New York could be big boost

McGovern seeks delegates

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. George McGovern hopes to win 200 more delegates over scattered opposition today in a New York primary that could give him nearly half the remaining votes he needs to capture the Democratic presidential nomination.
With 41 of his delegates unopposed and many others facing only token opposition, including some organization rivals that would back him also, McGovern appeared certain to win a substantial majority of the 248 delegates being elected in the last of 23 presidential primaries.
The South Dakota senator said it would be a setback if he won less than 200 of New York's total of 278 delegates. The last 30 will be allocated by the Democratic state committee in the same proportion as the elected delegates.
With only a handful of other delegates yet to be selected in other states, McGovern's first-ballot strength stands at 1,072.3 votes — 436.7 short of the 1,509 needed to capture the nomination.
The names of presidential candidates don't appear on the ballot in New York, where voters in each of 39 congressional districts will pick delegates and alternates. They'll have to know before they go in the booth which delegates favor which candidate.
Republicans are picking 78 of their 88 delegates, with supporters of President Nixon expected to win most of them. Besides the presidential delegate races, a number of hot congressional races are being decided. In two New York City districts, liberal incumbents have been thrown together by reapportionment, Reps. William F. Ryan and Bella Abzug in a mainly Manhattan district and Reps. Jonathan Bingham and James Scheuer in the Bronx.

In Maine, on Monday, 74-year-old Sen. Margaret Chase Smith survived her first Republican primary challenge in 18 years by defeating millionaire businessman Robert A. G. Monks, 39. She faces a stiff battle in November against Rep. William Hathaway, who easily won the Democratic nomination.
McGovern has spent most of the past week in New York, campaigning hard to prevent any loss of momentum after his June 6 victory in California that gave him that state's 271 delegates.
His supporters are running for 237 of the 248 delegate spots in all of New York's 39 congressional districts but two, one represented by Rep. Shirley Chisholm of Brooklyn, a black who is also a presidential candidate, and the one of Rep. Herman Badillo of the Bronx, the only Puerto Rican congressman.

In her wake, death and damage

Hurricane Agnes fades away

By RICH OPPEL and TOM RAUM.
APALACHICOLA, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Agnes has gasped her last over backwoods Georgia after a collision with the Florida Panhandle that left homes uprooted, roads awash and millions of dollars in damage.
Agnes, the first of the season's hurricanes, killed 13 persons, injured more than 100 and forced thousands of families from their homes as she rampaged north from Cuba.
Although an 80-mile-per-hour parent of ravaging tornadoes early Monday, the storm was reduced to a disorganized mass by midnight and was sweeping across South Georgia with 45 m.p.h. winds.

Once the storm had passed, residents along Florida's northwestern coast began picking their way through the soggy debris they had called home.
One 15-mile stretch bordering the Gulf of Mexico from Carabelle to Eastpoint, Fla., was lined with demolished homes. Parts of U. S. 98—including much of the causeway between Eastpoint and Apalachicola—were eaten away.
"I gave up counting how many houses were destroyed and just put 'most of them' on my report," said Red Cross volunteer Beth Henson.
Many beachfront houses were reduced to little more than rubble.
Herbert Chipman whose house was ruined, said, "The waters just came up and came in. I don't know how much of my house is left."

While Agnes was churning across the Gulf toward the Panhandle, a backlash slammed into the Tampa Bay area, inflicting $12 million damage on St. Petersburg and neighboring towns.
Flood waters more than 3 feet deep were reported in several neighborhoods in Pinellas County.
Electrical power and telephone service were interrupted during the day for more than 1,000 homes, and when the flood waters subsided, poisonous snakes, scorpions and spiders turned up in residential sections.
"I killed a 5-foot rattlesnake in my yard," one St. Petersburg man reported. "The guy next door killed a coral snake."
Four persons died Monday and several others disappeared when a tornado sliced through three Okeechobee mobile home parks "like a freight train," as one witness described it. About 40 injuries were reported.
Several other twisters ripped through Brevard County on the Atlantic Coast Monday, destroying scores of homes, damaging 60 light planes at Merritt Island Airport and peeling walls from several apartment houses.
Sixteen houses were lifted off their foundations and a $40,000 yacht vanished into the sky, according to reports from Alligator Point, a hook shaped peninsula in northwest Florida.

TWISTER DESTROYS TRAILER PARK . . . Four persons were killed and about 50 house trailers destroyed by a tornado Monday, apparently a spinoff from Hurricane Agnes. The twister hit a trailer park at Okeechobee, Fla. Here two boys push aside a mattress during a search of the ruins. (AP Photofax)

Judge hands Demo reform key setbacks

By MARGARET GENTRY
WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has handed Democratic party reformers a setback in their effort to ensure selection of women, minorities and young people as national-convention delegates.
Coming just three weeks before the convention opens, the order left reformers and regulars alike confused about the legal status of more than one-third of the delegates.
U.S. Dist. Court Judge George L. Hart Jr. struck down rules requiring:
• That states apportion delegate states to include blacks, women and young people "in reasonable relationship to the group's population presence in the state."
• That delegates must not be chosen by party officials elected prior to this year, a rule designed to chip away at the traditional control party bosses hold over delegate selection in some states.
The Democratic National Committee will appeal the order immediately, said committee attorney Joseph A. Califano Jr.
Hart delivered the opinion in a suit filed by Chicago Alderman Thomas E. Keane, an ally of Mayor Richard J. Daley, who sought to defeat a challenge to the 59 uncommitted delegates he controls. Daley said the order "speaks for itself" and "upholds everything that has been said in our petition."
But the decision left the challengers, led by black civil-rights activist Jesse L. Jackson, one leg to stand on. Another rule inspired by the four-year-long reform effort, a ban on choosing delegates in a state-making process closed to the party grass roots, was left standing.
Attorneys for the Daley foes said they will pursue the challenge on that basis.
In striking down the reform provisions, Judge Hart said, "When you try to provide who you vote for, then you are getting into a communist or fascist form of government, not a republican form."
He said the national committee may require state parties to "take affirmative action" to increase minority participation in party affairs,

If arms agreement OKed

Laird says adequate defense budget needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today that national security would be jeopardized by the Moscow arms agreement "unless here is continued support for an adequate defense budget."
Laird told the Senate Armed Services Committee that the ABM treaty and the interim agreement on offensive weapons "are good for America."
"They enhance our security," he said, "they permit us to maintain needed strength."
"But by themselves they do not automatically guarantee these national security gains. Peace cannot be bought cheaply."
"The opportunities for peace embodied in the SALT agreements would be nullified and our national security jeopardized unless there is continued strong support for an adequate defense budget."

Laird said Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev told President Nixon in Moscow that the Russians intended to go forward with weapons development programs.
"It should be no surprise when I report to you that this is precisely what they are doing," the defense chief said.
"During the past several weeks the Soviet Union has been conducting a series of tests involving new ballistic programs, including multiple warhead technology. In addition, continued testing of existing systems is moving ahead."
Laird called for continuing U.S. development of the new Trident super-submarine, the B1 bomber as a replacement for the B52, a submarine-launched cruise missile, SLCM, and other weapons programs.

Committee Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., in opening the hearings, said they would be geared to determining military implications of the SALT agreements, whether the United States would maintain a deterrent capability with the agreements, and whether that would be possible without the agreements.
Laird has declared publicly that he could not support the U.S.-Soviet pact limiting offensive and defensive nuclear missiles without continued U.S. development of new submarine and bomber systems.
"The success of SALT depends on sustained strength," Laird had said in remarks which differ, in emphasis at least, from the positions outlined by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

Willey and dog: a team that put courage in most

By PETER ARNETT and HORST FAAS
ON ROUTE 13, Vietnam (AP)—He ran straight into an exploding rocket. At his heels was a gray mongrel dog, his constant companion in many battles. It died with him.
"He was right up front to get the attack going," said the officer who replaced him on the spot. "He didn't have to be right up here, but that's the kind of man Col. Willey was. His courage and sheer presence made all the difference."
Lt. Col. Burr M. Willey, 44, from Ayer, Mass., was one of a handful of Americans still seeing front-line action in Vietnam. He was part of the small team of advisers to the South Vietnamese 21st Infantry Division which has been fighting for two months to raise the siege of An Loc.
About noon Monday it seemed that the final push was near. Willey and other advisers persuaded the Vietnamese to use their tanks and rangers in an attempt to end the month-long deadlock.
As the heavy vehicles lumbered northwards past his command bunker at Chon Thanh, Willey shouted gleefully, "At last they're moving."
He jammed on his steel helmet, tugged on his flak vest, climbed into his jeep and said, "I'll be back in half an hour." Two hours later a helicopter was to fly him to Saigon on a week's respite from the battlefield.
As his jeep began to move off, he called out, "Come on, Moose." Out of the bunker dashed a streak of dirty gray fur. It jumped between the radios in the back seat, and the jeep raced off.
"I inherited Moose in the Delta," Willey had said half an hour earlier. "And he has never gone from my side. He insists on riding the helicopters with me. We even made the newspapers together," he laughed, showing a clipping.

Willey bypassed the tanks strung along Route 13 and swung off the road near a forward position called the Anthill. Bending low to avoid snipers, he ran forward to join a battalion adviser, Maj. Thyron Henderson of Lexington, Ky., in his foxhole.
"We heard the first rocket round come in behind us and looked back," Henderson recalled. "It hit near the Vietnamese command group. Willey started back to see if anyone had been hurt and to take over if needed."
"I was five or ten yards behind. There was a terrific explosion just in front of him. I heard the dog yelp in pain. When the dust settled, Col. Willey was lying on the ground and I knew it was instant death."

South Vietnam forces smash five Red tanks

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese marines firing light antitank weapons reported destroying five North Vietnamese tanks and damaging a sixth just before dawn today in a third day of fighting on the northernmost front.
Field reports said the Soviet-built tanks were destroyed 23 miles northwest of Hue on the strip of coastal land called the "Street Without Joy." The marines on Sunday launched a sweep there into Quang Tri Province, which the North Vietnamese captured May 1.
Nearly 50 U.S. B52 bombers attacked North Vietnamese troops positions, staging areas and supply depots on both sides of the demilitarized zone in the continuing aerial campaign to ward off an assault on Hue.
North Vietnam claimed that one of the big bombers was shot down north of the DMZ Monday, but the U.S. Command said it had no reports of any Stratofortresses downed or damaged.
Most of the strikes today were concentrated east and southeast of Quang Tri in support of the marine sweep north of the My Chanh River defense line.
The Saigon command said 123 North Vietnamese troops were killed in bunker-to-bunker fighting Monday, and that government losses were five marines killed and 23 wounded.
Other waves of B52s raided north of the DMZ, attacking rear bases 10 and 11 miles west and southwest of the port city of Dong Hoi.
More B52 bombers hammered North Vietnamese troop positions on South Vietnam's southern front three miles southwest of An Loc, where government forces are trying to reopen Highway 13 to the provincial capital.
Fighting continued on the highway at points four and seven miles south of An Loc.

Carrying war supplies

China closes southern ports to Soviet ships

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
LONDON (AP) — China has closed its southern ports to Soviet ships loaded with war supplies for North Vietnam but is still allowing ships from other communist countries to land supplies for Hanoi, authorities in touch with both Peking and Moscow reported today.
Peking's reason, according to informants putting out the Chinese line, is that the Soviets are unwilling to risk their new relationship with the United States by challenging President Nixon's mining of North Vietnam's ports.
Moscow's version, as told by diplomats from Soviet bloc countries, is that the Chinese are easing up on their support for the North Vietnamese in favor of a more flexible international policy.
The U.S. mining of North Vietnam's ports has been condemned by both Peking and Moscow as illegal interference with navigation on the high seas. Informants in touch with the Chinese say Peking considers that Moscow has the obligation to challenge the mining, and that failure to do so implies tacit acceptance.

The Chinese reportedly argue that the Soviet Union has the means and the equipment with which to foil the American mining while China does not. In Peking's view, therefore, Moscow's failure to accept the challenge can only mean that its relationship with Washington is deemed to transcend its responsibility to Hanoi.
The informants say that as Peking sees it, the smaller East European countries lack the power to challenge the Americans, therefore their cargoes for Hanoi are being accepted in Chinese ports.
For their part, the Russians reportedly contend that Peking's attitude is consistent with other signs suggesting China is moving away from its obligation to help Hanoi. This is cited as one of the factors that has led Moscow to help in the search for a political settlement of the Vietnam War.

AMA considers doctors' union

By BILL STOCKTON
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The American Medical Association has before it for the first time measures asking whether a doctor should join a union that would bargain collectively about fees and working conditions and possibly strike to back its demands.

The proposals seek only to create study commissions to determine the legal ramifications of physicians' unions.

But their presence for consideration today or Wednesday by the AMA's governing House of Delegates reflects a new, militant movement among doctors that elates some physicians and frightens others.

The AMA House's action on the measures, some physicians feel, could have an important effect on medical care and doctors' relationships with patients a few years from now.

In March, 30 Las Vegas, Nev., doctors formed what they described as the first doctors' union affiliated with the AFL-CIO. They were chartered as Nevada Physicians Union Local 676 by the Service Employees International Union.

Spokesmen said the group wouldn't enter collective bargaining with anyone. But if such unions spread and take on national stature, they might negotiate with "third-party carriers" such as insurance companies over fees, salaries and working conditions, they said.

Striking was ruled out. Last month, the Florida Medical Association formed what it termed a "guild" or "bargaining unit." One of its primary purposes will be to "represent and protect" physician members in dealing with third parties.

It also will "promote the socio-economic welfare of the physicians."

Most AMA officials oppose doctors' unions.

"I think when you form a union, the real value is a strike. When you strike you are going against absolutely the ethics of medicine," Dr. Carl A. Hoffman of Huntington, W. Va., said in an interview. He will become AMA president Wednesday.

Unions in other countries have done little to help the doctors or patients, he said.

But the movement, he said, "does point out the fact physicians are really upset by a lot of things. They are upset about attacks upon them both by law and certain groups, such as consumer groups."

The Virginia and Maryland delegations have introduced essentially identical resolutions asking the AMA to find out if doctors can legally form unions.

The problem, union critics point out, is that most doctors are self-employed and thus are barred under antitrust laws from forming groups to attempt to set fees.

Zablocki says he will denounce some resolutions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., who was censured last week by the Wisconsin Democratic party, said Monday he intends to denounce some of the resolutions adopted at last week's state convention in Milwaukee.

Convention delegates from the Milwaukeean's district were among those who helped adopt a resolution which expressed disappointment with Zablocki's frequent support of President Nixon's Vietnam policies.

Zablocki said he agrees with remarks by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., that "radical elements" of their party are adopting controversial resolutions and platforms at state conventions.

The Wisconsin convention approved resolutions involving birth control, marijuana, closing of penitentiaries and withdrawal of state support for the Vietnam war.

Zablocki said he would draw up a statement in which he would disassociate himself from some of the resolutions.

Justice Dept. orders halt to wiretapping

By JAY PERKINS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Bowing to a Supreme Court mandate, the Justice Department has ordered a halt to wiretapping in domestic-security cases where no surveillance warrant was obtained beforehand.

Striking down a key part of the Nixon administration's law-enforcement program, the court ruled 8 to 0 Monday that a judge's consent is necessary before the government may eavesdrop on suspected domestic radicals.

"The price of lawful public dissent must not be a dread of subject to an unchecked surveillance power," wrote Justice

Lewis F. Powell Jr., a Nixon administration appointee.

Within hours, Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst "directed the termination of all electronic surveillance in cases involving domestic security that conflict with the court's opinion."

Kleindienst said the Internal Security Division of Justice is reviewing pending cases and will recommend whether information obtained by wiretapping should be disclosed to defendants or whether charges against the suspects should be dismissed.

The attorney general said the department will work closely with Congress in drawing new guidelines and procedures for court-approved electronic surveillance in domestic cases.

Justice Powell delivered the wiretap opinion in a case involving a White Panther accused of dynamiting a Central Intelligence Agency branch office.

Powell wrote that the Constitution requires prior judicial approval for wiretaps and that the 1968 federal Safe Streets Act did not authorize eavesdropping without such consent beforehand.

The administration argued that tapping and bugging of suspected domestic subversives is permissible under both the 4th Amendment and the 1968 law.

The decision left open the question of whether the government needs a warrant to wiretap subversive agents of foreign governments.

The wiretap case involved Lawrence Plamondon, who was charged with bombing the CIA office in Ann Arbor, Mich. Before he went to trial, he asked for the records of any surveillance of his activities. Two federal courts ruled in his favor and the government acknowledged he had been the subject of wiretapping.

Justice William H. Rehnquist, who, as a Justice Department official, helped shape the administration's wiretap arguments, did not participate in the decision.

Mills says McGovern victory wouldn't sew up nomination

By WILLIAM C. WERTZ
RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — A victory in today's presidential primary in New York would not sew up the Democratic presidential nomination for Sen. George McGovern, says Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark.

Mills, in McGovern's home state to aid the Senate campaign of a South Dakota congressman and visit flood-ravaged Rapid City, said in an interview Monday a New York victory would put McGovern "very close" to the nomination, but added: "Those last 100 or 200 delegates can be the hardest to get."

he would be on some of his positions. A person running for the nomination says different things than a person who has won," said Mills.

"I'm not sure anyway how many of the alleged McGovern positions George is really for," he said.

"To win, one must be in the mainstream of American thought," Mills said. "I don't think you can win if you stray too far on either side of that."

Mills said he thought McGovern's views on amnesty were outside the mainstream, he had referred to, but said he was unsure about McGovern's position on Vietnam.

"It's beginning to look like the great majority of the people would be willing to get out of Vietnam in the morning. Maybe he's expressing the public opinion on that point," Mills said.

The Arkansas congressman was in South Dakota at the request of Rep. James Abourezk, who is a Democratic candidate for the Senate.

Mills stopped in Sioux Falls where he and Abourezk attended a hearing on the problems of South Dakota's elderly, then flew to Rapid City where a flood June 9 left 216 known dead and thousands homeless.

Mills said in a news conference there, he thought Congress could help the victims of the flood disaster.

But he said, "The legislative process is often slow and unpredictable," and warned Rapid City residents not to raise their hopes too high.

Mills called his visit to Rapid City "a sickening experience," adding that he'd "never seen a city hit worse by floods."

He said he would actively support bills introduced in the House by Abourezk which would reduce from 5 to 1 percent the interest on disaster loans from the Small Business Administration, raise from $2,500 to 90 percent of the loss the amount of SBA loans which need not be repaid, and allow the federal Office of Emergency Preparedness to rebuild recreational facilities destroyed in disasters.

in other political developments:

- Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, often mentioned by McGovern as a possible running mate, said at a news conference in Miami Beach "I'm not interested in being the vice presidential nominee in any way and I would not accept the nomination if it were offered to me."
- U.S. District Court Judge George L. Hart Jr. ruled in Washington the Democratic party could not compel states that elected their convention delegates to balance them on the basis of race, sex or age.

McGovern seeks — Muskie issues a reminder

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, who has more than 80 delegates on the ballot in suburban and upstate districts, made a campaign appearance in Buffalo Sunday to remind potential supporters he is still in the presidential race.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, a distant second to McGovern in the delegate race, told a Washington news conference Monday he hopes New Yorkers will vote for anti-McGovern slates if they have doubts about his positions on major issues.

McGovern replied in a statement early today that Humphrey is "undermining his reputation and jeopardizing his party by the kind of misleading statements he has been making about my positions."

"I am afraid that my old friend has forgotten that there is such a thing as wanting too much to be elected," he added. There are no Humphrey delegates on the New York ballot.

McGovern planned to campaign briefly on the subway today before flying to New Orleans to address the nation's mayors.

Muskie visited South Carolina and Louisiana, seeking uncommitted delegates, after Gov. Wendell Ford of Kentucky led 37 delegates into his camp, as had been expected.

Senate Democrats push child development bill

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leaders pushed for passage today of a $2.9-billion child-development bill revised in an effort to meet President Nixon's objections to legislation he vetoed last year.

Debate on the measure opened Monday, but votes on amendments were put over until today.

The bill would provide funding for the largest federal day-care program in history plus many other services needed by families when the mother works.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., chief sponsor, declared that more than ever the bill is a family-strengthening measure with the changes made in it since the 1971 veto.

He stressed it is totally voluntary, as was last year's version and that it provides a wide range of services in addition to day care.

"These services are crucial to the support of the family at a time when millions of mothers are working," he said.

The Minnesota said one-third of the mothers with preschool children, about 4.5 million women, now work at full- or part-time jobs.

"As a result," he said, "there are over 5 million preschool children who need full- or part-time day-care services while their mothers are away from home."

"Yet, there are less than 700,

000 spaces in licensed day-care programs to serve them."

Nixon said in vetoing the 1971 bill that it would commit "the vast moral authority of the national government to the side of communal approaches to child-rearing over against the family-centered approach."

Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn., echoing that view about the new bill, told the Senate Monday that the new version would "create incentives for families to deposit a baby each day on the door steps of an institution."

The bill would provide free day care for children of poverty-level families. Those slightly above that level would have to pay small fees. Well-off families also could use the centers but would have to pay the full cost.

The care would be much more than purely custodial. It would include nutritional, educational, medical and social services.

$210,000 approved for sprinklers at institution

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The state Building Commission approved a $210,000 expenditure for sprinklers at a new state institution that has no tenant and may never open.

The appropriation for a lawn sprinkling system at the newly completed $13 million youth offenders institution in Adams County was necessary, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey told the commission, to protect against soil erosion.

Last week, Lucey vetoed a bill to allow judges to sentence youths to the new facility, saying it would increase Wisconsin's prison capacity by 20 percent during a period of declining prison population.

He also said officials would not be permitted to transfer inmates to the facility from existing crowded institutions.

Keeping the Adams County buildings closed, Lucey added, would save the state $1 million a year.

The sprinkler system is designed to protect the state's landscaping investment.

Willey and dog — Drive collapsed, rangers pulled back

While Henderson wrapped the dead colonel in a poncho, the rockets continued to fall. Within minutes, nine Vietnamese were dead and two were wounded. The drive collapsed, and the tanks and rangers pulled back.

Willey's friend and superior officer, Col. J. Ross Franklin, who had been at the side of the road, loaded the body on the hood of his jeep. Grim-faced, he raced southward, headlights flashing.

An American medical evacuation helicopter met them two miles down the road. Franklin grabbed one side of a shrapnel-shredded stretcher and loaded his dead officer aboard.

Eight wounded Vietnamese crawled aboard, and some sprawled across the colonel's litter.

"This was his third Vietnam tour," Franklin said as the helicopter lifted off. "He was an old soldier just doing his job."

Willey was a hard-driving man who had no illusions about the risks of his job or about the Vietnamese. In the past two months he had seen Americans who had worked with him killed or shipped home wounded.

He was full of sympathy for the Vietnamese soldiers fighting an endless war. But he did not hide his resentment of some of the Vietnamese officers who were reluctant to lead the fight. At the moment of his death, Willey's Vietnamese counterpart was following the operation from a hammock strung between the sandbagged walls of his command bunker three miles to the rear.

Sgt. Maj. Jim L. Ellis, from Crosswell, Mich., fought back the tears as he packed Willey's few personal things. He had shared a forward bunker with the colonel since April 25 and had himself survived some close ones, including a direct hit on the bunker.

He pulled out a ledger from underneath a cot and ran his finger down the list of 15 advisers who had been on the regimental team. Some had died, some had been wounded as many as four times.

Ellis took a pen and crossed out one of the entries: "Burr M. Willey, Lt. Col., U.S. Army, branch infantry, arrived April 25." He wrote in the last column, "K.I.A., June 19, 1972."

The decision left open the question of whether the government needs a warrant to wiretap subversive agents of foreign governments.

The wiretap case involved Lawrence Plamondon, who was charged with bombing the CIA office in Ann Arbor, Mich. Before he went to trial, he asked for the records of any surveillance of his activities. Two federal courts ruled in his favor and the government acknowledged he had been the subject of wiretapping.

Justice William H. Rehnquist, who, as a Justice Department official, helped shape the administration's wiretap arguments, did not participate in the decision.

Lucey considering investigation of land acquisition

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey says he is considering "appropriate action," such as an investigation, concerning land acquisition by state agencies.

The state Justice Department recently censured the University of Wisconsin concerning a recommendation by advisers that a private dormitory be acquired for $3.55 million.

The structure was worth only $2 million on the market, the department said.

Purchase of the dormitory has been "very much on my mind," Lucey said Monday.

Demos seeking $1 million in damages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic National Committee Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien, charging that the attempted break-in at his party headquarters brought the level of politics down to gutter level, announced today the filing of a million-dollar suit against the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

O'Brien told a news conference the suit is for compensatory and punitive damages totaling $1 million. Also named in the suit was McCord Associates, a security firm headed by James W. McCord and the five men arrested Saturday night in the break-in at complex where the Democratic national headquarters is located. McCord was one of the five arrested.

"As far as I am personally concerned," said O'Brien, "there is a clear line of direction to the Committee for the Re-election of the President and a developing clear line to the White House."

He said the break-in was a "very, very serious matter that is certainly political espionage."

"I am pleased to note that the FBI is investigating this case," said O'Brien, "but I am shocked to learn that the White House, through its official spokesman, deems unworthy of notice this blatant act of political espionage."

"And now we learn of the potential involvement of a White House special consultant who is said to specialize in delicate assignments for the President," said O'Brien.

The Washington Post reported today that a consultant to White House special counsel Charles W. Colson is listed in the address books of two of the five men arrested.

The Post said federal sources close to the investigation said the address books contain the name and home number of Howard E. Hunt, the consultant, with the notations, "W. House" and "W.H."

Hunt worked for the Central Intelligence Agency from 1949 to 1970, the Post said. All five suspects have had links to the CIA.

Councilmen disagree on municipal inspection fees

By FRANK R. UHLIG
Daily News Staff Writer

City Council members discussed proposed amendments to city building, electrical and plumbing codes Monday night and found themselves disagreeing strongly over whether to raise municipal inspection fees.

The code changes were designed to bring city codes into conformity with uniform statewide codes that become effective July 1. These must be enforced by the city.

Councilmen voted to introduce the ordinance amendments but said they would think over the fee sections before incorporating them into the final passage versions two weeks hence.

DISCUSSION began as councilmen considered the plumbing code changes which are optional one dealing mostly with fees that may be charged.

Councilman Jerry Borzyskowski, who said he was speaking for others besides himself (he is a plumber), began by objecting to license fees that are charged to gas installers. The $25 fee is too high, he said, and anyway it doesn't guarantee protection for qualified installers since the requirements are so modest that anyone can obtain one "just by answering a few questions."

Correction of accident report given

An accident at 10:19 p.m. Saturday on Harriet Street was incorrectly reported in Monday's Daily News.

Police indicated today the report should state a car driven by Timothy P. Curran, 4419 7th St., Goodview, struck two parked cars on Harriet Street owned by Bernard F. Boland, 463 Harriet St., and Fred St. Germain, 1454 1/2 W. Broadway.

City Engineer Robert J. Bolant replied that the test was a standard model that requires some prior study by anyone hoping to get a passing grade. It's supposed to keep out fly-by-night operators and non-approved furnaces which, he said, are the greatest sources of trouble for the inspection division.

If higher fees are needed to reimburse costs of inspection, said Borzyskowski, these should be borne by Northern States Power Co., sole supplier of gas to the community, since its interests are paramount in such cases.

HE WAS joined by Councilman Gaylord Fox who called high inspection fees an encouragement for people to evade inspection requirements. He said the proposed schedule, for example, would provide a $2.50 inspection fee for a new water heater. He called it a high fee, especially for persons on limited incomes.

Fox said inspection costs should be funded by general taxation, the same as fire protection or park services. All are for the benefit of the undivided public, he argued, and it's unfair to shift the cost burden to the inspection-permit function, via extra fees.

Councilman Dan Trainor Jr. rejected this argument, declaring that the "taxpayer is getting the business for too much already" and pointing out that some city fees haven't been changed for 30 years or more.

The argument went on through motions to introduce amendments to three codes. In all cases Fox and Councilman Barry Nelson voted nay, joined by Borzyskowski on electrical and building code actions. Borzyskowski abstained on the plumbing code vote.

ASKED to supply some comparisons between present and proposed fees, George Rogge, building inspector, compiled on a 12-by-20-foot garage, for instance, surcharge of 54 cents is attached to the permit fee—it goes to the state, he said.

Currently the city charges $5 for such a garage permit (plus the state's 54 cents), Rogge said. Under the new schedule it would be $11, again plus 54 cents.

The fee for an ordinary 26-by-44-foot house, he went on, is now $20 but would go to $60 under the proposed schedule. There's also a state surcharge of $8 in each case.

Surcharges have been in effect since last July, Rogge told the council, and the city already has remitted some $2,000 to the state in such fees.

LISTENING to the objections prompted Councilman Howard Hoveland to voice a bit of philosophy:

"Our fees are obviously outmoded," he observed, "but maybe we're trying to catch up too fast. Maybe we ought to ease it to them a little more slowly—sort of sneak up on them a bit."

It brought the house down but it didn't change the vote. City Manager Paul Schriever said some interim study would be made of possible fee revisions before the three amendments come up for final action in two weeks.

Man charged after accident at Taylor

TAYLOR, Wis. — The Jackson County sheriff's office reported a two-car collision at an intersection in the village of Taylor occurred at 7:44 this morning.

A 1969 two-door sedan driven by Jerry A. Christinger, La Crosse, Wis., received $300 damage when he collided with a 1972 rental car driven by Sidney Simonson, Taylor.

The Simonson vehicle received an estimated $150 damage, and Christinger was cited for failure to yield the right of way, according to the sheriff's office.

Testimony heard from six in termination of Ethier contract

By C. GORDON HOLTE
Daily News Staff Writer

Five members of the staff of Winona State College and one retired faculty member presented testimony at a public hearing this morning on matters concerned with a college administrative decision of a year ago to terminate the contract at the end of this month of Robert O. Ethier, the college's director of admissions and records since the fall of 1968.

The witnesses were called by Ethier's Winona attorney, George M. Robertson Jr., as the hearing, in recess during the weekend, went into its third day at Kryzsko Commons.

The testimony in Ethier's appeal from the 1971 decision to deny him tenure is being heard by a three-member ad hoc committee appointed at the direction of the Minnesota State College Board.

RETIREED 3rd District Judge Arnold Hatfield, Wabasha, is chairman of the committee whose other members are Dr. Frederick W. Foss Jr., head of the Winona State Chemistry department, and a spring quarter graduate of the college, Kenneth P. Tschumper, La Crescent, Minn.

The committee has been directed by the state board to submit a recommendation, following the hearing, to college president Dr. Robert A. DuFresne as to whether Ethier should be granted tenure.

During this morning's session, Robertson attempted to elicit statements from staff members — two of them members of the college Appointment, Promotion and Tenure Committee (APT) — spelling out reasons why a recommendation was made to Dr. DuFresne that Ethier should not be granted tenure.

The college is being represented at the hearing by Floyd A. Hillstrom, La Crescent, Minn., a special assistant state attorney general.

TWO members of Ethier's staff, assistant registrars Ronald Butterfield and Harold Tye, were the first witnesses called. The hearing was resumed this morning.

Butterfield, who had served as registrar in 1970 before resigning that position, was asked by Robertson whether he believed that Ethier had "done a good job under the circumstances" and the witness said he felt he had.

Butterfield added, however, that he knew of three complaints — one by a high school counselor and two involving students who had come to Ethier's office regarding admission — regarding Ethier's performance. The witness said that he felt that Ethier did not have the respect of the majority of the personnel in the department. When he was asked by Robertson whether he felt that Ethier had performed his duties successfully, Butterfield replied that he felt he had but said he believed "this was due in great part to the staff."

HE WAS asked whether he had any personal knowledge of circumstances cited in a statement by Dr. DuFresne outlining reasons for denying Ethier tenure that work from Ethier's office but they had not been corrected.

Butterfield said he had no knowledge of this. Robertson referred to a letter of recommendation on Ethier's behalf submitted to the APT committee by Butterfield. Butterfield acknowledged he had written the letter at Ethier's request but that he had "mixed feelings," had given only a "general recommendation" because "I found myself in the middle of this thing. He said that Ethier had made certain changes in the wording of the original draft of the letter."

Tye also said in answer to a question by Robertson that he had no personal knowledge of work containing errors being sent out from Ethier's office.

Hillstrom asked whether Ethier had the respect of members of his staff and Tye said, "He did not."

HE testified in response to subsequent questions that he felt Ethier's problems arose in large part from lack of knowledge in curriculum matters and that if Ethier had taken time to study this area "he might have gained esteem. I don't think he can evaluate course work."

Tye said he felt that a faculty survey finding which gave Ethier's department a high ranking in relation to other departments resulted because of the efforts of the total staff and not that of any individual.

Dr. Donald Bilse, a member of the office of admissions and records staff since 1966, said he, also, was not aware of errors in material sent from Ethier's office.

He asserted, however, that the staff was "upset" because Ethier allegedly assumed credit for establishment of a new and successful registration procedure which, Dr. Bilse said, was the product of a number of staff members.

ASKED if he felt Ethier had the respect of his staff, Dr. Bilse said he believed Ethier's attitude in the registration procedure matter "tended to lower his respect."

William Emmons, a member of the mathematics faculty and APT secretary testified that he had been contacted by a number of faculty members regarding Ethier's tenure status and that of the comments he had heard, "all of them" were adverse.

He said "at least 20, possibly 30, had expressed dissatisfaction."

Robertson asked if there had been any favorable comments and Emmons recalled that there had been "some letters."

Robertson asked whether the contacts Emmons had mentioned had been made outside the committee room and he replied "more or less."

Robertson engaged in an extended period of questioning regarding the reasons for the committee's recommendation not to grant tenure and the attorney sought to obtain specific citations in the state college rules under which the action was taken.

WHEN EMMONS said there had been many adverse comments about Ethier's performance, Robertson asked whether personality might have been involved and the witness replied, "Probably."

When Emmons answered a question by Robertson as to what Ethier's duties were with the statement he didn't know precisely the nature of his duties, Robertson said, "So you judged Ethier not knowing what his duties were?"

Emmons replied, "We knew he wasn't doing them."

Dr. Foss said that he felt that he should introduce into the record a letter he had written at Ethier's request on behalf of his appeal for tenure and, after reading the letter, said "I feel it was equivocal" and said he had given no opinion as to whether Ethier should be granted tenure, adding, "I was neutral then and I'm neutral now."

Mrs. Marguerita Ritman, who retired from the staff as associate dean of students, associate professor of sociology and adviser to foreign students, said in response to questioning by Robertson that in her work with foreign students she had enjoyed "a very satisfactory relationship" with Ethier.

SHE acknowledged that she had met with Dr. DuFresne and had inquired as to the reasons for the decision not to grant Ethier tenure and that the president had said, "It seems to be a matter of personality."

"Did he say he could not support a man whose superiors would not support him?" Robertson asked and Mrs. Ritman replied, "Yes."

She was followed as a witness by Dr. Howard Munson, professor of education and a member of the APT committee.

Board of Review hears complaints

The Winona City Board of Review this morning began hearing a long line of taxpayers' complaints about the upward revaluation undertaken this year in connection with real estate taxes.

The revaluation was completed by County Assessor David Sauer at the recommendation of state tax officials. Almost all residential properties in the city were raised, and the raises averaged 10-15 percent, although higher and lower raises were not uncommon.

The increased valuation affects listed market value, from which the real estate tax is computed. The increase was done to comply with a state law requiring market value to be 100 percent of actual value.

THE CITY board's hearing of taxpayer complaints about their individual valuations was to continue throughout the day today, and is scheduled to run all day Wednesday. In addition, increased requests for appointment pressed the board to agree to meet Thursday as well.

Sauer said today that someone who does not have an appointment will not be heard, but emphasized that the board is required to hear any taxpayer wishing to see it, and will meet as long as is necessary Thursday to hear all complaints.

The City Board of Review includes Mayor Norman Indall, Councilman Barry Nelson and City Clerk John Carter. They have the authority to lower or raise valuations on individual properties, but Sauer said they cannot alter the city's total valuation more than one percent. That one percent, Sauer said, amounts to about $1.5 million in the city.

The board has 20 days in which to act, and members were making virtually no decisions today, but telling property owners the matter would be decided later and they would receive notification in the mail.

IN A FEW cases, however, it was discovered that a mathematical error had been made, and the correction was made immediately. In one case, for example, the increase in valuation should have been $750, but the increase recorded was $7,500.

Sauer said a few mathematical errors are to be expected when so many changes — almost 6,000 in the city — are made.

Woman hurt in crash near Whitehall

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) A Sunday afternoon accident on Highway 53, 1/4 mile north of Whitehall left one vehicle with extensive damage and the other car involved undamaged.

According to the Trempealeau County sheriff's office, Frances E. Bauer, Whitehall, was driving a 1965 sedan northbound on 53 and attempting to make a left turn onto County Trunk Highway D when a 1966 sedan, driven by William J. Docken, 22, Minneapolis, attempted to pass the Bauer car. The vehicles did not collide.

The Docken vehicle went off the shoulder of the northwest corner of the intersection, down an embankment and struck a cement culvert. Docken's wife, Vicki, 21, reportedly received back injuries and was admitted to Tri-County Memorial Hospital.

Trempealeau County authorities are investigating and report that charges are pending. No estimate of damages are available.

Cool temperatures expected to linger

Gusty winds and sporadic thundershowers pelted the Winona area Monday afternoon and evening, soaking the Mississippi River valley with one inch of rain. The showers contributed to a long list of postponed outdoor activities.

Yesterday's high of 85 was cooled by the showers and the mercury dipped to an over-night low of 59. It climbed to a reading of 60 at noon today.

The prospects for cooler weather are good up until the weekend, according to the weather bureau's extended forecasts, calling for cool temperatures and partly cloudy skies through Saturday.

The area is expected to remain blanketed by cool air, with fair to partly cloudy skies and the chance of a shower or two again Friday and Saturday. Temperatures are expected to drop to between 36 and 49 tonight and again Wednesday night, while the daytime highs should be in the 62 to 72 range. The chance for rain Wednesday is expected to be slim.

Thursday and Friday the area is expected to be subjected to increased cloudiness with the chance of thundershowers again creeping into the forecast. Temperatures are expected to remain cool through Thursday and then moderate somewhat for the weekend. Thursday's low should be in the 40s with a high in the mid-70s predicted, while Friday and Saturday look for lows in the 50s and highs in the upper-70s.

U.S. reported near hijacking agreement

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
U.N. Security Council members were reported near agreement on some action against plane hijacking as airlines resumed regular schedules today following a worldwide, one-day strike by pilots that failed to shut down most major American lines.

Spurred by the walkout that halted much or all of the air travel in more than 30 countries, Security Council members met privately for three hours Monday.

Council President Lazar Mojsov of Yugoslavia said later that there were only "a few remaining points" in a proposed statement condemning hijacking. "Probably we can agree tomorrow," he said.

The strike was called by the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations-

IFALPA—to dramatize demands for tougher action against airline hijackers. In addition to the U.N. discussions there was one other development during the day.

The International Civil Aviation Organization in Montreal announced it had taken steps to permit member nations to impose sanctions against countries that cooperate with hijackers and extortionists.

The nature of the sanctions was not disclosed but a spokesman said approval of the measure was nearly unanimous. The ICAO is a United Nations-related body composed of government representatives of 124 countries, dealing with problems affecting commercial aviation.

An IFALPA spokesman said in London that the group believed the pilots had made their point with the strike and that "really effective measures against hijacking" were on the way.

John J. O'Donnell, president of the Airline Pilots Association in the United States, said the attempt to shut down domestic service had accomplished a major objective despite the fact that only two lines—Northeast and Eastern—were halted for the day. Southern was shut down for a few hours.

O'Donnell said the strike was the first phase in a program aimed at joint efforts of various kinds, including the denial of air service to countries that shelter hijackers, and denial of ground service to the airlines controlled by such countries.

The strike appeared most effective in Western Europe, Canada, Latin America and South America. There was little or no effect in the Arab nations, Australia, Japan and most Communist countries.

YES provides 400 jobs in Winona area

About 400 young people have been placed on jobs by the state employment service here, according to Jerry Whetstone, chairman of the Youth Employment Service (YES).

Beginning within the next several days, several young people representing the YES program will start calling at homes in the city to find and uncover jobs for the many young people who want and need work. They will be seeking such jobs as basement cleaning, yard work, lawn work, general house cleaning, screen and storm window work, babysitting, and in fact any of those numerous odd jobs which need doing around the home.

The employment service reports that there are also a number of boys who would like farm work during the summer vacation period.

The Winona Youth employment program, which is sponsored by the Winona Area Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the state employment service, is now in its fifth year. Each year the number of young people placed within the program has grown. Last year the goal was 1,971, however 2,186 jobs were filled by Winona's young people. The goal this year is 2,100.

"Our young people want jobs, they need the experience of working for others, they want to pay their way by working during their summer vacation months," Whetstone stated.

State loses $5 million a year

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota could collect around $5 million a year by closing a tax loophole that allows some rich persons to escape any state income tax, an aide to Gov. Wendell Anderson said today.

John Haynes, the governor's staff expert on taxes, said this could be accomplished by a minimum tax on the rich, similar to that adopted by the federal government and by the states of New York, California, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

In 1968, Haynes said, 30 Minnesotans with gross incomes of $50,000 to $100,000 paid no state income tax.

This was legal under current law, since the taxpayers took advantage of existing tax preference laws.

The estimate of $5 million in revenue was made by the State Tax Department but was said to be only a rough estimate, based on the new federal tax law.

The information was contained in testimony submitted to the State Tax Study Commission by Haynes and the Tax Department and was not a formal proposal by the governor's office.

In another memorandum, Haynes appeared to clear up most of the mystery surrounding 81 Minnesota-based firms which had income of $5 million or more but paid only the minimum corporate income tax of $10.

Of these companies, Haynes said, some were insurance firms which are taxed on their gross premiums and thus seldom pay an income tax.

Some were investment companies or holding companies, which also are in a special tax category.

Others were firms which do considerable business outside the state and thus apportion only a small amount of income to Minnesota.

Haynes said only three corporations with Minnesota net incomes of $5 million or more paid the $10 minimum tax.

He said the Tax Department is not allowed to identify these firms further because of state laws making tax records confidential.

Haynes had first raised the question at an April 23 session of the Tax Study Commission.

The commission chairman,

Rep. Harold J. Anderson, Minneapolis, later accused the governor's office of using the corporate tax issue as a gimmick to grab headlines away from criticism of the state's tax climate.

Minnesota has a complicated law allowing some companies to choose among several formulas in computing the Minnesota portion of their income. This applies only to firms doing business in several states.

Over fishing, hunting rights

State DNR, Leech Lake Indians come to terms

By GERRY NELSON

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the Leech Lake Chippewa Band announced tentative agreement today on a settlement to a dispute over fishing and hunting rights on the Leech Lake reservation.

The key item, requiring approval by the 1973 legislature, would be a licensing system allowing Indians to charge a $1 fee for hunting and fishing on the reservation by non-Indians.

The accord was to be announced at a noon press conference at Cass Lake, Minn., by Gov. Wendell Anderson, leaders of the Leech Lake band and DNR Commissioner Robert Herbst.

The governor said in a prepared statement that the settlement "is an honorable one for everyone concerned."

The governor added: "While the tentative accord applies only to the Leech Lake area, we are hopeful that the pattern established here will be adapted for all open reservations in Minnesota."

"Under the accord, no resident of Minnesota will forego any right he now possesses, and all residents and nonresidents will be guaranteed full and free access to all open Indian reservations for hunting and fishing."

The agreement follows a ruling last January by U.S. District Judge Edward J. Devitt that ancient treaties gave Indians hunting, fishing and wild ricing rights on the reservation without regard to state laws.

The reservation is open to both Indians and non-Indians but Indians are not bound by state laws, Devitt ruled.

The reservation is a substantial tourist area and includes about 20 per cent of the state's walleye waters.

Once a solidly Indian-owned land mass, it is now made up principally of national forest, state lands and county lands.

Major points in the agreement are:

1. Leech Lake Indians would relinquish any right for commercial fishing on the reservation. Taking of game and fish for individual consumption by Indians would be regulated by the tribal conservation committee under a new game and fish code.

State and Indian enforcement officers may be cross-deputized so each can make arrests under both the Indian code and under state law.

2. A licensing system allowing Leech Lake Indians to charge a $1 fee, to be required on top of state licenses. This will require legislative approval.

3. Wild ricing would be controlled by the tribal conservation committee.

4. Leech Lake Indians would have exclusive rights for taking rough fish.

5. Arbitration of disputes, with Indian fees collected by the state to be withheld in case the agreement is breached.

Treasury studying plan to reward taxpayers

By EDMOND LeBRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Under congressional prodding, the Treasury is studying a plan to reward taxpayers who agree to lend the government the extra-large refunds they expect to get next year from income-tax withholding.

The idea is not so much to ease the government's borrowing problems as to head off a surge of inflation when taxpayers suddenly collect an estimated $8 billion in spendable funds.

The proposal is to offer a choice to taxpayers whose 1972 returns show a refund coming: either take the cash, or accept a bond that pays better interest than the 5.5-per-cent yield the ordinary seven-year government Series E Bond provides.

Withholding has been a headache for two years for wage-earners and the Treasury alike. In 1969, the rate was set too low, and many taxpayers found that, when they filed their returns this year, they owed substantial amounts.

In an effort to correct this, Congress revised the withholding rate late last year, on Treasury recommendations, but overcompensated.

So, there is the prospect that taxpayers, with money taken out of their paychecks that the government would prefer to leave in the spending stream, will have big refunds coming in early 1973. That is when administration economists expect the economy to be more robust and more inflation-prone.

The committee said the Treasury "has agreed to look into both the desirability and practicality of the matter."

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, who brought the matter up in closed committee sessions with Treasury officials, said, "They had better do something if this $8 billion spins out all of a sudden it could send inflation up four or five points . . ."

One way to increase the yield on the securities, Vanik suggested, would be to issue predated E. Bonds,

Food attractive? It may make you unattractive

It is commonly believed obese people — OK, make it fat — gain weight because they make better use of the calories than other people and consequently accumulate tissue, that they don't have to eat as much to get their work done, but do anyhow.

That belief was tested by two Mayo Clinic researchers.

Their conclusion: It's wrong. They found that the basal metabolism rate was normal even in grossly obese persons. During step exercise, the fat group used oxygen normally and carbon dioxide production was also directly related to the amount of work performed.

In short, the research says that ordinary fat people eat too much. Period.

But the researchers found something much more interesting in their examination of clinic patient records for more than 30 years.

It's this, that as you grow older you must cut down on calorie intake, even if you continue to exercise, or you will gain weight. A man who weighs 154 pounds at the age of 30 will weigh more than 200 pounds by the time he's 60 even if he exercises.

Ideally, men would have to cut their calories by 11 percent and women by 5 percent over the entire 30-year period to have remained at ideal body weight. That's because the metabolism rate goes down with age.

You see, ladies, while telling your husband to eliminate the dessert, you can have it. A little bit, anyhow.

What the doctors emphasize is what you need to do to keep your weight down. It's exercise. And, if you don't exercise, well, try starving. — A.B.

Take heart, parents

Psychology Today magazine asked two child psychotherapists how they treated their own children.

• No. 1 — "When one of my child patients accidentally spilled red paint in the playroom, I knew exactly how to respond: 'Oh, the paint spilled. We need a sponge. And here is some water for you!'"

How would you react if your son spilled paint on the rug?

"Look at what you did. You are so clumsy. You are like a bull in a china shop. You are nothing but trouble. How many times do I have to tell you to be careful. It's no use. You are a slob. Always were and always will be."

• No. 2 — "In therapy we know how to make friends of children. Only at home we are at a loss. Children present concrete problems that do not yield to glittering generalities about love, respect, acceptance, individual differences and personal uniqueness. These concepts are too large. They are like a thousand-dollar bill — good currency but useless in meeting daily needs, such as buying a cup of coffee, taking a cab or making a phone call. For daily life, we need coins. For child rearing, we need psychological small change, akin to that used in child therapy." — A.B.

The death threat to South Vietnam

Sir Robert Thompson, British expert on guerrilla warfare, has amended his assertion that the conquest of South Vietnam by the North would end in a blood bath.

Four years ago he forecast several hundred thousands; now, writing in the New York Times, he has raised that to more than one million — out of 18 million people. To a defected North Vietnamese colonel he attributes the statement that the North Vietnamese would slaughter up to three million, and to another, that 10 to 15 percent of the five million South Vietnamese on the "blood debt" list would pay with their lives.

Thompson is confident of his forecast because he is able to recite the atrocities the enemy already has committed in pursuit of the war. He comments, for example:

"Everyone has heard of My Lai, but who has heard of Caibe, where the Viet Cong, after its capture, lingered only to murder the wives and children of all the local militia? Or of the Montagnard village of Dakson, where they moved from hut to hut with flame-throwers, incinerating more than 250 villagers, two-thirds of them women and children?"

And so on.

Then, Thompson gives you the clincher: the documented atrocities come from a compendium prepared for the U.S. Senate Committee on the Judiciary.

The Sunday News reported: LAST REMAINING INFANTRY GROUP IS DEACTIVATED, thus ending our ground combat involvement. Some 100,000 men do continue U.S. support of the South Vietnamese in air and naval forces, but if the bombardment is unsuccessful and if the renewed Paris peace talks abort again, we may soon know the correctness of Sir Robert Thompson's sobering forecast. — A.B.

Why take Latin?

Dr. Max Rafferty

As an old educational researcher, I'm sorry to have to tell you today that most educational "research" is pure piffle. For example:

Ever since I was a wet-behind-the-ears student teacher whole eons and milleniums ago, the experts of my profession have been poking all manner of fun at the old fogies of Horace Mann's day who believed in the "transfer effect," as it was sometimes called. Put simply, this meant that the study of certain subjects would help the student to master certain other subjects. Geometry, for instance, would help you do better in logic; Latin would assist you to understand English grammar, spelling and sentence structure, and so on.

FOR AT LEAST 40 years, educational research in this field has "proved" that transfer just doesn't occur. So in my own time I've witnessed the precipitous decline and disappearance from the average school curriculum of such subjects as Latin. Today's dogma holds that those who want to master the intricacies of the English language had better study English and forget other related languages.

Now this is all well and good, but apparently it isn't true. Because if it is true, and if transfer doesn't exist, how are we to explain the recent news from the public schools of Washington, D.C.?

In that troubled and almost all-black school district, Latin — of all things — has been taught for more than five years to a large group of sixth-grade children. Another group was taught French, still another Spanish and a fourth no foreign language at all. Last year, an identical standardized reading test was given to all Washington sixth graders.

Result: The children who had been taught French and Spanish did better than those who had had no foreign language, and those youngsters who had been exposed to the stern and classic beauty of Latin did better than all the others put together.

LET ME QUOTE from the conclusion of the Washington report on this project:

"Latin instruction serves a dual purpose: It has a positive transfer effect on the mastery of the English language, and it leads students to learn a foreign language, thus providing opportunity for appreciation of other peoples' culture. Why Latin? Why not French or Spanish, which have positive effect on English reading skills and still have a high practical value?"

"At this point, it is well to emphasize that if positive transfer effect to the mastery of English reading skills is the primary consideration, Latin is still far superior. The positive effect on reading skills associated with Latin instruction for one year is equaled but not surpassed by French and Spanish instruction for four years."

Surprised? No need to be. French and Spanish are the children of Latin, and the parent still packs more of a wallop than the offspring.

BUT HOW ABOUT all that "research" over the years that "proved" that Latin had no carry-over value at all? Could it be that those platoons and squadrons of "researchers" were all full of apple strudel? Could be. In fact, they darned well must have been, unless you want to argue with Washington's five-year findings.

Right about here, of course, I can hear the dismal wailings of the "progressive" educationists who have been ambushing and sandbagging Latin for four decades: "Obviously, the sixth graders who were given Latin were a select sampling of smart students. No wonder they scored higher on the tests."

Let's knock that one on its pointed head right now before it grows up and runs away with the facts. Latin was taught in classes randomly chosen, not just to classes that were already achieving well in reading. Sorry about that, all you enemies of the ablatives absolute.

There are two lessons to be learned from this:

• Take all educational research with a truckload of salt.

• If you want your own children to read, write and spell English well, get your local school to teach them Latin. Contrary to what you may have been told, it seems still to be "relevant" as all get-out. Just ask the Black youngsters in Washington, D.C.

I love to tilt against the windmills of establishment stupidity. Often I get badly unhorsed, but once in a while I win one. This is one of those times.

A tribute to Bradley

William S. White

WASHINGTON — For the endlessly harassed old Army these days offer mainly the stones of criticism and even of contempt where once it was the good, plain bread of public respect and gratitude.

Still, there are men who feel no shame in having worn the uniform of the United States in combat and for whom this month of June is a month of special remembrance — a remembrance alike of comrades long gone and of one of the greatest field officers in the martial history of the United States.

Twenty-eight years ago, June was a red month of decision, of duty and for many of death as the Allies breasted the English Channel to land in foul and lethal weather upon the beaches of Nazi-occupied France. For the commander of that giant enterprise at arms, General of the Army Omar Bradley, June has now been made doubly unforgettable.

The military, so despised by so many, have permanently lodged

Bradley (along with the million of G.I. Joes and the hosts of unknown and unremembered soldiers dead in the defense of this nation) made those words simple and profoundly real.

COMMANDING the largest army — or rather group of armies — ever sent into the field by the United States, he spoke softly in the countryish colloquialisms of his native Missouri. And he walked about France like a shambling overage private who had unaccountably been caught up in the net of the draft.

His compassion, as this columnist can personally testify, was in every sense at least as high as that of any of our current professionally "anti-war" senators. And yet I saw him in a briefing in Normandy discussing his battle plan by scooping up a handful of pebbles and tossing them one by one and saying: "I will throw this division in there and this one over there and this one down yonder." One division; one pebble.

Every pebble represented thousands of lives but the man who held them in his hand and then let them go was, unlike our pacifists of today, in no confusion whatever about "the moral issues" he faced. He did not enjoy killing anybody; not even SS troops. And he did not exactly relish sacrificing American soldiers, or any others.

But the true and ultimate human priorities he understood: sometimes the comparative few men die for the many. Sometimes, in the face of massive evil, an evil in this case that used the gas oven as an instrument of public policy much as though it were an income tax, only force can rescue justice — and even peace.

"BRAD" was not overtly a "sensitive" philosopher. But whose philosophy was really more sensitive — his or the chic contemporary view that the strong can and should stand aside intoning their love of "peace" while the weak and helpless are ravaged and murdered at wholesale? Ask the civilians of North and South Vietnam.

In his 80th year this shy and utterly unchic great captain will recall us, if we will listen, to values long slandered; to a spirit that has been lost and yet can live again.

"SURE, I SELL 'EM TO KIDS AND KOOKS. WANNA BUY ONE?"

John Ashbrook — a real force

William F. Buckley

They ask: did it serve the purposes of the conservative movement to field John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, as a primary opponent of the incumbent, Richard Nixon, R-Calif.? It is a fair question. Sectarian pride should on the one hand be acknowledged as an emotional necessity ("of course it was the right thing to do"). But there is also a role for candor ("it was a mistake").

A few observations:

1) AMONG conservatives, there is always a certain fear that the man they choose to represent them will say something kooky. The left enjoys a peculiar immunity from this form of embarrassment. The daughter of Robert Kennedy can say blandly in public that she really sees no necessity to distinguish between communists and Democrats because after all we are dealing only with a difference of opinion; and, after perhaps an embarrassed chuckle or two, the world yawns on.

A conservative who made a blunder of complementary proportions would be read out of the community of civilized political discourse — with, I might add, my blessing. Imagine a candidate for political office saying, matter-of-factly: "It doesn't particularly matter whether someone is anti-Semitic or pro-Semitic: it is only a matter of opinion."

John Ashbrook never posed such a problem. The boys who listened to him, hoping to hear from his lips something ideologically racy, so that they could situate him as a member of the John Birch Society or whatever, were terribly disappointed. John Ashbrook is a Robert A. Taft conservative.

2) THE FAILURE was therefore in no sense personal. In addition to his negative qualifications Ashbrook has been steadfastly anti-kooky. Ashbrook preeminently fulfills the personal qualifications of the serious, personable candidate. He is all the usual things, and some not so usual. Sure, he is WASP, handsome, middle-western, articulate. But he is also patently sincere, moderate in his rhetoric, compassionate in tone, and an honors graduate of Harvard University, from which college and law school he graduated, exhibiting an extraordinary immunity to ideological defilement.

3) EVEN SO, he did not ignite an impressive rebellion against Richard Nixon. He ran in several primaries, but concentrated on New Hampshire, Florida and California. It is not believable how little money he spent on the three primaries: a total of $120,000. With that much money, George McGovern and his staff couldn't manage to move from Manhattan to Staten Island.

Okay, so it is impressive that with those nickels and dimes he should have succeeded in getting 10 percent of the vote (that was his average) in a race against an incumbent Republican president. Why did he not receive more financial support? The money is there. Can we conclude that Ashbrook's failure to raise significant money suggests the absence of any support for his line of argument?

4) I THINK NOT. Everybody knows that Richard Nixon is going to be renominated. When Eugene McCarthy challenged Lyndon Johnson, the situation was different. The movement of world politics — the Zeitgeist — was (and is) leftward bound. When Johnson bumped into his left, he bumped into another Democrat. When Nixon bumps into his left — he finds Humphrey. Unless the Zeitgeist changes direction, a right-wing challenger to Nixon cannot hope to profit from the prevailing political turbulence.

5) ON THE OTHER hand, this doesn't mean that John Ashbrook accomplished nothing at all. The official figures suggest that only 10 percent of the Republican voters preferred Ashbrook over Nixon. Very interesting. The official figures, as of only a few weeks ago, suggested that the Democrats favored George McGovern by 4 percent. The most effusive poll of last winter lifted him up to a heady 6 percent.

6) THE POINT to remember is that Richard Nixon, in his attitude towards budget deficits, in his position on price and wage controls, in his easygoing attitude towards Soviet military superiority, in his coziness towards Communist China and Russia, is improvising. It is all very exhilarating, but it pays to remember that the pull of the tonic mode is very nearly irresistible, and eventually he has either to return to it, or to change key: emphatically, unambiguously. If he does so, the positions defended by John Ashbrook will emerge unclaimed by any major political figure. Inevitably, Candidate Nixon must fear that crystallization of public opinion. When that happens, he will look up and see that John Ashbrook (or whoever) has gradually become a force. Without whose help, Mr. Nixon has had it.

County Ditch 3 cleanup aired

Resolving to take a fresh look at an old problem, the City Council Monday night directed a committee to study ways to improve County Ditch No. 3.

The ditch, choked with weeds and frequently used as a depository for trash, runs along Highway 61 parallel with Kraemer Drive through the College of

City Council

Saint Teresa campus and empties into Lake Winona.

AS councilmen saw it, the problem is whether to do the job right or settle for some sort of halfway measure — and if the former course is chosen, there's the additional problem of money.

Councilman Earl Laufenberger acknowledged all this in some remarks to the council, noting that councilmen are familiar with the difficulties but that neighborhood residents aren't. They are looking for some effective action, he indicated.

While city, county and state governments are involved, said

Laufenberger, it will still be up to the council to coordinate whatever cleanup project emerges. He said county commissioners have shown some willingness to get involved and that the state Highway Department also can contribute to the job since part of the ditch is on Highway 61 right of way.

LAUFENBERGER proposed that current studies of pollution along Gilmore Creek (the county ditch) and the lake be made the basis for applications to federal agencies for fund grants.

The highway department would contribute 25 percent of costs of installing a 24-inch storm sewer on the ditch bed, said City Engineer Robert J. Bollant. This would be covered and the ditch thus would be partly filled. The pipe could handle ordinary flow, he said, and overflow would simply expand into the vestigial ditch.

Councilmen didn't much like the proposal, however. Bollant recalled that the council had talked in 1968 about installing a large concrete culvert and filling the ditch above it to grade level. This, he said, would have cost an estimated $700,000, half to come from federal funds, but the council shelved it as too costly.

Filling the ditch still is the ideal solution, Bollant said. He told the council this would permit creation of a highly attractive greenway where now only unsightly weeds proliferate and impede the water flow.

Where to get the money, wondered Councilman Barry Nelson, even if other roadblocks are removed? One such stumbling block is the lack of a regional planning review agency to review federal grant applications.

STATE-IMPOSED spending limitations also get in the way, he noted. City Manager Paul Schriever pointed out that levies for retiring public improvements bond issues are exempt from the limits, however.

Mayor Norman E. Indall responded to a council motion directing formation of a committee by naming Laufenberger as chairman and designating as members Councilmen Nelson and Dan Traylor Jr., Schriever and himself.

Vo-tech merger voted by Adult Education Board

By ARTHUR L. SRB
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Despite an attorney general's opinion, the executive committee of the Vocational, Technical and Adult Education Board voted unanimously Monday night to press forward with plans to merge four technical school districts.

The action set the stage for approval by the board and a likely court test by opponents of the consolidation proposals.

Endorsement of merger by the board was being forecast, and foes were ready with a request for a court injunction.

Atty. Gen. Robert Warren ruled last month the board could "alter" VTAE districts but could not "merge" them under existing statutes.

The ruling followed the board's decision to merge District 14 with District 15 in central Wisconsin, and districts 17 and 18 in the northeast.

"I'm sure the interpretation of the attorney general doesn't hold water and that the courts will go hold," John Zancanara of Milwaukee said.

The proposed merger of districts 14 and 15 has drawn opposition in Wisconsin Rapids and support from Stevens Point residents, who have expressed a desire to merge with District 14.

The district includes Wausau. "Wisconsin Rapids wants to localize and keep control to the detriment of their youth," Burt Zien of Milwaukee said.

"This is not a matter of politics. It's a matter of what's best for that area of the state," Zien said.

Zien said combining districts 14 and 15 "would give them the finest vo-tech district in the state."

LeRoy Jonas Jr. of Wausau said he had "talked to people in Wisconsin Rapids and they just don't believe what we're telling them" about improvements consolidation would produce.

Questions were raised as to whether merger should be July 1, 1972, or July 1, 1973. There is a statutory requirement that county board chairmen be given three weeks in which to appoint VTAE boards.

"Maybe we've boxed ourselves in and we can't order merger in time" for July 1, Jonas said.

Peter Senn of Campbellsport said a court fight over the merger proposals could curtail building programs in the districts.

"There shouldn't be a brick laid until this is settled," Senn declared.

The committee decided to push for the July 1 date this year to hasten a court test.

Enters not guilty plea on drug charge

A not guilty plea was entered Monday afternoon for a Winona man facing a felony drug charge here in connection with a series of raids in the city May 4-5.

Dave H. Yaedke, 23, 164 1/2 E. 4th St., appeared with defense attorney Kent Gernander in Winona County District Court before Judge Glenn E. Kelley.

Judge Kelley ordered a not guilty plea entered for Yaedke after Gernander had indicated he did not wish to enter a plea until the judge rules on a motion questioning the court's jurisdiction to hear the matter.

Gernander argued that the preliminary hearing held in Winona Municipal Court in the matter was insufficient because the prosecution refused to identify an informant involved in the case.

Without a legitimate preliminary hearing, Gernander argued, the district court has no jurisdiction to hear the case.

He asked for a further continuance of the case until the transcript of the preliminary hearing is completed so it may be used in argument of his motion. The matter had already been delayed since June 9 on the same grounds.

Judge Kelley ruled that they should proceed with the arraignment, with a note on the record concerning Gernander's motion.

When the arraignment came, however, Gernander said no plea would be entered until the jurisdiction question could be resolved, but Judge Kelley ordered the not guilty plea entered.

Yaedke is accused of selling marijuana and LSD to a state undercover agent April 24. County Attorney Julius E. Gernes argued that a Rasmussen-type hearing to determine admissibility of certain evidence be held Monday as scheduled, but Judge Kelley followed Gernander's delay motion and ruled the hearing will be held just prior to the trial, which is scheduled to begin sometime the week of July 10.

chairmanship of the state soil and water conservation unit of the Wisconsin State University Extension branch, and will serve as executive secretary of the conservation board as of July 1. He has served as Jackson County agent for the past 14 years.

Contributions for a farewell gift may be left at the University Extension office in the courthouse until this Tuesday.

'Sellout to big business'

110-year-old land-grant college system criticized

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 110-year-old land-grant college system was accused by a series of Senate witnesses

Council to study annual bid purchases

With but a single bid before it for third-quarter petroleum purchases, the City Council Monday night said it would study the question of whether to return to annual bidding for these supplies.

City Manager Paul G. Schriever told the council that annual bids probably would encourage more bidder action because larger volumes are involved.

Councilman Howard Hoveland reminded colleagues that the reason for adopting quarterly bidding had been that it took away the long-range uncertainty about fluctuations in the oil markets. Thus, he said, suppliers were supposed to be able to bid more accurately and to offer better prices.

On annual bids, however, the bidders are forced to hedge a bit and build in a little more margin to cover possible wholesale price increases, Hoveland said.

The council has been taking quarterly bids on petroleum supplies since 1968.

Voting to accept the single bid, that of Standard Oil Co., the council agreed to give annual bidding another trial, perhaps at the next opportunity, which would be the period beginning Oct. 1.

Prices in the Standard bid were made subject to the reservation that they would be increased accordingly in the event special federal taxes are exacted for leaded gasolines.

For 7,000 gallons of premium grade gasoline the price next quarter will be 15.33 cents per gallon; 13.33 cents per gallon for 15,000 gallons of regular grade; 16.42 cents for 1,500 gallons of truck-delivered regular grade; and 16.1 cents for 500 gallons of diesel fuel.

Monday of placing farm technology ahead of farmers and consumers in a virtual sellout to big business.

The colleges and their schools of agriculture were founded in 1862 through a grant of federal lands and still receive much of their support from federal cash and loan assistance.

Witnesses before the Senate's migratory labor subcommittee, chaired by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., blamed the colleges and their philosophy for much of what they said has gone wrong in American agriculture.

And two witnesses said the land-grant system is structurally biased against blacks and other minorities who need the help the colleges could give.

James Hightower and Suan Demarco, authors of a recent report by the Agribusiness Accountability Project on the land-grant college system, repeated their allegation that the tax-supported, land-grant complex has come to serve an elite of private, corporate interests in agriculture, while ignoring those who have the most urgent needs and the most legitimate claims for assistance.

"They said agribusiness corporations are welcomed by the college administrators, academics, scientists and researchers in an interlocking relationship in which 'money is the web.'"

Robert Rodale, editor of "Organic Gardening and Farming," a magazine published in Emmaus, Pa., took a similar approach, contending: "In my opinion, the land-grant colleges have helped to foul up this country by applying too many simplistic technological remedies to farm problems without trying to foresee the eventual consequences of those remedies."

Another witness, Alice Shabecoff, executive director of the National Consumers League, accused the system of breeding the taste and much of the nutrition out of a wide array of fruits and vegetables in the interest of mechanization, uniform picking times, and higher

She held aloft a "super-market" tomato and said the reason it is "hard, grainy and tasteless," is that agricultural researchers at land-grant colleges bred it "thick walled and firm enough to withstand the metal fingers of a mechanical harvester."

Rep. Frank E. Evans, D-Colo., and Peter Schuck of the Center For Responsive Law in Washington, said in separate appearances that the land-grant system has a built-in bias against blacks.

They said that 16 colleges were created in 1863 in states having large black populations and that these institutions never have received the volume of funds and grants given to other, earlier land-grant colleges which remain primarily white.

In fiscal 1971, Evans said, the white land-grant colleges in those 16 states were allocated about $87 million by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, while the black schools got a combined total of $236,000.

Final installment for sewer financing OKed

The final installment of interim financing for the city's $3.8 million sewage treatment plant was accomplished Monday night at what councilmen called a highly favorable interest rate.

Councilmen voted to accept a bid of 3.646 percent on a bond issue totaling $1,040,000. The bid, offered by First National Bank of St. Paul, was the lowest of a cluster of five that had a difference only of .34 of 1 percent between low and high proposals.

Bonds are issued for three years. By that time, said Mayor Norman E. Indall, it's expected that the city will have received all the federal and state grants for which it's eligible. These should add up to around 75 or 80 percent of total costs.

consultant, will be $113,776.

Other bids: Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co., 3.66 percent, total cost $114,192; Bank Northwest, including 1st National Bank of Winona, 3.696 percent, total cost $115,336; John Nuveen & Co., St. Paul, 3.85 percent, total cost $120,120; and Dain, Kalman & Quail, Minneapolis, including Merchants National Bank of Winona, 3.988 percent, total cost, $124,436.

In miscellaneous business, with routine votes, the council also:

Granted a five-year extension for the present city contract with Praxel Ambulance Service, under which the city pays a $10,000 annual service fee to the operator.

SET A hearing for July 3 on a petition by Froedter Malt Corp. for vacation of some undeveloped street and alley areas west of the firm's present plant and lying within the general boundaries of company-owned future expansion area.

Voted to accept title to, and responsibility for, Levee Plaza from Winona Area Industrial Development Association, which had served as corporate spearhead for the privately-financed downtown improvement and beautification project.

Lucey says he isn't interested in party position

MADISON, Wis. (AP) Gov. Patrick J. Lucey says he isn't much of a bet as a vice presidential nominee and is even less interested in being Democratic national chairman.

Lucey is one of Sen. George S. McGovern's strongest advocates among the nation's governors, and McGovern's presidential campaign aides acknowledged recently they are conducting polls in search of a running mate for the senator.

Local political columnists have named Lucey as a prospect, but the governor remarked Monday he is "about as dark a horse as you could get."

Lucey is a chairman of the predominantly McGovern delegation which Wisconsin is sending to the Democratic National Convention in July.

The governor acknowledged he has been queried about becoming Democratic national chairman should McGovern win the party's White House nomination.

But a McGovern associate, Lt. Gov. William Dougherty of South Dakota, has been told Lucey is not interested in the chairmanship now held by Lawrence F. O'Brien, the governor reported.

Hansen: give drug pushers life in prison

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Republican Senate candidate Philip Hansen says drug addicts should receive treatment but drug pushers should get penalties of up to life imprisonment.

"I can think of no more heinous crime than pushing drugs for profit," Hansen told a news conference Monday.

He said he supports making drug pushing a federal crime with a 20- to 40-year term for a first offense and life in prison for a second offense.

He said he would, however, differentiate between those who sell drugs to support their own habit and those who sell drugs solely for profit.

A lessening of penalties for marijuana so a user could be sentenced to attend a drug education course rather than to prison was advocated by Hansen.

He reiterated that he is opposed to legalizing the sale of marijuana. He also said he supports programs using methadone as a substitute for heroin.

Campaign spending Federal ceilings to put Wisconsin law on sidelines?

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Federal ceilings on campaign spending probably invalidate Wisconsin's more restrictive statutes, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren has declared.

Because "the federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 may cause some confusion concerning campaign expenditure regulations in Wisconsin," Warren told Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, "a serious reconsideration of all the provisions of the Wisconsin Corrupt Practices Law is long overdue."

The attorney general's opinion cited discrepancies between federal and statewide laws dealing with permissible expenditures by candidates for U.S. Senate and House.

State statutes forbid a senatorial aspirant from spending more than $10,000 during a campaign and limit a potential representative's expenditures to $2,500.

Federal law sets a limit of "10 cents times the voting age population of his state or congressional district, or $50,000."

Moe says no to suggestion on meeting

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Richard Moe, chairman of the Minnesota Democratic-Farmer-Labor party, has rejected a demand that the state DFL convention be reconvened to finish the adoption of a platform.

The demand was made at a news conference by a group calling itself the Radical-Peace Coalition. In rejecting the demand, Moe said Monday that it was "the will of the convention" to have the remainder of the platform adopted by the party central committee.

In addition, he said reconvening the convention would be too costly for the party and for the individual delegates.

The coalition included members of the so-called radical caucus and the "gay rights caucus," which participated in the Rochester convention June 9-10. That convention adopted only five platform planks.

Three of the five planks brought immediate controversy. They called for the legalization of marijuana, amnesty for draft evaders, and full rights for homosexuals. Gov. Wendell Anderson and numerous DFL legislators have rejected the three planks.

City accident

Monday 3:38 p.m. — Huff Street, 150 feet south of 4th Street, rear-end collision: Phillip E. Staige, Fountain City Rl. 1, Wis., 1964 model sedan, rear, $50; Miss Jean A. Lubinski, 517 Harriet St., 1966 model sedan, front, $250.

City Manager Paul Schriever said factory-installed air conditioning would cost about $300. But it also raises trade-in value, he said, to where the net cost would be around $100. For these prices, he told councilmen, air conditioning is a pretty good buy and furthermore is a definite improvement in working conditions for the officer putting in an eight-hour shift in the patrol car.

When the vote to advertise for bids, air conditioning included, came along, Nelson registered the lone nay. On the side of air-conditioned law and order were Mayor Norman E. Indall and Councilmen Don Trainor Jr., Earl Laufenburger, Gaylord Fox, Howard Hovelard and Jerry Borzyskowski.

Changes OKed for Hwy. 43 project

A series of minor changes for in-city segments of Highway 43 remodeling—scheduled for 1974—got City Council approval Monday night.

City Council

The proposals were outlined by a team of state highway department engineers headed by V. J. Hart, assistant district engineer at Rochester offices.

Harty said the principal alteration will be a 40-foot shift in right of way alignment opposite the Green Acres Subdivision on Burns Valley Creek.

Another change is an additional entrance being provided on the east side of the new road near the Johnson Construction Co. entrance. It will serve an existing gasoline station.

The plan bars entrance from the highway to property owned by Mrs. Marie Fakler, requiring that access be shifted to Sugar Loaf Road on the opposite side of the property.

Engineers said Sugar Loaf Road will be joined with the east end of Lake Boulevard in a long curve but will not have highway access at the 61-43 intersection.

Councilman Gaylord Fox said he was dubious about closing off access to commercial properties such as the Fakler and Bub's Brewery parcels. Engineers said the openings would be too hazardous on a high-volume, limited-access roadway.

Mayor Norman E. Indall wondered whether the proposed highway crossing a quarter-mile west of the 61-43 intersection would be safe enough.

This crossing will link Lake Boulevard with Parks Avenue. HARTY pointed out that city-bound local traffic on Lake Boulevard also will have the option of using Huff Street where traffic signals now are being installed.

Councilmen told Harty they would act on the matter as soon as the department submits a prepared resolution. It will be ready for the July 3 meeting.

Jerry Fells, plant manager, told the council that one of the chief purposes of enclosing the currently unfenced area is keeping children off the premises. He said he has had to chase youngsters away who have climbed to the tops of tanks. The hazards are obvious, he said.

The original request by Continental for an easement was changed to an application for a special license at the recommendation of City Engineer Robert J. Bolland. The council will act on the completed application at its next meeting.

Oil company security fence is approved

City Council members Monday night agreed to issue a permit to Continental Oil Co., 1020 E. 2nd St., for construction of a security fence on city land near the firm's bulk distribution plant.

The fence will run along the east side of an unused portion of Buchanan Street, between 2nd and 3rd streets, and its purpose is to provide security for the installation.

Bell collecting is hobby for area woman

MILLVILLE, Minn. (Special)—Mrs. Ann Fister, Millville, whose hobby is collecting bells, has about 200 bells in her collection. Her latest bell came from Spain. She also has a bell used to call the slaves to meals in the South during pre-Civil War days, ice cream bells, Swiss bells, school bells and a bell tower replica in her yard that was made by her son James. She also has a hotel bell—to ring for services—that has a metal base in alabaster grape design with Mother of Pearl sea shells. Mrs. Fister loves her collection and says "they're not for sale." She began her collection in 1952, although she has been interested in bells since childhood. She is a member of the American Bell Association and has attended conventions at Chicago and Niagara Falls and is planning to attend one at Vancouver, British Columbia. Mrs. Fister said that from the first time she heard school and church bells, she listened with joy to their ringing, which on clear mornings could be heard seven or eight miles away. She said she was even thrilled by the sound of the local locomotive bell. Cow bells and sleigh bells have always sounded musical to her. Although not many of Mrs. Fister's bells are rare, they are loved and provide special memories. Many are treasured gifts. Her family and friends began giving her bells from different parts of the world many years ago, and soon she was on her way with a collection. One of the most pleasant sounds in her collection comes from a string of bells used in the temples of India. She also has several sets of horse bells, including one from India. Some of her bells are souvenirs of countries and historical places. Not all the bells are made of steel, bronze, or metal. Included in the collection are bells made from pottery, glass, and china. Included in her treasures are an old cow bell found on a Texas ranch and given to her by friends, and a hotel tap bell which was used to call boys more than 60 years ago. Mrs. Fister, a widow, taught school before and after her marriage. She taught in the rural schools and in Millville for 22 years. She has three sons, James, Donald and Charles, and nine grandchildren. Her husband was a rural mail carrier before his death.

Readers speak out on Bill's 'act'

DEAR ABBY: The mother who said her son put on an act in public, slurring, giggling, crossing his eyes and falling all over the place "like a retarded person" owes the retarded an apology.

My brother is a retarded mongoloid, and he never behaved any such way. In fact, his manners are far above most normal people.

Dear Abby:
By Abigail Van Buren

I've also visited the State Hospital for Retarded in Fort Wayne, Ind., and I've never seen anything but politeness and good manners there. YOUNG HOOSIER

DEAR ABBY: I am writing for the Comparative Religions class of Thomasville High School, Thomasville, Ga. We held an interesting discussion on the letter from the mother whose 16-year-old son, Bill, mimicked a mentally retarded person "to make people laugh" and his father was his best audience.

Our class consists of students from the 9th through 12th grade, and we'd like for "Bill" to know how his peers feel about his behavior.

Bill needs help. He is trying desperately to get the attention which he never received as a child. A suggested cure would be for him to work with retarded children.

And as far as Bill's father is concerned, I think we all left class with a greater appreciation of our own. A LETTER FROM GA.

DEAR ABBY: I am really angry about that teen-aged Canadian boy who acted like a nut on the street. I can't understand why his mother didn't hit him with the first thing handy.

One way to cure him would be to take him (and his father, who thought the performance was sidesplitting) on a tour of the nearest state mental hospital, including the back wards where they keep the most severely afflicted.

If that boy and his father were still laughing by the time they finished the tour, she should have them both committed. ESTHER IN IOWA

DEAR ABBY: Concerning that 16-year-old Canadian kid who put on a "retarded" act in public to get attention. My father said if that were his son he would give him a good boot in his Francis. SECOND THE MOTION IN OHIO

DEAR ABBY: Who says Americans have lost their sense of humor? The letter from the mother whose son shakes, trembles, crosses his eyes, slurs and giggles and pretends to be "retarded," and whose father thinks it is hilarious, brightened the day for me.

The mother complains that Bill puts on this act while the family watches TV, and the father, convulsed with laughter, is holding his sides.

No generation gap here! Wouldn't many a parent of a surly, long-haired lout who spends his time goodness knows where, doing heaven knows what and getting home who knows when, be glad to trade sons with Bill's parents? WALTER IN ST. LOUIS

DEAR WALTER: I'm not so sure.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to invite "Bill," that normal 16-year-old boy, to visit the school my son attends. It's a special school for mentally retarded children. I'm sure Bill could pick up a few pointers for his "act" — that is if he didn't crack up after watching these conscientious teachers work for hours, and weeks and sometimes months trying to teach a full-grown child how to button a button or tie a shoelace. Your horoscope — Jeane Dixon

FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21
Your Birthday Today: Summer Solstice comes today at 2:06 a.m. Central Daylight Time. Those born earlier are Geminians, those born later are Cancerians. In other years the hour and minute are different, for astronomical reasons. For all born on this date the coming year promises excitement, fresh beginnings, intense emotional fulfillment.
Aries (March 21-April 19): Mend your fences as you go on with career effort. Opportunity is at hand; the idea is to recognize it and make full use of it.
Taurus (April 20, May 20): You may have to move about and exert yourself. If you do this with good intentions, cooperation and cheerfulness are promised.
Gemini (May 21-June 20): Working conditions are ready for more precise definition. There may be interesting developments in an old story — even a windfall of sorts.
Cancer (June 21-July 22): Healthy self-interest includes some impulse buying, attention to your public image. You can unload a white elephant, if that's the problem.
Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Look back and see if you have missed anything. Get your background information together. Health-care courses are favored.
Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An early start in high humor brings you a reasonable day. You get out of it what you put into it, by and large. Be forthright.
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Financial moves yield less than promised, may be merely deferred. Pooled resources include consensus, agreements on what to do next.
Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A brief stroke of moderate luck shouldn't be inflated, but does come in handy. Getting off to one side relieves tensions.
Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): For once you find yourself going nowhere. Visit shut-in friends, work alone on difficult chores which must be done anyway.
Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Tending routine becomes difficult, is eased by sharing the work, taking a break for celebration of a special moment.
Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Dealing with strangers, fresh connections, people of influence in your own fields of interest is indicated. New ground awaits exploration.
Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Be receptive to new friends, meet experience you've not had yet. Today helps determine future directions in your life.

Court won't oust reserve clause

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

For the third time in 50 years, the U.S. Supreme Court has refused to overturn baseball's unique status as the only sport exempt from antitrust laws.

The highest court in the land thus threw the matter back at a seemingly disinterested Congress, which has adopted none of the more than 50 bills introduced in the last two decades to change baseball's reserve system which binds a player to one team indefinitely.

reserve clause raised the possibility of another and more massive general strike next spring than the one which delayed the start of the 1972 baseball season for more than a week.

"Technically, it is a subject for collective bargaining," said Richard Moss, counsel for the Major League Baseball Players Association. "But practically, it is the subject for a strike, a long strike. You either forget it or strike over it, and both are unfortunate courses."

The so-called basic agreement between players and owners expires Dec. 31, along with pension and health insurance agreements reached after the recent strike in April. The basic agreement covers minimum salary, expenses and many other rules.

One baseball executive, asking to remain unidentified, said, "I hope we're intelligent enough players and management alike to negotiate this before we're forced to do it."

That power rests with Congress. But Justice Harry A. Blackmun, delivering the Supreme Court's majority opinion, noted that Congress has had a long time to do something about it and said the fact that it did nothing indicates more than "mere Congressional silence and passivity."

In fact, he said, the Supreme Court "has concluded that Congress has had no intention to subject baseball's reserve system to the reach of the antitrust statutes."

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the decision "opens the way for renewed collective bargaining on the reserve system following the 1972 season."

Exactly what the players want was explained by Milt Pappas, player representative of the Chicago Cubs:

"The ruling doesn't make a lot of difference and the players were not looking to make utter chaos, which complete elimination of the reserve clause would do. However, some owners now have an idea how the players feel."

"What we are going to seek at the meeting table is an agreement that will give veteran players some freedom in negotiating. After a certain time with a club, say five years or eight years, a player should be able to sit down and negotiate on whether he can get more money if he's worth it, or be free to bargain with another club."

In its decision, the court agreed that baseball is a business engaged in interstate commerce and Justice Blackmun called its antitrust exemption "an aberration" and "an exception and an anomaly."

Astros find groove they like

Bucs blast way out of a rut

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates blasted their way out of a rut Monday night, but the Houston Astros have found a groove they'd like to stay in.

The Pirates, shut out by San Diego 4-0 and 1-0 in their last two starts and scoreless for 23 innings, erupted for 16 hits—including home runs by Roberto Clemente, Gene Alley and Al Oliver—and pasted the Los Angeles Dodgers 13-3.

The Astros, meanwhile, got their second consecutive one-hit pitching performance when Larry Dierker limited New York to a lone single as Houston defeated the Mets 3-0 for the Astros' fifth straight victory.

As a result, Pittsburgh moved back into first place in the National League East by one-half game over the Mets, while the Astros pulled within a half-game of first-place Cincinnati in the NL West. The Reds were blanked by Montreal 2-0.

In the only other National League baseball action, the Chicago Cubs nipped San Francisco 7-6 in 11 innings. Philadelphia's game at Atlanta and San Diego's contest at St. Louis were rained out.

In the American League, Boston bombed Texas 12-0, California edged Baltimore 4-3 and Oakland beat Detroit 7-3. Cleveland's game at Minnesota was rained out, while the New York Yankees, Milwaukee, Kansas City and Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

Oliver and Clemente drove in three runs apiece for the Pirates, whose .284 team batting average is tops in the majors. The three RBI moved Clemente into first place on the all-time Pirate list with 1,275, two more than Hall of Famer Pie Traynor.

Pittsburgh ended its scoreless streak with two runs in the first inning off Don Stutton, 8-2—with both losses coming at the hands of the Pirates. The Bucs added three more runs in the fifth, one in the sixth, three in the seventh and four in the eighth.

Pro sports no Camelot: Cosell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sports commentator Howard Cosell rained verbal blows on some of his favorite athletic villains Monday and urged Congress to create a commission to regulate what he said are the excesses of professional sports.

"There is a curious legend that every athlete is a shining manhood, that every contest is inherently pure and that every owner a dedicated and selfless man concerned only with the good of the sport," said Cosell, a reporter and commentator for the ABC network.

And he told a Senate subcommittee sports writers have added to the legend and have helped make professional sports "a privileged sanctuary from life — a looking glass world — a Camelot."

It's no Camelot, said Cosell, as he proceeded to complain about sports monopolies, football games which only a privileged few can attend, TV blackouts of major local games and switches of baseball and football franchises motivated only by profit.

He put much of the blame on the owners and declared, "I do not buy their plea that they should be allowed to clean their own houses."

"They've evidenced a massive lack of desire to do so in all the years I've been on the sports scene."

He generally supported creating a national sports commission and told Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., the subcommittee chairman, that it should have the power to suspend or cancel team franchises for serious violations of regulations.

Another witness, Jack Dolph, commissioner of the American Basketball Association, testified the current bidding war is destroying professional basketball and disrupting college basketball.

He said the bill creating the sports commission is a long-range proposition that will not lend itself to stemming the bidding war of easing the financial problems it has caused.

LeJetz are rained out

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. — The Winona LeJetz - Eau Claire, Wis., American Legion baseball doubleheader scheduled here Monday night was postponed because of rain.

No date has been immediately set as a makeup.

The LeJetz, with an 8-2 record, will travel to Caledonia for a scheduled non-league contest Friday at 7:30 p.m.

The LeJetz are scheduled to host Mankato and Eau Claire in a pair of doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday, respectively.

CFL signs two NFL stars for TV broadcasts

NEW YORK (AP) — What does Canadian professional football have that the National Football League doesn't?

It's got a field that's 10 yards longer and 12 yards wider.

It's got 12 players to a team instead of 11.

It's got three running backs instead of two in the backfield.

It's got a rule that permits the running backs to go in-tion in any direction before the snap of the ball.

It's got a rouge, a point scored by the punting team whenever the ball is kicked into the end zone and not run out.

It's got Alex Karras and Jerry Kramer.

Karras and Kramer are the latest stars of Canadian football. No—the two former National Football League linemen are not returning to action. But they will be telling everyone about Canadian football and the route on a 110-station television hook-up that will begin telecasting Canadian League games to the American market beginning July 3.

The television series is not the first in which Canadian football has tried to make headway in the American market, but it may be the most concerted effort.

What is being pushed, according to press releases, "is the 'go-for-the-bomb' action built into professional football in Canada," which is supposed to be a natural by-product of having only three downs in which to make 10 yards.

What has always worked against the Canadian brand of football is the lack of identity for American fans. It is extremely difficult for Americans to cheer for the Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

But there are several former "big name" products of U.S. college football in Canada, including former Notre Dame quarterback Joe Theismann and lineman Granville Liggins of Oklahoma and Jim Stillwagon of Ohio State.

There's also Kramer, who authored "Instant Replay," an instant best seller revolving around his days under Coach Vince Lombardi at Green Bay, and Karras, an outspoken former member of the Detroit Lions.

Howard Cosell may have to look to his laurels.

It's time for Twins to get going again

By PAT THOMPSON
ST. PAUL (AP) — It's time, says Manager Bill Rigney, for the Minnesota Twins to get going again.

The Twins, who play a doubleheader tonight starting at 5:30 against the Cleveland Indians, had lost 11 of their 15 games in June before edging the Baltimore Orioles 4-3 Sunday.

Rigney thinks the victory could play a part in returning the Twins to early season form with which they won 12 of their first 15 games and set the early pace in the West Division of the American League.

"Now is the time for us to make a move," Rigney reflected Monday after rain postponed an afternoon game against the Indians. "It's time we picked up a little bit of ground on Oakland and Chicago and put some daylight behind us. We've got to get going, maybe by winning five or six straight."

Rigney has assigned Jim Kaat, 7-2, and Dick Woodsen, 4-5, to pitch in the twilight doubleheader against Cleveland's Vince Colbert, 1-4, and Ray Lamb, 1-0.

The veteran Twins manager said the improved play of the several rookies on the club, the emergence of Harmon Killebrew from a slump and return of Danny Thompson and Tony Oliva to the lineup should help the Twins drive back into contention.

Killebrew, who has six homers, has taken over his customary position of leading the team in runs batted in, 28, with five RBI in the last four games.

Thompson, hitting .271, has started two straight games after missing more than a week with bruised ribs. Oliva, the 1971 batting champion who was on the disabled list the first two months of the season, is hitting .375 with six hits in 16 trips.

Of the rookies on the club, Eric Soderholm has won a regular job at third base and appears to be starting to find himself at the plate despite a .202 batting average. Catcher Rick Dempsey and infielder Danny Monzon are starting to see more action, and outfielder Steve Brye was beginning to hit when he left for two weeks of military reserves.

"Our youngsters are starting to get a better feel of their feet on ground," said Rigney. "It looks like the aggressiveness we had early in the season is starting to come back."

Rigney met with Calvin Griffith Monday to discuss what player will be sent down when Brye rejoins the club this weekend. There's also the possibility of bringing a player or two up from the Class AAA farm team at Tacoma.

The Twins, after the four-game weekend series at Kansas City, return to Metropolitan Stadium next Monday to meet California and Kansas City.

Plainview rips Byron 6-1, 13-4

PLAINVIEW, Minn. — Plainview's American Legion team chalked up two more wins here Saturday night to bring its record to 5-2 with 6-1 and 13-4 wins over Byron.

Mike Burgdorf got the win in the opener with eight, strike outs to his credit while giving up just one hit — a triple in the fifth.

Joe Anderson and Dick Klassen each tagged a pair of hits while John Anderson and Mark Standinger accounted for two RBI's each.

Jeff Wedge picked up the win on the mound in the second game, where Klassen went two for three and Wedge drove in four runs.

The victories helped avenge a 16-4 drubbing at the hands of Byron earlier this season.

Church softball is rained out

The National League of Winona's Church Softball circuit was rained out for the second week in a row Monday night.

Monday's slate of scheduled games will be made up June 30, and the games of June 12 will be played this Friday at the same time and site that they were originally set for.

The only exception of the June 12 make-up schedule will be a showdown between first-place Christian Action and second-place Central Lutheran which has been set for Wednesday night at 8:30 at Franklin Field.

Amateur Athletic Union President Jack Kelly and sent a copy to Neil Jackson, women's Olympic team coach who lives in Champaign, home of the University of Illinois.

"We shouldn't have to compete where it's hot, humid and always raining," said Miss Watson. She said her letter was also signed by nine other Olympic qualified girls.

Miss Watson, from Long Beach, Calif., made her statement at the meeting of the Southern California Track Writers Association.

"There is usually so much wind that people have to hold the high jump cross bars. It seems that Miss Jackson would like to have the camp close by so that she doesn't get docked any pay. I'm going to lose money by going to this camp."

Mrs. Connolly said, "I stayed out of the sport for three years and when I start throwing again, I meet the same terrible situation. The officials are either incompetent or don't have the intellectual capacity to know how bad a training site that place would be."

Mrs. Connolly won the discus in 1956 for Czechoslovakia in the Olympic Games and then married Hal Connolly, who won the hammer throw in those games for the United States. She has competed in past years for the USA in the Olympics, and holds the American record at 185 feet 3 inches.

Miss Watson shares the American long jump record with Willye White of Chicago at 21-6.

Environmental Foundation funded

THE INTERIOR DEPARTMENT'S appropriations bill passed the House this week and with it went a $75,000 tab for continuation of the environmental education program carried out by the Minnesota Environmental Sciences Foundation in Minneapolis.

First District Rep. Albert H. Quie went to bat for the program when the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife withdrew its support for the coming year.

The same bill includes $12 million for land acquisition for the Voyageurs National Park in northern Minnesota.

Now all that's left before the money is officially available for the program is for the bill to pass the senate — which no doubt will take a while.

Minnesota boats must have lights

SOME OF THE new boating laws in the Gopher state have confused some boat owners. Others are getting into trouble because they aren't aware of the changes.

One of the most often overlooked new laws is the one pertaining to boat lights. Every boat operated after dark must have some kind of light on board. Motor-powered craft—including canoes and sailboats that may operate after dark under motor power—must have the conventional red and green bow lights and the white stern light, while non-motorized craft may use just a flashlight or lantern.

Whichever class fits your boat, be sure you're aware of the new laws and avoid the fines that are levied against those who try to slip by — ignorance of the law is no excuse.

Archers give $2,000 to aid deer

THE DEER in Minnesota are $2,076 richer today thanks to the efforts of the Minnesota State Archery Association. The association donated the money — proceeds of its annual shoot — to the state DNR for use in projects to improve deer habitat.

According to DNR Commissioner Robert L. Herbst, the DNR gave the archers a choice of the area in which their funds would be used, and they chose the "Necktie River Deed Yard," an area of birch and aspen uplands — the kind of area archers like to hunt.

The money will go primarily for shearing and cutting of mature aspen and other hardwoods so that the new growth following will provide the needed browse for deer. Pines and oaks will be left standing to provide winter cover (the pines) and one of the deer's favorite foods, acorns.

Fire lanes in the area also will be included in the project and will be seeded to clover to provide food for both deer and grouse.

Quarry last of great white hopes, says Ali, a little fat

By JACK STEVENSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Muhammad Ali termed his foe of next week, Jerry Quarry, as "the last of the great white hopes" yet the former champion appeared a little fat when he worked out in Los Angeles.

"Like those men in the rocket ships, they count out 10, 9, 8 until they get to zero," Ali commented in explaining his condition. "They wouldn't really be ready at the count of four."

All meets Jerry in a 12-rounder at Las Vegas on June 27 on the same card when brother Mike Quarry challenges light heavyweight champion Bob Foster for his 175-pound crown. Ex-heavyweight king Ali, looking forward to a return match against the only man to beat him, heavyweight king Joe Frazier, says, "Quarry is a counter puncher, can hit and is fast. I won our first fight when he suffered a cut, where he wasn't cut before, and that might not happen again."

"So I'm risking everything in fighting him."

Yet Ali trained down to 217½ pounds for his winning 12-round effort last month against George Chuvalo of Canada at Vancouver and was about 224 for the Los Angeles workout. Trainer Angelo Dundee said, "I think he should come in between 217 and 220 and that should be good."

A throng of about 6,000 turned out at the Forum to watch Ali spar with heavyweight Charles James and light heavyweight Eddie Jones, both of Los Angeles. The ex-champ closed intermittently during a serious workout. Both sparring partners hit him. "I was deliberately taking punches," he said. "I might have to take a couple."

When a fan hollered, "Do it like Joe Frazier," in a shout to a sparring mate, Ali climbed out of the ring to feign an angry attack. And he took the microphone to introduce "Joe Frazier" only to quickly add, "Lady, I'm sorry, you look just like Joe Frazier."

And in the post-workout interview session, he started, "The sermon today will be the destruction of Joe Frazier."

A follower corrected him and he added, "I mean Jerry Quarry."

Ali said "my people and Frazier's people are negotiating" and then added, "While he's resting somewhere in North Carolina or South Carolina, I'm taking on all the contenders."

loaded with talent, confidence and pride, and it just wanted to show the people something."

Meanwhile, at the Astrodome, Dierker showed the Houston fans something, too, duplicating Jerry Reuss' one-hit effort against the Phillies Sunday. It was only the eighth time back-to-back one-hitters have been pitched.

The lone safety off Dierker, 6-4, was a third inning single by Duffy Dyer.

Houston scored twice in the seventh on run-scoring singles by Lee May and Tommy Helms, then added another run in the ninth on another RBI single by May.

Montreal's Bill Stoneman shut out the Cincinnati Reds on four singles, while Tim Foli and Ron Woods drove in the Expos' runs with sacrifice flies.

The Cubs posted their sixth straight victory and moved within 2½ games of the lead in the NL East when Glenn Beckert doubled home Don Kessinger in the 11th inning. Jim Hickman and Ron Santo had two-run homers for the Cubs while Garry Maddox hit a three-run blast for the Giants.

Reggie Smith clouted two home runs and drove in five runs and Sonny Siebert hurled a three-hitter as Boston whipped Texas. Siebert, 7-3, had a no-hitter until Ted Kubiak hit a pinch-double leading off the sixth inning. Rico Petrocelli and Danny Cater also homered for Boston.

Mike Epstein hit a pair of home runs, then drew a walk with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to force across the tie-breaking run for Oakland. Norm Cash hit his 15th homer of the season for the Tigers.

Van Deirse a surprise in net tourney

ROCHESTER, Minn. — Winona's Bill Van Deirse and his partner, Dave Peterson of Minneapolis, surprised the field by winning the doubles title in the Rochester Invitational Men's Tennis Tournament held here over the weekend.

Van Deirse and Peterson upset the top three seeded teams in the tourney en route to their doubles victory. In the opening round they disposed of Ken Barrell and Mike Dobrin by identical scores of 6-2, and in the second round they knocked off Duane Peterson and Bill Laurie of Winona 6-1, and 6-4, and in the quarter-finals they defeated the No. 3-seeded team of Dave Mathews and Tim Burke, 7-6, 6-7, and 6-2.

In the semi-finals, Bob Van Hoef and Mark Van Hoef fell victim to Van Deirse and Peterson by 6-4 margins, and in the finals, they upended the No. 1-seeded duo of Connie Custodio and Warren Swanson by scores of 6-4 and 7-6.

The triple play helped preserve a 1-0 victory for Peerless as Konkel pitched a one-hitter.

Stock prices climb higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices climbed moderately higher today. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 3.99 at 945.82. Advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange by nearly 3 to 2. Analysts said the upturn was due partly to technical factors, after the market's recent downward drift. Some analysts also cited hopes for progress in the meeting currently under way between presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger and Peking leaders.

Rails, steels, and rubber issues were off. Utilities were mixed, and most other groups were higher. A block of 74,500 shares of Bechtel Dickinson traded at 42, unchanged, and one of 99,700 shares of Leasco traded at 18 1/2, off 1/2.
