REVIEW OF NGOS/CBOS INVOLVED IN PRIMARY HEALTH CARE AND HIV/AIDS INITIATIVES

INTRODUCTION

C A S E was commissioned to provide a national overview of NGOs/CBOs who provide primary health care (PHC), including HIV/AIDS. The brief also included identifying potential providers of such services.

PHC section

Due to the tight timelines for this project, some areas were more detailed than others. Those NGOs/CBOs currently involved in PHC were all telephonically contacted and the resourced information catalogued into "organisation", "contact details", "contact person", "province," and "focus area/s". These organisations ranged from well-known, national PHC organisations such as the National Progressive Primary Health Care Network (NPPHCN) and the Health Systems Trust to organisations involved in rural development and water provision (such as Mvula Trust) as well as edutainment initiatives like Soul City. Although the PHC organisations seem to be limited in number, some like the NPPHCN, are umbrella bodies with several affiliates countrywide. However we have also included a broader list of all NGO's involved generally in the health arena. These could be potential partners for future HIV/AIDS or PHC initiatives.

The definition of PHC used in this brief covers an extensive range of topics since the relevant organisations were involved in a variety of areas, including:

- Early Childhood Development
- Child health care
- Ante-natal and post-natal care
- Women's health
- Contraception/family planning
- TB prevention and care
- Feeding schemes
- First Aid
- Prevention of communicable and non-communicable diseases
- Health and nutrition
- HIV/AIDS and STDs
- Hygiene and Sanitation
- Reproductive health

HIV/AIDS NGOs/ CBOs Section

The compilation of NGOs/CBOs involved in HIV/AIDS initiatives was primarily sourced from pre-existing data, either in electronic or print form. Examples of data sources include the Department of Health's electronic AIDS directory, Prodder's directory of development organisations and other primary databases developed by individual NGOs. As HIV/AIDS numbers continue to grow, more and more organisations are becoming involved in preventative, educational and care initiatives. The lists drawn up for the HIV/AIDS section include organisations whose primary focus is on HIV/AIDS service provision as well as other, sectoral NGOs/CBOs involved in education, youth, women and religion that have broadened their focus areas to include HIV/AIDS.

Under the educational institutions category, the schools included in this section are those whose HIV/AIDS programs go beyond internal activities such as raising awareness and life skills education to include a specifically designed HIV/AIDS service component such as counselling, awareness and training to the community. Again this list is not exhaustive, as there are many more schools involved in outreach projects countrywide. An extensive survey of schools nationally would perhaps yield a more detailed picture of the specific types of HIV/AIDS programs that all schools in the country are involved in.

Like the PHC section, information contained in these HIV/AIDS lists includes the following categories "organisation", "telephone", "e-mail", "contact person", "province" and "focus area/s". The latter category is defined only in terms of generic activities (such as awareness, or counselling or HIV testing services) rather than highlighting specific details of programmes. However, this gives a general indication of the focus of the majority of programmes and could help highlight apparent gaps.

It should be noted that due to time restrictions we could not assess the capacity and outreach of each of the organisations beyond their geographical reach. In-depth capacity assessment would require time for in-depth interviews with relevant staff members in each organisation and so on.

It should also be noted that there might be some duplication of organisations within the various lists. This is due to the categorisation process and should not be seen as an oversight on

C A S E's part but rather a necessary component. For example, there are organisations who are involved in both HIV/AIDS and PHC initiatives and who are thus categorised individually as such.

HIV/AIDS Service Providers Section

As mentioned above, part of the information for this study was derived from the South African AIDS Directory (2000). According to Ria Schoeman (from the national HIV/AIDS and STD's Directorate) who was involved in compiling the SA AIDS directory, a service provider refers to any individual or organization providing HIV/AIDS related services to patients and to the community as a whole. Such services include consultation, diagnosis and treatment for HIV/AIDS patients, HIV testing, counselling and referral of patients. Ideally, all individuals and organizations whether private or none profit who are providing such services should be included here, hence there could be overlaps with other sections such as the HIV/AIDS NGO's and CBO's section. However, the list is not exhaustive as it only contains the details of the organisations that forwarded their details to the Medical Research Council before the directory was published.

ANALYSIS OF FINDINGS

As stated previously, we were unable to provide more details beyond the name of organization, contact numbers, geographical location and a brief description of HIV/AIDS activities due to our limited time for fieldwork and reliance on secondary data. To assess the gaps in capacity and outreach of these organizations, a proper needs analysis study is required which would involve primary research including in-depth interviews with individuals from these organizations.

However, we managed to contact a few organizations and experts in the field to provide a broad picture of the possible gaps in capacity, service provision and support. Considering the length of time and methodological gaps in acquiring this information, we would like to acknowledge that this information does not necessarily reflect an informed picture but nevertheless some of the comments could give useful pointers on areas where capacity could be strengthened positively.

Apparent Lack of Home-based Care Initiatives

In terms of HIV/AIDS programmes, a key priority area for many NGOs now is home based care and support for people living with AIDS given the pressure that HIV/AIDS has exerted on government and private hospitals and clinics. The Gauteng Five Year AIDS Strategy (2000-2005) recognises the role of different services and resources given the severe impact of the epidemic on health care services. One of the three goals of this strategy is to provide a continuum of care and support for people living with HIV/AIDS through the joint efforts of various groups including, primary health care providers, traditional healers, NGOs/CBOs, religious groups, employers and community support groups. The strategy notes that care must be extended beyond medical service provision to include the family, the community, NGOs, home based care projects and hospices and the focus of care must shift from treatment to symptom relief, general comfort and spiritual support.

One of the organisations interviewed for this study, the South Coast Hospice in Port Shepstone, Kwa Zulu-Natal reported to be the only one in the area doing home based care despite an overwhelming demand for this service in the region. The lack of home-based care initiatives is therefore clearly a major gap in this field.

According to the Gauteng AIDS Strategy, the province intends to have 30 home based care projects by the year 2003 and to do this the province needs a budget increase from R4 million to R25 million. Therefore the capacity of NGOs needs to be expanded to supplement government's efforts in this area.

Apparent Lack of Support for Orphans and Vulnerable Children (OVC's)

Another critical area identified by several NGOs is care and support of orphans and vulnerable children affected by HIV/AIDS. As stated by Rose Smart, former director for HIV/AIDS and STD's in the National Department of Health, current home based care programs need to incorporate care of children affected by HIV/AIDS. In relation to funding, this is one of the key areas where more funds need to be channeled. As the CIDA report notes, donors have previously focused mainly on HIV/AIDS awareness and prevention. Less attention has been given to the care and support for people infected and affected with HIV/AIDS (CIDA, 2000).

Apparent Lack of Counselling Training Initiatives

Capacity building of NGOs/CBOs in training their personnel and the community in counselling skills was also suggested by some of the NGOs and government officials to whom we spoke. Considering the high HIV/AIDS rate in this country, the demand for counsellors is clearly on the increase. Again, the government and private sector cannot possibly meet this demand, therefore NGOs have a key role to play in training lay counsellors, community health workers and their own staff in counselling skills. According to the Gauteng Department of health, by 1999 counselling and testing was available in 60% of clinics with gaps in services for key areas in the inner cities of Johannesburg and Pretoria. Despite the fact that the province now has capacity for large scale testing, capacity in counselling still needs to be boosted. The Gauteng AIDS strategy intends to address this need by training more trainers, nurse counsellors and lay counsellor volunteers and increasing funding for NGOs to manage lay counsellors. This strategy also recommends the introduction of Primary Health Care HIV testing on a larger scale as well as the expansion of counselling capacity especially in the districts where this is absent.

Apparent Lack of Institutional Capacity To Access Funding Among NGOs/CBOs

The study on government funding mechanisms highlighted many of the problems that NGOs/CBOs face in accessing funds from the government including irregular funding cycles and complicated application procedures. As several officials of provincial departments pointed out, many organizations particularly CBOs are unable to qualify for funds as they lack adequate skills in administration, finance and project management which are necessary to establish and sustain an organization and are also part of the pre-requisites that have to be fulfilled in order to qualify for funding. Therefore, it would be useful for the government and other donors to look into the provision of support in project management, administration, financial management, human resource management as well as HIV/AIDS training in counselling, support and care as mentioned previously. In addition, many NGOs expressed the need for reliable and continuous funding. Several heads of these organizations reported that almost all their time is spent soliciting funds rather than concentrating on their specific programs and this obviously has implications as far as the accomplishment of target goals and objectives is concerned.

Apparent Lack of NGO/CBO Providers In Some Provinces

In terms of geographical outreach, this study indicated the huge disparity in the geographical distribution of NGOs involved in HIV/AIDS. As it is to be expected, Gauteng, Western Cape and Kwa Zulu-Natal have the largest number of HIV/AIDS NGOs while the Northern Province, North West and Northern Cape have the least. This would imply that access to services is better in the former provinces and that more support is needed in the latter provinces, in the light of the fact that the former provinces receive more resources in terms of funding from the government (CIDA Report 2000:34). However, we cannot conclusively argue for this case due to the limited information available on the geographical spread of the organisations within the provinces or the approximate population size covered by each organisation. Nevertheless, it seems that greater support for new and established HIV/AIDS NGOs and CBOs is needed most in the Northern Province, Northern Cape, North West and Mpumalanga provinces as well as the former black homeland areas which still tend to be under-resourced.
