For White House aides

Nixon drops his protection

By BROOKS JACKSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate investigation is gaining momentum after President Nixon abandoned the blanket claim of innocence for White House aides.

Nixon said Tuesday he will send his aides to testify publicly as demanded by Senate investigators preparing for hearings next month.

He said he launched a new presidential inquiry into the matter last month, about the time Watergate burglar James McCord began telling his story to a Senate committee and a federal grand jury.

This time the President's inquiry is being conducted by persons outside the White House staff, some of whose members reportedly have been implicated in McCord's secret testimony.

In a related development,

Nixon's re-election committee was reported to have offered the Democratic party $525,000 in damages to settle a multi-million-dollar package of lawsuits over the Watergate raid. But Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss said he wouldn't accept any offer until it becomes clear that the affair will be aired sufficiently in public inquiries.

Nixon disclosed his actions in a three-minute statement to newsmen at the White House. No questions were permitted.

He said he met Sunday with Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen who gets reports of grand jury testimony.

"I can report today that there have been major developments in the case," Nixon said, "real progress has been made in finding the truth."

He wouldn't elaborate on the developments or name anyone who might be under suspicion. But he also said he has told investigators that no officials are exempt from prosecution, and said he'll suspend any government employee indicted in the case and fire anyone convicted.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said that supersedes Nixon's longstanding claim that administration officials have been cleared, because the latest statement stems from "serious charges" that Nixon said first reached him March 21.

The President's original claim was made more than seven months ago on Aug. 29 at a California news conference. Nixon said then that presidential counsel John W. Dean III had concluded an independent investigation of the burglary and wiretapping of Democratic offices at the Watergate building.

Nixon said then "categorically" that Dean's probe indicated nobody then in the White House or the administration was involved. However, reliable sources say McCord has testified that another conspirator, G. Gordon Liddy, told him that Dean himself helped plan illegal bugging and related activities.

Nixon now has abandoned his attempts to keep Dean and other White House aides off the Senate witness stand. He capitulated to demands by a special Senate investigating committee, headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., that presidential aides testify in public and under oath.

Ervin's hearings begin May 15, with live television coverage permitted. Nixon said television publicity wasn't a "central issue" behind his reluctance to allow testimony by his aides.

Nixon's statement brought murmurs of approval from Republicans, some of whom have warned of looming election disaster because of Nixon's handling of the affair.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland called it a "constructive decision." Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona said he was "very pleased." Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, head of the Republican minority on the Ervin committee, said it was "a great thing for the President to do." GOP National Chairman George Bush said it "will clear the air and lay to rest public suspicion . . ." Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York said it was "most welcome."

Recess may delay action on wage-price authority

By JOHN LENGEL
WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees have agreed on a compromise bill extending presidential authority to impose wage-price controls but Republican opposition in the House and the impending Easter recess leave the bill's future in doubt.

President Nixon's current authority to impose economic controls expires at midnight April 30 and Congress is due to quit today for its Easter recess, returning the morning of the 30th.

Meantime, House Republicans forecast a floor defeat for the compromise bill agreed upon Tuesday. Of the Republicans in the Senate-House conference committee, only one, Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, signed the version finally approved.

In the Senate, maneuvering over a voter-registration bill dominates the floor calendar with the bill's manager, Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., threatening to hold up all other legislation until he has agreement to vote on his bill first. Opponents have organized a filibuster against the bill, which would provide a postcard registration system.

Democratic Whip Sen. Robert Byrd said the wage-price bill won't be brought up until the day the authority expires, the day that Congress returns.

Some congressmen saw the bill as an opportunity for Congress to override the President's approaches to controlling inflation and unemployment by impoundment and cutbacks in approved programs.

But in each chamber, they lost on a lengthy list of amendments calling for everything from rolling back food prices and the prime interest rate to six-month freezes across the board.

The major control item left—and knocked out by the conferees—was a return to Phase 2 mandatory rent controls in most major metropolitan areas.

House Republicans refused to sign the compromise version, citing one provision that gives the president authority to allocate petroleum products. This is seen as working in favor of independent distributors against the big oil companies.

"This makes the president a czar over the oil industry," said Rep. Garry Brown, R-Mich., "the House will never accept this."

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., did not sign the report either. He had strenuously opposed the oil allocation amendment in committee and on the floor.

Authoritative sources said Lon Nol agreed to broaden the government under pressure from President Nixon, who sent the vice chief of staff of the U.S. Army, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., to Cambodia last week to assess the current communist threat to Phnom Penh.

U.S. officials in Washington were hopeful that Lon Nol would turn the government over to his former associate, Sisowath Sirik Matak, who is a relative of the deposed chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, and that Sirik Matak could get Sihanouk's supporters in the Khmer Rouge guerrilla army to the conference table.

But political observers in Phnom Penh said no matter who Lon Nol brings in, the Khmer Rouge won't negotiate so long as Lon Nol and his younger brother and chief adviser, Brig. Gen. Lon Non, retain control of the government.

Although Lon Non quit the cabinet earlier this month, his influence on the partly paralyzed president is undiminished.

Premier Hang Thun Hak submitted his cabinet's resignation Tuesday in accordance with a constitutional provision requiring reorganization of the government every six months.

There was speculation in Phnom Penh that the new cabinet would be headed by Hak, Minister of State Mau Say or Defense Minister Thapanna Ngin.

Security Council wants to condemn Israel, miss veto

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Security Council members sought a resolution today that would condemn Israel's raids into Lebanon and still survive the veto gauntlet of the United States, China and the Soviet Union.

British and French diplomats were reported working with Arab delegations to draw up a draft for submission to the council. A British spokesman said his delegation wanted it to include references to both the Israeli attack and to Palestinian guerrilla actions.

U.S. Ambassador John Scali made clear on Tuesday that he would veto any resolution that did not also condemn acts of terrorism by the Arab guerrillas.

"Violence by conventional forces and violence by terrorists are to be condemned equally," he said. "One is as ugly as the other."

But China and the Soviet Union have indicated they will veto any such double condemnation. Last fall, in a similar situation, both communist countries voted against a resolution "deeply deploring" all acts of violence in the Middle East.

Lebanese Ambassador Edouard Ghorra, who brought the complaint against Israel, said his government "completely rejects the idea of a so-called balanced resolution putting on the same level violence by states and individuals."

"We are not to be made the scapegoat and we categorically reject any attempt by anyone to make Lebanon responsible for acts which are conducted outside its territory or acts by individual Palestinians," he declared.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah pointed out that the council "has never in history adopted a single resolution condemning the murder of Israeli citizens."

Automobile antipollution to be costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency says the antipollution method chosen by U.S. automakers could cost the public up to $147 billion more in the next decade than available foreign engine designs.

"It's a pretty expensive option that the American auto industry has chosen," commented Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, when EPA officials disclosed their estimates Tuesday in hearings before his Air and Water Pollution subcommittee.

Muskie wondered why U.S. automakers had not, over the past 20 years, developed new engines instead of hanging on to their old designs and adding pollution clean-up devices after adoption of the 1970 Clean Air Amendments.

EPA and the National Academy of Sciences have found that three foreign engines can meet the U.S. law's original 1975 requirement for a 90 per cent reduction of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon emissions.

EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus last Wednesday suspended that standard for one year because U.S. automakers could not meet it.

Lon Nol agrees to open government

By LEE RUDAKIEWYCH
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — President Lon Nol has bowed to U.S. pressure and agreed to bring some of his opponents into the Cambodian government in an attempt to get cease-fire negotiations started with the communists.

"I will choose a new prime minister to lead the government with the participation of the opposition," the 59-year-old chief of the embattled Phnom Penh regime said in a broadcast Tuesday night.

Lon Nol said he would also appoint a new 11-man council of political advisers to include opposition Republicans and Democrats as well as members of his own Social Republican party.

Authoritative sources said Lon Nol agreed to broaden the government under pressure from President Nixon, who sent the vice chief of staff of the U.S. Army, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., to Cambodia last week to assess the current communist threat to Phnom Penh.

U.S. officials in Washington were hopeful that Lon Nol would turn the government over to his former associate, Sisowath Sirik Matak, who is a relative of the deposed chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, and that Sirik Matak could get Sihanouk's supporters in the Khmer Rouge guerrilla army to the conference table.

Nixon action

Oil import limits removed

By STAN BENJAMIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon removed oil import limits today in a wide-ranging energy proposal designed to end fuel shortages that plagued consumers last winter and gasoline shortages that threaten this summer.

In his message to Congress, Nixon also proposed to end federal price regulations on new supplies of natural gas. He offered a variety of measures, all aimed at assuring U.S. energy supplies for the future and avoiding over-reliance on foreign sources.

Nixon said deregulation of natural gas would permit prices of new gas to rise. But the consumer, he said, would be protected against sharp increases because existing supplies would remain at regulated levels until their contracts expire.

Nixon made no estimate, however, of the over-all consumer impact of his proposals, some of which would tend to increase prices while others would tend to decrease or stabilize them.

He warned that, if present trends continue unchecked with U.S. energy demand outracing new supplies, "we could face a genuine energy crisis."

"But that crisis can and should be averted," he said,

"for we have the capacity and the resources to meet our energy needs if only we take the proper steps—and take them now."

The most immediate step taken was his removal, by proclamation, of present quotas limiting imports of foreign oil.

He said oil importers could bring in as much as permitted under current quotas without paying further tariffs. He said they may, however, import petroleum in addition to the 1973 quota levels upon payment of a fee.

He said the tariff-free imports will be phased out over seven years until all oil imports are governed by the fee schedule.

In other major points of his message, Nixon asked Congress to deregulate the price control of new natural gas supplies on the interstate market by the Federal Power Commission.

The proposed legislation would authorize the Secretary of the Interior to monitor natural gas prices and impose a ceiling on them if necessary.

Prices already dictated by the FPC would remain unchanged.

The President directed the Interior Department to triple by 1979 its leasing of federal offshore areas for oil and gas development.

CAMBODIAN GOVERNMENT REORGANIZATION REPORTED IMMINENT . . . In Cambodia

Refugees live amid splendor

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — In a towering, temple-roofed hotel built by royalty to amuse the rich live 3,000 weary travelers who don't know when or if they will ever go home.

They are refugees, many of them fleeing from forces loyal to the man who ordered the hotel built — Prince Norodom Sihanouk. Some $8 million was spent on the Hotel Cambodiana before Sihanouk's successors ran out of money and work was suspended.

Sihanouk, Cambodia's first leader after it gained independence from France, was ousted in 1970 in a pro-Western coup led by the current president, Lon Nol. Sihanouk now lives in Peking.

Refugees from the war have arrived almost daily for the last eight months. Carrying straw mats, mosquito nets and a pot or two, they check in for an indefinite stay in the Cambodiana's bare cement lobby or two ground-floor galleries the size of football fields. The nonpaying guests are not allowed upstairs where 248 rooms look out over the capital's temple spires and the Mekong River. However they are free to use the two dry swimming pools, and their indoor campground is open to the river breeze.

It could be worse, says Mrs. Yin, 75, as she grinds up a chew of betel nut. She and her family of 12 have been driven from three homes in the last six months as fighting has closed around Phnom Penh.

Kheu Mout, a holy man with long hair, an off-the-shoulder robe and tattoos on the backs of his hands, says he wants to go back to Day Eth, 10 miles east of the city. But he is being patient.

As one who "can see across the heavens and into the hearts of men," he tells his listeners: "Even if all of Cambodia is destroyed, if two men are left alive the fighting will not stop."

Energy crisis to aid tourism?

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin's official tourism promoter says a national energy crisis could make the state's tourist attractions more inviting to short-trip travelers from neighboring states.

Burt Loken, tourism publicist for the Natural Resources Department, said the metropolitan areas of Minneapolis and Chicago are full of vacationers who would flock to Wisconsin's parks, lakes and woods if fuel shortages were to trim travel distances.

"It will mean more mini-vacations to Wisconsin tourist attractions," he declared.

"I can even envision a new popularity for two-week cottage vacations if the energy crisis curtails auto travel or makes it more difficult," he said.

His enthusiasm runs contrary to remarks by native environmentalists and economic researchers who contend the state's recreation facilities are being overworked during holiday periods by nonresident vacationers.

Loken, making his remarks during a convention of travel promoters, said Wisconsin is in a better position to cash in on the fuel crisis than are states located far from concentrations of urban hoards.

"We have built-in close-to-home markets for our tourist products, and thus are far better off than many isolated tourist areas," he said.

William D. Toohey of Washington, D.C., president of the group conducting the convention, said he concurs with Loken's forecast.

"I do not think the Wisconsin tourist industry has realized the full impact of the energy crisis or is aware as it should be," Toohey said.

Steve Salkis of Chicago, head of a firm which sells package tours for Wisconsin, said increased air fares and President Nixon's dollar devaluation have made foreign travel "no longer a bargain."

He said airlines' Wisconsin outlets ought not to promote travel to other states "when they have a natural built-in attraction here."

Loken said 98 per cent of Wisconsin's tourist trade is geared to the automobile.

Wisconsin road financing study is requested

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The issue of requiring Wisconsin vehicle owners to pay more for the upkeep of their highways has led the legislature's Joint Finance Committee to call for a special study.

At the suggestion of Sen. Walter Hollander of Rosendale, the committee agreed Tuesday to authorize a subcommittee to review the roles of existing tax revenue, government funds, mass transit, the state's highway construction policies and fiscal aid to municipalities and counties.

"The state has got to find some means, some new revenue structure to pay for bridge bonding, highway bonding or whatever," Hollander said.

A committee member said members of the panel are thinking in terms of producing $40 million more annually by increasing the car registration fee to $27, and adding a penny to Wisconsin's gasoline tax of 7 cents a gallon.

Democratic Rep. Raymond Tobiasz of Milwaukee said another plan under consideration involves revamping the registration fee system so that a car is assessed in accord with its purchase value.

The subcommittee is to report by May 25.

Hollander's motion also referred to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's proposal that state road aid to local government be held aside to accommodate state highway construction without a tax increase.

Legislators have predicted the proposed freeze would inspire enactment of a road money bill aimed at local and mass transit funds.

Robert T. Huber, Lucey's State Highway Commission chairman, said only 15 bridges can be expected under a 24-bridge, $35 million bonding program enacted in 1970.

Fund shortages have cut road construction plans to two-thirds of a $200 million highway plan of 1970, he said.

West Virginia governor vetoes bicycle ban bill

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. has vetoed a bill which some persons said would have virtually banned the sale of new bicycles in West Virginia.

The measure would have required that bikes sold after July 1, 1974, be equipped with specified reflectors, lights, reflectorized tires and other appliances. Critics said the bill required equipment which probably would not be available by the deadline, and that it favored one supplier.

Moore said in his veto message that he did not consider the deadline to be adequate and fair notice.

COLLAPSED WING . . . Structural engineers are still pondering what caused a portion of the Caledonia (Minn.) Community Hospital's northeast wing to collapse Sunday in the wake of torrential rains. Hospital personnel had about 10 minutes to evacuate the patients after they heard a loud

Lewiston man fined on charge in La Crosse

LA CROSSE, Wis. — An 18-year-old Lewiston, Minn., man was fined $59 in La Crosse County Court Monday after he pleaded guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Dannie W. Lewis reportedly admitted that on April 6, at the Blue Tiger Lounge here, he allowed a 17-year-old boy use his identification card in an attempt to get the boy into the tavern.

The attempt was frustrated by the checker at the door, who called police when the 17-year-old was unable to remember the middle name on the card.

Judge Eugene Toepel ordered a pre-sentence investigation by the Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services in the case of Michael W. Helm, 22, Elrick, after he pleaded guilty to a complaint filed by Assistant District Attorney Mark Lukoff. The complaint alleges that on Friday Helm had provided beer to a 16-year-old Holmen girl.

The complaint charges that after the girl's parents had reported her missing, Holmen Constable Paul Brown found her with Helm in Helm's car, drinking beer in a stone quarry at midnight.

Helm's sentencing was scheduled for May 14.

Three men pleaded innocent to charges of furnishing beer to minors: Ronald L. McPhetridge, 18, Galesville Rt. 2; Mark A. Waldenberger, 18, Hollmen, Rt. 2; and Alvin L. Waldenberger, 20, Holmen Rt. 2.

They were among eight persons accused of furnishing beer to minors at a party in a town of Onalaska residence March 23.

All three, who are represented by Attorney Peter Berg, were released without bond. Scheduling of their trials will be done at a later date.

SMOKE SEWERS

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Mayor Kidars-Nath Sahani of New Delhi suggested at an international mayors' meeting that cities build smoke sewers — underground pipe networks to channel industrial smoke outside the city limits.

Hospital collapse cause still unknown

CALEDONIA, Minn. — Caledonia Mayor Cy Reisdorf said this morning that it has not been determined whether the damage to the Caledonia Community Hospital will be covered by insurance since the cause of the collapse Sunday has not been made known.

Administrator Claude Kremer estimated the loss of the northeast wing of the brick building at $200,000.

MAYOR REISDORF said he intends to contact U.S. Rep. Albert H. Quie to ask if federal funds would be available to replace the wing, which was constructed in 1962 at a cost of $750,000.

Four of the nine rooms in the wing were destroyed when parts of the foundation, walls and ceiling gave way in the wake of torrential rains Sunday morning.

Patients were immediately removed to other sections of the hospital and a ditch was dug with the aid of heavy equipment to take the pressure off the building.

At a Tuesday evening council meeting, at the suggestion of the structural engineers, it was decided to do some shoring. Mayor Reisdorf said that during the next 24 hours all of the fill will be taken away from the northeast corner of the building, making it the same level as the fill beneath the building.

A temporary fire escape ramp will be constructed, added Reisdorf, since it is expected that the north wing will be put into service again.

"THERE'S nothing wrong with the north wing," he explained.

"Right now we're busy getting everything back into condition as best we can, after receiving approval from the state fire marshal, consulting engineers, insurance companies, underwriters, the architect, Smly Architectural Firm, Minneapolis, and the hospital board."

In attempting to determine the cause of the collapse, soil samples have been taken, said Reisdorf.

"We have to kinda feel our way along until we find out where we are at and what we are doing," Reisdorf concluded.

SHORT SPACE — LONDON (AP) — Britain has only 70 feet of road for each of its nearly 16 million vehicles, the Department of Environment reported.

Warner & Swasey gets worker award

For the second time in three years, Badger Division, Warner & Swasey Co., has been cited for employment of the older worker.

It received the Older Worker Citation Award at a dinner meeting of Leon J. Wetzel Post 9, American Legion, Tuesday evening. The presentation was made by Commander Stu Clemence to Charles L. Borsos, general manager.

Ray Brown, manager of Manpower Services here, said that his office had recommended Warner & Swasey for the award because about one-third of its 440 employees are older workers. By Department of Labor standards anyone over 45 is an "older worker."

It was also noted that nearly half of the Warner & Swasey employees are veterans.

By winning the Winona award, the firm will be entered in the statewide competition sponsored by the American Legion.

At the post's business meeting, 24 veterans were initiated by a team composed of Lucian Grupa, Bernard F. Boland, Maurice Godsey, Donald V. Gray, Harold Thielens and Adolph Bremer.

John Keiper, first vice commander, announced that the post has gone over its membership quota of 1,003. Social activities scheduled include a smelt feed May 12 and a suds party May 19.

Brigades, directed by Julia Denzer, performed. Delegates to the district convention May 18-20 at Albert Lea were elected. The post golf tournament will be at Westfield June 24.

Tributaries at crest, begin falling back

Most Winona area tributary streams and rivers were at crest today or slowly falling back from crest stages.

The Black River at Galesville, Wis., crested at 14.5 feet today, up 5 feet from Tuesday and 2 1/2 feet above flood stage there.

The Chippewa and Trempealeau rivers also were at crest today at Durand and Dodge, Wis., respectively.

After rising two feet since Tuesday at Durand, the river was at 9.6 feet, 1.4 feet below flood stage.

At Dodge the Trempealeau was 2.3 feet over flood stage at 9.3 feet, a rise of .4 foot since Tuesday.

Most other tributaries had crested and were receding.

Burglary studied at tavern near Bluff Siding

BLUFF SIDING, Wis. — The Buffalo County Sheriff's office is continuing its investigation of a burglary at the Four Mile Tavern, rural Fountain City, early Tuesday morning or late Monday night.

The proprietor, Ambrose Schwartz, told authorities that several 12-packs of beer were taken, two display cards of cigarette lighters, several packages of cigarettes, and an undetermined amount of change.

Entry was gained by tearing a screen off a window on the east side of the building and breaking the window pane.

Man accused of stealing pair of shoes

Local police are holding a 19-year-old man on a charge of shoplifting at the J. C. Penney Co., Highways 14 and 61. The man allegedly walked from the store wearing a pair of new shoes valued at $18.99.

George Karsten, East 5th and Chatfield St., reported the theft of several sheets of plywood at a total cost of $80.

Winona Police Chief Robert Carstenbrock reported further bicycle thefts:

• Todd Brewer, 965 W. Howard St., $50, stolen Saturday, 20-inch boys' model, black and yellow, license number 1431;

• Karen Schafer, 366 E. Mark St., stolen from Winona Senior High School, 28-inch Husky, green color, girls' type, license number 3940.

• Don Hebble, 1740 W. Broadway, $50, Monday night, Western Flyer, bluish-green, 26-inch girls' style, no license.

Charter member of city police reserves refires

Carlus Walter, Sugar Loaf, a charter member of the Winona Police Reserves, is retiring after 14 years of service.

The reserve force was organized in 1959 as the Civil Defense police auxiliary force to be called up in case of emergency. The reserve force now consists of 15 uniformed members under the leadership of Capt. John Erickson, Winona police department.

At the start of the organization, all work was done on a voluntary basis. Now, however, members of the reserve force receive a small fee when called to duty.

Gary Wiczorek, 730 E. 3rd St., a member for the past 2 1/2 years, has resigned from the unit and has accepted a position with the Forest Lake, Ill., police department. He is a graduate of St. Mary's College.

Four new members to be sworn in this evening are:

David Meyers, 25, Rollingstone, married and employed by the city of Winona;

Gary Gora, 23, 562 Hamilton St., married, employed by Nelson Tire Co.;

Eugene Kleinschmidt, 23, 207 W. Sarnia St., single, employed by Nelson Tire, and Philip Streng, 53, 462 High Forest St., married with four children, employed by Watkins Products, Inc.

Thomson to visit area communities

GALESVILLE, Wis. — U.S. Rep. Vernon W. Thomson, 3rd District Republican, says he plans to visit Galesville, Durand and Menomonie during the Easter week recess.

He said he will join the 1 p.m. "Show Me" housing tour of Trempealeau County next Tuesday, beginning at Galesville.

On Thursday he will speak to Durand High School students at 1 p.m. and to the Dunn County League of Women Voters at 7 p.m. in Menomonie, following Wednesday's visits to Genoa and La Crosse.

HRA doubts feasibility of Morgan Block arena

By DAVID C. McKAY
Daily News Staff Writer

Winona Housing and Redevelopment Authority (HRA) commissioners Tuesday night seemed to doubt a city council proposal to build a multi-purpose community center with ice arena in the downtown renewal project would work.

Meeting without vacationing chairman Dr. W. O. Finkelburg, the authority members discussed reports of a council version of an ordinance petitioned by the Winona Ice Association for a city-owned indoor ice arena. Under a council amendment, the arena is expanded to a multi-purpose center restricted to a site within the downtown project.

THE HRA consensus was that the area considered as the center site is too small to serve the purposes of a community center ice arena, plus a suggested parking ramp serving the center and project development.

"I think the city would have a real lemon on its hands if it tried to build a too-small facility," Royal G. Thern, acting chairman, said.

HRA executive director

George E. Mayer estimated that the city proposal amounts to putting a full-block facility on a small area of land so far intended for other uses. Thern said that inclusion of a parking ramp means a four- or five-acre facility apparently planned for a quarter-block parcel.

Mayer explained that the city council's amended ordinance is aimed at urging the project developer to include a center in his plans — if feasible.

If an HRA-approved developer rejects the center idea, it appears the Ice Association again would need to petition for an ordinance requiring the city to build an ice facility. So far, the association has not objected to the council version limiting site selection to Minn. Project R-51 but expanding use to a multi-purpose center.

HRA COMMISSIONER William Doerer said he supports the idea of a year-around, 24-hour use facility but not for a single purpose such as indoor ice.

Mayer told commissioners a strictly "cultural" center in the project could qualify for up to 25 percent federal credit on the city's commitment for project costs ($335,000 cash) and up to 12.5 percent on a shared facility. The ramp could qualify, he said, depending on its use by project development.

City councilmen are expected to decide on the ordinance next Monday night — two days before the 65-day deadline on required action on the association's petitions filed Feb. 20.

In other HRA action, First National City Bank of New York was awarded the $1.3-million project note issue for May 1 through Feb. 1, 1974, at 4.03 percent interest. Surplus funds will be reinvested to help pay off the new notes out of a present debt retirement budget of $151,000 for the life of the project.

The old note issue for about $1.4 million was let at 2.98 percent.

Commissioners also approved $600 final storage expenses for Valley Distributing Co. for its move out of the downtown renewal project area. The amount covers $100 a month for trucks rented for temporary storage.

MAYER AND his assistant renewal and housing directors have been authorized to attend the annual conference of the state chapter of the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials (NAHRO) at Duluth May 9-11. Doerer and Mrs. Robert Horton were appointed HRA representatives on a city cultural center committee suggested to work with councilmen on the multi-purpose center proposal. Other appointees are expected to be announced by the council.

No injuries in county crash

Winona County sheriff's office investigated an accident at 4:25 p.m. Tuesday in which no injuries were reported.

Carol Rae Michaels, Lewiston, Minn., in a 1972-model sedan, and Elmer Matzke, Rollingstone, Minn., driving a 1972 model farm tractor, were traveling west on CSAH 27 in Norton Township about 1 1/2 miles north of Bethany when the two vehicles collided.

The sedan received $200 damage to the right front. There was no damage to the tractor.

Area solons will support HRA bill

Both Winona area legislators said today they will try to get passage on a special bill to allow more city council control over the Housing and Redevelopment Authority (HRA).

Authority members Tuesday night took no official stand on the council's decision a night earlier to ask Sen. Roger A. Laufenburger and Rep. M. J. McCauley to amend a St. Louis Park bill allowing the council to act as an HRA, put councilmen on the authority or contract with other jurisdictions for HRA-type services.

Laufenburger, DFL-Lewiston, told the Daily News he planned today to speak with Sen. Robert B. Lewis, St. Louis Park DFLer and sponsor of S.F. 1377. He said he couldn't predict the outcome of voting on the bill filed three weeks ago but there seems a "good possibility" of passage, he said.

He added that it's not common to add a second city's name to a piece of so-called local legislation, and the amendment could affect lawmakers' decisions.

McCauley, Winona Republican, said he would try to arrange with St. Louis Park Republican Rep. Robert J. Mc-

Dakota boy hit by school bus

DAKOTA, Minn. — An eight-year-old Dakota child is hospitalized at La Crosse with injuries suffered when he apparently was run over by a school bus in the Dakota Elementary School parking lot this morning.

Injured in the accident at about 8 a.m. was Ronald Albrecht, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arlyn Albrecht, Dakota, and a pupil at St. John's Lutheran School, Nodine, Minn.

LATE THIS morning the child was reported to be in serious condition at St. Francis Hospital, La Crosse.

He reportedly suffered internal injuries but was said to be responding to treatment.

The youth was taken to the hospital by Praxel Ambulance Service, Winona.

A. L. Nelson, superintendent of schools of Winona Independent District 861, who went to Dakota immediately after being notified of the accident, said that the exact circumstances were not known at midmorning because there were no witnesses to the mishap.

Nelson said, however, that the Dakota School parking lot is an exchange point for students boarding buses for other schools, including St. John's.

PRELIMINARY investigation, Nelson said, indicated that the child apparently got behind a bus driven by Franklin Fitch Jr., Pickwick, while it was backing and may have been run over by one of the buses front wheels.

The Winona County sheriff's office reported that Fitch was also taken to St. Francis Hospital in a state of shock after the accident.

The superintendent noted that the parking lot is small and because of its size, buses are required to back out.

The Albrecht child, Nelson said, apparently was preparing to board a bus for Nodine when the accident occurred.

The child was taken by ambulance to the hospital and E. W. Mueller, assistant superintendent of schools for elementary education was at the hospital this morning checking on the child's condition.

At councilman's comments

Cable group disappointed

There were some discouraging words in the Winona Cablevision Committee meeting Tuesday night about its relationship to the city council, but members moved toward approval of three major recommendations for cable franchising.

Members heard Councilman Dan Trainor Jr. (1st, 2nd Wards), committee member, say, "What this committee says makes absolutely no difference. The council's going to decide this, and I'm saving my big guns for then."

A NUMBER of the members who have been meeting weekly since Jan. 8 to consider recommendations to council on a new or renewed franchise ordinance were stunned.

"That was a hell of a discouraging thing to say," College of Saint Teresa assistant professor Robert M. Knutzen said this morning. "They (councilmen) can abrogate anything we say."

Committee chairman Everett L. Edstrom said he was puzzled by Trainor's announcement during a meeting where members closely voted on recommending creation of a Cable Television Commission to oversee cable services and on limiting franchising to five years.

Edstrom said some members are wondering if their work is being wasted in committee and how much of the report on recommendations will be acceptable to councilmen.

THE WINONA Video Group, earlier a "resource" group to the committee, also plans to make its case after the committee report reaches council, according to project director Arthur C. Sturm Jr.

Members also told City Attorney George M. Robertson Jr. to rewrite a suggested ordinance provision on franchise fees to include an initial franchise fee to cover costs in writing an ordinance, an annual fee not to exceed 3 percent to cover city costs in regulating the franchise and provisions that the city council in the second and successive years should set the annual fee based on previous years' cost experiences.

Robertson is to present the rewritten section for committee consideration next Tuesday, and approval seems likely. There has been no fee charged on TelePrompTer Cable Services, Inc.'s franchise in the past.

Dr. James Spear, acting as committee secretary Tuesday, said two principles have been set: that the city should not charge the franchisee more than needed for regulation and that only cable subscribers should bear the costs to the city of regulation and working with the cable system.

About four-fifths of the community is on cable, and committee members want to prevent costs from being general tax burdens affecting non-subscribers.

The approved motion on a five-year franchise term overrode arguments for a 15-year ordinance by Jerry Papefuss, KAGIE Radio owner, and Trainor. Knutzen used Papefuss's three-year license through the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) as an argument against a longer term.

RADIO stations each triennial must renew their licenses and show proof of performance in the public interest, and Knutzen said, "That's all we're asking of the cable system — to serve this community."

Also approved was creation of a complaint review board to resolve subscriber complaints not satisfied by the franchisee or city staff. The city council, meanwhile, is to decide the responsibilities of the CATV commission to be formed as a standing committee.

Spear said the committee hopes the commission would coordinate local programming — the programming required of cable operators under FCC regulations and the separate local programming reserved for the community and out of the operators' control.

A Minneapolis Tribune report on a bribery case of a TelePrompTer executive in Johnston, Pa., was read into the committee record. The story dated Feb. 3 said Irving Kahn, former chairman and president of the company, was convicted in the case and jailed recently.

TelePrompTer's more than 720,000 subscribers make it the largest cable company in the nation.

Writers are getting grouchy

NEW YORK — Hollywood seemed to have gone bananas (when I left there a few hours ago) due to the writers' strike.
 When I got back to B'way, somebody said, "Johnny Carson's supposed to do his show in New York for 3 weeks starting May 7, but he may not be able to because of the writers' strike."
 An NEC executive heard the same rumor. But he was mystified because Johnny's a pretty good writer himself, and he probably could get by just ad-libbing for a week or two.
 But it was serious at Nate & Al's Delicatessen in Hollywood.
 The writers usually breakfast there. But some have been picketing at 6 a.m. That makes them grouchy.

"You can't get an egg cream without going back of the fountain and showing them how to make it," grumbled Milt Kamen.
 Milton Berle goes there along with Doris Day, Carl Reiner, Greg Garrison, Rip Taylor, Harvey Lembeck, Jay Burton, people like that. Berle recently referred to Nate & Al's accidentally as "the Stage."
 "His heart's back in the Stage Deli in NY," somebody said.
 "You mean his heart-burn's back in the Stage," Jay Burton said.

Back in NY, Debbie Reynolds, after doing "Irene," went to 21 for supper with old friend Glenn Ford and some other chums . . . Roosevelt Zanders, operator of the limousine service favored by the Roosevelts and John Wayne, was happy; President Nixon invited him to Sunday religious services at the White House . . . At the big new show at the Copacabana, the husky Hawaiian athletic singing, dancing star Dick Jensen got sexy and took off his shirt. I wished the lovely girl singers Cathy Carlson (of San Diego) and Tina Troy (of Honolulu) would have followed his lead but they didn't.
 George Segal was exclaiming about Marlon Brando's greatness and almost forgot to talk about his April 24 CBS drama, "The Lie," by Ingmar Bergman.

Butz: price rollback talk is all political

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says some congressmen favor price rollbacks only because they are trying to appease irate consumers and make "political hay" back home.
 Butz, in a speech Tuesday, said also that Nixon administration strategy does not call for dismantling all farm programs as charged by some critics. The game plan, however, does include a phase-out of direct income supplement payments to farmers.
 The food price resistance of housewives cannot be ignored, Butz told the Newspaper Farm Editors of America, but larger farm production is the administration's answer, not price rollbacks.
 Attempts to roll back prices and wages failed in the House Monday. Instead, the House extended for one year the authority for the President to set economic controls.
 "All the hassle is because there is political hay in imposing controls, in imposing rollbacks that won't work," Butz said.

Butz said voters somehow think prices are made in Washington and that Congress can decree how much sirloin steak or other items will cost.
 "Now I don't think the average member of Congress is so stupid to believe that. Most of them aren't. But in this town the strongest urge is survival," the secretary said.

Butz said government farm payments of $4 billion last year were too high and that new legislation is needed to allow the phase-out of income supplements paid to growers. Total payments, because of less land being idled, are expected to be about $2.5 billion in 1973.

 He said the basic structure of the current Agricultural Act of 1970, including price support loans and "set-aside" acreage features, should be retained.
 Chairman Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., of the Senate Agriculture Committee, told the farm editors Monday night that the Nixon plan to make farmers compete in a free market for larger incomes is the "height of folly" and unworkable.
 Talmadge predicted that the Senate, despite a rough road ahead, would pass a farm bill this year which will include farm income guarantees.

The judge of Jesus—Part III

There are troubles in Jerusalem

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third installment in a five-part Easter series about Pontius Pilate, governor of Judea, the judge of Jesus. It is based on biblical and historical sources.)

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Like scattered brush fires, the emergencies seemed to hit at various points in Jerusalem at about the same time. Roman troops already had been concentrated on one violent outbreak when Jesus made his surprise foray at the Temple.

Now another matter, a secret, night-time ambush, had to be arranged. It was a hectic time for Pontius Pilate.

Planning and directing his moves from his sectarian office, the governor received a steady stream of messages and dispatched runners to military units deployed through the city. Arrests mounted. One detachment had smashed an uprising in which several died, capturing its rebel ringleader, Barrabas.

It was the Jewish Passover week and the city bulged with outlanders and national religious fervor, a time that always seemed to whip native antagonism to the foreign military occupation to a flashpoint.

Pilate's forehead beaded with sweat as he faced the multiplying succession of problems and rapped out orders for trying to staunch them.

From turrets atop the Tower of Antonia, overlooking the Temple square and adjoining Pilate's chambers, Roman sentries watched the onslaught led by Jesus. Swinging a braided livestock whip, he overturned coin-exchange tables, merchandising booths and sheep pens, driving out the dealers, animals, tourists and watchmen alike.

Mark's gospel reports "he would not allow anyone to carry anything" through the area, blocking all traffic and bringing the bustling trading center to a standstill. How long he held it and whether his apostles or others took part in the action are not specified.

Nor is it indicated whether he attained his objective, or if some other purpose was sought, such as removal of the Rome collaborating Temple oligarchy. "My house shall be called a house of prayer, but you have made it a den of robbers," he charged.

Pilate, presumably informed at once of the affair, did not immediately intervene militarily, either because he lacked sufficient reserves at the moment, with troops heavily engaged elsewhere, or because the demonstration evoked such strong popular support that he deferred counteraction until he could devise circumstances more to Rome's diplomatic advantage.

Artifice was his specialty as shown on several historically recorded reprieves in which he used deceptive techniques. Furthermore, he already had been reprimanded at least once by the emperor Tiberius for highhandedness. There were more cunning ways to block Jesus' movement.

In any case, that the demonstration succeeded even temporarily in vacating the huge Temple plaza, always congested and doing rush business at festival time, suggests that the disruption assumed far more powerful proportions than are detailed by the gospel narratives.

It was an assault on the hub of the province's financial, cultural and religious establishment, essential to Pilate's maintenance of colonial peace and profit.

The Temple police, employed by the Rome-appointed high priest Caiaphas and regularly posted about the courtyards and porticoes of the massive sanctuary apparently had been swept aside along with the other Temple functionaries. However, biblical accounts make clear why the Temple administrators also had withheld action against Jesus at that time.

"They feared the people," the accounts say. "They feared the multitudes. They did not find anything they could do, for all the people hung upon his words." The people themselves marveled, "Is not this the man whom they seek to kill? And here he is, speaking openly, and they say nothing to him."

Pilate necessarily kept up close liaison with the ruling Temple party, the pragmatic, wealthy Sadducees. Ancient noncanonical accounts detail extensive conversations between him and Caiaphas. The Scriptures indicate that he put pressure on the Temple leaders to cooperate in dealing with Jesus or face replacement by Rome as incompetent to cope with the situation.

As one remarked, in John 11:48: "If we let him go on thus, every one will believe in him, and the Romans will come and destroy both our holy place and our nation." High priest Caiaphas added that it was expedient "that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation should not perish," meaning their civil-religious jurisdiction under Roman supervision.

Pilate knew they were hated almost as intensely as Rome itself because of their collaboration with it and dependence on it for their offices.

However, they provided a handy mediatory tool for Pilate in exercising his power. In controlling Temple worship, they held the reins of a tradition dear to the people, despite their bitter aversion to the officeholders themselves.

The governor, tense and harassed by the torrent of cries, fumed at the confused, changing reports brought to him in a constant round of briefings and decisions. Repeatedly, he cut his aides off short, questioning, upbraiding, demanding further steps to shore up security and implement plans.

To him, the whole city, with its strange religious passions, seemed an utter madhouse, a bedlam of discordant factions and uncertainties, of steaming holiday crowds, dust, hawkers, reeking streets, rickety freight carts, bleating animals and that festering tent city of thousands outside the walls, camping out there in a dingy glut of smoke, smells and undoubtedly incendiary conversations.

Slapping his "vitus" staff on the table before him, Pilate ordered additional patrols around that rustic encampment, many of its occupants being hot-tempered, revolutionary hill folk.

So far as he could make out from the information brought him, the flareup of revolt instigated by Barrabas was thoroughly repressed with an unknown number of casualties. Barrabas, son of a rabbi, and other surviving insurrectionists were in prison. Mark's gospel, in noting their capture, does not specify their numbers.

The scene of the uprising remained a danger zone, however, and Pilate kept extra troops posted there. Violent resistance by those highly religious Zealots, battlers for Israel's independence whom Rome called Sicarii, had plagued the conquering regime ever since Roman procurators took over the province in 6 A.D., eventually leading to devastating war.

Whether any Zealots were involved in Jesus' short-lived takeover of the Temple square is not stated. In any case, armed insurgents and fighters against Rome, were among those filling the jails of Jerusalem as that Passover week neared its climax.

With some relief, Pilate noted that the Temple square had quieted down and returned to some semblance of normalcy. His main concern now was to avoid further outbursts in the keenly volatile atmosphere, in part by covertly and quickly silencing the fiery, crowd-swaying Jesus.

The saving "messiah," some called him, "Christos," the "anointed," implying some royal mantle dangerous to Rome. He claimed some special kinship to the Jewish God. Peasant throngs in Galilee had tried in vain to crown him at once — reports of which probably had reached Pilate.

An old book, the Sybilline Oracles, perhaps known to the Romans, contained a lengthy Jewish prayer for destruction of the heathen occupation government and anointing of a new, righteous king.

"A holy king will come and reign over all the world," the prayer went. "His wrath will follow on the people of Latium and Rome will be destroyed to the ground. O God . . . let the Romans perish . . . When will the day come . . . ?"

Pilate agreed with the high priest Caiaphas that the arrest should be made quietly with as little public notice as possible, and that the trial should be held immediately to forestall any groundswell of opposition. Also, the Temple officials should arrange some show of support for the prosecution.

The man's wildly celebrated entry into the city, the rampage at the Temple and the surging enthusiasm he engendered for some so-called "kingdom of God" only confirmed the need for eliminating him.

Pilate affirmed the arrest warrant for sedition and passed it to a military tribune to carry it out. Luckily, according to word from Caiaphas, a defector from Jesus' band had offered to give directions to its late-night meeting place.

"There may be resistance," Pilate advised. "We are told some of the men are armed. Be prepared for it." The officer struck his chest with his fist in salute and spun about.

The fact that a Roman military detachment, described as a "cohort" in the gospel of John, was assigned to the mission indicated clearly that it was initiated by Roman authority, that Pilate as head of the military occupation forces ordered the arrest and put his seal of approval on the charge, whether verbal or written.

The majesty of imperial Rome, as represented by its legions in the person of Pilate, simply did not act on any authority but its own. Whatever the complicity, plottings or servile urgings of Caiaphas and his Sadducean priestly colleagues as portrayed in gospel narratives, Roman soldiers would not have moved in the case except on orders of their superior, Pontius Pilate.

A cohort, commanded by a tribune, normally numbered 600 men. However, in ancient accounts as well as in modern military parlance, the designation of a unit often is used when it is short of its full complement. It seems unlikely that an entire cohort would have been considered necessary or used to arrest one man, but even if the actual number was less, the term still would be applicable, and also suggests the gravity with which Pilate viewed the matter.

In actuality, the arrest party did meet momentary armed resistance — in the swinging of the apostle Peter's sword. But Jesus quickly stopped it. "Shall I not drink the cup which the Father has given me?"

Representatives of the Sadducean priests and Temple police also were on hand for the arrest near an abandoned oil press on a wooded mountainside outside the city. They even were allowed by the Roman commander to take the bound Jesus before Caiaphas and his associates for questioning prior to the trial, probably because of their willing cooperation in the case.

Their participation had been helpful, would be additionally useful at the ensuing trial, and was worth according some favor in the preliminary stages — a bargain easily on the side of Pilate.

But it was the governor who authorized the complaint, who dispatched Roman troops to make the arrest and whose institution of the case is overwhelmingly confirmed by his being ready personally to adjudicate it as the first item of business at an extraordinary early hour next morning.

Logging in BWCA may be prohibited

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A federal judge says there is a "strong possibility" that further logging in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA) will be entirely prohibited or restricted to non-forest lands.

U.S. District Judge Miles Lord said in an opinion filed Monday that if the U.S. Forest Service concludes that logging destroys the primitive character of the northern Minnesota wilderness, it "must act to halt such logging."

The 80-page opinion strengthens an order issued by Lord on Feb. 2 in a case brought by the Minnesota Public Interest Research Group against the federal government and several logging and paper companies.

The order banned logging in the BWCA except in about 600 acres. The cutting was halted, pending completion of a management plan and accompanying environmental impact statement by the forest service. The case is being appealed.

Lord said evidence "clearly showed that logging destroys the primitive character of the area" and that the 1969 National Environmental Policy Act mandates that the BWCA be maintained in its present state.

MPING favors the use of controlled burning to maintain the ecology of the BWCA. The private defendants had argued that logging, followed by certain methods of reforestation, can do the same thing.

Lord cited three reasons why complete restoration of logged forests to their natural state is not possible.

the ground would be lost in the removal of trees, making the new growth less luxurious. Stumps left by logging remain as long as 50 to 100 years before they rot away, he said, and logging roads and skid trails remain as long as 15 to 20 years despite efforts to eradicate them.

Some 3,000 acres are involved in the lawsuit. Lord said that while 3,000 acres might not seem large in relation to the million acres in the BWCA, the main virgin forests of the area total only 520,000 acres.

He said he was concerned about the "nibble effect" by which a tract of timber in virgin forest is sold, and later that fact is used to justify further sales in the same area.

The impact statement is expected to be ready by late May or early June.

Golda Meir upset with some on import stands

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli Premier Golda Meir has expressed some criticism for those in her country who have a carte blanche attitude toward imports.

She told an interviewer "with what delight we swallow everything that comes from abroad." "God help anyone who criticizes something," she threatened, hit songs, clothing. Mrs. Meir said, "I look at my friends and I notice their sideburns are getting longer. Why? Because someone in the world decided it's nicer that way. And someone in Paris decided that skirts above the knees are nicer."

The millennium: school's out and for good!

We have good news today for all those boys and girls who wonder why they "hafta go to school."

There is now, boys and girls, a group of people who are seriously asking if there's any point in going to school. As you know it's not only your parents, but government itself, which says that you must go to school five days a week from September to June, at least until you're 16 years old — whether you're learning what you want or need to learn, or, for that matter, whether you're learning anything at all. You got to be there, your body at least.

SO AN OUTFIT called the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions — which makes a practice of asking daring questions about things we assume to be true — and the Center for Policy Study of the University of Chicago are asking the breathtaking question: "Is there any point to public education?" In short, why go to school.

The man in charge is a familiar name, and an old man by your standards, Robert M. Hutchins, former president of the University of Chicago and now director of the democratic institutions center. He puts the fundamental question this way (you will need some learning to understand it):

"The political community should be required to justify the prolonged detention of its citizens in an educational system. We need to answer the question whether public education is any longer useful. If so, on what terms? If not, what is the alternative?"

To the people they've gotten together to justify our huge academic establishment and the way it works, they've posed a long series of hard-nosed questions. They've separated them into two groups. The first group of questions is aimed at government: The heart of that group is: "Should the primary concern of education be the creation of a political community?" That gets you into, say, economics. Are the schools the best place for job training? Are reading and writing and arithmetic all that important that we should spend so much time on them? Why should we spend so much time and effort on the hard learners? For what purpose? Should we instead spend more effort on improving their home situations? Another thing, should schools be concerned with values, loyalties and character and, if so, which ones? The same ones for all kids? If education is so all-fired important why does it come to such a screeching halt so early in life? Etc.

The second group of questions is addressed to the educational community. Why should the teachers and administrators restrict themselves to what the political community wants? Should they have some responsibility to, say, the church, the family, industry, the professions, to institutions not yet devised? Another thing, should schools throw away their molds and encourage more individual molds? So the little boy doesn't want to be doctor, lawyer or candlestick maker. Can his fantasies and goals be accommodated? Should they be?

WELL, ENOUGH questions, boys and girls, to show you that adults are at least thinking about changes in schools and, in the process, exposing themselves to such perplexing choices as how to maintain "a maximum of the propinquities among socioeconomic classes and ethnic groups if these are threatened by the dual emphasis on maximizing the educability of the deprived, least-schooled segments of our population and (correcting) environmental deprivations most deleterious and most capable of correction."

It's enough to drive a man to school. — A.B.

Rehabilitation vs. bulldozer

"Prior to 1963, the city's future looked bleak. It had lost its sawmill and railroad payrolls. Many buildings in the business area were vacant, and the property values were declining."

Sound familiar?

"The first move came in 1964 when the annual autumn leaf festival was started. Within four years this developed into an event which brought 20,000 persons during late September and early October (which proves that the tourist season doesn't necessarily end after Labor Day.) 1972 attendance was estimated at 25,000 and taxable sales of $279,000 were reported during the nine-day festival.

"In 1964 also, the merchants decided to remodel the downtown buildings using a Bavarian Alpine theme appropriate to the mountain setting. The results have been dramatic. Between 1965 and 1970 there was a 35.6 percent increase in assessed valuation, compared to a 10.4 percent increase from 1960 to 1965. Total bank deposits, a good indicator of business activity, increased 51.3 percent from 1965 to 1970, compared to an increase of 11.8 percent from 1960 to 1965.

"Today there are no vacant buildings in the downtown business section. One building that was vacant for more than 30 years now is producing an annual income of $10,000 for its owner. Hardware sales have increased 36 percent since 1965. During the same period, drug store sales increased by 47 percent, and restaurant sales are 60 percent higher. One gift shop reported an 82 percent increase in business in just two years. Fifteen than 100 new homes have been built in and near new businesses have been established and more the city. By capitalizing on the tourist potential, community leaders have made the city a tourist destination worthy of consideration on its own merits rather than just a small town to drive through on the way to Wenatchee."

The city is Leavenworth, Wash., population 3,500. — A.B.

Time to end our own war

From an address by Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, assistant to the President for national security affairs in Washington:

For years, one of the shibboleths of our political debate has been that with the end of the war in Vietnam we could restore our priorities and recover our unity.

It is true that during the war debate dissolved increasingly into a sterile chant of competing liturgies. But the end of the war has produced a strange lassitude and uncertainty. Combatants have been reluctant to leave the trenches. The habits of confrontation have proved hard to overcome. We had clung to our divisions so stubbornly that we seem anchorless without them. And we have grown more conscious of what we seek to prevent than of what we should strive to achieve.

SOMEDAY, I suspect sooner than we think — the tactical debates will be forgotten or seem irrelevant. But some of the deeper scars linger. We have been shaken by the realization of our fallibility. It has been painful to grasp that we are no longer pristine — if we ever were. Later than any nation, we have come to the recognition of our limits.

In coming to a recognition of our limits, we have achieved one of the definitions of maturity. But the danger is that we will learn that lesson too well — that instead of a mature recognition that we cannot do everything, we will fall into the dangerous and destructive illusion that we cannot do anything. Nothing is more urgent than a serious, dare I say compassionate, debate as to where we are going at home and abroad. Technicians cannot master revolutions; every great achievement was an idea before it became a reality. Cathedrals cannot be built by those who are paralyzed by doubt or consumed by cynicism. If a society loses the capacity for great conception, it can be administered but not governed.

I first saw government at a high level in the early 1960s — at a time which is now occasionally debunked as overly brash, excessively optimistic, even somewhat arrogant. Some of these criticisms are justified. But a spirit prevailed then which was quintessentially American: that problems are a challenge, not an alibi; that men are measured not only by their success but also by their striving, that it is better to aim grandly than to wallow in mediocre comfort. Above all, government and opponents thought of themselves in a common enterprise — not in a permanent, irreconcilable contest.

THE WORLD NEEDS our idealism, our faith and our purpose. In this respect the spirit of the early 1960s was more nearly right and some of the present attitudes are dangerous. In the 1920s we were isolationists because we thought we were too good for this world. We are now in danger of withdrawing from the world because we believe we are not good enough for it. The result is the same and the disastrous consequences would be similar.

So it is time to end our civil war. To be sure, we should leaven our optimism with a sense of tragedy and temper our idealism with humility and realism. But only as we regain a sense of direction can we heal our nation's spirit and recover our unity — the unity which is the prerequisite for mastering the future and overcoming the wounds and divisions of the recent past.

Optimism in world affairs

Anthony Lewis

United States. The old abusive rhetoric is pretty well faded, giving way not to euphoria or to a pretense that U.S. and Soviet objectives are the same but to a mood of self-interest — which is to say enlightened — realism.

I FOUND discussion of the nuclear weapons race particularly interesting. I heard the subject of strategic arms limitation discussed by a number of Soviet intellectuals, some only generally aware of the problems and some professionally interested. The concerns they expressed, the dangers and opportunities they saw, were realistic ones — and not all that different from the views to be heard among equivalent Americans.

There was sophisticated awareness of the siren lure of arms technology — the political difficulty of saying no to ingenious new ideas for improved weaponry. One person put it, "We cannot allow the technical 'sweetness' of some solution to impose not only the economic burden of a destabilized arms situation but the real danger."

The problem at the heart of the second round of strategic arms talks, controlling not only the quantity but the quality of offensive weapons, was discussed in dispassionate terms. Two Russians, in separate conversations, suggested that on-site inspection was really the only way to verify limits on qualitative improvement. They said U.S.-Soviet relations had not reached the level of trust required to permit such mutual inspection, which the Russians have always opposed, but might some day.

It was possible to discuss in general terms, idea for trading off areas of current weapons superiority, the United States in MIRV's and the USSR in huge missiles, to limit further improvement or even roll back numbers. One person described as "sensible" the idea of an over-all limitation on Soviet and American deliverable nuclear destructiveness, however the warheads were delivered.

NONE OF THIS suggests that it will be easy to reach agreements in SALT II. There are undoubtedly differences between Soviet intellectuals studying arms control and military leaders as great as between American civilian and military viewpoints, and the problems are intellectually difficult.

The point is only that one senses a real intellectual effort going on in Moscow in the arms field, and one related to the desirability of agreement with the United States. Of course the Russians will try to bargain for advantage. But in some places there clearly is an understanding of the limits on advantage in strategic weapons, and a powerful appreciation of the economic and political burden a continuing arms race would impose.

In arms and others issues to be negotiated with the United States, what is fundamental to the Soviet Union is to be treated as an equal. President Nixon's great contribution to the search for international stability has been the acceptance of that principle. Some Americans remain skeptical that the Soviet leadership really accepts it militarily; they suspect a continued desire for preponderance in arms. The Russians, for their part, seem apprehensive of being dealt with condescendingly in the other large area opened up by the new relationship: economics and trade. But that is a complex social and political problem that requires separate treatment.

A new columnist

get the feel of this place.

On flackery: A young nervous aide of Henry Kissinger's called me one day a couple of years ago to ask a strange question: "What does the word 'flack' mean?"

I was gratified to be consulted on a matter of meaning and etymology, a lifelong field of interest, but I had learned the first rule of bureaucratic survival: Never give out information without first finding out why it is being sought. So I misinterpreted the question and replied, "The word 'flak' is an acronym coined in World War II to describe anti-aircraft fire, from the German words flieger abwehr, kanonen."

Moments later, the aide called back to say "Dr. Kissinger says he doesn't need you to teach him German, but a columnist just called him 'an administration flack' and he wants to know whether he should take offense."

With that background tucked away for use, I passed along the current usage of "flack," an apologist, or paid proponent with a usually pejorative but occasionally madcap connotation. To cheer Henry up, I added that the role, if not the word, could be an honorable one — a skilled advocate was needed to explicate policy — but when I saw him next, he gloomily informed me, "I decided to take offense." Perhaps I will, too, someday — but not for a while.

The address at Taxburg

Russell Baker

WASHINGTON — Taxation today is one of the most delicate arts of government. It has come a long way from the old days when governments used to break into your house in dead of night, point shotguns at your wife and children and say, "We want it all."

There was no finesse in those crude methods. Tax collectors were so ashamed of their work that when the neighbors asked what they did for a living they would lie and say they were hangmen.

THIS ALL ENDED after the infamous day of terror in Dallas which is still remembered as "Black April 15." On that day, six inexperienced young tax collectors accidentally collected taxes from more than 20 of the President's biggest campaign contributors.

In the crisis that followed, banks closed and yachts began jumping out of skyscraper windows until the President restored confidence by asserting his firm belief that the only thing we had to fear was taxation itself.

Fortunately, Robert Fulton had just invented the powerful House Ways and Means Committee. Racing a salaried wage-earner up the Hudson River, it had easily passed him at 96th Street and crept out of the river at the Bronx, where it waylaid him and withheld 20 percent of his paycheck at the source.

The cheers in Wall Street soon faded, however, when Fulton's invention crept out of the water at the Battery one night, kidnapped a municipal bond and demanded a 20 percent tax on its earnings. The President refused to deal with kidnappers, and the kidnapped bond was later found floating off a Hoboken pier, trussed tightly with Form 1040. It had been severely taxed.

PUBLIC OUTCRY against exemptions threatened to bring on the American Revolution until the President, reading a speech he had scribbled on the back of an old estimated income tax form, calmed the nation with his immortal Taxburg Address's concluding lines — "You can tax some of the people all of the time, but you can't tax some other of the people any of the time."

It was this speech that started the great waves of immigration from Europe. Among the loophole-starved millions drawn to America by stories of streets paved with oil depletion allowances and capital-gains killings were John Connally, General Motors and tiny but heroic little Delaware.

With the tyrant's heel of taxation lifted from the land, there was music in the saloons and dancing girls in the cow towns all along the frontier, where, because of the incentive of the cow depletion allowance, daring American entrepreneurs were exploring for and discovering new cows at a prodigious rate.

THEN — THE DAWN of a new age! Einstein's formula, E equals MC squared, led to the building of the tax shelter. This blessing was also a curse, because it made it increasingly difficult to find people who were taxable.

As always, however, America found great men to do her work. One of the greatest was the immortal Taxpayer Bill who, when just a small boy, began roaming the country on his great white computer rounding up salary-earners whose incomes were still taxable.

When Bill gets a full herd he drives them up the Abilene Trail to Washington where the gloating and celebrating are obscene.

The President says it is foolish to want to change this way of doing things. The President is always right, except James Buchanan.

An educational disaster area

If you think things are tough in your local schools, you ought to see what's going on in California these days. People have been telling me for almost a year now that education in the Golden State has taken on some pretty horrendous overtones, so the other day I went out to see for myself.

months back I noted and duly reported to you the results of the 1971-72 California reading tests. After years of steady improvement, the bottom fell out and the scores went almost off the bottom of the charts. But this, it seems, was only the beginning.

JUST BEFORE Christmas last year, principal Sidney A. Thompson of Los Angeles Crenshaw High School appeared desperately for help to the county board of supervisors. He referred to his school as "Fort Crenshaw," reminding his hearers that it is currently enclosed by a steel-mesh fence with grimly padlocked gates and piled for a major augmentation of his present patrol of three armed guards.

Thompson's teachers are locking their classrooms from the inside, many students are scared stiff to attend school at all and all-night dances and athletic events have had to be scrubbed because of packs of punks who periodically terrorize the campus.

"For teachers and students alike," said the embattled principal, "the issue is no longer learning, but survival."

Thompson was joined at the wailing wall by fellow administrator Eugene McAdoo of nearby Washington High School: "Security on our campuses is the problem in our schools today. Some of our young people should be in institutions."

WELL, AT least the youthful thugs should be kicked out of allegedly educational institutions, or so it seems to mean to old unregenerate me. Which in turn evokes the question: "Why the heck aren't they?"

Come on, Sid and Gene and all your ilk, wherever you are. Expel these creeps who turn education into a farce. Protect the decent kids whose right to learn is being denied. Start with about 50 of the worst offenders, and then work up from there.

"How many?" I hear you asking worriedly.

As many as necessary, friends. Your alternative is to shut up shop altogether, and in this connection California voters and taxpayers may do exactly that to their public schools. While I was out there recently, Gov. Ronald Reagan signed legislation allowing middle-income parents who enroll their children in private schools to deduct $125 from their state income tax. This may be the first step in a general exodus from the distracted public school system into the sanctuary of the private schools.

A POIGNANT but pertinent commentary on the whole California mess has now been furnished by an 18-year-old San Francisco resident who has filed a $1 million damage suit against his local school district and the state superintendent of public instruction.

Grounds: He can neither read nor write above a fifth-grade level, although he is the not-so-proud possessor of a graduation diploma from the Bay City's Galileo High School.

Result: the anguished alumnus can't get a job doing anything but digging ditches, and he figures the folks who failed to educate him owe him a bundle.

I doubt if he'll collect much, but I can't help but sympathize with the poor guy. Seems he's not stupid, either. Since leaving the public school with that sham sheepskin, he has been learning to read just fine via private schooling, thank you.

IF SOME late bunch of jury-men does decide to award the plaintiff some of the long green, you can then look for an exodus of quite another kind, this time of stampeding school superintendents leaving their profession. After all, if students start collecting cash from school administrators who tolerate illiteracy among their graduates, an awful lot of my colleagues are going to go broke in a hurry.

Funny. When I used to be, a California school superintendent, I got sued by a lot of people for a lot of reasons, but never for giving a diploma to an illiterate. I can't remember it happening to any of my fellow administrators, either.

Maybe it's because if a kid couldn't read, we wouldn't let him graduate.

Valley Riders Saddle Club: separate group

We want to clear up a misunderstanding that the general public, area businesses and the newspaper seem to have about our organization, the Valley Riders Saddle Club, Inc. Whenever I mention something about our club to people, they answer with, "Oh yes, that's that stable out in East Burns Valley." Perhaps, because of the similarity of the names, it is confusing.

The Valley Riders Saddle Club has no connection with Big Valley Ranch other than that the owner and a few people who board there are club members and the club sometimes uses their facilities. However, we also use the facilities of Garvin Heights Ranch, Sahapin Farm and the Circle G Ranch and we also have members who have horses at these places. What is even more important, most of our members keep their horses at their own homes, and we have members from Lewiston, Plainview, Fountain City, Bluff Siding, Dakota, Minnesota City, Rushford, Altura and La Crosse as well as Winona.

It is our hope from now on that when our club's name is mentioned, it will be given due recognition and not confused with a privately owned organization.

We are in no way criticizing the public, area businesses or the newspaper for this misunderstanding for we can see how this confusion might come about.

O'Konski sees little hope for improvement

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Alvin E. O'Konski, who spent three decades in the House of Representatives, says he is pessimistic about the chances of Congress improving its character.

The House chaplain, he said, "looks at the Congress and prays for the country."

O'Konski, 68, a northern Wisconsin Republican, lost re-election in November. He chatted Tuesday with students and newsmen at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, where he is lecturing for three days.

Asked by a student if he thinks Congress can reply to President Nixon's "contempt," O'Konski cited the failure of House efforts earlier this week to substitute its own price-control programs for an extension of Nixon's economic powers.

Congress, he said, "shirked when it got a chance to assert its powers, and once again turned the work over to Nixon."

A key to congressional weakness, he said, is the cost of an election campaign which makes a candidate vulnerable to wishes of donors.

"More and more members of the Congress and the Senate are people who have sold out before they even take their oath of office," he said.

A re-election campaign needs $100,000 from contributors, he estimated, asking: "What chance would you have in unseating an incumbent with those built-in resources?"

O'Konski, who lost to Democratic Rep. David R. Obey after their districts were merged, related having played poker with Nixon when Nixon was a congressman.

O'Konski called Nixon "a very slow, very calculating individual, and a very good friend if you were his friend."

Top Illinois Democrat given three-year term

CHICAGO (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has sentenced Edward J. Barrett, a longtime top Democratic vote getter, to serve three years in prison and fined him $15,000 for bribery, mail fraud and income tax evasion.

Judge Richard B. Austin rejected a plea for leniency Tuesday for the 73-year-old former Cook County clerk, saying, "I believe a deterrent has a place in administering a sentence and in cases where a defendant has committed a major white-collar crime, and is dealt a slap on the wrist, no good can come of it."

However, Austin said he took Barrett's age and deteriorating health into consideration in toning down the government's recommendation that Barrett be given a five-year sentence and a $25,000 fine.

The maximum punishment could have been 93 years in prison and $106,000 in fines. Barrett is eligible for parole at any time at the discretion of the federal parole board, Judge Austin said.

Barrett was sentenced to three-year terms—to run concurrently—on each of the 16 counts on which he was convicted by a jury March 7.

He also was fined $5,000 on each of three bribery counts.

A Democratic officeholder for 40 years and a veteran of both World Wars, Barrett was convicted of accepting $180,000 in kickbacks and bribes from Irving H. Meyers, former president of the Shoup Voting Machine Corp. of Bala-Cynwyd, Pa. Meyers was the government's chief witness.

"I never at any time received any of that money and I never met Irving Meyers," Barrett said before he was sentenced. "I am at the twilight of my life and I have served my state and my country with honor."

Barrett first was elected to office in 1939 as state treasurer. Two years later he was elected state auditor of public accounts, an office he held until he enlisted in the Marine Corps during World War II at the age of 42.

He was elected Illinois secretary of state for two terms and was in his fifth term as Cook County clerk when his conviction forced his removal.

Acrobatic troupe helps cultural thaw

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — Mainland China's great leap forward also is going up, sideways and through hoops tonight in an astounding 90-minute show on the ABC television network.

The program, modestly called "The Greatest Show on the Other Side of the Earth," stars Red China's Shenyang Acrobatic Troupe, which made a four-city tour of the United States last December and January.

The tour, which drew considerable acclaim, is part of the gradual thaw in relations between the United States and mainland China that followed President Nixon's historic trip to Peking early last year.

The troupe kept the thaw going during its tour by unveiling at the start of its show a huge red banner that said, "Long Live the Friendship Between the Peoples."

At the end of the performance, another large red banner was unfurled. It said, "Long Live the Friendship between the Chinese and American Peoples."

Those were the only commercials. In between, as those who watch the show tonight may feel, there was a display of physical agility, endurance and grace that was downright mind-boggling.

The troupe, whose art form is more than 2,000 years old, starts off with "plate spinning," involving long sticks on which the performers each spin doing somersaults, handstands and getting their heads together the hard way.

For my dough, the best of the 12-part program comes at the end in the segment called "hoop diving," once called the swallow game because the hoop-divers seem to imitate the flight of swallows.

They put two hoops, one atop the other, on a stand. The idea is to leap through the hoop without knocking it over. They do it time and again, even with a second set of hoops. Don't ask me how.

Although some may find the show too long—and I'm among them—the pace is strikingly close to that of the old vaudeville shows, with the high spots carefully positioned to let the audience catch its breath.

10 most faulty state vehicles had 136 defects

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—The 10 most faulty vehicles found by the Minnesota Highway Patrol during checks in 1972 had a total of 136 operational defects, the state Department of Public Safety reported.

The 10 included six trucks, three passenger cars and one passenger vehicle with a commercial license. Each was at least eight years old, had been driven at least 92,000 miles and had at least 12 defects. One had 21.

The worst of them all, a truck, had a defective windshield and mirrors, worn wiper blades, completely inoperable lights and three unsafe tires. It also did not have flares and flares for emergency use as required by law.

Nine of the vehicles failed the inspection for lights. Nine also failed the exhaust system test, eight had faulty emergency brakes and five were being operated on unsafe tires.

Records show that officers inspecting the 10 vehicles made three arrests for equipment violations and issued warning citations in the other cases.

Bus service funds sought

Bus service cutbacks which cost Winona its city transit system in 1971 have brought requests for "emergency" state funds to prevent more cutbacks in outstate Minnesota.

Drastic declines in bus service were studied by the Minnesota State Planning Agency, which asked Monday that $750,000 be spent annually to stabilize service.

The agency report said regular service, measured in bus miles, was reduced by 27 per cent from 1967 until 1971. Patronage during the period declined at an average rate of 14 per cent annually. The average cost of providing one mile of regular bus service was 57 cents while the revenue produced by that one-mile trip was 34 cents.

In 1971, "the average transit operator lost 23 cents on every bus mile of regular route service, but made a profit of 12 cents per mile on charter service and four cents per mile on school bus service," the report said.

Legislation has been introduced to implement one of the study's suggestions—that funds be allocated to start "demonstration" bus service in at least two areas in rural Minnesota. The bill seeks $75,000 while the study recommends an expenditure of $150,000.

The study focused on local bus operations in Austin, Bemidji, Brainerd, Cloquet, Duluth, Park Rapids, Hibbing, Marquette, Rochester, St. Cloud and Winona during the five years prior to 1972.

Winona Transit Co. went out of business two years ago after being a consistent money-loser. Duluth-Superior Bus Co. and St. Cloud Bus Lines are publicly owned while the other lines are private operations.

The study was prepared for the Planning Agency by a Pittsburgh firm.

Attempt to kill PCA near death

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — An attempt to abolish the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency and merge its functions into the state Department of Natural Resources appears near death in the state legislature.

A Senate subcommittee voted unanimously to table the measure Tuesday. A companion bill was dumped into a House subcommittee last week.

"I think it permanently disposes of the bill in the Senate," said PCA Director Grant Merritt. "I would hope the same is true in the House committee."

Merritt's aggressive approach to fighting pollution apparently has offended some lawmakers and others in state government, and the bill sponsored by several DFL leaders appeared to be an attempt to depose Merritt.

However, the chief sponsor of the reorganization bill, Sen. C. R. "Baldy" Hansen, said there were "no personalities" involved in the bill. He argued that a merger would improve policy-making and efficiency by ending an overlap of services. The only other person to speak in favor of a merger was Clarence Buckman, DNR deputy commissioner. Almost every environmental group in the state testified against the bill, calling for preservation of the PCA as an independent agency.

The Senate government operations subcommittee headed by Sen. Winston Borden, DFL-Brainerd, tabled the measure on a 5-0 vote after defeating a motion, 3-2, to return the bill to the full committee without a recommendation.

Merritt, 39, former head of a citizen's antipollution group, has denied that he is abrasive in testimony before legislative committees. But he's conceded that his aggressive approach to pollution problems may have offended some.

The proposal apparently had the tacit support of Gov. Wendell Anderson. But a spokesman for the DFL governor said the bill did not originate in the governor's office.

Committee asks 43 percent hike in solon's wages

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—The legislature's Democratic-dominated Joint Finance Committee recommended Tuesday that state lawmakers be paid $14,200 a year, a 43 per cent salary increase.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's proposed state budget for 1973-75 recommends legislative salaries of $10,941 annually, instead of the current $9,900.

The committee endorsed a $14,200 figure 8-6 after rejecting a motion that salaries be set at $15,300.

One Republican on the committee spoke in favor of substantial raises for lawmakers, saying their job is becoming a full-time occupation.

"As we evolve into a full-time legislature, we ought to progress so not just the rich, retired or subsidized can serve," Sen. Robert Knowles, R-New Richmond, said.

But Knowles said he could not support anything more than a cost-of-living increase unless raises are coupled with a code of ethics for lawmakers.

Proposed codes for legislators and other state officials have been introduced in the legislature, one at the request of Lucey.

The committee adopted without discussion the rest of Lucey's "executive pay plan," a salary schedule which divides constitutional officers, judges and other officials into 10 salary groups.

Among those in the highest salary group, $37,800 to $47,700, are the governor and the president of the University of Wisconsin.

If the plan were adopted, the governor's annual salary would climb from its current $25,000 to $47,700 in 1975.

The lieutenant governor's salary, now $7,500, would climb to $19,500.

The salaries of state treasurer and secretary of state, now $13,500, would jump to $20,000.

The committee said it would appoint a subcommittee to oversee reorganization of the state Department of Health and Social Services.

The agency has been recommended for bureaucratic overhaul in Lucey's budget proposal.

Dane Co. D.A. says taking of files not illegal

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Former inspector Herman Thomas committed an "insensitive act" but not an illegal one when he removed undercover files from the police department, the Dane County district attorney said Tuesday.

Dist. Atty. H.J. Lynch said Thomas will not be prosecuted. Thomas retired last week after it was reported he made off with documents on police underground work during anti-war demonstrations since 1967.

Chief David Couper recommended Thomas be given a "letter of reprimand."

Lynch said it appears Thomas, not former Mayor William Dyke, initiated removal of the files. He said however, that the files were taken with Dyke's approval.

The removal centered on reports that Thomas hoped to keep the files out of the hands of newly elected Mayor Paul Soglin, a self-proclaimed radical who participated in campus-based demonstrations.

Holy Week services here portray Christ's death, resurrection

"This is the day the Lord has made, let us be glad and rejoice in it." Psalm 117:24.

Holy Week services at Winona churches will portray Christ's death on the cross and his triumphant resurrection.

Union Good Friday services, an audio-drama at First Baptist Church, will include participation by the congregations of Central, Immanuel and McKinley United Methodist Churches, and Grace Presbyterian Church.

There will be Easter sunrise services in many of the churches, and breakfast will be served. At St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, a German Communion service will be at 10 a.m. Good Friday. The Swieconka, blessing of the food, will take place at St. Stanislaus Church at 11 a.m. Holy Saturday.

The Holy Week schedule for Winona churches:

Protestant

At CENTRAL UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, solemn Communion in Norton Chapel will be Maundy Thursday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., with a Communion service at 7:30 p.m. Good Friday, the congregation will participate in the ecumenical services at First Baptist Church from 1 to 2 p.m.

Easter Sunday sunrise service in Norton Chapel will be at 7:30 a.m., followed by breakfast served in the Guild Hall from 8 to 10 a.m. The services at 10:45 a.m. will feature the adult choir singing "The Lord Is Risen," Gregor Aichinger, and "Oh Make Our Hearts to Blossom," Joseph Clokey, and the senior handbell choir will play "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

A Communion service will be held at IMMANUEL UNITED METHODIST CHURCH at 7:30 p.m. Maundy Thursday, and on Good Friday, the congregation will join in the 1 p.m. union service at First Baptist Church. There will be a Good Friday service at STOCKTON UNITED METHODIST CHURCH at 7 p.m., where services will be held at 8 a.m. Easter. Easter services at Immanuel will include a sunrise breakfast beginning at 7:15 a.m., and an Easter service at 9:30 a.m. with special music by the adult choir.

A Tenebrae service of Communion will be at MCKINLEY UNITED METHODIST CHURCH at 8 p.m. Maundy Thursday. The choir anthem will be "Calvary," and the Rev. Glenn Quam will sing "Were You There." The congregation will participate in the union service at First Baptist Church at 1 p.m. Good Friday. Easter Sunday a youth pageant pertaining to the happenings on the first Easter morning will be presented at 6:30 a.m. under the direction of Mrs. Norman Decker. A German Communion service will be at 10 a.m. Good Friday, followed by a 1:30 p.m. worship service to be broadcast on KWNQ. The theme will be "How Should We View the Death of Jesus?" A school choir, grades one to seven, will sing "When I Think of Calvary." At the 7:30 p.m. Communion service the final theme, "Lenten Questions That Demand an Answer," will be considered. The theme is "What Persuaded You, Captain?" The choir, directed by Miss Patricia Brodbeck, will sing, "At the Cross," with Mrs. Gerald Mueller as organist.

Easter Sunday will be observed with a 6 a.m. worship service and a 10:30 a.m. Communion service. Questions, which will be considered respectively, "Why Seek the Living Among the Dead?" and "What Think Ye of Christ?" The choir will sing, "Now Is Christ Risen," "Ye Sons and Daughters of the King," and "He is Risen! Alleluia." The senior choir will also sing the Easter introit. Miss Brodbeck will direct and Mrs. Gerald Mueller will be organist.

At 7:15 a.m. Easter breakfast will be served by the youth league.

At GOODVIEW TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH, a Communion service at 6:30 p.m. Maundy Thursday will center on the theme, "Do You Know What I've Done Sinner?" from Matt. 26:28-29. The theme, "What Persuaded You, Captain?" will be used at the Good Friday worship service at 1:30 p.m.

At the 6 a.m. Easter sunrise service, the junior and senior choirs will sing several numbers, including "In Joseph's Lovely Garden." The sermon theme, "Why Seek Ye the Living Among the Dead?" is from the text Luke 24:1-8. Easter breakfast, served by the couples club, will follow the service.

The 9 a.m. worship service will be centered on the theme, "Christ's Resurrection, Fact or Fiction?" from I Cor. 15: 12-22. The combined junior and senior choirs will open the service with "Christ Is Risen, Alleluia."

Catholic

The Mass of Chrism will be at the CATHEDRAL OF THE SACRED HEART Thursday at 10 a.m., with the Most Rev. Loras J. Watters, D.D., Bishop of the Winona Diocese, and 26 priests of the Winona diocese as concelebrants.

The Mass of the Last Supper will be at 5:15 and 7:30 p.m. with Bishop Watters officiating at the 7:30 Mass.

Good Friday, there will be two identical liturgical services at noon and 1:45 p.m., with Bishop Watters officiating at the latter. The Easter vigil will be at 7:30 p.m. Holy Saturday. There will not be a 5:15 p.m. Mass that day.

Masses Easter Sunday will be at 7, 8:15, 9:30 (to be broadcast) and 11 a.m., and at 12:15 and 5:15 p.m. Confessions will be today from 7:30 to 9 p.m.; Thursday from 3 to 5:10 p.m. with none in the evening; Friday from 3 to 5 and 7:30 to 9 p.m., and Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m., with no confessions in the evening.

At ST. STANISLAUS CHURCH, the Sacrament of Penance will be administered from 3 to 5 p.m. today through Saturday. Confessions will be after the Eucharistic celebration today and Thursday and from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday. There will be no evening confession Saturday.

Three youths from the parish will read Good Friday's passion, according to John.

A Eucharistic celebration will be offered at 7:30 p.m. Holy Thursday, followed by parish adulation, from U to Z, to 9 p.m.; O-T 9 to 10 p.m.; M-P, 10-10:30 p.m.; J-L, 10:30 to 11 p.m.; E-H, 11-11:30 p.m. and A-D, 11:30 to midnight.

A 1:30 p.m. Good Friday service will include scripture, adoration and Communion. At 11 a.m. Holy Saturday, the blessing of food, Swieconka, will take place, and at 7 p.m. an Easter vigil will be followed by the Eucharistic celebration.

Easter Sunday Eucharistic celebrations will follow the regular schedule of 5:30, 7:15, 8:30, 9:45, and 11:15 a.m., and 5:15 p.m.

ST. CASIMIR'S CHURCH will hold the Mass of the Last Supper at 5:30 p.m. Holy Thursday. This is the day of Christian community and of divine and fraternal charity.

The liturgical service of the passion and death of the Lord will be at 1 p.m. Good Friday. The liturgy will be in four parts: the scripture readings, the prayer-

UW-Green Bay sports facility is supported

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Joint Finance Committee's program of impounding University of Wisconsin construction funds took a time-out Tuesday at the gymnasium floor.

The legislative panel recommended 8-4 that $9.9 million for sports facilities at UW-Milwaukee and UW-Green Bay be added to the state's proposed 1973-75 construction package.

The suggestion by the Democratic-controlled committee was countered by the Democrats counter to a decision by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey and the State Building Commission, and even a ruling by the UW Board of Regents.

UWM's two-year-old program of trying to inspire student interest in interscholastic sports, having encountered more campus lethargy than success, is geared largely to efforts to win construction funds for a new sports center.

Green Bay similarly seeks a sports center for its relatively new campus.

Regents trimmed the scope of UWM's plan. The State Building Commission turned down requests for construction funds a month ago, but authorized planning funds.

The commission decision reflected Lucey's request for austerity in state construction plans.

The legislature's Joint Finance Committee, meanwhile, has recommended millions of dollars in UW building requests be held in escrow, pending a review of needs a year from now.

But the panel voted 8-6 Tuesday along party lines to insert fieldhouse funds into the proposed budget for UWM and

U. of Wisconsin predicted to be 'big loser'

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A report prepared by a national association of universities predicts the University of Wisconsin system would be one of the nation's big academic losers under President Nixon's 1973-74 budget.

The National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges, listing estimates submitted by its member schools, said Wisconsin was second only to the University of California in the amount of money it could lose if Nixon's budget is enacted.

UW officials told the association the system would lose about $25 million under the President's budget. They estimated the Madison campus alone could lose as much as $14 million.

The association said that while the biggest cuts nationally would be in student aids and health sciences, "virtually every on-going higher education program has either been eliminated or reduced substantially in the budget request."

It said college representatives are being told to seek revenue sharing money being sent to the states.

But the association said it is doubtful state legislatures will fund many programs, especially those such as extensive research and special training, whose benefits apply nationwide.

On container deposit

Canners, bottlers oppose bill

By RONALD W. BROWNE
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Canners, bottlers and organized labor lined up against environmentalists Tuesday over a bill to require a five-cent deposit on beverage containers sold in Wisconsin.

Environmentalists said the bill would discourage littering. Industry and labor predicted high costs and a loss of jobs.

Environmentalists contended a returnable bottle can be manufactured for about 10 cents and used 15 times while a non-returnable type costs only half that, and can be used only once and is more likely to shatter because of cheaper construction.

Paul E. Sybil, a member of the Racine County solid waste commission, told the Senate Natural Resources Committee that disposable beverage containers deplete valuable resources and are "symbolic of a wasteful nation."

Sen. Douglas La Follette, D-Kenosha, said the legislation would lead to additional jobs, citing a University of Illinois study.

Jack Reihl of the Wisconsin AFL-CIO forecast a net loss in wages, citing the same study.

Reihl said the study indicates that if similar legislation were passed in Illinois, 7,497 new jobs would be created while 5,381 jobs in the glass, metal and container industries would be lost.

Reihl said the survey shows 6,760 of the jobs created would involve part-time help and result in a net loss of $71 million in wages.

Rep. Robert Behnke, D-Milwaukee, employed by Continental Can Co. in Milwaukee, expressed concern about "so-called, self-appointed ecologists."

Behnke told the committee that industry is equally concerned about littering, he suggested recycling.

"Recycling is the solution to the over-all solid waste problem," Behnke said.

"In the area of litter, efforts should be directed to the heart of the existing problem: those few people who thoughtlessly discard all kinds of trash in the streets and highways," he said.

John Bernbach of Eau Claire told the committee it is "more economical to prevent trash than it is to recycle it."

Bernbach said Wisconsin taxpayers paid $900,000 last year for litter cleanup, and that a substantial portion of the litter was throwaway cans, bottles and paper containers.

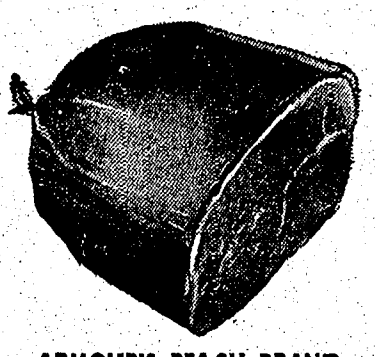

Small bottlers from northern Wisconsin said residents of other states would flood Wisconsin with nonreturnable containers seeking deposit money they hadn't paid.

LaFollette countered that only containers sold in Wisconsin would have to be redeemed.

Sen. Hansen won't disclose his finances

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Sen. C. R. "Baldy" Hansen says disclosing his major financial interests would violate his business and professional ethics.

The Austin DFLer's remark came in his financial disclosure statement to the secretary of the Senate.

A new Senate rule says each senator must file a report, due April 15, listing his positions as director or officer in any corporation and his assets and liabilities of more than $1,000. The rule is aimed at preventing conflicts of interest between a senator's investments and legislation he votes on.

A loophole, however, says the assets and liabilities need not be reported if such a move is "prohibited by business or professional ethics."

Hansen's two-sentence report said he is an officer of two unidentified banks, two unidentified lumber companies and one unidentified insurance company.

"Any further disclosure," he wrote, "would violate my business and professional ethics."

Hansen, 63, is chairman of the Senate Labor and Commerce Committee. He's been a senator since 1966.

Even if his report did not comply with Senate rules, nothing could be done about it now.

The rule says any charges about violation of disclosure requirements shall be referred to the Senate Ethics Committee. No members have been appointed to the committee yet.

The House has a similar rule. Only Rep. Walter Klags, R-Farmington, declined to file the report. He contends that only the state Constitution, not the legislature, may set the requirements for being a legislator.

Four Wisconsin farm groups ask no price freeze

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Four Wisconsin farm organizations urged President Nixon and the state's congressmen Monday to oppose a food prices freeze.

The groups were the state National Farmers Organization, the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation, the Wisconsin Farmers Union, and the Wisconsin State Grange.

They sent a telegram asking a fair return on farm products.

"In an unprecedented move, Wisconsin farmers through their four general farm organizations, unite to respectfully urge your opposition to legislation or administrative action to roll back or freeze food prices," the telegram read.

A freeze conducted "in a manner which fails to return a fair cost of production or discourages increased production and marketing of farm products" in the specific target of the Wisconsin protest, the telegram said.

Never store herbs and spices near the kitchen range.

N.D. governor opposes lower drinking age

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Gov. Arthur Link told about 100 high school students Monday that the probable lowering of the Minnesota drinking age doesn't alter his feelings toward a lower age in North Dakota.

Link, who fielded questions of Northern Interscholastic Press Association participants at the University of North Dakota, vetoed a legislature-passed bill that would have reduced the state's minimum drinking age to 19. The Minnesota Legislature appears headed toward lowering that state's age of adulthood to 18.

If Minnesota does lower its age, North Dakota will be surrounded by territory with drinking ages of less than 21. But Link said he still believes evidence that youth traffic fatalities would rise warrants maintaining the higher age.

He admitted that he has received much adverse reaction from young people, and said "young people don't couch their feelings in a lot of nice, flowery words."

Asked what he thought of Lt. Gov. Wayne Sanstead's remark that a lower age is "inevitable," Link said people of the state will be better prepared to make the decision in two years.

He said he was convinced that many people didn't know what the bill would do until it passed the legislature, and only then did the full scope of their opposition become known.

The governor also maintained that "we could not err seriously in putting this off for two years. Who knows that there might not be some second thoughts in some of our neighboring states?"

Milk supplies are depleted at Duluth, Superior

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Twin Ports residents were wondering what to pour on their cereal Tuesday as a milk strike continued in Duluth and Superior, Wis.

The cooler shelves of most major markets in Duluth and Superior were bare by nightfall Monday as supplies were quickly purchased by consumers.

Most market managers contacted say they had ample supplies Monday, but that their stock of milk was depleted when the day was over.

Russell and Twin Ports creameries of Superior were struck last week by members of General Drivers and Dairies Workers Local 346 in a contract dispute. Franklin Creamery, Duluth, Friday discontinued milk processing operations.

Bridgman Creameries, Duluth, also rejected a contract offer but continued to work. Bridgman workers are negotiating separately because they have a different kind of operation — retail stores.

The union rejected the milk producers' latest offer April 8. A union spokesman said no contract talks were scheduled.

The Duluth public school system, which uses 22,000 half pints of milk daily, switched to juices in cafeterias Monday. Hospitals said they were picking up their own supplies of milk.

Goldwater runs radio station for servicemen

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Family voices with reassuring hometown news or excited birth announcements flowed to South Vietnam during the war through an amateur radio station operated by Sen. Barry Goldwater. Now the station links servicemen in Thailand and the Philippines with their homes.

The station carried three-minute broadcast-telephone calls from South Vietnam until all stations there were closed as troops were withdrawn.

More than 132,000 telephone calls have passed through the amateur radio transmitters operated by the Arizona Republic since the facility became a Military Affiliate Radio Station in August 1967.

Under the system, a serviceman places his call through an overseas transmitter. It is relayed through Goldwater's station into the telephone system.

Thirty-two amateur radio operators work in shifts at the station in the basement of Goldwater's home in northeast Phoenix. They are members of a club called "Bash Hal Ne Ae," Navajo for "metal that talks," Goldwater is president.

"He runs it himself, when he's available," said an operator about Goldwater, the unsuccessful Republican candidate for president in 1964.

"Goldwater pays for all Arizona calls, no matter where they are," said Robert Chamberlain, one of the operators. Persons receiving calls outside Arizona pay only the telephone tolls from Phoenix to their homes.

Chamberlain said the station has handled as many as 150 calls a day in a radio room marked by the Arizona senator's two-star general plaque. Goldwater is a member of the Air Force Reserve.

So far this year, the station has handled over 6,000 calls.

"When we're running patches, the telephone company assigns an operator to us," Chamberlain said. "When one call is finished, the operator puts another on, so its continuous."

Chamberlain said most people are unaware that their messages are being relayed through Goldwater's equipment.

He said the senator has asked the operators not to publicize it. But he added that the word leaks out and the senator has received numerous letters of appreciation.

Safety training course offered for supervisors

A 12-hour course in safety training for supervisors will be offered by the Winona Area Vocational - Technical Institute beginning April 26.

The course for key personnel development will offer supervisors concentrated study in the fundamentals of supervision and loss control.

IT IS SPECIFICALLY designed to provide a thorough, practical understanding of accident prevention.

Classes will meet for three hours beginning at 7 p.m. on four Thursday evenings, April 26 and May 3, 10 and 17.

Paul White, a representative of the Minnesota Department of Labor and Industry, will present instruction in safety, accident investigation, employee health and morale, personal protective clothing, materials handling, fire prevention and control, the Occupational Safety and Health Act and the role of the Minnesota Department of Labor and Industry.

THE COURSE will be offered in Room 301 of the institute and the enrollment fee will cover the cost of the textbook and other materials.

Advance registration may be made with Jon Kosidowski, supervisor of the institute's evening school program, or with the institute secretary before Monday.

Hospital closing plan rejected by committee

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A Minnesota House subcommittee has rejected a proposal to close one of the 10 state hospitals. Instead, the subcommittee has asked the Department of Public Welfare to submit a plan by Jan. 1 for closing and razing obsolete buildings at all of the hospitals.

Appropriations subcommittee Chairman Donald Samuelson, DFL-Brainerd, said Tuesday that his proposal could lead to the eventual closing of two or three hospitals.

Members of a Senate subcommittee have tentatively agreed that one of the hospitals should be closed, but have not decided which one.

Sen. Roger Moe, DFL-Ada, chairman of the Finance subcommittee on welfare, says, "We just have to close the doors on one of them if we are ever going to move toward community-based programs."

The welfare department's overall goal is to move away from state hospitals and toward community based institutions.

Department officials have said Faribault State Hospital should be the first to go. However, they have urged that the closing of any institutions be delayed two years to permit planning for new and expanded community-based programs.

Although the number of persons going to state hospitals has increased in recent years, shorter-term treatment has resulted in a steady decline in average daily populations. There were 1,840 vacant beds out of a capacity of 8,453 early this year.

In other legislative action Tuesday, the House approved and sent to the Senate a bill that expands the power of the attorney general's office to curb fraudulent business practices.

The bill permits the attorney general to file civil damage suits of up to $25,000 against businessmen engaged in unlawful practices. It also permits citizens to sue and collect damages and attorney's fees.

Currently, the attorney general may only go into court to obtain injunctive orders to help stop the practices.

The House also gave preliminary approval to a bill that broadens the state's human rights law, which now applies to racial discrimination. The bill covers discrimination based on sex, age, marital status and disability. It also removes the current exemption for owner-occupied duplexes.

The House delayed final action on the stalled fire bill, which won preliminary approval Monday.

Wounded Knee cease-fire broken

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP)—Government reinforcements were in the Wounded Knee area today following a heavy exchange of gunfire that wounded at least two and possibly six members of the militant Indian force that has held this village for 51 days. A border patrolman from Montana said he and about 23 colleagues had been brought in following the 90-minute exchange of heavy gunfire Tuesday morning and sporadic shooting the rest of the day.

An unidentified member of the estimated 150 Indians occupying Wounded Knee was listed in very critical condition this morning after undergoing brain surgery in a Rapid City hospital. A supervisor at the hospital said the man had suffered a gunshot wound in the head.

A government spokesman said at least one other Indian had been wounded during the exchange. Sources on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation said four other militants had suffered wounds, but that the five had been treated in the village.

The government said it knew of only two injured insurgents, and said no federal lawmen had been hit.

Wounded Knee is 'exciting,' says new FBI official

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Less than a week after he came to head the Twin Cities office of the FBI, Joseph H. Trimbach was rushing to the Indian takeover of Wounded Knee, S.D.

He recalls one of his tensest moments as an FBI man came when he drove into Wounded Knee with a white flag on the car antenna to negotiate about the "hostages."

"There were a lot of guns pointed at me down there and, like I say, it was exciting, not pleasant," said Trimbach.

He recalls another time when the odds were heavily stacked against him but he managed to arrest three armed men.

Three men had escaped from jail at Orlando, Fla. They got hold of guns and forced a family to drive them to Jacksonville, where they let the family go and vanished.

The FBI was called in to the case when it appeared there was an intent to cross state lines.

Two of Trimbach's companions waited in the lobby while Trimbach checked out the register of a hotel. He noted one man had checked in about the time the family was released and listed Orlando as his home.

"I had mug shots of two of the three and wouldn't you know — the one I didn't have answered the door," said Trimbach.

The FBI man identified himself and then saw a fugitive he recognized on a bed, and a revolver within reach on the headboard.

Another fugitive had drawn a revolver and rolled off a bed onto the floor before Trimbach pulled his revolver.

"Just like that one of them says, 'Well, I guess you got us,' and they surrender," said Trimbach.

Trimbach stammered "Got who?" and sat down on a bed to steady his gun hand.

"I guess the guys downstairs were getting itchy to go to lunch, so they came upstairs looking for me and we took the three in," he said.

But Trimbach points out that the non-stop excitement and confrontation depicted on television shows about FBI work isn't the lot of the agent.

"It seems like every week Inspector Erskine is being shot at or shooting at someone," he mused. "Obviously there wouldn't be that level of activity for any one agent."

However, agents sent around to various parts of the country are likely to see more action than most agents, he said.

Trimbach, a compact, medium-sized man, conveys the impression of mental toughness.

He began his FBI career in 1956. Earlier, he got a bachelor's degree in business administration at Canisius College, served three years in the Marine Corps and for a short time was credit manager for the Wurlitzer Co. in Illinois.

He received a master's degree at the University of Buffalo.

After serving in FBI offices at New Orleans and Jacksonville as a "brick" agent (on foot), Trimbach was in the Washington, D.C., headquarters and inspected district offices.

Prior to coming to Minneapolis, he was assistant special agent in charge at the Cleveland, Ohio, FBI office.

Trimbach said that since the death of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, there have been some changes, but mostly surface ones, such as accepting women into the ranks.

"The mission, discipline and procedure are unchanged," Trimbach concluded.

Something very changeable in his life has been his home. His family has moved 18 times since he and his wife Kathleen married in 1951. They have seven children.

Knights joust in California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The clang of sword-smitting armor is waiting across suburban California backyards.

Knights in homemade armor with wooden swords and shields are part of the monthly revels of the Society for Creative Anachronism, devoted to things medieval.

Each member of the group has a title and a coat of arms. And, said Lady Cheryl of Castilwhye, "everyone brings a medieval-style sack lunch—like meat, cheeses, bread. And everybody brings their own wine. We stress meat."

She explained that meat is a fermented drink which includes honey, and is much favored by slayers of dragons.

White is the local chapter's "senseschal," or head of the shire. And the Sacramento area is known as the Shire of the Golden Rivers of the West Kingdom.

"A revel starts about one in the afternoon and may go until three in the morning," Mrs. White said during an interview Tuesday.

"If someone joins just for the socializing, they usually don't stay with it. You have to get involved or you just get lost."

Members say the society began in Berkeley, Calif., about seven years ago with a gathering of medievalists in a backyard. The group claims 3,500 members nationwide with a $4 annual membership fee.

"One has to be proficient in certain areas and have a general knowledge of the historical period. And we have a line of royalty. A new king is elected three times a year at tournaments," Mrs. White said.

"Some people are in it for the broadsword, while others really get down to the meat of it," she said.

Members' interests include needlecraft, egg decorating, chess, dance, music and period research projects.

Incumbents suffer in Illinois

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Mayor Robert Sabonjian of Waukegan appeared early today to have won a fifth four-year term in a close election.

Incumbent mayors were defeated in a number of other Illinois cities and towns Tuesday, while Northern Illinois University students won two seats on the DeKalb City Council.

Sabonjian, a Republican whose opponents have charged that he has built up a "political machine" in Lake County, tallied 9,091 votes to 8,313 for Ernest Dieg, a Democrat, and 455 for Norman Anderson, an independent.

Sabonjian has been an outspoken and controversial leader in Waukegan since the late 1950s and the election was forecast as a close match.

Mayor James H. Haymaker of Rock Island won his third consecutive term by defeating a 14-year veteran of the city council, Robert Maurus.

Haymaker, operator of a cleaning business, got 6,341 votes to 4,895 for Maurus, a public school music teacher.

In DeKalb, two NIU students won city council seats from heavily student wards. They are senior Charles Stowe of Earlville and sophomore David Jaffe, 19, of Morton Grove.

In the mayor's race, with five of seven wards reporting, Carroll Van Patter, a 66-year-old businessman, won over Ralph Sherman and Edward Dierich. The vote was 1,529 to 828 and 528 respectively.

Herrin Mayor John B. McVey won a second term by defeating write-in candidate Robert A. Craig 1,540 to 1,116. Craig announced his candidacy a week ago.

Incumbent Robinson Mayor Carl Zwerzmann lost to challenger Don Gubelman 1,521-933. Zwerzmann, a past president of the Illinois Municipal League, was seeking a fourth term.

Great Lakes job loss causes worry

GREAT LAKES, Ill. (AP) — The loss of 820 civilian jobs at the Great Lakes Naval Base will have a "significant" negative impact on the area's economy, according to the president of the Waukegan-North Chicago Chamber of Commerce.

William Rose said Tuesday that the facility cutbacks announced by the Pentagon will mean "800 fewer homes or apartments, 2,500 fewer mouths to feed and 800 cars less."

That would have a "significant impact" on the area's economy, he said. He estimated cutting back 820 jobs would mean 2,500 persons leaving the area.

Rose said he thought the Waukegan-North Chicago area eventually could provide jobs for persons cut at the base, but that many of them would have to leave because of their specialized skills.

The chamber will approach the Illinois congressional delegation to try to have the cutbacks reversed, he said. "We'll make an effort to keep the jobs."

In addition to the civilian jobs, 215 military positions will be eliminated, said Cmdr. R. Dale Klinkerman, public affairs officer for the 9th Naval District headquarters.

He estimated the economic impact would be spread within a 50-mile radius of the base but probably would be greatest in the North Chicago-Waukegan area.

Klinkerman said the two base facilities affected by the cutback will be the Electronic Supply Office and the Naval Examining Center. The supply office will be phased out by the end of 1974 and the examining center by next March 31.

Savings to the government are estimated at $2.39 million annually.

Of the 820 civilians affected, Klinkerman said, 625 will be given an opportunity to relocate in Florida or Pennsylvania, 71 will be eliminated through attrition and 124 will be released with the hope of finding them other government jobs in the area.

Bill would make felon pay damages

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Legislators were asked Tuesday to endorse a bill which would require a felon to pay damages for his crime as a condition of parole or probation.

The suggestion, being reviewed by the Senate's Judiciary Committee, is one of several proposals before legislators concerning reimbursement of victims of crimes.

Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh, testified the payments "would help the offenders atone for the crimes they committed."

A Wisconsin Civil Liberties Union Foundation spokesman, James Glover, argued the measure would deprive a convicted person of a right to trial on damage claims.

Fruit, vegetable growers say hourly pay not wise economics

By ARTHUR L. SRB
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — When an orchardist hires scores of teen-agers to pick cherries in his 40-acre orchard, how can he make certain they stay in the trees and keep their minds on picking?

He can't, William Mitchell Jr. of Egg Harbor, a Door County cherry grower, said Tuesday. Many times, the young men and women abandon the trees for social visiting, he said, adding some engage in "romancing."

An inability to keep track of harvesters is one reason why Wisconsin fruit and vegetable growers should not have to pay workers by the hour, he said. Farmers must be allowed to pay piece work rates, Mitchell told an Assembly Labor Committee hearing.

Mitchell said cherry growers in northeastern Wisconsin usually have 40-acre orchards with 4,000 trees, making it virtually impossible to keep tabs on all workers during the annual four-week summer harvest.

Many of the 50-100 workers hired by some orchards are young persons who often do not work as long or as hard as adult pickers.

"Sometimes the picking level among the young people drops to zero in the afternoon," Mitchell said.

"These impromptu recesses often are used for visiting and sometimes for romancing," he said.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Lary Swoboda, D-Luxemborg, would allow the Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations to authorize growers to establish piecework rate scales.

Under Wisconsin law, persons 12-17 years of age must be paid a minimum of $1.15 an hour. Females older than 17 must draw at least $1.45 an hour. Rates apply only to agricultural work.

"It isn't the hourly wage that is hurting us. It is the book-keeping that is required, such as the times of the beginning and ending of each work day, and times of the beginning and ending of each meal period," Mitchell complained.

Mitchell said some good cherry pickers can fill 100 nine-pound pails a day at 35 cents each and earn about $35 a day.

Ness Flores of Milwaukee, director of United Migrant Legal Services of Wisconsin, opposed the bill.

He said it would exempt farm workers from minimum wage laws.

"I don't think it is right for a grower to pay kids who aren't working," he said. "But the farm worker now has very little protection."

Flores said his organization represents 8,000-10,000 workers who annually harvest Wisconsin's cucumber, cherry, onion and apple crops.

Elizabeth Raushenbush of Madison, former chairman of the governor's Committee on Migratory Labor, said she opposes the bill because an employer should be required to keep accurate records on work performed.

"The attitude that 'we don't know who worked,' or 'whether they worked, we don't care,' is an abdication of the employers' responsibility," she said.

Weather cripples crops

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fruit crops, especially peaches, seemed to suffer the most from spring weather that numbed many areas with record cold spells or drenched them with record rainfalls.

Extensive flooding, especially in Mississippi, also took its agricultural toll as farmland was too saturated for planting.

The cooperative extension service at Mississippi State University said Monday, "As of right now every acre in the state is too wet to plant."

Nearly a half million acres of Mississippi farmland are under water. Ray Converse, agriculture statistician for the state Department of Agriculture and Commerce, said one million acres were covered at one point.

Converse said it would be impossible to determine just how much of a financial loss is involved in state agriculture due to the flooding.

He said between $6 million and $8 million in soybeans and cotton from last year still hasn't been harvested and "it's pretty much gone."

The state university extension service estimated 100,000 acres of potential cotton land are under water and noted that cotton planting should have begun April 15 and ended by May 15. It said only 35 per cent of the cotton land has been readied for planting.

Temperatures plunged into the teens in some areas during the cold snap the second week in April, nipping peach and apple blossoms in the bud.

Officials in Chilton County, Ala., say record low temperatures virtually destroyed the county's $3 million peach crop.

Sen. John Sparkman asked Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to declare the county a disaster area.

The Illinois crop reporting service estimated 80 to 90 per cent of Illinois' $1.38 million annual peach crop will be lost as well as 50 per cent of the state's $6 million annual apple crop.

Temperatures that dropped as low as 18 degrees at points in Virginia damaged some 20 per cent of the peach crop and 5 to 10 per cent of the state's apple crop. Dr. Ross Byers of the Winchester Fruit Research Laboratory said as a result consumers can expect higher retail prices for the two fruits this summer.

The same was true for several other fruit crops damaged by the cold. Arkansas officials said 50 to 75 per cent of the strawberry crop grown in central Arkansas was wiped out and Michigan cherry growers lost up to one quarter of their $2 million crop when the mercury nosedived to 10 degrees along Lake Michigan.

Seale runs distant second in Oakland race

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Black Panther Bobby Seale ran a distant second in his race for mayor of Oakland but won a runoff with incumbent John Reading, who fell only 84 votes short of a majority in unofficial returns from the nine-way race.

In nearby Berkeley, a moderate-liberal coalition came from behind to lead radicals in a race for four council seats and control of city government.

The final, unofficial total in Oakland's election Tuesday was Reading 55,342 to 21,314 for Seale. Reading needed more than 50 per cent to avoid a May 15 runoff. His final unofficial total was 49,92 per cent. Seale had 19.28 per cent of the 110,851 votes cast. Seven other candidates got the remaining votes.

Seale, chairman of the Black Panther party, had predicted he would win by a landslide.

A spokesman said Seale would have no immediate comment, but Reading told a news conference he was surprised he hadn't done better against the Panther chairman.

"Frankly, I felt that I'd make it in the primary . . . by a narrow margin," Reading said. He attributed Seale's showing to his organization.

A radical slate — which needed two of four council seats to take control in Berkeley — picked up only one. With all votes from the city's 189 precincts counted, the moderate-liberal coalition had elected three of its slate.

In early Berkeley returns, four radical candidates held the four top spots in a field of 22 candidates, with four members of the moderate-liberal "Berkeley 4" slate running fifth to eighth.

But the "Berkeley 4" gained throughout the night and had first, second and fourth spots with 91 per cent of the vote counted.

Federal funds needed to stop fuel shortage

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mayor Henry Maier said a growing threat of a national fuel shortage made it imperative that federal funds be made available for a balanced transportation plan.

Maier told members of the Wisconsin Coalition for Balanced Transportation he supported the giving of local governments the option of using federal highway funds for mass transit purposes.

The Milwaukee mayor accepted an invitation to serve as honorary chairman of the coalition, which includes about 35 environmental, taxpayer and anti-highway groups.

Legislators asked if ethics code would create more trust by public

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Legislators are being asked whether a strict "code of ethics" for state officials could make them more trusted by the public.

Or would the code only open the door to witch-hunting in the bureaucracy?

The Assembly Judiciary Committee was asked Tuesday to decide whether it will back a code introduced at the request of Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

Lucey, in a letter to the committee, called the 16-page bill "the proposal of thousands of Wisconsin citizens who have dedicated their lives to the cause of good government and preserving confidence in the honesty and integrity of public officials."

The bill outlines the kind of conduct in which legislators and "other state officers and employees" may and may not engage. It says a legislator cannot accept money for trying to influence the outcome of legislation, cannot accept favors of employment which would "impair his independence of judgment" in carrying out his official duties, and cannot disclose confidential information for monetary gain.

It would require state officials to report to a board on ethics any financial holdings or business interests which might involve a conflict of interest.

Lawmakers would have to file expense statements for public records when they are compensated for speaking engagements.

Public officials paid $12,000 a year or more would not be allowed to take office until they file a statement of economic interests. The committee took no immediate action.

The board, comprising five members appointed by the governor, would hold investigations on complaints against officials. "We legislators are in some disrepute," the sponsor of the bill, Rep. Mary Lou Munts, D-Madison, told the committee. "The smell of the Watergate bugging has rubbed off on us, however unjustly," she said. "You have all seen the polls where the esteem in which we are held has dropped to around the level for bookies," she said. Lucey's legal counsel, William Dixon, said the code is not aimed at existing abuses.

"But," Dixon said, "there is a move to make legislating more of a full-time job. We think this might be necessary to ensure confidence in state employees."

Citizen lobbyist Gladys Walsh of Madison argued the proposal was "an abomination and a collection of scrambled eggs."

"This would set up a mammoth department for witch-hunting," she said.

Committee member Louise Tesmer, D-St. Francis, said she suspects the language of the bill would exempt some state officials from the code, such as the lieutenant governor and Supreme Court justices.

"The only elected officials this bill is aimed at, it appears to me, are legislators," she said.

"I think this is one of the most ill-conceived, badly drafted laws I've ever seen," she said.

The proposal is similar to a code of ethics introduced at the request of Republican Atty. Gen. Robert Warren.

Schoen, judge rap lockups for juveniles

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The practice of locking up juvenile delinquents in fortress-like institutions was condemned Tuesday by two Minnesotans with years of experience in the field of criminal justice.

Minnesota Corrections Commissioner Kenneth Schoen and Judge Lindsay Arthur of Hennepin County Juvenile Court testified separately before the House Select Committee on Crime.

Arthur likened most custodial institutions for juveniles to "warehouses" reminiscent of the days of Charles Dickens. In contrast, he said, authorities should be trying to rehabilitate the child, "not punish him for his past but give him hope for the future."

As an ideal standard, Schoen told the committee, rich and poor youngsters should have equal access to psychiatric counseling, attentive schooling and other community programs that might deter delinquent behavior.

Schoen told the committee about a proposal before the Minnesota Legislature that would encourage communities to provide a full range of correctional services by offering state subsidies.

Arthur suggested that funding be provided on a national scale for a computerized data bank that would offer an up-to-date inventory of all the resources available for a complete correction program.

Former policeman enters guilty plea

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Former Minneapolis policeman Patrick M. Brady pleaded guilty Tuesday to charges of burglary and receiving or concealing stolen goods.

Hennepin District Judge Harold Kalina ordered an investigation prior to sentencing May 15. Brady faces up to 25 years in prison and $25,000 in fines on the two charges.

Authorities said Brady and a companion were arrested in a suburban office building after hours Jan. 8.

Prediction on genetic structure is confirmed

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Scientists have taken a deep look into the atomic structure of the chemical chain that carries the genetic information for all life.

The detail of what they "saw" confirms beyond any doubt the accuracy of the prediction about the structure made 20 years ago by James D. Watson and Francis Crick.

The Watson-Crick theory about the double helix structure won them a Nobel Prize and formed the basis of modern molecular biology.

Researchers from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology reported today that they have used an X-ray diffraction technique to examine the structure of fragments of genetic material. X-ray diffraction involves bouncing X rays off the structure and determining the detail of that structure by measuring the intensities at which the X-rays bounce at certain angles.

"These structures are the only fragments of double helices yet seen at atomic resolution and they remove any doubts about the correctness of the Watson-Crick hypotheses," the MIT group said.

The measurements were processed by a computer, which produced a plot of the location of the atoms. Comparing the technique to using a microscope, the scientists said they used a computer as a lens.

The research was reported to the 57th annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology by John M. Rosenberg and Nadrian C. Seeman of MIT.

Tobacco growers opposed to bill on cigar taxes

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Reimbursing crime victims by taxing little cigars would hurt Wisconsin tobacco growers, spokesmen for the tobacco business told a Senate committee Tuesday.

Republican Sen. Milo Knutson of La Crosse told the Judiciary Committee that western Wisconsin tobacco, much of it from his district, is used in little cigars.

Knutson spoke in opposition to a proposal which would bring minicigars under the state's definition of cigarettes, making them eligible for a tax of 16 cents per pack.

Sen. James Flynn, D-West Allis, has proposed the tax as a means to raise a fund for compensating victims of crime.

Flynn's bill would grant up to $10,000 to a person injured while trying to stop a crime. It is one of eight such measures before the legislature.

His bill is the only one, however, which proposes a tax on the cigars as a way of raising funds.

A spokesman for tobacco distributors predicted the tax could double the price of little cigars, driving people back to smoking cigarettes.

Solons uninterested in changing wine laws

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota legislators are showing little interest thus far in changing state laws relating to wine.

A Senate subcommittee Tuesday shunted off for interim study a bill allowing the sale of bottled wine in grocery stores.

In earlier action, another committee refused to approve a bill allowing sale of wine by the drink in restaurants licensed to sell only beer.

Under current law, wine is treated the same as hard liquor, meaning it can be sold only in liquor stores.

Committees at odds

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota House and a Senate committee apparently are at odds over whether the state should attempt to regulate sexual activities between consenting adults.

The House defeated a bill Tuesday that would have repealed little enforced state law dealing with such activities. At almost the same time the Senate Judiciary Committee was approving a similar measure.

The House vote was 69-40 against the bill, which would have repealed laws banning sexual intercourse between unmarried persons and homosexual relations between consenting adults.

Despite the defeat, the measure remains on the House "general orders" calendar and can be debated again.

Both the House and Senate bills would change the crime of adultery, making it apply equally to married men and women. Under present law only a married woman could be charged.

The Senate version now goes to the floor, although prospects for either bill appear marginal in view of legislative reluctance shown so far.

The sponsor of the House bill, Rep. Gary Flakne, R-Minneapolis, argued that Minnesota would be following the leads of other states in repealing laws dealing with private sexual practices.

One of the opponents, Rep. M. J. McCauley, R-Winona, said the bill would harm the "moral fiber" of the state. The Senate bill, sponsored by Sen. Robert Tennesen, DFL

Minneapolis, also would repeal several other old statutes—including one making it illegal for persons under 18 to use tobacco.

Passage of the Senate version would in effect, allow children of any age to buy cigarettes.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace has started walking with aid from crutches and braces.

The governor, 53, has been paralyzed from the waist down since being shot in an assassination attempt in May 1972. He plans to demonstrate his progress in public sometime in the future, spokesmen say.

15-point tax package introduced in house

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—A 15-point tax package was introduced Tuesday by Chairman Raymond Pavlak of the House Tax Committee. The bill incorporates most of Gov. Wendell Anderson's tax proposals.

Among its major provisions is a $61.4 million expansion of the Homestead Credit Law, giving more property tax relief to homeowners.

Under the bill, state funds would pay 45 per cent of a homeowner's property taxes, to a maximum of $350. The current limit is 35 per cent and $250.

This bill has already passed the House as a separate item but inclusion in the omnibus tax bill means the issue will be fought out in a Senate-House tax conference committee.

Other major provisions of the House tax plan:

- Expansion of renter credits to $120, up from the present $90. This costs $14.6 million.
- State payment of all property taxes for senior citizens as they rise above present levels. This is termed a freeze on property taxes for senior citizen homeowners.
- Increased tax credits for senior citizens, raising the income threshold to $8,000, up from the present $5,000.
- A freeze on reassessment of all property.
- Changes in state aids to local governments, abolishing certain state taxes now shared with local governments.
- Exemption of textbooks, returnable beverage containers, newsprint and ink and advertising material shipped out of state from the state sales tax.
- The bank excise tax would be kept at 13.64 per cent rather than dropping to 12 per cent in July as scheduled under present law.
- Repeal of income tax reciprocity with Wisconsin and

No-fault compromise will be introduced

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—A proposed compromise on no-fault auto insurance is being introduced to the legislature, Rep. Dennis Conta, D-Milwaukee, said Tuesday.

Conta said it would require insurance companies to pay reasonable hospital and medical costs up to $3,000 per person and a maximum of $750 per month for loss of income.

The bill also would require a death benefit payment of $5,000 and $1,500 for funeral expenses, he said.

North Dakota, affecting persons who live in one state and work in another.

• Establishment of a 50-cent per acre mineral tax, with 80 per cent going to local governments and 20 per cent into a loan fund for economic development on Indian reservations.

The Senate also plans to package various tax and tax relief proposals into an omnibus bill.

The House plan makes no mention of a reduction in the state liquor tax, as proposed last weekend by Senate DFL Leader Nicholas Coleman.

Pavlak said the House Tax Committee will hold extensive hearings on the tax package next week. The House plan is cospensored by House Speaker Martin Sabo and Majority Leader Irvin Anderson.

Pavlak said about 81 per cent of the new homestead credit relief would go to owners of lower-priced homes.

Other portions of the bill would make disabled persons, regardless of age, eligible for the tax credits now granted senior citizens and would boost the minimum fee for filing corporate income taxes from $10 to $300.

This latter provision would cost Minnesota corporations $5.5 million.

Another change alters the law on corporate taxes to benefit small and medium-sized firms based in Minnesota.

Bomb planted in Australian church shatters pews

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—A gelignite bomb planted in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Cathedral exploded during evening mass Tuesday night.

The 30 worshippers were unhurt, but the blast splintered 10 heavy wooden pews, badly damaged six confessionals and cracked stained glass windows at the rear of the cathedral. A priest in a confessional was showered with broken glass.

Police say they have no clues to the identity or motive of the bomber.

The blast follows similar explosions in a betting agency and a hotel on Monday and one in a newspaper office Saturday night. No one has been hurt.

Equity Funding collapse seen as example of wider problem

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP)—The uniqueness of the Equity Funding collapse, the factor that sets it apart from other spectacular financial scandals, is the uncanny summary in one case of so many prime business weaknesses and problems.

Involved in the mysterious activities of the California mutual fund-insurance company, as if in a morality play, are the very issues that business and government have somewhat futilely been seeking to resolve on other stages. All to be reviewed, if not proven or disproven, in this case:

Conflicts of interest, reliability of auditors, the "performance game," adequacy of Wall Street research, effectiveness of government regulation, abuse of the little investor.

The key allegation by the Securities and Exchange Commission is that the firm made a massive and prolonged effort to alter its books and records to show business that didn't exist. Specifically, it is alleged Equity Funding Life Insurance Co., a subsidiary, sold fictitious policies to other insurance companies, the purpose being to obtain immediate cash in exchange for a portion of future premiums.

In this manner, says the California Insurance Department, 50,000 policies were created and sold for $25 million. This gave the appearance of a booming business, an appearance eagerly accepted by the financial community.

About 100 banks, fascinated by the possible price appreciation in the company's shares, now are left holding millions of shares. So are scores of brokers and thousands of their clients.

But the Equity drama is larger than the particular actors and plot. It is pocked with symbols.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST? Was there or wasn't there? Raymond Dirks, a stock analyst, suspected that Equity's business was inflated and reported the same to his clients, some of whom may have sold out before regulatory officials were informed.

Two issues develop from this: To whom was Dirks' primarily obligated, to clients or to regulatory officials? Does acting on this information constitute a violation of regulations limiting insider trading?

RELIABILITY OF AUDITORS. As in earlier cases, such as those involving Billie Sol Estes, and Tino De Angeles, certified public accountants accepted paper said to represent assets without questioning the authenticity of the paper.

Just as no auditor binged on De Angeles' salad oil tanks to find if they gave off a hollow sound, nobody in the Equity case sought the bodies behind the policies.

THE PERFORMANCE GAME. Equity was beloved on Wall Street. It was a fast-moving stock offering big capital gains potential, especially for capital-rich institutions. The latter helped greatly to elevate the price.

Equity management, like any other performance-minded management, knew that capital of this sort ceased once a company's growth slowed. It knew also that if its shares slumped its acquisition programs would die. And so it performed.

WALL STREET RESEARCH. While much is highly professional and involves personal, on-site investigation, some is superficial and much just hearsay.

As has happened before, there is a strong suggestion that Wall Street had its eyes on the price action rather than on fundamental values. At a time when it is seeking to rebuild its image it has earned another blotch.

GOVERNMENT REGULATION. With financial conglomerates growing, who's in charge? Who is the primary regulator: state insurance departments, banking departments, Securities and Exchange Commission?

LITTLE INVESTOR. Did any brokerage house make a concerted effort to call small investors and inform them of developments? Did brokers tell the little guy of the same suspicions they relayed to the big institutions?

Banks told to devise dual lending rates

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's commercial banks have been told to devise dual prime lending rates for large and small businesses.

In announcing the plan Monday, the administration's Committee on Interest and Dividends said banks should freeze interest rates on loans for small businesses, increasing them only when justified fully by increased costs.

The rate for loans to large businesses will be allowed to respond more flexibly to changes in money market conditions, although the committee cautioned against increases that would have "disruptive market effects."

The committee noted it had no authority to force banks to comply with the dual prime rate plan, but it was made clear that banks are expected to do so nevertheless. The plan is effective immediately.

Banks also were told that any increases in their over-all structure of lending rates "must in no instance lead to undue increases" in their profit margins. This margin was defined as the average domestic earnings in the best two years of the four preceding calendar years.

Firefighter at Lanesboro retires after 28 years

LANESBORO, Minn. (Special)—Arnold Holthe, Lanesboro, who is retiring after 28 years of active service in the Lanesboro volunteer fire department, has been presented a check by Charles St. Marie, president of the Lanesboro Relief Association.

Holthe joined the department Sept. 6, 1945.

In addition to his regular duties, he built a six-man cab on a truck for rural fires, built tables for the fire hall, refurbished a desk that had been donated and made name plates and a bulletin board for the meeting hall.

He is considered the "cole slaw man" by members of the department since he always had charge of making the slaw for the firemen's annual chicken barbecue dinner.

He and his wife, Ruth, have two sons.

Two new members have joined the department. Tom Heath replaces Holthe and Hans Torgerson fills another vacancy. Lynn Iverson is chief.

In Tahiti

Millionaire beachbums hustle even harder now

MOOREA, French Polynesia (AP)—Kelley, Muk and Jay, the millionaire beachbums from California, just opened their third Bali Hai, and they're already planning two more.

It's almost like working, the hotelmen say. "I love it," says Don McCallum, dispensing what he calls his Mukian philosophy. "Every person who gets off that boat is worth at least ten dollars, even day trippers. It's like Christmas every day."

Actually, added Hugh Kelley later, "we're not in this for money—we had to stay in Tahiti some way. . . Yeah, you can say we're worth more than a million now."

Kelley, McCallum and Jay Carlisle used to listen to Tahitian mandolins together in Newport Beach and work over the Great American Dream of a South Seas paradise.

One slow season Kelley left his law practice long enough to sail down. He came back and lasted a half a day in the office. Not long afterward, in 1960, all three were in Tahiti looking for work.

Eventually they scraped up money to buy a collapsing little hotel on Moorea, maybe the most beautiful island in the world, and the rest is legend wherever travel snobs meet. The Moorea Bali Hai, and the new ones on the other Tahiti outer islands of Huahine and Raiatea are jammed.

People know the trio in Rio, Mexico City and Bangkok where they show up for steam-releasing vacations with entourages of a dozen Tahitian love-lies, guitar players and drink pourers.

Muk, noted for counting empty tin cans in the hotel kitchen at home, has been known on trips to order 75 screwdriver drinks before lunch for himself and everyone else within shouting distance.

But, in their remote tropical paradise, they hustle harder than they ever have.

Muk shambles bare-chested and barefoot through the dining room smiling at Ohio tourists, but he's up at dawn watering the lawn and it's after 8 p.m. before he gets home.

Kelley sneaks off to ride his motorcycle up Moorea's mind-boggling mountains but more frequently he is conjuring up glass-bottom bungalows and hauling cement.

Though Jay grins easily and leans at ladies, he spends hours in a cluttered backroom counting deliveries from their egg ranch—a side project—and worrying about exchange rates.

All of them, each around 40 now, clearly work hard at the gay bachelor approach.

"When we started we didn't know anything about running a hotel," Kelley said. "We just decided to make it like a place we would like to stay in."

The Moorea hotel, the biggest at 47 rooms, is still run like a giant bachelor pad with guest facilities.

Muk loves people, but he has a W. C. Fields aversion to children and dogs. One traveler asked if the hotel had facilities for dogs and he replied, "Yes, a burlap sack, a 25 pound rock and 80 feet of water."

Brennan reported to carry pistol now and then

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pistol packin' Pete? Only occasionally says an aide to Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan, who has confirmed that Brennan carries a pistol tucked in his waist.

Brennan's press secretary, Thomas J. Costigan, said Monday that Brennan had a gun permit in New York and transferred it to Washington when he took over his new job. Brennan was the president of the New York Building and Construction Trades Council.

"He goes into a lot of tough areas," Costigan said. "When you think about it, it saves the Secret Service protection."

Costigan said Brennan occasionally carries the pistol and usually takes it with him when he goes back and forth to New York. He said he was unaware of any threats ever being made against Brennan's life.

Brennan has hired several special private guards to patrol the Labor Department's third floor where he has his office.

Court clerk issue is left up to voters

By VI BENECKE
Daily News Area Editor
ALMA, Wis. — The late of the Buffalo County Clerk of Court, who has been accused by the Buffalo County Board of Commissioners of keeping more than $1,400 in fees, has been left up to the electorate as the result of a resolution passed by the board Tuesday afternoon.

Vendor Steinke, who is serving his seventh term as clerk of court, has been charged with keeping fees earned while providing services for the Buffalo County Abstract Co.

COUNTY BOARD members felt that this matter had been properly brought before the electorate and that they should decide at the next election (September 1974) whether or not the action of Steinke was proper.

It was resolved that upon Steinke repaying Buffalo County sums which he received for services to Fern F. Pearson, an abstractor, that all matters relating to such services and sums be fully and completely terminated.

Before the resolution was put to a vote, a commissioner asked the committee to give a report on its findings.

"The resolution is their report," stated Chairman Otto Bollinger, Mondovi.

"The committee feels the resolution is our only alternative," offered Committee Chairman Duane E. Baertsch, Fountain City.

THE RESOLUTION, submitted by Chairman Baertsch, Sidney C. Johnson, Durand Rt. 2, and Ed Sendelbach, Cochrane, was approved by all 14 board members after Edmons Accola, Mondovi, moved to accept it.

Steinke's attorney, Bill Koslo, Arcadia, was present for the reading. After the resolution was passed he left the room, without having made any comment.

The resolution contains the following information:

• "Steinke receives a salary in lieu of all fees and all monies received by him in behalf of the county.

• "For several years past Steinke has signed certificates as to judgments and liens for the benefit of Fern F. Pearson, an abstractor who prepares abstracts covering Buffalo County lands.

• "Such certificates referred to judgments and liens and required Steinke to examine records in his office, which examination of such records were not associated in any manner with his duties as clerk.

• "Steinke has claimed such sums to be for services outside the scope of his duties as clerk and that he is entitled to such sums.

• "The county board has claimed that such sums are fees properly belonging to Buffalo County; that this claim is based upon a county board resolution dated Jan. 1, 1971, that this resolution provides the clerk of court's salary shall be in lieu of all fees and monies received by him in behalf of the county.

• "There is a valid dispute as to whether or not such fees are legally the property of Buffalo County or Steinke.

• "Legal opinions on said questions are not in agreement as to the applicable law.

• "Steinke is agreeable to having the electorate decide whether his action was proper and is willing to continue performing the services in question and to submit the monies received to the county.

• "Steinke is desirous of effecting a termination of all proceedings and activities with reference to such fees and, if requested, has offered to return such fees to Buffalo County.

IN OTHER action resolutions were approved:

Transferring $4,000 from the general fund to the Buffalo County Soil Conservation District #11 program fund for such programs that are approved by the Buffalo County Soil and Water Conservation District Supervisors and the Wisconsin Soil Conservation Board.

Authorizing the Buffalo County Law Enforcement Committee as an arm of the county highway committee to trade in a law enforcement automobile.

Transferring $4,000 from the general fund to the law enforcement fund so funds will be available to trade the automobile.

It was explained that the purchasing committee has been buying the cars and that it would be advantageous to have the law enforcement committee have the power to make purchases without having to come to the county board first. "We only have two cars in service," said Bollinger, "and you never know what might come up. One of them has 60,000 miles and the other, 55,000."

LEGISLATION was approved on fish and game funding shares with the state and authorization for an access road and parking lot in the Tiffany Wildlife Area, in the town of Nelson, for up to $4,000, the remainder of allotted fund to be used for bounties.

The board resolved that a transfer of $2,304 be made from the general fund to the county fish and game project fund to pay the county's 50 percent cost.

Eugene Kohlmeier, of the Department of Natural Resources, in answer to a question on maintenance, stated that land owned by the state has to be maintained by the state.

A request from the cooperative office education advisory committee at Alma High School to appropriate funds for employing cooperative office education students in county offices was referred to the personnel committee for further study and recommendation.

Mrs. Reathel M. Rothering, cooperative office education coordinator at Alma, stated that the advisory committee had recommended the placement of qualified high school seniors in county offices where the work load would justify the hiring of a part-time student for 15 hours per week.

"Alma High School is the only high school in the county currently sponsoring a cooperative education program," she pointed out.

Mrs. Rothering explained that the Buffalo County Courthouse offices have had cooperative office education students working in their offices during the past two years under the Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC) program, where their salaries are paid by NYC.

These students have special needs, she pointed out, and are not typical of the quality of student that the Buffalo County courthouse offices could employ if they were paying the salary of the student trainee. By sponsoring the salary of the student, the Buffalo County courthouse offices could interview and receive first quality student trainees.

BOARD members were asked to consider the appropriation of salaries for at least three cooperative students. The amount of the appropriation could be at two-thirds minimum wage if application for such payment had been received by the state and federal labor offices.

Maximum number of students for the one-year program at Alma High School is 10. It is open to only seniors. Plans are being made to have boys participate, starting Sept. 1.

Commissioners accepted a report submitted by the highway committee for aid on county roads and county bridges, and they were granted.

Discussion centered on the possibility of appointing a county surveyor rather than electing one, as is the present procedure.

Bollinger stated that it would be advisable to have from $2,500 to $5,000 in the budget to begin a survey.

"This would be an advantage to the county and taxpayers," he pointed out. A surveyor would establish an office, be here one day a week, and set up a file on markers.

"I don't want to set up a large budget," Bollinger said. "But it would be a good idea to get started on a small scale."

Chavez to ask Meany to stop worker talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmworker union leader Cesar Chavez planned an appeal to George Meany today for AFL-CIO help in stopping the Teamsters union from taking over field worker contracts in California.

Chavez has accused the growers and the Teamsters of collusion in attempts to crush the United Farm Workers Union.

He also charged in a news conference Tuesday that lettuce growers had made illegal payoffs to the Teamsters from 1971 through early 1972 to finance "goon squads" to harass farmworker organizers.

Chavez, founder and now chief of the UFW, said he will ask Meany to denounce the Teamsters activities in Coachella Valley where, last week-end, they said they had assigned contracts with 30 of the 32 grape growers who had had contracts with Chavez' union.

About 90 per cent of the workers struck the vineyards, Chavez said, but "green carders"—Mexican workers who cross into the United States on daily permits—are massed at the border to replace the strikers.

"The Teamsters are trying to destroy our union," Chavez said. "The Teamsters union in farm labor is nothing but a company union that makes sweetie art contracts with growers."

Volunteers

This is the first of what will be a weekly column listing city and area organizations needing volunteers.

For those who would donate a portion of their time in helping others, there are several opportunities.

Any organization, institution or individual may submit brief information for the column. Requests to include telephone information will be considered on an individual basis.

The following is a list of opportunities for service in the Winona Volunteer Services Program. Further information on these and other opportunities for unsalaried service is available by calling 452-5581.

FRIENDLY VISITORS — Mature people are needed to engage in activities with the elderly.

MEAL DELIVERERS — Men or women are needed to deliver hot meals to elderly people. Must be done between 11 a.m. and noon.

TRANSPORTATION AIDES — Men and women are needed to provide necessary transportation to people with medical or other problems.

TELEPHONE RECEPTIONISTS — Answers Winona Volunteer Services phone in the afternoons, serves as information and referral source for those interested in volunteer activities.

Medicare limits being relaxed

As of July 1, people 65 years old and over who have not been eligible for Medicare hospital insurance may be eligible.

According to Victor E. Bertel, social security district manager, Winona, recent amendments to the social security law has made this possible.

PREVIOUSLY, to receive Medicare hospital insurance persons 65 or over had to be either eligible for social security payments or have a certain amount of social security work credits. Under the new amendments, they may now purchase Medicare hospital insurance. They must also sign up for the medical insurance part of Medicare, however.

Persons who will become 65 after June 1 and are not otherwise eligible for hospital insurance will have a 7-month period to apply for both the hospital and medical insurance of Medicare. They may apply during the three months before their 65th birthday, during the birthday month, or during the three months following. To receive coverage beginning with the month of the birth date, they must apply during the three months previous, Bertel says.

AS OF JULY, Medicare will also be extended to disabled workers under 65 receiving monthly disability payments for social security or railroad retirement for two years or more, and to people with chronic kidney disease.

Information may be obtained from the Winona Social Security Office, 356 E. Sarnia.

GUEST POET. . . Miss Diane Wakoski, a young poet with many credits, was on the Winona State College campus to conduct two poetry reading sessions. The event was part of the WSC Concert and Lectures Series. Miss Wakoski has published seven volumes of poetry and plans call for several more books to be published in the next 18 months. ## Contemporary poet—

Poetry meant to be read aloud

By RICK GRAF
Daily News Intern

A contemporary poet who has published seven volumes of poetry spoke to Winona State College students Tuesday afternoon and evening as part of the WSC Concerts and Lectures Series.

Miss Diane Wakoski, whose concept of her poetry workshops is "an informal presentation of my ideas and feelings about my poetry and contemporary poetry in general," has received numerous awards since her career began. She has presented readings for the Academy of American Poets, received a Cultural Council Foundation of New York state grant for the continuation of her writing and has been a member of the Breadloaf Writers Conference staff.

MISS WAKOSKI, who claims to have been influenced by the San Francisco poetry credo that says poetry is meant to be read aloud, explained: "I believe that in some way contemporary poetry is connected with the oral presentation of it. I feel that it's less and less possible for a poet to write his poetry and be satisfied with the idea that it would never be read aloud."

The poet went on to explain, "I don't think this has anything to do with people's ego-needs, but with what the craft is all about. I think we write our poetry to be read aloud. The real 'why' is as complex as the 'why' to why people write poetry," commented Miss Wakoski.

When asked where she received the inspiration for two of her most outstanding works, "Canoe" and "Caves" (especially "Caves" in which she is the cave being affected by a spelunker), she replied that she is very interested in the naturalistic use of imagery and taking the landscape and internalizing it. She does not claim to be a nature poet but does use natural imagery in her poems since she feels we are part of nature.

Miss Wakoski wrote the poem "Caves" when she was in Mallorca for the first time. Having disliked caves, she found her self identifying with them for the first time. She wrote "Canoe" when she was in upstate New York "feeling the whole sense of the woods and water there."

ASKED ABOUT her poems being "autobiography," Miss Wakoski commented that her poetry is autobiographical without being autobiographical. The notion that poetry is personal or autobiographical fosters the idea that anything you feel is worth writing about. "I think that's a false premise for a writer," commented the young woman.

Referring to her work, "The Motorcycle Betrayer Poems," Miss Wakoski asserted that "the most useful structure for poetry is reliance on archetypal images, ideas, symbols and metaphors. You will not only find a lot of moons and mustaches in my poems, you will also find a lot of stars, suns, minerals and male and female symbols like the cave."

"I stick to archetypal images in order to convey my ideas," she remarked.

Miss Wakoski will have two books published in the next 18 months by Doubleday and another from Black Sparrow Press.

Afflicted? Try the power of the press

DEAR ABBY: Concerning that woman in Twin Falls, Idaho, who wrote complaining that no doctors in that town would deliver her baby without full payment in advance: She said a neighbor of hers who had been seeing a doctor all along suddenly found that he refused to deliver until he was paid in full.

I was a bit surprised that she hadn't gone to the newspaper. A newspaper is the public watchdog. It is the obligation of newsmen to bark when the general welfare of the public is endangered.

Sounds like a weak bunch of money-hungry newsmen up there who are afraid to let anything in their paper that may make an advertiser unhappy. The advertisers then become the controlling element of the press.

This situation should be fully covered in stories and editorials.

Each doctor in the town should be contacted by a reporter and his story put into print. In this action it is likely that one or more will turn up that do not subscribe to the mercenary policy described.

What is our society coming to if money, or the lack of it, determines if you have the right to live or die? Nowadays, the colleges that give these doctors their education and the hospitals in which they get their experience are largely supported by our tax dollar.

If the newsmen in that area lack the intestinal fortitude to get this story in and get it in accurately, they have no right to call themselves newsmen. They lack commitment to the profession and to the public they serve. They are an insult to the professionals in the field.

That woman should camp on the managing editor's desk until he puts one or more competent reporters on the story and either proves her wrong or exposes the situation for what it is. This is the obligation of the paper to the community.

AN OLD SCHOOL MANAGING EDITOR

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR OLD: Hold it! The TIMES-NEWS in Twin Falls did exactly that. With no prompting from me or anyone else.

DEAR ABBY: Our son, Ronny, will be 5 on Dec. 27, 1973. According to the laws of this state, a child who is 5 years old by Jan. 1, 1974, is eligible for kindergarten in September of 1973.

I'm afraid if we start Ronny in kindergarten in September he will not only be the youngest, but the smallest child in his class.

He is very bright, but his father and I are both small, and Ronny is very small for his age. Do you think he will feel handicapped if he's the shortest boy in his class?

My husband thinks we should wait a year. Then Ronny will have an extra year to grow, and maybe he won't be so much smaller than his classmates. One problem is that all of his playmates in the neighborhood will be starting kindergarten this September and he wants to start, too.

RONNY'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Let Ronny start school with his friends. His mental growth is more important than his physical growth. And stop making an issue of how small he is. It may not occur to Ronny to feel handicapped because of his size unless you suggest it.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I wanted to end my life so I took an overdose of sleeping pills. My father came home and found me unconscious and rushed me to a hospital.

In order to save my life, they stuck a long tube down my throat and in so doing they impaired my vocal chords. Now I can scarcely speak above a whisper. People are always asking me if I have laryngitis.

Sometimes I say yes, but sometimes it gets so annoying I just tell them to mind their own business. What should I tell people?

ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: It's not necessary to explain. Simply say, "It's a chronic condition." That should suffice.

DEAR ABBY: I don't wish to revive the controversy about how often a woman should bathe, but history records the fact that Cleopatra never took a bath in her life, and she seemed to get along O.K. with the boys.

J. IN PAULS VALLEY, OKLA.

DEAR J.: Where, pray, is this "fact" recorded? If it is indeed true, I'll bet the ASP died too.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69709, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The dinner will be served from 5:30 to 8 p.m., with Mrs. Bradford Johnson in charge of arrangements. Tickets will be sold at the door.

A mother-daughter banquet will be held May 14 at the Eagles Club. Reservations must be made by May 11 with Mrs. Johnson or Mrs. A. M. Madigan. Tickets are available at the club.

A class of candidates was initiated Monday evening by the degree team who exemplified the initiatory ceremony and drill team floor work.

Officers were nominated. The election will be held at the May 7 meeting.

Your horoscope—Jeane Dixon

For THURSDAY, April 19
Your birthday today: Progress this year requires serious thought and patience. Any changes now are temporary phases on the way to some more advanced development. Today's natives seek responsibility, but are often impractical.

Aries (March 21-April 19): De-clutter your working place. Review your wardrobe and plan replacements. Defer new ventures a few days more.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Smooth over any recent differences. Help comes in disguise today. The trick is to recognize and make use of it.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Get out your appointment and address books. Get busy organizing a fresh schedule and take care of all correspondence.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Get out and away from it all for a while. Note that problems are not as big as you thought.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Take a long moment for a look at the past. Recent insights may put history into a different perspective for you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You're ahead of the crowd by simply buckling down to work and clearing off unfinished business.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Recovery is today's theme. Collect whatever is owed you. Sell or give away any surplus items.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Self-possession attracts support and confidence even from strangers. Vigorously attempt some long-postponed creative or corrective action.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not let the quiet quality of today lull you into laziness. Stir yourself, attend neglected chores.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your projects bring rewards proportionate to what you put into them. It's better to go it alone today.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Set things right early at work; later hours are just as well spent taking a fresh look at your home.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): It's a day for reconsideration. Meditation opens the way. Reach out to make amends wherever needed.

Blair mother daughter banquet held

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — Approximately 160 mothers and daughters attended a banquet Saturday evening at the North Beaver Creek First Lutheran Church. The meal was served by the fathers and sons of the congregation.

Mrs. Allen Moen was mistress of ceremonies. Mrs. Herman Madland gave the toast to the daughters, Miss Janice Steine gave the toast to the mothers and Miss Lisa Blom gave the toast to the grandmothers.

Joy and Patti Vehrenkamp and Peggy and Terry Tollefson sang two numbers during the program and six girls presented a bouquet to the mothers.

Dawn Sevold represented a daisy, Dawn Johnson a tulip, Tonda Tollefson a lily, Sarah Graff a violet, Joan Johnson a rose and Cindy Fredrickson was narrator.

Lynne and Suzanne Knudsen presented two vocal numbers and Miss Barbara Sevold presented a reading on the "Fabrics of Love."

The main theme of the banquet was the pattern for living with a style show presented.

The women modeled clothing made for themselves and their daughters. There was also a table of handiwork.

Modeling in the mother and daughter class were: Mrs. Larry Thompson, Cheryl, Karen and Julie; Mrs. Robert Rush, Kristin and Melissa; Mrs. Darwin Peters and Karwin; Mrs. Allen Moen and Angela and Mrs. Helmer Tranberg, Lynne and Suzanne. Prizes were received by Mrs. Moen and Angela, first, and Mrs. Peters and Karwin, second.

In the daughters' style show, wearing clothing made by their mothers, grandmothers and themselves were Miss Lori Brynildson, Miss Susan Sampson, Miss Pam Sampson, Miss Lisa Kraemer, Miss Sherry Sampson and Miss Lisa Blom. Prizes went to Miss Sherry Sampson for a white blazer and to Miss Lisa Blom for a dress and jumper made by her mother.

In the miscellaneous division models were Mrs. Roy Blom, coat; Mrs. Harold Tenneson, floor-length dress; Mrs. Basil Finch, coat and dress ensemble; Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, street-length dress; Mrs. Herman Madland, floor-length skirt; Miss Gloria Tollefson, two-piece suit; Mrs. Edna Twesme, pants suit; Mrs. Archie Tranberg, knitted shawl and Miss Susan Sampson, white floor-length prom formal. Prizes in the group went to Mrs. Finch, first, Miss Susan Sampson, second, and third to Mrs. Blom.

In the handiwork category — afghans, first to Mrs. James Brynildson and second to Mrs. Myron Noren; knitted work — first to Mrs. James Brynildson for a knitted dress and second to Mrs. Harrison Peters for a knitted cape; miscellaneous work — first to Mrs. John Hughes for a Norwegian crewel worked wall hanging, second to Mrs. Herman Madland for a Norwegian crewel worked pillow and third to Mrs. William Mattson for a picture made of old jewelry and lights.

Judges for the contest were Mrs. Harold Aasland, Ettrick; Mrs. Walter Kling, Taylor, and Mrs. Erling Carlsen and Mrs. Maynard Larson, Blair.

Waseca clerk pleads guilty to embezzlement

WASECA, Minn. (AP) — Waseca County Clerk of Court Lawrence Krause has pleaded guilty to embezzlement of public funds in connection with a $1,655 shortage in the office accounts that showed up last January.

District Judge Glenn E. Kelly of Winona sentenced him Tuesday to three years in prison but stayed the sentence for probation. As a condition of the probation, Krause is to resign and spend 60 days in the county jail.

Krause repaid the funds. He had been charged with two counts of embezzlement and one of theft, but the other charges were dismissed.

One of the highlights of a recent trip to New Orleans was a visit to small Creole sausage plant. Very much a family affair, it is housed in a neat white frame building behind the family home. Here, in a spotlessly clean kitchen, the owner and his young cousin produce several kinds of sausages and a superb headcheese, all from family recipes. Although the Creole sausage and headcheese are closely guarded secrets, he generously shared with us his uncle's recipe for Italian sausage.

ITALIAN SAUSAGE

1 1/2 lb. ground pork
1 lb. ground beef
1 tablespoon salt
1 1/2 teaspoons white pepper
3/4 cup grated Romano cheese
1 small tomato, peeled and chopped
2 tablespoons pimiento, chopped
1 teaspoon garlic salt
3 green onions, finely chopped (green part only)
1 1/2 teaspoons anise seed, ground
3/4 cup dry bread crumbs
3/4 cup water

Mix all the ingredients together with hands. The bread crumbs and water make it stick together better. If it's too stiff to work well, add a few drops more water. The sausage needs a few hours to develop its flavors to the fullest. Go ahead and stuff casings at once, but if you plan to make patties, cover and refrigerate for at least four hours. Then dampen hands with cold water and form into patties about 3" across and 1/2" thick. Makes about 12. Can be frozen and kept up to 3 months.

To cook, saute slowly in skillet until brown on both sides and done clear through. Serve for breakfast with eggs or supper with hot cinnamon-spiked applesauce.

Church Women United plan May luncheon

Church Women United have announced that the May Fellowship Luncheon will be held May 4 at Central Lutheran Church, at 1 p.m. with the theme "Hand Touches Hand." Sisters of the College of Saint Teresa are in charge of the program.

The Triennial CWU meeting and luncheon will be held April 30.

Mrs. H. O. Shackell reported on her visit to the Main House and explained that the home needs slipcovers and other items. Also, many of the boys are in need of jobs including yard work and other odd jobs.

Waseca clerk pleads guilty to embezzlement

WASECA, Minn. (AP) — Waseca County Clerk of Court Lawrence Krause has pleaded guilty to embezzlement of public funds in connection with a $1,655 shortage in the office accounts that showed up last January.

District Judge Glenn E. Kelly of Winona sentenced him Tuesday to three years in prison but stayed the sentence for probation. As a condition of the probation, Krause is to resign and spend 60 days in the county jail.

Krause repaid the funds. He had been charged with two counts of embezzlement and one of theft, but the other charges were dismissed.

Warriors beat, tie Gophers

By STAN SCHMIDT
Daily News Sports Editor

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Winona State made some big mistakes in the early innings, but the underdog Warriors kept pecking away at the University of Minnesota.

And they kept pecking away enough to beat the Gophers, for the first time in WSC's history.

WSC, thanks to Ron Evjen's bases empty home run in the top of the seventh, trimmed Minnesota 3-2 in the first game of a nonconference doubleheader here at Bierman Field Tuesday afternoon. The nightcap ended in a 3-3 deadlock after nine innings of play when the game was called because of darkness.

THE VICTORY STRETCHED WSC's winning streak to five in a row and boosted its record to 7-9-1. The Gophers fell to 9-11-2.

"We did some things very well," beamed WSC coach Gary Grob. "Our pitching and hitting was good, but the thing that was best earlier in the year hurt us — our defensive infield."

The Warriors committed five errors, three leading to four Gopher runs. But WSC did outpitch the Gophers, 6-4 in the first game and 6-3 in the second.

"Winona's got a hell of a club," Minnesota coach Dick Siebert said. "We were outcoached, outthrust and outsmarted. Winona should have won both games."

"I'M SURE WE weren't ready for Winona. It's hard to get the kids up for a game like this because most of the state college teams aren't any good."

The Gophers jumped out to an early lead in the opener by scoring an unearned run in the first inning and stringing together three straight singles in the third inning as starting pitcher Dave Winfield gave up just one hit and struck out six in three innings of work.

Minnesota got its first run without a hit as starter Tad Bothwell issued two walks and the Warrior infield committed two costly errors. In the third, a walk to Joe Comer and singles by Chris Brown, Winfield and Tim Giese brought in the other run.

Minnesota could have scored more in the third, but WSC centerfielder Jeff Youngbauer picked off Comer trying to score on Winfield's rap and then got Winfield trying to reach third on Grice's safety.

BUT LEE BOETTCHER, picking up his second win in three decisions, held Minnesota hitless in the last three innings, striking out five in the process.

And Boettcher got plenty of help from his mates as the Warriors touched losing pitcher Bob Turnbull (1-3) for five hits. In the sixth, Youngbauer and Dave Linbo ripped back-to-back singles and both scored on Jeff Ross' two-out double down the leftfield line. Evjen won it when he slammed a high fastball over the leftfield fence with two outs.

"It was a high fast ball," Siebert admitted. "Turnbull's a low ball pitcher and anytime he gets it up high he's in trouble."

Minnesota got all of its second-game hits in the fourth inning off starter Terry Brecht, but a throwing error by shortstop Evjen was the deciding factor.

WINFIELD, NOW PLAYING leftfield, rapped a lead-off double and Lindsay Hoyer reached on the miscue. John Walseth and relief pitcher Steve Comer then slapped back-to-back doubles before Brecht got Steve Shimek to fly to left. Sam Shea, who replaced Brecht in the fifth, then held Minnesota hitless, striking out four in his five innings of work.

WSC scored one run in the fourth on a single by Ross, a walk and an RBI single by Doug Sauer. Ross, not the fastest man on the team, might have been picked off trying to score, but the relay from centerfielder Joe Comer bounced off the pitcher's mound.

A pair of unearned runs in the sixth tied the game up. Ross singled and pinch runner Dick Sauer was picked off at second, but Bothwell and Doug Sauer drew walks before Ken Herbst replaced Comer on the mound. With two out, pinch hitter Chuck Kjos hit a high pop up to first baseman Brown, who bobbled the ball, allowing the two runs to score.

THE WARRIORS THREATENED again in the eighth, loading the bases before Herbst fanned Evjen and Shea. "It was a good experience for us," Grob, who last week became the winningest coach in WSC history and now boasts a 140-97 record, continued. "It would have been nice to win two, but I'm happy with a win and a tie. It was a very sweet victory."

"The thing I really liked was that we took the game to them and they gave us the game a couple times. We had timely hitting, we didn't panic — we came from behind in both games."

Siebert, in his 26th year at the Gopher helm, agreed. "That's always been our stock in trade," he said. "To take the game to our opponent. But Winona made us look bad today."

The defending champion Warriors will return to conference action this weekend when they host Southwest State in a nine-inning 3 p.m. game Friday and a noon doubleheader Saturday. All three games will be at Gabrych Park.

READY TO REENTER THE LISTS . . . As in the days when a knight was fitted with helmet and armor, Chicago Black Hawks' Keith Magnuson is fitted at the hospital with a special helmet and face guard to protect his broken jaw. Walter Gunzo fits the helmet which will allow Magnuson to rejoin the Hawks in the Stanley Cup playoffs. (AP Photofax)

Hawks chalk up 1st victory

By BUTCH HORN
Daily News Sports Writer

It was anything but artistic, but after a shaky start, Winona High's Winhawks chalked up their first baseball victory of the young season Tuesday as they battered La Crosse Central 8-0.

Greg Zaborowski collected the win as he and Jim Lee combined to limit the Raiders to five hits, while striking out five each.

While the final outcome proved favorable, the initial frame left Winhawk fans wondering.

LOSING PITCHER Andy Christensen led off the first inning with a walk and a throwing error on an attempted sacrifice put La Crosse runners on first and second with no outs.

Finding himself in a jam from the start, Zaborowski came back to strike out the next two Raiders before a high fastball nipped Randy Klar's helmet to load the bases. But the senior left-hander came back to catch John Instefjord looking at a third strike to end the inning.

After weathering a shaky start the Hawks came back in their half of the first inning to chalk up five unearned runs, taking advantage of three La Crosse errors and but one hit.

Karl Kreuzer started the fireworks, reaching first as catcher Steve Otto misplayed a third strike. Greg Scarborough collected the first of his two hits to push Kreuzer into scoring position. Ross Hamernik's slow roller, which Christensen misplayed, scored Kreuzer with the initial run and kept the inning going.

STEVE WISE walked to load the bases and coach Jerry Raddatz went to one of his favorite plays—the suicide squeeze.

"I like to use that play, especially when the hitter has two strikes," Raddatz said. "People relax and you can catch them." Catch them he did.

John Mueller pushed across a run as he reached on a fielder's choice and Jim Wright collected an RBI when he attempted to sacrifice and wound up on first. The inning ended with another attempted squeeze which was popped up and turned into a double play.

ZABOROWSKI settled down to collect two more strikeouts and give up two hits in his remaining work, giving way to Lee in the fourth. Lee ran into a little trouble in the sixth, but preserved the shutout with five strikeouts and just three free passes.

Christensen gave way to Klar in the fourth and the Raider right-hander set the Hawks down in order, striking out four, in his two innings of work.

Jim Altman came on in the sixth for the Raiders and the Hawks touched him for three additional scores on Gary Ahren's second hit of the day, another single from Scarborough's bat, two walks and a costly throwing error.

Raddatz was pleased with the outcome of Tuesday's contest but pointed out that his charges still need a lot of work. "We've been inside too long and have to get some game experience to really get things going."

The Hawks were to host La Crosse Logan today at Gabrych Park at 4 p.m. and will travel to Red Wing for their first Big Nine Conference game Thursday at 4 p.m.

CAUGHT IN RUNDOWN . . . Reggie Smith of the Boston Red Sox tries to duck the tag of Dick McAuliffe, Detroit Tigers' second baseman, during this third inning action in Tuesday's game at Fenway Park. Smith was caught in a rundown between first and second. Detroit won 6-3. (AP Photofax)

Danny Walton, nice guy to have in pinch

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Danny Walton's a nice guy to have in a pinch.

And Tony Oliva's a nice guy to have on the bench—especially when he's the one who suggests that Walton might be better by getting off of it.

Oliva, always a potent man with a bat but less than agile in the field because of recurrent knee ailments, was made for the role of designated hitter.

But going into the bottom of the seventh inning Tuesday, with Minnesota trailing the California Angels 3-1 and trying to get something going, Oliva thought perhaps someone else might be better suited for the job.

A few minutes later the Twins really had something going. They'd cut the California lead to 2-2. Steve Barber, a left-hander, had come on in relief of Bill Singer for the Angels, the bases were loaded, and Oliva was due up.

It was Walton who got the nod this time. "It doesn't bother me to be pinch-hit for," said Oliva, who had never been pinch-hit for in his major league career. "I know when I can hit and when I can't."

Quilici obviously knew when Walton could hit. "It was just thinking fly ball," the pinch-hitter said. That's what he hit, too, except it landed in the left field seats, a grand-slam home run that highlighted an eight-run explosion and carried Minnesota to a 10-5 victory.

In other American League games, the Chicago White Sox clubbed Texas 10-5, the Detroit Tigers beat Boston 6-3, the Baltimore Orioles defeated the New York Yankees 4-2, the Cleveland Indians topped Milwaukee 7-3 and, in 14 innings, the Kansas City Royals tripped Oakland 5-4.

In the National League, Pittsburgh nipped St. Louis 4-3 in 14 innings, the Chicago Cubs shaded the New York Mets 1-0, Philadelphia dumped Montreal 6-4, Cincinnati blanked San Diego 3-0, Los Angeles whipped Houston 7-2 and, in a doubleheader, San Francisco swept Atlanta 15-2 and 2-0.

Bill Melton also had a memorable homer Tuesday—the 100th of his major league career. It was a two-run shot deep into the upper deck in left field that triggered a five-run Chicago blitz in the fifth inning which assured them of victory over the Rangers.

The Red Sox out-homered the Tigers 3-2, with Carlton Fisk connecting twice and Rico Petrocelli once.

Sparky Lyle, last year's ace of the Yankees' bullpen crew, has been sparking the enemy. On Tuesday night, he gave up a gamebreaking homer to Baltimore's Earl Williams in the eighth inning, the first in the American League for the former Atlanta catcher.

Oscar Gamble led the Indians over Milwaukee with a triple and two singles as he scored two runs and drove in one.

Cookie Rojas had a pair of runs batted in apiece against Oakland, but Hal McRae had the one that meant the most for the Royals. It was a 14th-inning single that sent the defending World Champion A's tumbling to their sixth defeat in eight games.

The Redmen added single runs in the second and third innings of the first game and scored another in the fifth. Then McGuire, who came to St. Mary's from Arizona State at the start of the school year, greeted relief pitcher Bob Gurny with a three-run shot after his teammates had already accounted for two runs in the top of the sixth.

THE TOP TWO BATTERS in St. Mary's order, Gary Santori and Mike Schultz, each went 3-for-4 in the opener with the latter boosting his average to a sizzling .556.

Shhhh, a slip of the lip can sink Stanley Cup ship

NEW YORK (AP) — Shhhh. Mums the word. A slip of the lip can sink a Stanley Cup ship.

At least, that's the approach the Chicago Black Hawks have taken in their National Hockey League semifinal series against the New York Rangers.

Billy Reay, always affable coach of the Black Hawks, had just finished delivering his assessment of Tuesday night's tense 2-1 victory over the Rangers when he permitted about a dozen newsmen into the Chicago dressing room. His parting shot was: "J.P. Bordeleau is our designated speaker."

Ho, ho. A funny line. Bordeleau spent his evening cooling his skates at the end of the Hawks bench. He had no more to do with the outcome than ... er ... than Bobby Hull, who, by the way, is another sore spot with Reay.

In Montreal the Canadiens squared their series with Philadelphia by defeating the Flyers 4-3 on a 50-foot slapshot by defenseman Larry Robinson at 6:45 of sudden death overtime.

The writers dutifully chased after the Hawk heroes—Stan Mikita, who scored the winning goal in the final period, and goaltender Tony Esposito, who blocked all but one of 38 ranger shots.

No go. "I can't say anything," mumbled Esposito. "You have to talk to the coach. It's a league rule. I don't make the rules. I only work here."

One or two of the Black Hawks, chuckling over the affair, did speak to newsmen and Reay caught one microphone going one-one-one with rookie defenseman Phil Russell.

"I told you," shouted the coach, "Bordeleau is the designated speaker. No one else." And with that, Reay gave the newsmen a rather inglorious exit from the dressing room.

It was a silly, embarrassing finale to a tensely, well-played hockey game. Mikita's winning goal came on a rebound on rookie John Marks's shot.

The Hawks had taken the early lead in the game on a first period goal by Jim Pappin that deflected off New York defenseman Jim Neilson's skate.

Walt Tkaczuk balanced that one for the Rangers on a rink-long dash late in the second period, climaxing it with a backhand shot for the tying goal.

That set the stage for Mikita's winner which gave the Hawks a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series that continues Thursday.

Montreal evened its series with Philadelphia on Larry Robinson's tremendous 50-foot slapshot at 6:45 of sudden death overtime.

Houston defeated Los Angeles 3-2 in the only game scheduled in the World Hockey Association playoffs. The victory gave Houston the best-of-7 quarter-final series, four games to two.

Frank Hughes tallied two goals and Murray Hall added what proved to be the winning counter as the Aeros survived a late Sharks rally for the victory.

Robinson's goal, his first in Stanley Cup play, climaxed a rally by the Canadiens after Philadelphia had taken a 2-0 lead. A defenseman Robinson picked up the puck in his own end, took it over the Philadelphia blue line and blasted away at Doug Favell. The long drive beat the Flyer goalie cleanly on the glove side. It was an unassisted goal.

West's late shot wins for Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It is not our game plan to win in the last 30 seconds," declared Coach Bill Sharman of the defending National Basketball Association champion Los Angeles Lakers who have done it twice in a row.

"But," added Sharman quickly, "I'll take all of them."

There were eight seconds left on Tuesday night when Jerry West pumped in a 15-foot shot from the baseline to shove the Lakers to a 101-99 victory over the Golden State Warriors and a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven series for Western honors.

On Sunday, with 28 seconds left, the Lakers scored to go ahead of Chicago and win the opening series finale 95-92.

Warrior Jeff Mullins, who scored a dozen points in the final period and at one time marshalled a nine-point lead, commented:

"We're a better team than they are, but late in a game they have two things going for them—Wilt Chamberlain goes after every ball and West is just a helluva clutch performer."

"But the game should not have been that close."

Coach Al Attles of the Warriors agreed with that last statement and said, "We gave it away. It's upsetting. I can understand not getting a shot off with the 24-second clock running out, but I can't understand an across-the-court pass that goes out of bounds."

He referred to a Rick Barry pass with 28 seconds to go and that wound up a rugged evening for the scoring star of the Warriors who was in foul trouble with five and played only 29 minutes with 17 points.

With 7:05 remaining in the game, the Warriors led 91-92 and from then on were outscored 19-8 as West, Keith Erickson and Jim McMillan led the charge.

The Boston Celtics and the New York Knicks renew their battle for the NBA Eastern Conference tonight in New York. The Knicks, who took a 134-106 drubbing in the opening game of the series on Sunday, hope to rebound on their home court.

The American Basketball Association playoffs also resume tonight with Carolina at Kentucky and Utah at Indiana. Kentucky leads 2-1 in the East division final. Utah holds a similar edge over the Pacers in the West final.

Ramblers drop 3-hour marathon

By BRUCE CLOSWAY
Daily News Sports Writer

Cotter High finally got its first baseball game of the season in Tuesday afternoon, and some three hours and 25 walks later it ended — on a rather sour note for the scattering of fans who managed to endure the marathon affair.

For Cotter's Denny Lynch it was his first official start on the mound, but it didn't exactly develop into a noteworthy occasion. The senior right-hander issued 12 walks, hit one batter and was charged with a throwing error as the Ramblers bowed to Onalaska Luther 8-6 at Gabrych Park.

Lynch's mound opponent, Jeff Selbrede, was not a master of control either, issuing no less than 13 walks. But after his teammates rallied for four runs in the top of the sixth to erase a 6-4 deficit, the hard-throwing sophomore looked like a completely different pitcher.

SALBREDE threw nothing but strikes in the bottom of the sixth and, although he gave up a single to Tom Foreman, finished strong by fanning two of the last three batters he faced.

The game was then called after the Knights had batted in the top of the seventh because of darkness. The one run Luther picked up off relief pitcher Milt Bohm in the inning did not count.

Both Cotter coaches Steve Klinko and Ron Summe agreed that Lynch apparently failed to warm up thoroughly in view of his early wildness. The visitors scored three times in the top of the first on four walks, an error, a wild pitch and a bloop single.

The Ramblers came back in their half of the frame to score twice on five free passes.

BOTH TEAMS collected a run in the second inning and the host team tied it at 4-all in the bottom of the third, again without a hit.

Cotter garnered its first lead of the game in the following inning when Dick Wanek delivered a looping single over a pulled-up infield.

Lynch was able to make the lead stand up until suffering a relapse of wildness in the top of the sixth. He walked Bryan Bluske to start off the inning but disposed of Dave Lauthz on a called third strike. But after that he gave up three more walks clustered around an error by Foreman, and Klinko was forced to resort to his bullpen.

Bohm, a smooth-working freshman who hasn't thrown since his days in the Park-Rec Midway League, came in and threw strikes. But the first two batters he faced hit ground balls that resulted in errors, and Luther was back in the lead.

Cotter was slated for a road game at Plainview (this afternoon at 4:15 with Browne going on the mound).

Badgers drop 7-2 decision

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Five errors which produced three unearned runs helped Southern Illinois University to a 7-2 victory over Wisconsin in a baseball game which ended in rain in the eighth inning Tuesday.

UW southpaw pitcher Andy Otting allowed the Salukis 10 hits in his first defeat against two victories. UW (3-4) faced SIU in a doubleheader today.

Catcher Greg Maltberg had two RBIs for UW, hitting a solo homer and a pair of singles. He was responsible for one of the Badger errors. Otting accounted for two. UW left eight men on base.

Redmen, Luther swap roles in twin bill split

DECORAH, Iowa — St. Mary's and Luther College swapped roles here Tuesday afternoon, each playing the winner in an easy victory.

With Brian McGuire and Marc Welsenberger combining to drive in seven runs, the Redmen breezed to an 11-3 triumph in the opener, but the host team bounced back with some heavy hitting of its own to win the nightcap 11-2 in a game called after six innings.

The split left St. Mary's with a 2-6 record for the season and Coach Max Molock's squad was scheduled to entertain Gustavus Adolphus College in a Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference doubleheader this afternoon at Terrace Heights.

JIM ROLNIECKI, a junior right-hander from Arcadia, went the distance in the opener for St. Mary's to pick up his first win against one setback. He gave up only five hits, but two of them were homers by Luther's third baseman, Gary Johnson. The visitors jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning when sophomore Marc Welsenberger came through with his second home run in three games, a three-run blast off losing pitcher Steve Denner.

Welsenberger clouted a grand slam homer in St. Mary's 12-7 conquest of Macalester College last Saturday.

The Redmen added single runs in the second and third innings of the first game and scored another in the fifth. Then McGuire, who came to St. Mary's from Arizona State at the start of the school year, greeted relief pitcher Bob Gurny with a three-run shot after his teammates had already accounted for two runs in the top of the sixth.

THE TOP TWO BATTERS in St. Mary's order, Gary Santori and Mike Schultz, each went 3-for-4 in the opener with the latter boosting his average to a sizzling .556.

But the Redmen's starting pitcher in the nightcap, Stan Zielski, never survived the second inning. He was touched for just two hits, but four walks and an error on Tom Schultz in left enabled the Norsemen to take a quick 3-1 lead.

St. Mary's had gone in front 1-0 in the top of the second on a single by McGuire, a wild pitch and a single by Greg Miller.

Luther, now 2-8, got to reliever Bob Corone for five runs in the next two innings, with three of them coming in on a homerun by freshman Tom Stark. Stark, a native of Caledonia, went 3-for-5 in the twin bill and drove in five runs.

PAUL BERRA, St. Mary's third pitcher of the game, was responsible for the last three runs scored by the host school. Malt Brumm went all the way for the winners despite allowing five hits and seven walks.

Watchmen top Eagles 87-45

ELGIN, Minn. — Rick Swarts accounted for 16 points on his own to lead Elgin-Millville's unbeaten track team to an 87-45 win over Dover-Eyota here Tuesday.

Swarts won the 120-yard high hurdles with an 18.5 clocking, added a win in the 440-yard dash, 59.5, and placed in the 200-yard dash and a 26.2 in the 200-yard dash.

Dover-Eyota's Jeff Ellis came close to matching the Watchmen's efforts with two wins of his own, an 11.8 clocking in the 100-yard dash and a 26.2 in the 200-yard dash.

Greg Schuchard of E-M won both the shot, 44-10, and the discus, 127-1.

The Watchmen, now 2-0 in dual meets, collected wins from Rich Johnson in the mile, 5:05.3; Bruce Chance in the 120-yard low hurdles, 15.4; John Olson in the 880-yard run, 2:24.6; Gene Benson in the two-mile, 10:35; Olson in the high jump, 5-3; Scott Moore in the long jump, 17-2; and Scott Brown in the pole vault, 9-0.

Elgin-Millville's next meet will be Monday at Rochester Mayo.

Hawk netmen edge Memorial

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. — Winona High School's varsity tennis team evened its season mark at 1-1 here Tuesday with a 5-4 win over Eau Claire Memorial.

Pete Hartwich started the Hawks on the winning track with a 6-3, 6-2 win over Paul Mills in the first singles match. Doug Berg added a win with 6-3, 6-3 decisions over Paul Dernbach and Jamie Henderson added the third singles win with a comeback win 2-6, 6-2, 7-5 over Curt Paw.

John Colclough lost his singles match 6-2, 6-0; Mike Murphy fell 6-1, 6-3, and John Dorn lost 6-4, 7-5.

In doubles, Hartwich and Berg teamed to topple Mills and Rich Cochran 6-4, 6-1, while Colclough and Murphy beat Dernbach and Mark Hill 7-6, 1-6, 6-4.

The Hawks will take on Red Wing on the Wingers' courts Thursday in their first taste of Big Nine Conference competition at 4 p.m.

Coach of the Year

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Tom Holm of the Boston Celtics who won 68 and lost only 14 in the regular season, was named the NBA Coach of the Year.

WHS thinclads win triangular

Winona High, winning all but two events, recorded its first track and field victory of the 1973 season at Jefferson Stadium Tuesday afternoon, defeating Caledonia and Houston in a triangular.

Winona, paced by double winner Kurt Lossen, notched 11 1/2 points. Caledonia, with Dick McManis winning the high jump and John Schrader the long jump, had 50 1/2. Houston, fielding a varsity team of only two thinclads, had four points.

In a junior high triangular held at the same time, Winona was also victorious, recording 88 points to St. Charles' 50 and Houston's 28.

Lossen was the varsity meet's only double winner as he breezed to wins in the discus and shot put. The Hawks built up an insurmountable 53-point lead over Caledonia before the Warriors recorded their first win.

Brian Burke highlighted the junior high meet with a record toss of 127-0 in the discus, breaking the old mark of 120-1 held by Lossen.

The Hawks' next meet will be a Big Nine Conference triangular at Jefferson Stadium Thursday with Rochester John Marshall and Red Wing. Starting time is 4 p.m.

Cotter netmen bow to Aquinas

A pair of wins in singles and another pair in doubles weren't enough for the Cotter High School tennis squad to chalk up its first win of the year. The Ramblers fell 5-4 to La Crosse Aquinas Tuesday night.

Paul Van Deine won the No. 1 singles match with 6-2, 6-0 wins over Mark Schneider while Rich Pelowski took the No. 4 singles with 6-3, 6-1 sets with Kevin O'Keefe.

Paul Wadden and Pelowski teamed to notch one of the two wins the Ramblers recorded in doubles as they won 10-4.

Dave Williamson and Steve Mattison also won 8-6 in a doubles match shortened because of darkness.

Wadden, Barb Van Deine, Williamson and Mattison all lost singles matches and Barb and Paul Van Deine fell in doubles.

The Ramblers will be looking for their first team win today when they host Rochester Lourdes on the Lake Park courts at 4:15.

Tw-Lite — 1. Phyllis Christopherson's 183-347 led, Lucky Strikes to 1,023 and Twinklers had 539.

WESTGATE: American—Don Cierzan had 236-640, Dick Hengel 622, Mike Hengel 6-7, Ray Grukowski 603, Edwin's Jewelers 1,040 and S&H Sales 2,914.

Hiawatha — Jerry Henze's 223 led First National Bank of Rushford to 972-2,806 and Dan Hungerholt had 593.

National — Clint Kuhlmann had 212 and Gene Lovas' 558 led Yellow Cab to 946-2,690.

Last chance for practice

LEAGUE AND registered trapshooters will have a good chance to get in some practice at the Winona Sportsmen's range Thursday night. The facility will be open at 7.

Anyone interested in joining a team or entering a team in the city league should be sure to attend. Lunch will be served.

The first league shoots are but a few days away and this could be one of the last chances to get in a round or two of practice.

Dutch Duck Plague . . . what now?
DUTCH DUCK PLAGUE—viral duck enteritis—has killed more than 40,000 wild ducks and geese on the Lake Andes National Wildlife Refuge, South Dakota, and the effect it will have on waterfowl of the Mississippi Flyway is still one big question mark.

"No one knows how it might affect Wisconsin ducks," says Tom Yuill, University of Wisconsin wildlife veterinary scientist.

The birds killed by the disease at the Lake Andes Refuge totaled about 43 percent of the waterfowl wintering there.

The surviving birds were allowed to leave a short time ago and Yuill points out that the refuge managers took a risk by allowing that. The idea was to get the ducks out of the area before the southern flights showed up and thousands more became infected, but if some of those left were carriers, they could spread the disease to the nesting populations throughout the north.

Banding studies show that about 20 percent of the ducks wintering at Lake Andes show up in the Mississippi Flyway. Waterfowl that have never before been exposed may now be coming in contact with the killer.

The plague is a viral disease which attacks the gastro-intestinal tract. After an incubation period of seven days, symptoms of the disease appear rapidly in an infected duck. The animal loses fluid, doesn't eat and his strength is sapped rapidly. Some ducks recover to become carriers—these are the ones to be concerned with now—but judging from the results at Lake Andes, few managed to recover at all.

One of the biggest problems involved with the plague is that no one knows for sure how it is transmitted or how to stop it.

Some biologists and veterinarians think it is transmitted through both air and water.

All agree that it can't live long outside a host animal and that once a flock of ducks collects in an infected area, the disease can spread swiftly.

The disease has been known in Europe for years, but is new to the United States. A few small outbreaks have been reported among domestic flocks in the past, but none to compare with the Lake Andes epidemic.

Work is going on to find an answer to the many questions surrounding the problem and the threat of future outbreaks is a very real one unless research can come up with a clue.

Swans . . . international topics
THE MAJESTIC whistling swans that call the Weaver marsh home for a few weeks twice a year have quite a history. Their annual migrations take them from the Arctic circle to Chesapeake Bay and back again. But that isn't all. They spend the summer months in the Arctic on the Russian side of the globe.

Dr. William Sladen, Johns Hopkins University, has been studying the swans and their migrations for several years, and it was a part of his project that lured us to the Weaver marsh for an all-night adventure some months ago.

He is expected to be in this area again this spring and will be following the swans north. With him will be a rather special assistant—a scientist of similar stature from the Soviet Union.

The Soviet scientist will be here as part of a new program of cooperation with the USSR to study migration patterns of wildlife and birds.

O'Connor to take on Barra in La Crosse

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP)—Light heavyweight fight Pat O'Connor will fight Benny Barra at La Crosse tonight in a 10-round bout that could be crucial to O'Connor's career.

O'Connor, 22, had a string of 30 victories before the Rochester, Minn., boxer was knocked out by Andy Kendall last winter.

Since then, he has beaten two opponents but without the sharpness he displayed before the Kendall fight.

"My loss to Andy Kendall was untimely," O'Connor said, "and if I lose again it would be more untimely. If I lose now it would make for a good rematch in La Crosse, but that's about all."

Barra, a Mexican who is expected to weigh about 170 pounds to O'Connor's 168, lost a 10-round unanimous decision to O'Connor a year ago in Rochester.

But Barra's handlers said the fight was closer than the score indicated and called it a home-town decision. They demanded a rematch outside Rochester.

McLellan quits
TORONTO — John McLellan quit as coach of the NHL Toronto Maple Leafs who failed to make this year's playoffs. No successor was named.

Haymond to Oilers
HOUSTON — Veteran safety Alvin Haymond was acquired by the Houston Oilers of the NFL from the Washington Redskins in return for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Blues, resigned to become general manager of the new Kansas City NHL team that will start play in the 1974-75 season.

Sooners give up victories; fire assistant

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—The University of Oklahoma Sooners, the nation's No. 2-ranked football team last year, will forfeit nine of its victories including its Sugar Bowl triumph over Penn State because of recruiting irregularities.

Athletic Director Wade Walker told a news conference the school would forfeit every game in which freshman Kerry Jackson of Houston, Tex., the top quarterback this spring, played. That will mean Oklahoma will retain victories over only Kansas State, Iowa State and Nebraska.

In addition, Walker said, the resignation of offensive line coach Bill Michael had been asked for and received.

Walker said the high school transcripts of both Jackson and Mike Phillips, also of Houston, had been tampered with. He said Michael had admitted he had knowledge of the transcript irregularities.

Head Coach Barry Switzer said he had assured Dr. Paul Sharp, the university president, that no other member of his staff was involved in the incident.

Walker also said that Jackson had stayed in the athletic dormitory during two visits to the OU campus when he was a high school senior.

Both the transcript tampering and the dorm stays are violations of Big Eight Conference regulations, and the conference is investigating, Walker said.

Food spiral not as great as wage spiral: council

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—The average price of a pound of round steak was $1.68 in February—but it would have cost $2.67 if food prices had risen as fast as wages, the Wisconsin Agri-Business Council said.

The council said average hourly wages in industry increased from $1.52 in 1972 to $3.65 in 1973. Food prices have increased at a slower rate, it said.

The council said the figures show that despite high food prices, consumers pay a smaller part of their income now for food than they have in past years.

Using February's average food prices, the council said a pound of white bread would have cost 38 cents instead of 25 cents in February had food prices risen at the same rate as wages over the past 20 years.

Hamburger would have been $1.51 a pound instead of 84 cents, the council said, while a one-pound frying chicken would have been $3.40 instead of 46 cents and a quart of milk would have been 65 cents instead of 31 cents.

Open campus helps transition from high school

By JOHN HARTZELL
Associated Press Writer
Wisconsin students, who previously were thrown directly from a regimented high school atmosphere into a much freer college lifestyle, are now being provided a transition in some districts.

High schools, which for years allowed some students released time to pursue part-time jobs, are now providing a similar privilege to those not planning to immediately enter the work force.

Variations of an "open campus" concept are being developed in which students are allowed to go wherever they want and do whatever they want when they do not have classes scheduled.

Hartford Supt. Joseph Rost, whose high school allows juniors and seniors to leave the area when they are not slated to be in class, said the concept helps meet the psychological needs of adolescents at this time in history.

"Students now demand to be treated as more mature. When we were in high school, we didn't ask," he said. "Students are free to make significant decisions; not regimented and told in an authoritarian manner."

"They make the choice. They pay the penalty. They get the reward."

Charles Hayes, principal at Brown Deer High School, where seniors are permitted to depart anytime they don't have a course, also emphasizes the role which the concept can play in building responsibility.

"It allows seniors to make a gradual transition into adult life, from full-time students to adult life," he said.

"The student has more responsibility to make decisions about the quality of his education. School could become less significant for the pupil."

"Some study halls are pretty useless, especially for students who are not taking college preparatory courses and don't have as much homework," he said. "What's he going to do except raise hell?"

Some districts, believing students should be given more freedom during the school day but fearing to give them too much, regulate how open campus privileges can be obtained or used.

Parental permission is invariably made a condition for the granting of the privilege. Madison puts even more responsibility on the parents. Two of Madison's four high schools ask the students' mothers and fathers to select which one of three open campus alternatives will apply to their children.

"This way the parents' expressed desires can be carried out during the school day," said Asst. Supt. Jean McGrew, "and we can avoid situations in which we are accused by parents of allowing their kids to run free and open."

Students at West Bend's two high schools are allowed released time to work on community projects.

"These programs haven't been fully used," said John Sheehy, the system's executive principal. "We want this to take place before giving students additional responsibility." Educators in some areas who tried the open campus concept didn't like it, and no longer utilize it.

Germantown, after experimenting with it, now only permits students with jobs to arrive late or leave early provided they have no classes scheduled.

"We have better control this way, and don't have students leaving school when they don't have any place to go," said Germantown Principal David Hohn.

Ashland Principal Jim Falkner said the experiment with open campus at his school failed because students weren't prepared to cope with it.

"When you just tell kids they can go, they go," he said. "Students became an attendance problem. In the spring, they would go to the beach and stay there."

Falkner said the school is now considering allowing students to visit various types of learning laboratories during the study hall period.

Only four of Milwaukee's 15 high schools are now excusing students from the building under varying conditions, although most do provide options within the school. Administrators at each school are given the option to use the plan they feel best serves the interests of individual students, after consulting with the youngsters, their parents and the faculty.

Rufus King High School Principal Virgil Gilmore, while promising continued study of such proposals, expressed numerous reasons to oppose adoption of one at this time in his inner city institution.

"Among the current concerns that warrant immediate attention," he said, "we find that our students' attitude toward school is negative in nature, control of the flow of students and outsiders is difficult because of the physical layout of the building and its many exits, that space to be identified as a lounge or waiting area is non-existent, and the influence of gambling in and around the school have a non-rewarding effect on the educational process being attempted."

The reaction of area residents and merchants has resulted in rejection of any open campus options at another Milwaukee school.

"During the past school year, James Madison High School has been embroiled in a neighborhood problem concerning the action of students in and around the school area before, after school and especially during the noon lunch hours," said Principal Harry Wolff.

Richland Center High School, which doesn't have an open campus, gives students with high grades an honor pass which enables them to take advantage of such alternatives to study hall as laboratory work or socializing.

"This gives the good students an opportunity to go more deeply into an area in which they are interested. They will study regardless of what you do," said Asst. Principal Tom Harvey.

"But the students with lower grades, if they have more freedom, tend to do even less. They need to have greater guidance."

The legal counsel for the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction, Max Ashwell, recently assured educators that the open campus concept was legal under state law.

School boards are empowered to schedule hours during which classes will be held in their district, he said, and may allow students to leave the premises during a portion of those hours.

Ashwell said students who leave schools during free periods, if permitted to do so under district policy, would not be in violation of the state compulsory attendance law because they would still be attending their full allotment of classes.

Three die in crash; Wisconsin toll 245

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A U.S. 41 crash that claimed three lives raised Wisconsin's 1973 traffic fatality toll to 245 today compared with 240 on the same date in record 1972.

Mrs. Kay P. Swigum, 30, of Fond du Lac, her 3-year-old son and an infant son died Tuesday when her car crashed on U.S. 41 south of Fond du Lac.

James D. McCoy, 22, of Wauwatosa died Tuesday in Walworth County when the car in which he was traveling overturned on a road near Whitewater.

Exxon to drop service stations in Wisconsin

HOUSTON (AP) — Exxon Co. USA announced it plans to eliminate about one-third of the service stations the Houston-based firm operates in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The announcement said about 150 stations in the Midwest district where Exxon has less than two per cent of the market will be disposed of on a selective basis. A spokesman said continued operation of the stations was not economic.

A decision will be made later this year on the possible sale or continued operation of other stations in the four states. Exxon, which has about seven per cent of the motor fuel market nationally while operating in 47 states, has been studying the Midwest marketing operations since last July.

With the marketing survey in progress, the company did not change its brand name from Enco to Exxon in the four states as it did in other areas early this year.

Elimination of the selected stations and bulk plants will be carried out over a period of several months.

Rural Elgin man pleads guilty in fraud case

ELGIN, Minn. — Lester W. Culbertson, 23, rural Elgin, has pleaded guilty to a felony theft charge for fraudulently obtaining unemployment benefits from the state in Olmsted County District Court.

He admitted obtaining $114 from the Minnesota Department of Manpower Services by claiming he was unemployed. Culbertson was allegedly employed at the Greenway Cooperative Service Co., Rochester, at the time (Oct. 24 - Nov. 6, 1971) he filed for unemployment benefits.

Judge O. Russell Olson deferred sentencing pending an investigation of the defendant's claim that he misunderstood unemployment compensation regulations.

Houston student wins regional speech event

HOUSTON, Minn. (Special) — Houston High School senior Denise Rostad received a first place in the story-telling division of last Saturday's regional speech contest in Northfield, Minn., and earned the right to compete in the state event April 28.

Three other Houston speakers attended the regional contest, with Gary Wilson receiving three A ratings in non-original oratory while Caroline Stevermer received two As and a B plus in extemporaneous speaking and Jan Sherry received two As and a B in drama interpretation.

Dairy, corporate leaders get behind longer truck proposal

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Dairy and corporate interests joined the trucking lobby Monday in winning a legislative endorsement of recommendations for bigger trucks on Wisconsin highways.

A panel containing the Senate's Transportation Committee and the Assembly's Highways Committee approved 12-3 a joint recommendation for a two-year test of trucks up to 65 feet long on multilane divided highways.

It marked one of the first times the frequently frustrated campaign for trucks exceeding the state's 55-foot limit had the prominent backing of dairy cooperatives and manufacturing spokesmen.

Paul Hassett, representing the Wisconsin Manufacturers Association, told a committee hearing that more than 1,000 Wisconsin companies favor the bigger trucks.

Other proponents were the U.S. Postal Service, Associated Milk Producers Inc., several other cooperatives, and the Milwaukee Association of Commerce.

They repeated arguments that bigger trucks would reduce shipping costs.

Arthur Wichern of the American Automobile Association said the shipping profits would be realized at the expense of highway safety.

Foes of bigger trucks say the super trucks make it more difficult for cars to pass, skid farther in emergencies, are a heavier burden to paving and eventually have to leave multilane highways to reach shipping terminals, thereby encouraging urban traffic congestion.

An innocent two-year trial run, Wichern said, would be "a foot in the door for bigger trucks."

"You're not only going to get 65 foot long; but in other states, they have gone to 108-foot trucks," he said.

The resolution would authorize the Transportation Department to issue permits authorizing the bigger semitrailer trucks or twin-trailers to travel to docks within 1,500 feet of a multilane road.

By using a resolution, the legislature's directive can bypass the governor's office. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has said he would veto legislation authorizing trucks in excess of 55 feet.

The department currently is authorized to allow longer trucks only in special cases.

The resolution approach to bigger vans was last defeated in the 1971-72 session of the legislature.

Wichern's testimony that AAA members rejected 65-footers in an association poll was questioned by Republican Rep. Earl McEassy of Fond du Lac.

McEassy said only one percent of the state AAA's membership responded to the poll. Wichern said it was two percent of about 329,000 members.

"You refer to these things as monsters month after month in your magazine," McEassy said. "You poison the question before you ask it."

Voting for the resolution were McEassy, Sen. Reuben LaFave

R-Oconto; Rep. Cletus Vanderperren, D-Green Bay; Rep. Ervin Conradt, R-Shiocton; Rep. Jerome Quinn, R-Green Bay; Rep. Francis Lallensack, D-Manitowish; Rep. Everett Bolle, D-Francisco; Sen. Ronald Parys, D-Milwaukee; Sen. Daniel Theno, R-Ashland.

Voting against it were Rep. Leonard Groshek of Stevens Point, Rep. David O'Malley of Waunakee and Rep. John Rooney of Racine, all Democrats.

Citizen committeemen Marcelus Rosid of Viroqua, Ervin Ryczek of Milwaukee and Ray J. Eckstein of Cassville voted for the measure.

Three auto salesmen accused of violations

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Helman Pontiac Inc. of Milwaukee and three salesmen have been accused of violating sales regulations.

The Department of Justice said Monday a complaint accuses the firm of selling a customer's car while he was test-driving a new one, selling vehicles for which it did not have title, and baiting customers with misleading advertising.

The complaint asks the Motor Vehicle Division to suspend or revoke the firm's license.

African black power fails to materialize

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The seed of American black power seems to be falling on stony ground in Uganda, current home of African black power.

A handful of black Americans who responded to President Idi Amin's appeals to help develop Uganda's nearly all-black economy have left the country. Reliable sources say they lost thousands of dollars in travel costs and savings stranded in Ugandan banks.

Instead of a brave new world of black supremacy, the sources said, the Americans found themselves caught up in red tape. Promised jobs failed to materialize. Problems of adjusting to an unfamiliar life-style overcame feelings of racial brotherhood.

But Amin is continuing a campaign to enlist aid from blacks outside Africa. His latest allies are four officials of the Congress of Racial Equality, who left Uganda last week pledging to recruit American doctors, teachers and engineers. "We are going to recruit many professionals from all corners of the United States to come and serve in Uganda for periods ranging from one to three years," CORE director Roy Innis told newsmen.

During Amin's two turbulent years heading a military government, Asian businessmen have been expelled, foreign companies have been nationalized and prominent civilians have fled or been secretly killed.

Innis praised the president as a black power champion and said, "He has the ability to make decisions, unlike other leaders who theorize but do not execute."

Innis, CORE chief of staff Solomon Goodrich and aides Charles Cook and Richard Tortman spent nearly a month touring the country at Uganda government expense. They were frequent guests at the presidential mansion at Entebbe.

The Americans were said to have been granted Ugandan citizenship, although U.S. Embassy officials in Kampala said the four made no move to give up their American passports. The United States does not recognize dual citizenship.

"Our ancestors were kidnapped many years ago but we are aware that we belong to the African continent," Goodrich told students at Tororo Girls School.

Former Tourism Minister Apolo Kironde, back from a seven-week goodwill tour of the United States, Cuba, Haiti, Jamaica and Brazil, said he had obtained promises of help from government officials and other individuals.

U.S. diplomats decline to comment on the black Americans. But one official said privately, "We are a little concerned for their welfare. When they come here, they have to learn to live in different economy. There might be problems. We hate to see them disappointed."

City employment dropping again

Employment in Winona dropped for the second month in a row, according to R. H. Brown, manager of the Winona office of the Minnesota Department of Manpower Services.

Payrolls overall showed a total of 12,899 on the job, an increase over the level of March 1972. The manufacturing group, which traditionally is most susceptible to payroll fluctuations, registered a worker drop of 107.

Retail trade, entering the pre-Easter season, showed a small worker gain, and construction, after its long, dull winter, reacted to the early spring warm-up with a small work force climb.

No strong upsurge in hiring is anticipated until late this month or early May, Brown reported. Employers in the manufacturing sector indicate that the demand for workers in semi-skilled occupations such as inspectors and machine operators will be high, Brown said.

Approximately 1,500 individuals were actively registered with the local employment office, Brown said, including a high number who live in Wisconsin and find work in Winona. Added to this are another 500 students seeking part-time employment.

Onion supplies being depleted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — A comedian somewhere once did a routine about high-priced restaurants that included the line: "Eat all the onions you want. The check will take your breath away."

Food prices in restaurants and supermarkets, particularly meat prices, remain astronomical. Now, to the added shock of already stunned consumers, the price of onions is soaring.

Produce managers blame short supplies on weather-damaged crops, principally in Texas. This came on the heels of poor crops in other major onion-growing states, Idaho, New York, California, Michigan, Colorado and Oregon.

In Boston, a two-pound bag that sold recently for 40 cents was reported now retailing for 70 cents to 80 cents.

In Los Angeles, where a 50 pound sack of white onions sold for about $7 in January, the price now runs from $18 to $22. Similar conditions were reported elsewhere in the country.

Farrell Finkbeiner, manager of the Michigan Onion Producers, estimated the price increase at 64 per cent nationwide over last year. He said depleted supplies accounted for most of the price hike.

"This might have been a year of cheap onions," Finkbeiner said. "It looked as though the onion yield was going to be very high."

Gene Sullivan, merchandising manager for Safeway Stores in Portland, Ore., said Safeway will purchase New Zealand yellow onions next week, buying them for 37 cents a pound and selling them for 49 cents a pound.

"At that, we aren't even paying for the cost of handling and selling the onions," Sullivan said.

Oscar Simpson, a produce buyer in Charlotte, N.C., said he saw "no real relief in the situation for at least a month." Stocks of onions in the Charlotte area were virtually depleted.

Shirley MacLaine will study role of Chinese women

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Shirley MacLaine is scheduled to leave today with a group of 11 women and a 12-year-old girl for the People's Republic of China to study the role of women.

Miss MacLaine announced here Monday that the group would leave from Los Angeles on a three week tour which she said is being financed by "a gracious, generous group of people who prefer to remain anonymous."

She said the Chinese extended the invitation for the tour about a year ago. They asked that a representative group of American women be selected.

The actress said she met most of the women she invited while campaigning last year for the Democratic presidential candidate, Sen. George McGovern.

The 12-year-old girl is Karen Boutiller, a Wisconsin youngster who Miss MacLaine said "organized George McGovern's campaign in Racine at the age of 11."

Protocol directors claim catalog of tidbits is essential

By ANN BLACKMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the protocol game, it's worth knowing that Israel's Golda Meir smokes Chesterfield cigarettes and that Jordan's King Hussein enjoys a hamburger as a midnight snack.

South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu likes a good steak—and got it when he visited President Nixon at a time many Americans were boycotting meat.

The bits of personal information may seem trivial, but protocol officers say small comforts make a big difference in the way a visiting official feels at the conference table.

Such details, and a chart that shows on any given day who in the world outranks whom, are the stuff of protocol, the system of diplomatic etiquette.

Its overseers work in the State Department's Office of Protocol, a suite of offices where the atmosphere is often more chaotic than diplomatic.

Operating on a relatively modest $899,000 budget in fiscal 1973, the 47 staffers' responsibilities range from accrediting diplomats and arranging security for their protection to handling arrangements for VIP visits.

Those unfamiliar with the system behind ceremonial hoopla can draw some embarrassing conclusions. King Hussein is greeted with a 21-gun salute and Golda Meir, the Israeli prime minister, only 19. That is protocol, not preference.

King Hussein, as a chief of state, rates 21 guns; Prime Minister Meir, as a head of government, gets 19.

One of the prime rules of protocol—"just good sense," the staffers say—is that visiting officials, whatever their rank, must not be offended.

When plans were announced for Thieu to visit Nixon at San Clemente, he was reportedly disappointed not to be received with full diplomatic pomp customary at the White House.

Vietnamese officials were said to have called the Protocol Office to ask if the visit was being downgraded.

Diplomatic observers noted that security would be tighter in the small West Coast enclave and that chances of anti-Vietnam demonstrations would be reduced if the meetings were in California.

Eager to dispel any notion that Thieu's welcome would be less than grand, protocol officers explained that Nixon planned to be in San Clemente anyway.

They said that Thieu would receive the customary Marine Band arrival ceremony and a state dinner. Thieu's visit went off without a noticeable hitch.

Marion Smoak, acting chief of protocol, is official host to 12,000 members of the diplomatic corps in the United States. His job is to smooth diplomatic feathers when they're ruffled and to make certain that the mannerly machinery of protocol runs smoothly.

"We're a buffer against all the things most of us come in contact with every day," he said. "The burden on official visitors is immense. It's awfully important that along the way everything is done for them to ease the path so that they can sit down at the conference table with a clear mind."

One of the main tasks of Smoak's office is to see that all official visitors are treated courteously, situated comfortably and properly entertained while they are here.

Sound simple? A typical state visit is planned in meticulous detail.

Draft by draft, the six-day scenario unfolds—usually a VIP spends half a day resting in historic Williamsburg, Va., upon arrival, two days in Washington for business and four days traveling to places such as Disneyland and Cape Kennedy, Fla. Secret Service agents accompany them everywhere.

"The Principals," as the Protocol Office dubs the VIP and his wife, are invited to include 12 guests in their official party for dining and dining at taxpayers' expense. If more than 12 are included—President Thieu brought 58—the visitors must pick up the extra tabs.

Dietary restrictions are often a problem. Protocol Office staffers research which foods a visitor cannot eat, for physical or religious reasons or personal dislike.

Muslims and Jews are not served shell fish or pork, and Muslims don't drink alcoholic beverages, "at least not officially," a staffer said. When a Muslim VIP and the President exchange toasts, the President raises a glass of champagne and the guest raises a glass of water.

Saudi Arabia's King Faisal solved official food worries by bringing with him his own cook, butler and taster.

The official state dinner is, by White House social secretary Lucy Winchester's description, "a silk ribbon unrolling with an occasional hitch." She winked, adding, "We hope the hitch isn't visible to the guests."

Mrs. Winchester works from reams of names submitted by the State Department, congressmen, embassy officials, "persons who volunteer that they are of particular interest to the visitor" and the President himself.

Mrs. Winchester must avoid side-by-side seating of diplomats whose countries are at odds.

She must also be sure dinner partners speak a common language, a particular problem with many Arabian wives who speak no language but Arabic.

She will not seat two women together—"such a drag"—and at every dinner, she has orders to sit attractive women next to Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger. The orders come from Henry, Mrs. Winchester said.

A function of the social office is to approve entertainment for state dinners, right down to checking the list of songs. Nixon tells the story that once Prime Minister Harold Wilson visited the United States during an economic crisis in England and the Marine Band played, "I Got Plenty O' Nuttin."

Anecdotes about protocol abound, including this one, familiar to Latin American newsmen in Washington:

When a coup ousted Nicaragua's president in 1947, the State Department announced relations were suspended. This appeared to mean that Ambassador Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa would lose the seniority that made him dean of the diplomatic corps.

So Sevilla Sacasa sent flowers to President Harry S. Truman's wife who was in the hospital. Truman acknowledged the flowers with a letter addressed, "Dear Mr. Ambassador."

When, shortly thereafter, the United States resumed relations with Nicaragua, Sevilla Sacasa sought to resume his position as dean of the diplomatic corps. The State Department reportedly took the position that Sevilla Sacasa lost his seniority during the break in relations.

Not so, Sevilla Sacasa said, according to the anecdote. In effect, he told the State Department, "Truman regarded me as the Nicaraguan ambassador when you said I was not and I shall abide by his judgement, not yours."

Sevilla, still dean of the corps, celebrates his 30th year in Washington in July.

Reciprocity for WSC students covers state

A change in the reciprocity agreement between the states of Minnesota and Wisconsin now makes it possible for any Wisconsin resident to attend Winona State College without paying non-resident tuition.

The reciprocity agreement between the two states has been in effect since 1969, permitting students to attend institutions of higher education in either state at the resident tuition rate.

Several hundred Wisconsin students have attended Winona State under this arrangement, which originally applied only to those living within a radius of 40 miles of the college.

This mileage restriction has been removed, however, and now any legal resident of Wisconsin may attend Winona State and pay the existing resident tuition rate under terms of the reciprocity agreement.

Although graduate students are not included in the agreement, both states have agreed to participate in discussions concerned with ways in which the pact may be expanded to include these students.

Those wishing to take advantage of the reciprocity agreement have been urged to apply immediately.

Although the priority consideration date was April 1, applications will be accepted throughout the academic year.

Application forms are available at Wisconsin high schools, the Education Aid Board, Madison, Wis., or the admissions and records office at Winona State.

IRS keeping eye on prices

NEW YORK (AP) — With Internal Revenue Service agents showing more interest than housewives in prices at the meat counter, the effort by consumers to drive down prices is bound to have the appearance of success.

The main reason that prices are likely to fall is that the law of supply and demand really does work. When demand is high and supplies relatively low, prices rise. These are precisely the conditions that led to those $4 steaks.

Per capita yearly beef consumption of about 118 pounds today is more than double what it was as recently as 1951. This alone isn't enough to drive up prices if production keeps pace, and until recently it had been. But demand now exceeds supply.

Veal, on the other hand, demonstrates how shrinking supplies also exert upward pressure on prices. In 1954, Americans ate about 10 pounds of veal per person per year, compared with 2.5 now. But production also has fallen.

While there is little question that a boycott can force prices down, there is doubt about the long-range impact. Lower prices most likely will discourage some producers from supplying the market.

If that happens, as Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz warns it could, price pressures later this year could be equally strong.

The dedication of the boycotters will also be a factor. To live without meat in a society that believes meat is a basic requirement for healthy families is apt to produce in the boycotters the feeling that she is sacrificing her youngsters in pursuit of a social cause.

These questions also must be considered: Are boycotters like the fat woman who resolves while standing on the scales never to eat another chocolate? Like the inebriate who resolves on New Year's morning never to touch another drop?

While these questions cannot be answered for a few weeks or months, they are simple in comparison to the complex and imponderable question of what government policy will be.

There was little uncertainty about policy during Phase 2. The letter and spirit of the law were understood, and many prices became relatively stable. Phase 3 is another matter. Supposedly there is a club in the closet that might come down upon the head of any seller who dared endanger the economy through price increases. But so far it looks more like a toothpick.

Moreover, great doubts are being expressed that the club ever can be of much use. Businessmen and others note that there are simply too many millions of sellers and products for government to watch all of them.

Business and economic literature is thus rife with discussions about another price freeze that would relieve government of responsibility for individual decisions.

In a democracy, the rule of law is a noble ideal — except when that law is the law of supply and demand, and especially when it is out of balance.

Business executive returns to campus full of surprises

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — Gilbert W. Fitzhugh, chairman and chief executive of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., is a self-described messback conservative, a man of many prejudices, a righteously indignant critic of business' critics.

He believes religiously in the work ethic. The key to success? "Hard work and thrift." His entire career has been with Metropolitan, and he still puts in 75 to 80 hours a week. "I can't wait to get to work," he says.

Despite this, Fitzhugh, 63, recently stole 3 weeks from work to accept a "professorship" at the University of Oklahoma, at Norman, in "the heartland of America."

The confrontation, as some of Fitzhugh's associates might have thought it would be was part of the Businessman in Residence Program of the Institute of Life Insurance. These are some of his observations:

"It was a real pleasant engagement. It's different there than in the East. New York is the most provincial place in the country. You have to get 100 miles out of New York to know what the country is like.

"Why did I do it? I always believe in getting the facts. Partly it was to see if I was right, partly to see if I was wrong. I love a debate. I found the campus much less skewed to the left than I had thought. I was encouraged.

"I thought I was going to be able to take it easy, but I had classes that began at eight, with an hour off for lunch, and continued into the evening. I gave them all the same lecture, a 35-second introduction in which I told them:

"You see before you, No. 1, a real live member of the establishment, and No. 2, an old-fashioned messback conservative." I gave them a wide opening and they moved right in.

"They didn't throw a low curve at all. The questions were direct and penetrating, about social responsibility, profits and the like. None of the 'beating your wife' type of questions.

"Sometimes I was righteously indignant and felt like saying you should withhold your comments until you learn something about business. But I didn't lose my temper."

Sitting on a couch in his dark-paneled office, Fitzhugh, a sharp featured man with a surprising sense of humor, was asked what he told them about the expanding social responsibilities of business.

"We didn't need outside forces to tell us to be responsible. We didn't need those noisy critics to tell us business needed to take on a social role.

"Sixty-four years ago in 1909 we set up a health and welfare division. We have a stake in the health of the country. We proved in a program at Framingham, Mass., in the 1920s that the tuberculosis death rate could be cut.

"We didn't need these critics, and I wanted to disabuse these kids of the idea we needed to be pushed into it. Business has changed, and some of the kids recognize it. In many ways they're ahead of the professors.

"The kids have come along way, but some of the professors don't realize times have changed. Some think business is just grasping for profits. It bothered me that some of the professors haven't kept up with the times.

"I was disappointed in some of the economic and business professors. Too left wing. They don't understand what's going on in the world.

"As our discussions went on, the students asked more about practical things like what they should be getting out of education and what they should do when they graduate. I like that. It shows they're thinking the right way.

"Too many students say that hard work and thrift isn't what life is about. They say it's not their idea of life. But more of them are thinking that way. They realize they're going to have to work.

"While they're in college, I told them, they should have an inquiring mind about everything, an open mind. They should try to know everything they can. They should develop the ability to get answers. You can't be an instant expert.

"I told them to use the library, to never take anything on faith, even from me or the professors. Question everything, even if it comes from alleged experts. Learn when you're being given a phony bill of goods."

(In the next column Fitzhugh describes what he learned at Norman. Some of his prejudices, he concedes, were changed.)

Women kept free of hazardous duty

FT. GORDON, Ga. (AP) — Women are now in the ranks of the Army military police, but at least for the time being the hazardous duty is being left to the men.

The 21 members of the Women's Army Corps who completed the Army MP School here are already in the field, making patrols, working in traffic control situations and investigating accidents and the like.

The Army says the men will continue to handle guard duty, prison work and similar assignments which could possibly involve violence.

The first women's class trained with 200 men. A member of the class, Bonnie Bjorkquist, a 29-year-old WAC private, recalled the winter training course.

"We marched to class with them, we went out in the field with them and qualified with the guns with them," she said.

But there was a difference. "Our instructors weren't as strict with us as they were with the men," she said. "Like we didn't have to do as many pushups when we got in trouble or as much physical work. But as far as training goes we had to qualify for the same things as they did."

Pvt. Bjorkquist, who now patrols Ft. Gordon in an MP car, said the Army's opening of MP training for women was perfect for her.

"I'd always wanted to be a policewoman and eventually get into intelligence work after a few years in the Army," she said. "Of course prior to getting an intelligence job I had to go through a military police course."

Brig. Gen. Mildred C. Bailey, director of the WACs, said current plans call for 100 women MPs.

Judge rules back wages due two black rail workers

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Two black workers discriminated against by a railroad and a union should be paid back wages, Ramsey District Court Judge James M. Lynch ruled Monday.

Lynch upheld the ruling of a hearing examiner in a case involving Thomas Shelby and James Walker, who went to work for the Northern Pacific Railroad in the 1950s but were initially denied membership in a rail union.

The ruling said both the railroad and the union should contribute damages of not more than $6,922 for Shelby and $5,397 for Walker.

Nixon aide: new trade bill won't of itself reverse deficit

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — Peter M. Flanagan, assistant to the President for international economic affairs, says the administration's new trade bill is designed to achieve an equitable trading world, and would not of itself reverse the country's trade deficit.

The bill, known as the Trade Reform Act of 1973, would give the President new authority to raise, reduce or eliminate tariffs during a five-year period. It also seeks a congressional mandate to negotiate reductions in non tariff barriers.

The administration says the purpose of the bill is to give U.S. negotiators key bargaining tools for the upcoming world trade talks beginning in Tokyo in September.

In the following interview with The Associated Press, Flanagan says the negotiating powers asked by the President are not without precedent.

Q. Mr. Flanagan, does this new trade bill give President

Nixon unprecedented authority to negotiate in the trade area? A. No. As I tried to point out the other day, these authorities are revisions of authorities that have been granted in the past. And to suggest they are unprecedented is unfair and I think is an exaggeration of the case.

After all, similar authorities were voted 10 years ago and it's clear from experience with them that changed circumstances would indicate the need for new authorities to negotiate and better ways to use others.

On tariffs, there was a limitation on the amount by which you could reduce tariffs in the 1930 act. If you take the reductions authorized then, and the reductions that occurred since, you see that the absolute amounts we're asking now are equivalent, so this is not unprecedented.

Q. If the authorities have existed in the past, why haven't they worked, or have they worked?

A. They have worked to some degree. There has been some use of import restraint. We did reduce tariffs in 1962-67, 35 per cent. We did get at a couple of non tariff barriers, but they didn't work well, and as conditions changed they worked less well, and so we need a new approach. Anyway, our basic negotiating authorities expired in 1967.

Q. Is there a congressional string over the changes?

A. . . . There'll have to be congressional action, but a different kind of congressional action. For example, in the past, the President would recommend and Congress would have to act in a positive way to grant Most-Favored-Nation status to communist countries, like Poland and Yugoslavia. In the future, the President will recommend and Congress will let stand or vote to deny the granting of Most-Favored-Nation status to communist countries. That's a different way for them to exercise their power, but it isn't a major difference. The only really new authority, entirely new authority, is in generalized preferences for developing countries.

Q. What impact will this trade bill have on the country's balance of trade, which has been in deficit?

A. Some countries, like the developing countries, are going to be traditionally deficit in trade and some are going to be traditionally surplus in trade.

But what we think we ought to be in equilibrium in our basic payments accounts, and so do all our foreign partners. That's the goal of any international economic system.

In order to have had equilibrium in our basic balance last year, we'd have to have had a $2.4 billion trade surplus. Instead of that, we had a $6.8 billion deficit.

Is that what we're trying to do with this trade bill? Change our trade balance by $9 billion? No. What we're trying to do in this trade bill is to get a more open and more equitable trading world. An effect of that, we think, will be an improvement in our balance of trade and therefore our balance of payments because we think that the inequities have been working against us. We want to remove the inequities because we think the proper kind of trade world is an equitable trading world. . . .

Q. You almost sound like you're talking down the importance of the negotiations in Tokyo.

A. As it relates to our particular balance of payments problem at this moment in history. The importance of our negotiations is to get the right kind of trading world for tomorrow. You can have equilibrium in your basic accounts with a very narrow, restricted, distorted trading world, damn little trading, damn little travel, damn little investments. That isn't the kind of world we want. We want equilibrium, but we want it in a world of open and equitable trade and investment to everyone's benefit.

Q. Do you foresee a situation where there would not have to be trade barriers at all?

A. I can conceive of a situation in the longer run in which there were no barriers to industrial trade in developed countries. I think that developing countries will always want to help some of their own industries as they are trying to get established. With regard to agricultural trade, it is subject to such variations by virtue of the weather, etc., that it would be hard to imagine total freedom even for the developed world. But I certainly see a situation of massively reduced barriers as long as there exists the kind of safeguards that we're suggesting that will permit adjustment over time for certain industries and workers who need it.

Q. Have you decided on any priorities in the upcoming negotiations?

A. Without suggesting there are priorities, we are convinced that non tariff barriers, especially barriers to agricultural trade, are going to get a great deal more attention in these negotiations than they've got in the past.

Q. What do you hope to do to increase the export of agricultural goods?

A. Reduce the barriers and get a system more responsive to market forces.

Thunder, lightning

By WILLIAM B. BENDEL
(Special to the Daily News)

One of the most spectacular of Nature's dynamic duos is lightning and its sidekick, thunder. These atmospheric phenomena have instigated some fascinating myths and erroneous beliefs throughout the years.

The Norsemen believed that thunder was the rumble of Thor's chariot as that fierce god rode across the sky. Lightning was thought to be the sparks flying from his hammer.

To ancient South Africans, lightning was the flashing wings of a spirit thunder-bird. Evidence of its passage was the "claw marks" on the bark of damaged trees.

The Greeks and Romans took lightning to be a sign from Zeus and Jupiter, respectively. Property struck by a bolt of lightning was an indication of the god's displeasure with the owner.

Even modern man has some mistaken ideas about this phenomenon. For example, the saying, "Lightning never strikes twice in the same place" is wrong. Many buildings absorb strikes frequently. The Empire State Building has been known to receive several jolts during a single storm.

The reason for this is that lightning is most apt to strike the highest object in a given region. Therefore, the two most dangerous places to be in a thunderstorm are under a tree (particularly a lone tree) and in or near open water.

Swimmers, bathers, and fishermen should be concerned during a thunderstorm for two reasons: 1) since the surface of a body of water is flat, a fisherman in a boat presents a target for lightning. 2) Even if a lightning bolt only strikes the water near a swimmer, the current may still be conducted to him with sufficient strength to injure or even kill.

What should you do if you find yourself caught in an open place during a thunderstorm? The safest course to follow is to avoid isolated trees, head for low ground, and—if you must—lie down!

Scientist rules egg-shaped object is meteorite

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A University of California at San Diego scientist says a small, egg-shaped rock which pierced the roof of a mobile home north of here last month is a meteorite.

It is believed to be the first ever recovered in California. Dr. Robert C. Finkel, a UCSD research chemist, said Monday.

The rock crashed through the roof of a mobile home in San Juan Capistrano owned by Jack Surlock, 84, a retired barber, March 15.

"I probably would have just swept it up and thrown it away except that a neighbor noticed the hole in my roof," said Surlock who took the rock to UCSD.

CST seniors get internships as dieticians

Three College of Saint Teresa seniors, all majors in foods and nutrition, this week have received dietetic internships.

Jane Bariknecht, Rhineland, Wis., has accepted an internship at Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston.

Kathleen Shanley, Mt. Prospect, Ill., will intern at Latter Day Saints Hospital, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Bridget Fritz, Rochester, Minn., has received an internship from St. Paul-Ramsey Hospital, St. Paul.

Sister Michaela Byron, chairman of the college home economics department, reported that more than 1,700 applications were received for the 806 internships available this year. She pointed out that while job opportunities for dieticians are growing, internships are decreasing because of the cost to the hospitals.

Ben-Gurion's search for peace led Israel away from Soviets

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

In a long and futile search for peace and security for his new nation, David Ben-Gurion came to regard the Russians as the greatest threat to Israel's existence.

He found the late Gamal Abdel Nasser as the man most to blame for an unending state of war tension and Tito of Yugoslavia a big disappointment as a potential peacemaker.

A new Ben-Gurion book, including some hitherto unpublished material, spans three decades of intense efforts by this pioneer Zionist to reach understandings with the Arabs.

Entitled "My Talks with Arab Leaders," it is published appropriately, on the eve of Israel's 25th anniversary celebration.

Ben-Gurion, now 86 and all-embracing, emigrated to Palestine from Poland as a boy of 17. On May 14, 1948 he proclaimed Israel's independence as her first premier.

In the early days of 1956, Ben-Gurion wrote, he told an emissary from President Dwight D. Eisenhower, identified only as "X.L.", a former assistant secretary of state for defense, that he was intensely fearful of Russian influence.

At the time, under Soviet auspices, Czechoslovak arms were pouring into Egypt.

"If the Soviets gain control of the region," Ben-Gurion told the emissary, "our existence will be impossible. . . . If Russia occupies the countries around us, that will be the end of us."

That was in March 1956, when President Eisenhower was trying to relieve tension in the strategic world crossroads area. The atmosphere was becoming heated in a crisis building over the Suez Canal zone.

Ben-Gurion quoted the American as having found Nasser willing to listen, though insisting on the utmost secrecy about the Eisenhower effort.

The Egyptian leader was pictured as fearful of becoming a target for an Arab assassin. The emissary put before Nasser proposals for a meeting of Israeli and Egyptian leaders and for prohibition of shooting across border lines.

The U.S. president's representative, Ben-Gurion said, bluntly asked Nasser whether he had hostile intentions for the use of the Czechoslovak arms and got in response not only an emphatic denial but a profession of sincerity in seeking a peace settlement.

But, said Ben-Gurion, Nasser never accepted the proposals and "it was plain, in fact, that he was opposed to them."

"The Israeli premier had no doubt Nasser was intent on war. "He has tremendous ambition," Ben-Gurion wrote of Nasser. "He wants to be the leader of the Arabs, the Moslems and the peoples of Africa. He is a clever man and while he does not want to lose the goodwill of the United States, he does not want to be solely dependent on the United States and that is why he is dealing with the Russians."

War did come that October, but it was Israel that launched it with French and British con-comitance. Ben-Gurion's intention was to remove what he considered an immediate threat to Israel's life.

When the Suez Crisis war was over, Egypt's forces had been routed, enormous amounts of her arms captured, her army humiliated.

Under U.S. pressure, Israel withdrew from Egyptian territory, but was satisfied by then, said Ben-Gurion, that she had "crushed a deadly threat" to her survival.

But the tension would never end.

In 1963, Ben-Gurion made another attempt to get some sort of peace machinery in motion. The premier, then 76, wrote to President Tito proposing that the Yugoslav communist, as a man professing to seek world peace, play a part in bringing Egypt and Israel together for negotiations.

Ben-Gurion proposed to travel to Belgrade, secretly or openly, to discuss the matter, but Tito's reply was "disappointing."

"In view of present conditions in this part of the world and the significant developments and tensions now prevailing, outside intervention in my view could not produce the desired results," Tito wrote.

It was Ben-Gurion's last try. Two months later, "for personal reasons," he resigned as premier though he stayed in parliament seven years.

Goodview OK's treatment plant use as dog pound

Goodview Village Councilmen Monday night approved plans for a dog pound in the old disposal plant site as proposed by the village auxiliary police.

Construction and maintenance of five pens and storage area for supplies were approved for temporary installation this year. Surplus material is expected to be used for construction, and arrangements for other than a temporary facility will be made next year.

Contractor Leon Imman was authorized to remodel the Goodview Bar & Lounge barroom for an estimated cost of $775.

Village Clerk Rex A. Johnson is to arrange for a meeting between councilmen and Melvin Praxel, Praxel Ambulance Service, Inc., to discuss service to the village. Service was cut off with the Winona County Board of Commissioners action to drop the monthly contract with Praxel.

Until an agreement is reached, residents in the village must make their own arrangements for ambulance service.
