McGovern claims he has chance at New Hampshire upset Nixon allies seek to turn out GOP loyalists Tuesday

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) - President Nixon's Republican allies have staged their big New Hampshire show in behalf of "the man who isn't here," while a Democrat who is, Sen. George McGovern, claims he has a chance to score an upset victory in Tuesday's presidential primary.

The music was by Lionel Hampton, the songs by Lainie Kazan and then the politics by governors, senators and two members of the Nixon Cabinet as the Committee for the Reelection of the President sought to stir up the Republican loyalists and turn out a big primary vote for the absent Nixon.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller recalled his own futile New Hampshire campaign eight years ago in a primary won by Henry Cabot Lodge, who was in Saigon at the time.

"The man who wasn't here won that primary," said Rockefeller. "Well, that's life. . . this time I think it's going to happen again, it's going to be Dick Nixon... he's the man who isn't here." A crowd of nearly 1,500 brook of Ohio, challenging Nixon from the conservative plank, who said Friday that Nixon's performance at Peking "was a sellout of American principles." Nixon's other rival is Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California the liberal challenger who approved of Nixon's visit to China. He said the trip would "begin to break down the barriers between our peoples." In the Democratic contest, McGovern told a radio audience that his campaign has gained real momentum and "I think it's going to be a razorclose finish." Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, the favorite in the Democratic primary, said in Salem, "I've got to win and win in such a convincing way that we convince these skeptics of the press. We've got to win big.

Pentagon press spokesman Jerry A. Friedheim indicated at a news briefing that Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, a former eight-term congressman and top GOP strategist in past campaigns, would depart from the traditional stance of secretaries of defense who have stayed away from partisan politics.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, meanwhile, the party's number one campaigner, told a group of 1,500 GOP leaders in Washington the Democratic party "is still under the control of liberal leftists and elitists."

In a speech closing a three-day Republican Leadership Conference to plan Nixon's reelection effort, Agnew said Democratic presidential contenders "should take care that they do not give the enemy an incentive to prolong the war until after the election in the hope a Democratic victory (would) provide a total cave-in to the enemy's demands."

Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, who also addressed the group, emphasized that Agnew would remain on the ticket. "Why break up a winning team," Scott told the cheering delegates.

MUSKIE: The Maine senator became the first candidate to file in North Carolina's presidential primary scheduled May 6. Muskie supporters filed in Raleigh, saying the candidate "probably will make three trips to the state" before the vote. Monday is the filing deadline.

CHISHOLM: Another Democratic hopeful, Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York, re-jected a suggestion made Thursday that she take the vice presidential spot on a ticket headed by Alabama Gov. George Wallace. "In terms of the realities of politics, it just wouldn't work," Mrs. Chisholm told a Savannah, Ga., audience, addir.g: "Our viewpoints simply do not coincide."

WALLACE: The governor, on the campaign trail in Florida, also rejected the suggestion, made by a black minister in Memphis, Tenn. "I have a high regard for Mrs. Chisholm,' Wallace told a news conference, "but I'm sure she's not interested in running as my vice presidential candidate."

LINDSAY: New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, also a Democrat, said in Miami Alabama Gov. George Wallace has pushed other Democrats to the right, but "is not going to push me." Lindsay said Wallace himself has become the "overriding issue in the Florida primary."

Meanwhile, in Nashville, Tenn, a list of three Republicans and 12 Democrats was suggested for the state's first presidential primary May 4. The list, including no surprises, "represents the broadest possible selection for the voters of Tennessee," state officials said.

HUMPHREY: Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey announced Saturday he will propose a new manpower program he said would create one million new jobs.

Speaking at the Texas State AFL-CIO convention in Galveston, Humphrey said he will introduce the Comprehensive Manpower Act of 1972.

raid move to north

SAIGON (AP) - U.S. B52 bombing raids moved from the central highlands to the north-ern region of South Vietnam Saturday in an attempt to smash another reported enemy buildup.

The planes headed north after five days of saturation raids in the highlands where an enemy buildup was reported where the borders of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia ioin.

The Saigon command has launched a 10,000-man spoiling operation in the highlands region but in three days has reported little contact with enemy forces.

The bombing raids in the northern region were aimed at bunker complexes, storage areas and infiltration corridors from Khe Sanh in the northwest corner to the A Shau Valley about 60 miles to the south.

The Viet Cong radio Saturday night quoted a North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry spokesman as saying U.S. planes bombed and strafed several villages Wednesday and Thursday in Quang Binh Province, the southernmost in North Vietnam.

American war planes flew "protective reaction" strikes over the North on those days against air defense systems and radar sites.

In another development, the U.S. Navy turned over two coastal radar stations to the Vietnamese navy at Cu Lao Re, 30 miles east of Chu Lai, and Duc Pho, 20 miles south of Quang Ngai on the central coast. The stations are part of a network of 16 radar sites planned for South Vietnam's 1,-200-mile coast line. Total cost of the network is $16 million.

hope for future

By DONALD H. SHAPIRO

TAIPEI, Taiwan - In his English class in a private school, a Taiwanese instructor clandestinely teaches his students the words of the song "The Impossible Dream" from the musical "Man of La Mancha."

Unfamiliar with the story of the hopeless quests of Don Quixote, he finds the lyrics a political message inspiring native Taiwanese-who make up 85 percent of the island's population of 15 million-to continue striving despite all odds, for the creation of an independent island republic, under the rule of neither the Chinese Nationalists nor the Chinese communists.

Service In recent months, many Taiwanese have lost faith that their dream can be realized.

The principal hope of the separatists had been that the U.S., as it moved to establish a new relationship with mainland China, would attempt to solve the "Taiwan problem" by promoting the idea of independence or at least of an internationally supervised plebiscite on the island. China, they thought, might tolerate the existence of a separate Taiwan no longer ruled by Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang, or Nationalist party, and no longer claiming to be the rightful Government of all China,

To their disappointment, Peking has appeared to be as bostile to the notion of "one China, one Taiwan" as is the Chinese Nationalist Government in Taipei, and the U.S. has shown no inclination to champion their cause in the name of the right of self determination.

"The Americans say Taiwan is a domestic Chinese problem to be settled by the two parties themselves," said a soft-spoken Taiwanese economist, "That presumably means Government-to-Government talks. If such talks occurred the Kuomintang could defend its own interests, but who would speak for the people of this island? We would be sacrificed."

Most of those who favored independence now seem to fear a communist takeover of Taiwan above all and to have concluded that the best interests of the Taiwanese lie in cooperation with the ruling Nationalist party in order to bolster Taiwan to withstand pressures from the Mainland. A small number of people, their hate for the Kuomintang stronger than their suspicions of the communists, have begun to think about an alliance with Peking with the aim of achieving a degree of Taiwanese autonomy while affiliated with the communist government in Peking,

give up arms

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek government stood firmly Saturday on its demands that Archbishop Makarios, president of Cyprus, give up his recently imported Czech arms and broaden his government to include backers of his political foe, Gen. George Grivas.

Deputy Foreign Minister Christian Xanthopoulos-Palamas told newsmen the Greek government "insists unshakably" on the provisions of the note of Feb. 11 to the Cypriot government.

That note demanded surrender of the imported arms and formation of a government of national unity.

Makarios has not yet made any formal reply, but has reportedly denounced it. Implementation of its second provision would bring into the government the supporters of Grivas, a passionate devotee of union with Greece, a move Makarios opposes. Palamas ruled out any possibility of the use of force in achieving Greek aims.

Medicare signup plan is explained

Some persons past age 65, not enrolled in the voluntary medi-cal insurance part of Medicare have another chance to sign up now, according to V. E. Bertel, Social Security district manager here.

Bertel said that this year's general enrollment period began Jan. 1 and ends March 31. Persons enrolling for the medical insurance part of Medicare during this three-month period become entitled to its protection next July 1.

For those who were born between Oct. 2, 1903, and Oct. 1, 1904, and who have not signed up at any time before, this is their last chance to get the protection of this medical insurance. Any person born before Oct. 2, 1903, is no longer eligible to enroll for medical insurance unless their prior coverage was terminated in 1969 or later.

The medical insurance part of Medicare, among other benefits, pays 80 percent of the doctor's reasonable charges after the first $50 in each calendar year.

To enroll, Bertel emphasized, an application must be filed on or before March 31. Those over under Medicare are urged to contact the Winona Social Se-curity office at 356 E. Sarnia St., without delay, Those who are already enrolled in the medical insurance part of Medicare need take no action to have their enrollment continued.

By C. GORDON HOLTE Sunday News Staff Writer

Although no snow emergency was in effect in the city today, residents were advised to keep vehicles off snow emergency routes to avoid having them blocked in by snow plowed by street department crews while they continue clearance of the accumulation of more than seven inches of snow left by a storm that moved into the area Friday afternoon

Street Commissioner Arthur Brom said Saturday noon that because of progress made in clearance of the season's heaviest snowfall it was not felt that a general snow emergency declaration was necessary.

A street department official said late Saturday morning that crews which had been out since about 10 p.m. Friday "seem to be on top of the situation now" and that the remainder of the weekend probably would be spent "in more or less housekeeping the streets and replowing the arterials."

THE MINNESOTA Highway Patrol, meanwhile, reported Saturday that although all area highways were open hazardous driving conditions prevailed, caused by ice and compacted snow.

Most county roads also had been opened by Saturday noon but valley roads remained snow- and ice-packed, there was heavy drifting in most rural areas and motorists were urged to avoid travel on ridge roads.

The snow began falling about 4 p.m. Friday, quickly increased in volume and continued through the night until tapering off Saturday morning.

This was one of three major snowstorms in the Winona area this winter.

Streets and highways were clogged by a 634-inch snowfall Dec. 29-30 and six inches fell Jan. 24-25.

THE MOST recent storm swelled to 531/2 inches the total snowfall for this winter.

Of this amount 101/2 inches have been measured this month

Total snowfall for the entire month of March last year was 7½ inches.

An extended period of thaw in mid-March last year had erased the entire snow cover here by March 20.

The snow, whipped at times by gusty winds, reduced visibility sharply Friday night and driving was treacherous on highways throughout the area.

DANGEROUS driving conditions prompted the postponement of the scheduled district basketball tournament at Rochester as well as several other tournaments in the eastern part of Wisconsin.

A clearing trend was expected to bring fair to partly cloudy skies today with temperatures holding below normal seasonal ranges

Weatherlore Satellites

By WILLIAM B. BENDEL Special to the Sunday News The first weather satetllite was launched into orbit on April 1, 1960. It was named TIROS (short for Television and InfraRed Observation Satellite) and its lifetime lasted only 79 days. This satellite opened the door to a brand new method of observing the atmosphere. For the first time, man was able to look at large areas of the earth and study the cloud cover in those regions. There were several more satellites of the TIROS series launched in the next four years. Because of their particular orbits, none of them were capable of taking pictures off all sections of the earth. That was accomplished in 1965 with an advanced TIROS and also with a research weather satellite named Nimbus. (Nimbus is the Latin word for "cloud".)

Since the mid-1960's, developments in weather satellites have taken place so rapidly that books written on the subject are practically obsolete by the time they are published.

Today, we have two basic types of weather satellites. One is the sophisticated sister of TIROS and Nimbus. It is capable of looking at all sections of the earth at least once a day

The other type of satellite is the one which gives the impressive time-lapse films of clouds which are shown by some TV weathermen. These pictures are taken by a satellile 22 thousand miles above the earth in what is called a synchronous orbit. That is, it rotates with the earth and near the equator.

Weather satellites allow meteorologists to compile an enormous amount of weather information on a world-wide scale. Much of this information comes from regions of the earth where there are few, if any, earth-based instruments. Finally, an added benefit of the weather satellite is its ability to spot weather disturbances which may become hurricanes. The satellite can also track the storms, helping to save lives and preventing an enoromus amount of dam-

Nursing homes,

The visitors ban, which has been in effect at Community Memorial Hospital and three local nursing homes because of the influenza epidemic, now has been lifted, according to the respective administrators.

Nursing homes include Sauer Memorial Home, St. Anne Hospice and Watkins United Methodist Home.

Visitors now are welcome in the hospital and nursing homes.

CITY OF WINONA Dog Licenses Due Now

The 1972 dog licenses are available now at the office of the City Treasurer, Room 2, Basement of City Bldg. The City Ordinance provides that every owner of a dog must purchase a license for it, failure to do so is a violation of the City Ordinance and subjects the owner to arrest and penalty as for a misdemeanor.

The 1971 licenses expire March 28th, 1972 and the new license must be purchased by April 1, 1972 ($1 penalty added after April 1st).

Rables vaccination must be presented for new registrations before license will be issued.

License Fees are: Mate Dog, $2.00; Spayed Female, $2.00; Female, $3.00.

CMH visitor ban is lifted

NEW YORK - Eve Arden pursed her lips to a daiguiri at 21 the other afternoon and said, "Even overseas, they know me as 'Miss Brooks.'" "They tell me they hear me teaching school in Spanish, Italian and German. And in Hawaii, a lot of people with Chinese background came up to me. Somehow you don't think of Miss Brooks as 'Missy Blooks.'

Eve, the former Eunice Quedens from Mill Valley, Cal., who has been around show business since the Florenz Ziegfeld days but doesn't look it, quit doing "Our Miss Brooks" about 10 years ago. But nine years of playing a schoolteacher on radio and TV had piled up such wealth of reruns that she says, "I can't go down any street two blocks without being recognized." And then an imaginative and creative fellow got the idea of Eve Arden playing a teacher-turned-private eye, and she performs that in ABC TV's Movie of the Weekend in "A Very Missing Person" this weekend. That may start her on still another schoolteacher career, It could come in a series. As she was relating this over her dalquiri, her manager Glenn Rose of Hollywood spoke up excitedly. "Eve went to Joe Allens' night before last." He spoke of a young actors' hangout on W. 46th St. "Yesterday the phone

Last week's correct solution

DOWN

1. NOVICES not notices. The clue's reference to "certain points" (as among various other points) suggests that a miscellany of knowledge is concerned - favoring NOVICES. For notices, it would be more apt to say simply: "They may not be too clear."

The choice of this one letter spoiled an otherwise perfect entry for Mrs. Kujak, one of several players who were close to the solution in last week's game. The $560, therefore, remains in the jackpot for this week's game and to it is added the $10 that goes in each week there isn't a winner.

check for $570. If there are two or more winners the prize money will be divided equally.

To be eligible for a prize an entry must be mailed in an envelope bearing 8 cents postage and a postmark not later than Wednesday.

Last week's mail brought an inquiry from Mrs. Anna Thompson, La Crescent, Minn., as to whether players who make facsimiles of the puzzle form for extra entries must include the numbers of each word in the boxes.

The rules specify that they must be exact reproductions of the puzzle form but, although inclusion of the numbers helps the judges in checking entries, none has ever been disqualified because a number is missing.

2. BEACH not bench. "At a busy time" favors BEACH, as at a holiday resort. A worker's bench is apt to be more or less cluttered (or kept reasonably clear) without regard to how busy he is.

4. CUPS not cops. As major trophies, some CUPS are more important than others. In discussing police officers in terms of rank, dignity or importance, the informal term "cops" is hardly appropriate.

5. SCREAMING not streaming. It is to be hoped that it is not normal for children to come SCREAMING out of school: hence, if and when they do so, some explanation or excuse is appropriate, which the clue duly provides ("they are probably in high spirits"). "Streaming" adds little of value to the clue as it stands

13. WIFE not wine. The clue's inclusion of "would" suggests a hypothetical choice: some men, perhaps from pride. would prefer not to have a rich WIFE (even if such a luxury were available to them). Men simply prefer any kind of wine they like; it's not a question of what they "would" prefer.

21. PAST not post, "Because of his PAST in a technical department," i.e., because of his technical experience, a man may be valued for the specialized knowledge he has gained. With post, the clue's sequence of ideas is unnatural: a man has a post by virtue of his value, rather than value because of his post.

ACROSS

4. CAST not cash. A CAST may be "gathered together for a charity purpose" (i.e., assembled for a purpose connected with charity, such as a fund-raising play). Cash is simply collected for charity.

7. EXPORTS not experts. The clue's inclusion of "more" implies that there are some experts/EXPORTS already. This is true only of EXPORTS. On the other hand, it would be enough to say that, due to certain problems, experts may be called in.

9. PIECES not nieces. The proviso: "if musical," while lending sense to the answer "PIECES," is not wanted for "nieces." There are various ways in which nieces (unqualified) can help to cheer up an old lady.

11. MARE not maze. A "difficult' MARE "presents' a problem. A maze simply is a form of problem or puzzle.

12. FEW not new. In a case where only FEW arms get through, there is a convincing link with the idea of their being "sorely needed." "New" lacks point; any arms that get through are new (as fresh supplies) anyway.

_ 14. TEAK not team. Since the clue is concerned with apearances, TEAK is more apt. If a team has extra "polish" (refinement of playing style) it is arguably a better team; it doesn't merely "look" better.

18. BEND not mend or send. The clue is necessarily true of BEND, since it is never difficult to BEND a wire to suit one's purpose. On the other hand, due to lack of practical requirements (e.g., tools or materials for mend, cash or communications for send) it may not be easy to mend or send a wire.

22. MEAT not heat. The clue is plainly true to MEAT. Under careful management, it's more a question of little superfluous heat being used, than of very little being "wasted.'

25. CREEK not creel. A CREEK associated "readily enough" with the idea of fishing. A creel, being a fishing basket, is directly and especially associated with fishing.

26. CHESS not chefs. There are some great masters among chefs, or "in the world of" cookery; it is doublful that any culinary province is strictly "the world of chefs." CHESS is so apt as not to need justification.

27. DATE not hate. Since a misogynist can hate every woman he meets, we are on firmer ground with DATE.

13. Possessive pronoun. 14. Destruction. 15. A documentary film could be, in effect, an enlightening

18. Any sort of economic could be of vital assistance to a struggling farmer. 23. Burnt remains of tobacco, for instance. 24. Part of a book. 25. Strong defenses are never easy to -- down.

What, still another group?

A cynic might have a field day with the situation that requires a volunteer organization to coordinate the activities of volunteer organizations.

Yet this seems to make a good deal of sense for Winona. Representatives of 10 volunteer groups met last week and decided to form Winona Volunteer Services. This way they can share office space (it's donated) and such office necessities as telephones and typewriters. Moreover, because of the concentration they'll have a better idea of what the other organization is doing and even shift personnel where that need is indicated.

But, most of all, the new arrangement will be convenient and efficient for the person who needs help. How do most of us with a problem know whether we should call on FISH. YES, HOPE or whatever. Now we can walk into 109 W. Broadway and state our problem and be referred to the appropriate volunteer agency.

As of this moment each organization still has its own telephone number, but in the near future it is hoped that there will be a universal number for assistance.

Present affiliated organizations are FISH, YES, HOPE, Winona Child Abuse Committee, New Way, Hot Meals on Wheels, Youth Action Council, Winona Area Environmental Committee, Teen Corps and Winona Drug Abuse Committee. Others may affiliate.

A sensible conglomerate such as this again raises the possibility that maybe one of these days Winona can join those communities where telephone subscribers can dial a universal telephone number - 911 - for other emergency services, - fire, police, ambulance, sheriff, etc.-A.B.

Listing the unlisted

People who don't have their telephone numbers published in the directory do so for a variety of reasons, which, however, can be distilled down to an aversion to talking to people they don't want to talk to. A commendable ambition.

When public officials hide behind this privacy, citizens may be unhappy (you can find our mayor's number in our directory and call him at home, but you can't find the governor's number in the St. Paul directory), although a complaining citizen might find a more receptive ear during office hours than home hours.

At any rate when the telephone company started charging for not listing a number, a number of the shy customers here decided their privacy wasn't worth that much. Those that remain unlisted might be surprised to learn that, with few exceptions, their telephone number is, however, listed in the city directory. You'll find it with their ly, along with the failure of environmentalist theories to which the liberal establishment continues to cling with fierce tenacity.

The idea that native intelligence can be substantially altered by changing environment came along in America after Lysenkoism took root in Russia, much to the discredit of Russian biology. Both theories were designed to provide a rationale for a certain type of social action.

AS IT BECAME apparent that student performance was not responding as predicted to standard academic environments, the intelligent procedure of revising the theory fell victim to the more comfortable bug-out of concealing the facts.

Thus, IQ tests were roundly denounced as "misleading" and "irrelevant," and the pass-fail gimmick, which makes grades of 65 look exactly like grades of 100, was pushed as a means of relieving students from debilitating tensions. It is not true, of course, that old-

WASHINGTON - The recent announcement by Mercedes University that it will offer an experimental course in bank robbery during the spring semester has created quite a stir on campus, not all of it favorable.

Murphy P. Clisk, chairman of Mercedes's board of trustees, was hanged in effigy last week after publication of news stories stating that he had protested installation of the new course and had told the faculty that it was "positively criminal." Clisk now says that he was misquoted, but he concedes that he is uneasy about possible dangers to the students enrolled in Armed Robbery 101, as the course is designated.

PRESIDENT Elston Pardee described himself as "enthusiastic" about "this new departure in education," but found himself denounced in the campus paper two days ago after he had admonished students and professors conducting the course against conducting field hold-ups with real weapons.

"Pardee is an anachronism,' said Armand (three-shot Louis) Dupin, professor of significant and relevant experience, who will conduct the style academic A to F grades were infallible. Some Phi Beta Kappas have wound up behind cigar counters, and many a gaudy success story flunked French. But it is also true that the percentage of effective minds among Phi Betas vastly exceeds that among straight-C skinners-through.

Competition for grades can be overdone to the point of bringing on a neurosis, just as a man of mediocre native ability can injure himself physically by overtrying to win a mile race. But the idea that academic competition is evil is a very new one in America, and one certainly not reflected in the tough standards imposed in the schools of communist countries.

There is something pretty anomalous about the professor who pores over comparative evaluations of lawn mowers in Consumer Reports in an effort to see which brand stacks up best, while refusing to reveal to parents how their children seem to perform.

THEN THERE IS the matter of teacher tenure. This is a device by which a teacher, after a period of probation, becomes practically immune from dismissal except in cases of gross moral delinquencies.

According to the Wall Street Journal, some departments at the City University of New York now have more professors than students as a result of the elimination of certain required courses. Yet the faculty mix cannot be changed because of tenure.

Incompetence is hard to prove in court, and the American Association of University Professors is hellbent to make it as unprovable as possible." So, many college classes sink into coma before a droning coaster with yellowed notes who cannot be replaced, much as the college administration would desire it.

Originally sold as a device for preserving academic freedom of conscience, tenure is the reason why professors whom students will avoid, if possible, have become an irreducible drain on college budgets.

TO SAY THAT a professor, who was adjudged competent after three years, should live out his life without re-evaluation is like saying that because the 1960 Chrysler was a good car Ralph Nader has no right to look into the 1972 model.

Thus, there has grown up in the Halls of Academe a strange double-standard regarding responsibility to the public. The so-called "private sector," meaning business and industry, is under incessant suspicion of overpricing, short - weight and faulty engineering. It needs close and constant auditing. But efforts to evaluate the theories and perform-

No easy way

RIVERSIDE, Calif .-- "To improve the education of kids is a lot harder than we thought it would be." That's one thing Arthur L. Littleworth, the thoughtful young attorney who heads this city's school board, has learned since Riverside became the first city of over 100,000 population to integrate its schools. That was in 1965.

Since the inception of integration here, the program has been closely monitored by University of California authorities; some of the more important findings are that:

• The education of white children has not suffered.

• The reading and other achievement levels of minority group children has improved, but not as much as had been hoped.

 Education levels improved most when minority children were integrated into schools of the highest socio - economic status.

 Minority children arriving at junior high school levels after several years of integrated education show greater gains, in behavior, language and attitude than in reading scores.

FROM ALL THIS, Arthur Littleworth has concluded that integration by itself doesn't necessarily improve education. "Much more has to be done with the school program, teachers, students," he believes. "You can't do it only with money and goodwill. You have to work at it all the time. Improving the education of children has to have top priority in all your thinking and planning. Nor is there any set formula. The Longfellow school here has remained about half black, half white - usually a situation that produces "white flight." But he believes, too, that the whole Riverside school system has been improved because the integration program has forced the school board, administrators and teachers to greater consideration for the individual needs of each student. "You can't just pay more attention to some students," he says, "and you can't just lump them all together as 'third graders' or 'first graders.'" Besides, he says, integration is important in itself. "I think the need to bring us together as one people is equal to the need for improved education."

Tom Wicker

model for the nation. It buses a relatively modest 1,850 students for integration purposes (and nearly 4,000 more who live too far from school to walk) and the integration busing is "one-way" - out of minoritygroup neighborhoods into white middle-class schools. Minorities are only 13 percent of the pupil population. But that Riverside is different from other communities is exactly why Arthur Littleworth is opposed to a constitutional amendment banning busing, or to rigid legislation like the Griffin Amendment just rejected in the Senate. Every community has a different problem, he believes, and so "every situation has to be approached in an individual manner" - which can hardly be done under arbitrary national restrictions.

Bar-nothing dorm

It had to come. Colleges and universities have put both sexes in the same dormitories, separated by floors; they've put them in alternate rooms on the same floor; they've let them share bathrooms, lounges and showers, and now . . . they share the same room, officially. At the University of Michigan they're trying a two-week experiment where 12 females are living with 17 males. Each female is either sharing a room with one or two males. In the selection each participant had three votes so that eventually they got the right mates ... Still barred from the college dormitory are babies. Can that decision be far behind? - A.B.

Highway builders respond to pleas

Evidence that highway departments can be persuaded to change their favorite routes and designs was provided in the announcement by the Wisconsin Highway Commission that it has virtually abandoned its plan to relocate Highway 35 in the marshy river bottoms from Bluff Siding.

The views of conservationists, the city of Winona (on reducing the flood plain) and others were factors in persuading the commission to all but abandon this possible route.

However, there will be environmental costs also, if the highway is rebuilt at its approximate present alignment. Four-lane construction will require from 125 to 150 feet which will necessitate a considerable change in the appearance of this area. It is now somewhat attractive, although not so safe.

Whatever route is finally selected it is hoped that some improvement will be made in the present h.zardous and confusing intersection with Highway 54 - at the Wisconsin end of the interstate bridge, – A.B.

England this year will put into effect an interesting and innovative new theory of penology. Under terms of a new law, criminals will soon be made to pay compensation for their crimes. The embezzler no longer will be to pay for his crime in a way that makes up some of the loss it caused to society. The reason for this new venture in penology is that Britain's prisons have become hadly overcrowded and conditions for effective rehabilitation in them are poor. Nearly all prisoners are released sooner or later and the British are willing to try a means of punishing the guilty by making him repay those he has injured at the same time he is being rehabilitated.

Parallel conditions exist on the American prison scene, but the idea of making the convict repay the victims of his crimes has not been widely advanced here, though any benefits it might bring would be fully as welcome in America as in England. The victim of crime in America regains none of his loss simply because the criminal is caught and locked up.

Making punishment not only fit the crime but provide some compensation for those who suffer from it is a bright new idea, and all eyes should be on England to see how it works.

Two barges loaded at Bremerhaven, Germany, were unloaded recently at Chattanooga. They carried nylon and polyester yarns made in Germany and Spain. It would be a better story if those barges had been loaded with cotton yarns, or bales, and making delivery in Europe.

Even so, these barges represent something big for cities on the Mississippi River and the Arkansas as well as the Tennessee. They were the first to get to Chattanooga.

After years of anticipation, they are commercial demonstrations of the process in which a loaded barge is taken aboard an ocean-going freighter. They skip unloading and reloading at seaboards, a big saving in time and expense, as well as in damage to the goods in transit.

As more of these barges that go to sea aboard ships come into use, businessmen in river towns will be more likely to place appropriate value on towboat service.

Killing post offices invest in poultry or oil exploration or steel fabrication." There are undoubtedly laws to prevent them from abandoning the mail business, but they may well choose to eliminate anything resembling "Service." Of course the Postal Service is still subsidizing junk-mail for big business, but killing off newspapers and magazines that perform a worthy public service. Competition is not tolerated either, as witness the court injunction sought against the Independent Postal Service's attempt to offer 5-cent letter service.

No HRA commitment on higher cost for city urban renewal

Under its contract with Plaza Development Corp., for redevelopment of the one-square block of demolished downtown property, the Housing and Redevelopment Authority. committed the City of Winona to build, at taxpayers' expense, a $1 million parking ramp and skyway as an accommodation to Plaza. Moreover, HRA has also proposed that the federal government increase its contribution from $1,549,216 to $2,140,892 and has since indicated in press releases that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has agreed to do so.

The federal government has tendered no such accept-ance. In a letter to the writer of Jan. 20, 1972, HUD writes, "The HRA and area office have agreed that an application should not be submitted until actual costs are known. At the time the amendatory application is submitted, it will be reviewed under HUD guidelines. Any requested increase in fecteral participation would have to be legally permissible and in accord with our guidelines before the area office could give approval."

Thus the eviction of tenants from the one-square-block area, demolition of the properties, loss of approximately $35,000 in 1971 real estate tax revenue, and commitment by the city of Winona to build the parking ramp and skyway have all occurred without any real assurance that the fed-eral government will participate to the extent that HRA itself considers necessary. Without the increased federal participation HRA envi-sions, the cost of the commitments to local taxpayers will amount to approximately $1,320,000. Even with such participation, the local taxpayer contribution will be approximately $720,000.

At regular meetings of HRA and the City Council, the write suggested an alternative plan of development patterned after two successful Chicago urban renewal projects known as Kimbark Plaza and Harper Court. These were constructed on similar one-square block areas. Kimbark Plaza, in particular, contains a 165-car, no-meter parking area which surrounds a centrally located 18-store shopping center. Cost of the project? About one-third that expected here in Winona. The suggestion brought no response from either HRA or the City Council.

When will these representative bodies consider an alternative to the present costly course of action? Real estate taxes lost from the area amount to approximately $100 with each passing day, to say nothing of the commercial loss.

Symphony praised

The winter concert of the Winona Symphony Orchestra at the Performing Arts Center Sunday evening was surely a memorable experience for the fortunate people who decided to attend.

The amazing talent displayed by Barbara Woodworth, the young piano soloist, held the audience spellbound. Pamela Brunkow, soprano, sang two exquisitely beautiful arias with what seemed to us perfection. The orchestra's performance, under Milton Davenport's direction, had a truly professional sound and would indicate that each of its members has genuine talent for the instrument he plays.

Programs of this kind make one appreciate living in Winona where such outstanding musical talent is generously presented for the enjoyment of the public free of charge. DOROTHY and JOHN MATEKA

Orchestra wins plaudits of guild

Blair chamber Many, many thanks to our own wonderful Winona Symbered by everyone that was fortunate enough to be there that evening It took place at the Winona State College's new beautiful Performing Arts Theater Feb. 27 to a capacity crowd. The symphony was expertly conducted by Milton Davenport. The concert-mistress was Sister Genevieve Speltz playing first violin, and the soloists were Pamela Brunkow and Barbara Woodworth. The orchestra consists of 57 members, who are Winona students and other musicians in the community, together with two musicians from La Crosse Pamela Brunkow, a soprano, executed her numbers with considerable aptitude and skill. Her clarity of tone and beautiful interpretation gave a thrill to her audience. Last, but surely not least, the simply astounding performance by Barbara Woodworth stunned the audience with her rendition on the plano of Beethoven's Concerto No. 1 C Major - Allegro con Brio. Here is a little "angel face" 13-year-old talented "child prodigy" who shows great promise with her skill, dexterity and command of the keyboard. She well deserved the immediate standing ovation that the appreciative audience gave her. We are truly proud to have played a small part as cosponsors. MRS. R. J. ## Woman got impression man wanted for job

<sup>5</sup> In reply to Robert Norton (secretary of City Merit Board) and his statement in the Daily News concerning the chemist position:

First, I would like to clear up where I obtained knowledge of the chemist position. It was not from the want ads, I was told personally of the position about three days before it appeared in the newspaper and that my qualifications would allow me to apply for the job.

Secondly, I proceeded to see Mr. Norton where I stated my purpose and through words and attitudes of that office, the general impression was that a man was wanted for the position. Never were my qualifications asked nor did I receive an application to apply for which I had come. So therefore, I am not an applicant because I was not given the opportunity to apply. The main intent for the first letter was to call attention to the situation, not to create misunderstandings, which have now been clarified. Therefore, I withdraw my statement of discrimination having learned of three women applicants. NANCY J. WING hosts AMP

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) - The Blair Chamber of Commerce sponsored a dinner for the American Milk Producers, Inc., (AMPI) Blair plant at Green Meadows Supper Club Blair, Wednesday,

The Blair plant is part of the northern AMPI area which serves more than 8,000 farmers. The plant presently is processing 1,400,000 pounds of milk per day with 140,000 pounds of cheese manufactured daily.

When the plant whey dryer and evaporator go into operation, about May 1, the milk capacity will rise to a daily volume of 2.75 million pounds, according to Kenneth Olson, district manager. Along with the evaporator, three 5,000 gallon blending tanks will be installed for making a variety of special products. Olson said, and will double the returns on whey powder. James Hill, Minneapolis, AMPI public relations, said milk from the Mindoro, Alma, Elk Creek, Strum, Osseo, and Turtle Lake, Wis., and Grafton, Minn., areas is being processed at the Blair plant. The company is considering installing a cheese processing and packaging plant there also, he said. The complete whey dryer addition, including warehouse and boilers, cost in excess of $1.5 million dollars and will be the largest plant of its kind in the United States, Hill said.

Plainview man reaches 94 but is still a thinker and a doer

PLAINVIEW, Minn. (Special) — An elderly Plainview man, who is a great thinker, has an excellent memory, is alert, has good health, enjoys company and does not need eye glasses.

What more could one ask for at age 94, asks Albert (AI) Posz, who "chalked up" another year on Feb. 15. .

He recalls that Charles Posz, a relative who studied for the ministry once said to him:

When people in this country reach the age of 80 some one should take them out in the back yard and shoot them."

"I WOULD HAVE been dead a long time, if that would have happened to me, wouldn't I?" asked the witty gentleman.

Posz who was named Daniel Albert Posz, lives all alone in a two-story frame house.

He does his own cooking, has a garden each summer, watches television, enjoys reading the Daily & Sunday News, spends many hours writing letters and still drives a car.

When he applied for his current driver's license at the age of 91, he recalls that the examiner told him to put his glasses on.

"I don't wear glasses," was Posz's answer.

SO THE FELLOW had me read the different letters," said Posz. "He could not believe it; he told me that I had better sight than some 45 year old people.

But Posz hasn't been driving his car this winter. In fact, it's been more than a month since he has been out of the house.

"I have good people who look in on me. Vince King brings my necessities; Albert Staege, a neighbor across the street, drops in occasionally and two young girls, Ann Kruger and Debbie Flies, visit me regularly."

The two girls also took their "elderly boy friend" a cake on his 94th birthday. "Aren't they nice?" asked Posz.

Posz maintains that he has smoked and chewed enough tobacco to pay for his home two times. He still smokes a pipe and, on occasion, a cigar.

"WHEN ONE GETS down in the dumps he should take a little nip now and then, but he shouldn't try to keep the distilleries working," he said.

Posz, who has many interesting tales to tell when recounting his long life, was born in Kenton County, Ky., across the river from Cincinnati, and was reared around Lewiston, Minn.

"I'm proud of that little town," said Posz, referring to Lewiston. "It has more wealth and more feeling of fellowship than any other town I have lived in."

Posz, who contends that he has always been a thinker, received his education in a German Evangelical School. He's rambled all over the country, from St. Juan to Fucha, to the Mexican border.

"I've been in every state west of the Mississippi River," he said.

ONE YEAR WAS spent working in a packing plant at Independence, Ore. He did truck farming for many years, shipping his produce to Bowling Green, Ill., and other places. For three years he fired a locomotive at Huron, S.D. and received pay of $2.20 for 100 miles. "Now the fellows just sit there and turn a valve and get $10 or $15 an hour," said Posz. "If I would have stayed with the railroad for one more year I could have been an engineer. But I came home at age 21. I had decided for the little bit of money I was earning I may as well be a bum."

IN 1911 he moved to Plainview and in 1918 purchased the two-story wooden house he now lives in, for $3,700. He and his wife, the former Etta Gaylord, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary last May. She died in September.

There are two sons, Everett Posz, Bloomington, Minn., and Albert Posz, St. Louis Park, Minn.; two daughters, Mrs. Carl (Darcey) Burnard, Forest Green, Ore., and Mrs. Burnell (Mary) Albright, St. Paul; 10 grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren and one great-great grandchild.

HIS DAUGHER, Darcey, who was the first 4-H leader in Wabasha County, currently teaches school in Oregon.

Posz, who has led a busy life, contends that his only association with doctors was when doctors asked him to assist by administering anaesthetics. Two of them were Dr. Conrad Neuman, Lewiston, and Dr. Jess Slocumb, Plainview.

"It's important to keep thinking all of the time," said Posz. "When you stop and think things over," he mused, "life is just a vale of tears. Nowadays, no matter if you're right, you're wrong."

He concluded the interview by saying:

"As many a honest heart beats under a ragged vest. provided the hand and heart are clean, who cares how one is dressed? Money is a trifle that comes and goes. It only lasts a day. But love and truth in age and youth are riches that live always.

"Fortune marks the timid man. Honor crowns the hero's grave. 'Bif, bang' creeds without deeds are hollow. Sword in hand, at thy command, I'll do or die. Good or bad, you've got to do things."

Young-and not so young-button up Bib overall fashion sweeps U.S.-Winona no exception

JUNIOR HIGH COMFORT... One way for Miss Cindy Bublitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bublitz, 962 W. Mark St., to be in style is to wear --flared overalls with a chambrey shirt. The patch pockets are for man-added attraction.

By MARY KRUGER Sunday News Women's Editor

Local merchants claim to be tuned in to the times and rightfully so, since they boost a huge selection of the very popular bib overalls, a fad that has spread across the nation and one that is forecast to continue during spring and summer.

What once was known as farmer 'overalls, now is a sought-after item by the younger generation. Overalls are purchased and worn almost everywhere. And in addition, they're being purchased by the dozen, according to merchants who have upped their stock due to the demand by junior high school students and "youngsters" pushing their 30th birthdays.

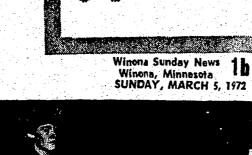

While several merchants claimed a small demand for the bibs, others told of a stock which includes polka dots, stripes, plaids and plain colors as well as the traditional blue denims. For most persons wearing the stylish overalls, their accouterment is a blue chambrey workshirt which, one merchant said, "sell by the dozen." "The younger set is simply wild about them," said another, "and the green light is flashing 'go' for spring and summer."

Granted, overalls might seem warm for summer but it hasn't seemed to affect the fad. The young men's answer is to remove the usual shirt and just wear the overalls. To some of the more conservative, the entire idea of overalls as a fashion is uncalled for and sloppy but, on the other hand, the consumer will tell you that the mode of dress is considerably cheaper and more comfortable Besides, the style is "in" and, to them, that's what counts. One merchant pointed out that he has made no attempt to stock the merchandise for the younger set but did admit that he finds himself selling the farmer-styled bib overalls to the guys and gals alike. He laughted a little when telling about a young woman trying to fit herself into a pair of men's size 38 overalls. She was a size 10.

Merchants agreed that the so-called regular overalls are cut for men and simply don't fit the women properly. One merchant, however, is a jump ahead. He is stocking women's bibs that feature everything from polka dots to plaids - all in bright colors. Several indicated that there is no demand for women's overalls. One merchant talked about the new overalls arriving for spring and summer that feature newer and softer fabrics. He anticipates they will "catch on" in a hurry.

To what and when do the young people wear bid overalls? You name it. Junior high, high school and college students wear them to classes. Others wear them to concerts, sports activities and some wear them to weddings.

Movie rating code changed for clarity

By CAROLYN KOSIDOWSKI

Sunday News Assistant Women's Editor

THE Motion Picture Association of America has recently announced a change in the symbols used in its rating system.

The previously used symbol GP has been changed to PG. The rating system itself has not changed, however, the association felt that the symbol should be changed to alleviate misunderstanding.

The PG rating is explained as follows: all ages will be admitted to the theater, however, parental guidance is suggested since some material in the film may not be suitable for pre-teen-agers.

From the onset of the rating system in 1968, the category designated as GP was misinterpreted to mean general patronage, when in reality it meant general audiences-parental guidance suggested. The association stresses that he choice is, however, up to the parents, not the theater. The theater places no age restriction on movies in this category. The rating system in its entirety now reads:

YOUNG MAN ATTRACTION . . . Danny Quam, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Glenn Quam, 905 W. Howard St., wears the traditional farmer-styled overalls of blue denim with white stripes. The flat-topped hat he is wearing is the latest attraction for the "overall set."

POLKA DOTS RAGE... Mrs. Robert Bublitz sports a pair of blue denims with large white polka dots, complete with a red, western shirt and brimmed hat of blue with white polka dots.

LADY-LIKE . . . Mrs. Dick Harper, Minnesota City, wears a pair of overalls of white with a blue stripe and matching blue patch pockets. A chambrey shirt completes the outfit,

Additional information needed, parents agree Reaction mixed on value of movie ratings

How effective are movie ratings and what influence do they really have upon the movie-going public?

The first and most obvious aim of the rating system is to prevent children under 17 from seeing R- and X-rated movies because of the age limit imposed by the theaters.

But what about the 12-year-old who sees a picture rated PG portraying a theme which he is too immature to interpret correctly? Or the immature 17-yearold who, while passing the age limit imposed by the theater, is too immature to cope with the material portrayed in the film?

It is at this point that parents must step in and help their children make decisions about which movies are suitable for them to see.

While some parents admit that they do not care which films their children see as long as the theater will admit them, many parents expressed a great amount of concern over the type of pictures they will allow their children (particularly preteen and early teen age children) to attend. These concerned parents admit, however, that it is at times very difficult to determine the quality of a film their children wish to see. One mother said, "Unless I can find out something about a movie rated PG, the only thing I really know is that there may be something in that movie I would not want my child to see. But in order to find out what it is, I would first have to see the movie myself, and that is not always possible or desirable."

She commented further that she tries to find reviews of the movies and judge from the reviews as to the suitability of the movie for her children.

And, as many parents pointed out, the maturity of each individual child must be taken into consideration.

Bad language and excessive violence in movies were named as two of the most objectionable themes in movies being presented today.

and the second second

One mother of two older teens said that while she no longer tells them exactly which movies they can see, she trusts their own judgment.

"And," she pointed out, "if I have provided them with a good solid family background, as I hope I have, even if they happen to see a really bad movie, it is not really going to influence them that much. They, hopefully, will be able to make their own judgments as to what is good and bad and will not decide something is good just because they saw it in a movie."

Television programs come in for their fair share of criticism, too. Many parents felt that they had to be selective as to what type of television programs and television movies their children watched.

An elementary guidance counselor in one of the city's schools explained that he often speaks to older elementary students about television programs. Many of the programs designed to appeal to children are so unrealistic as to be unbelievable. The television families are too clean, too patient, too privileged to present a person or family with which children can really identify.

This same counselor said he would wish to caution parents about letting their fifth and sixth grade students view certain movies, particularly horror movies, which may be rated PG and thus open to children of this age. He cited an example of one student be had counseled for more than six months who had become so frightened watching a horror movie that be had experienced recurrent nightmares. Many children of this age, he explained, are not mature enough to be exposed to this type of film.

How do young people themselves react to the movie ratings? Many said they (Continued on page 6b) REACTION MIXED G-All ages admitted, General audiences;

PG—Parental Guidance suggested, all ages admitted; R—Restricted, persons under the age of 17 will be admitted only if accompanied by a parent or adult guardian; X—No one under the age of 17 will be admitted, with the age limit varying in certain areas.

Explained further: • A G-rated movie, while not necessarily designed for the very young, is one which tells a story or develops a theme in a way that is acceptable for patrons of most ages.

• A PG-rated movie can be attended by patrons of all ages, but may contain some elements to which parents should be alerted and, from additional information, may make the choice whether or not their child should see the movie.

• An R-rated movie is so restricted by age because it deals with themes. A parent may take his under-17-year-old to the movie if he so chooses, but the patron under 17-years of age will not be admitted unless he is accompanied by a parent or adult guardian. This is the motion picture industry's attempt to protect young people whose parents do not accept the responsibility of censorship for their children.

• Movies rated X are so rated because they do not carry the Motion Picture Code of Self-Regulation. A film may also be rated X because its distributors have refused to submit the film for rating by the Code and Rating Administration, the agency which rates all films.

The president of the Motion Picture Association of America suggests for the rating system to be fully effective that parents know the meaning of each symbol and the admission policy and urge their children to respect the restrictions of all X- and R-rated movies. He further urges parents to locate several sources of film information which can tell them what the movie contains before making the decision to allow their children to attend.

Other sources of film information may be obtained by reading reviews of the films in newspapers and Women's and family magazines such as Good Housekeeping and Parents' Magazine, who review the movies and rate them according to their own rating system.

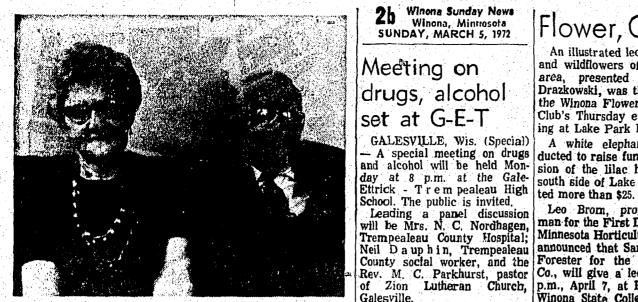

Another rating system for movies is provided by the National Catholic Office of Motion Pictures. Their rating system classifies movies in three major categories with subdivisions in the first category.

The ratings read: A-1—morally unobjectionable for general patronage; A-2—morally unobjectionable for adults and adolescents; A3-—morally unobjectionable for adults; A-4—morally unobjectionable for adults with reservations and may require caution and explanation to the uninformed as to possible misinterpretation. B—morally objectionable in part for all because of excessive violence, excessive sexual themes or nudity; C—condemned for all.

These ratings are available to interested persons from many Catholic churches.

Protestant clergyman interviewed explained that their churches, while not having a set system of movie raings, counsel parents in their congregations to guide their children in the selection of movie and

One minister or two for this wedding?

DEAR ABBY: First a young college couple wrote saying they had become fond of the clergyman in their little college town church. They said they wanted him to marry them in the bride's hometown church, but her parents felt it would be a slap in the face to the hometown minister. You said, "It's your wedding and you should have the right to do it your way."

A minister wrote in and said, "It appears that you are telling the girl to ignore her hometown pastor and have another not done.' Then you backed off suggesting a compromise: "Have BOTH ministers, and let them share the service."

Sorry, Abby, but you should have stuck to your guns. The church is a house of God, and not the property of a man so schooled in dispensing God's will that he has com-pletely forgotten his mortal place, and has become to believe that he is God.

If a minister has to put an embargo on the use of a church building in order to get people into it, then surely God does not dwell there.

He should be thankful the bride wanted to get married in a church when today so many marriage ceremonies are being performed in national parks, secluded canyons and elsewhere. LW.

DEAR L.W.: And some don't want marriage ceremonies period! Thanks for writing...

like a woman occasionally. He said his wife "understood" and had no objections - in fact, they often went to dinner and theater as two "women."

Your comment, "Doesn't it create a problem when you have to use the powder room," deserves an answer from one who knows.

I am also a man (biologically) who enjoys passing as a woman occasionally. (We are called "transvestites.") Any man who can pass for a woman in public can surely pass for a woman in the powder room. And since all the ladies' rooms I have ever been in have private booths with doors. this is no problem.

It doesn't seem to bother anyone that airplanes have only one bathroom for both men and women, so what is all the fuss about? ANOTHER TRANSVESTITE

DEAR TRANS: It's true, if a man goes undetected in a ladies' room, there is no problem since what a woman doesn't know can't hurt htr. But the "fuss" could be that ladies' rooms are for biological women only. And even though it's not against the law in some places for a man to masquerade as a woman, he had better not be caught in the ladies' room.

For TODAY, March 5

Your birthday today: Action taken this year has to be within definite, disciplined channels if it is to be meaningful, Seek spiritual guidance withn your depths, by prayer, meditation. You may find what you've been doing leads nowhere beyond turning wheels and gears that produce very little. The pragmatic questions have to be answered soon. Today's natives hold strong family alliances, are sensitive to influences beyond those conventionally accepted as proven.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Do what you can to make this an easy Sunday. Impose a moratorium on family squabbles; go somewhere for a change of scene.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Cooperation becomes an achievement - take the initiative and keep it going. Offer others the same calm you'd like to enjoy. Gemini (May 21-June 20); Take it easy and have a fun

Sunday. Giving people time, space and peace brings them around in good humor and able to do something for you, unasked.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Your energy is up, and there's probably some adventure you've been wanting to try. Get busy; with like-minded friends.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): There may not be so many attending to community expressions of group effort, faith. Do your part in grace and dignity.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pursuing a normal Sunday routine brings gentle and interesting surprises. Gather your best friends about you for a party. Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get away from the usual Sunday routines, even at added expense . Your effort to be pleasant has a powerful impact on companions.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get everybody talking, listen attentively. Skip strenuous exertions for more important activities. Social connections are well worth cultivating.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 22): Circumstances run to coincidence - the difficulty is that you put unrelated things together and come up with strange results. Flexible plans succeed Capricorn) Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Press ahead toward what you want to achieve: pay little attention to the thoughtless remarks along the way. Your courtesy is enough.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Fill the role your community expects. Talking shop should be left out. You need the diversion to be just yourself. Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Loved ones are full of bright ideas and new theories. Meet their wave of cheer with your own enthusiasm.

For MONDAY, March 6

Your birthday today: You mobilize both material and psychic resources in short order for the conquest of personal limitations, environmental hindrances. A better way of life is near, and you seem destined to reach it within the next several months. Today's natives pursue knowledge avidly, don't always organize what they learn, but are thrifty in material concerns

Aries (March 21-April 19); Think of the future. Routines should be spread out and shared so you can concentrate on the things only you can do.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Hold activities to reasonable interludes. By day's end you may have a new viewpoint, be ready to move on to another phase.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Diversify it as you will, the day is a bit heavy going with much to do but little choice of how and when.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Pleasant social invitations include many you should accept. A temporary short cut or extra advantage is available in your work. Leo (Aug, 23-Sept. 22): Accept preoccupied behavior as being merely a momentary mood. Past experience provides clues for dealing with current problems.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Group finances promise to be complex, require much discussion. No really good way to hurry matters exists, so be patient.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A smooth, pleasant, approach to everybody brings excellent results, perhaps a confidence that resolves in minor mystery.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You needn't rush anything, or explain before being specifically asked. Move without elaborate preparations or prior announcements.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan, 19): Answer letters; narrow your choices to the feasible alternatives, seek more information. Material welfare promises improvement.

George Carlin Interview

If you've seen George Carlin on television lately you may be wondering what happened. His appearance, his material, his entire approach seem so much different from the days off his "Hippy Dippy Weatherman". I talked with him. While he was in New York recently taping a Flip Wilson show, we discussed the changes and the causes and his new album, AM/FM, Little David LD 7214.

SE: It seems like the ghost of Lenny Bruce kind of permeates your new album.

GC: Ya ... that would be quite natural. He had a big influence on me. He was probably the only idol I ever had, although I don't really like that word. But, he was definitely close to my work . . . to my thinking.

SE: It seems like earlier in your career you were more like a conventional stand-up comedian. Now all of a sudden you're much more hip.

GC: What happened was that I was always an individual comedian in the days of the early folk thing . . . in the early sixties before television "found" me. I was a rapper. A guy who talked about things in the first person to the audience. Talked about experiences that we all kind of shared. But, I could also do mimicry write these little parodies on television shows. So TV found me in 1965 and the only thing they were interested in was the mimicry and the parodies I could write. So they kept inviting me back and I kept writing more of those things. And eventually when I got into heavy night clubs I just had an act that was a series of bits. I did the "Weatherman", and then the "Disc Jockey" and then the "Quiz Show and I was gone. I was not in there any more. Now the reason I went into show business was for self-expression so when my self-ex-pression was gone I knew I had to get back to basics. had spent five years entertaining everybody's father in these nightclubs. And really the people who come to night clubs . . . those middle class audiences . . . are very bad. I mean they'll like your jokes and they'll laugh at them, but they're not daring people. They won't let you do anything realistic. They won't take a chance. You can't talk about social things. You can't really be yourself with them. So uh . . . I knew I had to leave these people and I knew colleges and the folk audience that I had been into in the sixties . . . I knew where they still were. They were now in the folkrock . . . whatever you want to call it. The alter-nate society. I just knew that I wanted to get back to them and be myself and not bother with those plastic people anymore. Then when I finally did take some acid, because all these other changes were ready to happen the acid made them easier to happen. Made it easier for me to follow my insightings which I had been forgetting to do. And you really shouldn't.

SE: How long ago did you take the acid?

GC: Oh . . . two years. 2½ years. I didn't have a very in-tense experience with it. I had kind of a pleasant marijuana high, but I didn't hallucinate or really have anything strange happen to me. I just noticed as months went by that my values had changed. I didn't get mad at some things I used to get mad at. I didn't care if this big job came through or not. In other words, I this big job canne through of not, in other words, I was more interested in what was real and what was me than all the garbage that I had been brought up to believe in. And all the stuff I had been doing in show business which was totally false.

SE: Did you put your agent or manager through any simllar changes? GC: Well ... I fired them

SE: That's not quite what I had in mind.

GC: My wife and I kind of re-tooled. We knew it was gonna be a tough year, but we were gonna get those colleges one by one. We're gonna go to these college houses and work on my sets. Work on my thing, And then what heally belped me the most was eight Johnny Carson shows. People saw my new appearance and saw that I wasn't "strange" or "weird", but that I had unlocked new things in myself.

SE: I know there are a lot of people who feel they're in the same position you were a couple of years ago in not being themselves; not being real. How far do you go in advocating what you did with acid for others?

GC: Well ... I can only be general. There's just much bad acid around. There's all kind of people who are mixed up. You hear that people shouldn't take it unless they're "together". But a lot of people who think they're to-gether aren't. So it's hard to say. But, there is something to that chemical experience. But that's just a general statement. I really wouldn't recommend any-thing because you can get in too much trouble and besides it's still against the law and I don't like to see my friends in trouble.

Reaction mixed on ratings

(Continued from page 1b) never check the ratings and if their parents don't care which movies they see, they will go if the theater will admit them. Others admitted that their parents imposed restrictions on their movie-going.

"I go to any movie I choose," said one 17-year-old boy. "If my friends think it is okay and if my parents don't ask any question, I go to movies regardless of the rating."

Another told of the ratings meaning little or nothing at all in terms of whether the movie was good or bad. One said that all teen-agers should be exposed to modern movies.

A young high school girl pointed out that she never attends a movie without first discussing it with her parents, especially her mother. She feels that her mother is a good judge since she is well aware of modern-day movies and what television shows through the use of good judgment.

The Rev. Paul Nelson, principal of Cotter High School, stated that he and other religious instructors talk to their students about movies and their possible influence and attempt to appeal to the student's sense of what is good, honest and morally sound. However, he admitted, the basic responsibility for the censorship of this private form of entertain-ment must be left in the hands of the parents, since they are the ones who must make the final decision whether or not heir children see a particular movie.

Several of the clergymen interviewed explained that they do not publicly condemn any motion picture, because they felt that when a church or clergyman stated that a picture was "bad" and should not be seen, it was merely a method of advertising the film. The curious-minded persons reacted in an adverse manner going to see the film "just to see what is so bad about it."

One clergyman pointed out that if a particular church or clergyman publicly condemns a motion picture, that motion picture is probably assured of a better box office reception than it normally would have received.

many of them contain. The young woman said that they discuss ratings but that both of them agree that ratings are not enough because they are confusing and don't adequately evaluate the movie. As a result they try to read as many reviews as possible and then make a decision.

A young junior high school boy an-nounced that his parents really don't care what movies he sees so he takes in a lot of them if he has the money for the admission ticket. Ratings mean nothing to him, he said.

A high school student of 16 says he attends few movies due to the cost involved. As a result, when he does go he attempts to choose carefully the movie he will see. Many times he goes with his parents to a family type show for "a good night of entertainment," he pointed out. He noted that many fellow students sneak out of the house to attend "dirty movies."

Donaldson trout shows promise 'Supertrout' set for state waters

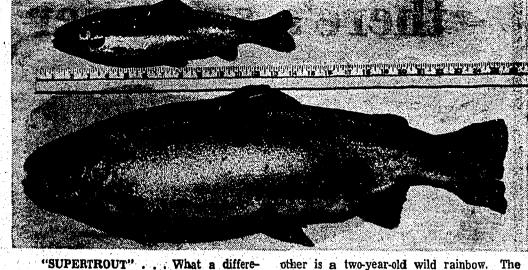

In this age of sports herees, it is only fitting that the ancient sport of angling finally has its own superstar.

The "superstar" is a huge Donaldson rainbow trout currently living a life of copious contentment at the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources' fish hatchery in St. Paul. Proudly nicknamed "su-permother" by hatchery of-ficials, the giant trout weighs a pampered 14 pounds though just three years old. A wild rainbow of the same age would weigh one-tenth of that. (Applying a com parable growth rate to a human, an eight-pound baby would weigh in excess of 448,000 pounds as a 30 year-old man.)

Supermother was the first-round draft choice of the DNR's Section of Fisheries in 1969, when a batch of Donaldson trout eggs was obtained from Dr. Lauren Donaldson of the University of Washington.

Dr. Donaldson developed his special strain of supertrout through 40 years of controlled selective breeding. His goal, which he attained, was to develop a strain of rainbow trout that would grow faster and larger than native rainbows and withstand greater fluctuations in water temperature. The current goal of DNR's Section of Fisheries is quite similar. Biologists hope to maintain and improve the bigh quality and production of the Donaldson strain in state hatcheries. Coinciding with this objective, more and more lakes can thus be stocked with these hardy,

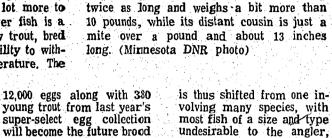

"SUPERTROUT" . . . What a differeence a year makes. Just compare these Donaldson, tabbed "supertrout," is nearly two fish. Of course, there's a lot more to it than a year's time. The lower fish is a three-year-old Donaldson rainbow trout, bred for its rapid growth rate and ability to withstand fluctuations in water temperature. The fast-growing fish which of course will greatly enhance the quality of fishing in Minnesota.

In recent weeks, these goals seemed closer to fruition as rainbow brood stock at the hatchery has yielded more than 100,000 quality eggs. Hatchery workers will be like mother hens to these eggs during their one-month incubation period. Later, when the fingerlings reach two inches in length, they will be kept in outdoor ponds where tem-peratures will be maintained at about 65 degrees to stimulate maximum growth. According to Don Woods, trout research coordinator, super-select egg collection will become the future brood stock for the Donaldson program. The remainder of this year's eggs, however, are destined for stocking in-to several Minnesota lakes. "Our brood stock program entails a complex method of intensive inbreeding and mass selection from among four choice families of Donaldson Rainbows to produce high-performance fish within each family," Woods explained.

Each of the brood stock will receive an I.D. tag and serial number. The results of each subsequent mating will be recorded to compare the number and survival rate of eggs, and the growth rate of the fingerlings. Parent fish that score high on all counts will be saved for another year. Their offspring will also be saved to begin selection of the next generation of superior brood stock. The remainder of the fingerlings will be stocked into lakes. To date, limited stocking of Donaldsons into 13 inland lakes has demonstrated the tremendous potential of these trout. In June of 1970, approximately 2,000 Donaldson fry were stocked in Little Mayhew Lake, Cook County. After one year, the rainbows averaged 11 inches and nearly one pound in weight. Six months later. they averaged 18 inches and 21/2 pounds with the largest being 21 inches and 41/2 pounds. "The

"Trout often reach catchable size (up to nine inches) if they can just survive for three to four months," Woods noted, "We can then anticipate that 70 to 90 percent of the survivors will be caught by anglers.'

"We hope to increase the number of lakes that will carry Donaldson trout pop-ulations," W o o d s said. "High returns might be achieved by managing some lakes for trout that were previously thought to be warm and shallow, but are fertile, productive and will be fished intensively." In addition to inland lakes, Woods said, Donaldson and Kamloops rainbow trout (a wild cousin of the Donaldson) will be stocked in Lake Superior over the next two years. Creel censuses in-Lake Superior and in inland lakes will evaluate these stocking efforts. "We think the Donaldson will prove to be an outstanding game fish for stocking in a number of Minnesota lakes," Woods stated. "These fish grow exceptionally fast and can withstand wider fluctuations in temperature than other trout. And most important, they are easy to catch."

THE FINAL TOUCH . . . After many years of study and trial and error experimentation, these two young anglers proudly display the proof that stocking programs can work. These giants were taken along the metropolitan west shore of Lake Michigan, where no fishing was available before trout and salmon proved stocking does work.

Good points .

LOCAL TROUT fishermen are moving in the right direction toward improving their favorite sport, judging by the turnout and discussion in Elba Thursday night. Nearly 100 sportsmen were on hand to let members of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources know how they felt. While we aren't in a position to judge who's right and who's wrong - we're eagerly awaiting our first opening day

- we did note several good points

The bag limits on trout have been questioned for some time throughout the area — both in Minnesota and Wisconsin --- and the concensus seems to be that the 10 fish per day limit is too high. From here the problem takes many turns. What is fair? Are five fish too few, or eight too many? Who's to say? At Thursday's meeting, sponsored by District One of the Minnesota Conservation Federation, it was suggested that Minnesota take the hint from its neighbors.

For the first time in years the daily bag limit on trout has changed in Wisconsin, and it is likely that this change stimulated the suggestion. The Wisconsin program could be a step toward the solution. Based on the theory that most heavy fishing pressure is during the first two weeks of the season, the Wisconsin DNR has declared a bag limit of five trout from opening day, May 13, to May 31. After that, thé daily limit is 10.

That plan appears reasonable. It should limit the slaughter of fish the opening weekend and allow more to mature, while still offering plenty of action. Then, when the old limit takes effect again, there should be more fish around. Besides, only the very best and very lucky trout man ever comes home with his limit late in the season, at least few do it often,

Another point worth pondering is the setting of season length and bag limits so far in advance. Apparently the Minnesota DNR has little power to change things once they are set by the legislature. That is unfortunate, since last season's trout stocking program could have benefitted by a reduced season to offset losses in fish of planting size.

politan Chicago if the plantings of the trout and salmon in the big lake work as they have in other areas of Lake Michigan, to the added income to local businessmen. Michigan reports an income of more than $2 million a year from its seven - year - old planted salmon fishing industry. In the next five years, fish reared in a waste treatment lagoon could turn up as trophies for some of the Midwest's sportsmen. The fish by that time will have evolved from fry of less than an inch in length to

OLD AND NEW . . . Many changes have occurred to the interior of Maloney's meat market, Arcadia, Wis., during a span of 60 years. In the upper photo, taken in 1937 are Edmund Thimmesch employe, and Eimer Kreid, customer. Meat carcasses hang on the left wall. The cash register, just visible

BALONEY MAKERS .... Maloney's baloney, made by M. J. Maloney and Sons, Arcadia, Wis., is 60 years old and that "ain't no baloney," as the store's advertising slogan goes. Lyman Maloney, son of the founder of the firm, and Pat Maloney, third generation member of the famous family, inspect a fresh batch of the homemade product. The cage contains 300 pounds of baloney. Between 2,000 and 3,000 pounds of baloney are produced each week at Arcadia. Martin J. Maloney (Marty) refused to be photographed, saying: "Everyone knows what I look like." (Nancy Sobotta photo)

IN THE 1920s ... Wednesday marked 60 years of meat business for M. J. Maloney and Sons, Arcadia, Wis., at the same location on Arcadia's Main Street. The above picture shows a side view of the store, with the large painted sign, left, advertising the store's wares, and also Arcadia's main thoroughfare, in 1929.

Baloney secret of this firm's success

By NANCY SOBOTTA Sunday News correspondent

ARCADIA, Wis. - A business which has made baloney and sausage, synonymous with good eating, celebrated its 60th anniversary as an Arcadia firm Wednesday.

M. J. Maloney and Sons, Arcadia, was founded March 1, 1922, by Martin J. Maloney and Lester Kindschy in the building which still houses the present meat market. The firm was known as Maloney and Kindschy for the first 11/2 years until Kindschy moved to Denver, Colo.

As M. J. Maloney Meat Market, the firm grew slowly but steadily through the years. Sausagemaking was always a specialty of Maloney, who varied his recipes upon the advice of his customers.

Following the war years and the return of Maloney's two sons, Harold and Lyman, from the service, the firm expanded its smoked meat line, began to market its now famous Maloney's Baloney and added a route service.

Baloney is produced in great quantities about four times a week depending on the volume of sales. Each week's output averages between 2,000 and 3,000 pounds of finished product. They also have gone into making more varieties of sausages to compete with all the national brands. As Lyman puts it: "we can't depend on baloney alone."

Maloney's also makes its own bratwurst, pork links, home-cured dried beef and slab bacon, New England ham, cooked saalmi, big baloney, beef loaf, head cheese, chicken loaf, sour head cheese, hickory brand summer sausages and two or three other varieties of summer sausage. They also job Arcadia fryers, other merchandise, and sell some fresh meat in their store and on the routes.

Harold and Lyman Maloney are actively carrying on the business started by their father 60 years ago but the elder Maloney still comes to the shop every day. He keeps a hand in the business by offering his advice and helps when needed. Grand-son Pat, son of Harold, adds another dimension to the family business. He is a third generation member who came back to work in the meat market about two years ago, after graduating from college

For the past 20 years, the firm has always employed between 14 and 17 workers. One of these employes, Edmund (Pete) Thimmesch, will have given 50 years of service and labor to Maloney's in 1974. He has been on a semi-retired status the last four years, working less hours than before.

Periodic additions have been made to the original building on Main Street. In 1958, the firm's facilities were greatly increased with the addition of a 25-by-70-foot cement block building. Last year, a 20-by-14-foot cooler room was constructed and an extensive remodeling program in the slaughtering facilities was completed. It became necessary to take care of the local area custom slaughtering as well as all of their own, and to meet the standards of the Wisconsin meat inspection program under whose jurisdiction they now operate.

Since 1947, three refrigerated trucks have continued to distribute the firm's products, servicing an area in Western Wisconsin which takes them to cities along a route to Cashion, Neillsville, Eau Claire, Ellsworth, Elmwood, Menomonie and Bay City, on the Mississippi River.

M. J. Maloney, founder of the firm, was born and raised in the town of Glencoe and has spent his entire life in this community. He served as alderman on the Arcadia City Council during the 1930s and in 1968 completed 24 years as a member of the Trempealeau County Board of Supervisors.

He recently recalled the changes made since the early days of Maloney & Kindschy when all deliveries were made by horse and buggy and the only method of refrigeration was ice. The invention of the electric motor and the automobile account for the most revolutionary changes in the firm since its founding, he said.

HARMONY, Minn, - Ronald K. Evenson, Harmony, district representative for Lutheran Brotherhood, has qualified for the Minneapolis-based fraternal insurance society's top 1971 sales recognition, the President's Club.

Woodrow P. Langhaug, president of Lutheran Brotherhood, said Evenson earned membership in the club on the basis of the amount of life and health insurance protection provided for Lutherans in his area, In addition to qualifying for membership in the club, Evenson placed first among the society's more than 1,-000 salesmen throughout the United States and Canada, for health insurance sold in 1971.

Evenson is associated with the David Asp Agency, headquartered in Austin.

UNUSUAL PETS ... Jerry Pruett, a chem-Istry teacher at Plainview, Minn., Community Schools, holds a black indigo snake. which is among a collection of snakes that he keeps in his basement apartment. He holds the snake's skin in his other hand. Krisi Markus, daughter of Pruett's landlady, holds a boa constrictor, a tropical American snake which attains great length and crushes its prey in its coils.

PLAINVIEW, Minn. (Special) - A chemistry instructor in the Plainview Community Schools has unusual roommates in his basement apartment here in the Joe Markus home,

Jerry Pruett shares his living quarters with a European Sitch ferret, a boa constrictor, an anaconda and an indigo snake. He prefers having snakes for pets rather than a dog. "I would rather have snakes around since they are interesting to observe," said Pruett. "They're so differ-ent; their senses aren't the same as other animals. And mine are not harmful since they were born while in captivity." He explained that the more generations any animal spends in captivity the more docile it becomes.

WHEN Pruett rented the apartment, Mrs. Markus recalled, he asked if he could have a couple of pets. Naturally, when she said yes, she was thinking of dogs and cats. Then when she discovered that he had snakes she said it would be all right if she did not have to see them.

"They bothered me at first, when I went to the basement," said the landlady. "I was airaid they might get out of ther cages. Now I am used to them and don't even think about them.

Mrs. Markus' daughters, Krisie and Judy, have grown quite fond of the snakes. They go to the apartment basement and play with thern while Pruett does his homework.

Pruett, originally from Illinois, is in his first year of teaching in Plainview. When asked some of the reactions of his 100 pupils, when they observed the snakes in the classroom, he said:

"They are really amazed. Some think they are neat and are anxious to get close to them and learn how to handle them.

PRUETT maintains that having snakes as a hobby can be a great joy. One not only learns about the animals themselves, he said, but about the country they come from. Many persons have snakes as well as other types of reptiles for pets, he added.

The black indigo snake, which just recently shed its entire skin, belongs to Pruett's fiance; he is keeping for her. If WAS when seizing its prey, a snake is able to grip the unsuspecting victim quite securely, because of the flexibility of its jaws and the number, sharpness and shape of its teeth.

The backward slope of the teeth, said Pruett, is the insurance against the struggling animal escaping; the harder it pulls away the deeper the teeth sink in. Prey which is lighter than the assailant is whirled around on the snake's long axis while the snake coils. This maneuver, Pruett pointed out, is advantageous for the reptile because once its victim has lost its balance (by being revolved) its ability to pull away vanishes. The time required to swallow an animal depends on its size, shape and the nature of the surface, said the snake lover. A great deal of time is spent in resting and pausing to breathe.

Pruett contends there is not too much care involved in raising snakes. They have Water makes up a large part of its body, he explained. When a snake drinks, his tongue plays no part in the process, except for testing the water for suitability. A thirsty snake submerges much of its head, so that both its mouth and nostrils are below the surface.

> HOW often a snake needs to drink, said Pruett, depends largely on the humidity, temperature and food. Snakes live on food that contains a great deal of water.

The main thing snakes need, Pruett pointed out, is warmth. To prevent them from getting chilled Pruett has a light bulb hanging n the cage, to keep the temperature 75 to 80 degrees. Reptiles have no built-in heating mechanism but take on the approximate temperatures of their surroundings.

Their means of locomotion is quite unusual. The reptiles have extreme

While the snakes were at the school for a week, Bishop took them around to the various classes and explained what they eat and how they catch their prey. Snakes do not have the sense to taste, explained Pruett, and they use vision only to a limited degree, with an unblinking lid with a transparent eye cap. They lack an external ear, an ear opening, and their skin is reasonably sensitive.

The measure, which had been proposed by the Legislative Council, would raise inheritance tax exemptions for a spouse to $50,000 from the current $5,000 for husbands and $15,000 for wives. It would also double exemptions for other close relatives.

Taxes on larger estates, however, would be increased from 15 to 20 per cent under the proposal which passed unanimously and now goes to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

The lower house also sent to the governor a bill which would give savings and loan associations authority to incorporate into capital stock associations. It passed 80-16.

The Assembly passed 95-1 and sent to the Senate a measure to revise the nursing home reimbursement formula included in the state budget adopted last year.

The bill would set a basic reimbursement rate and allow for adjustments. The change adopted last year had been strongly opposed by nursing home operators who favored the previous formula based on cost
