach Bud Grant's theory that "the defense wins the game and the offense sells the tickets."

"The role of the quarterback has been exaggerated," Lee said. "At long last perhaps it is in the right perspective. Look at San Francisco. John Brodie has a defense behind him now and is finally getting the recognition he's deserved for years."

The Vikings will be almost at full strength for the Falcons and former Coach Norm Van Brocklin.

Cornerback Ed Sharrockman was slowed in practice with a leg injury.

Bobby Bryant, out four games with a dislocated shoulder, went in for a few plays against the Patriots Sunday and will be ready against the Falcons if needed.

Gene Washington and Jim Lindsey, both with hip bruises, and defensive back Ted Provost, who was knocked out Sunday, all are expected to be ready for the Falcons, 4-7-2.

Game time is 12:05 p.m. (CST). The teams have met four times with the Falcons winning three. Atlanta snapped Minnesota's 12-game winning streak last year, 10-3.

Houston stumps La Crescent in 91-72 thrashing

ROOT RIVER
	W-L	Rushford	W-L
Houston	2-0	Rushford	1-1
La Crescent	2-1	Peterson	1-2
Caledonia	2-1	Mabel-Canton	0-2
Lewiston	2-1	Spring Grove	0-3

Dark horse Houston removed its shroud Tuesday night, and the bright play beneath led the Hurricanes to a 91-72 thrashing of highly touted La Crescent. That win established Houston as a definite contender (if not favorite) to capture the Root River crown, and at the same time left the Hurricanes sitting all alone at the top of the conference heap.

Caledonia, Rushford and Lewiston all won games Tuesday to hover one game below league-leading Houston.

A 32-point display by Peterson's Mark Johnson went for naught as his Tigers fell 89-65 to Rushford. Mark Thompson drilled 25 for the Trojans.

Lewiston's 58-46 conquest of Mabel-Canton was largely the result of scoring balance. Three Lewiston cagers broke the double figure barrier, Luther Manion's 14 points being the best for either squad.

Caledonia's 71-59 conquest of hapless Spring Grove kept the Warriors within striking range.

HOUSTON 91, LA CRESCENT 72

A 50-point second half provided the Houston Hurricanes with a comfortable 91-72 stroll past La Crescent, which had previously boasted a perfect 2-0 conference record. The Hurricanes need wait only three days for their next crucial test. They host Caledonia Friday.

Jeff Carrier and Bob Jacobson shared scoring honors for Houston, each hitting 24 points. For La Crescent, Larry Moore notched 18.

The Hurricanes held a 22-14 edge at the end of the first quarter, and led 41-33 at halftime. The barrage came in the third period, though. In that frame, the Hurricanes tallied 25 points to 17 for the Lancers.

RUSHFORD 89, PETERSON 65

Mark Johnson's 32-point performance was overshadowed by Rushford, as his Peterson Tigers dropped an 89-65 decision to the host Trojans.

Mark Thompson and Ken Benson flipped in 25 and 21 points, respectively, for the triumphant Trojans. Val Gudmundson of Peterson camed 12 points and hauled down a dozen rebounds as well.

Rushford wasted little time in the contest. The Trojans streaked to a 26-12 first quarter lead and opened the gap to 50-23 by halftime. They led 72-46 after three quarters in a d clapsed.

Duane Agrimson of Peterson grabbed 12 rebounds.

LEWISTON 58, MABEL-CANTON 46

Three Lewiston cagers broke into double figures at Mabel-Canton, and the balance led to a 58-46 Cardinal win.

Luther Manion tallied 14 for the winners, Bruce Laufenberger added 12, and Larry Ihke hit 11. Craig Martin of Mabel-Canton scored 12 for the Cougars and hauled down 11 rebounds as well. Bill Caldwell notched 10 points for the losers.

Lewiston slipped out to an 11-9 first quarter lead, but by halftime, the host school had crept back into a tie at 23-23. A 22-point Lewiston third quarter put things out of reach of the Cougars.

CALEDONIA 71, SPRING GROVE 59

Caledonia limited Spring Grove to 25 points in the second half and went on to topple the Lions 71-59 on its home court Tuesday night. The Warriors are now 2-1 in Root River Conference play and 4-2 overall.

Senior guard Paul Koenig paced the winners with 22 points, Fred Palen contributed 16, and Paul Richards finished with 12. Caledonia shot 45 percent from the floor in the game. John Diersen, another leading scorer for the Warriors, suffered a sprained ankle in the first quarter.

Spring Grove was again led by Richard Osgard with 18 points, Mike Bentley added 14, and Maynard Johnson wound up with a dozen. The Lions, 0-5, trailed only 36-34 at halftime.

Onalaska upset by Blair; Alma struggles to victory

Another area high school team dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten Tuesday night as Blair upset Onalaska 59-58 on Scott Johnson's short jumper with 12 seconds left.

The Hilltoppers carried a 5-0 record into the game with Blair, a team that compiled only a 2-3 mark prior to Tuesday. In other Wisconsin area prep action Alma struggled past Eleva-Strum 68-63, Gilmanton got back on the winning track by stopping Plum City 74-61, Taylor toppled Onalaska Luther 70-59, Augusta bombed Caledonia 66-48, and Bangor dropped a 58-48 decision to Adams-Friendship.

Nonconference tilts in the Minnesota area included Randolph's 58-51 loss to Farmington in overtime, Rose Creek's 71-52 win over Mazeppa, and Elton's 71-62 triumph over Le-Roy-Ostrander.

BLAIR 59, ONALASKA 58

Blair evened its season record at 3-3 and handed Onalaska its first loss of the season in the process by nipping the Hilltoppers 59-58 on their own court.

Scott Johnson, a 5-11 junior, collected two of his team-high 18 points on a jump shot with 12 seconds remaining in the game, and it proved to be the margin of victory for the Cardinals. Blair hit 27 off 55 field goal attempts for 49 percent, and Onalaska, now 5-1, hit only 25 of 67 for 37 percent.

Terry Galstad followed Johnson in the scoring column for the winners with 15 points, Steve Jacobson added 13, and Jeff Olterson finished with 10. Blair held a 34-33 edge at halftime.

Tom Baures, who took scoring honors in the game with 19, had put the Hilltoppers ahead 58-57 with two straight baskets with 18 seconds showing on the clock. Chuck Phillips tossed in 17 points and grabbed 13 rebounds, and Jeff Hayes hit 11.

Onalaska salvaged the B-squad contest by a 46-31 margin.

ALMA 68, ELEVA-STRUM 63

Powerful Alma had to work to sneak past determined Eleva-Strum 68-63 at Eleva.

Barry Ritscher led the Rivermen's attack by netting 16 points, Jim Baecker tallied 14 and Jeff Youngbauer 12. Eleva-Strum's Ted Olson captured game scoring honors by hitting 21 points. Teammates Ron Bue and Dave Olson added 17 and 10 respectively.

FARMINGTON 56, RANDOLPH 51 (OT)

Although Randolph held a five point lead with only two minutes remaining in regulation play, host Farmington came back to tie the score 45-45 and later win 56-51 in overtime.

Jerry Jensen of Farmington totaled 16 points on the night, Mark Wiese 13, and Frank Phillips 12. For Randolph, Gary Otte hit 14 and Paul Mahoney 10.

Randolph held a 9-5 first quarter edge, and led 20-16 at halftime. The Rockets also led after three stanzas, this time by six at 36-30. Farmington, though, outscored Randolph 15-9 in the final regulation period and 11-6 in the overtime.

That last quarter difference for the host school came with a change in defense. They switched to a zone press that hindered the Rockets.

TAYLOR 70, ONALASKA LUTHER 59

Twenty-two points from the hand of Ronny Joten led the Taylor Trojans to their 70-59 conquest of Onalaska Luther in Taylor.

He got scoring help from Larry Littlegeorge (15 points) and George Everson (12). Curt Seiger scored 16 of Onalaska's points, while Dave Lautz hit 14 and Bob Lenser 12.

The fact that Taylor came out on the short end of vital statistics was of little consequence to the final score. Taylor shot 41 percent from the field to 47 percent for Luther. Free throw-wise, the Trojans shot 61 percent to 69 percent for the visitors. Taylor did, though, take more of each type of shot.

Everson, a senior reserve center, also trapped nine rebounds besides coming off the bench to score his 12 points.

GILMANTON 74, PLUM CITY 61

Jack Dieckman was up to his old tricks again as his Gilmanton Panthers clawed host Plum City 74-61. Dieckman burned the nets for 33 points to lead his team and all scorers in that department.

Also for Gilmanton, Mark Schultz canned 15 counters. Rick Robey of Plum City hit 17, Gary Bothum 16, and Lee Gilles 12.

The Panthers hit 44 percent from the field and 22 of 37 from the free throw line. Plum City, meanwhile, made good on 31 percent of its field goal attempts and 17 of 30 free tosses.

A 26-point second quarter staked the Panthers to a 40-20 halftime advantage.

AUGUSTA 68, CADOTT 44

A 66-48 Augusta victory over host Cadott was the Beavers' third in their last four games.

Greg Frase was the imposing personality in this tilt. He scored 22 points, stabbled 14 rebounds, blocked seven shots, and notched six assists. Teammate John Dickinson added 15, and Bill Fitzmorris 10.

Cadott's John Haines dumped in 15 points for his club, and watched Dale Klukas hit 14.

Augusta converted 10 of 15 free throws and shot 50 percent from the field. Cadott's five of nine free throw rate points out the absence of fouls for Augusta. The host squad hit at a 40 percent rate from the floor.

ALMA 68, ELEVA-STRUM 63

Powerful Alma had to work to sneak past determined Eleva-Strum 68-63 at Eleva.

Barry Ritscher led the Rivermen's attack by netting 16 points, Jim Baecker tallied 14 and Jeff Youngbauer 12. Eleva-Strum's Ted Olson captured game scoring honors by hitting 21 points. Teammates Ron Bue and Dave Olson added 17 and 10 respectively.

ALMA LED 22-14 AFTER THE FIRST QUARTER, 39-29 AT HALFTIME, AND 54-44 AFTER THREE FRAMES.

Carr's 54 not enough

Rebels' Neumann hot—57 points

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Neumann of Mississippi has stamped himself as a likely contender for the 1971 college basketball individual scoring championship along with Austin Carr of Notre Dame and Artis Gilmore of Jacksonville.

Neumann, a 6-foot-6 sophomore, scored 57 points, the highest individual single game performance of the young season, in leading the Rebels to a 109-100 victory over Southern Mississippi Tuesday night.

Hoosiers, down by 10 points at halftime, 53-43, rallied to go ahead by nine points, then survived a closing Notre Dame surge.

North Carolina, No. 20 and the only other team in The Associated Press Top Twenty to see action, snapped Virginia's six-game winning streak, 80-75. Dennis Wuyck led the Tar Heels with 30 points.

Ed Ratleff scored 33 points to lead Long Beach State over Chicago Loyola 84-81 in overtime and Tom Window's layup in the closing seconds gave Kent State a 64-62 triumph over Purdue.

Craig Love's 12-foot jumper with six seconds left accounted for Ohio University's 81-80 victory over Wisconsin. Russell Lee's 39 points led Marshall over Morehead 73-70.

St. John's of New York downed Rhode Island 75-71, Massachusetts overcame Connecticut 74-68, Duke routed Virginia Tech 104-75, Davidson tripped Richmond 67-54 and Manhattan shaded Fairleigh Dickinson 70-68.

Ohio crimps Badgers 81-80

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Craig Love's jump shot and Bobby Howell's theft nullified Wisconsin's comeback, and Ohio got away with an 81-80 basketball victory over the Badgers Tuesday night.

Wisconsin had been looking for its third consecutive victory over the Bobcats. But the hosts allowed the Badgers the lead only once in the second half, an 80-79 margin with 21 seconds left to play.

The Badgers had trailed by up to nine points before tying the score at 79-79 on Gary Watson's jump shot from a corner.

WITH 1:02 remaining, Ohio's Larry Hunter missed a free-throw and Wisconsin got the rebound. Watson was fouled, and it was his charity shot that put Wisconsin ahead.

Carr, a 6-3 senior, tossed in 54 points in a losing cause as the Irish fell before Indiana 105-103.

Gilmore, a 7-2 giant, didn't play, but his 50 points against Biscayne on Dec. 1 ranked as the highest one game output until Neumann and Carr broke loose.

Neumann got his 57 points on 20 field goals and 17-of-18 free throws. Carr threw in 21 field goals and 12-of-14 free throws for his 54.

A turnout of 11,343 at South Bend watched the nationally seventh-ranked Irish fall before the 18th-ranked Hoosiers led by the combined 58-point production of Joby Wright and George McGinnis.

McGinnis and Wright, both 6-7, scored 29 points each as the

Rocco's Pizza tips 1,108 team game

Rocco's Pizza recorded the third highest team game of the season Tuesday night in the Westgate American League as it put together a 1,108.

The high for the season thus far is a 1,144 rolled by Pozanc Trucking in the Westgate Classic League. Second highest is a 1,123 by Fenske Body Shop in the Hal-Rod Legion League.

Pete Polus led the way for Rocco's with a 233 game. Rocco's also notched the high team series for the night with a 2,975.

Nord Overland had the high individual series of the night rolling for Earl's Tree Service with a 616.

Polus' 233, however, was not good enough for high honors of the night as Gary Schossow of Rupperts Grocery in the Hal-Rod 4-City League compiled a 243.

Ralph Albrecht had a 611 in the same pool and Jardine Overland had a 605, Bob Kosidowski a 601 and Hank Scherdin an errorless 560. Kupietz Auto Service rolled a 1,023 game and Girtler Oil a 2,884 series.

Marlene Anderson rolled a 210, Yvonne Carpenter a 546, Osis Bar a 507 and West End Greenhouse a 2,663 in the Hal-Rod Ladies City League to top Tuesday night's women bowlers.

Also recording 500's in the Ladies City pool were Mrs. Anderson, 529; Esther Bescup, 525; Anne Beranek, 523; Ruth Novotny, 518; Ellie Griesel, 504, and Nancy Williamson, 501.

HAL-ROD: Twi-Lite — Nancy Gustafson and Phyllis Christopherson rolled 174's while the latter also came through with a 325. Twinklers bowled a 412 game and Jokers an 803 series.

WESTGATE: National — Steve Larson rolled a 222, Forest Arnold a 562, Edwin's Jewelers a 985 and Coca Cola a 2,847.

Hiawatha — Lyle Jacobson put together a 216—576 and Norman's Electric a 1,029—2,975.

Fishing reports

Although the big catches of early December have passed, fishermen — in spite of the slushy snow, water on the ice and the deep snow — are still doing fairly well. The ice is still hazardous however, with holes under the snow. Testing is advised before venturing out onto sections not previously used.

Last spring, when concentrations were found in Wisconsin river fish below the Wyandotte plant.

The company responded by modifying their waste discharge practices and holding mercury-bearing wastes for disposal on the land or for treatment to recover the mercury compounds.

Sunfish seem to be making up a good percent of the catches at Spring Lake near Buffalo City, Wis., and at Onalaska. The Buffalo City area has many fish houses on the ice and the snow there is well packed. This is also true of the Onalaska area.

Other industries that had been utilizing mercury in various industrial processes voluntarily, and upon request from DNR, altered these processes or discontinued the use of mercury, Mackie said.

Some fishermen at the latter area have been catching largemouth bass on minnows and light tackle. The bass have been fair-sized. Warmer weather would help.

Although no cases of mercury poisoning have been recorded in the state, it was felt that caution in consumption of fish from waters most contaminated should be observed. Upon the advice of state health authorities, it was suggested that fish be eaten no more than once per week from such waters.

More mercury information MADISON, Wis. — Three "benchmark" orders for the control of mercury pollution of the state's air and water will "place Wisconsin in the forefront of those states which have recognized and initiated action to control the mercury menace," it was announced Thursday by L. P. Voigt, Secretary of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

No mercury levels of any known public health significance have been found in other lakes, rivers, public water supplies, or wildlife.

The general order, which applies to any industry, institution or municipality releasing discharge waste into Wisconsin waters, limits organic mercury discharge to one-half per billion as measured in a 24-hour composite sample. It also limits the discharge of inorganic or metallic mercury to no more than 0.05 pound per million gallons of effluent, over and above the natural "background" level. The maximum allowable discharge per day will be 0.15 pound per day averaged over 30 days, with no more than 0.5 pound in any one day. The general order is effective Monday, Dec. 14.

Two orders were issued to the Wyandotte Chemicals Corp. at Port Edwards to stop or reduce discharge of mercury into the Wisconsin river and into the air. The third, a general order, establishes statewide limits for all sources on the release of organic and inorganic mercury compounds into state waters.

Don Mackie, assistant secretary of DNR, explained the orders are the latest step in a series of actions by DNR aimed at reducing mercury contamination of Wisconsin's environment. Mercury was first found to be an environmental hazard

Dover-Eyota, Hayfield eye coming clash

Dover-Eyota ripped off its sixth win without a loss this season by battering Dodge Center 84-57 Tuesday night in Eyota. Hayfield also remained unbeaten by more than doubling Claremont's score in a 78-36 triumph.

The two undefeated teams are slated for a Wasjio Conference showdown in Hayfield Friday night. West Concord and Pine Island remained just one game back of the co-leaders in the standings with narrow victories.

The Cardinals got past winless Wanamingo 62-55, and Pine Island handled a cold-shooting Byron team 60-52.

Hayfield, with a 4-0 mark all in conference action, had an easy time of it from the start jumping to a 25-8 bulge after one quarter and taking a 40-18 lead at halftime. Nine players scored for the Vikings, led by Tim Kramer with 12.

Dover-Eyota, a team that doesn't have a starter over 5-11, connected on 39 of their 74 shots from the floor for 53 percent. The Dodgers found themselves on the short end of a 22-12 score after the first period and were trailing 44-20 at the intermission. Dodge Center's record now stands at 2-2 overall.

Kevin Smith, a 5-9 forward for Dover-Eyota, typified the winners' scrappy, aggressive type of play in the game by grabbing 17 rebounds. Greg Smith, a 5-7 guard, led all scorers in the game with 25 points, Bob Allen came in with 14, Bob Brevington had 13, and Bob Nelson finished with 10.

George Witt topped the Dodgers with 17 points, and sophomore Todd Hutson collected 10.

CAPTURES 36 AWARDS . . . Hud captures 36 year-end awards

Hud, an eight-year-old Appaloosa gelding, won 36 year-end grand and reserve championships in five horsemen's associations covering a four-state area, it was announced this week.

Hud was owned by Allen Goetzman of Winona before the Appaloosa was sold to Charles De Haan, Augusta, Kan., earlier this month.

Hud was shown in 22 shows, winning 14 first places in halter, with 11 grand championships and two reserves to his credit. In the performance division, Hud was tagged grand champion performance winner 14 times with two additional reserve titles.

In addition to the year-end trophies the Goetzman-Hud duo won three saddles, bringing Hud's collection to eight.

Among the awards were two grand champion performance horse titles, Grand Champion Halter Gelding of the Wiswota Appaloosa Horse Club, Champion Owner-Rider Performance Horse in the Southern Wisconsin Appaloosa Horse Association, Champion Jumper-Hunter for four associations, and Champion Park Seat Pleasure in the Blackhawk Appaloosa Association of Illinois.

Ridden by Kim Edstrom of Winona, Hud won a grand and a reserve championship in youth categories. In addition to Miss Edstrom, who rode Hud in all jumping events, Krysten Cornwell, Terry Lembokey and Carey Griesel shared the riding honors during the 1970 season in youth and open events.

Also winning top honors in the Wiswota Club were Joker's Montecore, owned by Mary Bauer; Illusion, owned by Jack Szczepanski and youth riders in the girls division — Kathy Fleming, Mary and Diana Bauer, Wendy Woodworth and Jerri Jeresek.

Detroit's two young Lions think ahead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The two young Lions of Detroit, quarterback Greg Landry and running back Steve Owens, were thinking ahead when they learned they had been selected by The Associated Press as offensive Players of the Week in the National Football League.

Both were still jubilant over Detroit's 28-23 upset of the Los Angeles Rams Monday night. But they left the impression their thoughts were centered now on Sunday when the Lions host the Green Bay Packers in another "must" triumph if Detroit is to remain in the NFL playoff picture.

Landry, the 23-year-old 6-foot-4 205-pounder from Massachusetts, whose arm and running techniques ushered Detroit into contention, added: "It's a great honor, I know, but actually I was only a part of a whole team win over the Rams. We had to have it, just as we do against the Packers."

Coach Joe Schmidt kept the team here for weather reasons to prepare for Green Bay.

Landry connected successfully on 16-of-23 passes for 188 yards and one touchdown in the Ram game. He also rushed for 49 yards, including one for 23 that set up a key touchdown in the final minutes.

Dallas pair tops in week's defense

NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck Howley and Dave Edwards, a pair of outsiders in Dallas' Dooomsday Defense, kept the Cowboys inside the National Football League title picture last weekend by pinching the Cleveland Browns where it hurt the most.

Edwards, a 228-pounder from Auburn in his eighth year with the Cowboys, ended Cleveland's last threat by picking off a Bill Nelsen pass on his 25-yard line for his second interception of the game.

He made his first theft at the Browns' 38 in the opening quarter, but the Dallas offense was unable to cash in.

Owens replaced Mel Farr early in the first period when the regular went out with a shoulder injury. He carried for 68 yards and two touchdowns. "Mel Farr is one of the best I've ever seen," Owens continued. "I know it will be tough replacing him but you have to have confidence to go in and play this game. If I'm needed, I'll be there."

It is still not known when Farr will be ready to resume play.

Farr was flown back to Detroit Tuesday. Reports indicated the ex-UCLA star might not be away too long.

Howley and Edwards each accounted for two key turnovers in a 6-2 victory over the Browns Saturday that sent Dallas into the final week of regular season play with a solid shot at its division championship.

Today, the Cowboys' rugged outside linebackers were named co-winners of the NFL Defensive Player of the Week award by The Associated Press.

Howley, a 12-year NFL veteran who has represented the Cowboys in five consecutive Pro Bowl All-Star games, twice killed deep Cleveland penetrations in the bruising defensive struggle.

The mobile, 225-pound belter from West Virginia teamed with cornerback Mel Renfro to throw Bo Scott for a three-yard loss on a fourth-down, short-yardage play from the Dallas 11 late in the first half. Then he recovered Gary Collins' fumble in the end zone to blunt a fourth-quarter drive and preserve the Cowboys' slim lead.

The first play, which came with Dallas trailing 2-0, was a turning point, according to Cowboys' Coach Tom Landry. "We gained the psychological advantage," he said. "That play could have broken us down and given them the momentum and advantage."

Edwards, a 228-pounder from Auburn in his eighth year with the Cowboys, ended Cleveland's last threat by picking off a Bill Nelsen pass on his 25-yard line for his second interception of the game.

He made his first theft at the Browns' 38 in the opening quarter, but the Dallas offense was unable to cash in.

Winona's next meet will be Saturday against the La Crosse YMCA in the Winona "Y" pool beginning at 2 p.m. The team is coached by Bill Braun.

Three tied for third in Hiawatha Valley cage race

Third place in the Hiawatha Valley Conference is shared three ways following Tuesday's scattered play. Stewartville, Kasson-Mantorville and Zumbrota now are all tied with 3-2 marks behind the loop's unbeaten co-leaders, Kenyon and Cannon Falls.

Kasson-Mantorville rapped Stewartville 60-52, and Zumbrota got by Lake City 57-52. Paul Peterson's 14-point output in the second half sparked Zumbrota's its come-from-behind victory. Lake City held a 23-22 edge over the host Tigers at the intermission.

Peterson finished with 16 points for Zumbrota, now 3-2 on the year. Pat Bradley chipped in with 15 for the winners, and Mike Wiebusch added 10.

Twins can't make any more trades with N.L.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The inter-league trading deadline passed at 12:01 a.m. today, and the Minnesota Twins apparently were unsuccessful in dealing with National League teams.

"Now anything we might do in a trade would have to be in the American League or via waivers," said Calvin Griffith, Twins' president.

The Twins tried to talk to several National League clubs but could not reach agreement.

The Twins would like to add a left-handed pitcher and depth to the outfield and third base.

In another development, Griffith said Dick Wieneck has resigned as scouting supervisor of the West Coast area.

"Wieneck was one of the three or four highest paid scouts in baseball," said Griffith. "He wanted a big raise, more than we were willing to pay."

Casper named Player of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Casper was named Player of the Year Tuesday in a poll announced by Golf Magazine.

Casper heads the publication's All-America team which also includes Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Dave Hill, Bruce Crampton, Harry Hinson, Frank Beard and Dick Lott.

Rushford slates invitational mat tourney Saturday

RUSHFORD, Minn. (Special) — Rushford High School will hold an invitational wrestling tournament in the school's gymnasium Saturday.

Preliminaries are scheduled to start at 1 p.m. and the final round at 8.

Participating will be Rushford, Lewiston, Houston and Spring Grove.

First place medals and a trophy for the first-place team will be awarded.

City attorney is named for BRP

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — Black River Falls Mayor Michael Anderson has announced the appointment of Gerald Laabs as city attorney for Black River Falls.

He will fill the vacancy created when long time City Attorney Louis I. Drecktrah became judge of Jackson County.

Laabs, a 1966 graduate of La Crosse State University and a 1968 graduate of the University of Wisconsin Law School, is a partner in private law practice with Robert W. Radcliffe here. He has been serving more than a year as assistant district attorney of Jackson County.

Anderson, in announcing the appointment, said it becomes effective upon confirmation of the city council, which will meet on Jan. 5.

SWEARING LAWS

LEEDS, England — Yorkshire comedians have asked local authorities if they could use swear words on stage. They are fed up with laws that allow four-letter words in shows like "Oh, Calcutta" and "Hair," yet threaten comedians with heavy fines for using similar language.

SST filibuster could mean other problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Senate opponents of the Super-sonic Transport go through with a threatened filibuster, SST backers plan to maneuver them into the blame for blocking other important Senate business.

Anti-SST forces led by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., have said they will talk as long as necessary — even to the end of the current lame-duck session of Congress — to kill a compromise allotting $210 million for SST development this year.

The compromise came out of a Senate-House conference and the House approved the appropriation measure by a 319-71 vote Tuesday.

The Senate earlier voted 52-41 against $200 million for the plane, which would kill the SST program, and Proxmire said, "we believe we have the power" to filibuster the compromise to legislative death.

He said the filibuster would be solely against the SST and plane opponents would seek to suspend it frequently to permit Senate action on other bills.

But the SST bill's floor manager, Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., said he does not intend to put the appropriations measure aside for any other measures until it comes to a vote.

That would force the SST critics into the position of blocking dozens of major bills, including welfare and Social Security, which most of them favor, with their filibuster against the plane.

The showdown is expected when the Senate takes up a $2.6 billion transportation appropriation containing funding for development of the 1,800-mile-an-hour jetliner.

The sole purpose of the filibuster, Proxmire said, would be to cut SST funds out of the $2.6 billion money bill for now and vote on them separately Jan. 23 or 24, after the new Congress convenes.

Proxmire said he still would vote against the money for the SST, but said he would lead no further drive against it in January.

Market gives up ground in profit taking

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave up further ground today as pressure from profit taking took its toll for the third day this week. Trading was moderate.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 4.72 to 814.90.

Losing issues outpaced advances by about 3 to 2 among the issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Some analysts said that in addition to profit taking, year-end tax selling and portfolio switching were also weighing on the market. They added, however, that the market continued to demonstrate a strong foundation.

Telex, off 1 1/2 at 16 1/2, topped the active list on the Big Board. Among other glimmers, Polaroid was down 3/4 to 73 1/2; Xerox was off 3/4 to 87, and Control Data was up 3/4 to 51 1/2.

In motors, Chrysler was down 1/2 at 27 1/2; Ford was up 1/2 to 54 1/2 and General Motors was ahead 1/2 at 70 1/2.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off 1.1 to 276.1 at noon. Industrials were off 2.4, rails were down .3, and utilities were off .4.

In addition to the Telex block, other large-parcel trades before noon included 47,700 shares of Potter Instrument at 15, down 1 1/2, on the American Exchange, and 12,000 shares of Fannie Mae at 64 1/4, up 1/4 on the Big Board.

Noon prices on the Amex included:

- California Computer Products, off 1 1/2 to 27 1/2; Viewlex, 1/4 at 14 1/2; Drew National, up 3/4 at 4 1/2; Venice Industries, ahead 3/4 to 20 1/2; Milgo Electronic, off 1/2 at 25; Rolls-Royce, up 1-16 to 1 1/2; Career Academics, down 1/4 to 3 1/2; and Kenton Corp., off 1/2 at 16 1/2.

Fire prevention poster selected

Selection of a fire prevention poster that will be entered in statewide competition next month was announced this week by Winona Fire Department personnel who sponsor the Winona Junior Fire Inspectors program. The program involves fifth grade students in all city elementary schools.

A Lincoln Elementary School girl, Debbie Dietrich, won first place for her poster carrying the admonition: "It's your world; why burn it up?" Winning second place was Robert Gorman, Cathedral Elementary School. Third place went to Scott Prosser, Jefferson Elementary School, and honorable mention went to Kim Sanden, Central Elementary. Steve Malin, also of Cathedral School, won a model fire truck awarded by fire department members.

Judges for the contest were Winona State College student teachers. About 725 entries were submitted in the poster and slogan contests.

Winning first place in the slogan contest was James Bunke, St. Martin's School. Betsy Bork, a Cathedral student, won second and Janet Hoepfner, Madison Elementary, won third. Honorable mention was won by Lee Stollman, also of Madison.

The program involves about 540 school students. They get special instruction and work on projects in connection with subjects such as home checkups, Christmas safety and family escape plans.

Chiefs at the various city schools are: Tena Bergland and Lee Stollman, Madison; Mark Ayotte and James Breza, Cathedral; David Kelley, Lincoln; Scott Ramin and Marlene Schaffer, Central; Gregory Gunderson, St. Mary's; Sean Connolly and Ann Rudnik, St. Stanislaus; Beth Kniester, Tom Abraham and Leonard Marg, Washington-Kosciusko; Tony Masepohl, St. Matthew's; Jeff Hanson, Marlin Larson, Mary Voelker and Kristine Hipps, Jefferson.

Ramsey to have bullet removed after wound heals

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Doctors treating Nate Ramsey, the Philadelphia Eagles defensive back who was wounded Monday, said they will operate to remove the bullet from Ramsey's chest.

A spokesman for the Eagles said Tuesday the operation would come after the wound heals—in ten days to two weeks. Ramsey was out of danger, but still hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

A municipal judge has issued a warrant charging Jimmie Louis Harrison, 35, with shooting Ramsey as the Eagles' defensive captain walked along a West Philadelphia street on the way to have a beer with a friend.

Police said Ramsey told them a man approached him and said, "I'm going to kill you."

"What do you mean?" Ramsey said he asked.

"I'll kill you," the man replied.

The assailant then shot three times. One of the bullets hit Ramsey, and another ricocheted off the sidewalk and nicked an 11-year-old girl who was walking home from school. Her wound did not require hospitalization.

Police have not been able to establish a motive for the shooting.

Donald E. Rause, principal of an elementary school, said there had been four shootings in four months in the area, and children from his school had witnessed each one of the incidents.
