Heads of Notre Dame, Rockefeller Fund

Commencement speakers announced

Speakers at commencement this year will be Dr. J.G. Harrar, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, and the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University.

Dr. Harrar will present the commencement address Saturday, June 5, and Father Hesburgh will deliver the baccalaureate sermon Friday, June 4.

Both men will receive honorary doctorate degrees at commencement, President Taggart said.

Held in Spectrum

Both events will be held in the new USU Spectrum, and for the first time in many years there will be room enough for all friends and relatives of graduates. In recent years, graduating students have been limited to only two tickets as the commencement exercises were held in the Nelson Fieldhouse. The Spectrum seating is more than double that of the Fieldhouse.

Dr. Harrar, author of three full-length books and approximately 60 research papers and 50 published articles, received his doctorate's degree from the University of Minnesota. In addition, he has eight honorary doctor of science degrees and three honorary doctor of law degrees.

A recipient of the Presidential Award in 1962 from the American Public Health Association, Dr. Harrar has been with the Rockefeller Foundation since 1943 when he began as a local director in the Mexican Agricultural Program. He served as vice president of the foundation from 1959-61 and as president since 1961.

Rev. Hesburgh

Other Honors

He is currently a member of

J. G. Harrar

the Board of Directors for the Boys' Clubs of America, the President's General Advisory Committee on Foreign Assistance Programs and a member of the editorial advisory board of the Encyclopedia Britannica Science Yearbook.

Among his honors from foreign governments and universities are a decoration from the government of Ecuador for agricultural merit, an honorary doctorate from the Agrarian University in Peru, and the Order of the Golden Heart, from the Philippines. In February of this year, he was named Knight Commander of the Most Noble Order of the Crown of Thailand authorized by King Bhumibol Adulyadei.

Rev. Hesburgh to Speak

The Rev. Hesburgh was ordained to the priesthood in 1943 and then served as chaplain for the National Training School for Boys. In 1945, he became chaplain to Veterans, University of Notre Dame and was appointed president of the school in 1952. In between, he served as assistant professor of religion and executive vice president at the university.

Father Hesburgh is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a member of the administrative board of the International Association of Universities, board of directors of the Adlai Stevenson Institute for International Affairs, chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, member of the Carnegie Commission on the Future of Higher Education, and member of the board of directors, American Council on Education.

A time for love

The First Commandment is first because everything else takes meaning from one's relationship to God. "You shall have no other gods beyond Me." (Exodus 20:3)

Jesus said it this way, "Love the Lord your God with all your heart, soul, mind, and power; secondly, Love your neighbor as much as you love yourself." (Mark 12:30,31) He went even farther, "Whoever comes to Me and does not hate his father and his mother and his wife and his children and his brothers and his sisters, and even his own soul, is not able to be my disciple." (Luke 14.26)

What do you do with a statement like that? The explanation is not hard, Jesus is the God-man. He demands for Himself the unconditional allegiance, on the part of His followers, that the first commandment implies. That takes precedence even over the legitimate ties of family.

God, of course, made us sexual beings. He did so precisely because He loves people very much, regardless of our feelings toward Him.

And so he has given us guidelines...which bug us.. But, the fact remains, when you step outside His bounds, in matters of sex, you break the first commandment.

The driving force behind promiscuous sex is never love - either for God or for the other party it is always, and without fail, sheer selfishness...the most common form of idolatry.

Of course, misery loves company, and once a girl has slept around some, she's not about to admit, to herself or to anyone else, that it's a bad thing. A guy whose own body is his god is eager to maintain the fiction that the commandants are largely irrelevant.

Love in marriage can be so fine! It's extra fine with Christ involved. He teaches loveless people how to love, and sexual love is part of that. That two people start a marriage as amateurs, sexually speaking, is not laughable or pitiful; it's beautiful!

Who but they will ever know of the growing wonder, intimacy, and love that can come to a man and his wife as together they learn this greatest of all earthly mysteries? All the books and all the one-night-stands in the world can't teach what they learn. The very fact of their shared ignorance, their mutual tolerance, their respectful confidentiality...these things make every improvement in technique that much better. For them, sex is love, and not just in name only.

The experienced individual, coming to that first marriage with a lot of memories and knowledge, misses out on so much. This jaded person is in real danger of finding it all rather boring. What a shame!

God knows what He's talking about! "You shall have no other gods beyond Me"...including your own body. So be a virgin for God, until you marry. There's no shame in that. And when you marry, begin your mature, sensual life with real gusto. With your spouse to help you learn, you can be one of the world's great lovers.

Farmer's credentials deserve scrutiny

Editor:

In his address last Wednesday night, James Farmer gave the audience an unusual insight on what it is to be black.

Mr. Farmer said that something should be done to present an objective and realistic image of the Negro as a human being rather than as a dark-skinned creature. I couldn't agree more with this idea; however I disagree with the methods which Mr. Farmer is willing to employ to solve this problem.

To illustrate, let us look at Farmer's background. He organized the first chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality in 1942. Although the title sounds philanthropic and noble, it is merely a cover-up.

Mr. Farmer stated that "CORE is the hard-cutting edge of the civil rights movement. We're much more militant than Malcolm X; we're activists." (It was Malcolm X who urged that "there ought to be a Mau Mau in the United States.") Such "activism" partially destroyed 50 major American cities in 1967 alone, leaving many innocent people dead and hundreds of thousands of both blacks and whites homeless.

Mr. Farmer was employed by the League of Industrial Democracy from 1950 to 1955, and eventually became its vice president. The League's programs included abolition of ROTC, promotion of the Oxford Peace Pledge not to fight for your country, and open promotion of the Communist Manifesto.

In 1950, Farmer became Student Field Secretary for LID and organized the Student LID, which has since changed its name to SDS! Later Farmer served as a member of the National Advisory Council of the SDS. In 1952, Farmer was a candidate for the 9th District on the Independent Nominating Petition of the Socialist Party in New York State.

Although Mr. Farmer claims to be against violence, he has praised CORE's armed, militant Deacons for Defense. He claims to want a better America with more freedom for everyone, yet he was a Sponsor for the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy, whose aim is to disarm America in the face of a Soviet weapons buildup.

He claims to have improved the Negro's plight, yet he admitted that segregation (DE FACTO rather than DE JURE) is now greater in America than it was 20 years ago.

If Mr. Farmer and his constituents had their way, America would truly have racial equality - as does every Communist country in the world. George Orwell's comment, "All Animals are Equal," would aptly describe Farmer's new America where all men, regardless of race, would become slaves to the State.

Catholics question Easter regulations

Editor:

As members of the Roman Catholic Church, we would like to express our opinion.

Utah State has on some occasions released students to pay tribute to LDS functions, specifically for the mourning of the late David O. McKay. We also know of students taking time off to attend the opening days of LDS Conference.

On April 9, which is Good Friday, public schools and many public employes will be given the day off to pay homage to the blessed events of Easter, USU Catholics are not being given this opportunity. Why not?

Perhaps in the eyes of certain administrators this is not a very significant day outside of Easter bunnies and baskets.

Dr. Vearl R. Smith has resigned as dean of the College of Agriculture in order to devote more time to teaching and research activities.

Smith, who has been dean since July, 1963, will take a four-month sabbatical leave before returning to USU as a professor of dairy science.

During the first month of his sabbatical, Smith will conduct a study in Iran for the Peace Corps. For the remaining three months Smith will be at the National Dairy Research Institute at the University of Reading, England.

To Return

Following his return he will conduct research for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Smith is negotiating with the USDA to do research on a computerized data retrieval system in animal physiology.

Prior to coming to USU, Smith was head of the department of Dairy Sciences at Arizona University, and a professor of dairy husbandry at Wisconsin University. He is a graduate of Idaho University with a masters degree from Oregon State and doctorate from Minnesota University.

Matthews Acting Dean

Taking Dr. Smith's place will be Dr. Doyle Matthews, presently associate dean. Matthews has bachelors and masters degrees from Utah State and a doctorate from Kansas State. He joined the USU faculty in 1951 and was named associate dean last fall. He is a professor of animal science and state livestock specialist for the USU Extension Services.

Schoenfeld

Finds Forest Service pitfalls

"The closed mind is one of the major pitfalls in the U.S. Forest Service's public relations program," a communications expert told students at Utah State Monday.

"Foresters think, 'We are the experts. Who are these publics to tell us how to run this organization? They don't really know anything', and unfortunately there has been a generation (of foresters) who have never learned multiple use except as a smokescreen to cover up production of cellulose," Chairman Clarence A. Schoenfeld, University of Wisconsin Center for Environmental Communications and Education Studies, told USU students in one of a series of talks this week.

Five Pitfalls

Schoenfeld outlines Forest Service pitfalls in public relations: 1) the one-armed paperhanger pose doing a good job but too busy to tell the public about it. 2) the adding machine trap measuring public relations results by the number of news releases and brochures distributed, rather than evaluating public reactions. 3) the name-on-the-door complex, with one individual supposedly handling the public relations function rather than it becoming the responsibility of every member of the Forest Service down to the campgrounds cleanup man. 4) the herd-instinct trap accepting a successful method used in another area as the best way to handle any public relations problem, and 5) the forementioned closed-mind pitfall.

Weakened Public Relations

Using Forest Service as an example typical of other government land management agencies, Schoenfeld indicated that public relations is weakest at the bottom of the totempole. The national staff and regional office experts are adequate, but the district ranger hasn't manpower resources or media-trained help. The local area, too, is normally the "exploiter" center, while the "preservationist" element is most often a greater distance away, a dilemma in P.R.

U.S. Forest Service reaction to public opinion is changing today because of Clause 102 in the National Environmental Quality Act which requires that agencies must satisfactorily explain ecological implications of management; because an order has been sent down from the USFS Washington office ordering public hearings at bona fide stages of management planning; and finally, because of the possible reorganization of land management agencies on the national level.

Consumer critic airs views tonight

Ralph Nader, who has been called the nation's "toughest customer," by Time magazine, will speak in the Chase FAC at 8 p.m.

Nader, an attorney, first made headlines in 1965 with his book, Unsafe at Any Speed, which attacked the automobile industry for manufacturing unsafe vehicles.

He has also been instrumental in the passage of at least six major federal consumer protection laws, for the recall of defective motor vehicles and for control and advertising credibility. He was also partially responsible for the elimination of Monosodium Glutamate from baby foods.

Critic of Government

The attorney has been called a muckraker, consumer crusader and public defender, but his criticisms of government and industry have had widespread repercussions.

"What sets Nader apart is that he has moved beyond social criticism to effective political action," said the New York Times.

Also at U of U

Nader will also be on the University of Utah campus to give an address at noon on "Environmental Hazards: Man-Made and Man-Remedied."

His visit there is in conjunction with Utah's Challenge Week entitled "Priorities '71," which is also featuring such personalities as Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., former newsman Chet Huntley, CBS correspondent Daniel Schorr and Mississippi Mayor Charles Evers.

Latimer encouraged

Nixon's action 'helpful'

Salt Lake City (AP) — Early action by President Nixon in deciding the fate of Lt. William L. Calley, Jr., would help stabilize public opinion, Calley's civilian lawyer said Monday.

George W. Latimer, a retired judge of the Court of Military Appeals, said he was encouraged the president decided to personally review the Calley case and make the final decision on his sentence.

Calley was convicted last week of murdering 22 South Vietnamese noncombatants at My Lai and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Since the verdict there has been a groundswell of support for clemency for the 27-year-old soldier.

Latimer said he "was in communication with Calley Monday and learned "mail supporting the lieutenant is still coming in.

"Calley has been spending the day trying to get replies out to the many people who have corresponded with him," said Latimer. "I'm told he's in reasonably good spirits."

The 70-year-old expert in military law said a speedy determination of the case by President Nixon "would help stabilize things, and everyone would have more certainty what is going to happen.

"It's always more difficult to operate, and more difficult to live, when the situation is uncertain.

"The public would be affected the same way," Latimer said. "They'd like to know what is going on."

However, Latimer noted that latest reports say the president may not take any action before the appellate processes are completed.

Latimer said he had hoped Nixon would intervene before the military review — expected to be lengthy — started in 60 to 90 days. "He can cut across those any time," Latimer said. "He needn't wait."

But Latimer said he had no prospects that the president would move before the review gets underway.

"I'm pleased the president took the action he did in announcing he would review the case," Latimer added. "And I'm sure Lieutenant Calley will do anything he can to justify and faith placed in him."

Fraternities and sororities holding annual Greek Week

Greek fraternities and sororities are holding their annual Greek Week events this week which include Greek Bowl, dances and Swing Sing.

The first round of competition for the Greek Bowl was held Tuesday in the Sunburst lounge. Today and tomorrow will be the remaining preliminary competition. The two teams who remain undefeated during the week will be featured in competition on KUSU-TV Friday night.

A banquet for the officers of the fraternities and sororities will be held tonight. Awards for the outstanding philanthropy project and the outstanding alumnus will be given.

Swing Sing, an annual musical presentation by the Greeks will be presented Saturday night in the Spectrum.

During previous years all the fraternities and sororities have presented a 10-minute musical production by the members or their organization. This year only the sororities will be presenting the musical programs.

Following the sororities' presentations will be a Greek Olympics featuring representatives of the fraternities.

Admission will be charged for Swing Sing and the proceeds will be sent for the care of two retarded children.

'Vague, ambiguous'

FCC requirement

Washington (AP)—The record industry asked the Federal Communications Commission today to withdraw its month-old requirement that broadcasters take responsibility for airing some lyrics tending "to promote or glorify the use of illegal drugs."

The Recording Industry Association of America, in a petition to the FCC, said the March 5 notice violates the free-speech protections of the First Amendment by requiring broadcasters "to censor sound recordings, using vague and ambiguous standards."

The FCC notice, the association said, provided neither a definition of drug-promoting language, nor guidelines for placing song lyrics in that category.

As a result, it said, station owners, fearful of losing their broadcasting licenses, go out of their way to play it safe.

"Indeed," the RIAA said, "we fear that the effect of the commission's notice may be precisely the opposite of what the commission presumably intended.

How is a broadcaster to assess the meaning of songs like "Puff the Magic Dragon," "Up, Up and Away," "Come Fly With Me," or even "Tea For Two," the petition asked.

Industry topic to be discussed

Royden G. Derrick, president and general manager, Western Steel Company of Salt Lake City, will discuss "Prospects for Intermountain Industry" today, 11:30 p.m., in the Eccles Business building auditorium.

Derrick will be lecturing under the Distinguished Executive Speaker (DES) series and will speak specifically on the key to viable growth in the intermountain region.

In addition to being a Western State executive, Derrick is a chairman for the Bonneville-Sylvan Life Insurance Company, the Liberty Resources Foundation and the Salt Lake branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

"Double-standard" sifts sexes

Colleges protect American coeds

At many American universities, women — members of that fair sex that isn't treated so fairly — are thought of as simpleton sex symbols, with small wants and needs, a paucity of brain potency and an over-abundance of extraneous estrogen.

However, Before you start to unbuckle your bra, this isn't That Kind of Column. I'm not going to attempt to make any comment of the Women's Liberation Movement — that controversial corps of militant women running through the streets screaming their independence and liberation. Enough has been said about them; and they've said enough for themselves.

"Women Studies"

But I am writing about women — coeds, the female students. The women's movement is a phenomenon that is showing its life on campuses, large and small, all over our mile-dominated country. Departments and courses on Women's Studies are springing up all over. Girls daily are dropping out of sorority life — or death, as the case may be. And, most important, in many different and exciting ways, women finally are looking around themselves and realizing their intellectual — and human — potential; demanding that institutions stop treating them as docile damsels in distress and that dress.

And it's not even a case of male chauvinism. In this case, it's the institution that plays the sexist role. It's the college that can't let go of its babies; the university that has turned itself into a collegiate chastity belt, transforming the institution not into a house of learning, but a house of repute.

Coeds, for the most part, are treated like children. The universities have perpetuated the myth that, for women, college is little more than an accredited finishing school, a place to snatch a match, catch a few quick credits in Human Husbandry, and learn the oppressive facts of life-style. University women, in their own she-male ways, have been intellectually "castrated," with even a word of their own to describe what has been done to them.

Women: look around yourselves. There is a scarcity of women's restrooms in university scientific-type buildings — and why? Because architects evidently assumed that women didn't have the brains — or the anatomy — to engage in any major as Manly as, say, architecture or electrical engineering. As far as the institution is concerned, a girl only majors in physics because, when she mis-read the class schedule, she thought it was physicses.

University "protects"

In dormitories on many campuses, the university "protects" coeds with double-standard hours that tell a girl when to be In. Women always have had earlier hours and more stringent closed-door policies than their male dorm counterparts — and why? Because, of course: girls have More To Lose. And the ultimate any girl can become on many campuses is a Queen — a Homecoming Queen — beginning with "home," because there's no place like it. Or, if she can't make that, she could always become a HomeEc Queen. In the bifocal eyes of the nostalgic university, a women's liberal education has nothing to do with liberal, much less liberation; the coed, many in loco parentis seem to feel, is only in school to find a beau and, until she does, she must be content to play frivolous, quasi-educational games — until she's lucky enough to Settle Down and start cooking, cleaning and rearing the children. But should she ever dare to rear her carefully coifed mane and desire more than that....

Discontented Coeds

...today, many discontented coeds have uncoifed their heads a bit and reared them instead. Kate

'Double-standard'

Millett, Simone de Beauvoir and Betty Friedan all have talked and written on and on about why women need to be liberated from their roles. And many women have followed. We all know — if we've been able to look past the burning bras, the unshaven legs, the picket signs and protest marches — that women, indeed, are discriminated against in jobs, that their roles dictate their goals, that their sex determines their hex.

But things are looking up. Many colleges have instituted Women's Studies courses and departments — from women's colleges such as Sarah Lawrence and Wellesley, to large ones such as the University of California, Yale, and the University of Minnesota.

"The subject of women," says Betty Friedan, of Women's lib and "The Feminine Mystique" fame, "will one day fill libraries and create whole new courses in psychology, sociology and history."

Women's Courses

By establishing these women's courses, universities once again have alleviated their guilt, as they have done with Blacks, American Indians, and other assorted minorities. But prejudice against women is a unique bias — women are not a minority, but a discriminated-against majority. And many universities finally are doing something to ease their plight. Fine. But what are women themselves doing about it?

It will take more than changes in hours and dress styles, more bathrooms and less sorority life. It will take growing their minds and throwing away undesirable parts of their traditional roles. The universities can help women understand these roles, but it's up to the women to do something about it.

And it will take much more than any column entitled "For Women Only." Because until men, until all people, can understand the dilemmas of a part of our society, until we can understand the misunderstood, a people's liberation can never emerge. And that liberation would create a new sense of dignity and self-respect where choices can be made; where people can be whatever they need and want to be.

'States fail in education'

NEW YORK AP — The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education said today that 21 states are failing to provide what it considers adequate support for higher education.

The privately financed commission said that based on the latest available statistics, four states- Connecticut, Georgia, New Jersey and Virginia - failed to meet three of the four tests used to determine adequate support.

Nine states - Alaska, Delaware, Main, Massachusetts, Nevada, New Hampshire, Ohio, Pennsylvania and South Carolina- did not meet two of the tests.

Alabama, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, New York and North Carolina failed one of the tests. The commission said "emergency" efforts to increase the support were needed where:

— Less than 70 percent of high school students graduate from high school. Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Carolina failed that test, using 1969 figures.

— A state's net export of students is greater than 15,000. Connecticut, Illinois, Maryland, New Jersey and New York exceeded that figure in the fall of 1968, according to the commission.

Impressive Aggies head for San Diego

State thinclads post decisive triumphs over Weber, Boise

JOHN FLINT raced to a first place finish and a runner-up trophy last Saturday in USU's decisive wins over Weber State and Boise State in Ogden.

U-State track coach Ralph Maughan packs his bags for a weekend trip to southern California tomorrow, as his victorious track teams prepare to enter the San Diego Relays in San Diego Saturday afternoon. Maughan, whose tracksters registered easy wins over Weber State and Boise State Saturday in Ogden, will be gunning for some valuable NCAA-performance qualifications in the meet, although junior Mark Bingham will be unable to qualify for the NCAA meet which is held early in June.

However, Marston had fewer misses to take first place.

Discus thrower Tim Boubelik continued his fine pace, winning easily with a throw of 165. Aggie football player Kevin Johnson took second. In the shot put, Mike Mercer and Brian Caulfield (so what else is new) dominated the event. Mercer won it with a throw of 57-7, while Caulfield was second, three feet behind.

Javelin ace Craig Harrison won first place with a throw of 227 (despite a win), nudging Weber's Guy Ashby by two feet.

John Flint, who is fast becoming one of the top hurdlers in the intermountain region, registered two ribbons in the meet, winning the 440 hurdles and taking second in the intermediate hurdles.

For some reason, the mile will not be included among the day's events, so Bingham will not be able to give the time barrier a trial. Gary DeVries also falls in the same category.

In last Saturday's meet, USU clubbed Weber 104-48 and upended Boise State, 102-50. It was a windy day in Ogden, which will prevent Jerry Holmes' 100-yard dash timing from entering the USU record books. Holmes was clocked at 9.6 in the 100-yard field, tying a USU record. But the wind was too high to justify his time.

Gary DeVries Breaks Own Record

Ag netters whip Cats; golfers eye Utah match

Utah State's tennis team, not scored upon in its last two meets, whitewashed Montana State Saturday afternoon in Pocatello, 9-0.

The Aggies, who are now 5-3 on the season, counted on impressive victories from top seeded George Soules and second-seeded Duke Edwards to whip the Bobcats.

Soules, who now stands 4-4 for the year, led the Aggies to the win, with freshman Jim Andersen also winning, upping his seasonal mark to an impressive 6-1. Both Soules and Andersen won their doubles matches, too.

Edwards, one of the two regulars from last season's 18-1 team, has the most impressive record in doubles, a 6-2 mark. Edwards and Dan Nielsen are both 6-2 in that event. Nielsen, a double winner Saturday, is 4-4 in singles play.

Other Aggie winners included John Hall and Joe Buys. Hall now has respective records of 5-3, 5-2 in singles and doubles, while Buys is 4-4 and 5-3.

Golfers Qualify

COACH DEAN CANDLAND's golf team, tuning up for next Monday's meet with the University of Utah, finally got a break in the weather to polish their skills.

Tennis meeting held for girls for USU team

USU coeds interested in playing extramural tennis are encouraged to attend a meeting on Wednesday, April 7 at 3:30 p.m. This meeting will be held on the USU tennis courts, with Fern Gardner, extramural coach.

The tennis players will have the opportunity to play in two or three meets, meeting other women tennis players from colleges and universities from six surrounding states.

Utah State needs many new women tennis participants to represent these meets, so everyone interested is encouraged to attend this first meeting.

USU's top six, Ken Clark, Dan Roskelley, Jim Leonelli, Jeff Cartmill, Mike Mooney and Brad Andersen returned from their Hawaii trip to meet snow on the Logan course. However, the good weather has melted the snow and all six of the Ag duffers have been busy at practice.

Roskelley, Clark and Mooney are all from last season's 8-5 squad, while Leonelli, Cartmill and Andersen are newcomers to the squad. Leonelli and Cartmill did not letter last season, while Andersen is only a freshman. Letterman Steve Knapp and last fall's fine golfer Jim Packard have not returned to the team this fall.

Monday's match with Utah will be held at the Oakridge Country Club in Salt Lake City.

DeVries Stars

Surprise Winners

Two Aggies entered the winning circle for the first time. Freshman Jeff Marston won the pole vault with a leap of 13-6, tying teammate Tim Sullivan.

DeVries broke his own mile meet record of 4:18.1, when he was clocked at 4:17.5. He set the meet record last year. Finishing a second behind DeVries was Bingham, as was generally expected by the meet officials.

USU BRIEFS

Professor elected

Dr. Norman B. Jones, associate professor of Civil Engineering at USU, was elected president of the Utah Water Pollution Control Association at the annual business meeting held in Salt Lake City recently. The Utah Water Pollution Control Board is a chapter of the international organization headquartered in Washington D.C.

The organization is devoted to the advancement of the fundamental and practical knowledge concerning the nature, collection, treatment and disposal of domestic and industrial waste waters, and the design, construction, operation, and management of facilities for these purposes.

College councils

The college council system has recently been evaluated by its members after completing its first year of existence. The council is made up of the dean, faculty, the college senator, and elected students in each college.

The majority felt that the system has been successful this year and should be continued next year.

Elections for councils members will take place in April. The filing deadline for applications in Friday. The final vote will be taken on April 23.

The council has been responsible for various changes made in the colleges this year. Curriculum changes have come about through the system. Maintenance changes in the Business Building, and Family Life have come about through the council efforts.

Draft quota

State director of Selective Service, Colonel Richard V. Peay announced that Utah's quota of the 15,000 National draft call for May will be 83 men.

In accord with national headquarters instructions, all local boards have been advised not to exceed random sequence number 125 in filling the May quota.

The men to be inducted in May will receive induction notices from their local boards during the month of April.

Miss USU

Blue Key will again sponsor the Miss USU Pageant to be held this month. Winner of the contest will enter the Miss Utah Pageant held to select the state queen, who will compete for the crown of Miss America in the national competition at Atlantic City, N.J., in September.

Contestants are being sponsored by fraternities, sororities, dorms, clubs, etc.

Awards given

At the annual awards banquet held recently, Alpha Theta chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, extended honorary membership to Ace S. Raymond, local realtor and contractor.

Serge N. Benson was recognized for his contributions to the nation, community, and business profession with the Civic Award.

Ron Pierce, assistant professor of accounting, was named by the fraternity as College of Business Professor of the Year. Ronnie L. Andersen, Scholarship Key Award, and Executive Playmates Rothann Roxwell and Karla Rae Finch were recognized.

US band

United States Army field Band of Washington D.C., Army's official touring band, will appear in a free public concert on Saturday, April 24 at 8 p.m. in the Chase Fine Arts Center.

Nicknamed the "Kings of the Highway" because it travels as much as 40,000 miles a year, the field band has appeared in all 50 states, Canada, Mexico, the United Kingdom, Europe, the Far East and Central America.

Tickets for the free performance may be obtained from the ticket office after April 14.

Traffic tickets pile up, add to education costs

Reporting:

Miles Jensen
Life Writer

A Mason William's song goes, "Isn't life beautiful..." but a USU student is having a hard time seeing the beauty of it.

He has dealt for the past three years with the USU Traffic Office. He has lost all the three years.

His name is omitted for "security" reasons. The student has paid by his calculations over $130 in parking tickets, and believe it or not he still has not graduated.

As Freshman

He began at USU as most students begin, as a freshman. Wanting to save money, he had no parking sticker to his name or to his car, but all was well.

Through the year this young man got some tickets which he did not pay because he didn't have a sticker and Traffic didn't hunt him down. This was good, for the moment...

Security OKs

He worked at USU during the summer after his freshman year and by necessity had to park close to his work. He received the okay of one of the security officers to park in the staff parking lot which was closest to his work. The first day at work he got a ticket but ignored it as probably a mistake.

Little did that freshman know what that day had brought upon him. After several more tickets he went in to plead his case, and he came out of his plea $21 short. Even though he received an officer's permission to park in the spot, he paid a heavy price for doing it.

Did Not Hate

As a freshman this student did not hate anyone. He was the typical freshman -- shy, polite, and innocent. Apparently the Traffic Department was very willing to continue acting as his guardian by taking away money which he might spend in evil endeavors.

This was bad, except from the Traffic Office point of view. They made money. Fall came and with it came this same student a little older, little wiser, and a Sophomore. Because of his expensive knowledge gained over the summer, he purchased a traffic sticker.

Little did he know what this would do to his future at USU. Traffic found out who their "freshman unpaid parking ticket culprit" had been, and he was charged for all past unpaid tickets, some $20 more after negotiations.

Another Cycle

Last summer, this sophomore was back to work on campus, and he once again received permission from a different traffic officer to park in a certain spot. He got a letter in the mail in a few weeks charging him $12.50 more for parking illegally. Once again this "trooper" went in to plead his case of parking illegally but with an officer's permission and still getting charged with parking tickets.

It was a momentous occasion on that sunny day as this proud sophomore emerged from the appeals office with a typical student victory. Unbelievable but true, the Traffic Office had reduced his $12.50 fine by $1.

the problem was that he simply could not afford to pay the $11.50 right then.

Fatal Day Arrives

Summer came and went and this sophomore became a junior. After a futile attempt or two to call Traffic before registration about the unpaid $11.50, the fatal day arrived, and fatal it was.

His registration time came, but he could not register until he paid a cordial and costly visit to the Traffic Office. His unknowing wife, incidentally, had acquired three more tickets between summer and fall quarter.

After only three different waits in line that day for several hours, this soul found he owed another $21.50 and that there were no appeals unless they were mailed to the office beforehand.

Writing Appeal

Somehow registration day is not too conducive to sitting down and writing appeals letters to Traffic Offices. It should be mentioned, however, that there was no stipulation for which stationery color any appeals had to be written upon.

The next day after more line waiting, this student finally saw the appeals officer who told him he would cut one questionable ticket making $18.50 due. However, the fellow had to go back and get into line again to pay the fine.

Naturally when he finally got up to the window, the lady did not believe his story of owing for one less ticket than the record, and the appeals officers was no where to be found to verify his story. The rejected junior left again.

Finally Registers

This student was finally registered fall quarter, but Traffic receives little credit for it. The rest of his junior year so far has been almost as pleasant with the Traffic Office as his earlier years.

Parking in the early morning after a snowfall, he returned later to find melted snow and himself along with several others unknowingly parking on illegal lines that had earlier been covered and impossible to detect.

Perhaps in frustration this student of parking tried the 25 cent parking route, but after paying his quarter and finding no empty spots (having to park illegally), he got another ticket. In other words he paid a quarter to park to get a $3 ticket for parking. He gave up on the idea of appeals and paid the fines.

Graduation? Someday!

Through this student's diligence and Traffic's watchful eye, graduation will hopefully someday arrive. That is, if he doesn't have any more unpaid traffic violations.

The moral to that part of the story must be that if one does not want to get stuck, he shouldn't buy a sticker; but, if one buys a sticker, he still just might get stuck. What this means is that there really are not many morals with parking tickets at USU.

Summer Quarter is a comin'
When the Quad is green and warm
No snowy blasts of winter
Go raging 'round your dorm

The staff includes guest teachers
And there's lots of choice in classes
There's no out-of-state tuition
And the movies have free passes

Water skiing is delightful
On blue Bear Lake nearby
When you close your books on weekends
There are scenic spots to try

SUMMER QUARTER IS A COMIN'

The warm evenings are romantic
With theater 'neath the stars
Or moonlight hikes in the mountains
Beyond the sound of cars

Yes, Summer Quarter is a comin'
And there will be a lot of fun
With steak fries in the canyon
When the school day's work is done

But the grandest part of all—
If you're thinking of your career—
You can graduate much sooner
By going to school all year
