QUOTE OF THE WEEK

We all desire to be enslaved by wealth but we do not want to be enslaved by poverty. The former is a sweet enslavement; the latter is a bitter enslavement. But enslavement is enslavement. The image of God suffers from different reasons. The people who are poor must be emancipated from their grinding poverty. The people who are neither poor or rich must be emancipated from their "wasting life." The people who are rich must be emancipated from their enslavement to wealth. Life must not be wasted.

Kosuke Koyama—Japanese Theologian
