To counter terrorist attacks

Saigon patrols increased

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command increased its police patrols in Saigon today as part of a precautionary alert to counter a pre-Christmas wave of terrorist attacks in the South Vietnamese capital.

The U.S. Air Force said it had intelligence reports showing "a very likely possibility of increased attempts of assassination and kidnaping of U.S. servicemen."

Three Americans were killed and 14 wounded in bomb and grenade attacks in Saigon Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Two gunmen killed a member of the South Vietnamese National Assembly today, but it apparently was not a case of political terrorism; the gunmen were trying to extort more than $7,000 from the assemblyman, a doctor. The U.S. Command said the Army "has increased its military police patrols and has advised military personnel to avoid crowds and the downtown area of Saigon whenever possible. Personnel were advised to take normal safety precautions which have always been in effect."

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said civilian personnel were also being reminded of normal precautions, particularly those for the security of buildings and vehicles.

Outside the capital, one American was killed and eight were wounded in an ambush in the Central Highlands. South Vietnamese troops reported a sharp clash in eastern Cambodia. But with American battlefield action continuing at a low level, the U.S. Command in its weekly casualty summary said 29 of its men were killed in action last week and 32 others died from accidents, illness and other non-hostile causes.

Another 377 Americans were wounded in action last week, while the South Vietnamese command said it had 290 men killed and 754 wounded. The U.S. Command said allied forces killed 351 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

The attacks on Americans in Saigon began last weekend when Vietnamese threw fire bombs at several U.S. military vehicles to protest the killing of a student by an American soldier in Qui Nhon.

On Tuesday, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese broadcasts called for "greatly increased offensive action" against American and South Vietnamese troops and military installations. A few hours later a bomb exploded in a U.S. officers' billet. On Wednesday night a terrorist threw a fragmentation grenade into a group of American and Vietnamese outside a U.S. Navy billet near Tan Son Nhut air base, and three hours later a 33-pound explosive charge went off in the lobby of U.S. officers' billet about a mile away.

Asked who was responsible for the rash of attacks, the U.S. security chief for Saigon, Brig.

Gen. Michael J. L. Greene, told a news conference: "It's a combination of things—student activity, Viet Cong terrorists and maybe just some disgruntled people."

"No security can be good enough to stop this kind of thing," he added. "The terrorist has the advantage of knowing what he wants to do, where he wants to put a charge and when."

On the battlefields, South Vietnamese infantry, bombers and artillery killed 34 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in Cambodia on Highway One, about 55 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, a spokesman said. He reported six South Vietnamese troops were wounded.

Senate tries to work way out of jam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Down-to-the-wire drives to meet the constitutional deadlines for adjournment in Congress are nothing new, but no one on Capitol Hill recalls anything to match this year's situation.

"The Senate has gotten itself into the ridiculous posture of having a series of filibusters or threatened filibusters all running simultaneously," Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., declared today.

Six, to be exact, said Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana—foreign aid, defense appropriations, a Social Security-welfare reform conglomeration, the supersonic transport and a couple of lesser items being held up by one or two senators.

Williams proposed a series of agreements to limit debate on the bills and amendments that are preventing adjournment of the Senate.

The House has finished its major tasks and is awaiting to clear up what the Senate sends it.

"Statesmanlike... fair... timely... a must," said half a dozen senators of Williams' proposal. But when Williams moved for approval there was a chorus of objections and the Senate lapsed again into its routine.

Work 'normal'

Calm returns to Poland

WARSAW (AP) — Calm returned today to the Gdansk area after three days of riots and street fighting touched off by price increases, Warsaw Radio reported.

"Life in Gdansk has returned to normal," said the government radio. "The population went quietly to work this morning. All city transport is running normally."

"Although the City Council set the opening hour for shops at 7, tradesmen voluntarily opened their doors at 6 to enable people to buy food. The streets are almost clear of rubble."

The broadcast did not say whether the 6 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew had been lifted, but the city's two newspapers were publishing on schedule.

Tight security was still in effect around the tri-cities of Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot this morning. All flights to the area on the western shore of the Bay of Danzig were suspended and long-distance telephone service had not resumed.

The official death toll in the fighting stood at six, but other sources said at least 12 were killed and more than 150 injured, including many police.

Travelers arriving Wednesday night from Gdansk, the former German city of Danzig, said the fighting between street crowds and police was dying down, but that a sit-in by workers in factories and shipyards was under way.

A Western diplomat who was in Gdansk Monday, gave this report of the start of the fighting: Shipyard workers were marching peacefully in the city Monday afternoon to protest increases averaging 20 per cent in the government price of food, fuel, clothing and other commodities.

Police, seeing they were outnumbered by the demonstrators, panicked and started shooting. This triggered demonstrations all over the city.

The official party newspaper, Trybuna Ludu, said today the riots "must become a serious lesson for the whole party, for the working class and the working masses." It added that "those responsible for murders, arson and looting must suffer severe punishment."

The paper's account also said the outbreak started with a peaceful march by the shipyard workers. But it told a different story of subsequent events.

"As long as there were no acts of violence, militiamen, subsidiary police and soldiers abstained firmly from the use of force." However, the authorities had to act in self-defense against "adventurists and lawbreakers who hid behind the backs of shipyard workers and attacked the defenders of public order."

New outburst of guerrilla terrorism

Many Ethiopians fleeing Eritrea

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new outburst of guerrilla terrorism in the Ethiopian province of Eritrea has sent thousands of women and children fleeing into neighboring Sudan within the last two months.

The flight to the neighboring African nation spotlights another potentially dangerous area along the strategic Suez Canal-Red Sea waterway. Eritrea runs along the western coast of the Red Sea from Ethiopia's border with the Sudan to the Gulf of Aden.

Just Wednesday, the Ethiopian government proclaimed a state of emergency for two-thirds of Eritrea to maintain law and order "in the face of infiltration by bandits supported by foreign governments."

Guerrilla rebels, fighting force of the Eritrean Liberation Front — ELF — are lined up in an eight-year-old insurgency against the government of Emperor Haile Selassie. Their Arab states backers, including Syria and Libya, have Soviet aid, in some cases, Red Chinese support.

Selassie's government has received U.S. military and economic aid for years. A U.S. military advisory group of 100 men is stationed in Ethiopia, but officials here insist American guerrilla warfare experts, particularly Green Berets, are not involved in the nation's problems.

Officials in Washington interpret the insurgency as essentially a homegrown product of Eritrea's turbulent past under a succession of alien rulers.

But the officials do not dismiss out of hand possible dangers arising from the involvement in the area of U.S. and Soviet interests. The same interests are tied into the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Reports reaching Western capitals say the flight to the Sudan involved about 17,000 refugees mostly in November when fighting reportedly flared up at various points in Eritrea. Little is known of the recent military clashes. Diplomatic sources say the rebels blew up three bridges on the main road running north and west from Asmara to Keren, Agordat and the Sudan.

On Nov. 21, the ELF ambushed an army convoy on the road to Keren and killed Maj. Gen. Teshome Erghetu, 52, commander of Ethiopia's Second Army. His death was announced at the time.

One report here is that the Second Army avenged itself for Erghetu's death by smashing the ambush group. Possibly, the reaction was wider.

After Christmas

A Midwest store reports business is so slow that it's having its after-Christmas sale now. "There's no stronger friendship than that between two women who are mad at the same person. This is the time of year when the high cost of living runs smack into the high cost of giving."

First break in parliamentary snarl

Senate OK's Cambodia aid

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved President Nixon's Cambodia aid request by overcoming the first tangle in a parliamentary snarl that could keep four major money bills hanging right up to the Jan. 3 expiration of the 91st Congress.

"I have never seen such a state of confusion exist," Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., declared shortly before Wednesday's vote as he made an unsuccessful effort to limit debate on a series of measures remaining before the Senate.

The $344.2-million aid bill was passed 72 to 22 and sent to conference with the House after the Senate rejected 61 to 33 a move by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, to cut $155 million of $255 million intended for Cambodia.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, one of the architects of a series of restrictions on U.S. aid to Cambodia, predicted Senate conferees "will be very adamant" in upholding the bars on U.S. combat troops and military advisers, the disclaimer of U.S. commitment to defend Cambodia and the requirement of advance notice before any American aid funds are transferred to Cambodia.

Meanwhile, fights are brewing in the Senate over decisions by Senate-House conferees — ratified Wednesday by the House — to water down key provisions in two appropriations bills — the $66.6-billion defense money bill and the $2.5-billion foreign aid measure.

But both measures are stacked up behind the transportation a p p r o p r i a t i o n s bill, containing funds for the controversial supersonic transport plane, on which debate began Wednesday with SST opponents determined to keep talking.

A fourth money measure, the $2.1-billion supplemental appropriations measure containing the actual funds for Cambodia authorized by the Senate Wednesday, goes before Senate-House conferees today.

The chief issue: a Senate provision that withholds actual appropriation of the aid funds until the authorizing legislation becomes law.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield expressed confidence Senate conferees will stand firm on the provision.

Mansfield secured approval of an agreement by which the Senate will debate controversial measures, starting with the transportation a p p r o p r i a t i o n s , for six hours each day before turning at mid-afternoon to other measures.

Meanwhile, the Foreign Relations Committee finally released the unclassified version of a report on U.S. activities in Cambodia written by two staff members, James G. Lowenstein and Richard M. Moose, who spent eight days in Phnom Penh recently.

SST filibuster opens with bitter flare of tempers

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate filibuster aimed at ending federal subsidies for the supersonic transport has begun with an unusually bitter flare of tempers between the project's chief opponent and leading defender.

In the debate's opening hours Wednesday Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., asked Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., if his sponsorship of a bill to reduce the possible bad effects of faster-than-sound flights had been only a gesture to win Senate support for SST funding.

Magnuson, whose home state has most to gain from full production of a fleet of American supersonic planes, roared his resentment.

Earlier, laying the groundwork for his attempt to talk the project to death, Proxmire won several admissions from SST supporters.

Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., floor manager of the $7-billion transportation appropriations bill containing a reduced SST prototype development budget, said action by a conference committee in reducing SST spending by $80 million eventually might add $150 million to the program's total cost and would be almost certain to cause "several thousand" of the 15,000 SST workers to be laid off soon.

Bible said lesser spending would reduce the SST project mainly to research and development. But it would keep it alive.

The point, Proxmire countered, is that the Senate, worried about the possible adverse impact of an SST fleet on the environment voted to stop the entire program, not just slow it down.

The House approved $200 million to continue SST development. The Senate had earlier eliminated the funds from the transportation bill but $210 million was restored by a conference committee.

The Proxmire debate isn't a real filibuster at this point since arrangements have been made for interruptions to allow some other business to go on.

U.N. Assembly session: disillusionment

By TOM HOAG
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly's silver anniversary session began three months ago in a spirit of high hope. It is ending on a note of disillusionment.

The absence of many world leaders, the collapse of U.N.-sponsored negotiations on the Middle East and failure to produce a Big Four summit contributed to the general pessimism prevailing in the closing hours today.

Delegates agreed that the session was no match in public interest for the stormy, 15th assembly 10 years ago attended by such colorful figures as Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro and President Sukarno of Indonesia.

The failure of Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and French President Georges Pompidou to show up for the 25th anniversary session killed Secretary-General U Thant's efforts to stage an East-West summit in New York. And the deaths of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser and former French President Charles de Gaulle cast a pall over the proceedings.

The anniversary session got off to a poor start when the much publicized World Youth Assembly turned into an exercise in ideological rhetoric, often hordered on bedlam and failed to come up with fresh ideas for dealing with world problems as its sponsors had hoped.

The General Assembly opened on a somber note, with more empty seats than delegates in the cavernous hall and gold hall.

Any hope of East-West harmony was chilled by Soviet resentment over U.S. charges that Moscow was involved in Egyptian violations of the Arab-Israeli cease-fire.

U.N. declarations intended to preserve the spirit of the anniversary session became a bone of contention between the communists and the West or between the industrial powers and the developing countries. Only one, a declaration on friendly relations, proved noncontroversial.

The biggest jolt for the United States was the show of strength for Peking's cause in the annual vote on Chinese representation. A resolution to unseat Nationalist China in favor of communist China was approved by a simple majority but needed a two-thirds majority to win.

The United States now is expected to concentrate on keeping Nationalist China from being expelled, not on keeping the communists out.

The general spirit of disillusionment was prompted by a feeling that the United Nations now enjoys less confidence from its members or the public than at any time in the past quarter of a century. It is becoming more and more apparent that the world body is unable to deal with vital problems of war and peace unless the United States and the Soviet Union agree on action to be taken.

Abortion 'advertising' now under study by medical groups

NEW YORK (AP) — Wide-spread concern over the ethics of "advertising" abortion facilities has caused one New York hospital to mail 40,000 letters of apology and a handful of county medical societies to take a closer look at local practitioners.

So far, the concern has focused on groups and individuals in New York and California, where liberalized abortion laws are in effect.

Last summer, when New York made abortion largely a matter between a woman and her physician, Park East Hospital in Manhattan sent 40,000 copies of a "Dear Doctor" letter to physicians all over the country. The letter announced that the 200-room hospital would perform abortions on patients up to 12 weeks pregnant, at a package cost of $75.

Scores of doctors who received the letters as far away as Texas and Arizona became embittered over what one American Medical Association official called "outright cross solicitation"—a procedure strictly forbidden in the code of medical ethics.

In response to the protests against Park East and a number of other groups making similar announcements, the judicial council of the AMA last September condemned the practice as "commercialization and hucksterism."

Several weeks later, the New York County Medical Society adopted the AMA statement. Its Board of Censors wrote to Park East, asking it to stop its mailings. Park East complied immediately and sent out letters of regret to everyone on the original mailing list.

In California, the Los Angeles County Medical Association is looking into complaints about letters from one obstetrician-gynecologist in private practice and two medical groups set up to perform abortions.

Some doctors resented the announcement-type letters—similar in form to the announcement of a new practice that physicians send to their neighboring colleagues—because they felt the letters went beyond the boundaries of good taste either by including fees $463 for one doctor— or by extending far beyond the Los Angeles community—in one case, throughout the entire United States.

"The fact that a physician or a group sets themselves up as specialists in abortion has to be recognized as a specialized part of medicine," said Don Rosenthal, assistant to the executive director of the Los Angeles County Medical Association. "But to promote and advertise in a wide area is highly unethical."

"There is no mention of locality in the County Medical Association guidelines, so we felt we were not violating anything," said Dr. Morton W. Barke, of the West Coast Medical Group, which sent 6,000 letters to physicians all over the country. "Our statement listed no fees and was on the standard announcement card. Had it said that we were now doing dermatology or orthopedic surgery instead of abortions, no one would have said anything," Barke, an obstetrician-gynecologist, and another physician, make up the Medical Group.

In addition to the physician-related letters, announcements from a handful of abortion referral services with little or no apparent medical connection have been widely circulated around the nation.

Unlike Planned Parenthood and various municipal welfare services, most of the new groups are designed as profit-making ventures. For fees averaging $100 on top of the physician and/or hospital cost, the groups make all the woman's arrangements and frequently provide out-of-state transportation to and from the airport and doctor's office.

Most claim to use only certified hospitals or clinics. Medical society officials say they are powerless to interfere in the activities of such groups unless a physician is directly connected. In the past few months, at least a half-dozen have sprung up in the New York area.

'Use our work' Knowles issues his challenge

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Employing his brother as a pinch-hitter, Gov. Warren P. Knowles challenged the state's new administration Wednesday to make use of "the governmental tools created in the last six years."

With the governor snowbound temporarily in Sun Valley, Idaho, state Sen. Robert Knowles delivered the address at a luncheon.

Gov. Knowles was in Sun Valley since Saturday, attending the National Republican Governors' Conference.

While listing accomplishments of his administration, the governor's speech urged incoming Democrats to concentrate on urban - rural growth patterns, continued economic expansion, pollution control, educational reform, and taxation. Democrats take over Jan. 4.

Knowles called taxation "the key to unlocking the future hope in every other area."

"Wisconsin must be cautious in increasing its taxes, however," he said. "Our citizens are already among the most highly taxed in the nation."

"Our tax structure must protect the citizens' interest by maintaining a favorable climate for industrial expansion which will provide employment opportunities," he said. Knowles characterized his six-year administration as "a foundation for future action."

He pointed to "positive and wide-ranging programs" to preserve natural resources, expanded and modernized vocational-technical educational programs and accelerated development of modern highway systems.

He also spoke of his administration's efforts in expanding quality education, realigning state governmental structure, health policies, and problems of city and local governments.

Minnesotans on unemployment at six-year high

ST. PAUL (AP) — The state Department of Manpower Services announced Wednesday that the number of Minnesotans drawing unemployment compensation has reached a six-year high.

The department said the number of benefit claims for the week ended last Friday, 41,184, was the highest for any week since 1965, and possibly since 1959.

The total for last week was 2,213 higher than the previous week and 23,388 above the total for the corresponding week in 1969. Payments this year have reached $46.9 million, an increase of 128 per cent over last year.

Zoning case taken under advisement

Winona County District Court Judge Glenn E. Kelley has taken under advisement the zoning violation case of a Winona man after hearing testimony in the matter Wednesday afternoon.

Ralph Scharmer, 571 W. Mill St., is accused of using a residentially-zoned parcel of land at 1552 W. Broadway for a parking lot last March 7.

Prosecuting the case was Assistant City Attorney Frank E. Wohletz. Defending Scharmer was Winona attorney Leo Murphy, Jr.

A NUMBER of witnesses took the stand in the Wednesday afternoon trial, including Winona Police Detective John Holubar, who said he was sent to Scharmer's warehouse at 1552 W. Broadway on March 7 to take pictures of a truck parked adjacent to the building.

Police Patrolman Glen Morgan said he accompanied Detective Holubar to the scene and noted that the truck was parked about ten feet from the building.

City Engineer Robert Bollant took the stand to identify a land survey he did of the neighborhood at Wohletz' request. He said that Scharmer's warehouse occupies all of a commercially-zoned tract, and the tract where the truck was reportedly parked is zoned residential.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Murphy, Bollant said that tract is in lawn and cannot be discerned from the adjacent residential yard.

TESTIFYING very briefly was Police Court Officer Robert Theis, who identified state documents declaring the truck pictured to be owned by Scharmer.

George Rogge, city building and zoning inspector, said that Scharmer's warehouse runs right up to the edge of the commercially-zoned parcel of land on which it sits.

The only defense witness in the case was Scharmer himself, who said he didn't park the truck there on March 7 and didn't know that it was there until he got a summons to appear in court on the charge.

He said he was never notified before that that he couldn't park there, adding that an employee of his had been so notified.

Under cross-examination by Wohletz, he said he had a curb cut and driveway installed into the residentially-zoned portion of the property, but intended to use it as a parking lot "only if I was forced to."

SCHARMER also testified that he had never inquired about building a garage on that property.

Wohletz called building inspector Rogge back to the stand briefly to testify that Scharmer had "asked me if he could build a garage to store his trucks in on that tract," noting that he had denied that request several weeks prior to March 7.

It was not known Wednesday when Judge Kelley would return a verdict in the case.

Preston man is killed near Troy

A 23-year-old Preston, Minn., man was killed at 1:25 a.m. today when the car he was driving missed a curve and struck a tree near Troy in the southwestern corner of Winona County.

Dead is Bruce J. Gabbert, 23, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aymour Gabbert, Preston. Authorities said he died at the scene after being pinned in his wrecked car for a short time.

Winona County Sheriff George L. Fort said Gabbert was westbound on CSAH 6 at "a high rate of speed" one-fourth mile east of Troy in Saratoga Township when his car missed a southward curve in the road.

THE 1970 MODEL two-door hardtop skidded 153 feet on the roadway, Fort said, then slid into the ditch and skidded for another 430 feet before flying into the air for 72 feet and sliding another 70 feet into a tree.

The car was demolished on impact with the tree, and Gabbert died before he could be extricated.

The sheriff's office was assisted by the Minnesota Highway Patrol in its investigation of the accident.

A route man for the Meadowland Dairy Association at Preston, Gabbert was born at Minneapolis March 20, 1947 to Mr. and Mrs. Aymour Gabbert.

THE THAUWALD Funeral Home at Preston is in charge of funeral arrangements which are pending.

His was the 14th traffic fatality in Winona County in 1970, two of which were in the city of Winona.

Goetz may be in line for federal post

Minnesota's lame duck Lt. Gov. James B. Goetz was reported today as under consideration for a post with the Nixon administration in Washington, D. C.

Lt. Gov. Goetz, 34, has apparently been consulted by Robert Finch, special counselor to the President and former Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Finch said the Minnesota concept could be eligible for several kinds of positions but did not specify what they are.

Finch ruled out the possibility that Goetz might be named head of the U. S. Information Agency. He told Washington newsmen that the administration is definitely interested in bringing Goetz to Washington in some capacity, however.

Goetz told a reporter that he had discussed a specific post with Finch by telephone recently but would not identify the position. He said he is uncommitted to any position or even to going to Washington and added that he also is considering some offers in private industry. He expects to make a decision by the end of January, he said.

Goetz and Finch have associations that date back several years to the time when both were active in the National Conference of Lieutenant Governors.

The lieutenant governor, a former Winona resident, is president and co-owner of KAGE Inc., Winona. He lives in Lakeland Shores, Washington County, where he and his family moved last year.

Mrs. D. Franzwa

Investigation continues in shotgun death

ELEVA, Wis. (Special) — Trempealeau County authorities are continuing their investigation in the death of a rural Elewa woman, according to William Matka, county attorney.

Mrs. David (Grace) Franzwa, 24, Elewa Rt. 1, was shot and killed about 10:40 p.m. Tuesday in the living room of her farm home.

According to Richard Ellingson, county coroner, an autopsy performed at Sacred Heart Hospital, Eau Claire, revealed that the blast went through the heart and death was instant. No ruling has been made on the death pending further investigation, he said.

Franzwa told the Daily News Wednesday that he was in the process of cleaning his 12-gauge shotgun just prior to the shooting. He had not noticed that his wife had lain down on the davenport, a distance of about 2 1/2 feet from where he was sitting with the supposedly unloaded shotgun on his lap.

He stated that the last time he had used the gun was two years ago, just before he left to serve in the Army. During his absence the shotgun had been loaned out to different persons. "When I reached my hand around the gun to open the chamber on the pump shotgun I must have hit the trigger at the same time," Franzwa said.

The couple were married at the Norden Trinity Lutheran Church, of which she was a lifetime member, Oct. 15, 1966. Funeral services will be at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Trinity Lutheran Church, Norden, the Rev. Thomas Hovestorf officiating with burial in the church cemetery.

Friends may call at the Kjenet-ve & Son Funeral Home, Mondovi, from 3 p.m. Friday until 11 a.m. Saturday, then at the church from noon until services.

Community Chest is $3,500 from goal

The 1970 Community Chest campaign is only $3,500 from the goal, according to Louis J. Sayre, executive director. To date, pledges and contributions total $168,000.

There are still several companies and individuals who have not yet returned their cards and pledges. Based on what they gave last year, Sayre said, when these pledges cards come in this year's campaign will go over the top of the $171,500 goal set.

The 1969 campaign resulted in $165,000 in contributions.

Ruddy will assume primary responsibility for planning, organizing, and administering all development and public relations activities of the college. He will direct both the Living Endowment annual giving fund and the $9.3 million "Reach Out" capital gifts drive, in which Saint Mary's is currently involved. Ruddy is a 1962 graduate of Saint Mary's.

Maly's responsibilities will include working on the "Reach Out" campaign and on alumni programs. # Blair tax bills will be higher

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — Local taxpayers who will receive their tax bills next week will find increases of 10 percent to 14 percent over the same property a year ago. The total tax to be collected in the city this year is $235,928.19 compared with $211,523.86 last year. The breakdown is as follows:

State tax	1,093.15	993.91
County tax	51,758.43	49,244.23
City tax	56,718.22	52,507.07
Vocational school	8,895.60	7,266.65
Local school	117,462.79	101,512.00

This means a total of $24,404.33 more must be collected from the same taxable property, plus new construction.

The mill rate is almost 10 mills less, dropping from 59 mills last year to 49.5 mills this year. The drop in the mill rate came about as a result of a general increase in assessed valuation of all property in an attempt to approximate 100 percent of full value as required by state law. The new assessment was accomplished by joint-action of the local assessor and the City Council.

State credit to reduce taxes drops to less than 3.5 mills compared with 4.5 mills one year ago.

ALMA, Wis. — Roger L. Hartman, Buffalo County district attorney, has advised county citizens that pushing or blowing snow from a driveway or sidewalk onto the street or highway is a crime under Wisconsin state law.

Under provisions of the law, he says, violators may be fined not less than $10 nor more than $100.

If an accident occurs because of snow placed on a traveled portion of a road, the real estate owner may be sued for damages, Hartman says. Such a lawsuit can be very costly to a landowner, he added.

The way to interview an interviewer

By EARL WILSON NEW YORK — I knew Barbara Walters when she was 13. (I was 8 at the time.) Actually, I was already a B'way columnist and she was a little girl traveling with her mother and father, Lou Walters, the Latin Quarter impresario, scouting for cafe talent on the French Riviera.

To your good health

Answers to your questions

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I know you can't answer every letter, but if you could answer this I would be more than grateful. I am 25 and have a daughter, 3, with a bad case of eczema all over her body. The poor child itches like crazy, usually to the point of scratching herself until she bleeds.

I have been to three doctors. None has seemed to help. One told me to take her off all milk, eggs, fish, flour, wheat and many other things. This did not help, but he said she was better and dismissed her. I asked when she could start back on these foods and he said he didn't know and that was all.

The other doctor gives her cortisone and benadryl and something to help her sleep. She still wakes up two or three times crying and itching. She also has asthma very bad.

I wash her with oatmeal solution, wrap her in wet towels, etc., but nothing helps. Please tell me what to do. I also have a baby five months old.—Mrs. R.

You and your little girl have a real problem. "Eczema" is a very loose term for skin eruptions and rashes. Loose term or not, eczema can make a child mighty miserable.

Some eczema can be an irritant from outside the body. But when it is as generalized as you describe, it is in all probability something from the inside—food! She's allergic to something, and probably to several or even many foods. The asthma is just another indication that she is a child with strong allergies. She's in for a lot of misery unless you find out what things she can eat and what she can't.

What should you do? First, stop moving from doctor to doctor. And don't expect any to provide a quick solution to the trouble.

Settle on one, preferably a pediatrician if there is one in your town. Most pediatricians are alert to allergy problems. Or the doctor who told you to take her off certain foods. He's doubtless on the right track.

Medications can reduce the itching sometimes. So can oatmeal baths, or various lotions. But the thing to be determined, if you are to get at the root of the trouble, is a list of foods to avoid.

That isn't easy and it isn't quick. That one doctor listed some of the things that are most known for causing food allergies. You may have to eliminate even more, and put your daughter on what is called an elimination diet. But if you finally find a few foods that she can tolerate without itching, at last you'll be making progress.

Then it will be a matter of cautiously adding other foods, one at a time, and some days apart. When the eczema starts after you've added some food—avoid that one! When no trouble follows, within some days, you've found something she

CAN eat.

When you asked how long it would be before she could start back on the prohibited foods, the doctor said he didn't know. He was being honest. It takes time to find out.

Try to rush things, and you'll get nowhere. Take it slowly, carefully and patiently, and you'll begin to make progress. There is no quick way to do it. But it must be done for the little girl's sake.

As you identify her allergies, you'll also be doing some constructive work in controlling her asthma, too.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: There was an item in the paper which said it was a fact that:

"A baby has over 60 more bones than an adult."

If such a fact is really true, where are those 60 more bones and what happens to them as the baby grows?—H.F.T.

That's a teaser that somebody dreamed up—but it happens to be true. These "extra bones" are small segments of bone tissue which fuse together with adjacent bones as the body matures. They are called epiphyses.

You doubtless are aware that a baby's head has a "soft spot," because the skull originally is formed from four bones which gradually fuse into a solid skull.

At the ends of the long bones of the body, there are epiphyses at the ends—actually separate bones—which finally fuse solid when the bones have reached full growth. Studying these with X ray is one of the methods by which one can determine when full growth has been achieved, or is approaching.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have varicose veins. Would you recommend elastic stockings? If so, could I obtain them without a prescription?—I.M.R.

Elastic hosiery comes in different grades, some sheer, some heavier, some toeless. They can be bought without prescription. All should extend well above the knee.

There also are special ones, which have to be custom-made to fit you, and your doctor can refer you to a place where this is done.

In fact, you really should rely on your doctor's advice as to what type of hosiery you should use, if any. It depends on the severity of your condition.

Keep in mind that such hose are not curative. They give more comfort if you are on your feet a lot, but when varicose veins reach a certain stage, surgical treatment is the only truly effective means.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am troubled with fungus which has damaged my nails to a painful degree. I have visited a few professionals and gotten no results. Kindly list some method of treatment.—Mrs. M. C.

"A few professionals" doesn't tell me much. I'd suggest you go to a dermatologist (skin specialist).

The President's puzzling riddle

The economic riddle — the solution of which President Nixon hopes will be a bipartisan effort — is pretty well illustrated by these three graphs.

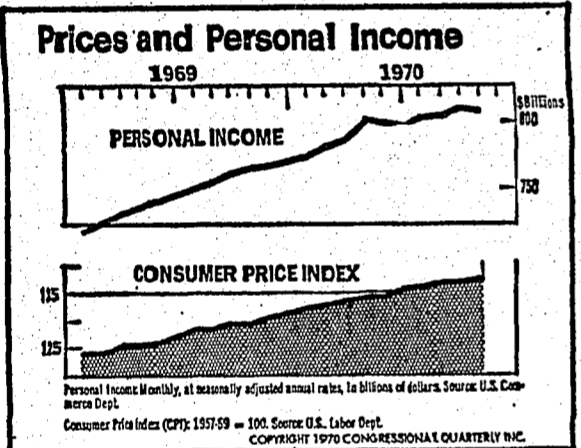

Both corporate profits and the stock market have taken lickings, although both shows signs of recovery.

But unemployment continues to rise. As of November 1.8 million more persons were out of work than a year ago. And with fewer people working the output of the economy has naturally declined. The output, measured in uninfated 1968 dollars, contracted a bit in the last quarter of 1969, still more in the first quarter of this year. Now the growth has resumed, but the third quarter output was still under the comparable 1969 quarter.

But the economic pinch on the businessman, the stockholder and the jobless is broadly felt by everyone in rising prices. Inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index continued at a rate of 5.9 percent in the year from October 1969 to October 1970, down only slightly from previous recent periods.

The dilemma is how to turn that unemployment line and still level off that consumer price index line.

But how can you do that when some unions continue to get fat wage settlements? How can you stimulate the construction industry when the costs skyrocket?

Congressional Quarterly says it is unlikely that wage controls will be imposed, since both the President and Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, have publicly opposed controls. But it is possible that something may be done beyond the present practice of expressing mild displeasure in certain inflationary circumstances.

THE PRESENT Nixon program has slowed down the output and growth of the economy but it has not stopped inflation. The program is riddled.

The administration apparently plans to accelerate its spending — beyond receipts — to stimulate economic expansion. The record shows that this promotes inflation, exactly what the administration wants to stop. But the Harris Survey reported the other day that most people believe we're in a recession, and of all things the President doesn't want to do is go to the polls with the electorate in that mood. — A.B.

You don't realize it, because it has become so much a part of our life, that we are paying taxes twice and three times on some projects, sales, transactions, what have you. Even at that I would rather be taxed in the USA than live in freedom (allegedly) in Russia or under communism. You never know how valuable you prize your freedom until you lose it.—New Holstein, Wis., Reporter.

Call to remembrance the former days.—Hebrews 10:32.

Yawning at abyss

LONDON —Sir Peter Medawar is one of the great scientific figures of Britain and the Western World: the holder of degrees from Oxford, Cambridge, Liege and a half-dozen other universities, director of the National Institute for Medical Research, winner of the Nobel Prize for medicine. But he is more than that. He is a scientist-philosopher, a voice of reason, that rare man who projects a serene, disinterested passion for truth.

A year ago, as president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, Sir Peter gave a lecture rejecting "cries of despair" about science and technology. It is not science that threatens civilization, he said, but human folly — and more science will be needed to correct that.

THE LECTURE was read by some as an attack on the prophets of environmental doom. In the magazine Commentary, for example, Sir Peter's optimism was contrasted with the despairing views of Paul Ehrlich, who has written so powerfully about the threat of over-population.

Paul Ehrlich's thesis, Sir Peter says, is that unless we control population, no technology can save the world from disaster. Sir Peter seems to accept that. His relative optimism lies in the hope that science can solve the population problem. "I believe that one day a fully effective and rationally unobjectionable method will be devised for preventing conception."

But even if we arrest the population rise, Sir Peter suggests, and even if science produces more wonders, Ehrlich is right to say that we must learn to live a different way now: "We shall have to abandon a style of economy marked by profligate production, consumption and waste for something more like a space-ship economy marked by frugality, recycling and above all by forethought."

THERE IN A sentence is what the world and its leaders must somehow come to understand if we are to survive. Western man will have to change his economic assumptions. Growth has been fundamental to our idea of human progress: growth in population, production, consumption. But we know now that the earth is finite, and fragile. To believe that the curve of economic growth can go on upward forever at an accelerating rate, Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands said recently, is the current equivalent of believing in a flat earth.

The goal of a happy high-consumption world cannot be fulfilled even for the 3.5 billion people now alive, much less the 6 billion expected by the year 2000. At the American standard of living, the earth could support only 500 million.

Frugality and forethought instead of a profligate economic race: That is the only path to safety.

(10) And you're saying, are you, that if we bomb North Vietnam, Mr. President, we will quickly bring the obstreperous rascals to their knees? — New York Times News Service

Helsinki: salt without pepper

HELSINKI — The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) here — undoubtedly the most important diplomatic negotiations in the world today — have achieved their first objective. After the first three rounds, they may not have disarmed the United States or the Soviet Union, but they have disarmed the press. In short, they have been all salt and, so far as anybody outside knows, no pepper.

This is all to the good. For the first rule of successful American-Soviet negotiations is that if you are serious you are silent, and the negotiators have been silent in four languages: English, Russian, Finnish and Swedish.

ON SECURITY, both sides are in general agreement. The Soviet "spokesman" is not here, and the American spokesman, poor man, doesn't speak, except to give the time and duration of the meetings. The other day, the head of the American delegation, Ambassador Gerard Smith, said nothing in an interview with U.S. News and World Report, but even saying nothing in public was regarded as a breach of the rules and sent a mild official hiccup through the silence.

Nobody can logically complain about all this, for the purpose of these preliminary rounds is at least to establish confidence that the two delegations can sniff around the problem of limiting military weapons systems without losing confidence that their remarks are privileged and finding their every disagreement shouted from the headlines of the world's press.

NEVERTHELESS, as the third round (an unfortunate official use of prizefighting language) ends, and the next session is planned for Vienna, there may be a problem developing as the secrecy continues, and for several reasons:

- The opponents of a U.S.-Soviet arms limitation agreement — they are many and they are powerful — are not remaining silent. In fact, they are working actively against an arms treaty on the ground that the Soviets are not to be trusted.
- The longer the talks go on, without a preliminary pause in the arms race itself, the more anxiety and doubt there is on both sides about one or the other trying for a strategic advantage before any treaty is signed.
- Already there is mounting pressure during the preparation of the next U.S. defense budget for an increase in spending to meet the rising Soviet challenge in offensive and defensive missiles and on the sea.

4. Finally, at the end of each session, there is a certain amount of consultation with members of the U.S. Congress and with other governments, whose security may very well be affected by the outcome of these talks, and this will inevitably lead to precisely the sort of calculated and subjective leaks the secrecy of the past was designed to avoid.

This state of affairs, if prolonged, tends to favor those hostile to arms control and to leave the advocates of an arms limitation treaty without any evidence of progress or even any information about whether one side or the other is putting forward reasonable general proposals.

None of this, of course, is new. All important negotiations tend to start this way.

There is another factor in this. The United States is not in the same position as the Soviet Union in the Helsinki talks. The Moscow leaders can compel acceptance by their government and people of any arms limitation treaty they authorize their negotiators to approve, but President Nixon cannot.

HE MUST GET the confirmation of the United States Senate, many of whose members are in close touch with anti-arms-agreement offices in the Pentagon, and many more of whom represent states that may face enormous difficulties as a result of major cuts in the defense budget.

So the secrecy, while essential at the beginning and defensible later on, can easily be counterproductive if prolonged. The State and Defense departments tend to keep reporters out while they are settling on the broad lines of an executive arms control policy, which is fair enough, and then tell them to keep out again during the long process of negotiation with the Russians and the allies, and this is not all.

For when all these stages are completed, the standard operating procedure is to present the finished package to the Senate and the public with the argument that it has been years in the making, and for God's sake, don't change it or you'll wreck the whole thing. Surely at some point along the way there must be some disclosure unless the opponents of any agreement are to arouse public opinion against it.

After the SST...

LOS ANGELES — When the Senate casts its showdown vote whether to kill the SST or to continue it under a $210-million compromise appropriation, this capital city of the aerospace industry will not view the outcome in the lofty perspective of "environmental protection" or "re-ordering national priorities."

In the slumping world of aerospace, so recently the wonder child of American industry, "re-ordering national priorities" has a real and terrifying meaning. Under the combined impact of cutbacks in the space program, two consecutive reductions in the annual defense budget and a slowdown in commercial airline orders, aerospace sales dropped — for the first time in 14 years — from $29.3 billion in 1968 to $26.9 billion in 1969; the total order backlog dropped from $31.5 billion to $23.8 billion.

THE INDUSTRY estimates that in these conditions employment will be down, in March of 1971, by 374,000 from the peak level of 1968; about 60,000 of the unemployed will be scientists and engineers, many of them members of highly skilled research and development teams. Department of Labor statistics show that ordnance and aircraft industries provide only about 5 percent of all manufacturing employment but that a fourth of the recent decline in factory jobs has occurred in that sector.

Robert R. Simpson, general vice president of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, said at hearings recently conducted by Sen.-elect John V. Tunney that "not just one recession but two" had hit the industry — "the planned downturn in defense has coincided with an equally planned cyclical downturn for the economy."

At his news conference this week, President Nixon said that cancelling the SST would cost 150,000 jobs; the figure is hard to pin down, but Mr. Simpson, in an interview, concurred with it and pointed out that by no means all would be in the Senate area, where Boeing is the prime contractor.

BUT PROFOUNDLY important questions of the environment and of national priorities cannot and should not be settled on the basis of whether or not jobs and profits will be lost. The computer company, for instance, responded to its problem by branching into general business services and reducing its reliance on aerospace. Perhaps the major problem of the aerospace industry is that it has failed to break out of its dependence on government contracts.

But industry diversification is not only necessary, it is feasible.

THIS KIND OF diversification is necessary not only to reduce unemployment and human indignity; it is also vital to the deployment of technology and skill against pervasive national problems — housing, pollution, transportation, to name only a few.

And isn't it implicit in the generality of "re-ordering national priorities" that if we are not to build the SST we ought to be committing the same money and ingenuity and manpower to something of a higher order of importance? Redeeming the Great Lakes and the rivers by 1980, for instance, or giving every city of a certain size a comprehensive rapid transit system by 1985 — tasks for which aerospace techniques are ideal.

Unfortunately, that kind of "re-ordering of priorities" is blocked not only by the aerospace industry's limitations but also by the failure of government to come to grips with problems that really matter in American life.

ACP no subsidy for farmers

All area farmers, as well as anyone with even a passing interest in conservation, should feel indebted for the fine editorial in the Dec. 11 issue dealing with the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP).

It is indeed encouraging to see that an editor of a city paper is aware of the threat to soil and water conservation and to the evils that will develop without it should there be no ACP funds available in 1971.

It is even more encouraging when an editor will write a lead editorial calling attention to the past accomplishments of the ACP and the need for its continuance.

WE NOTICE also that Myron Nilles has written an excellent letter to the editor appearing in the Dec. 13 issue, in which he cites the need for the ACP, showing that it is and could be the most significant of government administrative machinery for aiding control of pollution of water supplies from agricultural sources.

The ACP was brought into being in 1936. Congress was concerned then about our loss of natural resources and it was funded then at $500 million yearly. In terms of 1936 dollars, it would now take $1.4 billion to compare with those annual program appropriations back in the thirties.

But the appropriation was cut to $250 million, then to about $190 million, with almost every year in the 1960s seeing the spectacle of the Budget Bureau trying to dispense with it entirely. Last year they impounded $10.5 of the $135.5 million appropriated by Congress in the interest of "economy."

We hear much about pollution today, with oil spillage in all bodies of water, from factories, sewers, and mines, but the fact remains that our greatest water pollutant is sediment from the soil.

Without the ACP since 1936, with millions of farmers participating on millions of acres, with millions of pounds of alfalfa and grasses seeded and made possible by liming, without ponds, terraces, dams, and contour stripcropping, we'd be in much worse shape than we are.

Were we asked "What does the ACP do?" and we had to answer in a single sentence, we would say, "The ACP assists the farmer by sharing part of the cost of installing a conservation practice on his farm that he either could not, or would not be able to do on his own."

The editor's point that ACP cost sharing is not a subsidy to the farmer is well taken. The farmer contributes his own money and hard work to the practice, and in most cases the public stands to gain more long range benefit than the farmer.

IT IS HOPED that this invaluable program can gain another lease on life in order that it may remain active until the general public can realize its benefits and its potential.

The Daily News is contributing toward this awareness on the part of the public in this area. It is my personal opinion that the Thursday farm pages are the best that I have seen in a newspaper.

It is in good contrast to the policy as expressed in the attitude of the editor of another daily paper in our part of the state. He told one of my co-workers that "unless you have something 'juicy' in the way of farm news to send us, don't bother us." In other words, his idea of farm news was only something like the Billie Sol Estes case.)

Seasons wrong in Whitewater

Just today I found out Whitewater State Park was opened to the shotgun hunters and as I remember they had closed the early season for bow hunters. I believe this is very unfair. I don't know the reason for this. However, I believe it should be straightened out before next season. I know of three people who have not bought bow hunting licenses this year for that very reason.

Praise for city street department

Winona is indeed privileged to have such a conscientious and efficient street department.

Arthur Brom and his loyal staff have given our city the very best of service in clearing streets and snow removal.

Living as I do in a more or less remote section of the City of Winona, this area is plowed out and the snow hauled away in a relative short period of time.

All of us are very proud of this department of city government. Keep up the good work.

He didn't get notice of snow emergency

My car was towed from Pelzer Street to a parking lot near City Hall at 1 a.m. Dec. 14. This incident made me a little irritated with the snow removal crew; but not half as irritated as I was at the city ordinance which caused my car's removal.

Being a part-time taxi driver and full-time student, I realize the need for hasty snow removal from our streets. And oddly enough, I also recognize the need to tow away cars when they hinder that operation.

I have no gripe against the towing of cars when the street is clearly marked for snow removal ahead of time. But, I protest strongly the removal of cars from the snow emergency routes — without adequate notice!

A helpful policeman down at City Hall told me I was given advanced notice on both radio stations and in the Winona Daily News.

I beg to differ. I do not read the Daily News nor listen to either radio station for any length of time. Am I supposed to be sanctioned for not keeping my ear glued to the radio or my nose deep in our paper?

The city ordinance should include the posting also of the snow emergency routes in our city.

Parents thank Good Samaritan

We would like to publicly thank the man who helped our son Sunday when he suffered an accident while tobogganing at St. Mary's College. He put our boy in his car and rushed him to the hospital for emergency treatment. We would like to thank the gentleman personally, but he never left his name.

Such help from a stranger shows true Christian love, and we are very grateful.

Americans postpone buying

Harris Survey

If sales around this Christmas season should lag, it is because a substantial 36 percent of the American people report that they have "postponed buying products and services" because they are worried about economic conditions.

Heading the list of deferred consumer purchases are new automobiles, furniture, large appliances, and home improvements. The prevailing mood among most households is to try to keep purchases down to bare essentials whenever possible, for as reported Monday, a sizeable 62 percent of the American people think the country is in a recession.

A cross section of 1,562 households was asked between November 14 and 19:

"Have you postponed buying any products or services you wanted to buy because you are worried about economic conditions or hasn't this happened to you?"

	Postponed	Did not

POSTPONING PURCHASES has permeated all income groups, even affecting 30 percent of those in the highest brackets. On a regional basis, persons in the Midwest and the West are most reluctant to buy new products and services now. Women feel the pinch more than men. And almost one-half of all the young people under 30 report they have put off buying.

The roster of items whose purchase is being postponed was found to be substantial. All those who said they had postponed buying were asked: "What have you put off? Anything else?"

Young feels blacks, whites now are closer

ST. PAUL (AP) — Although blacks and whites continue to live apart from one another, their attitudes may be growing more alike, Whitney Young, executive director of the National Urban League said Wednesday.

"Neighborhoods are more segregated in housing than ever before," the 49-year-old black leader told newsmen. "But in terms of ideology or points of view, blacks and whites are probably closer together."

Young said the increasing physical separation of the races is due in part to the migration of city dwellers to suburban homes which low-income minorities cannot afford.

On the other hand, Young said blacks and whites "have moved from polite noisemaking that they called communication" to more sincere attempts to communicate.

He said the polarization of the races is "a stage that we can hopefully move out of, but added that the anger of blacks and prejudice of whites have always been present.

Young said he is not among those who consider President Nixon a racist, but said the chief executive is a "professional politician" who would not want to jeopardize his political future with racial policies conflicting with the will of the majority.

Young was in St. Paul to solicit support for the St. Paul Urban League Program.

OLD PETS
PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — An Ohio veterinarian says older dogs have a 50 per cent better chance to survive surgery than was possible 10 years ago.

Dr. W. H. Crago, of Youngstown, spoke to members of the Mississippi Valley Veterinary Medical Association during a convention.

He said new developments in inhalation anesthesia are encouraging veterinarians to attempt operations on older pets which would have been unthinkable previously. The new anesthesia methods replace the older and very dangerous practices which depended on ether.

Crago estimates he treats about 6,000 dogs a year. He said the major problems today are congenital because more purebred dogs are being born.

In the aggregate, this roster of deferred purchases adds up to a substantial dent in the demand pattern for products and services available in the economy. Its impact is bound to have a slowing effect on the growth pattern for consumer-goods industries and an impact on corporate profits.

It is significant that during this past year, while such purchases of major items has fallen off, savings have continued to rise. When people have had discretionary money available (funds left over after essentials have been paid for), it is apparent that they have been reluctant to spend the money, but rather are putting it away out of worry that the economy will worsen.

The net impact of this deferred purchasing pattern normally should relieve some of the pressures on high prices and thus ease the inflation. However, with no controls or guide-lines for wage and price increases, the trend in prices has not leveled out by most government indices.

THE PHENOMENON which has resulted in continuing high prices and even increases, accompanied by relatively high unemployment and a decline in the goods and services purchased. In practical terms, it means an economy which continues to idle at well below full capacity of production and consumption, but in which the symptoms of high prices and a softening of the job market have not been eased.

This experience is particularly painful to the public around the Christmas season, when many families plan on spending savings and regular income to buy gifts for their families and friends. The slowdown in the economy had its effect in last fall's elections, when it unquestionably hurt Republican chances in the off-year voting.

But during this week and next, it will be felt in a most personal way. For one of the pleasures of the Yuletide season is to exchange special gifts which one might not ordinarily receive in the course of the year. This year the occasion will be less jolly in many American homes.

13 years of research aiding tot at Faribault State School

By DAVID HVISTENDAHL
Faribault Daily News Writer
FARIBAULT, Minn. (AP) — Dr. Heinz Bruhl, medical director of the Faribault State School and Hospital, is especially happy about the progress of a 3-year-old patient afflicted with a congenital error in body chemistry.

The affliction, phenylketonuria (PKU), is caused by a specific enzyme deficiency in the liver and usually results in severe mental retardation.

Dr. Bruhl says the patient, a little girl from rural Faribault, is one of the lucky PKU patients in that her disorder was discovered soon after birth.

The treatment of the girl, he says, has been completely successful.

Dr. Bruhl, a pediatrician, has been working on a special diet for PKU patients for 13 years at Faribault. Before coming to Faribault, he studied at Freiburg University in Germany, and practiced medicine in Germany, China and St. Paul.

PKU victims lack a particular enzyme that converts phenylalanine (PA), a compound found abundantly in most foods, into protein, the material from which the body gets its energy. Dr. Bruhl said the body cannot function without the compound, but neither can it function properly with too much of it.

The PKU disorder is caused by too much PA. The liver passes the PA into the bloodstream unchanged, and the level of the chemical in the blood can be 30 to 40 times normal, Dr. Bruhl said.

The overabundance of PA intoxicates the body, particularly the brain. "Milk has a high concentration of PA, so the brain gets poisoned at an early stage, and never gets fully developed," he said.

About two-thirds of PKU victims are profoundly retarded and the others are moderately retarded. Because of the toxins in the brain, most cases are hyperactive and easily excitable, he said.

Under a 1965 law, all newborn babies are tested for PKU. Blood samples are sent to the state Board of Health for analysis.

Three years ago the board informed a Faribault doctor that a baby he delivered was a PKU case. The doctor knew of Dr. Bruhl's PKU diet studies, and referred the child's parents to him.

Dr. Bruhl placed the youngster on a low-PA diet, consisting of Lofenac, an artificial, low-PA milk, and vegetables, fruits and other dishes made with low-PA materials. The PA level of the patient's blood is checked each month.

She will be kept on the special diet until she reaches at least school age. At that point, when her brain has fully developed, a high PA level does not seem to affect the brain, Dr. Bruhl said.

Dr. Bruhl said he has conducted extensive genetic studies which indicate that PKU is a hereditary disorder. The chances that a child will be a PKU victim can be estimated from his parents' blood samples, he said.

Dr. Bruhl's studies indicate normal development is impossible unless PKU victims are put on the low-PA diet three to ten weeks after birth.

Although the diet cannot enable older PKU patients to achieve normal brain development, the treatment can make dramatic changes in their behavior. Dr. Bruhl said he was particularly pleased when two totally incapacitated boys, seven and nine years old, learned to walk two weeks after being placed on the diet.

"An entire change in personality is very unusual in any treatment program for older retarded patients, but this is what happens when PKU patients are put on a low-PA diet," Dr. Bruhl said.

Brooks hit .429 in the recent Series with nine hits in 21 trips to the plate. His overall Series batting mark is .240 on 13 hits in 54 at bats.

AEC plans underground nuclear test

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission planned to detonate an underground nuclear device at its Nevada Test Site today, one day after a similar explosion speeded radioactive material into the air.

An AEC spokesman said today's blast, code-named "Carpet Bag," would have a force between 200,000 and one million tons of TNT and might be felt in Las Vegas, 100 miles south.

The government described as "unplanned and minor" Wednesday's spillage of radioactive material from a blast of 20,000-ton force 955 feet underground.

The spillage rose to between 400 and 600 feet above the ground and was detected within one mile of the test shot area, said an AEC spokesman.

Emission of radioactive materials into the atmosphere during such tests, even accidentally, is a technical violation of the 1963 treaty with the Soviet Union and other nations banning above-ground tests.

The spillage occurred in connection with separate but simultaneous underground blasts within the 1,350-square-mile test site. They were part of a weapons development program at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico.

Time now biggest foe for Nixon trade bill

By EDMOND Le BRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Time has become the most formidable opponent of the ever-controversial trade bill, with its provisions for quotas on imports of textiles and shoes.

Even the most ardent supporters of the bill, which the affected industries say they need to survive foreign competition—conceded the measure's chances dim with each day as the Jan. 3 constitutional deadline for adjournment nears.

On that date the 91st Congress goes out of existence, and all legislation not finally enacted dies with it. The trade bill still has a long way to go.

But its backers have not stopped fighting, nor devising strategy to break the legislative logjam in the Senate that threatens to bury the bill.

Some recent developments are in their favor. The prospect that Congress will remain in session to the end, has been heightened by warnings from Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and President Nixon's threat to recall the lawmakers if they adjourn earlier without final action on measures he designated as vital. One is a trade bill with a textile quota provision.

The chance that the Senate will be paralyzed by a quasi-filibuster against funds for the supersonic transport has been reduced.

Leaders have worked out a tentative agreement to interrupt the protracted SST debate for several hours' daily work on other legislation.

But the obstacles to the trade bill remain formidable. The House passed it as a separate measure, but in the Senate it has become part of a conglomerate piece of highly controversial legislation.

It ties together trade, a Social Security increase, welfare reform and a new, costly health insurance program.

The Senate is not likely to act quickly on any of these, and the jockeying has begun as to which will come up for consideration first. There is no assurance that it will be the trade measure.

As a last chance move, some textile supporters are talking of junking the rest of the trade bill and concentrating on a simple textile quota amendment. Both the House and Senate have voted favorably on textile quota proposals.

But the narrowing time span makes all strategy chancy. Whatever the Senate finally approves must go to conference with the House and then to a final vote in both bodies.

The House has a long-standing aversion to quickly accepting new proposals from the Senate, especially in tax-related matters.

A final threat to the textile quota comes from the renewed negotiations with Japan for a voluntary agreement.

If there is a voluntary agreement, they say, much of the steam behind quota legislation will dissipate and there will be strong sentiment to let the trade bill die and start fresh in 1971's more relaxed atmosphere.

'National neglect of care' Nader's teen corps raps nursing homes

By JAMES R. POLK
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Ralph Nader task force of six teen-agers charges that doctors, federal officials and nursing home owners are bedfellows in an epidemic of national neglect of decent care for the sick and the old.

A 346-page report, released Thursday, lashed out at a "serious lack of medical supervision" in the deaths of 25 patients from salmonella poisoning at a Baltimore, Md., nursing home where the illness went unreported for four days last July.

And it criticized the Social Security Administration, saying it delayed setting new safety standards after the death of 32 patients in a nursing home fire at Marietta, Ohio, earlier in the year.

"Out of sight, out of mind," is the way the nation treats its elderly, Nader said in a preface to the report.

The summer-long study was done for Nader by six teen-aged girls and their teacher from an exclusive private school in Connecticut. The group was headed by Claire Townsend, 18, daughter of Robert Townsend author of the best-seller, "Up the Organization."

The report was issued as Nader and the girls prepared to testify before a Senate subcommittee hearing on nursing home care.

Despite more than $1 billion a year in federal aid, "80 per cent of the nursing homes that receive public tax dollars do not meet even minimal federal standards," the report said.

The task force described patients as victims of callousness and incompetence among nursing home staffs, neglected by their doctors, subjected to what it termed shocking drug abuse.

The report called for stricter enforcement of the federal standards that do exist, suggested medical reviews of homes by doctors, and backed better training for nursing aides.

But most of the report's recommendations consisted of a 20-page recitation of previous proposals by other task forces.

The girls, who are now college freshmen, spent the summer on the project, interviewing government officials and working a couple of days undercover in nursing homes. Their report was submitted to Nader in September and retouched by the consumer advocate's staff before its release.

Chotiner tells divorce court he is in debt

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon's longtime political advisor, Murray Chotiner, has told a divorce hearing he is deeply in debt.

Before he was married five years ago, Chotiner told Superior Court Wednesday, he had $48,000 in several bank accounts. After the marriage, he said, "I had to borrow money to pay household expenses."

Amalia Chotiner seeks $750 monthly support from her husband, a Washington, D.C., and Newport Beach Calif., attorney. Chotiner testified his estranged wife has adequate resources to support herself.

He said he earned $74,000 last year and that his income this year will be $42,000. He submitted to the court a list of debts, including a $20,000 loan he obtained to pay his income tax last April.

Insulation plant back in business

MERTON, Wis. (AP) — The Village of Merton, having won what the Wisconsin attorney general's office called a most unusual pollution abatement case, was told Wednesday its insulation manufacturing plant is back in business.

Sealtite Insulation Manufacturing Co. resumed operations with the approval of Waukesha County's director of environmental health, who had been assigned by Circuit Court to make the plant clean up smokestack emissions.

The director, Herbert J. Ripley, said the plant would be allowed to operate for several days on a test basis before the smokestack's pollution control equipment gets permanent approval.

The court had ordered the plant Dec. 3 to cease operation until emissions were clean. It granted Ripley the power to keep the plant idle if he felt pollution wasn't being controlled.

Villagers had complained in court since 1955 of odor and fibre-like matter pouring from the smokestack. Sealtite had installed some emission controls.

But Merton said the matter wasn't resolved. It didn't win its case until the state took a hand in the action on behalf of the plaintiffs.

An assistant attorney general described the case as unusual because residents and their village officials were willing to have an alleged polluter cease operations despite the potential impact on the hamlet's economy.

The plant closing which was ordered by Circuit Judge Henry G. Gergen Jr. of Juneau was a result of an agreement involving the state, Merton and Sealtite.

Average drug seller: young, white, a user

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — The average drug seller is young, white, uses drugs himself, considers himself honest and friendly and doesn't regard himself as a criminal, says a researcher.

That was the profile painted by Dr. Richard Blum of Stanford University's Institute for Public Policy Analysis in a report Wednesday to 23 scholars and government officials from five nations attending an international drug abuse conference.

Blum said his findings were based on analysis of 454 interviews with drug pushers in jails, psychiatric wards, colleges, high schools, junior high schools, the Haight-Ashbury district of San Francisco and rural California youth communities.

Most pushers got their start on alcohol in their teens, became heavy smokers of both tobacco and marijuana before their mid-20s, and had used narcotics by the same age, he found.

Almost all had begun illicit drug use in their teens, receiving the drug from a friend or acquaintance the first time, Blum said.

He said most of the user-pushers said they were nervous before their first try at drugs, but by the time of their first sale the majority said they were no longer nervous about arrest.

Blum said only about 10 per cent said they felt guilty about drugs, but as they continued selling drugs, they became worried about some of the consequences.

"After an average of four years' dealing, plus the preceding use period," Blum said, "40 per cent are now worried about being dependent or addicted; two-thirds told of changes they had witnessed in other dealers which had included addiction, death, criminalization, social alienation, drug obsessionism, and other pathological personal developments."

Of those interviewed, 59 per cent said they had never been arrested, and fewer than 10 per cent thought the police could force them out of business, because the drug culture is "too large and too well established."

Blum said most dealers didn't consider themselves criminals because they got pleasure from the drugs they used themselves. He said most of the dealers, who ranged in age from 19 to 35, were from families with no criminal histories.

About one-quarter said one or more parent was an alcoholic, and about 25 per cent had "very serious" psychiatric problems.

Asked how to stop illicit drug traffic, they suggested legalizing drugs, or hitting the major suppliers.

"Almost none felt that increased penalties (for selling drugs) would have any impact," Blum said.

Administration sweetening revenue-sharing proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is sweetening its revenue-sharing proposal with a bigger pot of money, a greater cut for cities and counties and a long line of House sponsors.

And it is ready with a new argument to counter the question of where it is going to get the revenue to share. The answer is deficit spending, neatly wrapped up in President Nixon's new concept of a full-employment budget.

Treasury officials are putting the finishing touches on the bill that will be offered to Congress next year. They said the proposal has picked up support, mainly because governors and local officials have been pushing hard.

But they readily admit the measure's fate remains uncertain because of the powerful opposition of Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Revenue sharing, the backbone of Nixon's New Federalism approach, died in the current session of Congress without getting a hearing by Mills' committee, which said it was too busy.

The concept calls for no-strings-attached grants to the states.

In hopes of breaking the deadlock, the Treasury has put new polish on the measure, including expanding the first-year authorization for the proposal, from $275 million to as much as $1.5 billion.

Also to be changed is the method of distributing the money among cities and counties. The present bill provides local governments about 30 per cent of the share to each state.

Murray Weidenbaum, assistant Treasury secretary and head of the government's revenue-sharing task force, said versions under consideration would allow cities and counties to get a greater but as yet unspecified share.

Weidenbaum said the administration hopes to line up more than 200 sponsors, using names supplied by the National League of Cities. The league conducted a survey of new congressmen and got 205 replies in favor of the concept and five against. The others didn't reply.

To get the concept through Congress, the administration plans to say that revenue-sharing can be used without emasculating present grant-in-aid programs, one of the big arguments against it.

This is considered a modest amount to share among the states, but it is regarded as a more attractive plum to dangle before congressmen anxious for more money back home.

That's where the full employment budget comes in. It's deficit spending with a twist to make it appear it isn't. Basically, the concept calls for setting government spending levels at the rate of revenues that would be coming into the Treasury if the nation were at full employment, even though it's not.

That will free several billions for new government spending—and, says Weidenbaum, revenue sharing will be bidding for part of the red-ink money.

Report shows 13 lawmakers said no to banker aid

By JAMES R. POLK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new report to Congress shows at least 13 lawmakers have turned down controversial campaign donations from a bankers' political fund.

This left 13 others, including presidential contender Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and a Georgia congressman who had no election opponent, were listed as recipients of the banking group's contributions. The Bankers Political Action Committee touched off the dispute last month when it reported giving more than $40,000 to members of the House and Senate Banking Committees in the last few days before the election.

The Justice Department began a probe after House Banking Committee chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., accused the bankers' group of trying to weaken a bill to prohibit one-bank holding companies from branching out into other business fields. A compromise version of this bill passed the House 364 to 4 Wednesday and is awaiting Senate action.

Six members of a Senate-House committee that shaped the post-election compromise were listed as turning down contributions that ranged from $1,000 to $5,000 each.

The fund made its revised report in a letter to the House this week listing "the campaign contributions ... which were refused and ... returned in full."

Omitted from the revisions and therefore still listed as recipients of banking contributions were such prominent legislators as Muskie, $2,500; Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., Ind.-Va., $5,000, and Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., $4,000.

The fund also left unchanged its listing of a $2,500 contribution to Rep. Robert C. Stephens, D-Ga., a House Banking Committee member who had no opponent for re-election. Stephens had denied last month that he received such a donation.

'Virginia' will spend Christmas in a hospital

HUDSON, N.Y. (AP) — Virginia O'Hanlon Douglas, to whom the famous "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus" editorial was addressed 73 years ago, is spending the Christmas season in a hospital.

Mrs. Douglas, 81, was admitted to Columbia Memorial Hospital in October suffering generally from the infirmities of age, a hospital spokesman said Wednesday. He added there was no likelihood she would be out for Christmas.

Mrs. Douglas was a girl of 8 when she wrote the old New York Sun in 1897 asking "Is there a Santa Claus?" The much-quoted editorial reply was by Francis P. Church.

Mill City doctor files complaint against justice

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A Minneapolis physician who is suing two foundations for $35 million has filed a conflict of interest complaint against Associate Justice James Otis of the Minnesota Supreme Court.

In a complaint filed with the Judicial Ethics Commission, Dr. John Wild cited the membership of Justice Otis in the Amherst Wilder Foundation and the Minnesota Foundation, which are being sued by Dr. Wild for breach of contract and slander.

Dr. Wild also asked for the retraction of an Oct. 9 state Supreme Court opinion, written by Justice Otis, which accused the physician of "an attitude of levity" while testifying in a medical malpractice case in Anoka County.

Dr. Wild said the opinion should be retracted because he considers the references to him untrue and damaging to his medical reputation.

In his Hennepin County District Court suit, Dr. Wild contends the foundations cut him off from a federal research grant just as he was about to make an important breakthrough in cancer detection.

Secret guidelines cover intelligence gathering

Report Navy, Air Force have spied on members of Congress

By JOHN S. LANG
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret military guidelines give the Navy and Air Force domestic intelligence gathering duties similar to those of the Army, which a senator says has spied on members of Congress and hundreds of other civilians.

Documents obtained by The Associated Press, including one stamped "secret" on every page, state the two military branches have investigative and reporting requirements relating to civil disturbances and dissident or subversive activities . . .

Until now little has been known about Navy and Air Force domestic intelligence operations although the Army's — have been the subject of a year-long controversy.

The furor flared again Wednesday when Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., said Army agents had collected information on Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill.; former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, now a federal judge; and Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill.

Ervin, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Constitutional rights and a long-time crusader against invasion of privacy, said military agents also snooped on the activities of state and local officials, political contributors, newspaper reporters, lawyers and church figures.

His information, Ervin said, was supplied by a former Army agent who wrote that his team "was collecting information on

UNDER SURVEILLANCE . . . A spokesman for the Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee said Wednesday that the subcommittee has been advised the Army has conducted political surveillance of a number of elected officials, including, from left: Rep. every individual and organization in the state of Illinois who espoused discontent with the military involvement in Southeast Asia or who openly opposed the Nixon administration's controversial domestic policies . . .

Later, a spokesman said the Army is gravely concerned by the reports and is looking into them. He added that Army policy emphatically prohibits collection of information of the type reportedly gathered in Illinois.

And White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said in response to a question: "It's inconceivable to me that that would take place. We certainly don't condone it."

Another former military intelligence agent said in an AP interview Wednesday night that similar data had been collected by Army agents in other sections of the country.

As an example, he cited information he said was compiled by the Army in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area during April and May of 1968.

This former agent, who would not allow use of his name, said the files, consisting of index cards naming individuals and groups, were being discarded by the Army.

There have been earlier reports that other regional military intelligence centers were building files on civilians.

NBC television, for instance, reported Dec. 1 that agents in Washington had compiled dossiers on many private citizens, including Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark.

Still other reports have indicated that military intelligence agents had mingled among delegates at the 1968 Democratic and Republican conventions.

The documents obtained by the AP do not name individuals on whom Air Force and Navy agents collect data. Rather, they trace the broad guidelines under which the agents operate.

One document, signed by Robert S. Moot, assistant defense secretary, states that "The Air Force has similar investigative and reporting requirements, for which the Office of Special Investigations (OSI) is the focal point." It added:

"OSI has established requirements for collecting and reporting information relating to: (a) demonstrations, agitation, propaganda and disruptive activities directed against the role of the United States in Vietnam, selective service, or the military establishment which affect the security, mission or viability of U.S. Air Force bases and other installations . . .

"(b) civil rights and racial agitation occurring on Air Force bases or involving Air Force personnel;

"And (c) riots, demonstrations and other civil disturbances within the CONUS area which may require federal intervention and use of military troops to preserve or restore law and order (and which may therefore necessitate Air Force airlift of troops and materiel)."

The document signed by Moot was dated Sept. 9. Seven months earlier, in response to AP queries, the Air Force stated that "OSI does not have a domestic intelligence program . . . there are no intelligence agents assigned to OSI."

The Navy also was asked last February about its domestic data-gathering operations. It never responded. However, the document signed by Moot says the Navy "has issuances which prescribe investigative and reporting requirements relating to civil disturbances and dissident or subversive activities which pose a potential threat to the security of a Naval or Marine Corps facility, or to good order and discipline within a Naval or Marine Corps command."

In addition, a document dated May 14 and until recently classified "For Official Use Only," lists 14 elements of information which the Naval Investigative Service considers essential. Several of the points relate to suspected sabotage, espionage and "information of the clandestine introduction into the United States, or plans therefore, of foreign nationals, nuclear, chemical or biological weapons."

For Humphrey: odds long but lure of White House still present

By WALTER R. MEARS and CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — For Hubert H. Humphrey, two years of political exile are ending—and, if the odds are long against another presidential nomination, the lure of the White House is still there.

"I am not seeking the presidency," says the man from Minnesota, who hasn't even been sworn in yet to his new Senate seat. "I have not renounced the possibility."

Today, according to Humphrey, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine is the clear Democratic leader, and President Nixon looks like a formidable opponent; "an incumbent president is hard to beat."

"But you don't judge what is going to happen in 1972 by what is happening in 1970," Humphrey said. "Who can tell what's going to happen?"

In fact, Humphrey says, he sees a possibility that President Nixon may not seek a second term, choosing the path of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

"Of course, this is all conjecture, but I think the President has a sense of history, that if the domestic situation looks truly bad and his political prospects are not good, I have reason to believe he wouldn't run."

Humphrey, who swept to the Democratic presidential nomination two years ago, says while not very probable economic woes could do to Nixon what the Vietnam war did to Johnson—lead him to renounce a re-election bid.

"I think Mr. Nixon is a proud man... and if he thought that his candidacy would not be honored, if it looked bad, very bad, he might very well say 'Look, I've been president through difficult times. I've served my country, I'll step aside.'"

"That would be a whole new ball game."

New ball game or old, Humphrey obviously sees himself in the lineup. He sits in the office he has kept in Washington for the past two years, and talks of politics, and the Senate, and the role of a titular party leader, and political fund raising, and the polls—and "that place."

The place is the White House, and when Humphrey mentions it, he does so with a wave over his right shoulder. His geography is perfect; the presidential mansion is three rainy blocks away, in just that direction.

At 59, Humphrey casts himself as a sort of political elder statesman, the man who has been the route and can advise others—and possibly, just possibly, run the race against himself.

"I really don't see much possibility of my being involved in presidential politics as a contender. I am not saying that the door is locked shut... I have no organization. I am not opening up any offices... I hope to be able to counsel some others."

"But let's say that it should come around to January next year, January 1972, and no one seems to be really out in front, there doesn't seem to be any coalescing, well, then, I think we'll all take another look and see where we are.

"I want to be a good senator, that's what I really want to be, and I want to be a good leader in the party. And I think the best role that I play is when I don't have ambitions, when I'm not seeking position or title, and I'm not seeking position or title now."

"The only one I missed was the top job, you see. So I don't want to spend my time trying to see if I can get another title, or to see if I can get to be a chairman, or to contend for an office in the Senate. I don't think I need to do that..."

Humphrey says what he will do is help shape Democratic policy, help raise Democratic money and promote Democratic unity.

He adds that he already has consulted with some of the obvious 1972 candidates. "I've been trying to, I don't want to say admish, but to suggest to our Democratic leaders that the only way we can win in 1972, and I think we can win, is some degree of unity in our party..."

"I think," the former vice president says, "we'll have to wait as I said, to see what develops in the next 12 to 14 months, and then everybody take another look... if one candidate appears... to be far out in front, then it might be wise to concentrate our resources and talents upon him."

"I think Democrats can be in the headlines all during the coming two years, with leaders out in front, with an administration that's in trouble," he says. "I really believe that we can occupy the news, so to speak..."

"I give a lot of free advice to people who listen, or even if they won't listen, I think that it looks good for the Democrats in 1972, now. But what it will look like a year from now is hard to say."

And what it will look like a year from now for Hubert H. Humphrey is hard to say, too.

His message to the party is clear: If the challenge of 1972 seems to call for a man who has been there before, who styles himself a tutor of Democrats, Hubert Humphrey is back in government, and very, very available for the assignment.

Milwaukee man dies trying to get warm

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A man who officials said may have run out of funds with which to purchase heating fuel was found dead Wednesday night in his home, which had filled with smoke from a makeshift fire in a clothes hamper.

A medical examiner said Roman Paulbecke, 71, died of smoke inhalation. The body was discovered by a friend.

The examiner's report said the furnace in Paulbecke's home had exhausted its oil supply, and that the victim had not paid rent since February.

Population crisis 'false': Mayo doctor

CALEDONIA, Minn. (Special) — The fear of a worldwide population explosion was called a false and exaggerated hazard by a Mayo Clinic physician speaking here Sunday night to local members of Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCCL).

Dr. Paul H. Andreini, of the clinic's internal medicine and rheumatology division, attacked the theory that abortion on demand is needed to help control world populations. He said the demand for a liberalized abortion is primarily social and economic rather than for medical reasons. Many for-mer hazards of birth complications now can be overcome, he said.

He cited results of a study of 50 individuals who had been born of mothers who had rubella during pregnancy; all but four had been employed, 12 had married and borne normal children and none committed suicide. One is a successful lawyer despite a handicap, he said.

Dr. Andreini charged that abortion on demand paves the way for acceptance of euthanasia. He called liberalized abortions a means of reducing the numbers of poorer people and of minorities. Countering a Women's Liberation argument that "a woman's body is her right," Dr. Andreini said: "She does have a right to become pregnant or not, but when she is pregnant, responsibility starts at conception."

He called for increased facilities to counsel expectant mothers, wed or unwed.

A film on abortion is to be available through MCCCL chapter leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Palen, Caledonia.

In prefatory remarks, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Leo Neudecker, St. Peter's Catholic Church, Caledonia, told the group the world is not over-populated. He said the allegation is being circulated by proponents of birth control and liberalized abortion.

The Netherlands is the world's most densely populated country, having 968 people per square mile, said Msgr. Neudecker. India is seventh among the world's nations in people per square mile; Canada averages five and the U.S. has 58, he said.

Delegates to the meeting at St. Mary's Hall came from Spring Grove, Mabel, Caledonia, La Crescent, Freeburg and Dakota.

Humphrey to introduce revenue bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation for sharing federal revenues with the states—on a bigger scale than President Nixon proposed—will be introduced in the new Congress by Sen-elect Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis.

In a joint announcement through Reuss' office, they described their proposal as a constructive alternative to Nixon's.

Nixon suggested a revenue sharing schedule beginning with $500 million for the states the first year and rising to $5 billion by 1976. The Humphrey-Reuss plan would begin with $3 billion in the fiscal year beginning next July 1 increase to $9 billion by 1975.

All proposals for diverting some federal revenues to the states face stiff opposition by fiscally conservative congressional leaders such as chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee—especially while the federal government continues to incur multibillion dollar deficits.

Humphrey and Reuss said their plan improves on Nixon's by setting, as a condition for federal sharing, agreement by states to prepare a master plan and timetable for modernizing state and local government. The plan also would encourage the use by states of income taxes to help meet their revenue needs through a weighted formula relating federal income sharing to state income taxes.

Moreover, the Humphrey-Reuss proposal would require states to pass along 40 per cent of the federal funds received to local governments, instead of 30 per cent as the administration proposed.

Environmental defense Fund: public protector

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

The Environmental Defense Fund was born in the controversy over DDT, first on Long Island, then in Michigan and Wisconsin. It was incorporated in October, 1967, originally supported by the National Audubon Society, but until early this year was running without substantial funds.

"At the beginning of this year, EDF was a fragile organization," says Edward Lee Rogers, EDF general counsel and a former Justice Department lawyer. "We were at a low ebb financially."

Rogers, with executive director Roderick A. Cameron, and others, talked of becoming a general membership organization. To avoid becoming unmanageable, they decided members would not vote, there would be no fancy magazine.

"We said we'd tell the members we'll give them what they want—action, in the courts," Rogers says.

The turning point came when Cameron decided to spend about $5,000 of the organization's total remaining assets of $23,000 on an advertisement in the New York Times on Sunday, March 29, headlined "Is Mother's Milk Fit for Human Consumption?" It referred to the amount of DDT in the human body.

The ad appealed for members, starting at $10 for a basic membership. It produced $7,000, a profit, and the EDF turned to a direct mail campaign and now has 10,000 members, a stable financial base and a chance at major foundation support.

EDF has enough money to continue operating for about four months if money stopped coming in—it continues to come in—and hopes to maintain that kind of financial backlog.

"We're not trying to maintain a big kitty," Rogers says. "We run lean."

EDF has 23 cases in some phase of prosecution throughout the country and is looking into several others. Rogers says the EDF chooses its spots carefully: "We're militants, but we're not zealots."

Among those on the EDF board of trustees are Dr. Charles F. Wurster, a specialist on pesticides at the State University of New York at Stony Brook; former Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall, and a new member Democratic Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, recently defeated in a bid for the U.S. Senate from New York.

A major aspect of the work the EDF is doing concerns the setting of precedents in environmental law, while at the same time solving specific environmental problems.

Two years ago, for example, EDF filed suit in Montana against the Hoerner-Waldorf Corp., charging that the firm's pulp and paper mill was causing extensive air pollution in the Missoula Valley.

The case moved slowly in court, EDF says, and recently the court dismissed the case on a technicality. The EDF claims that "as a result of pressures aroused by the litigation, the company undertook a $13.5-million air pollution abatement program that is well on the way to solving the problem."

And further, the EDF says, tained language that for the first time in a federal court recognized the constitutional right of citizens to a healthful environment.

In the ruling, Senior U.S. District Judge W. D. Murry said: "I have no difficulty in finding that the right to life and liberty and property are constitutionally protected. Indeed the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments provide that these rights may not be denied without due process of law, and surely a person's health is what, in a most significant degree, sustains life."

"So it seems to me that each of us is constitutionally protected in our natural and personal state of life and health."

The EDF commented: "Litigation is a process where it is sometimes possible to win by losing."

3 legislators spend $2,523 for Vegas trip

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Validated expense vouchers on file at the state Bureau of Finance Wednesday showed seven Wisconsin legislators spent $2,523.84 on a three-day trip to Las Vegas for a legislative conference.

Additional vouchers are to be filed. Others will involve 23 legislators who took a trip to San Juan, Puerto Rico, earlier this month for a similar conference.

Validation by the Finance Bureau means the expenses have been approved as legal.
They are submitted to the clerks of the Senate and Assembly for signing before taxpayers pay the tab.

A Waukesha legislator said Tuesday he will file a bill next year to prohibit junkets by legislators after they have lost re-election.

A group of Hustisford high school students said last week it will poll lawmakers and news media in a round-up of opinion as to whether taxpayers should have to subsidize junkets.

Hong Kong's picturesque airport has its hazards

HONG KONG (AP) — Seasoned travelers flying into and out of Hong Kong seem to have their favorite hair's breadth escape story of landing on the narrow strip of reclaimed land jutting into the harbor.

"The pilot was fidgeting all over the place trying to slow down and we were told later there was smoke coming from the brakes. When he finally pulled up we were so close to the water at the end of the runway that you could have bowled a stone left handed into it," said one passenger arriving at Kai Tak airport from Saigon.

Airline pilots agree that landing at Kai Tak, which looks from the air not much bigger than an oversized aircraft carrier, is more difficult to master than at most major international airports but soot at the nar-

"The people telling them usually are pretty lubricated," laughed a Cathay Pacific Airways pilot. "The later in the evening it is and the more drinks the teller has had, the more hair-raising the 'escapes' become."

Kai Tak is a green finger of land with a gray stripe down the center which pokes a mile and a half into Hong Kong harbor. The gray stripe is the narrow runway stretching between grassed strips and an out-walled perimeter of white stone.

Planes landing and taking off have the green, oil-smeared water of the harbor only a few yards away on either side as they speed along the runway.

The runway has an effective landing length of about a mile and a half when approached from the southeast over the harbor, and only 7,210 feet when landing from the opposite direction because buildings near the end of the strip force pilots to come in high over the edge of the field.

"Under bad weather conditions the runway is only just long enough," said a Canadian Pacific Airlines pilot.

Pilots say they often cut down on their reserve fuel to reduce the weight of the aircraft and thus shorten their landing distance. If something causes a delay in landing, this means less time is available before they must fly to an alternate airport hundreds of miles away.

They also complain that the runway is slippery after the frequent rain and say this aggra-vates the situation.

More reclamation is planned to extend the overall length of the runway by about half a mile to a little over two miles. This improvement, estimated to cost $25 million and to be completed by 1973, will make the pilots a lot happier, particularly as the longer landing distance will enable them to carry more reserve fuel.

Another worry is that the taxiway is too close to the runway, and that a sharp gust of wind when the runway is slippery could send a landing jet crashing into a taxiing aircraft.
Bad weather, ranging from squalls whose showers can blot out the runway for a few seconds or minutes to typhoons which close the airport, is another hazard.

So too, are crosswinds swirling over the single runway, high winds which can buffet airliners curving over Kowloon near the mountains until, as one pilot put it, "the bottom seems to be falling out of the plane," and hawks which can cause serious dan-age to an airliner if hit.

On the plus side, pilots regard aircraft controllers at the airport as above average. And a fast rescue launch anchors off the end of the runway in case an aircraft goes into the water, as several have in the past.

Kai Tak is a "crossroads" airport. It is in the center of the traffic pattern for the Far East, so that jetliners coming south from Tokyo or Seoul often arrive in the afternoon about the same time as aircraft flying north from Singapore or Bangkok. Many airlines arrange their flight times so that their aircraft on different routes are in Hong Kong at or about the same time, thus making transferring more convenient for passengers.

Airport traffic is densest in the afternoons, and comparatively quiet in the mornings and evenings. Kai Tak averages about 100 arrivals and departures a day.

Justice Dept. sets out to help consumers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has gone ahead without hoped for congressional action and established a consumer affairs section.

President Nixon's consumer proposals were killed in the House Rules Committee earlier this month. The legislation would have set up a full consumer affairs division within the Justice Department.

Announcement of the new section to take up consumer issues was made by Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's consumer affairs specialist, and Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard W. McLaren.

McLaren, who heads the anti-trust division of the Justice Department, said he was naming his special assistant, Bruce B. Wilson, to head the new section.

The size of the unit was not disclosed, but McLaren said it would grow to 10 as the workload increases.

Wilson's section will concentrate under one roof the enforcement duties for consumer laws now scattered through several divisions of the Justice Department.

Beloit hospital hopes to sell $1.5 million bonds

BELOIT, Wis. (AP) — Trustees of Beloit's new hospital say they will seek authority to sell $1.5 million in bonds to ward off a "financial crisis" in the absence of full government assistance.

The hospital's 196 incorporators are to meet in special session Dec. 22, and a two-thirds vote is necessary to approve issuance of subordinated debentures.

Trustees said the hospital had been built with an understanding made in 1967 that Beloit could count on $4.3 million in government aid toward the estimated $11.8 million expense.

Attorney William Bolgrien said funding plans have failed because of "the reductions of appropriations of the Congress."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., submitted an amendment Dec. 11 to help 36 hospitals which had been denied funds. One of them was the Beloit hospital. A House-Senate committee rejected the amendment.

The hospital received the 1967-69 aid it had expected. But it said it got only half the 1970 anticipated aid.

Heath arrives in Ottawa for series of conferences

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain arrived early today for a day's meeting with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. Heath and President Nixon will confer in Washington Thursday and Friday.

The only topic Heath is expected to bring up with both North American leaders is the Middle East, where Britain generally favors more Israeli territorial concessions than the United States does.

Heath and Trudeau also were to discuss Britain's proposed arms sales to South Africa, which the Canadian government opposes, and the effect on British-Canadian trade if Britain joins the European Common Market.

Another major topic in Washington will be the American veto of a British sale of two computers to the Soviet Union for $14.4 million. A British spokesman said the prime minister will try to persuade Nixon to approve the sale, which the U.S. government has blocked because the computers contain some American parts.

The Nixon administration contends the computers could be put to military uses.

BALLOON NOTE
LAKE BLUFF, ILL. (AP) — Monica Domnelly, 11, had all but given up getting an answer to her balloon-launched note.

The note, carried by three balloons, was kept dry in a plastic bag. It asked that whoever found it write back to her and send a picture of himself.

Then she received an answer from a seven-year-old boy, Clinton King of Hartford, Mich. He included a photo of himself.

"I found this note while hunting with my father," his letter said. "P.S. My mother wrote this note for me."

Monica saved the cost of a stamp and a trip to the mailbox with her system, but she does not believe it will ever replace the United States Post Office.

"You never know where the note's going to land," she said. "But that's the fun of it."

More names for Christmas cards

By RUTH ROGERS

To our knowledge, Mrs. Jennie White, resident of Family Heritage Home, 1311 Tyler Street, Black River Falls, Wis. 54616, is the only 100-year-old so far included among persons needing Christmas cheer from us more fortunate.

Born May 4, 1870, in a log cabin at Black River Falls she married Dr. Arthur E. White, a native of Beaver Dam, Wis., who later lived at Austin, Minn. Married in 1890, the couple spent 25 years at Baggs, Wyo., and then returned to Black River Falls. He died in 1922.

Jennie, who started taking piano lessons at age eight, attended Northwestern University Conservatory of Music, Evanston, Ill., and plays from memory the hymns for services at the home each Wednesday afternoon. She says she discovered she was deaf when she thought the piano was out of tune.

She has never had an ache or pain, she said, but curvature of the spine put her in a wheelchair and she's been at Family Heritage Home since 1965. She reads avidly.

Her only living relative is a great-nephew, Robert White, Minneapolis.

William Tomaszek, Minneiska, Minn., now a patient at Community Memorial Hospital, Winona, Minn. 55987.

Yankton Sioux named as first owners of land

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Indian Claims Commission has ruled that over 10 million acres of land in South Dakota were once owned by the Yankton Sioux Tribe.

In a decision announced Wednesday, the Commission said it will next determine the fair market value of the vast area between the Missouri and Big Sioux rivers as of Feb. 16, 1859, when a treaty was signed between the Yankton tribe and the United States.

In announcing the action aimed at paying Indians for lands ceded to the federal government, the Commission said it will later determine whether the government may offset payments in consideration for funds spent on behalf of the Yankton tribe.

The commission said that the Yankton tribe had title to the lands by virtue of exclusive use and occupancy.

Indian groups intervening in the case contended that the Yankton, Yantona and Teton Sioux were parts of a large landowning entity — the "Missouri Sioux" or "Sioux Nation" — and that the Yankton and Teton tribes held an undivided interest in lands of the Yankton Sioux.

The commission, in a unanimous decision, said that neither the Yankton Sioux nor the Teton Sioux exclusively used or occupied any portion of the land claimed by the Yankton Sioux.

HIGHEST CORN YIELDS . . . Three members of the Arkansas High School Future Farmers of America chapter placed first, second and third in the sectional Pioneer Hi-Yield Corn growing contest. They are, from left, Gregg Bechel, first, Dennis Milliren, second, and Dan Klein, second. Bechel was also state winner.

Arkansas youths take corn honors

ARKANSAW, Wis. — Gregg Bechel, Dan Klein, and Dennis Milliren, students in the Arkansas High School made the three highest corn yields, respectively, in this Future Farmers of America section of the state with yields of 274.7, 258.1, and 230.3 bushels per acre in the Pioneer Hi-Yield Corn Growing contest.

Bechel's yield was high in the state with 2,593 boys from 45 schools entered in the competition.

These yields were made under the supervision of Robert Hof, agriculture instructor at Arkansas High School. At the time the corn was weighed, shelled corn samples were also taken and a moisture test was made and the yield figured on the basis of No. 2 corn with 15.5 percent moisture.

Bechel made his highest yield of 274.7 bushels per acre with Pioneer brand 3773, Klein made his highest yield of 258.1 bushels per acre with Pioneer 3773, and Milliren made his highest yield with Pioneer brand 3773.

This FFA section includes the counties of St. Croix, Dunn, Chippewa, Eau Claire, Pierce, Pepin, and Buffalo. There were 24 high schools and 498 boys entered in the corn growing contest.

Tom Caturia, Arkansas High School, placed 10th in the sectional contest.

Alma judge attends Washington meet

ALMA, Wis. — Judge Gary B. Schlosstein, Buffalo County Judge, is attending the White House Conference on Children at Washington, D.C. this week. Judge Schlosstein was invited by President Nixon as the representative of the juvenile court judges of Wisconsin. Participation in the conference is by invitation only. Delegates to the national conference are selected from outstanding educators, attorneys, parents, behavioral scientists, doctors, psychiatrists, administrators and students.

Judge Schlosstein, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin Law School, has been Buffalo County Judge since 1958. He is a graduate of the University of Minnesota Juvenile Court Judges Institute, the National College of State Trial Judges, on the faculty of the Wisconsin Supreme Court's Judicial College and a past chairman of the Juvenile Court Judges of Wisconsin.

Honeywell awarded aerospace contract

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A $10 million contract has been awarded by the federal government to the Aerospace Division of Honeywell, Inc., Minneapolis, to build stabilization and control systems for two communications satellites. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said the space vehicles are scheduled for launching in 1973 and 1974.

Conference on children split

WASHINGTON (AP) — As one group of delegates to the White House Conference on Children sought to bring parents and youth together, federal mediators took up the problem of bringing divided conference participants together.

The conference has taken on a double life, with most of the 4,000 delegates participating in scheduled activities while a dissatisfied minority prepares to hold a rump session.

"Our age-segregated society has isolated children from adults," Dr. Urie Bronfenbrenner, chairman of a forum on children and parents, said Wednesday. "That is the root of growing alienation, apathy and confusion among the young."

The solution, he said, "We must bring adults back into the lives of children and children back into the lives of adults." Dr. Bronfenbrenner's suggestions for unity at home were made as dissatisfied delegates complained of conference disunity. They said it is structured so as to stifle criticism of Nixon administration policies on racism, the Vietnam war and social welfare.

When their demand for a plenary session at which the entire conference could "express itself on the overriding issues of the day" was turned down Wednesday, the dissidents announced they would hold a rump session. But federal mediators are trying to hold things together. Conference chairman Stephen Hess said a plenary session would serve no useful purpose and could result in "a situation where we come out of here endorsing motherhood" instead of agreeing on concrete, workable proposals.

Calley court-martial Attempt to place blame on superiors

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Lt. William L. Calley's court-martial defense is hammering away at the thesis that responsibility for My Lai lay up the line of command—and that the troops took their cue from the company commander, Capt. Ernest Medina.

A defense witness testified Wednesday that Medina spurred on his men at a pre-My Lai briefing by saying: "When I come through the next day, I don't want anything living but GIs."

Calley, 27, is charged with murdering 102 Vietnamese civilians.

His lawyers are trying to show that he was only obeying orders that March 16, 1968.

Thomas J. Kinch of North Cape May, N.J., who was a member of Medina's mortar crew, said the captain toured the body-strewn village and finally stopped the killing by telling his platoon leaders: "The party's over, that's enough shooting."

"Did you overhear a body count?" he was asked.

"Yes, that was later in the afternoon, after lunch," Kinch, 24, said. "Somebody called down to Capt. Medina's radio and asked for a body count and Capt. Medina replied 310."

In official reports made a few days after My Lai Medina listed 20 to 28 enemy dead.

The Army today reopens its investigation at Ft. McPherson Ga., to determine if Medina should be court-martialed. The Army has charged him with the over-all responsibility for the deaths in the village.

At a Pentagon news conference a year ago Medina said: "I did not order any massacre in My Lai, I did not see any massacre in My Lai."

Conferees forge bill to keep the air clean

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees have forged a bill to protect the public health from dirty air, charting a campaign that could shut down auto production lines and send willful polluters to jail.

The legislation follows the lines of a Senate bill written principally by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine. It represents an important personal victory for him.

Muskie, tired after two months of negotiations with House members, said Wednesday night the final bill is far tougher than any that has gone before. He said the conference wrote a bill stronger in most respects than either of the two original versions.

The measure may still earn barbs from environmentalists complaining it still does not go far enough. Muskie aides commented.

But it does create a new arsenal of federal pollution control measures, and authorizes spending $1 billion over three years to help pay for the fight.

The weapons include granting the government the right to inspect private property for pollution violations, to subpoena records of suspected air polluters and even to require factories to pay for and install pollution monitors.

The measure sets national standards for all potential new sources of air pollution—such as industrial plants—and sets criminal penalties for willful polluters with fines up to $50,000 a day and jail sentences of up to two years.

It also would give all citizens and groups the right to sue in federal court to compel all polluters, including the United States government, to cease and desist.

The measure's most controversial provision sets a Jan. 1, 1975 deadline for the nation's exhaust emissions on assembly line cars by 90 per cent.

A one-year, once-only deadline extension could be granted by the Environmental Protection Agency upon adequate proof that after an honest, good faith effort, the industry was not able to produce adequate emission control devices.

Further extensions, if any, would have to come from Congress, Muskie said.

The report of the conference committee must now be considered by the House and Senate. Their approval would send the bill to the White House for President Nixon's signature.

Report none of contaminated tuna released in state

ST. PAUL (AP) — None of the canned tuna recalled by the Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) this week because of mercury contamination has been distributed in Minnesota, an FDA official said Wednesday.

Horace Allen, deputy director of the Minneapolis FDA office, said initial checks showed none of the contaminated tuna reached the state.

Allen said his office will continue to check tuna sold in Minnesota.

Dr. Charles C. Edwards, FDA director, said tuna samples which brought the recall exceeded guidelines designed to leave a "substantial margin for safety."

"The tuna in the market and in the home present no health hazard," he said.

ROTATE TIRES NEW YORK (AP) — Tires should be rotated every 5,000 miles for maximum wear. Rotating the tires lets them wear evenly, according to a report from Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation.

U.S., Japan agree on withdrawals

TOKYO (AP) — Japan and the United States agreed today on a program to withdraw some 10,000 U.S. ground troops and most of the Phantom fighter-bombers from Japan by next June 30.

The agreement, reached at technical-level talks, will be formally endorsed at the Japan-U.S. security treaty consultative conference set for Monday in Tokyo.

The planned reduction also will mean discharge of about 10,000 Japanese workers at U.S. military bases.

Japan and the United States also agreed to transfer control over the Atsugi air naval facility, southwest of Tokyo, to the Japanese maritime self-defense force and deploy the main strength of the U.S. 7th Fleet from Yokosuka, south of Tokyo, to Sasebo, Kyushu, southwestern Japan.

Foreign Ministry sources described the planned reduction as part of the United States' dollar-saving program.

Moments with Mary

 Daily News Women's Editor

With Christmas just a mere week away, how are holiday plans shaping up at your house? Is the tree decorated, are the garlands in place around the door, is the chimney all swept down so Santa won't get that gleaming suit dirty when coming down? Seems as though Thanksgiving was just here. Besides that, a new year is just around the corner, too. Wow, so many things to do and think about. Then there are some people who are busy packing to spend Christmas in a warmer climate or perhaps abroad. We know of one local family who will be meeting the rest of their family for Christmas in Paris. Doesn't that sound like fun? Others will be on far away islands and still others will hang their stockings in Florida and Arizona and Texas and await Santa's arrival by airplane. It's all part of holiday splendor, I guess.

Mary Kruger

Are you one of the persons who likes the envelopes of your Christmas cards to bear an appropriate postmark? Popular mailing points include Snowball, Ark.; Santa Claus, Ind.; Holly, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan or Washington; Snow, Okla.; Santa, Idaho, and of course, the towns of Christmas in Florida and Arizona. Those thinking about a merry Christmas often have their cards franked at Merryville, La.; Jollytown, Pa.; Holladay, Utah or Tennessee, or Joy, Ill. Others, in the spirit of the season, send their cards to be mailed from Dickens, Iowa, Nebraska or Texas; Jerusalem, Arkansas and Ohio or Bethlehem, Connecticut, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa and Kentucky.

I certainly think it's the appropriate time and place to thank the many organizations and individuals who have worked so hard to make the Christmas season a joyful one for those who may not have had such a happy season without some assistance. Cards, clothing, food and caroling, among other means of thoughtfulness, have been conveyed to so many young and old.

We've been sharing many recipes over the past few weeks, many of them being of the sweet variety. Today I have a recipe for a vegetable dish that sounds easy and yummy at the same time. Hope you can use it for some of the holiday entertaining you're doing.

Dear Abby:
 'How would your husband solve it?'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband owned a store in New York and we used to spend about five months of the year in Florida. He died in Florida last month, and it was his wish that he be buried in Florida. I notified his employees in New York, and his bookkeeper who had been with him for 13 years, and his manager, who had been with him for 28 years, flew to Florida for his funeral.

Abby

Later, when I checked over the books, I found that the manager and bookkeeper had charged their airline tickets to my husband's business! I am terribly angry over this and wonder if I should insist that they reimburse the business.

DEAR WIDOW: Ask yourself, "How would my husband have handled it?" Then, handle it that way.

DEAR ABBY: I have been unable to find the correct type of card to send to friends and relatives to announce the arrival of an adopted baby. Printing services in our city have not been able to help us. My husband feels that we should make it perfectly clear that we have adopted a baby. I don't think that is necessary. I think if we send out announcements with the baby's name and date of birth on it, those who are close to us will know he's adopted, and the others need know nothing more than the arrival of our child. Please advise.

DEAR IN: Your "printing service" needs to update their service. I have seen announcements for the adopted child. ("We have an addition to our family. Mary Ann was born Aug. 25, and came to us on Sept. 2d.")

To send an ordinary birth announcement would imply that you had actually given birth to the child, which is perfectly all right, if that is the impression you want to create.

DEAR ABBY: I know lying is wrong. But how about a "little white lie?" There are so many situations where the bald truth is cruel, and a little white lie wouldn't hurt. Example: "How do you like my new hat?"

DEAR NELLIE: That type of white lie is, of course, not only harmless — it's kind, and I doubt if the gates of heaven would be closed to you for having told it. However, most white lies often end up as a double feature in technicolor.

DEAR ABBY: A writer asked, "Where did the custom of kissing a lady's hand originate? And why?"

You said it originated in France, and probably because a person had to start somewhere.

You were half right. Hand-kissing did originate in France, but there is more to it than that. A gentleman properly kisses the hands of only married women — and on the left hand, because that is where her wedding ring is worn. The significance? To show "respect" for her marriage.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For FRIDAY, Dec. 18

Your birthday today: A year of reasonable progress is best achieved by diligence and continued study. Your present line of effort is broadened by technical developments so that you must hurry to keep up with the changing times. Your earnings rise with steady effort. Emotional expression comes rather impulsive, with frequent dramatic moments. Today's natives have strong literary talent in telling an interesting story, and usually help in community affairs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You need to be clearly heard; outspoken with peers and competitors, quite the reverse with people who outrank you. Disregard unfair or incomplete comment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): In your social group you will find the young striving for adult freedom, needing advice, unwilling to ask for it — and others trying to live in bygone times.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can't keep a secret now, so don't try. Stay with routines. A health checkup will let you know what's what and whether you have to do anything special.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Everything should go rather well today. Avoid the tempting let-down and drift, press right ahead to do as much as you can enjoy doing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Wind up the workweek with no loose ends. Dress well, but realize you don't have to be extravagant to make a good impression. See everything with a sense of humor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Devotion to exactness only causes needless squabbles. Let reasonable lapses go. Impromptu arrangements work out better than detailed plans now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Career prospects brighten with an idea gained while traveling, listening to strangers. Your community needs your talents; find a graceful way to volunteer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Everybody has his own special tantrum to throw today. Your success is determined by how you cope with all this without taking sides. Don't try too hard. Relax.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do your normal work in good spirits. Expect your friends and companions to be somewhat shy or concerned about something. Gentle consideration should come naturally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An idea that looks fine to you from your sketches doesn't arouse the enthusiasm of others. To insist on pushing it through only makes the situation worse. Work alone if possible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It's better to catch an error yourself, before showing your work, than to let others discover it. Today they will not let you escape responsibility for the blunder.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If you will muster your courage and demand some improvement or increase, you stand a chance of getting it, particularly in a newly setup

Flanagan named to head Community Theatre

MICHAEL FLANAGAN

Michael Flanagan has been named managing director of the Winona Community Theatre. The announcement was made by the theatre's board of directors.

As managing director, Flanagan will be responsible for the choice of plays, the staff and the raising of funds necessary to cover operating expenses.

Plans for the 1971 season call for four plays. Being considered for the first show are "A Thousand Clowns," "Black Comedy," "Blithe Spirit" and others. The second show will be a musical. Being considered are "Fiddler on the Roof," "Take Me Along" and others. Being judged for the third show are "Midsummer Nights Dream," "Twelfth Night," and "Imaginary Invalid." The fourth show, a children's show, will be an adaptation of A. A. Milne's "Winnie the Pooh." Negotiations are currently being carried on for directors and designers.

An advance sale of season tickets is already under way. They are available at both Ted Maier Drug Stores, the Barn Door, Remembrance Shop, Scarborough Fair, the Piccadilly and Hal Leonard Music. Sale of tickets will also take place in the spring.

Flanagan received his bachelor of arts degree in speech and English from St. Mary's College in 1963 and his master of arts degree in theatre from Bowling Green University, Bowling Green, Ohio. He also did additional graduate study in theatre at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, and completed coursework in theatre toward his doctorate at the same university.

Flanagan returned to St. Mary's College in 1967 to become chairman of the communications art department and an assistant professor of communication arts.

His theatre experiences include numerous major and minor roles in college and community theatres. He has also directed many productions on the college, high school and community level.

Promotional directors for the theatre in 1971 will be Charles Pascoe and James Wagner. Pascoe is an instructor of speech pathology at the College of Saint Teresa and Wagner is the director of special services at Winona State College. The men will be immediately responsible for the raising of funds through donations, advertisements and ticket sales and also to work with Flanagan on a plan of operation.

New Jersey lottery begins sales; too heavy to handle

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Retail outlets could not cope with the crush of buyers as the New Jersey lottery began its first day of sales Wednesday. Sales were five times higher than had been expected, according to Ralph Batch of the State Lottery Commission, who said about 1.5 million tickets were sold. Many of the 1,853 brokers sold out their supply and sought more from banks, which act as middlemen between the state and the vendors. Twenty-four banks ran out of tickets.

First prize in the weekly drawing is $50,000. Tickets cost 50 cents.

Proceeds will be used by the state for education aid and construction of institutions.

Female soldiers fighting ignorance and illiteracy

By SONIA RITA DAITZ
KIRYAT SHMONA, Israel (AP) — A special army task force is fighting its own kind of war here, in this Israeli border town.

The force is uniformed but unarmed, and all its members are female. The force is fighting a war against ignorance and illiteracy.

The battlefield is the classroom of Kiryat Shmona, one of dozens of similar settlements populated by illiterate, peasant Jews aged six to sixty, who emigrated to Israel from neighboring Middle Eastern countries.

The newcomers learn here to read and write, to eat with knives and forks, to comb their hair, to wash, to settle disputes with words instead of weapons, and to become useful citizens.

All told there are 1,000 girls in the soldier-teacher unit formed seven years ago to cope with primitivity among the new immigrants. Like most 18-year-old Israeli, male and female, the girls were required to serve some form of military duty, and went through basic training in weaponry, self-defense, physical fitness and logistics.

The girls work in border settlement schools where Arab-Israeli frontier fighting is part of life, and living standards are among the worst in the nation.

"It's more difficult commanding soldier-teachers than ordinary soldiers," says Malka, a 21-year-old lieutenant. "They are older and have more ideas of their own. When you tell them they must work in their army uniform, or they cannot leave the area to go home and see their boyfriends, it's harder for them to obey than for the younger girls."

Malka, a tall striking blonde, heads teaching operations in northern Israel. She finished two years in a teachers' seminar before taking the job.

Housewife notes burials in many old cemeteries

PASCO, Wash. (AP) — Housewife Jean Winters has a strange hobby. For four years, with pen and clipboard in hand, she has been recording burials in some of eastern Washington's oldest cemeteries.

Weather, vandalism and progress are taking their toll of old burial grounds, she says, and no one has taken records of the deaths of some of the state's first settlers.

Mrs. Winters' work has taken her from Goldendale to Prescott, across the Idaho border and along the border on the Washington side. She says she's just begun.

In her wanderings, Mrs. Winters has found graves dating from 1856, and some undated ones that she says were occupied before the 1847 Whitman massacre.

One of her favorite finds is a 20-foot-high black marble obelisk erected near Walla Walla by a wealthy family. Another elaborate monument was built in memory of the madam of a house of ill repute. The dead woman's girls were buried around her.

On one excursion she found a

Expert says:

Divorce rate growing among couples 45+

By JUDY ROSENFELD
Louisville Times Staff Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The seven-year itch, traditionally a scapegoat in the story of our climbing divorce rate, may have to share top billing with a new culprit—the 20-year slump.

In 1965, nearly one-fourth of all persons filing divorce in the United States had been married for 15 years or more.

And although current local figures aren't available, experts here seem to agree that the number of divorces among people over the age of 45 is growing.

Why, after enduring 15 or 20 or 25 years, does a marriage dissolve in divorce courts?

In most cases, experts say, because that marriage has been disintegrating for years.

"Even physical divorce between husband and wife without a court declaration is not uncommon," said Jefferson Circuit Judge Marvin J. Sternberg.

"They live separate and apart, sometimes even in the same house, sometimes even in the same bedroom, but their emotions, actions and conduct towards one another indicate they are separate and distinct."

For these and other unsound marriages faltering under the weight of years of accumulated conflict, hostility or frustration, the age 45 often represents a natural breaking point, a last chance to strike a blow for freedom.

Under a normal life expectancy people have as many adult years to look forward to as to look back on at that age. By that time, in many cases, the children are grown.

"If they've been the cement that held the marriage together, by then people feel less sensitive and less guilty about their responsibility to the children," observed Glenn Schilling, a Louisville divorce attorney.

Some, said Al Erlen, a social worker and executive secretary of the Jewish Social Service Agency of the United Appeal, come to ask, "What the hell are we doing together?"

"If you like what you look back on to the extent of even 'C plus,' you go on," said Schilling. "If you look at the future as another 20-year sentence, you begin to think in terms of parole."

Simple inertia, as well as fear of being designated a quitter, can still keep unhappy marriages from reaching divorce court.

And, unless there is a crisis to upset the balance of the marriage, it is likely to endure.

In perhaps half of all divorce cases in this age group, one partner's unimproved or aggravated drinking problem is among the crises which upsets the marriage balance, according to Schilling.

"I've heard both men and women say, 'I'd stay if I thought I could help him or her,'" said Schilling. For these people, deciding to seek a divorce means "giving up any hope of any change in your partner or yourself," he said.

Crises for other couples might come when an older parent moves in, or when a child with problems becomes a source of contention and one partner tells the other, "It's all your fault she's that way."

Other crises are spurred by the advice of a friend or that of a child—and, sometimes, by dramatic changes that come with the advent of middle age.

"There are glandular changes, changes in personality, which people don't understand, just as in adolescence," said Erlen. "There can be feelings of revolt, desires for new experiences, desires to live fully before you die."

A wife's vague discontent can focus on her husband, on her marriage. Or baffling, unexplained changes in a man's behavior can puzzle and anger his wife.

Not the least of these complications are vocational crises.

Often at 45, "a person's career will take a turn for the better or for the worse, or perhaps finally simply level off," observed Schilling.

"Not giving enough to the family of yourself" is a common failing of men in this age group who become tremendously involved in their careers, he said.

On the one hand vocational failure can bring unsettling financial problems; and a feeling of failure which can cast shadows upon the whole marriage.

On the other hand success also brings problems.

"Some couples can stand drought better than they can prosperity," said James A. Hubbs, a Louisville divorce attorney for 22 years.

Given more leisure time and more money, extra-marital affairs become possible, Hubbs said.

However, although lawyers and counselors acknowledged the prevalence of extra-marital affairs among both men and women over 45, they emphasize that such liaisons play a greater part in divorce among people 10 or 15 years younger.

If a husband faces vocational crises, a wife who has been a career mother faces a similar problem.

The children raised, she is suddenly liberated from her full-time role of mother and, perhaps, housewife, suddenly free to extend her horizons beyond the home front.

If she fails to develop new interests and involvements, she may be in for years of boredom, confusion and dissatisfaction.

If she decides to strike out with a new career of her own, to return to work or to school, it may be more than some husbands can take.

Miami's white tiger is dead

MIAMI (AP) — Princess the white tiger is dead. Crandon Park Zoo officials said Princess, who came to Miami three years ago from India, was found dead in her cage Wednesday. The sleek beauty, whose snow-white coat was marked by ash-grey stripes, was only the second white tiger to be shipped out of India.

A male tiger due to arrive in Miami during the Christmas holidays was to have become princess' mate. Zoo director Gordon Hubbell said an autopsy would be performed "because we want to satisfy ourselves there are no questionable circumstances." While we have not ruled out foul play, there is no evidence as yet to suggest there was foul play.

Wholesale changes recommended by state tax study group

By GERRY NELSON
ST. PAUL (AP) — A tax study group appointed by Gov. Harold LeVander 11 months ago recommended wholesale changes today in Minnesota's property tax system, including a tax ceiling equal to 4 per cent of the market value of any property. The committee said property taxes "are approaching a critical level" and will have the effect of "virtual confiscation" if they rise still higher. The group recommended a constitutional amendment carrying out the 4 per cent ceiling, with the amendment written to expire in about 10 years. At such time, the group said, a new amendment could be put before voters. With a 4 per cent ceiling, the maximum tax on a $20,000 home would be $800. If the value of a home increased, the tax would be boosted at a corresponding rate. The committee was headed by Dr. Paul V. Grambsch, dean of the School of Business Administration at the University of Minnesota.

The committee's 33-page report adopted many—but not all—of the recommendations made by former state tax commissioner Roland F. Hatfield, who served as a consultant for the study.

Hatfield, a Republican, was elected state auditor last month. One of his personal recommendations was for a statewide property tax equal to 50 per cent of the school operating costs—a proposal very similar to one put forth by DFL Governor-elect Wendell R. Anderson. Hatfield also called for a ceiling on property taxes at their 1971 levels, but suggested a different method.

The committee said that Minnesota property taxes, taken as a whole, now amount to about 3.5 per cent of the market value of all taxable property.

The committee suggested a 4 per cent ceiling, but said 4.5 per cent also might be workable. The report said:

"The ceiling must be realistic and not abnormally high so as to be meaningless nor abnormally low so as to create massive shifts in tax burden. The committee believes that the ceiling based on a per cent of market value is a simple, understandable and effective way of accomplishing property tax limitations."

The committee also made these additional recommendations:

- A shift of all welfare costs to the state or federal governments.
- Raising added local revenues through sales or income taxes.
- Taxing mobile homes in the same manner as real estate, rather than as mobile vehicles.

• Taxing utility companies and airlines on a gross earnings basis.

Hatfield's own voluminous tax study and the conclusions of the governor's committee were both made public by LeVander's office.

Hatfield said 1971 will be "the year of decision" for the property tax system in Minnesota. He said property taxes have risen 15 per cent a year for the past five years, twice the rate for the 10 years prior to 1966. Without changes in the system, Hatfield said, there is no way to prevent further increases.

Hatfield's own recommendations go beyond those of the committee, including a proposal to completely revamp the way state aids are paid to local governments.

Hatfield's plan for a tax ceiling would be based on property taxes payable in 1971, as they relate to property on the tax rolls in 1970.

For example, if the value of taxable property in a particular city went up 5 per cent, the ceiling on total taxes also could go up 5 per cent. Hatfield estimated that the average property tax base would increase 7 per cent a year under his plan, through new construction and inflation.

Keve will step out as corrections commissioner

ST. PAUL (AP) — Paul W. Keve, a 25-year veteran of corrections work, announced Wednesday he will resign as Minnesota corrections commissioner by Feb. 1 to take a job with a Virginia research firm.

(Wendell R. Anderson) is interested in appointing his own team. Also Wednesday, State Security Commissioner Lance J. Johnson of West St. Paul, like Keve an appointee of Gov. Harold LeVander, submitted his resignation, effective Dec. 23.

An Anderson aide said Wednesday that Keve's resignation will be accepted by the governor-elect. No successor has been chosen, he said. Keve is a graduate of George Washington University, Washington, D.C., and has a master's degree in social work from William and Mary University in Virginia.

Keve, whose term as corrections commissioner runs out Jan. 4, succeeded James Alexander in that post.

Johnson, 31, securities commissioner since April of 1969, said the end of LeVander's term provides an ideal time for him to return to private law practice with the firm of Crawford, Anderson and O'Connor, West St. Paul.

Johnson praised LeVander's integrity which, he said, removed "as much as humanly possible arbitrariness, capriciousness and unreasonableness" from Security Commission decisions.

Hill Foundation, College Council to help Indians

ST. PAUL (AP) — The Hill Family Foundation and the Minnesota Private College Council announced Wednesday a $145,000 grant to help Indian students attend private colleges in Minnesota.

The money will help pay for a three-year assistance program for Indians from Minnesota and neighboring states. The college council or Minnesota's 16 private colleges must raise an additional $100,000 to complete funding.

Because federal and state scholarship funds up to $2,700 per year are now available for any Indian student who qualifies, the money will not be spent on tuition.

Ex-Nixon aide heads rail panel

By CARL C. CRAFT
WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the financial investment advisory panel set up by the new rail passenger service law is an ex-White House aide who now is with a securities firm being sued in a case involving sale of Penn Central commercial paper.

At a private organizational meeting Wednesday, Daniel V. Hofgren was elected chairman of the 15-member group appointed by President Nixon to advise National Railroad Passenger Corp. directors on ways to increase the corporation's capitalization.

Hofgren once was a special assistant to Nixon, and now is an executive with Goldman, Sachs & Co. of New York. A large mutual fund and three other businesses which bought quantities of Penn Central paper through Goldman, Sachs are suing the securities firm for $23 million in damages. Goldman, Sachs said the claim has no merit.

The composition of the rail advisory panel has been sharply criticized by Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., who charged Nixon ignored explicit language by Congress that seven members representing the public should be named to the group.

A Senate subcommittee on intergovernmental relations arranged to hear today from Undersecretary of Transportation

James M. Beggs in reply to Metcalf's complaints that all 13 nongovernment representatives on the panel came from the industry.

Along with two Treasury Department officials, Metcalf said, Nixon put on the panel representatives of investment houses, commercial banks, railroads, an electric utility, a mining company, and a large law firm.

He was especially critical of Nixon's choice of an executive from Goldman, Sachs, a firm which he said is "charged with fraud, deception, concealment, suppression and false pretenses in the sale of the commercial paper of Penn Central Transportation Co."

Penn Central filed for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws. But, a Goldman, Sachs official says his firm—which bought and resold the railroad's commercial paper, an unsecured note—believed one month before the Penn Central collapse that the company was sound.

Under the basic national rail passenger system authorized by the new law, plans call for linking 14 major cities along 18 routes. The corporation begins operating trains next May.

A Transportation Department spokesman said Hofgren was elected chairman of the advisory group at a session attended by nearly all panel members.

Says state law not clear on abortion appeals

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota law does not clearly prohibit advertisements for legal abortion services, Hennepin County Atty. George Scott said Wednesday.

Scott said he will not prosecute college newspapers which have published advertisements for abortion referral services in New York, where abortion is legal.

The student newspaper at Concordia College in Moorhead, Minn., was terminated last week after it printed such an advertisement. Similar advertisements have appeared in student newspapers at the University of Minnesota and Augsburg College, in Minneapolis.

Says auto repair must be made easier

CHICAGO (AP) — Unless autos are designed to be less susceptible to damage and less costly to repair, the time may come when only the wealthy can afford to take a car onto the street, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners was told Wednesday.

Stanley C. DuRose, Wisconsin Commissioner of Insurance, said that the nation's insurance companies pay about $10 billion in vehicle damage claims a year. DuRose estimated that more sturdy vehicles could cut $1 billion to $1.5 billion from that figure.

Wisconsin may limit lake homes

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin may have to limit the number of dwellings erected beside its lakes unless property owners do something about ineffective septic systems, a state budget hearing was told Wednesday.

"These people obviously are polluting the waters they come to enjoy," Gov.-elect Patrick J. Lucey said after being told that many septic tanks are too old to be efficient any longer.

Vilas County and Door County were cited by conservation spokesmen as examples of lake areas that may need protection against a burdensome number of septic tanks.

Lucey asked if the spokesmen mean a "limit on the number of human abodes," might be necessary to protect the lakes from a polluted death.

"That is an inescapable conclusion," he was told by Lester Voigt, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources.

sentatives of Sheboygan, Ozaukee, Fond du Lac and Washington counties during discussion of lakes in the Milwaukee River watershed.

An official of the South-eastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission told the Mequon gathering that zoning limitations and waste treatment plants are better in the long run than individual septic tanks.

Sanitary engineer Harvey Wirth, addressing Lucey's hearing, said septic tanks are common in rural resort areas.

They are "grossly inefficient" in treatment of waste, especially after they have been in use for many years, Wirth said.

Thomas Frango, administrator of the Division of Environmental Protection, said state laws may be needed to protect lakes from housing developments, even though it would have an impact on the state's tourist economy.

Green Bay was selected as the site of budget-hearing discussion about pollution because of the pollution troubles in the area, Lucey said.

Westmoreland: need Army that is challenging

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Army Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland says the Army is "willing to part with past practices where these no longer serve a productive and useful end."

Westmoreland told a Chamber of Commerce banquet audience Wednesday night that "we seek an army in which service is personally satisfying, individually rewarding and professionally stimulating."

But, the general said if an all-volunteer army is to be built, "public support must be visible, audible and tangible."

He said "we cannot attract the caliber of soldier in the numbers needed for an organization maligned by some, directly attacked by others and halfheartedly supported by many."

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — Year after year we used rigid standards for weight and content, among other things, but when it comes to the economy we use an unstable standard that can only delude.

It is the equivalent of printing different calibrations on thermometers each year. It is illogical. Nevertheless, we do gauge the size and vigor of the entire economy with an unreliable measure: current dollars.

Nothing but a computer can say precisely what a current dollar is because its value changes by the minute. Generally it is worth less and less, the inevitable result of persistent inflation year after year.

Let us assume, merely to illustrate, that the dollar was worth 100 cents in 1900. By 1910 it was worth only 83 cents and by 1920 only 40 cents. Then came the depression, and buying power rose to 47 cents in 1930, to 57 in 1940.

After that, the dilution of purchasing power continued. In 1950 the dollar that was worth 100 cents 50 years earlier had dropped to just 33 cents. In 1960 it fell to 27 cents, and this year to about 20 cents.

Now apply this standard to the gross national product, which is supposed to be—but really isn't—the sum total of all goods and services produced by a nation. This week it is said to have reached $1 trillion a year.

Check your almanac and you will find that about 10 years ago the GNP was just a little more than half that figure, which suggests that in one decade the United States doubled its output, an entirely erroneous conclusion.

Since the GNP for 1960 was measured in 1960 dollars, and the GNP for 1970 was measured in 1970 dollars, there simply is no comparison that can be made without resort to a mathematical formula.

The 1970 dollar must be discounted by about 24 per cent to make it comparable with the 1960 dollar. If the 1970 dollar is used as the measure, then that 1960 GNP was close to $650 billion. If the 1960 measure is used, the 1970 GNP is closer to $760 billion rather than $1 trillion.

Nevertheless, the nation this week not only claimed to have achieved a trillion dollar GNP but heralded it as a momentous achievement. It meant, said the President, that the nation was now strong enough to correct many social ills.

The GNP in reality has not grown in 15 months the illusion is created by inflated current dollars.

The delusion is compounded by inherent contradictions in the GNP concept. There are many of them.

For example the contributions of housewives, students and volunteer workers are excluded because they are not "market-place" activities. Such efforts are unpaid, at least in dollars. If the student were to quit school and become a laborer, however, his activities would give a boost to the GNP. So would the wife contribute if she left home to take a job. But would the country be better off?

The GNP does not measure social or economic welfare. A storm that destroys millions of dollars in property may add to the GNP by putting carpenters to work, by forcing equipment purchases, by requiring new investments.

Information on new grain programs is now available

LEWISTON, Minn. — New information on the 1971 farm programs recently has been announced and letters explaining some of the major points of the programs already have been mailed to county farmers, says John F. Papenfuss, chairman, Winona Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee.

The announcement that all have been waiting for is that the sign-up period begins next March 1 and will end April 8.

Between now and March 1 all details of the program under the new three-year farm law, the Agricultural Act of 1970, will be announced.

Papenfuss stressed that the final decision on set aside acreages, formerly called diverted acreages, have not yet been made, but it is expected to be about 20 percent of the feed grain base and 60 to 75 percent of the domestic wheat allotment.

THE FINAL determination will be made by March 1, and it will not exceed 20 percent for feed grain nor 75 percent for wheat.

"Set-aside is an important new concept," the chairman said. "Under the set-aside programs for feed grain and wheat a participating farmer will set aside a certain percentage of his base or allotment and put this acreage in a conserving use. He will also maintain his conserving base exactly the same as in the Feed Grain Program during past years."

"On his remaining cropland," said the chairman, "he will be free to plant whatever he chooses, except that he cannot grow crops which are under marketing quotas — rice, tobacco, cotton, or sugarcane, unless he has farm allotments for these, and these crops are of no consequence to us in this area."

"A farmer in the feed grain or wheat programs will receive set-aside payments whether or not he produces the program crops," Papenfuss said.

"For example," said Papenfuss, "suppose a farmer has 200 acres of cropland, including an 80 acre feed grain base and a 60 acre conserving base. Suppose we do have a 20-percent set-aside. The farmer sets aside 20 percent or 16 acres of his feed grain base, maintains his 60 acre conserving base, and he may then plant any crops or combination of crops on his remaining 124 acres, except for the quota crops just mentioned. The same would be true under the wheat program."

Minnesota subject to poultry law

CHICAGO, Ill. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that poultry plants operating wholly within 14 states will be subject to Federal poultry inspection effective Jan. 2. The official notice will be published in the Dec. 3, 1970 Federal Register.

The 14 states had requested Federal inspection or indicated they did not feel there was enough poultry business in their states to warrant establishing inspection systems. They are Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Idaho, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Jersey, North Dakota, Utah and West Virginia.

According to the Consumer and Marketing Service of the USDA the action results from requirements of the Wholesome Poultry Products Act which requires that intrastate poultry plants be Federally inspected in States that do not establish an inspection program at least equal to the Federal one.

The Act gave the States a deadline of Aug. 18, 1970, to achieve "equal to" status, with provisions for a one-year extension of the deadline if they were making sufficient progress.

Inspection supervisors have been working with plant operators, explaining the details of inspection and helping them plan changes in plants, facilities and operations where necessary to meet Federal requirements.

Country side

By KATHY KNUDSON
Daily News Farm Editor

In order to understand the market situation, it is necessary to understand the terms used in livestock market news. Terms used include:

Supply — the quantity of a type of livestock available for current day's trading on a market, including yesterday's carry-over.

Demand — the buyer's desire to possess a volume of livestock and his willingness and ability to buy.

Demand is good — when buyers are more aggressive than usual or when decreased supplies bring unchanged or higher prices.

Demand is poor — when buyers are less aggressive or when decreased supplies bring unchanged or higher prices.

Price — specific dollars and cents paid per hundred-weight for a given grade and weight of livestock.

Lower prices — a bulk-sale price measuring lower than previous trading session.

Steady — prices are unchanged from previous session.

Strong — there is a definite but not quite measurable leaning toward higher prices, with weak meaning the opposite.

The heavy snow of last week put an end to field activities of area farmers. Now the ground is resting, and the farmer is occupied by the many jobs that he hasn't had time for during the previous months. These include repairing and oiling machinery and seeing that it is stored properly so that it will be ready to go come next spring, making sure the buildings housing livestock are weather proof and adequate, perhaps doing some repair work his wife asked for but he couldn't quite manage during the busy months behind.

And of course, as the song goes, the beat goes on. Daily chores must be taken care of, only they include shoveling snow and seeing that water for stock on the range is available, along with feed.

Now is the time to catch up on some of the recreations there has not been time for — read a book, spend some time at a hobby, visit a friend or have friends in. And there are always the new farming methods to catch up on and the planning for what will be during the next growing season.

Snowmobile code of ethics listed

ALMA, Wis. — The snowmobile has come of age, and millions of people who never before left the fireside now spend day and night cruising wooded rural areas.

Snowmobiling carries with it a new threat to the well-being of plant and animal life in Wisconsin outdoors according to University Extension 4-H and youth agent, Dale Diederich.

Since days primeval, snow has limited man's travel in winter except for cleared roads and paths, he said. This provided wild animals and birds with a period free from harassment when they could conserve their energy during a time of food scarcity. High speed snowmobiles traveling everywhere and disturbing wildlife winter sanctuaries calls for attention to ethics in the use of the natural environment, he added.

It is easy to chase wild animals in deep snow where they soon become exhausted. Snowmobiles can easily damage frozen shrubbery, brush and young trees. Such damage destroys the food supply and the summer cover for wildlife as well as the future forests.

Snowmobiling as a winter sport carries with it a heavy responsibility, Diederich says. The wise snowmobiler will recognize his responsibility for the safety and well being of plant and animal life as well as the lives and property of other humans.

Many new operators are introduced to the sport of snowmobiling each year which points up the need for a code of ethics regarding the wise handling and operation of the vehicles, according to Diederich.

He suggests that all operators will find the sport more enjoyable if they follow recommendations for a code of ethics developed in a bulletin for use with the 4-H snowmobile project. They include:

- I will be a good sportsman. I recognize that people judge all snowmobile owners by my actions. I will use my influence with other snowmobile owners to promote sportsman-like conduct.
- I will not litter trails or camping areas. I will not pollute streams or lakes.
- I will not damage living trees, shrubs, or other natural features.
- I will respect other people's property and rights.
- I will lend a helping hand when I see someone in distress.
- I will make myself and my vehicle available to assist search and rescue parties.
- I will not interfere with or harass hikers, skiers, snowshoers, ice fishermen or other winter sportsmen. I will respect their rights to enjoy our recreation facilities.
- I will know and obey all federal, state and local rules regulating the operation of snowmobiles in areas where I use my vehicle. I will inform public officials when using public lands.
- I will not harass wildlife. I will avoid areas posted for the protection or feeding of wildlife.
- I will stay on marked trails or marked roads open to snowmobiles. I will avoid cross-country travel unless specifically authorized.
- Don't spoil the sport, Diederich adds. These things must be done, or as so often happens, the resource you set out to enjoy will be destroyed in the process. Following the practices will increase enjoyment of the sport.

Anyone wishing information on organizing a snowmobile club or enrolling in the 4-H snowmobile project should contact the University Extension Office.

Horseback riding now is enjoyable

WABASHA, Minn. — Dennis Crowley, Wabasha County 4-H and youth agent, advises members in the horse project that winter horseback riding can be just as enjoyable as other winter sports. There are many kinds of cold weather clothing available for skiers and snowmobilers that work well for riding, he says.

Fingers and toes seem to be the hardest to keep warm, and heavy mittens or gloves with wool liners do the job.

Boots can be a problem because the ones used in summer are very cold as they get too tight. A larger boot will allow heavy socks to be worn. One thing to remember, Crowley says, is not to jam a large boot and overshoe in the stirrups and be unable to get them out or ride properly. This is very dangerous, he adds, so get boots to fit the stirrups.

Horses get along very fine in cold weather and snow, he says. They have one problem, snow packing in their feet, which will build up into a ball and is dangerous. Stop and check the horse's feet and clean the snow out of them. The snowball will build up in the pasture also, and should be checked before leading the horse into the barn as snow on concrete is very slippery.

Normally it is better to keep shoes off horses used for winter riding as they may cause the horse to slip more easily. There are corks for shoes and anti-snowball pads made if the animal needs foot protection.

Tells advantages of co-op merger

ETTRICK, Wis. (Special) — In spite of inclement weather and bad roads, more than 150 were present Friday at the special meeting in Ettrick Community Hall of the Ettrick Co-op Creamery Association.

Credits from 1957-58 were paid to 125 patrons, and according to A. C. Schultz, manager of the A-G Cooperative plant at Arcadia, more credits will be paid in the spring. The Ettrick company merged with the A-G Cooperative in October. Schultz said patrons of the Ettrick Association could expect advantages from the merger. He explained operations of the new setup, and described what individual members may expect.

At the end of 1970, Schultz said, Land O'Lakes Creameries, Inc. of Minneapolis, of which the A-G Cooperative is a member, will have paid out $5,790,326; the total for 1970 being $8,590,000. In the past 10 years Land O'Lakes has paid out $45,548,400. He said more advertising and education of the use of dairy products is essential.

Stream bank project earns state award

DURAND, Wis. — The Durand Sportsmen's Club was among recipients of the 1970 conservation awards of the Wisconsin Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

The club was cited for stream bank improvement. With assistance from the Durand Lions Club and a land owner, William E. Berger, the club protected and improved 2,850 feet of Bear Creek, a trout stream. The work included fencing, rock and piling bank protection, trout cover devices and stream deflectors.

U. of M. is reorganizing departments

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Reorganization involving two major units of the University of Minnesota have been approved by the University of Minnesota Regents.

The former schools of forestry and home economics have been elevated to college status. Both colleges remain units of the university's Institute of Agriculture. Earlier in the year the regents had approved the creation of three separate faculties and administration in the old College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics. This resulted in a college of agriculture and two schools of home economics and forestry. The new action elevates the status of the two schools to college in recognition of their important educational missions.

The three colleges will be administered by deans who will be responsible to the administrative head of the Institute of Agriculture.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Dairy farmer lobby solid

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The most successful farm organization in the nation's capital today is the one which represents dairy farmers.

And it's the only one which seems to work well with Congress and the Nixon administration.

This year it had a long list of achievements in Congress and in the federal government at a time when most farm outfits were floundering.

Every other farm organization went to its annual convention this year unhappy and grumbling about what happened, or didn't happen on Capitol Hill.

But at Las Vegas, where the dairy farmers met, they took pride in their gains this year and were publicly grateful to everyone who helped.

Most organizations today which represent farmers disagree with each other. And even within the organizations there are factions, blocs and groups-within-groups.

But unity seemed to be the keyword among the dairymen. They realized several years ago that their numbers were dwindling. So they decided to do something about it: they built an organization to speak for them as one voice in Washington. Today the National Milk Producers Federation seems to have no peer on Capitol Hill.

"I have never seen such unity, such a dedication to purpose, as we saw this year," said Patrick B. Healy, secretary of the federation.

That unity produced an impressive list of gains for dairymen, gains which admittedly could nudge up the price of milk to consumers a bit. The list:

- A permanent special milk program for children, with adequate funds for the coming year.
- Blocking issuance of a proposed standard of identity for imitation milk.
- Funds for on-going programs in the Department of Agriculture.
- Second highest increase in support price level in history of the 1949 Agricultural Act.
- Blocking loopholes in import laws affecting dairy farmers.
- Passage of a farm bill satisfactory to dairy farmers.
- Legislation providing for seasonal bases in pricing of milk.
- Authority under the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act for the "Louisville Plan" used throughout the pricing system.
- Continuation of distribution programs needed for proper operation of the price support program.

Recruiting is No. 1 chore says Winona State's new coach

By STAN SCHMIDT
Daily News Sports Editor

The 1971 football season doesn't start until mid-September, but Winona State's newly appointed head coach plans to win more games before the season opener.

That's right — before the season's first official day of gridiron combat.

Sound impossible?

Not according to Bob Keister, who Wednesday was named to succeed retiring Madoo (Moon) Molinari as the Warriors' grid coach.

"More football games are won from the middle of January to the middle of July," declared the 37-year-old Keister, "because this is when the majority of your recruiting is done. And without the horses you can't pull the plow."

Recruiting. It's only a 10-letter word, but perhaps the biggest to any coach. From recruiting can come the nation's No. 1 team, or, conversely, the world's worst football program.

And it's the No. 1 chore facing Keister and his staff as he assumes the position relinquished by Molinari, who retired after a 15-year career a week ago today.

"Recruiting is No. 1 on our list," continued Keister, who has been Molinari's assistant for the last 10 years. "We don't have scholarships and I don't feel we're ever going to have a scholarship program at Winona State."

"I see this as a problem, but not one that can't be overcome. And we don't want to use it as an excuse. In other words, we're not going to say that we can't get a kid because we don't have any scholarships. We're just going to have to find some young men that are hiding out there in the weeds somewhere that nobody's really putting the pressure on to get.

There's nothing else to worry about right now; the rest of it we can take care of as we go along."

And what kind of ball player is Keister interested in?

"We're going to try to recruit the young man that wants to be in what we consider a real fine football program — the type of young man that can stand up when we play the Star Spangled Banner and still get a lump in his throat; the type of young man that isn't ashamed to go down on his knee and ask for help once in awhile."

"You know, this type of young man is not the exception to the rule either; it's just a matter of going out and finding him."

Keister also plans on hitting junior colleges for talent in order to bolster next year's team.

"We're going to have to bring in some junior college transfers in addition to finding some young freshmen, because we just don't have the nucleus coming back."

"And we're really going to scrutinize our nucleus to find out which ones will be invited back and which ones won't be. We're going to try to find the best football players we can."

The nucleus returning — which will be missing 13 graduating lettermen — and the newcomers can expect a "well-disciplined" club under Keister and his two assistants, Myron Smith and John Martin.

"Without discipline you can't run an organization," noted Keister matter-of-factly. "This is definitely going to be one of our firm factors. I feel that the situation presents itself with a challenge and I don't think that any job is any good without pressure."

"I can remember one of the wrestlers I coached, Jerry Wedemeyer, about eight or nine years ago. He said, 'There's only one thing I liked better than 10,000 booing fans, and that's 10,000 cheering fans.' So, technically, this is what I'm looking for, too."

"We're looking for a situation where people will come to our ball games and be interested in the young men that are playing. And I think that a good football program definitely helps the total educational process in any institution. We don't have to make any excuses for athletics."

"Athletics is a strong point in any community — it's a

Winona, Minnesota THURSDAY, DEC. 17, 1970

Cox drops to 2nd in NFL's scoring race

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Vikings kicker Fred Cox not only had his field goal streak stopped at 31 games against the Boston Patriots but he also fell out of the National Football League scoring lead.

Cox could regain that lead Sunday as the Vikings close the regular season at Atlanta against the Falcons. Gametime is 12:05 p.m. CST.

The Vikings' specialist has kicked 27 field goals and 31 extra points, to trail Dave Ray of Los Angeles by two points. American Conference leader Jan Stenerud had 109 points.

Cox still is working on another record streak. He has scored in 111 straight games.

While Cox fell out of a statistical leadership role, cornerback Ed Sharrockman moved in to first place in stealing the ball.

SHARCKMAN intercepted three passes Sunday in a 35-14 victory over Boston to bring his season total to seven. Detroit's Dick LeBeau's also has seven but Sharrockman has 51 more yards in interception returns.

Other Minnesota statistical leaders include quarterback Gary Cuozzo, passing, 14th, 1,545 yards; Gene Washington, pass receiving, 12th, 41 receptions; Paul Krause, interceptions, ninth, 5; Dave Osborn rushing, eighth, 638 yards; Tom McNeill, punting, 11th, 37.8 average; Charlie West, punt returns, eighth, 5.3 average; Clint Jones, kickoff returns, seventh, 23.8 average.

In the Falcons, the Vikings will not only meet former coach Norm Van Brocklin but several former Minnesota players — quarterback Bob Berry, cornerback Grady Cavness, tight end Mike Donohue, receiver Paul Flatley, defensive back Mike Freeman, linebacker Don Hansen, defensive back Tom McCauley and guard Gary Roberts.

Former Minnesota Gopher Dick Enderle is a starting guard for the Falcons, who have a 4-7 record.

VAN BROCKLIN has not decided whether to start Berry or Randy Johnson, who threw for two touchdowns passes in a 26-17 victory over Pittsburgh.

Gary Cuozzo, who has missed the last Viking victories, probably will return to starting duty against the Falcons.

At the annual Viking awards dinner, Cox was named by Twin Cities newsmen as the club's most valuable player. Other awards presented Wednesday night went to Alan Page, outstanding defensive player; center Mick Tingelhoff, outstanding offensive player, and running back Clint Jones, most improved player.

"I sincerely feel we have a shot at the whole thing this year," said Coach Bud Grant.

"There will be eight teams involved in the playoffs and every one of the eight has won three in a row sometime during the season. I feel we're capable of doing that."

The Vikings will host the National Conference semifinal Dec. 27 at Metropolitan Stadium. Gametime is noon CST.

Montreal stumps Gumper, however Worsley stuns ex-mates

By PAT THOMPSON
MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Gump Worsley had his former Montreal Canadiens teammates talking to themselves for 2½ periods.

It was the first time the 41-year-old Gumper had faced the Canadiens since they sold him to the North Stars last spring.

But Claude Larose spoiled the little Minnesota goalie's hopes for his 42nd National Hockey League career shutout Wednesday night, and it was Worsley who was stunned by a 1-1 tie.

"He's talking to himself about that one," said North Stars' Coach Jack Gordon. "Gump played a heck of a game. It's a crying shame."

The North Stars, on Bill Goldsworthy's first period goal, held a 1-0 lead while Worsley stopped every Canadian shot until former North Star Larose uncorked a slap shot that tied the game at 10:25 of the third period.

"I should have had one in the second period and I'll take that one in its place," said Larose.

Larose didn't connect fully with the shot, but it slipped through Worsley's shield for the knotting goal.

"It hit the bottom of my stick," said Worsley. "I thought I had it."

Gordon said, "Larose kind of missed the shot and it might have fooled Gump. If it had been one of Larose's blazers, Gump would have had it easy." "If he would have stopped that one," said Montreal Coach Al MacNeil, "there were four or five others he shouldn't have."

The Canadiens outshot the North Stars 37-29 while Vachon played equally as well as Worsley.

But Goldsworthy beat him on an unstoppable play, Danny O'Shea fed the puck to J.P. Parise, who skated alongside the boards and fired a centering pass to the open side of the net.

Gordon was disappointed with the tie but satisfied with his club's sixth game in eight nights as they took sole possession of third place in the West Division by one point over idle Philadelphia.

Montreal remained in third in the East Division, four points ahead of idle Vancouver.

Gordon is still disturbed by his club's lack of scoring punch —eight goals in nine games.

"We just need one big period to explode," said Gordon. "I don't know when it's going to come. The tie isn't so bad considering how many games we've played the last week."

Giacomin's face mask is a 1-for-1 shutout

By HAL BOCK
NEW YORK (AP) — Ed Giacomin's brand new face mask is one-for-one — a shutout in its first National Hockey League appearance. You can't ask for a better debut than that.

Giacomin kicked off 20 shots Wednesday night for his fourth shutout of the season—the first one in his ghostly-looking new milky white mask—as the New York Rangers blanked the Buffalo Sabres 4-0.

It was the second straight shutout for New York—Gilles Villemure blanked Los Angeles Sunday—and extended the Rangers' home ice unbeaten streak to 15 games. Giacomin and Villemure have six shutouts between them and New York's 58 goals against is the best defensive mark of any team in the NHL.

New York remained two points back of Boston in the East Division race as the Bruins downed Los Angeles 6-4. Elsewhere, Toronto whipped Pittsburgh 4-2, Chicago walloped St. Louis 8-3, Montreal tied Minnesota 1-1 and California turned back Detroit 4-2.

Emile Francis, general manager-coach of the Rangers, rewards his goalies with $100 bonuses for shutouts but Giacomin's job Wednesday was even more expensive for the club. That's because the mask he was wearing is a custom-built $150 job.

The new mask is constructed from a fiberglass cloth material reinforced with resin. Higgins has provided Giacomin with two models, one which covers his ears as well as his face and one which is somewhat more conventional but still affords the goalie more protection than the mask he started using this sea-

Warriors stump Chicago 86-53

CHICAGO, Ill. — Winona State College returned to its winning ways in relatively easy fashion Wednesday night as the Warriors whipped a small Chicago State 86-53 here before a small crowd of about 300.

The Warriors suffered their first defeat of the season Tuesday night in Peoria, Ill., when the Bradley Braves took advantage of Winona State's foul trouble to rally to a 95-83 victory.

Wednesday, however, the Warriors didn't run into any trouble and all 12 players making the two-day road trip saw action, 10 of them entering the scoring column.

Winona State pulled to a 42-25 halftime bulge and was never seriously threatened by the Chicago team.

Senior center Steve Protsman led all scorers with 21 counters, followed by freshman Roscoe Young's 17, Jerome Beckley's 15 and Don Besonen's 10.

Bill Ochs, the Warriors' senior guard, could manage a mere point against Chicago after singing the nets for 29 against Bradley the night before. Basically an outside shooter, Ochs hit on one-of-one free throw.

Jim Vaikus led Chicago and was the only member of his team to break into double figures. He hit nine field goals and two-for-two at the charity stripe for 20 points. Behind Vaikus came Sam Kidd with nine points.

Overall, the Warriors hit 33 buckets from the floor and 20 of 31 (64 percent) from the free throw line. Chicago State connected on only 19 field goals and 15 of 22 (68 percent) from the charity line.

The Warriors were scheduled to depart from Chicago at 8:30 this morning.

Next on the schedule for Winona State, now posting a 4-1 record, is Wartburg College of Waverly, Iowa, Friday night.

The Warriors will host Wartburg at 7:30 and Saturday morning will fly, via Mississippi Valley Airlines, to Marquette, Mich., for a 2 p.m. game against Northern Michigan.

Atlanta Hawks give San Diego all but shirts

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
If Atlanta's Walt Hazzard were to give Alex Hannum the shirt off his back, the harried San Diego coach probably would take it. All Hazzard gave the Rockets Wednesday night, however, was the works.

Hannum protested the Hawks' 128-117 National Basketball Association victory because they, like the visiting Rockets, wore dark shirts. He contended the similarity was a factor in San Diego's 19 turnovers. It was the first time this season an opponent had committed more turnovers than the Hawks.

"Atlanta was not wearing white uniforms, which the home team is supposed to do," Hannum explained. "After we threw the ball away a half-dozen times, I protested because both teams were wearing dark uniforms. It was particularly bad because of the lighting, which I won't call bad but I will label peculiar. Their uniforms had a definite bearing on the game."

Hazzard scored 10 points over a three-minute stretch early in the fourth quarter to break open a tight game. He finished with 31 points and 11 assists, while Pete Maravich scored 27 and Bill Bridges 20, with a like number of rebounds. San Diego got 91 points from Stu Lantz and 30 from Elvin Hayes.

Elsewhere in the NBA, New York trounced Cleveland 108-84, Los Angeles whipped Cincinnati 118-102, and San Francisco defeated Seattle 108-91.

In the ABA, it was Kentucky 125, Indiana 110 and Utah 145 Memphis 101.

New York, held to a 50-50 halftime tie, outscored Cleveland

30-16 in the third period and sent the atrocious Cavaliers to their sixth consecutive defeat and 33rd in 35 games. Walt Frazier paced the Knicks with 22 points and John Johnson had 21 for the losers.

Wilt Chamberlain, who scored 35 points, pulled down 18 rebounds and had six assists, helped Los Angeles to a 21-point lead in the third period and an easy triumph over Cincinnati.

When Cotter meets No. 1 St. Thomas Wildenborg has his work cut out

By DAN NYSETH
Daily News Sports Writer

Dave Wildenborg, Cotter's 6-5 junior center, will have his work cut out for him when the Ramblers take on St. Thomas Academy on the Tommie's home floor Friday night.

The name of that particular task is Roger Anderson. Anderson is also a junior, but at 6-10, he's five inches taller than Wildenborg. That statistic alone is a problem in itself, but add it to Anderson's sophomore record — and the result is impressive.

LAST SEASON St. Thomas swept to the Central Catholic Conference championship with a 14-2 record, and proceeded to capture state laurels as well. Anderson averaged nearly 12 points a game during that spree. And this year, St. Thomas is rated tops among the state's independent schools.

But Anderson isn't the only Tommie threat. Three other starters from the 1969-70 state championship squad have also returned to haunt CCC teams this season. They are 6-2 senior Dennis Smith, 6-2 junior Ted Gonsior and 6-5 junior John Fitzgerald. Another junior,

Dave Wildenborg

5-9 Chuck Kelly, will probably take up the other spot on St. Thomas' starting line-up Friday.

Both Smith and Gonsior averaged above 11 points a contest last season, and Fitzgerald scored at a 9.4 point per game clip.

COTTER WILL send the same line-up against the St. Paul based Tommie's that has been used all season. Aside from Wildenborg, that means Tony Kleinschmidt (6-3 junior) and Jim Nelson (6-0 senior) will play the forward spots, and Mike Rodgers (6-9 junior) and Mike Schultz (6-0 senior) will assume backcourt duties. Rodgers has been Cotter's top scorer this year.

Cotter's 1-5 mark on the season will be pitted against St. Thomas' lily white 6-0 slate. St. Thomas' toughest test of the young season to this point was a 50-40 win over arch-rival St. Paul Creten. The majority of their other contests saw the Tommie's running away with the score.

Winona Cotter's only victory this season was a tasty one for the Ramblers. They knocked off Rochester Lourdes by a 50-43 margin in Eagle territory.

"It's just a matter of playing good defense and having an awful good offensive night," said veteran Rambler Coach John Nett, conjecturing as to how he might put things together for a win Friday.

As for Wildenborg's assignment, Nett noted, "It's going to be a big job for him; he's improved quite a bit, so it's going to be a good test."

Having lost both games the two teams played last year, Cotter will have plenty of revenge blood boiling in his veins. But Cotter will have to be improved several times over last season's level. St. Thomas won those games by an average of 44.5 points each, 84-46 and 94-43.

Travel to Superior for two games

St. Mary's icemen open Friday

By BRUCE CLOWWAY
Daily News Sports Writer

With less than a week of organized practice on an outdoor rink, St. Mary's Hockey team will take to the road today to open its 1970-71 season.

The Redmen pucksters, under the direction of second-year Head Coach Don Joseph, are slated to meet Superior State University in a two-game series Friday night. The games will be held in the newly completed Wessman Arena on Superior State's campus.

There will be no comparison in the amount of ice time the two teams have compiled as Superior has already played seven games.

Although it's been a rocky road for Superior so far (the Yellow Jackets stand 0-7), the team has faced some premiere competition, gaining valuable experience in the process.

In Superior's most recent outing, the Yellow Jacket icemen dropped two games to Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., last Friday and Saturday. Superior's net was shelled for 22 goals in the two contests as the Falcons won 8-5 and 14-3.

Competing against a member of the Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference on Dec. 5, Superior fell to Augsburg College by a score of 4-3. The dedication of the Wessman Arena was spoiled when the University of Wisconsin edged Superior in its home opener Nov. 15.

St. Mary's will depart for Superior tonight following a short workout and will spend the night in the Twin Cities before completing the journey tomorrow. Friday's game is set for 8 p.m., and the Saturday night encounter will begin at 7:30.

The Redmen, with only a few scattered scrimmages under their belts, will be relying heavily on the services of two veteran goal tenders, Bill Joy and Mike Schuett. Considering Superior's head start in actual game experience, Joy, a senior from Greenway, and Schuett, a junior from Mounds View, are bound to be kept busy. Last season Schuett was the leader in the saves made department.

Joseph, who has warned the team "not to be deceived" by Superior's showing so far, has indicated that he will go with an all-freshmen first line. Joe Eckel, Jim Hoey and Mark Weum will compose St. Mary's opening rush with seniors Bill Marceau and Rocky Ammerman back on defense.

The Redmen's second line will consist of Steve Romanchuk and Joe Aislett, with Bill Kronschnabel and Terry MacLan alternating at the other wing position. Kronschnabel suffered a concussion in an earlier practice session, and although he has now fully recovered, Joseph expects to use him only sparingly.

Gary Hildebrande, Jon Janssen and Joe Higgins will form a third line for St. Mary's to send out against Superior.

After Saturday's game, the Redmen will not be in action again until Dec. 30, when they meet Augsburg in Braemar Arena in Bloomington.

BOBBY ORR . . . Bobby Orr is Sports Illustrated's 1970 Sportsman of the Year, marking the third time in the last four years that a Boston athlete has won the award. The spectacular defenseman rewrote the NHL record book in leading the Bruins to the Stanley Cup last season.

Voice of the Outdoors

Winter recreation

Snowmobiles have become a chief worry to conservation wardens on each side of the river as well as farmers, the highway patrol and many others.

Houston County Warden Phil Ham, who like other law enforcement officers has the snowmobile headache, mailed us the following bit of law enforcement information:

"No person shall operate any snowmobile within the state of Minnesota unless such snowmobile has been registered in accordance with the provisions of Minnesota statutes section 84.81 to 84.88.

"License fees for each snowmobile other than those registered by a dealer shall be $8 for three years and $1 for duplicate or transfer. The total registration fee for all snowmobiles owned by a dealer and operated for all snowmobiles owned by a dealer and operated for demonstration or testing shall be $25 per year.

"Permanent registration numbers shown on the certificate, except for dealer plates, shall be affixed on each side of the cowling (hood) on the upper half of the machine forward of the handle bars. They shall be of contrasting colors with the surface applied to and shall be at least 3 inches high and 3/4 inch stroke.

"A snowmobile may be operated without displaying registration numbers for a period of fourteen (14) days after the date application and fee is mailed to the commissioner, provided there is carried on such snowmobile a notarized affidavit of the owner setting forth the name and address of the owner and the date application for registration was made and the fee paid.

"Registration application forms and affidavits can be obtained from the county auditor, sheriff, state conservation officer, or any licensed snowmobile dealer.

"The above mentioned statutes are enforceable by all law enforcement officers within the state of Minnesota."

strong point in any school system — and we feel that a good football program enhances the community that it takes place in."

Keister said that he was "very, very happy about the fact that both" of his two "fine assistants" have stated they will remain on the staff. Martin will be the defensive coach and Smith the offensive coach — "with definite responsibility in this area. They will be running our offense and our defense and I'll be the coordinator of the two."

"I feel that assistant coaches have to have definite responsibilities to be able to function properly."

The permanent Warrior staff may also have to rely heavily on graduate assistants or ex-Warriors that are still in school finishing their fifth year but have used up their playing eligibility.

"These young men can be a great asset," opined Keister. "It's not only a great learning situation for them, but it's a tremendous situation for us to be able to work with them. And they'll be working directly under Myron and John."

What kind of record does Keister predict for next season?

"To be honest, I just won't predict. I've made more bad predictions in my life than any guy in the world. I suppose that I've got to be like Bud Grant and say we're going to try to win them all. But I'm not going to predict a win-loss record, because I just can't. I just don't know what we're going to have.

"I like to think that it's going to be a year of pushing ahead. I think every year you lose some kids so I suppose every year is a rebuilding year. But we're not going to go out there with the idea that we're only going to win three games just because we're rebuilding. I don't look at it that way.

"I want to look at it from the point of view that we're going to put the best possible football team on that field that we can, and then we'll let the season take care of itself.

"I'm going at it 100 percent and I'm going to give it my best shot. And whatever it takes, we're going to try to build this program to the best it can be.

"I'm really happy to have it — and now we'll just wait and see."

Bert Blyleven, one of the youngest pitchers in the major leagues today, will be the featured guest speaker at the annual Minnesota Twins Banquet Jan. 7.

The banquet, slated for 6:30 p.m., is sponsored by St. Martin's Lutheran School and will be held in the school's auditorium.

In addition to Blyleven, other Twins expected for the banquet included first base coach Vern Morgan and public relations man Tom Cronin.

A movie on the Twins will also be shown. Gary Evans, News Editor of the Winona Daily News will be master of ceremonies.

Pirate JV whips Gilmanton varsity

COCHRANE, Wis. — The Cochrane-Fountain City Junior varsity wrestling team whipped the Gilmanton High School varsity mat squad 36-13 here Wednesday night.

Hawk matmen host Blooming Prairie Friday

Winona High's wrestling team, still in quest of its first dual meet victory this season, will hope to prove it's not the season for "blossoms" when the Winhawk grapplers play host to Blooming Prairie Friday night.

Despite an impressive showing in the Winona State Invitational High School Tournament back on Nov. 23, when it placed second only to Caledonia, Winona has not been able to come up with the winning formula in four dual meets. The Winhawks have been dumped by Eau Claire Memorial and LeRoy-Ostrander in nonconference action, and have been dealt defeats in Big Nine competition by Austin and Rochester John Marshall.

Blooming Prairie owns a 2-2 slate thus far with victories over Ellendale and Morris-town. The Blossoms' mat squad has been beaten by Hayfield and LeRoy-Ostrander. The latter outlasted Blooming Prairie 22-17 with the same type of individual results that they had when they toppled Winona 23-15 on Dec. 8.

BOTH Winona and Blooming Prairie were able to win all of their matches against LeRoy prior to the 138-pound class, but neither team could salvage a victory from that point on.

"I expect us to clash head-on with Blooming Prairie in the lighter weights," forecast Winona High's head coach Dave Moracco. "And it will just be matter of which team has made the most progress in the upper weights."

The B-squad matches are scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. Friday in the Winona High gym with the varsity competition slated for 7:30. Bill Becker of Winona and Curt Estler will be paired in the opening varsity match at 95 pounds.

The 103-pound class will pit Winona's Scott Immerfall and Craig Underwood, Mike Skelton and Mark Sorenson of Blooming Prairie will go at it in the 112-pound class, and Tom Reed of Winona and Jeff Cwelaner, one of the Blossoms' three lettermen, will meet at 120 pounds.

South Carolina socks Maryland

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

"The Maryland Terrapins not only got walloped by the South Carolina Gamecocks, their coach got socked, too.

Lefty Driesell, the Terps' coach, was punched by John Ribcock, a South Carolina player, as he tried to break up a fight among players of both teams that erupted near the Maryland bench Wednesday night.

The melee caused referee Gene Conley to call off the college basketball game at Columbia, S.C. with 4:52 left to play. At the time the nationally second-ranked Gamecocks were ahead at 96-70 and that went into the books as the final score. "John Ribcock hit me," said Driesell who suffered a bruised cheek and lip. "All I was trying to do was to get him off people."

Ribcock was not available for comment.

Rick Adylett of South Carolina and Jay Flowers of Maryland first came to blows under the Gamecock basket. The officials broke that up, but the fighting erupted again near the Maryland bench among players from both teams.

"It was like a bomb explosion," said Frank McGuire, South Carolina coach. "Some spark set it off and then who really knows what happened after that?"

"I shook hands with Driesell," McGuire continued. "But he was very mad."

"I would like for somebody to research how many times this South Carolina team has been involved in fights over the last two seasons," Driesell said. "There is no excuse for a team that has this much basketball talent fighting when they have a 30-point lead. I don't think it should be tolerated."

Howard White scored 38 points for Maryland while Tom Owens led South Carolina with 28.

The Gamecocks were the only team in the Associated Press Top Twenty to see action. Navy beat Georgetown 76-69 in two overtimes, Fordham whipped Columbia 33-67, Brown upended Yale 70-66, Louisiana State defeated Tulane 94-79 and Brigham Young trampled Denver 100-72.

Jack Conral's basket broke a 63-63 tie in the second extra period and put Navy ahead for good as the Middies snapped a four-game losing streak.

St. Francis, Pa. humbled East Carolina 71-67, Wichita State routed Nevada, Reno, 87-69, Toledo tripped San Francisco State 71-54 and Miami of Ohio downed Ball State 70-53 in other games.

Michigan St. has more injuries on artificial turf

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University, playing all of its 10-game football schedule on supposedly safer artificial turf, this year suffered more player injuries than ever before.

But while the team doctor believes a synthetic field allows players to run faster and hit harder, he doesn't blame that. Instead, says Dr. Lawrence Jarrett, the culprit is the modern equipment that's worn these days.

Out of 26 injuries for the MSU Spartans this year, 13 sidelined their victims for the rest of the season, Jarrett said. Some 19 "important players" missed "considerable portions" of the Spartans' 4-6 season this fall, said Fred Stabley, sports information director.

Last year, when MSU first began playing on practicing on the tough, asphalt-based playing surface, season-long injuries sidelined about a dozen players — more than twice the norm over all the years stretching back to 1895 when football started in East Lansing.

Safety was a widely stressed rationale for the various types of synthetic carpet that have been promoted. MSU had one installed during the summer of 1968 at a cost of $250,000.

Major manufacturers bought lavish advertisements in mass-circulated sporting magazines and athletic trade publications to tout the contribution of their fields to avoiding injuries.

Wearing short, molded-rubber cleats long used by European soccer teams, players supposedly would face less risk to knees and ankles than they had with longer, nylon and metal cleats on grass and mud.

But 10 knee injuries and four sprained ankles led the list of categories that cost the Spartans top players on football Saturdays this year, Jarrett said.

Jarrett, white-haired and bluntly outspoken, won't knock the field, but says it does help speed up the collisions.

There's no question that the field adds a dimension to the game," says Jarrett.

"Linemen run faster. There's greater traction, they have better control, there's greater pursuit," he said.

And the more sophisticated uniform equipment, Jarrett is convinced influences the injury rate. He says he'd like to see some body like the Big Ten Athletic Commission order a return to some of the old equipment — especially leather helmets without face masks.

Ali to quit after Frazier

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champ Muhammad Ali says he's getting out of the boxing business as soon as he polishes off Joe Frazier.

"Yea, I believe I'm getting out," he said Wednesday. "I'm sure I am. This will be the climax of my whole career."

Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, said he thinks the big fight of his life will be the Frazier fight, Feb. 23, 1971, in the Houston Astrodom.

Hutch Award to Al Kaline

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Veteran Detroit Tigers outfielder Al Kaline has been voted the 1970 Hutch Award by major league baseball writers and broadcasters.

The award, sponsored by the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Scholarship Fund Inc., is voted to a major league player who best exemplifies the competitive instincts and character of the late Cincinnati Reds manager.

Stock prices continue climb in active trade

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices continued to climb today in fairly active trading. Brokers said the market's resistance to profit taking attracted some new buying.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.77 at 822.84 at noon.

Advances ran ahead of declines by about 7 to 4 among the issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

A number of analysts contended that despite the new advance, the market was still overvalued and in need of a downward adjustment on the sharp gains of the past 3 1/2 weeks.

Brokers generally attributed the market's firmness to the resistance to profit taking exhibited during the first three sessions of this week.

Trading in Memorex, which dropped 1 1/2 points in the past two sessions, was halted briefly. When trading resumed at 57 on 12,000 shares, Memorex was off 2 1/2 for the day but up 1 1/2 from the previous trade. The stock plummeted Tuesday and Wednesday after the company announced restated earnings for a nine-month period which showed a decline from the corresponding period last year rather than a gain as originally announced.

In other glimmers, Telex was down 5/8 at 16 1/2, IBM was ahead 2 to 315, Polaroid was up 1/2 at 74 1/2, and Xerox was off 1/2 at 86 1/2.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .6 to 278.1 at noon. Industrials were ahead 1.3, rails were up .2 and utilities were up .2.

Noon prices on the Big Board included:

Tenneco, up 1/2 at 23 1/2; H. J. Heinz, down 1/4 to 34 1/2; American Telephone, off 1/2 at 49; Fannie Mae, up 1/4 to 66; Westinghouse Electric, up 1/2 at 69 1/2; Eli Lilly, ahead 3/4 at 101; and Kennecott, up 1/2 to 38 1/2.

Noon prices on the Amex included:

California Computer Products, down 2/4 at 26 1/2; Creole Petroleum, down 2 1/2 at 24; Venice Industries, up 1/2 to 22 1/2; Leslie Fay, up 1/2 at 19 1/2; Imperial Oil, ahead 1/2 at 19 1/2; and Milgo Electronic, down 1/2 to 24 1/2.
