Senate leaders feel special session might be avoided

By GERRY NELSON

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—A special session of the legislature may well be avoided this year, leaders of the Conservative and DFL factions in the Senate said Monday.

Nicholas Colemann, DFL floor leader, and Conservative Majority Leader Stanley Holmquist met for lunch Monday with DFL Gov. Wendell Anderson.

In talks later with newsmen, they appeared in general agreement that a tax and spending program agreeable to the governor can be worked out before adjournment May 24.

"He really said he doesn't want a special session," said Holmquist of the governor.

"But he doesn't fear one," interjected Coleman.

"I don't believe the major bills—taxes and finance—are going to cause a special session," said Holmquist. The Conservative leader added that there would be "communication" between himself and the governor on the touchy issue of congressional redistricting.

Holmquist declined, however, to offer a spot on the re-apportionment conference committee to DFLers.

Holmquist and Coleman agreed that a cut in property taxes could be the "first commandment" for the tax and spending bill, but said reapportionment bills could be major obstacles to finishing the session on time.

Five Conservatives have been tentatively named to the conference committee by Holmquist, much to the dislike of DFLers. The Senate failed Monday to name the other conferees, who will attempt to draw a congressional district map acceptable to both houses of the legislature and to the governor.

Turning to what, partisanly speaking, is a less acrimonious subject, Holmquist said, "there's going to be a real property tax relief we all like."

That relief, he said, would come from "a little bit on the income tax, a little bit on sales and excise taxes, one cent on beer, a little bit on corporate income taxes . . ."

"Any new levies must be progressive," Coleman said, but he added that the governor is not likely "to be looking for flyspecks in the pepper." Neither Coleman nor Anderson objected specifically to the prospect of a hike on the 3 percent state sales tax—increasing the likelihood that Minnesotans will be asked to pay 4 percent on retail purchases sometime later this year.

Insurance chief suggests delay in no-fault action

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—State insurance commissioner Bert Heaton Monday asked that action on a no-fault auto insurance bill be postponed two years to allow for an interim study.

Heaton told members of a House subcommittee that the state Insurance Division has not been involved in discussion on the no-fault concept, even though the agency would be directly affected by no-fault legislation.

Heaton asked that the insurance division be involved in an interim study of the no-fault proposal, which would do away with the present system of determining fault in auto accidents.

The full House, meanwhile, approved two bills allowing major changes in the setting of deer hunting seasons.

Under one proposal, the deer season could be set for any time between Nov. 1 and Dec. 15. Present law permits a season only between Nov. 1 and Nov. 21.

The other bill approved Monday would allow the state Department of Natural Resources to limit the number of licenses issued to deer hunters for a given period of time.

Proponents of the two bills said they are designed to open the way for a "select your own days" deer hunting system, under which a hunter might be issued a three-day license and given his choice of any three-day period within the overall deer season.

The House Metropolitan and Urban Affairs Committee voted 17-13 Monday in favor of a bill that would establish a 14-member board to set up a metropolitan park system in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Howard Albertson, Stillwater Conservative calls for a takeover by the new board of the Hennepin County Park Reserve District, which owns about 14,000 acres of land.

The board, an arm of the Twin Cities Metropolitan Council, would be empowered to acquire land through means including condemnation.

The House voted overwhelmingly in favor of a bill prohibiting marriage between homosexuals.

Approved by a vote of 116-14 was a bill that would define marriage as "a contract between a male person and a female person." The measure now goes to the Senate.

Another measure passed by the House Monday would allow 18-year-olds to sign legal contracts. Under present law one must be 21 to do so.

In other legislative action Monday:

• A measure sponsored by Sen. Richard Palmer, Duluth independent, directing that public buses unload passengers after crossing an intersection was defeated 33-31.

• A bill requiring any corporation owning agricultural land used for crops or livestock to report its holdings annually was passed by the House and returned to the Senate.

• A bill to remove the 7 percent interest limit on municipal bonds, sponsored by Sen. Paul Overgaard, Albert Lea, lost 27-22 on a preliminary vote.

Officials in Florida import rain machine

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Fires that have blackened a half-million acres of parched Florida grasslands have prompted forestry officials impatient with nature to import a man-made rain machine.

The machine is a twin-engine CL215, an amphibious, water-bombing airplane, on loan from Canada. It was ready to make passes today at a nine-mile string of fires in the Everglades.

Robert Miller, district forester of the Florida Division of Forestry, said the rainmaker was an experiment in dousing smoldering fires that persistently ignite blazes on the dry grasslands.

Skimming Lake Okeechobee at 75 miles per hour, the plane will scoop up water to fill two 700-gallon tanks with two snorkel devices that are lowered as the plane flies overhead.

Pressure forces the water into the tanks and the plane flies 40 feet above the fire to drop its payload, bomb bay fashion, on the flames, Miller said.

"The water comes down like a real dense rain and breaks into a cloud-like pattern," Miller said. "But there is enough force to knock you down."

Good performances in the next several days of trials could result in a permanent job for the rainmaker, Miller added.

In the Everglades, 366 fires charred 217,000 acres from Jan. 1 to April 11. Statewide, 6,292 blazes have claimed 450,000 acres of grass and timberlands, Miller said.

Mop-up operations were still under way two weeks after a 50,000-acre fire raged in northern Dade County near Everglade National Park. Troops from Homestead Air Force base joined forestry rangers in fighting the blaze.

A 23,000-acre woods fire northwest of the park in Monroe County has burned unattended for more than 10 days.

Doctors reported a rapidly increasing number of respiratory disease cases as fires continued to spew dark smoke into southern Florida's Gold Coast area.

Twelve of 25 patients who visit the Dade-Monroe County Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association for breathing exercises can't attend any longer because they can't leave the safety of their air conditioned homes, a spokesman said.

Pari-mutuel bill goes to House floor

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—The House Tax Committee approved the controversial pari-mutuel betting bill today on a vote of 17-16, sending the bill to the House floor.

Committee Chairman Harold J. Anderson, Minneapolis, cast the deciding vote to approve the bill.

The committee earlier rejected on voice votes two proposals to kill the bill.

One proposal, by Rep. Henry Savelkoul, Albert Lea, called for an interim study. The other motion, by Rep. Bert Fuller, Hayfield, would have tabled the bill in committee.

The measure now is on the floor and ready for a vote by both the Senate and House.

The bill would establish a three-member racing commission to supervise on-track betting horse races in Minnesota. The House bill would earmark state revenues for senior citizens tax relief. The Senate version does not earmark the funds.

Sponsors of the bill are Rep. Gary Flakne, Minneapolis, and Sen. Roy Holsten, Minneapolis, both Conservatives.

Holsten has claimed 40 votes for the bill in the Senate, six more than needed for passage. The vote in the House is expected to be close, however, with some speculation that the measure will not win House approval this session.

Before approval in the Tax Committee, the racing bill was amended to delete a 25-cent tax on tickets to professional football, baseball and hockey.

As now written, the state would skim 12.5 percent of all monies bet and track operators would get 9.5 percent.

This would leave 78 cents of each betting dollar return to bettors.

Flakne said the state revenues would run between $14 and $20 million a year.

Sponsors have claimed that racing would spawn a $100 million industry, providing new jobs in allied fields as well as at the track.

The bill would authorize a single betting track, plus three-day betting licenses for county fairs.

The bill also had cleared the Senate Tax Committee earlier by one vote, 7-6. It has moved through three committees in the Senate, two in the house.

Here is the vote in the House Tax Committee:

For passage—Harold Anderson, James Adams, Irvin Anderson, Jack Fena, Joseph Gray, Robert Johnson, Francis Judge, Jack Kleinbaum, August Mueller, Thomas Newcome, Richard Nolan, Richard O'Dea, Ray Paviak, Joseph Prifrel, John Salchert, Sam Solon, Thomas Tice.

Against—Sallybury Adams, Otto Bang, Robert Becklin, Marti Sabo Harvey Sathre Warren Chamberlain Robert Dunn, Bert Fuller, Jon Haaven, Carl Johnson, Ralph Jopp, Ernest Lindstrom, Sidney Mason, Martin Sabo, Harvey Sathre, Shores, Arlen Stangeland.

Absent—George Humphrey, Robert Falk.

Flakne added a new amendment to spell out procedures for the senior citizens, tax relief. Under his plan, the money would be distributed on a per-capita basis to persons with incomes of $5,000 or less, who apply under the senior citizens, tax relief program of the state.

Flakne estimated the payout would be about $23 per person in this bracket.

No contact with enemy

U.S., South Viets in A Shau Valley

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. and South Vietnamese infantry battalions have finally moved into the A Shau Valley but no significant contact with the enemy was reported today.

Associated Press Correspondent J.T. Wolkerstorfer reported from Lavang, the forward command post for the operation, that at least one battalion of about 400 troops from the U.S. 101st Airborne Division and sizable South Vietnamese units had been committed to the A Shau operation.

For the past week, U.S. and South Vietnamese reconnaissance teams have been operating in the 30-mile-long valley trying to find enemy targets to attack. Allied firebases have been set up all around the jungled valley to support the operation, which is named Lam Son 719, the successor to the South Vietnamese invasion of Laos, which was Lam Son 719.

The 101st Airborne is providing both helicopter and ground support for the operation.

One American field officer said the operation "will last as long as we have targets. You can expect us to operate all the way west to the Laotian border until the monsoons start."

The monsoon rains are expected to begin in about three weeks.

The valley 375 miles north of Saigon is just east of Base Area 611, a major North Vietnamese supply depot on the Ho Chi Minh trail network in southern Laos. The valley is an enemy infiltration corridor and supply transshipment point into the northern quarter of South Vietnam.

Although no action was reported in the valley, the U.S. Command said American fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships attacked a North Vietnamese column nine miles east of the A Shau on Monday and killed 30 of the enemy.

U.S. B52 bombers ranged over wide areas to attack North Vietnamese supply depots in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

The eight-jet Stratofortresses flew more than 50 strikes Monday and today, dropping 1,500 tons of bombs along the demilitarized zone in the northwestern corner of South Vietnam, north of Highway 9 in the Laotian panhandle and north of Highway 7 in eastern Cambodia. The two highways are key infiltration corridors and supply routes into South Vietnam.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported two clashes in the Mekong delta, one of them in the U Minh forest 145 miles southwest of Saigon.

New Cambodian Cabinet?

Lon Nol move start of 'housecleaning'?

PHNOM PENH (AP)—Some observers in Phnom Penh viewed the resignation today of Premier Lon Nol as a maneuver to permit him a thorough housecleaning of his cabinet.

Others speculated that the ailing leader would designate Deputy Premier Sisowath Sirk Matak as his successor, or that the way had been opened for challenges from Son Noge Than, former leader of the anti-Sihanouk Free Khmer movement, or National Assembly President In Tam.

Lon Nol's younger brother, Lt. Col. Lon Non, predicted that the premier would be back in office shortly with a new cabinet.

"Illness is not the real reason behind his resignation," Lon Non told the newsmen. "The real reason is that when he came back from Hawaii, it was necessary to put together a new government."

Poor health was the reason Lon Nol gave in his letter of resignation to Chief of State Cheng Hen. The 57-year-old premier was felled by a stroke Feb. 8 that paralyzed his left side. He returned last Monday after treatment by the U.S. Army in Honolulu but walked with difficulty and was assisted by male nurses.

The announcement that he and his Cabinet were resigning came as a surprise since he said before leaving Hawaii that he planned to resume direction of the government and would govern with "help from friends."

One U.S. official in Washington commented: "There doesn't seem to be any great change in the situation since Lon Nol has not been actively directing the Cambodian government for several months."

Lon Nol has been premier for some months when in March 1970 he led the group who ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk while the neutralist chief of state was in Europe.

Lon Nol aligned his government with the United States and South Vietnam against the communists, and in April American and South Vietnamese troops invaded Cambodia in a campaign against Viet Cong and North Vietnamese bases along the border.

Sirk Matak has headed the government since Lon Nol's illness.

Four communist spy rings broken in South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—In the largest crackdown on communist agents operating in South Korea, four North Korean spy rings have been smashed and 51 persons arrested, the army security command announced today. Three of the rings were headed by students, officials said.

The arrests were made in raids Saturday in Seoul, the southern port of Pusan, and Cheju, capital of Cheju Island off the southwest coast.

The command said the spy rings had operated for four years and had as their aim the assassination of government leaders and the promotion of student demonstrations and revolution.

The announcement did not identify the government leaders marked for assassination, but there have been no such killings. Nor did it say if the agents played any part in the daily student demonstrations in Seoul against the government for the past two weeks.

Into offices of Congress

Vietnam veterans shift antiwar protest strategy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two thousand battle-dressed Vietnam veterans have temporarily shifted their antiwar protest from the streets of the national capital into the offices of Congress.

Still wearing their jungle camouflage fatigues and other bits and pieces of uniform, the veterans sought meetings with House and Senate members to tell how they turned against the war.

Initial reaction from the legislators was mixed.

"Those who have tended to be liberal on the war talked to us," said one veteran after initial visits Monday. "Those who have been more hawkish were out." "Some people didn't like the way we dressed," said another, "but the way we are dressed was largely the way we dressed in 'Nam.'"

The sight of 2,000 uniformed ex-soldiers marching on their government Monday was a new twist for the antiwar demonstrations frequent in Washington over the past few years.

The scene at the west front of the Capitol gave something of the image of a battle zone, with several vets carrying toy copies of the M-16 rifles they lug in Vietnam.

Traces of Navy blue and Marine olive drab speckled the predominantly Army crowd. There was a flak suit with Air Force wings on the chest, gold wings of a Navy pilot, bars of officers and stripes of sergeants. And berets of varied hue.

The faces were young, but grimmer than those of the usual student demonstrators. "Unlike the demonstrators of the past, we know from experience what the war is like," proclaimed the Vietnam Veterans Against the War which is sponsoring the week-long protest.

In addition to congressmen, they are visiting the Veterans Administration to ask more aid for returning servicemen, the Labor Department to seek help in finding jobs, the National Institutes of Health for better care for drug-plagued Vietnam veterans.

The veterans are bivouaced on the Mall before the Capitol. A federal appeals court lifted part of an injunction Monday which had allowed them to stay there Sunday night provided they didn't sleep.

Silver Dollar Bar granted beer license

City Council members voted, with a moment's hesitation, to grant a beer license Monday night to a new owner of the Silver Dollar Bar, 74 E. 2nd St.

Applying was L. R. McLeod, 425 43rd Ave., Goodview, whose application stated the place would be run by its previous manager, Steve Googins. A momentary doubt was raised in councilmen's minds as a review of investigative reports indicated some suspected intention to proper closing hours under previous management. The council quickly overcame its reservations, however, in an anybody-can-make-a-mistake spirit, and voted to grant the license.

Wisconsin man sentenced in Wabasha court

WABASHA, Minn. (Special) — During a special term Monday in Wabasha County District Court, a Lake Mills, Wis., man was sentenced to one year in the county jail on a burglary charge.

Frederick N. Watts, 38, who has been in jail for six months, had his sentence stayed by Judge Glenn E. Kelley and was released on probation.

He had pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary on Dec. 21 when he appeared before Judge Kelley and a presentence investigation was ordered.

The defendant was charged with burglarizing the Richard McConnell home at Burton Hills Trailer Court between Lake City and Wabasha on Highway 61, on Oct. 24, 1970.

He had been in jail in lieu of $2,000 bond. David Shulman, Rochester, was his court-appointed attorney.

Entry was gained by prying open the front door, said the sheriff.

River level falling; emergency lifted

By C. GORDON HOLTE
Daily News Staff Writer

Anticipating a recession of the Mississippi River here below the 13-foot flood stage, Mayor Norman E. Indall said this morning that his declaration of a state of flood emergency would be lifted today.

The river, which reached a crest of 14.34 feet Saturday night, continued to drop today and this morning was running at 13.1 feet and was expected to fall below flood stage later in the day.

The lifting of the flood emergency means the suspension of dike patrolling. Mayor Indall explained that the declaration has been made in accordance with an agreement with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for construction of dike defenses for the city which provides that patrol of the dikes be inaugurated when the river reaches the flood stage.

IN ANNOUNCING the imminent end to the flood emergency, Mayor Indall expressed appreciation for the efforts of hundreds of Winonans who responded to the call for volunteers in the emergency.

He noted that some 60 public school teachers were on dike patrol Thursday through Sunday and that an estimated 250 Winona High School and Cotter

High School students participated in filling sandbags, and assisted in other ways.

About 50 students and faculty members of the city's three colleges were in the dike patrol corps, the mayor said, while Winona service clubs and various industries were represented in the patrol.

He said that industries had offered additional manpower and other resources should the situation have demanded them.

groups who assisted in various capacities.

He reviewed the work of the Civil Defense organization in the effort and the roles played by the Winona Amateur Radio Club and the citizens' band radio group in manning communications headquarters in the basement of the city building.

"The community should be proud," Mayor Indall said, "of the support given us in this effort. If the situation had become more serious a great many more persons would have been available for service."

continue until the danger of seepage has passed.

The possibility of some showers and thunderstorms developing in the Winona area appeared in today's weather forecast.

Monday's high temperature was 71 and an overnight low of 48 was recorded here this morning.

Skies, which this morning were generally sunny, should become partly cloudy to cloudy later today and the overcast will continue into Wednesday.

It was 71 at noon today, a low of around 58 is forecast for tonight and the rain will bring cooler temperatures with a high of 68 seen for Wednesday.

Council committee attendance OKed for CST street meet

In an extended but confused wrangle, the City Council declined Monday night to meet as a group with residents of the College of Saint Teresa neighborhood and college officials.

But it did vote to leave the way open for the three-member college relations committee to attend the meeting — which is what the committee wanted anyway.

The tie-breaking vote was cast by Councilman Jerry Borzyskowski who commented that "it's good to be on the winning side once in a while." Borzyskowski is frequently at odds with colleagues on other matters and often is overruled.

IT ALL started out with a recommendation by the committee's chairman, Councilman Dan Trainor Jr. He proposed that the committee be given the council's blessing to moderate a meeting between college officials and residents concerning college requests for vacation of several streets within the campus area.

Trainor called it a good opportunity for the council to go directly into neighborhoods and try to help with local problems.

The college's proposal had been before the City Planning Commission since last August and won the commission's approval March 25 after an official public hearing and one or two other public-participation sessions had been held.

Councilman Earl Laufenburger opposed the idea, noting that it hadn't been brought officially to council attention yet. He said it would put the council "in the position of representing the college versus the neighborhood" and he didn't want that.

TRAINOR disagreed with Laufenburger's concept but Mayor Norman E. Indall and Councilman Howard Hoveland also joined the opposition. Trainor chided them for being unwilling to depart from old established customs and denied any intent to align the council on one side or another.

If the council committee doesn't attend the meeting — proposed for April 28 at the Winona Senior High School lower library — then it won't be held, Trainor said. He said people wouldn't show up for a meeting of just two parties to the argument.

Laufenburger replied he hadn't seen any tendency among people to hold back or to stay away from hearings like this — and in fact the opposite seemed to be true.

Saying he wanted to "try it for size," Laufenburger moved that there be no council participation "at this time" in such an informal meeting.

LAUFENBURGER commented later that he didn't object to the committee attending but only to the entire council doing so.

At any rate, it was a reverse-English motion. The yes votes were those opposed to council participation. The nays were in favor.

Voting yes were Mayor Indall, Hoveland and Laufenburger. Voting nay were Councilmen Trainor, Borzyskowski, Gaylord Fox and Barry Nelson.

The upshot apparently is that committee members will go ahead with plans for the meeting. Others on the committee besides Trainor are Fox and Nelson.

City Council takes time to thank flood workers

With waters of the season's mini-flood subsiding at a satisfactory rate, the City Council took a moment Monday night to distribute a few rounds of praise among the ranks of deserving volunteer workers.

Mayor Norman E. Indall assured the council that he would cause letters of gratitude to be written to "various groups who did an excellent job" in the city's recent brush with potential but unrealized disaster.

Such contributions as volunteer dike patrolling, sandbagging and other maintenance had helped the city fulfill its commitment to the Army Corps of Engineers, declared the mayor, referring to the corps' custom of exacting a pledge that the dikes it constructs will be maintained forever after by local communities.

Councilman Howard Hoveland professed to see unusual difficulties that arose out of the fact that the worst fears of the forecasters went happily unfulfilled.

"It's easier to get up enthusiasm when the water is lapping around your ankles," he declared. In spite of a shortage of such incentives, "the turnout was magnificent," according to the councilman.

In the forefront were more than 50 teachers — "I had to get that commercial in," confided Hoveland, the teacher — and numerous students and citizens, all of whom responded nobly to the call to duty, he declared.

State work is requested on Hwy. 43

A request to the state Department of Highways to bring the through-city route of Highway 43 up to city standards was adopted Monday night by the City Council.

The council's resolution asks the department to fix up the route as soon as possible but within five years at the most. The portions covered by the request are those between the Interstate Bridge and the intersection of Highways 43 and 61-14.

Although the through-city portions have appeared to be deteriorating for several years, council action had not been forthcoming because of a continuing indecision about where to locate a permanent routing. The decision for such a route would involve a railroad overpass, considered by some councilmen to be a hot political potato and therefore an issue to be skirted when possible.

The council's current request is aimed at keeping the streets from going to pieces in the interim prior to a final route determination. That determination could be a long time coming and highway department programming procedures would add another five to 10 years under ordinary conditions.

Council takes time to thank flood workers

With waters of the season's mini-flood subsiding at a satisfactory rate, the City Council took a moment Monday night to distribute a few rounds of praise among the ranks of deserving volunteer workers.

Mayor Norman E. Indall assured the council that he would cause letters of gratitude to be written to "various groups who did an excellent job" in the city's recent brush with potential but unrealized disaster.

Such contributions as volunteer dike patrolling, sandbagging and other maintenance had helped the city fulfill its commitment to the Army Corps of Engineers, declared the mayor, referring to the corps' custom of exacting a pledge that the dikes it constructs will be maintained forever after by local communities.

Councilman Howard Hoveland professed to see unusual difficulties that arose out of the fact that the worst fears of the forecasters went happily unfulfilled.

"It's easier to get up enthusiasm when the water is lapping around your ankles," he declared. In spite of a shortage of such incentives, "the turnout was magnificent," according to the councilman.

In the forefront were more than 50 teachers — "I had to get that commercial in," confided Hoveland, the teacher — and numerous students and citizens, all of whom responded nobly to the call to duty, he declared.

Sheriff probes trespassing report

Winona County Sheriff Helmer Weimann has received a report of trespassing near the KWNO radio station transmitting tower on Garvin Heights.

Weimann said Chuck Williams, station manager, said dune buggies, motorcycles, jeeps and campers had been using the area for recreational purposes.

No trespassing signs will be placed in the area and trespassers will be prosecuted, Weimann added.

Plans for regional draft centers dropped

A plan to set up 14 state regional draft board centers instead of the existing program of having Selective Service System offices in each county has been dumped by Congress, it has been announced by the State Selective Service.

Under the now-scrubbed plan, the Winona draft board office would have been phased out, and local selective service records would have been kept at Rochester.

Mrs. Margaret Price, clerk at the Winona office, said she received word April 8 that the plan had been eliminated without ever getting out of the initial planning stages.

It had originally been proposed as a money-saving move.

No evidence of foul play in rural Rollingstone fire

An electrical fire or a cigarette in trash has been determined as the cause of an April 11 fire which destroyed a two-story farm home owned by Leo Jilk, Minnesota City, Minn., in rural Rollingstone, Helmer Weimann, Winona County sheriff, reported today.

According to Weimann, the state fire marshal who investigated the Sunday afternoon blaze found no evidence of foul play in the fire which destroyed all the belongings of Mr. and Mrs. David Wagner who were renting the home four miles north of Minnesota City on Highway 61.

Request by Rushford ambulance firm tabled

City Councilmen Monday night introduced a city ordinance licensing ambulance operators and tabled the application of a Rushford firm for a license.

The license request was a replay of an earlier appearance by a Rushford firm, Tri-County Ambulance & Oxygen Service, when the application was denied. Dr. R. G. Swan, Rushford, a member of the firm, told the council it could not refuse such a license because this would be contrary to principles of the U.S. Constitution and free enterprise.

As amended the ordinance would prohibit the council from issuing an ambulance license unless the applicant has shown proof that a public necessity exists. It also states that such a license is unnecessary for an ambulance service based outside the city, which transports patients from outside points to destinations within the city. Such a service could not, however, transport patients from one point to another within the city without being licensed by the city, the ordinance provides.

CITY ATTORNEY George M. Robertson Jr. told councilmen that the city cannot grant exclusive franchises unless they are approved by a majority of voters.

The council also would have to hold a public hearing on the question of public need when a license application is made, he said in a report. The council had directed a study of legal points involved at its April 5 meeting, the date of its first denial of a license to the Rushford firm.

Councilmen had turned down the applicant on grounds that a competing service would injure the financial position of Praxel Ambulance Service which now receives a yearly retainer of $10,000. For this sum the service is required to answer all emergency calls within the city on a 24-hour basis.

In reviving the application, Dr. Swan admitted under questioning by Mayor Norman E. Indall that the Rushford ambulance had never been denied access to the Winona hospital. At the earlier meeting Dr. Swan had charged that the city's ordinance was worded so that an incoming ambulance could be required to stop at the city limits and transfer its patient to a licensed ambulance for the rest of the journey to the hospital.

MAYOR INDALL said he considered this statement injurious both to Community Memorial Hospital and to the city. Dr. Swan said he would retract the statement.

The firm's equipment has been inspected both by the Rushford Village Council and the Winona city health officer, said Billy Booth, Rushford police chief, who also is a member of the ambulance firm. He added that the equipment is ready at any time for similar inspection by the state Department of Health if this be required.

Speaking for Praxel Ambulance Service, Duane M. Peterson, Winona attorney, pointed out that city franchises are routinely issued to utilities of various kinds and that cities regulate many forms of business operations very closely.

In this instance, Peterson continued, the city subsidizes an ambulance service in lieu of operating its own. This has provided the city with good service more cheaply than it could provide its own, he declared.

PETERSON recommended tabling the application until the ordinance amendment is given final passage and then holding a public hearing to determine whether there is a public necessity for another ambulance service.

Mayor Indall said his sole concern is not for the Praxel service as such but rather that the city be provided with good ambulance service.

Councilman Barry Nelson put it bluntly. He wouldn't vote for an additional service under any condition, he said, because "every nickel that goes to an additional service will tend to raise the city's subsidy cost. I won't accept one more nickel of subsidy and I won't vote for your service."

Nelson's motion to table the application drew a unanimous vote. Dr. Swan indicated in response to a question by Councilman Dan Trainor Jr. that the firm would re-submit its application once the hearing process has been established by ordinance.

Ordinance introduced to ban backyard burning by June 1

By FRANK UHLIG
Daily News Staff Writer

In separate but related actions the City Council Monday introduced an ordinance banning backyard burning and asked for a full report on a proposal to set up a permanent rubbish transfer station.

The transfer station proposal came from two private firms, Wm. Miller Scrap Iron & Metal Co. and Pozanc Trucking & Excavating Co., both of whom already operate transfer stations.

According to Jerry Miller, who spoke for the two companies, the plan calls for installation of a large compacting machine into which individual loads of trash are dumped and from which emerge highly compacted bales. These are then trucked to a sanitary landfill in large closed containers.

Miller said the installation would be a "sophisticated" affair, capable of handling 600 vehicles a day. It would, he assured Mayor Norman E. Indall and councilmen, be a neat and clean process. He conceded that present operations have fallen somewhat short in the area of litter control.

MILLER proposed as a first choice that the facility be located on land owned by Pozanc and now used as a transfer station. This is east of Mankato Avenue and is reached via Shive Road.

The firms have hesitated to set up the machinery there, Miller said, because they lack knowledge of possible future plans of the Port Authority for the area. The property is within the River Bend Industrial Park district and subject to possible future industrial site development.

Councilmen agreed generally that the location was favorable. Councilman Barry Nelson said he thought port authority plans for future development ought to take this sort of facility into consideration.

Councilman Howard Hoveland moved that the administration be asked to submit a report on all aspects of the situation. Its recommendations will be in conformity with guidelines laid down for such operations by the city's Department of Health and by the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA).

A COUNCIL division appeared when the no-burning ordinance came up on the agenda. Nelson said he opposes anything of the sort as long as Highway 43 remains subject to springtime local limitations. The matter should be tabled until an adequate road to the city's Wilson Township landfill has been built, he declared.

About all the city would get out of refusing to pass an ordinance is the PCA's ill will, observed the city manager, Carroll J. Fry. He reminded councilmen that PCA had granted the city a two-month extension of the deadline for adoption of the ordinance on the assumption that it would act by May 1. Fry said he worried about the prospect of a PCA lawsuit if the city doesn't comply.

Nelson's motion to table the ordinance was beaten on a voice vote and Councilman Jerry Borzyskowski complained that while Winona adopts anti-burning measures there are burning dumps just across the river, in Buffalo County, Wis. Enforcement ought to be uniform, he said.

On motions to introduce the ordinance and to make the effective date June 1, 1977, Nelson and Borzyskowski voted nay while Mayor Indall and Councilmen Howard Hoveland, Gaylord Fox, Earl Laufenburger and Dan Trainor Jr. voted yes.

AS A FINAL word the council adopted a resolution asking local legislators to introduce bills designating refuse trucks as emergency vehicles during periods when state highway load limits are in force.

Councilmen conceded that the request hasn't the slightest chance of adoption but held that it puts the city on record with respect to the problem. Next spring, when load limits once more force reductions in refuse cargoes, the city will have a talking point, should it decide to overlook strict enforcement of the backyard burning ordinance, they reasoned.

According to Pine Island police officials, Hanraty escaped Sunday from the jail where he had served eight months of a year sentence for statutory rape.

After his escape, Hanraty allegedly stole a Richland Center car and drove it to Cashton, Wis., where he abandoned it and got a ride to La Crosse, Wis.

In La Crosse he allegedly stole a car owned by Gary Skoy, Onalaska, Wis., Sunday evening and, enroute to Pine Island, was involved in an 8:55 p.m. hit-run accident on Highway 14, two miles west of Utica.

According to the Minnesota Highway Patrol, the Skoy car allegedly driven by Hanraty was passing on a hill crest and took the ditch in an attempt to avoid hitting head-on a pickup truck driven by Donald Kleinhuizen, Prinsburg, Minn. The Skoy car did strike the right side of the Kleinhuizen truck, however, damaging the 1969 pickup, owned by Alley Construction Co., Faribault, Minn., to the extent of $400. The 1969 Skoy hardtop received $300 damage.

There were no injuries in the accident, said highway patrol officials, and the Skoy car left the scene and continued on to Pine Island where it was abandoned.

In Pine Island, Hanraty allegedly stole another car about 10 p.m. Sunday and was chased to Minneapolis by the Orono Police Department.

Near Delano, Minn., west of Minneapolis, Orono police officials forced him into the ditch and arrested Hanraty who was then taken to Hennepin County sheriff's office and later to Pine Island police department authorities said.

Held in Olmsted County jail, Hanraty faces possible charges of two more counts of auto theft, interstate flight to avoid prosecution and interstate transportation of stolen property in addition to escaping from jail, Pine Island authorities noted. Conviction on such charges could lead to a 25 to 30 year jail sentence, they added.

Patricia M. Thrune, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert A. Thrune, 194 N. Baker St., was treated and released from Community Memorial Hospital Monday evening after a car-pedestrian accident at 7:50 p.m. in front of 502 E. Bellevue St.

According to Winona Police Chief James McCabe, Patricia was leaning against a parked car talking to its driver, Steven B. Meyer, 16, 478 E. Sarnia St., when the driver pulled the car away from its parked position.

Charles F. Woodward, Dover Rt. 1, reported a hit-run accident at 7:42 p.m. Monday. McCabe said Woodward had left his car at 5:30 p.m. parked on Washington Street, 60 feet north of West Wabasha Street and returned at 7:40 p.m. to find the 1968 model sedan damaged to the extent of $150.

Police are continuing to investigate both incidents.

Eitrick youth arraigned on morals charge

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — An 18-year-old Eitrick youth was arraigned in Trempealeau County Court Monday afternoon on a charge of attempted rape.

James Salszwedel has been accused of the felony charge, which allegedly happened Saturday in the Town of Eitrick. An 18-year-old girl is the complainant.

Judge A. L. Twesme named Floren Hegge, Whitehall, as the defendant's court-appointed attorney and set a preliminary hearing for April 26 at 1:30 p.m.

He is being held in Trempealeau County jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Prosecuting attorney is William Matika, Trempealeau County district attorney.

PCA votes to appeal decision on Reserve

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency voted unanimously Monday to appeal a Lake County District Court decision which went against the PCA in the Reserve Mining case.

The decision last December invalidated the PCA's water-quality regulations as applied to Reserve Mining Co., which deposits some 67,000 tons of taconite tailings into Lake Superior daily at Silver Bay.

The agency heard from Edward Fride, attorney for Reserve, and Grant Merritt, PCA executive director, prior to making its decision.

Fride urged the board to insist on reviewing a report which the PCA staff has compiled for this week's meeting of the federal-state Lake Superior Enforcement Conference at Duluth.

The company's counsel argued that it would not be prepared if a staff report espoused by the director constitutes policy by this agency."

The staff report is not expected to be ready until Wednesday, the day before the conference convenes. The study reportedly disapproves of the company's plan to modify its discharge of tailings.

Reserve wants to continue funneling the fine tailings into the lake, and not resort to deposit on land. Governors of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan insist there should be on-land disposal.

Merritt denied he has tried to represent his views as those of the agency members. He pointed out he has been a spokesman for the governor in the matter, adding: "The governor knows what the people want and they are insisting that the tailings be dumped on land— one way or another."

The PCA board decided to have Merritt and Minnesota's conference delegates make it clear in the Duluth sessions that the staff report has not been approved by the board.

Proposed new state standards for Lake Superior waters, which several Duluth-area legislators and conservation groups had opposed, apparently will not be put into effect.

Merritt said the agency took no action Monday and that he expects the standards will be "quietly shelved." The proposals were offered by the PCA while John Badalich, Merritt's predecessor, was directing the agency. Merritt said he opposes the proposed standards.

Opponents claimed the new standards would lead to eventual pollution of the lake.

In other action, the PCA voted 6-1 against a proposal by Merritt that U.S. Steel be required to push up a certain deadline for disclosing its plans for pollution control at its Duluth Works.

The current schedule calls for a July 1, 1973 date. Merritt had wanted that reset for Nov. 1, 1971.

Morton plugs reorganization of Cabinet

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Interior Secretary Rogers Morton is using an Earth Week theme today to plug for President Nixon's proposal to reorganize the federal cabinet.

Morton said in a speech prepared for delivery at the new town of Jonathan that too much of the land has been used in a fragmented, piecemeal manner.

"The same can be said of our government," added Morton. He said the reorganization plan, which includes establishment of a new Department of Natural Resources "is one of the most exciting developments of our new decade. The plan looks at government and at our huge and diverse nation organically as a single entity composed of many parts that must be helped to work better together."

Jonathan, only in its infant stage with homes, apartments and a few businesses, is planned to be a city of some 50,000 persons in 15 to 20 years. The federal government has helped underwrite some initial funding.

"This new town is in keeping with Minnesota's long tradition of progressive teamwork between citizens and their government, and its equally proud tradition of practical conservation," said Morton.

Gov. Wendell Anderson and former governors Harold LeVander and Elmer L. Andersen were among dignitaries to be on hand for the ceremonies. The planting of a tree was planned as an annual Earth Week event.

Of Madison abortion clinic

Birth control advocates will demonstrate support

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Birth control advocates scheduled a protest demonstration today in support of a clinic which, having become a focal point of the state's abortion controversy, was closed down by Dane County authorities Monday.

Alfred Kennan, director of the Midwest Medical Center, was taken into custody after officials said they received a complaint from the parents of a 17-year-old Minnesota girl.

The clinic had operated openly in the wake of a U.S. District Court ruling that Wisconsin could not prevent a woman from having an abortion in early months of pregnancy. The U.S. Supreme Court directed the District Court Monday to reconsider its ruling. County officials declined to comment whether the Supreme Court's announcement had any bearing on Monday's decision to close the clinic, where about 10 law enforcement officers arrived to question Kennan.

A protest group, Concerned Madison Citizens, called for a demonstration in a corridor outside the office of the county's district attorney in support of the clinic.

"The state does not have the right to legislate on women's bodies," said Deborah Clark, a spokesman for the group.

The group is a coalition of organizations whose members represent the clergy, welfare groups, University of Wisconsin faculty wives and the women's liberation movement.

The clinic, because of its location in the state capital city, has drawn considerable attention from state legislators as Wisconsin reviews its statutes which prohibit abortion unless the patient's life is in danger.

In Milwaukee, a District Court panel had ruled in March 1970 that the statute violates a woman's privacy.

The ruling appealed by the state, had been requested by Dr. Sidney G. Babbitz, who had been charged in Milwaukee County with breaking the state law by operating on a 23-year-old woman.

The Supreme Court opinion didn't necessarily declare the statute to be constitutional, but suggested the District Court set aside its ruling.

Milwaukee County's district attorney said he will now ask for dismissal of the complaint filed against him by Babbitz, whose own trial had been postponed pending the appeal.

The county said that if the complaint is dismissed, trial will proceed in Circuit Court. The next hearing in the case is scheduled Oct. 29.

HILL TO HOLE

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — How do you turn a hill upside down? First, you cut it down to street level and haul away the unneeded dirt and rock, to be dumped into a depression where landfill is required. Then, you continue digging until you have a hole 30 feet deep.

That's what is happening to a section of Signboard Hill, a Kansas City landmark that is being eliminated to make way for a 750-room hotel in Crown Center, an urban redevelopment project in the midtown area. The hotel project alone required the removal of 375,000 cubic yards of earth.

Guy proposes three-person presidency

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — North Dakota's Gov. William L. Guy has proposed a three-person presidency.

The veteran Democratic chief executive, in a guest article in the Napoleon Homestead, a weekly newspaper, said:

"I have proposed in the past and I renew the proposal now that we seriously consider the adoption of a constitutional amendment to provide for a three-person presidency."

"I believe each of our major political parties should be permitted by our amended Constitution to nominate three-person teams to be placed before voters in a presidential election every six years," Guy wrote.

Guy, who said he will circulate the idea to the governors of the other states, suggests that each of the presidents would have executive authority over their particular portfolios and that two could overrule the actions of any one.

In this manner we would find that all major policy decisions would be the result of a consensus rather than unilateral action by only one of the presidents," he wrote.

Guy said the select panel of three would take some of the pressure off of the presidential office.

LITTLE INCREASE

HOUSTON (AP) — Although the crime rate in Houston is growing faster than the population, the increase in juvenile crime during the past three years has been negligible, officials say.

A spokesman for the Houston Police Department's juvenile division said most of the increase during the past few years is because of better record keeping by the police rather than an actual boost in crime.

Food stamp office opened in Rochester

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has opened new food stamp field offices in Fergus Falls and Rochester, Minn., but closed Minnesota offices in Crookston, Detroit Lakes, Grand Rapids, Mankato and St. Cloud.

The reorganization move, announced Monday and effective immediately, reduced the number of offices and consolidated the offices' areas of jurisdiction.

Field offices will continue in St. Paul, Duluth and Willmar, said Dennis M. Doyle, Midwest regional director of the USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

A new district office in St. Paul will direct and coordinate the Minnesota program. A satellite managerial office is located in Bemidji.

Doyle said that by setting up the managerial office in St. Paul, "we hope to strengthen our line of supervision to field offices and improve services to food stamp recipients."

Predict more eggs, turkeys; lower prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department predicted Monday consumers will get more eggs and turkeys during the next few months and producers will be paid lower prices.

Broiler chicken output also is expected to rise seasonally but probably will lag moderately behind the record volume of a year earlier. Prices, down in March, may pick up later, the department said.

The forecast was included in an outlook report on the poultry and egg situation.

Egg prices paid farmers during the first three months of 1971 averaged 33.4 cents a dozen, nearly 15 cents less than in January-March last year.

Farmers increased turkey production substantially last fall and winter, the report said. And slaughter plant output in January and February was 30 per cent larger than during the same period last year.

Legislature today

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Senate Commerce and Insurance Committee took up confirmation of Berton W. Heaton, 51, South St. Paul, as state insurance commissioner at a 9 a.m. meeting.

The Senate Civil Administration Committee heard a subcommittee recommendation at 2 p.m., which scales down the proposed $1.4 million in pay raises for the executive and judicial branches of government.

A Senate Natural Resources subcommittee took further testimony at 2 p.m. on several "ban-the-can" bills.

A Senate Civil Administration subcommittee meets at 7 p.m. to consider several measures increasing the 120-day legislative sessions and also calling for flexible annual sessions.

Senate convened 10 a.m. Committees — 8 a.m., regulated industries; 9 a.m., commerce and insurance; 1 p.m., highways; 2 p.m., civil administration; 3 p.m., taxes; 7:30 p.m., health and welfare.

House convened 2:15 p.m. Committees — 7:30 a.m., taxes; 9 a.m., governmental operations; 10 a.m., natural resources; 11 a.m., transportation; 12, commerce and economic development; 1 p.m., regulated industries.

596 bills are introduced on 'final day'

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota legislators dumped 596 bills on House and Senate desks Monday, the final day for introductions without approval from the governor.

In the House, 271 bills came in, bringing the total for the session to 2,997, or 102 more than were introduced at the same stage two years ago.

Senators offered up 325 new bills, pushing the Senate total to 2,649 for the year, or 180 more than had been introduced at that state in 1969.

Senate Secretary George Goodwin said the total of 325 new bills was 15 short of the record of 340 introduced at the cutoff day in 1967.

Gov. Wendell Anderson has said he would like the flow of bills reduced drastically from here on, but has not taken a hardline position against further introductions.

In past sessions, most governors have been relatively free in granting permission for further bills introductions.

The deadline is set by the State Constitution, requiring the governor's signature for proposals introduced in the last 30 working days of each session.

Lawmakers had talked earlier of imposing a still-earlier deadline through House and Senate rules, but later dropped the idea.

Demands action

Praises warning on pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressman who has a lot to say about how much money the federal government spends on pollution control says environmental spokesmen have performed a service in calling attention to how man has fouled the air, land and water.

Rep. Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss., warned, however, that there is a big job to do and that public opinion can be a fickle handmaiden.

"But, what all must realize," Whitten said, "is that we must live during the process and those who beat the drums to stir up public opinion have rendered a real service. The proof of the pudding will come in whether we can act sensibly enough and steadily enough to maintain public support until we get the job done."

Whitten's remarks were in a speech Monday at a meeting of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America.

"Too often public opinion blows hot then cold," Whitten said. "We must be practical for we have to live while the job is being done."

Whitten is chairman of a recently broadened House Agriculture Appropriations subcommittee that now includes environmental and consumer protection.

If cities could be emptied of people for one month, Whitten said, many of the "antiquated and deplorable" conditions in the environment could be restored.

Whitten said another problem is that most people today do not realize that agriculture is just as important as ever despite a shrink in the number of people on farms.

The new gas range.

(with self cleaning oven)

"It's better."

Better because it uses the instant response heat that nine out of ten professional chefs use.

Better because it gives you an infinite number of temperature settings that let you cook each dish at the exact temperature you want it cooked. Better because the oven cleans itself. Quickly, quietly. Automatically.

The new gas range has a wide variety of other work-saving features, too. Like smokeless infra-red broilers, programmed cooking and burners-with-brains.

These are just a few reasons why the new gas range is a better range. Isn't it about time you replaced your old gas range with a new gas range?

A doctor excises an unseemly growth

It took the director of admissions at the University of Minnesota Medical School to demolish a carefully nurtured Rochester suggestion that its proposal for a branch of the university there is related to the Mayo Clinic's proposed medical school.

Dr. Albert Sullivan told Winona County physicians last week that it's "absolutely fallacious" that "we have to have a University of Minnesota branch there to get good medical school students."

THE IDEA that the university branch and the medical school are related has been fostered by numerous statements (such as this one from an editorial in the Rochester Post-Bulletin arguing for the branch):

Rochester "has one of the strongest medical bases in the state and Upper Midwest from which to develop programs for the health sciences with its world-famed Mayo Clinic, nationally-oriented St. Marys and Methodist Hospitals, area-oriented Olmsted Community Hospital and a model for smaller group practice in the Olmsted Medical Group, plus a state hospital."

But as Dr. Sullivan pointed out the branch has nothing to do with the proposed Mayo medical school. As far as the university medical school is concerned, "It's the individual person and not the school he comes from which determines the kind of student he's going to be." We encourage students to go to the school they want. We don't differentiate between the University of Minnesota and schools elsewhere. We're not trying to evaluate a college, just the student."

THERE ARE TWO Rochester proposals then: One for the branch of the university, another for state support for a Mayo medical school. We have discussed the branch before; the arguments for such a branch stem from the fact that Rochester feels it deserves a four-year college. Apparently it has everything else, so that the omission is hurtful to community pride. Whether this void should be filled by Minnesota taxpayers or by Rochester residents is another matter.

As for the medical school proposal it is one of three before the legislature for expansion of medical training facilities in Minnesota.

The Mayo Foundation proposal involves admitting the first 40 students beginning in the fall of 1972. It estimates the annual cost at $16,000. It is asking the state of Minnesota for half of that, the federal government $4,000 ($9,000 for out-of-state students) and $4,000 is to come from private philanthropy. Within five years the school would need a $12 million building; we have not been advised as to who would pay for that.

No funds for this school would come from Mayo Clinic patients. It will be of interest to recall that all properties and operations of the Mayo Foundation, Mayo Clinic and Mayo Graduate School of Medicine have been consolidated into the Mayo Foundation, a nonprofit, charitable and education corporation. As such it pays property taxes in Olmsted County — about $2.5 million annually — but it doesn't pay one cent in state and federal income taxes. Its first public financial statement revealed that in 1969 it had revenue of $61.4 million, an increase from $58.2 million in 1968. Of the income of $61.4 million, $55.7 million was from "medical services." Net income, after expenses, was $2.6 million.

IN A PREVIOUS editorial we examined the Rochester, Duluth and St. Paul medical school proposals and concluded that the St. Paul proposal "seems less likely to create still another autonomous, ever-more-expensive institution of higher learning — of which the state has quite enough already."

Health services training and accessibility is an enormously complex subject and the decision is not an easy one, but we should all be grateful to Dr. Sullivan for separating that question from the proposed branch of the university. — A.B.

Eventually flag thieves will know

Springtime apparently has hatched, among other things, a little band bent on preventing the flag of the United States of America from flying in Winona. They are stealing flags, dirtying them, burning them, etc.

Since one of them called us to tell us about a recent desecration, we presume they want to be noticed — a typical ploy for social deviants.

Their objective also, we presume, is to anger and insult. They are succeeding.

In the process, they are also causing a well of disappointment. The flags in Levee Plaza were the gifts of organizations, so the thefts there are disappointing in a special way to a large number of persons.

On their apprehension we trust that the authorities will take due notice of the crimes and administer appropriate justice.

If these sneak thieves are not apprehended we are confident that one day they will realize that life under the United States flag is not so bad and that they will make amends by proudly displaying it. — A.B.

Chinese reverberations

LONDON — The Daily Express, last unreconstructed voice of the Empire and British xenophobia, had a headline in Chinese at the top of page one this morning. Next to it, in English, there was reassurance: "Don't worry—it's just another way of saying The Express is inside China." An Express reporter was there with the Ping-Pong players.

The Western reaction to the sudden rays of warmth from Peking is almost as interesting as the Chinese policy change itself. In Britain as in the United States, there is a gush of fascinated enthusiasm. In London, Thomas Cook & Son Ltd. has begun talking about tourist excursions, and one gentleman has written to the papers about the possible "unconscious flash of insight" in Puccini's last opera, "Turandot," which takes place in imperial China and includes characters named Ping and Pong.

THERE IS, of course, an element of incongruity and sheer delight in the attention being paid to the Ping-Pong players. The sight of that superbly raggle-taggle American team entering China, with all the individual hair styles and opinions, would be enough to cheer up anyone who was afraid of creeping conformity in the United States.

The somewhat manic quality of the episode does not conceal its serious lessons. It reminds us that today, as in the days of Nikita Khrushchev, a human gesture can affect even the most frozen of official relationships. It demonstrates the unfulfilled fascination in the West with mainland China, the last unexplored country.

The positive public reaction in the United States could have its most immediate impact on official Washington. For it is bound to be seen as a vindication of those in the American government who have been working doggedly, and without any real hope of seeing early results, for an improvement of relations with communist China.

THOSE IN the government who have been thinking about the problem of relations with China during the long arid years would not take a terribly optimistic view of the possibilities even now. They know that our commitment to Taiwan inhibits any comfortable resolution of the most urgent problem, the United Nations membership issue. We cannot just deliver Taiwan to the mainland Government.

But there are possibilities by way of constructing a relationship. One group of American experts, for example, believes that the United States could ease the Taiwan problem by saying that ultimately we see the island as part of one China—but that the means of reaching that end is for discussion between Peking and the Nationalists on Taiwan themselves.

And there is one deeply serious interest that Washington and Peking have potentially in common. That is the maintenance of Japan as a non-nuclear power.

These are all profound and difficult questions. The important thing is that the surface events of the last two weeks have made a start possible—and, most significant, have opened the way in domestic political terms for the United States government to take further steps.

PRESIDENT NIXON has been in a unique position, as a conservative and a Republican, to risk gestures toward communist China. He deserves and will get credit for taking that risk. And as a President who worries about public opinion in the most immediate way, he is bound to be encouraged to try more by the reaction.

After all that has happened in Indochina since 1963, Americans hardly long for peace any less. The favorable response to this flirtation with the great communist power of Asia—the one whose influence we once were supposed to be blocking in Vietnam—might even begin to convince Richard Nixon that the public would respond with overwhelming relief and gratitude if he ended American military action in Indochina.

China and post-Viet world

WASHINGTON—According to well-informed Ping-Pong circles, the United States and China are now turning a "new page" or beginning a "new era" or something like that, but the China experts here are suspicious of all sweeping clichés.

They think Peking has decided that Washington really is going to get out of Vietnam, and that officials in Mainland China want to be in on the talks about postwar arrangements.

ALSO, the talks on nuclear arms control, on a limited Middle East agreement to open the Suez Canal, on the power struggle between East and West Pakistan, and on the future of Japan are all reaching an important phase, and the experts believe Peking wants to be sure that it has a voice in shaping events in this vast area, rather than leaving all this to the leadership of the United States and the Soviet Union.

There is general agreement within the Washington government and the embassies representing governments with missions in Peking that mainland China's sudden change of tone is both hopeful and significant, but officials tend to regard the switch as a tactical move rather than a basic change in Peking's policy.

In fact, the very suddenness of the Chinese move is a warning to the experts not to be too dogmatic about what it means. As President Nixon said in his second annual world report a few weeks ago, a new Asia is emerging; the United States is making substantial cuts in its military forces in Vietnam, Japan, Okinawa, Korea, Thailand and the Philippines; new regional economic arrangements are still being made by the nations of the Pacific basin, and in view of all this, it would be surprising if Peking wants to watch these developments in isolation.

BUT BEYOND that, the China experts are not willing to predict with any confidence. They agree that Peking would not have started smiling if it really thought Nixon was going to invade North Vietnam or try to establish permanent military bases in Southeast Asia. They also agree that Peking's move was probably made to minimize Moscow's influence in the postwar settlements rather than to indicate any new spirit of friendliness toward Washington.

Accordingly, modest short-term interpretations are about all the experts are willing to venture. They are pleased with the change of attitude. They are hoping it will persuade Hanoi to make the necessary moves to get President Nixon to carry out his offer of total withdrawal from Vietnam, but beyond that, they have little to say.

Meanwhile, President Nixon is being given credit here for making it easy for Peking to take a more cooperative attitude. Despite his long record of hostility toward Peking before he came into the White House, he has recently been offering them an honorable compromise and recognizing their place as one of the great nations in the world.

"IN THIS DECADE," he said in his last world report, "there will be no more important challenge than that of drawing the People's Republic of China into a constructive relationship with the world community. We see no advantage to us in the hostility between the Soviet Union and communist China. We do not seek any. We will do nothing to sharpen that conflict . . . nor to encourage it.

"We are prepared to establish a dialogue with Peking. We cannot accept its ideological precepts or the notion that communist China must exercise hegemony over Asia . . . our attitude is public and clear. We will continue to honor our commitments (to Nationalist China) and to the security of our Asian allies (including Nationalist China). An honorable relationship with Peking cannot be constructed at their expense.

Thus the problem of the "two Chinas" remains, as it has for many years. Twenty-one years ago, it seemed that there was another chance to compose the differences between Washington and Peking and bring Communist China into the United Nations, but the chance was lost.

"I have now come to believe," said John Foster Dulles in 1950, "that the United Nations will best serve the cause of peace if its assembly is representative of what the world actually is, and not merely representative of the parts which we like . . ."

"If the communist government of China in fact proves its ability to govern China without serious domestic resistance, then it too should be admitted to the United Nations."

That was a whole generation ago, and communist China is still outside the U.N., but it has a real chance this year to get the votes for membership, and this may be one more reason why Peking is changing its tune.

Muskie may be beating himself

WASHINGTON — The race for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination has been turned inside out, not to say upside down, by the progressive weakening of the front-runner's position so long held by Sen. Edmund Muskie.

To see the man who in the early going had it in the bag suddenly stumble and spill out its contents is not, in itself, any great novelty. But the affair of Ed Muskie of Maine is something else altogether. For if Edmund Muskie is to be beaten for the nomination the author of his defeat will almost surely be Edmund Muskie himself.

INDEED, this observer is prepared to go so far as to assert that the most important debate now going on among all the Democratic presidential aspirants is that between the Muskie of yesterday and the Muskie of today.

Overnight he made a national name for himself in 1968 as the Democratic Vice Presidential candidate by offering an unbroken impression to the public of a strong, a dignified, a decisive and a moderate and responsible politician — and one with a sense of humor.

Today, the new Muskie (if one must be so unkind as to say it plainly) is going out of his way to present an almost-totally opposite picture of himself.

The Muskie who helped prepare and resolutely stood by a moderately firm position on Vietnam in 1968, for illustration, is now no farther away than the span of a man's hand from the irresponsible neo-isolationism and peace-at-any-priceism of, for example, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

AGAIN, the Muskie who in 1968 stoutly refused to play a politics of petulance and pettiness is now, on occasion at least, playing a politics of outright puerility. One example here is his open-ended attack upon the Federal Bureau of Investigation for alleged widespread "spying" on "Earth Day" conservation rallies of last April.

There are two things wrong with this absurd charge. The first is that it has been demonstrably smashed by the Department of Justice. Such "spying" as was going on was in selected places where known revolutionaries and riot-makers were in attendance and where trouble was, therefore, quite sensibly feared. One rally where this "spying" was involved, for instance, was precisely the one in which Sen. Muskie himself unwittingly shared a platform with such celebrated American "conservationists" as a man long identified by the Department of Justice as a communist leader, and another who was convicted in the conspiracy trial of the infamous Chicago Seven.

There is no doubt whatever that Sen. Muskie has nothing in common with the purposes of such men as these. But there is also no doubt whatever that the presence of the FBI agents was intended to protect, and certainly not to harass or "report on," such as Sen. Muskie himself.

THE SECOND thing wrong with running for President on such trivia as this is that while the people will tolerate it from senators hunting only headlines they don't expect this sort of thing from a man who expects to be President.

The best-possible evidence that Muskie is indeed slipping badly can be stated very simply. Sen. Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts, who had flatly said a dozen times that he would not run for the Presidency in 1972, has now turned 180 degrees. Now he observes that he is keeping his mind open. An "open mind" here is most surely closing in on the chances of Edmund Muskie.

Uncle Sam looks to south

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa—Any South American tour forces certain conclusions that are best reported immediately, even from another continent.

The first conclusion is that there has been a major change in relations with North America. The Monroe Doctrine's inherent philosophy that developed into an effort to exclude foreign powers from a market where the U.S.A. sought outlets for its capital surplus is now wholly outdated. One wry joke heard in Latin lands is: "The Alliance for Progress must be succeeding; we are getting a better class of dictator."

JUSCELINO Kubitschek, former Brazilian president, says: "Kennedy made a profound psychological error in creating the alliance. He should have consulted Latin nations but, in effect, he told them: 'I will do this.' Johnson forgot Latin America—except the Dominican Republic. Nixon won't even hear of it. No popular feeling exists here that the U.S. really wants to help this continent."

Kubitschek proposes that the U.S.A. give no money to Latin countries but should help finance national development plans through necessary technical assistance.

This, in fact, is already Nixon's policy as expressed in last month's State Department report which suggested "more effective development assistance, set increasingly in a multilateral framework."

The wisest course would be for Washington, which insures them, to urge U.S. companies to try whenever possible to enter into joint

C. L. Sulzberger

South American enterprises with such friendly nations as West Germany, Italy or Japan and also accede whenever the host country wishes a majority share of the enterprise.

AMERICANS have learned two other lessons: That the United States cannot rely on Latin America as a market for its military equipment or as a mirror for its ideology. The southern countries have turned increasingly to other weapons sources because the U. S. kept offering inadequate material. Now the size of U.S. military missions steadily shrinks.

True democrats like Kubitschek or Frei in Chile are disappointed with U.S. philosophical posture. Kubitschek says: "The U.S. should really lead the democratic world, supporting all who fight for democratic institutions. It should give ideological and moral leadership not material leadership."

Traditional U.S. efforts to control South American mineral wealth and dominate industry cannot swiftly be erased and the tendency of many U.S. communities to live in self-chosen ghettos of comfort amid their Latin fellows has heightened the jealousy felt by poor for rich.

THE FIRST STEP, in the interests of everyone concerned, is to energize the moribund consultation committee on Latin America and help Washington's allies raise their profile while the U.S. lowers its own. It is obvious what the basic long-range problems are:

One—to use every means of encouraging the southern continent to open up its largely unexploited interior; two—to discourage reliance on single products; three—to persuade and educate on the need for population control; four—to ease outside assistance for the massive cities that have sprung up like cancerous mushrooms and suck in a rural population that finds even miserable slums superior to the outlook. The hinterlands itself must be improved.

Keep prodding on interstate highways

From an editorial in Albert Lea Tribune

While we can see progress on the Interstate Highway system in Freeborn County, it is still a painful fact that we still have a long time to wait for the completion of the system.

The latest predictions call for completion by 1978, "if no unforeseen delays occur."

While it is nice to have I-90 completed this far, the only real value it has is convenience for local residents along its route. The full economic benefits that should accompany the interstate will not be realized until a driver can travel the full length of the highway.

If memory serves us correctly, the original intent of the system was to provide a system of express highways that would provide speedy cross-country travel without having to travel through urban areas.

However, the big city interests have been able to siphon off a substantial amount of the interstate highway fund to build freeways into the large metropolitan areas. As a result, we sit out here in the outstate areas patiently waiting for our interstate highway to be completed while the bulk of the funds are being spent in the ultra-expensive construction of superhighways in the metropolitan area.

This area will not begin to reap the long-proclaimed benefits of the interstate highway system until it has indeed become a working rather than just a proposed system.

Model Cities program separates Seattle, Interstate 90

Associated Press Writer
Interstate 90 rolls virtually unbroken hundreds of miles through the State of Washington, along the arid Columbia River Gorge and up over the Cascade Mountains.

heart of Seattle, having run headon into some residents who think that their homes are being ripped down and neighborhoods destroyed so suburbanites can have an easy drive to work.

The dispute is just one example of a neighborhood's seeking control over its own destiny, and finding a voice, in this case through the Model Cities program.

I-90 would come off Lake Washington right through part of Seattle's Model Cities neighborhood. The route has been mapped for eight years; most of the nearly 300 homes in the right-of-way have been taken over.

But still there is no construction; and 55,000 vehicles a day wend their slow, tortuous way over a 30-year-old highway and a four-lane bridge between Seattle and its eastern bedroom suburbs.

Walt Hundley, Seattle's Model Cities director, says: "We're trying to hijack the highway department for day care, tradeoffs of land for housing developments, parks and other facilities in return for despoiling our community."

This fight is over a black area, but blacks are not alone in their dismay over urban highways.

Bob Duffe lives on the predominantly white South Side of St. Louis. His neighborhood is in the path of Interstate 44.

Claim doctors must be 'warm, understanding'

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The number of malpractice suits could be cut dramatically if doctors showed their patients more warmth, understanding and consideration, two attorneys and a senator have told a meeting of neurosurgeons.

Most malpractice suits, the attorneys said, result from mechanical, cold and sometimes rude treatment afforded patients, who turn to the courts in anger when medical procedures are not wholly successful.

Former Fargo policeman pleads guilty of burglary

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — A former Fargo policeman, Walter Engesetter, 35, of Glynndon, Minn., pleaded guilty Monday in Cass County District Court to burglary.

During Dr. Arendt's lecture the planning committee has arranged for student participant special events in French, German, Russian/Polish and Spanish. Panels will be held covering the study of foreign languages. Today, students abroad and foreign students on campus. At 11:15 a "How to Do" session will be held in the college television center with excerpts from the Tri-College International Night program.

"Three-fourths of all professional liability suits could be avoided by more sensitive treatment from doctors," said Richard M. Markus of Cleveland, Ohio, president of the American Trial Lawyers Association.

Bob Duffe can't do anything about it. And he's chief administrative aide to Mayor Alfonso Cervantes.

At the recommendation of Assistant Cass County States Attorney David Bossart, sentencing was deferred for three years and Engesetter was put on three years probation.

Speaking before a panel on professional liability at a meeting of the American Association of Neurological Surgeons, Markus said his clients who file malpractice suits complain most frequently about how they were treated as human beings and not how they were treated as patients.

"A typical claimant who comes to my office gives a long tale about the doctor's receptionist who was rude, the secretary who was cold and the doctor who won't answer questions," he said. "Then they just incidentally tell me about their medical complaints."

Not only in Seattle, but also in Hartford, Washington D.C., Chicago, Shreveport, La., Baltimore, Boston, New York, Cleveland, Philadelphia and Providence, citizen protests have blocked construction of interstate highway segments which the federal Department of Transportation considers "completely essential to an integrated national system."

Calhoun marries L.A. divorcee

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Actor Rory Calhoun, 48, wed a 29-year-old Los Angeles divorcee in a brief civil ceremony Monday at a Las Vegas chapel.

King is married to the former Marilyn Carlson, Marshall, Minn., and the couple have a son, one year old. The Kings plan on moving to Winona this week where they will live in Lakeview Manor Apartments.

Someone has humorously said that until holding tanks, diapers, or some other equipment can be attached to the thousands upon thousands of fish and birds along the Mississippi River vessels should not be hampered by such stringent anti-pollution rules. And that's no joke.

The actor's new bride is Susan K. Langley, a former journalist who was divorced last month in Melbourne, Australia.

The city of Agade was discovered 12 miles south of Baghdad during three months of excavation. The Belgians hope to return to Iraq to complete their work later this year.

Clown wants to join 'friends'

By ARTHUR L. SRB
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Zozo the Clown wore a sad face.

Despite rather elaborate plans, only a solitary newsman showed up for a news conference at which Zozo announced he will be a candidate for the state Senate in 1972.

"I can't understand this," he said. "Is it always this hard to talk to newsmen?"

Zozo, whose real name is Loyal Freymiller, said he is "dead serious" about running against Democratic Sen. Fred Rissler of Madison next year, and is prepared to meet any criticism of his occupation.

In addition to working professionally as a clown, Freymiller is a door-to-door salesman.

"As far as I'm concerned, they've got a bunch of clowns over there now," Freymiller said, pointing toward the state Capitol from his hotel room.

Freymiller 29, hires himself out as a clown for supermarket openings, carnivals and the like. He anticipates more problems from possible Republican candidates than he does from Rissler, an eight-year Senate veteran and Democratic minority leader.

"If I get through the Republican primary, I'll have no trouble with Rissler," Freymiller predicted.

"He's been patting the radicals at the university on the back," Freymiller said of Rissler. "What they need is a good, swift kick in the pants." The new candidate said campus dissent is "just one of the 10 million issues" he plans to use in his first campaign for political office. He said he agrees "wholeheartedly" with GOP Sen. Gordon Roseleip of Darlington that "the communists should be kicked out of the University of Wisconsin."

In addition to Roseleip, Freymiller said Republicans he numbers among his friends are Atty. Gen. Robert Warren and Sens. James Swan of Elkhorn, Walter Chilsen of Wausau and Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek. "I hope Rissler realizes he's in for a battle," Freymiller said. The candidate said taxes and state spending will be two of the major issues in the 1972 campaign.

"They ought to cut the University of Wisconsin budget in half," he said. "There's too much waste."

He also called for an investigation of procedures used to commit persons to state mental institutions.

"Some people have been almost railroaded into these institutions when they have more common sense than the doctors who are treating them," he added.

Freymiller said one reason he is running for office is the lack of confidence he has in some legislators.

"I want to be an honest politician," he said. "That might disqualify me for the job."

Penn Central wanted to aid its 'imaginative' bookkeeper

By H.L. SCHWARTZ III
WASHINGTON (AP) — A confidential 1969 memo from the files of the Penn Central railroad sought a pay raise for a bookkeeper, praising his "imaginative" work which a federal agency indicated helped conceal impending financial disaster.

The memo cited C.S. Hill, then manager of Penn Central's accounting division. He has since risen to controller and is one of the few men still working for the railroad who were in high positions during the plunge toward bankruptcy proceedings.

The Penn Central filed for reorganization under the federal bankruptcy laws June 21, 1970. The railroad has a new top management team under control of five court-appointed trustees.

The memo praising Hill is one of the highlights of a 1,500-page report on Penn Central issued Monday by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The 12-pound report discloses nothing sensational that has not been reported previously. But its wealth of private memos, notes, letters, reports and meeting minutes provides the most comprehensive picture to date of the Penn Central demise, plus a rare glimpse into the executive suite. In one exchange of letters, a former director wrote in December 1969 that facts were being withheld from the public. But his plea for complete disclosure was spurned by the chairman of the board.

Main points of the report are that the Penn Central continued to pay huge dividends while its troubles increased; that these troubles were concealed from the public and that contrary to statements by some officials the line's acquisition of nonrailroad properties generated little operating cash.

Unlike a series of earlier reports by the House Banking Committee the ICC study makes no charges of wrongdoing. An agency spokesman said the ICC may publish conclusions after completion of a second report later this year. The memo concerning Hill was written by former controller W.S. Cook to David C. Bevan, then finance chairman. Dated Oct. 5, 1967, the memo sought a raise in Hill's pay from $25,500 to $27,500.

"He is extremely creative, is an excellent manager, is very cost-conscious," wrote Cook. "His imaginative accounting is adding millions of dollars annually to our reported net income."

Thomas J. Russo, who wrote this section of the report, said the memo was evidence "that the Penn Central was 'earning profits' in the accounting offices rather than in operations."

The director who pleaded for full public disclosure of Penn Central's condition was William L. Day, chairman of the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Co.

In a letter to Chairman Stuart C. Saunders Dec. 1, 1969, Day suggested "exposing the railroad in all its nakedness to the public" in hopes of gaining government sympathy.

Day said that through reporting consolidated operations under the railroad's parent holding company, "We have been tending to cover up the poor results from the railroad operation rather than exposing them."

He also complained some directors were not being informed of major transactions.

In a Dec. 8 reply, Saunders said the Penn Central situation as known publicly already was "bleak enough to achieve most of the results that we need from the point of view of legislative and regulatory agencies."

"If we go too far in this regard," he added, "we also get ourselves in greater trouble so far as our financing is concerned."

Chopper pilot upset with war demoted

SAIGON (AP) — Lt. Col. Frank Miller, a veteran of two wars, wanted his opinions about Vietnamization to get back to the President of the United States.

So 43-year-old Frank Miller talked to the press during the North Vietnamese siege of Fire Base 6 earlier this month. He said the Laotian invasion was a failure, and then he flew television cameramen in his helicopter to film napalm being dropped around the besieged base in the central highlands.

The Army said Miller talked out of his field of competence, and relieved him of his command of the 52nd Aviation Battalion supporting South Vietnamese troops at Fire Base 6. He was put in command of Camp Frenzell-Jones, 12 miles northeast of Saigon, a staging area for GIs being sent home. It's a real comedown for a man who commanded 100 helicopters and has been an aviator for half his 25 years in the service.

Miller is serving his second tour in Vietnam. He received a Purple Heart for action in Korea.

"I'm not bitter," Miller said today. "I've been a soldier too long. I'll retire within a year to central Florida and lie in the sunshine. I've got 10 months to finish this tour and then I'll retire."

"I wanted my words and facts that I put out to get back to the President of the United States who is getting bad recommendations on Vietnamization and how effective it is and the time schedules involved. It is working to some extent but not as rapidly as President Nixon thinks or is being told."

Psychiatrists disagree on pot

CHICAGO (AP) — Two psychiatrists say they have found that young people who smoke marijuana in moderate to heavy amounts may develop serious psychological problems. But two other leading psychiatrists expressed doubts about their report, published in the April 19 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"I think they and the AMA should be put in jail," said one critic, Dr. Solomon H. Snyder, professor of psychiatry and pharmacology at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

He and Dr. Richard C. Piliard, associate professor of psychology at Boston University, questioned whether the study presented sufficient evidence to prove a direct connection between marijuana smoking and mental illness.

The authors of the report, Drs. Harold Kolansky and William T. Moore of the Philadelphia Association for Psychoanalysis, presented their observations of 38 young patients who used marijuana and who, they say, previously had shown no signs of mental illness.

They said marijuana smoking in the United States "has now reached alarming proportions," with estimates ranging from 12 to 20 million young users.

The psychiatrists added, "We have noted the openness of marijuana smoking, which may indicate a trend toward more universal use of the drug."

From 1965 to 1970, they wrote, there was a sizable increase in referrals to them of individuals who developed psychological problems after they started smoking marijuana.

They reported on 20 males and 18 females, ages 13 to 24. Most smoked marijuana two or more times a week and smoked two or more marijuana cigarettes each time.

Report military drug abuse on the upswing

By JOHN CHADWICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee staff report said today drug abuse is on the upswing in the armed forces but rarely occurs in combat. "We did not find the use of drugs had a significant, direct impact upon the military mission of the armed services," said investigators for the subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics who visited bases in the United States, Europe and the Far East.

"While we were made aware of rare, isolated instances where marijuana had been used in combat situations in Vietnam, we saw no evidence that any mission or operation had been jeopardized by drug abuse," they said.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said the report shows the military is "confronted with a critical and epidemic problem" of drug abuse.

His conclusion was buttressed by two House members, Reps. Morgan F. Murphy, D-Ill., and Robert H. Steel, R-Conn., who said in Saigon Monday: "The problem has reached epidemic proportions."

Sent by the House Foreign Affairs Committee to Turkey, Iran, Laos, Thailand and South Vietnam to look into the military drug problem, the two congressmen estimated 10 to 15 per cent of the U.S. troops in Vietnam—30,000 to 40,000 men—use high-grade heroin.

The Senate subcommittee staff said there is a "paucity of hard data" on drug abuse in the armed forces but concluded that in the Army, the largest of the services and the one with the most draftees, the problem has been increasing in recent years and "a growing proportion of servicemen are entering the service with a history of drug use."

Hughes said the military has to come to grips with the problem of effective treatment for users of hard drugs like heroin, whether they acquired the habit before or after entering the service.

As a result, he said, "thousands of unrehabilitated addicts and abusers are being cast back onto civilian society to be cared for, usually with the added burden of less-than-honorable discharge."

REA shipments halt when 300 workers strike

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—All REA truck shipments to and from Minneapolis-St. Paul were halted Monday when some 300 Minnesota employees struck REA, formerly the Railway Express Agency.

The nationwide strike by members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks was over alleged violations of BRAC contracts with REA.

Robert C. Schleske, REA regional manager in St. Paul, said the strikers included truck drivers and terminal employees. About 175 of those on strike are employed in the Twin Cities area.

A union spokesman said the strike was caused by REA lowering our wages and violating a seniority system we've had for years."

Before You Buy...

By Margaret Dana

What type cookware to buy?

Q. I plan to be married in the near future and would like to have information concerning cookware. One person recommended Teflon, another says stainless steel is better, and others say aluminum. Please give me your opinion. I want cookware that will last and give the best possible service.

A. There is really no truthful answer as to which one is "best." It depends too much on what you, personally, want and need from the pots and pans, and how you treat them.

Teflon is a surface which is applied to metal to prevent sticking of food. It is useful, but has its drawbacks. Consumers writing me about it say it needs renewing too soon after being bought. This may be due to improper treatment. As for stainless steel and aluminum, their durability is equal for equal construction. Aluminum is lighter but stains easily. Stainless steel stays bright, but is not as good a heat conductor. An efficient kitchen probably needs some of each.

Q. I am enclosing a clipping of a product I am interested in buying. If it works as they claim, it would be wonderful for me. But I need to know how these sauna belts work and if they are worth the cost.

A. Bulletins received from various Better Business Bureaus say they receive many inquiries on this product and many complaints.

The San Francisco BBB has especially investigated this product, which is made in San Francisco, and states: "We find the advertising questionable, primarily because it suggests it is the belt alone which causes 'inches off.' We question the claim that 'this is the fastest, most-effective waistline reducer ever developed,' and question the two 'magic waistline reducing exercises.' It is well established that exercise alone will not reduce body girth... unless accompanied by diet regulation or restriction of caloric intake."

Q. What is the shelf life of an opened jar of peanut butter or jelly or catsup?

A. This depends first on the temperature of the kitchen and the type of closure on the jar. Peanut butter is fairly invulnerable, keeping for weeks without mold or mildew, even when the kitchen is warm. Jelly can spoil fairly quickly, if not tightly closed, and the temperature is high and humidity present. But, again, it will keep for weeks under favorable conditions. Catsup darkens if left out in a warm room after being opened. But spoilage is not apt to come for months.

Q. Why is it that at stores where I buy yard goods, and they are measured on the device that automatically registers length, I never get full measure. If they measured it by a yardstick as they used to, I could tell what I was getting.

A. The yardage measuring devices are among the things that your Weights and Measures Department checks regularly. If you believe the device is not accurate you should notify this department in your city. It may be listed in the phone book under "Department of Licenses," or it may be under "Department of Markets," etc. But you have one in your city, and the people will appreciate your cooperation in letting them know of measuring defects.

Q. Will you please tell me how we can be sure any of the tuna fish now on store shelves is fit to eat? Most of us are afraid to buy tuna now since the mercury scare.

A. In December, 1970, Dr. Charles C. Edwards, Food and Drug Administration Commissioner, stated at a news conference regarding the danger of mercury in tuna fish that there is no health hazard involved in eating the tuna now held on retail shelves or in households. He said that even the highest samples of mercury present in canned tuna pose no risk of acute toxicity, and that industry and government programs of checking all tuna for amounts over the safety line of 0.5 parts per million of fish parts will eliminate any danger from high rates of consumption over long periods of time.

He also said, "We are confident that the American consumer is now and will remain safe from risks of mercury poisoning."

Q. Some potatoes bought recently have a red color of the skin. Is it safe to boil or bake them with the skins on?

A. There are two ways by which potatoes get red skins. One is by nature, since the famous variety with red skins comes that way naturally and harmlessly. The other way is by application of a harmless red dye to potatoes—to make them more appealing to consumers. In neither case are the skins harmful, but many consumers ers object to the dyed potatoes since the dye often leaks through to the potato and onto the hands of those preparing them in the kitchen.

Dear Abby:

Man she's living with doesn't want marriage

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem is the man I am living with. I love him very much. We have two kids and we aren't married yet. He always has some excuse. Sometimes he stays away from home a week at a time. The only time I am sure of where he is when they detain him in jail. He makes good money and he's not stingy with it.

I hate to leave him because everything we have is paid for. And like I said, I love the guy. Write me back and tell me what to do.

—UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: It's my guess that you've already decided that living with him is better than living without him. Face it, as long as you love the guy you'll always find a reason for not leaving him.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 18, and she's engaged to a young man who is 22. They want a June wedding, and here is where we disagree.

They picked a dirty old run-down hall with outdoor rest rooms. Also, they want a justice of the peace to marry them, and a reception later. For this they want bridesmaids and ushers and my daughter wants a white gown and veil.

We are well able to give them a beautiful wedding in a church, with a minister, and a dinner and reception at a nice club.

There is no sentimental reason for their choosing this dirty run-down hall. It doesn't even have an organ or piano. Our daughter was raised in the Lutheran church and her fiancé says he's an atheist.

We just can't see it their way. Can you help? —HAVE PROBLEMS

DEAR PROBLEMS: It would appear that your daughter is anti-establishment and wants a wedding in keeping with her sentiments. If you insist that she either have a traditional type wedding or the kind she wants without you, prepare to be excluded.

DEAR ABBY: I am caught in the middle. My mother and my aunt are both on me to take my cousin to the prom. They got me to take her to one school dance and I have never been teased so much in all my life. I was the laughing stock of the school.

I told my mother she would have to kill me dead before I would take my cousin to the prom and my mother said, "Well, that can be arranged." What can I do? —COUSIN

DEAR COUSIN: Get a friend of yours to take her. That way you'll be off the hook, your cousin will have a date for the prom and everybody will be happy.

DEAR ABBY: There is a school teacher in Hamilton, Ohio who is either very mean or very stupid.

She is constantly asking the kids to write something about their dads. What they do, how much daddy means to them, etc. She has asked the kids to make up poems about their fathers, to write an imaginary letter to their fathers, etc.

Yesterday my son came home and told me that this teacher gave the class another "father" assignment. This time each one had to stand up and describe his father. One kid, with tears in his eyes said, "My parents are divorced, and I don't remember my father very well."

Abby, doesn't that teacher know that some children have no fathers thru death or divorce?

I hope you think this is important enough to use. —OHIO MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I do, and I shall.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For WEDNESDAY, April 21

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: This coming year brings you to some definite resolution of whatever conflict has developed. In matters where you've been permitting other people and their doings to interfere with your personal welfare, you now find your own counsel prevailing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Once past early confusion quite a range of chronic nuisances can be cleared up. You are at peak efficiency now, so make the latter half of the day count.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Today is crowded with countless details but you may not see the pattern distinctly until midday.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Double check your information; avoid false starts and premature actions. As soon as you hit the right groove, the day goes swiftly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your serenity this morning brings all matters into balance, with you in control of small but vital decisions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It's all right to hesitate for a while but when noon is past, get with it, put some schedules together and go.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Now your stewardship over affairs and resources of other people requires definite actions. Keep things simple.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Good humor makes the difference in the morning, then it's a matter of diligence to get a great deal done. A longstanding obstacle is cleared off by nightfall.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Today's minor errands annoy you, but you'll be glad you worked them all out in proper sequence. There's a good lesson to be learned easily now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look and listen; then when you're sure, fix a direct line and pursue it to a logical conclusion. Personal attention to details is more important than usual.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The morning is for last minute troubleshooting. In the afternoon move to settle long-standing deals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Compromise on minor points, smoothing out cross talk, giving yourself a chance to see things in deeper perspective.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Whatever your plans or needs, somebody nearby is able to help. Think first, then make your request for collaboration.

EARLY TREATMENT

LONDON (AP) — Early treatment cuts the death toll from cancer, a new British survey shows.

A study of 100,000 people carried out in 1961 concluded that about half the patients treated early for cancer during the year survived for at least another five years. In cases where treatment began late, only 8 per cent of the men and 17 per cent of the women survived 5 years.

COMPLAINING THIEF

BECKENHAM, England (AP) — Philip Goodhart, a conservative Member of Parliament, got himself re-elected to the House of Commons in 1970, but the year had its downs too, he tells constituents.
"As far as I was concerned, the most surprising single event was the telephone call I received in the early hours of an autumn morning, when the man who had broken into our house a few days before rang up and complained about the quality of the objects he had stolen . . ."

A wide home-made canvas belt brings blue jeans up-to-date

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Fashion arbiters might argue the relative merits of the gold rush look, the gaucho look, the pants suit look, and the shorts look, but, on the home range, young people are prepared for anything in trusty denim — long or short blue-jeans.
Blue jeans might be brought up to date with a wide belt that can be made of canvas or denim to wear at the waist or hip (for about $2). Canvas and denim boots, shoes and other accessories are going to be a big hit come spring.
A pretty seven-inch belt made of pink canvas and trimmed with canvas flower appliques was a do-it-yourself project for one girl. It was cut double and facing was used between fabric, but you could face a single width of the fabric. Pinking shears can make the flowers look decorative and scalloping sheers provide a handsome edge to the canvas. New quick-clip shears may be used on small appliques and for quick clipping of threads. Appliques may be outlined with wool yarn.

If you work from a pattern, make the design on brown paper and cut it out. Before stitching appliques you might pin or cellophane tape each flower in place while you experiment with placement of the designs. A stiffer used as facing gives the belt greater body.

You might prefer your belt unadorned. Or you might prefer your name applied on it, as big name fashion designers are doing on dresses, scarves, luggage and towels.
Cut a pattern out of brown paper until you get a size that fits the belt. One big name on the back of the belt might do it. Or you might prefer smaller names in an all-over motif. Use water colors or crayons to write the small names and embroider over them. Or you might like to use initials.
A shoe lace may be used for a closure lending a decorative effect. Punch four holes in each side of the canvas. You can stitch them with yarn to match colors used on the belt.

Practice and precise timing can make a feathery soufflé

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer
Everyone who likes to cook dreams of making the perfect soufflé, but many hesitate for fear of winding up with a fallen failure.
The irony of it is you don't need to know too much about the culinary art to learn how to make a fine, fluffy soufflé.
The secret lies in precise timing when the soufflé is cooking and in serving at once when the dish is ready.

The egg whites which make the soufflé puff up are beaten to incorporate as much air as possible, before they are blended into the rest of the soufflé mix. The oven heat makes the air globules expand and gives the soufflé its feathery texture.
There are two general categories of soufflé: one made from meat, fish, cheese or vegetables which often serves as the main course of the meal. And the dessert soufflé: made from pureed fruits or nuts or with liqueur.

There are a few basic rules to follow in making a soufflé, which should guide you past the pitfalls.
The soufflé dish can be the classic French one with fluted sides, but a glass, oven-proof casserole will do nicely. Just make sure you chill the receptacle in the refrigerator first and rub the inside well with butter.
A soufflé should be cooked in a preheated oven set at 375 degrees F., and certainly no more than 400 degrees.
Most French cooks prefer their soufflés with the inside almost liquid so that it will serve as a sauce for the firmer outer edges. But Americans prefer theirs cooked evenly throughout.
For a French soufflé cooked American-style, try this recipe, made with pureed chestnuts and chocolate.

Serve spoon bread with pork chops

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

There are two different kinds of spoon bread in the world. There is the basic kind, rich with the homespun flavor of cornmeal, eggs, butter and milk. And there's the kind that calls for an extra ingredient — tomato, green chilis, corn, pimiento, rice, cheese or bacon.
Today we're harking back to the basic kind — and it's a sturdy variety, not so soft as some when it's spooned onto plates.

This Sturdy Spoon Bread is perfect to serve for dinner as an accompaniment to baked pork chops and a green vegetable. For attractive color contrast, though, you might add a parsley-ringed cherry tomato or spiced red crabapple to each plate.

STURDY SPOON BREAD
2½ cups milk
1 cup enriched white cornmeal
1 teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon baking powder
2 tablespoons butter, cut up
3 large eggs, separated

Butter entire inside surface of a round 1½-quart glass casserole (7½ by 2½ inches) or similar utensil such as a soufflé dish.
In a medium saucepan over moderate heat, heat ½ cups of the milk until bubbles appear around the edge so milk is scalding-hot.
In a small mixing bowl stir together the cornmeal, salt and remaining 1 cup cold milk; gradually stir into scalding-hot milk. Stirring constantly, cook just until thickened and sputtery liquid will be absorbed by cornmeal. Remove from heat; stir in baking powder and butter.
In a large mixing bowl beat egg yolks until thickened and lemon color; gradually stir in cornmeal mixture.
With a clean beater in a medium mixing bowl beat egg whites until they hold stiff straight peaks when beater is slowly withdrawn; fold into cornmeal mixture.
Turn into prepared casserole. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 15 minutes; reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake until puffed and browned — 30 to 35 minutes longer. Serve at once or spoon bread will fall. Remove spoon bread from casserole with a large serving spoon; offer with pats of butter.
Makes 6 to 8 servings.

State patrol investigates three crashes

Three separate accidents, one of which involved personal injuries, are under investigation by the Minnesota Highway Patrol.

Kenneth Benson, Rushford, Minn., and his passenger, Darrel Volkman, Rushford Rt. 1, were taken to Community Memorial Hospital by Praxel Ambulance where they were treated for cuts and bruises and released after a two-vehicle accident.

According to the highway patrol, the accident occurred at 4:20 p.m. Saturday on Highway 43, 3 1/2 miles north of Hart when the Benson car and one driven by Norbert Jilk, 1257 W. 3rd St., collided.

THE JILK CAR was southbound on the highway, turning into a driveway at the Alvin Brand residence, when the collision occurred with the northbound Benson vehicle, highway patrol officials explained.

Jilk and three other passengers in the Benson car were uninjured; but the 1960 Jilk station wagon was damaged beyond repair and the 1966 Benson hardtop incurred an estimated $600 damage.

At 8:53 a.m. today about $500 damage was incurred by two vehicles involved in a crash on highway 16, one mile north of Hokah, Minn.

According to the patrol, the collision occurred between cars driven by Mrs. Harold Van Gundy, Houston Rt. 2, Minn., and an unidentified driver. The unidentified driver left the car at the scene; but apparently was in a hurry to get to work, patrol authorities explained, and did not leave his name.

THE 1968 VanGundy sedan received $450 damage and the unidentified 1961 model sedan, $50.

At 1:20 a.m. Sunday a doe carrying twin fawns was killed when she jumped in front of a car driven by James Seiber, Minnesota City. The 1969 Seiber hardtop was northbound on Highway 61 and 14, south of Winona, when the accident occurred. Car damage was set at $300.

Highway patrol officials also assisted when a tractor semi-trailer, owned by Fernstroms, Rochester, Minn., and carrying IBM machines, became stuck in the mud on Stockton Hill. The incident occurred at 7:20 a.m. Monday and required the assistance of a local towing firm in order to free the truck in wheel-deep mud on the shoulder of Highway 14.

SMC speaker asks U.S. to set example

Dr. John J. A. McLaughlin, speaking at St. Mary's College Center Monday, stressed the point that man lives in an air and water continuum in which pollution particles can travel great distances. He urged the U.S. to set an example for emerging nations in its management of the environment.

Chairman of the department of biological sciences and director of the Louis Calder Conservation and Ecology Center, Fordham University, McLaughlin discussed the problems of solid waste disposal and the effects of pesticides and insecticides on the environment.

"During the last 10 years we have seen dramatic technical advancements," he said, "but environmental decay also has been unprecedented."
"By 1985, it may be necessary to buy water in the U.S. as is now being done in some parts of the Far East," he concluded.

BRF interstate junction project progresses

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — Norman Swanson, manager of the Federation Co-operative here, reports progress on the project at the junction of Interstate 94 and Highway 54, just east of the city limits.

Water and sewer contracts have been awarded in Brockway and this should give the project area service in October, he said. The cooperative is planning buildings accordingly.

Plans for the restaurant and the service station, cheese, gift house and information center will soon go to contractors for bidding the latter part of April with building to start about May 1. It is further planned to be open for business in October.

The camp grounds will be started in the fall and be ready for business in the spring of 1972.

He also said progress is being made on the Arrowhead Lodge with new financing being planned. They hope to have financing completed by June or July so that construction on the motel can begin this fall.

Plainview juvenile fined $100 on beer charge in Wisconsin

ALMA, Wis. — A 16-year-old Plainview, Minn., boy was charged with possession of beer Monday when he appeared in Buffalo County Criminal Court here before Judge Gary Schostein.

Scott Hall, Plainview Rt. 1, was fined $100, which he paid. The youth was arrested about 11:50 p.m. April 10 by Sheriff Myron Hoch in the Town of Nelson, with a quarter barrel of beer in his possession.

The case had been transferred from juvenile to criminal court.

Estate dispute is court issue

Jury selection was completed this morning and testimony begun in a Winona County District Court lawsuit brought to settle an estate.

Presiding at this first case of the April term of court is Judge Glenn E. Kelley.

The suit has been brought by Mrs. Aida Nienow, Downers Grove, Ill., as administratrix of the estate of her dead husband, Dr. Alfred Nienow, against the First National Bank of Winona, 177 Main St.

MRS. NIENOW is represented in court by Rochester attorney David Bishop, and the bank by Winona attorney Richard H. Darby.

Mrs. Nienow is asking $48,301.68 from the bank, which she claims should be part of her husband's estate but is being held in a guardianship account for Dr. Nienow's mother, Mrs. Minnie Nienow, Rochester.

The money is the result of an auction sale held on a farm owned jointly by Dr. Nienow and his mother, eight miles north of St. Charles. Sold at the May 6, 1968 auction was the livestock and equipment on the farm, which plaintiff's attorney Bishop claims was owned jointly by Dr. Nienow and should go to his only heir, Mrs. Aida Nienow.

Survivors are his wife and one sister, Mrs. Jesse (Phoebe) McAlester, Farmington, Minn.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Fawcett Funeral Home, the Rev. E. Lee Christopherson, First Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 7 p.m. Wednesday until time of services Thursday.

Municipal Court

James A. Bell, 707 E. Broadway, was fined $25 by Judge John D. McGill after pleading guilty to a charge of driving a vehicle without corrective lenses. Bell was arrested at 6:08 p.m. Monday at the intersection of Franklin Street and East Broadway.

FORFEITURES:
David M. Duffy, 429 E. Broadway, $50, speeding, 42 in a 30-mile zone. 10:10 p.m. Friday, West Broadway and Grand Street.

John W. Uhlig, 364 E. Broadway, $25, failure to display current vehicle registration, 3:53 p.m. Friday, Main and West 4th streets.

Michael F. Mulvihill, Elmwood Park, Ill., $20, stop sign violation, 12:05 p.m. March 31, Highway 14 west of St. Mary's College by Minnesota Highway Patrol.

Patricia L. Messenger, Sparta, Wis., $30, improper left turn, 11:20 p.m. April 13, Highway 61-14 at Clark's Lane by Minnesota Highway Patrol.

Richard H. Kahle, Utica, Minn., $20, stop sign violation, $25, no Minnesota driver's license, 11:20 p.m. April 14, Highway 61 and Orrin Street by Minnesota Highway Patrol.

Defendant's attorney Darby, however, claims that the livestock and equipment on the farm were also owned jointly by Dr. Nienow and his mother, noting in his opening argument that she operated the farm herself until 1965, when she retired and moved to Rochester at age 95.

BISHOP began his case this morning by calling George Gentilly, Argo, Ill., the attorney for Dr. Nienow's estate. He testified that Mrs. Aida Nienow and her husband had no children, and that she is his only surviving heir, as well as the administratrix of the estate under Illinois law.

He noted that in his inventory of Dr. Nienow's estate, no mention is made of the St. Charles farm or the proceeds of the auction that was held a week before his death. He had no knowledge of the farm at the time he compiled the inventory, Gentilly said.

The six jurors hearing this case are: Margaret Beech, Lewiston; Mrs. Elaine Burke, rural Plainview; William G. Colclough, Jr., 75 W. Sarnia St.; George Hammond, Winona Rt. 1; Henry Jacobs, Lewiston; and Everett L. Walden, 1880 W. King St.

Paul Fitzgerald, who argued Monday for reduction of the penalty on grounds that jurors were swayed by the current moratorium on executions, said it is invalid to assume that legalities will save the four from death.

There has not been an execution in the United States since 1967. State courts are waiting for a ruling from the U.S. Supreme Court on whether the death penalty is constitutional.

"Many legal observers feel that this Supreme Court will affirm the death penalty," Fitzgerald told newsmen.

"If that happens," he said, Manson and the women could be put to death along with more than 90 persons awaiting execution on San Quentin's Death Row.

Manson and the women, however, face automatic appeals which could delay their deaths as long as five years.

Fitzgerald told the judge a juror confided to him that if he had thought the defendants would actually be executed, he couldn't have voted for death.

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older turned down motions for a new trial, a motion to question jurors about their verdicts, and another to reduce the sentence to life imprisonment. He then pronounced sentencing and stated his own feeling about the case publicly for the first time.

Army will permit motherhood

By ROBERT A. DORKIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — With a changing eye toward motherhood, the Army is going to allow its female officers and enlisted women to do what many women do—have children and raise a family.

New regulations, effective in two weeks, will permit WACs and female Army nurses who are married and "who are pregnant, have had terminated pregnancies or who become parents" to stay in the Army. In the past, this meant automatic discharge.

The change is the latest move by the armed services to ease traditional double standards for the sexes.

The Air Force adopted a similar policy in March. The Navy is expected to follow soon. Earlier this year, the Army approved recruiting married women.

An Army spokesman said the new policy won't mean "a wholesale opening of the doors" to mothers in uniform. "The mere fact that a woman is married and pregnant and wants to stay on are not the only grounds. She must also meet the other requirements." According to the regulations, a WAC officer must first have the recommendation of her commanding officer, a statement that the child will not interfere with her work or "result in neglect of the child," and "the proper medical certification and history."

Requests from enlisted women also must include an explanation of "the circumstances involved" in a pregnancy.

If approved, the Army will grant the mother-to-be a leave of absence from the seventh month of pregnancy to the sixth week after birth of the child.

The same procedures apply to married women who want to adopt children or whose pregnancy is aborted, either medically or by miscarriage.

Unmarried women who become pregnant will be discharged as in the past. However, in special cases they will be eligible to remain in the Army should they adopt children or if their pregnancy is terminated. "Each individual case will be handled on its merits," the spokesman said.

S. Viets in chicken coup against Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department reported today that South Vietnam may have pulled a chicken coup against communist enemies during the past three years.

According to a report by the foreign Agriculture Service, the United States in 1968 launched an aid program to help South Vietnamese farmers increase the size of their chicken flocks.

"The rapid commercialization of South Vietnam's poultry industry... has materially enhanced the economic aspects of that country's Vietnamization program," the report said.

"At a time when the government of Vietnam was vying with the Viet Cong for the allegiance of the population," the report said, "a fast-developing and highly profitable program was seen as one means of convincing the people their government was giving full attention to their well-being."

From small flocks of 5 to 35 chickens each, South Vietnamese poultry production now has boosted the country's gross national product by at least $300 million a year, the FAS report said.

The South Vietnam chicken program was helped by U.S. Agency for International Development funds and technicians.

Thomson unhappy over reapportionment plan

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A bipartisan plan for reapportioning Wisconsin's congressional districts received objection Monday from another Republican member of the state's House delegation.

Rep. Vernon Thomson joined fellow GOP Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski in criticizing the revisions proposed for the boundaries of their respective districts.

Because of population shifts in the 1970 census, Wisconsin has to reduce its 10 congressional districts to nine by 1972. A plan submitted last week to the state Senate was described by sponsors as least likely to disrupt the political security of congressmen who were expected to seek re-election.

Thomson's staff was quoted Monday in Washington, D.C., as saying the congressman, a former governor, plans to offer an alternate blueprint involving the southwestern Wisconsin district he has represented since 1960.

The state Senate proposal would remove Juneau, Sauk, Iowa and Lafayette counties from his heavily Republican 3rd District, and give him Eau Claire, Barron, Dunn, Polk and St. Croix counties.

Thomson's proposal would give away Juneau County, and would require his district to annex only Polk, Green, St. Croix and Dunn counties.

Thompson, in last November's election, overcame a bloc of Democratic votes in La-Crosse County to gain re-election. Should Eau Claire be annexed to his district, he would run the risk of facing another Democratic bloc as well.

His plan also would allow him to keep such Republican strongholds as Sauk, Iowa and Lafayette counties.

Elimination of a House seat has seemed an easy matter for the state legislature because of O'Konski's declarations last year that he wouldn't seek re-election in 1972 anyway.

But O'Konski announced Sunday he doesn't like the plan's division of his 10th District, and that he may run for another term after all—as a new resident of the reapportioned 7th District.

An Eau Claire Democrat who challenged O'Konski last November came within 3,340 votes of unseating the GOP incumbent on a ballot that had more than 129,500 votes.

There is an alternate possibility of a House retirement which would help eliminate one of the state's congressmen.

Rep. Glenn Davis, a Republican from the Milwaukee suburbs, is being considered as a candidate for appointment to a U.S. District Court judge vacancy.

CROP DOWN
PONTIAC, ILL. (AP) — Corn crop surveys show that the 1970 yield in Livingston County was down 34 bushels to the acre from 1969.

According to 100 farmers representing 30 townships the average yield was 84.5 bushels per acre during a year when Southern Corn Leaf Blight ran rampant in the corn belt.

Paul Wilson, extension adviser, said most farmers reported a yield of 119.5 bushels of corn per acre in 1969.

The questionnaires revealed 53 farmers reported they thought the blight was the major factor in the loss of yield; 20 thought blight caused only half of the loss yield. However, the other 27 thought blight was not the most important reason for yield loss in 1970.

A few indicated wet weather and other factors were responsible for the 50 per cent loss in 1970.

Ex-bishop Shannon is law assistant

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Dr. James P. Shannon, former auxiliary bishop of the St. Paul-Minneapolis Archdiocese, has announced he will work this summer as an assistant to the attorney general of New Mexico.

Shannon, who is attending law school at the university, said his duties under Atty. Gen. David Norvell may fall in the area of consumer law and protection.

Shannon was removed from his church position after he questioned the stand by Pope Paul VI on birth control. He subsequently left the priesthood and married.

A former president of St. Thomas College in St. Paul, Shannon said he will commute 60 miles each day from the university in Albuquerque to the capitol in Santa Fe.

While in Minneapolis this weekend, Shannon said he still plans to complete the law school curriculum which, he said, gives one "a lot of options" for serving society.

"My 'do-gooder' instincts are satisfied by this kind of prospect," said the former clergyman.

State raises Hwy. 76 road restrictions

WITOKA, Minn. — Road weight restrictions on Highway 76 here were raised a ton over the weekend, according to officials at the Minnesota Highway Department.

The raise, effective immediately, raises the load ceiling from five to six tons.

The change in restrictions affects only the portion of Highway 76 from Witoka to the Highway 43 junction at Wilson.

Ribicoff pressing for desegregation action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Accusing President Nixon and Congress of passing the buck on desegregation, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff is pressing for a vote requiring inner-city and suburban schools to combine enrollments to achieve integration.

"The power and influence of the courts are going to be destroyed unless the President and Congress face up to their responsibilities," the Connecticut Democrat said Monday.

Ribicoff is trying to add his amendment to a $1.5-billion Nixon administration bill to aid the states in desegregating schools. He said he would like a vote on the proposal anytime this week, but Senate leaders have announced no schedule.

The amendment, applying to metropolitan areas, would require states and school districts to submit plans which in a decade would lead to dividing minority-group pupils equally between inner-city and suburban schools.

BUFFALO CONDUCTOR IS 26
BOSTON (AP) — Michael Tilson Thomas, 26, associate conductor of the Boston Symphony, has been appointed music director of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra.

The Los Angeles native will add these duties to his Boston duties beginning next fall.

Thomas was appointed assistant conductor of the Boston Symphony in 1969, following his winning the Koussevitzky Conducting Award at Tanglewood in 1968. During his first season, he made a dramatic substitution when conductor William Steinberg got sick in the middle of a concert in New York's Philharmonic Hall. He was appointed Boston associate conductor in 1970.

Previous music director in Buffalo was Lukas Foss, who programmed a lot of modern music.

The President and Congress "have found ways to duck this problem for years," Ribicoff said. "We focused on the South as the only part of the country that denied its citizens equal rights."

"We have been delighted to let the courts take the lead on this issue—and thereby also take the heat."

"Year after year anguished citizens in this country have had no recourse but to turn to the courts for relief," he said.

Chances for adoption of the Ribicoff amendment appear slim. Only one other senator, Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., endorsed it immediately.

Mondale said he agrees with Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., and other Southerners that there has not been adequate enforcement of school integration in the North.

"We know that the cities are getting blacker and blacker and the suburbs whiter and whiter," he said.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., floor manager for the money bill, emphasized, however, the legislation is not intended to deal with enforcement.

Instead, he said, it offers funds on a voluntary basis to school districts wishing to face desegregation problems and willing to meet the strict standards set down for spending the money.

Lockheed jumbo jet rescue seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects of government guaranteed loans and progress reports by interested airlines and bankers have boosted chances of rescuing Lockheed Aircraft's version of the jumbo jet passenger plane.

Financiers and airlines say they have made significant progress in to-secret talks aimed at continuing development of the aircraft whose fate seemed in doubt after the financial collapse of the company making the engine.

The Treasury Department said Monday it is prepared to propose, subject to President Nixon's approval, a bill in Congress underwriting a multimillion-dollar loan.

"It is becoming increasingly clear that many of the participants in the Lockheed negotiations will not be satisfied with less than a government guarantee," Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally said through a spokesman.

Connally is known to have discussed Lockheed's TriStar project first with Lockheed executives and later with Nixon.

"When the time comes, we will go to Congress and ask for some kind of backing to enable us to give the project a longer-term guarantee," Connally was quoted as saying in a London newspaper story the Treasury Department said was generally accurate.

Lockheed's airbus project floundered when Rolls Royce, the British automobile-aviation firm, collapsed under the weight of rising production costs and failure to meet contract terms for supplying its RB211 engine.

The British government later reached a tentative agreement with Lockheed to continue supplying the engines, at a higher cost and on an altered delivery schedule.

No complaint to sheriff on shooting

KELLOGG, Minn. — The Washburn County sheriff's department is making no investigation of a shooting incident that allegedly occurred about 5:15 p.m. Wednesday on Highway 61 between Weaver and Minneiska, since no formal complaint has been filed, according to a spokesman.

Lester Johnson, 53, Kellogg Rd. 1, an employee of Schuler Chocolates Inc., Winona, was fired upon near the Weaver Bottoms as he drove home from work, according to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Florence Drazkowski, 165 E. 4th St., Winona. Both windows on the right side of the car were shattered.

Johnson could not be reached for comment. Mrs. Johnson said this morning that her husband did not make anything of the shooting incident. He thought that somebody was hunting and missed the target, she said.

Johnson was driving a 1969 four-door car, owned by Koehler Auto Body and Repair Shop, Winona.

A mechanic at Koehler's Auto Body said that both windows on the right side of the car were shattered by shots from either a rifle or pellet gun. One hit in the front door glass and two shots struck the rear door glass. The bullets did not go through the glass, he said.

Johnson is still driving the car while his own car is being repaired.

Dayton-Hudson sales decline 1.2 percent

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Dayton-Hudson Corp., in its annual report Monday, announced sales of its department stores declined 1.2 percent during 1970, compared with 1969.

The report said the stores operating under the names of Dayton's, Hudson's, Lipman's and Diamond's showed $600.7 million in 1970 sales, compared with 1969 sales of $607.7 million. The decline came despite the opening of three new stores during 1970.

Pretax profits were reported at $24.2 million, a $10.3-million decline from the 1969 level of $34.5 million.

The corporation as a whole showed a $10.5-million drop in pretax earnings, from $48.1 million in 1969 to $37.6 million last year.

Sales increases were reported by the corporation's Target and Lechmere "discount" stores, its Dayton-Hudson jewelry stores and its B. Dalton Bookseller stores.

Despite the decline in earnings, the firm said it plans several expansion projects this year, including the opening of new department stores in Toledo, Ohio and Tulsa, Okla.

Court upholds busing to bring desegregation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A unanimous Supreme Court held today federal courts may order busing of public school children as a means of desegregating schools.

"Desegregation plans cannot be limited to the walk-in school," said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in announcing the most important ruling of the term.

At the same time, the court held fixed racial ratios are not required in all the schools of a community.

As Burger said: "The constitutional command to desegregate schools does not mean that every school in every community must always reflect the racial composition of the school system as a whole."

However, the court ruled valid the use of a white-black ratio system for schools in Charlotte, Mecklenburg County, N.C.

"The very limited use of mathematical ratios was within the equitable remedial discretion of the district court," said the chief justice.

In all respects the court was unanimous as it ruled on school cases from Mobile County, Ala., and Clarke County, Ga., as well as the Charlotte case.

Burger delivered all five opinions, taking command as his predecessor, Earl Warren, did when the court in 1954 first declared segregation of public school students for racial reasons was unconstitutional.

Among the court's findings was that the North Carolina antibusing law is unconstitutional because it prevents implementation of desegregation plans. The law forbade assignment of students on account of race or for the purpose of creating racial balance. Additionally, it prohibited "involuntary" busing as well as the use of public funds for such busing.

Eventually the city will install 7,500 feet of main, thus linking up the Woodlawn reservoir with southeastern and eastern parts of the city. The 16-inch main, admittedly large, is needed to provide adequate volumes of water for fire protection to the city's industrialized east end, to newly developing residential subdivisions and to Community Memorial Hospital, city officials have noted.

According to city policy, however, property owners are assessed on the basis of costs for laying a six-inch main; the city picks up the rest of the tab using funds raised in its water and sewer improvement account.

Water and sanitary sewer work on Lake Boulevard were given a high priority by the council earlier this year when residents of the area complained that local private water supplies were becoming contaminated and private sewage disposal systems could no longer handle the growing volumes of wastes.

Concrete slabs on lake shore to be broken

Concrete slabs deposited along the shores of Lake Winona are to be broken up this year, a report to the City Council indicated Monday night.

Their purpose is to prevent erosion of lake banks by wave action.

The project is programmed for May, according to City Manager Carroll J. Fry. The pieces are discarded sections of concrete sidewalks and pavement that have been taken up in various parts of the city.

When some residents asked last year whether the large slabs would remain in their present state, city officials replied that they would be broken up in the course of regular work programs.

One councilman, Gaylord Fox, wondered whimsically whether any prisoners in the city jail would be available to help "make little ones out of big ones." Other councilmen quickly noted, however, that such work would be considered a violation of the prisoners' civil rights under state and federal laws and therefore is not permissible.

Also noted in the manager's report was a letter from 1st District Rep. Albert H. Quie which said that Winona definitely will be a stop on the new Railpax system which begins operations next month.

Another enclosure by Rep. Quie was a letter from the Department of the Army which indicated that a Corps of Engineers report on Winona's flood control project still had not been forwarded to the Office of Management and Budget.

Fry noted that Quie had been reminded of the report's slow progress through Washington channels and told the council the congressman's office will be contacted again next month in the effort to keep things moving.

Winona JHS receives high marks in survey

By C. GORDON HOLTE
Daily News Staff Writer

Winona Junior High School received a good "report card" from parents of students who recently participated in a general evaluation of the school's program in a survey conducted by the school's Parent Advisory Council and the administration.

Principal Harvey Kane reported that 196 parents returned questionnaires drafted by the council and administration covering 16 areas ranging from the overall quality of education parents felt their children were receiving at the school to the advisability of hiring instructors of minority races. According to Kane, 1,130 questionnaires were sent out.

Council members spent some 12 hours tabulating answers to questions and, with the administration, are continuing their evaluation of responses to certain subjective questions on specific items.

IN THE first question parents were asked to rate the school for general quality of education on a scale ranging from 1 — the highest — to 5 with 3 representing average.

In this category, 60 parents gave the program a rating of 1, 41 responded with a 2 and 73 rated the school 3, or average. There were 14 who expressed no opinion.

Kane said that answers to a question inquiring what one inadequacy the parents believe most needs to be remedied, the closing of Washington Street, which separates the two buildings of the junior high school complex, was most frequently cited.

As far as the one activity or service provided by the school which pleases parents most, extracurricular music and the school's guidance program apparently drew the greatest praise.

THESE TWO questions are among those now figuring in the continuing evaluation.

Leak in meter ordinance plugged

A longtime leak in the city's water meter ordinance finally was stopped up Monday night by City Council action.

Councilmen voted to amend the ordinance to require builders and contractors to be responsible for water payments at construction sites. They will be required to install meters as soon as water is piped to building sites and will be billed for all water used prior to the time the property is turned over to the purchaser or the occupant.

Reason for the action was outlined for the council by City Manager Carroll J. Fry.

Agnew upset over U.S. team's visit to Red China

By WALTER R. MEARS
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has expressed concern privately over the American table tennis team's visit to China—and about possible adverse effects U.S. overtures toward Peking might have on the Nationalist government on Taiwan.

Agnew Monday told Republican governors here for a conference he was concerned by overemphasis on the Chinese tour by the 15 American athletes, and about the way their journey was reported in the United States.

"Basically, he was saying some of the things that were praised in China were things that would be criticized here," one GOP governor said. Agnew also was quoted as expressing doubts about some aspects of current U.S. efforts at improved relations with China during a Sunday night conversation with a small group of Republicans. One man who was there said the vice president emphasized then that the United States still has commitments to the Nationalist government.

At a Monday luncheon, Agnew questioned the emphasis put on the table tennis tour and at the reactions of the U.S. travelers. He noted one of the Americans had described a 15-square-foot room as the apartment of a Chinese family, implying approval when the same quarters in the United States would have been criticized as evidence of poverty.

The China question also came up, said a Republican source, in an off-the-record session the vice president had early Monday morning with nine reporters.

The 2½-hour meeting with reporters began at 12:30 a.m. when the vice president called the newsmen into his hotel room.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, not represented at the session, said it learned the vice president had expressed concern that the table team's visit and reception had trapped the United States into a disadvantageous position in world opinion. Agnew was quoted by the newspaper as having objected to some press accounts of the trip, particularly the use of the word "exquisite" in one story to describe Chinese courtesy in matching less-skilled players against the Americans.

Nixon himself came to Williamsburg for a stern speech on welfare, saying that under the present system a person "can be rewarded for doing nothing." The President asked support for his welfare reform program, one he said would deny assistance to people who are able to work but refuse.

That drew general applause from governors beset by soaring state welfare costs. California Gov. Ronald Reagan said the Nixon speech drew a one-word response from the man beside him Gov. John A. Love of Colorado: "Hallelujah."

"I just hope to hell the Congress helps him," said Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie of Illinois. Ogilvie said he has been campaigning among Illinois officials at the county and local levels for welfare reform and revenue sharing. "We're trying to set a little grassroots fire," he said.

Gov. William C. Milliken of Michigan said the Nixon welfare speech was "obviously designed to build the kind of public and official support that we're going to need to get it through."

"It's obvious, I think, the President is really starting out to hit this one hard and make it successful if he can," Milliken said.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan recommended to the governors the revival of the Republican Coordinating Committee, a panel set up to draft party policy when the Democrats were in the White House but dropped after Nixon's election.

The governors agreed that steps should be explored with the White House and the Republican National Committee. The governors wind up their conference tonight after a session of their party, young Americans and the 18-year-old vote.

Businessmen wondering how to achieve results

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — You hear the charge more frequently than ever when businessmen take time out for cocktails during panels, seminars, annual meetings and other affairs of their calling:

"We're attacking the job of peaceful progress as we attacked the war, with great hopes and emotions, too little analytical intelligence, and a disregard for the costs involved."

Noble, humanitarian ambitions, these critics say, are understandably an ingredient of great undertakings and may also be their sustaining energy. Individuals and groups which can't agree on small issues find it easy to unite behind great goals.

"Who is there that doesn't want to eliminate ignorance, poverty, crime, disease, hunger, foul air and polluted water?" asked Arjay Miller, former president of Ford Motor and now dean of the Stanford Graduate School of Business.

The answer, of course, is that nobody who believes in the dignity of the human being can very effectively argue against such goals. But, the businessmen ask, how do we approach the job and how do we pay for it?

"Whenever a businessman is faced with a difficult choice," Miller told an audience here, "the first thing he does is determine the facts. Before he approves a new product or program, he first determines how much it will cost."

Miller suggests that this isn't being done and that the legacy could be "discouragement, frustration, despair and anger." These might be recognized also as ingredients of urban and campus discord and riots.

More attention must be paid to the practical aspects of our ambitions, Miller argues, noting that the matter of costs seemingly was disregarded by Congress in passing the Clear Air Act amendments of 1970.

"How much will it cost to meet these standards?" he asks. "$1 billion, $2 billion, $10 billion, $50 billion? No one seems to know."

Without knowledge of the costs involved, Miller argues "Congress is now pushing ahead with further legislation to tighten environmental and safety standards."

He suggests that a National Goals Institute would enable legislative bodies and sincere citizens in all walks of life to reach decisions based upon comprehensive and factual cost information."

To prod economy Congress may try investment credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — If economic recovery continues slowly during the next two months, Congress may try again a twice discarded remedy, the investment credit.

The credit allows businesses to charge off 7 per cent of their investment in equipment directly against their tax liability.

An even stronger version is being suggested now—a one-year 10 per cent credit, levelling off at 8 per cent.

The idea is to encourage businesses to commit funds quickly to plant modernization and enlargement, pushing substantial sums into the economy.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, says if the economy's performance in the second quarter of 1971 is unsatisfactory, the tax-writing committee will have to consider some forms of tax stimulus.

The investment credit is one possible aid.

The economy rebounded strongly in the quarter that ended March 31, with a $28.5 billion increase in the Gross National Product.

While hailing the return, the administration acknowledged it was not as strong as had been hoped, and economists pointed out the comeback resulted partially from the end of General Motors strike late in 1970.

Mills said the course of the economy in the current quarter will be the crucial measure. One stimulus already is assured: The retroactive payment of a 10 per cent boost in Social Security benefits in June.

The investment credit, instituted in 1962 as part of President John F. Kennedy's program to get the economy out of recession, was suspended in 1968 as indications of inflation mounted.

A Message to Mothers from Uncle Sam

And for their fathers and doctors, too.

An important message. With vital information for mothers with children who simply can't learn in the ways most children learn. You may have a child who is like seven million other American youngsters who are absolutely OK but for something which prevents their absorbing knowledge or, perhaps, simple everyday skills. Maybe it's deafness or hearing difficulty, blindness or impaired vision, or some bodily defect. Such handicaps may not always be curable—but even so Special Education methods can teach these children a great deal. And if a child has a mental or behavioral learning handicap, Special Education can often not only teach him, but also help to reduce or even overcome the condition. If your child is hard to teach, write for the name and address of the nearest school or clinic having Special Education facilities. The information is free—from Uncle Sam.

Agriculture hikes grain storage fee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has announced an increase of about one and a half cents per bushel a year in rent paid warehouse operators and farmers for storing surplus grain owned by the government.

The increase is far less than the five to six cents sought by grain storage operators. Officials said Monday the boost, actually 1.46 cents per bushel per year, will go into effect July 1.

At present, the rate paid for storing grain owned by the Commodity Credit Corp., ranges between 12 and 13 cents per year for each bushel.

In addition the department approved an increase of one-half cent per bushel in rates paid elevators for handling grain when they take it in and ship it out.

Currently, the receiving rate is four cents per bushel and the rate paid for shipping it from warehouses is 2.5 cents. The announcement said producers who store CCC-owned grain on their farms will receive the same storage rate increases as allowed for warehouse operators.

Storage rates have not been increased in many years, officials said. The last change was in 1965 when they were reduced.

Castro: reconciliation with U.S. impossible

MIAMI (AP) — Premier Fidel Castro declares there will be no Cuban reconciliation with the United States or the Organization of American States and says his regime will continue to support revolutionary movements throughout Latin America.

The communist leader ridiculed President Nixon in a Havana speech Monday night.

"Those damn Yankees have no reason to dream of normalization of relations or any negotiations with Cuba because these days the demagoguery of Nixon surpasses all limits," Castro declared in a ceremony commemorating the 10th anniversary of the victory over exile invaders at the Bay of Pigs.

The speech was transmitted throughout the island by radio and television and monitored in Miami.

Castro called the OAS a "horde of bandits" and declared, "We have supported, are supporting and will continue to support revolutionary movements throughout Latin America . . . How can we rejoin the OAS?"

He called Nixon one of the fathers of the Bay of Pigs invasion and said he was responsible for the deaths of 149 Cubans who died fighting what he called "CIA mercenaries" in the attack which began April 17, 1961, and failed 72 hours later. The invasion was during the Kennedy administration.

Nixon told interviewers Friday, "As long as Castro is adopting an antagonistic, anti-American line, we are certainly not going to normalize our relations toward Castro. As soon as he changes his line toward us, we might consider it. But it is his move."

Castro retorted:

"Such a gesture, Mr. Nixon, will absolutely never be made . . . The imperialists have accumulated a large sum of responsibilities toward our fatherland . . . We shall never forget!"

He said the Cuban revolution became the inspiration for such countries as Chile and Peru and that Cuba could not renounce its "solidarity with the revolutionary governments and the spirit of revolution swirling throughout Latin America."

Castro's 2-hour and 10-minute speech before an audience of dignitaries at the theater of the Cuban labor confederation was preceded by a fiery, half-hour "anti-imperialist" talk by the leader of the Chilean delegation to the ceremonies, Volodia Tel-telbalm.

Bullets withstand rally to knock off New York

By BRUCE LOWITT
NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee? said Gene Shue, a weary grin spreading across his face. "I'm not even thinking about the Bucks. I'm too happy!"

The often-volatile coach looked as exhausted and elated as his Baltimore Bullets Monday night after they finally gained two seasons worth of revenge against the New York Knicks.

The Bullets, withstanding a fourth-quarter rally on the court—and game-long pandemonium by the 19,500 fans surrounding it in Madison Square Garden—beat the Knicks 93-91 for the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference crown.

That sends the Bullets into the best-of-seven championship series against the Knicks, who cruised to the Western title by conquering the San Francisco Warriors and Los Angeles Lakers in five games apiece.

The confrontation begins Wednesday night in Milwaukee, nationally televised by ABC—as all the championship games will be—starting at 8 p.m., CST.

In Monday night's only other playoff action, Ray and Charlie Scott tossed in 30 points apiece as the Virginia Squires defeated Kentucky 150-137 to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven American Basketball Association Eastern Division finals. Utah, leading the Western series 2-1, hosts Indiana tonight.

Baltimore was shooting not only for the chance to face Milwaukee—the winningest team in the NBA this season—but for a chance to end frustration that began with the 1968-69 season. They won the regular-season

Eastern title that time only to be knocked out by the third-place Knicks in four straight games in the first round of playoffs.

Then, last year, after losing five of six regular-season games to the Knicks, Baltimore again faced them in the first round—and again the Bullets lost, this time in seven games.

Baltimore finally woke up at home, however, and smothered the Knicks twice to even the series. Each team then won its next home game to set up the finale.

The Knicks had held leads of 21-19 after one period and 47-43 after two. But a foul shot and two field goals put the Bullets in front in the opening minutes of the third quarter and they pulled away to a seven-point lead—the biggest by either team—in its closing seconds.

New York slowly battled back and finally went in front 88-87 with 2:44 to go on a lay-in by Dick Barnett, New York's top scorer with 26 points.

But Monroe, who topped Baltimore with 28, got the Bullets back on top with a 15-foot jumper just 10 seconds later and they stayed there the rest of the way.

Fred Carter's 19-footer with about a minute to play was the decider, giving them a 93-89 lead. Walt Frazier got the Knicks back within a basket moments later and the flashy guard, using center Willis Reed as a shield, was supposed to shoot for the equalizer when they got the ball with 11 seconds to play.

But the Baltimore defense stiffened and Frazier was forced to pass to Bill Bradley, whose 15-footer was tipped by Wes Unseld and fell short.

Big O, Bucks 4 wins from goal—the title

By BOB GREENE
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Oscar Robertson is four victories away from his goal—the National Basketball Association championship.

The "Big O" and his Milwaukee Bucks teammates will begin their best-of-seven games series against the Baltimore Bullets Wednesday night at the Milwaukee Arena for the NBA title.

For most of the Bucks, including Oscar, this marks the first time they've played in the championship series.

"It's not just me," Oscar said Monday, somewhat on the defensive. "The majority of the players in the NBA have never gotten this far. Since I've been in the league, only five teams have ever played for the title—New York, Boston, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and San Francisco."

YOU HAVE TO forgive Oscar if his memory isn't exactly perfect. In his first year in the NBA, the 1960-61 season, the Boston Celtics defeated the St. Louis Hawks for the crown.

Since then, the Hawks have moved to Atlanta and the title series has been somewhat of a round-robin affair between the other five teams.

Boston has played in the finals eight times, winning each time, and the Los Angeles Lakers have played in seven, all on the losing end, since Robertson graduated from the University of Cincinnati and joined the pros.

San Francisco's Warriors have played twice and the Philadelphia 76ers won in their only appearance in 1967.

ROBERTSON, who starred for the Cincinnati Royals in his first 10 years in the league, was traded to the Bucks prior to the start of the 1970-71 season. At the time, he said the main factors for his approving the deal—a condition of his contract—was the chance to play on a championship team and with an outstanding big center, in this case Lew Alcindor.

"I thought this would be an opportunity I had wanted since the beginning of my career," Robertson said then.

With Alcindor, the league's top scorer and most valuable player, and the "Big O", the Bucks ripped off a record 20 straight victories en route to a runaway of the Midwest Division. Milwaukee then downed San Francisco, four games to one, and Los Angeles by an identical margin.

That brings them into the NBA Finals and the Baltimore Bullets bring Oscar to within four victories of his goal.

"OUR PEOPLE would have preferred the Knicks," admitted Bucks Coach Larry Costello. "But this is for the NBA championship and maybe Baltimore is a better team than New York."

Dick Cunningham, Milwaukee's reserve center, was impressed with the Bullets.

"They can play," he said. "We would rather play the world champs and dethrone them, but I think we match up real well with the Bullets."

Case hurls 2-hit shutout, 5-0 Winhawks wallop Central

By STAN SCHMIDT
Daily News Sports Editor

When the Winona High Winhawks opened their 1971 baseball season a week ago, they dropped a 2-0 decision to La Crosse Central.

Afterward, Hawk Coach Jerry Raddatz said of the game, "We didn't score, and when you don't score you don't win."

But the Hawks had a chance to seek revenge—and they did, walloping the Red Raiders 5-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Mike Case Monday evening in Winona.

So what made the difference between the two games?

COACH Raddatz provided the same answer as before, but then added that "our defense is real good. It was kinda questionable when (Jon) Lunde and (Bob) Ouren never played their positions (third and second base, respectively) before. But they're coming along great now."

"And our hitting, although it isn't great—at least we're not striking out. I was glad to see (Dick) Sauer finally connect on a few."

Sauer, the Hawks' veteran shortstop, went two-for-four, scored a pair of runs and drove in another as Winona took advantage of four Central errors to push across four runs in the first two innings.

Lunde, an outfielder most of last year and as a LeJetz, was flawless on defense—the Hawks have erred only once in their last three games—and helped out at the plate, too, with a pair of hits, a run scored and two RBIs.

CASE, who also got a single and an RBI, was credited with his second mound victory of the season, holding Central to only two hits, while walking four and fanning an even dozen.

The junior righthander was never in real serious trouble. Central runners got as far as second base only twice in the game.

The Hawks started things off in the initial frame as Dave Rendahl drew a walk from starter Gary Neumeister and promptly stole second before a wild pitch sent him to third. Neumeister, rapped with the defeat in four innings of work, then struck out Mike Semling and Sauer.

Lunde, however, reached on a single, scoring Rendahl. Two errors, a fielder's choice and a walk to Dan Rose later, Lunde scored himself.

IN THE SECOND INNING, Gerry Erdmanczyk poked a double to right-center, was sacrificed to third and scored on a single by Sauer. Sauer stole second, reached third on an error by catcher Dave Schmidt and crossed home on the second infield hit of the inning by Lunde.

Winona added an insurance run in the fifth as Sauer singled, Lunde walked and Case rapped a single to shallow left, which also sent Neumeister to the showers.

Although Central was clearly outclassed in Monday's meeting, Coach Raddatz was happy with the victory, which extended Winona's winning streak to four in a row.

"Yes," he replied, "anytime you win four in a row, you've got to be happy with it."

"BUT I'M keeping our optimism down. The victories are giving our kids some confidence we need, but we haven't played Austin and Mankato yet."

"The pitching here tonight was not Big Nine quality."

Raddatz and the Hawks will get their first look at Big Nine pitchers Thursday when Winona travels to Red Wing for a single contest.

Today the Hawks were scheduled to battle Memorial in a single game in Eau Claire, in which Paul Rager, Tom Styba and Denny Hengel were slated to share the pitching chores.

Cowens and Petrie NBA's top rookies

NEW YORK (AP) — Rugged Dave Cowens of the Boston Celtics and sharp-shooting Geoff Petrie of the Portland Trail Blazers shared Rookie of the Year honors today, the first such deadlock in the history of the National Basketball Association.

Cowens, a 6-foot-9 center who scored 17 points and grabbed 15 rebounds a game, and Petrie, a 6-4 guard with a 24.8 point a game average, each drew 36 votes in the balloting by sportswriters and sportscasters in the 17 league cities.

Third in the voting was the pre-season favorite, Pete Maravich of Atlanta, who drew 21 votes, while Calvin Murphy of San Diego had four and Bob Lanier of Detroit one.

Last year's winner was Lew Alcindor.

Boston, choosing fourth in the 1970 college draft, selected Cowens of Florida State on the first round. While the Celtics later hope to move the red-haired Cowens to forward, he did a good job at center and gave the Celtics the rebounding they badly needed. With him, they turned a 34-48 record in 1969-70 into a 44-38 mark last season.

Petrie of Princeton, Portland's top choice on the first round as the No. 8 pick, helped the expansion club win 29 games as he gunned in baskets from all over the floor.

Tom Heinsohn in 1956-57 was the only other Boston player ever to win the honor.

Survive 7-run inning to win 9-8 Killebrew, Twins snap slump

By PAT THOMPSON
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Bob Lemon sighed and glumly said...

managed by Lemon, exploded for seven runs in the fifth inning Monday but the Minnesota Twins broke a six-game losing streak with a 9-8 victory.

Killebrew, who has 489 career home runs, drove in six runs with a three-run homer, a two-run single and a grounder as the Twins took a 9-0 lead and then survived Bob Oliver's grand slam for the Royals.

"We darn near caught them," said Lemon. "You don't get those seven-run innings very often. As long as Killebrew swings a bat, he's dangerous. There's not much you can do about him."

Killebrew, hitless in his last three games, was riding a 2-for-19 slump going into the game.

It was only Killebrew's second homer of the season but the second time his fence-clearing drives won games for the Twins, who had gone their previous five games without a homer.

"When Harmon gets the range," said Twins Manager Bill Rigney, "he keeps it. I'm not worried about the long ball. It's coming for us. We've been a long time getting this victory."

The Twins rocked Kansas City starter Jim Rooker 0-3, for two quick runs in the first on Killebrew's single after Cesar Tovar and Danny Thompson opened with singles.

They drove Rooker out in the second on Jim Kaat's double and Tovar's infield hit.

The Twins proceeded to finish with four runs in the inning after Al Fitzmorris relieved Thomson singled, Killebrew grounded out and Fitzmorris got wild with two walks and a hit batsman that prompted Lemon's ejection.

Lemon protested to Umpire Jerry Neudecker after his call that Rick Reick was struck with a pitch.

"I guess I said something he didn't like," said Lemon.

Fitzmorris held the Twins hitless for four innings after Killebrew's homer. Ted Abernathy retired the side in order in the ninth.

Cookie Rojas drove in the first Royal run in the fourth after Fred Patek's triple. The Royals finished off Kaat in the fifth.

Rojas lined a two-run single and Amos Otis added a run-scoring single.

Steve Barber, who won his first major league game, walked Lou Piniella and then surrendered Oliver's grand slam.

Rigney said Jim Perry, 1-2, would pitch today's game for the Twins against Bruce Dalton, 0-0.

The Twins finished with nine hits off Rooker and Fitzmorris. Cesar Tovar and Danny Thompson, the 1-2 men in the lineup, each had three runs. Tovar collected three hits.

Tony Oliva, out for two games with the flu, returned to action.

"Just as soon as we get that guy back in right field, the club looks different," Rigney said at the end of the early season tailspin that put the Twins near the West Division cellar.
