Susan Shuetzl takes blood from Tim Gill during Tuesday's blood drive sponsored by Phi Kappa Psi. The annual drive took in 194 pints of blood.

Poly blood drive draws success

Tuesday's blood drive sponsored by Phi Kappa Psi fraternity brought in about 194 pints of blood, primarily from Cal Poly students.

Drew Gentile, blood drive coordinator, said Alpha Phi Sorority had 15 donors, the largest amount from any Greek organization. They were awarded a keg of beer for their effort.

Last year the blood bank collected 224 pints of blood and in 1982 they collected 284 pints, the largest amount ever. "That is about what we expected," said Steven Herrera, manager of Tri-Counties Blood Bank which organized the blood drive.

"Potentially we could have donated about 500 units if we would have had more cooperation," Gentile said.

On the positive end, "Everything went smoothly, it was like clockwork," he said.

The fraternity was in charge of packaging the blood which must be kept on ice at a temperature of one to six degrees Celsius. This is to maintain its actives, said Herrera. "If it becomes too warm the cells will deteriorate," he said.

The blood is loaded onto trucks and taken to a laboratory where it is tested for diseases and broken down into components of platelets, red blood cells and plasma. Herrera said.

Tri-counties takes in approximately 9000 units of blood a year. They do other blood drives with the dormitories, and the donor center is open during regular business hours. All the blood they take in is donated. They have a list of people with rare blood types that they call whenever there is a shortage or an emergency.

Provost Fort unveils fall graduation plans

Provost Tomlinson Fort, Jr. announced Wednesday morning that Fall Commencement exercises will be held for graduates on Saturday, December 15. The ceremony will be conducted in the Main Gym at 10 a.m.

It is anticipated that about 400 students will meet their degree requirements at that time and want to go through the ceremonies. The available seating should allow each candidate to invite around six guests.

For students who met their graduation requirements last Summer Quarter and have not attended commencement, and for those students who will be graduating Winter Quarter and don't think they will be able to attend the Spring Commencement, Fort said they will be accommodated at the fall graduation on a space available basis. Students in this category should contact the graduation clerk in the Records Office for additional information.

The specific details about the availability of guest tickets and other arrangements are being developed by the Commencement Committee and will be announced by Don Coats, the Commencement Coordinator. Students who believe they are eligible and wish to participate in the December commencement must have made the necessary arrangements with the graduation clerk in the Records Office by next Monday, Nov. 5.

Coats encourages student input about the new ceremonies and reception.

"The most important thing about a fall graduation is that some students will get the opportunity to go through a ceremony that they otherwise would not have been able to," said Coats. "(Graduation) is an important milestone and everyone should have the opportunity to participate."

Coats said that previously only 15 percent of the students who graduated in December went through graduation exercises the following June.

He also said the second ceremony may help alleviate some of the crowding problems at the June ceremony.

Students will also be given the option of which graduation ceremony they attend, regardless of when they graduate.

India mourns for Ghandi

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A tearful, vengeful India mourned the assassinated Indira Gandhi on Wednesday and turned to the slain prime minister's son to lead the huge nation through its time of crisis.

The 66-year-old Mrs. Gandhi was cut down outside her home Wednesday morning in a rain of submachine-gun bullets fired by her own Sikh bodyguards, officials reported. At least one of the two or three gunmen was killed, the reports said.

The mortally wounded prime minister, a Hindu, died five hours later, setting off a wave of anti-Sikh violence across the nation.

"Return blood with blood!" Hindu crowds shouted in New Delhi, where Sikh shops were set ablaze and Sikh shrines stoned. Hundreds were reported injured.

Extremist members of the minority Sikh religion had threatened repeatedly to kill the prime minister, especially since she ordered a bloody army assault against the Sikhs' holy Golden Temple last June to crush the Sikh separatist movement in Punjab state.

National legislators of Mrs. Gandhi's governing Congress Party met in emergency caucus Wednesday and unanimously chose her son, Rajiv, 40, a party general secretary, to succeed her.

Indira Gandhi, daughter of India's first prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, dominated the political life of this teeming nation for two decades. She turned India into a nuclear power and strengthened its role as a Third World leader, but her governments made little progress in relieving India's deep poverty, or in overcoming its internal religious and ethnic conflicts.

The funeral and cremation were scheduled for Saturday. Until then, her body will lie in state at her late father's home. The armed forces were put on alert and a 12-day period of national mourning was declared.

The Indian leader was shot at 9:20 a.m. (10:50 p.m. EST Tuesday) as she emerged from her home on a tree-lined New Delhi avenue for a recorded interview with British actor Peter Ustinov.

"Suddenly ... two persons carrying Sten (submachine) guns — one uniformed and one in civilian clothes — shot at Mrs. Gandhi," the news agency United News of India later reported.

One of the Sikh security men fired from just seven feet away, it said, and the prime minister, clad in an orange cotton sari, fell with a cry. Between eight and 16 bullets struck her in the chest, abdomen and thigh, various reports said.

The Ustinov camera crew was waiting in the Gandhi garden, about 80 yards away, and heard but did not see the attack, which they said occurred at the residence's gate.

The UNI agency and a former foreign minister, Atal B. Vajpayee, both reported that three security guards were involved, but UNI said only two fired on Mrs. Gandhi.

Vajpayee said two were shot dead by other guards and a third was wounded and hospitalized. The news agency said one, identified as police sub-inspector Beant Singh, in his 40s, was shot dead, and another, constable Satwant Singh, 26, was wounded, was expected to survive and would be interrogated.

Ustinov, who described the scene inside the Gandhi compound as "total chaos," said he was told by a high-ranking security official that two guards shot Mrs. Gandhi, and one was a longtime Sikh bodyguard who had been moved from the post as a security risk "but she missed him and asked for him back again."

New solar energy system to heat up red brick dorms

By GREGG SCHROEDER
Staff Writer

A new solar heating system being installed in the South Mountain residence halls is not costing student residents any money, according to the housing manager.

Joseph Risser said Alten Products Co. of Mountain View is installing the system, which is funded by the California Energy Investment Corp., also of Mountain View, as a tax write-off for investors.

Risser said solar collecting panels have been installed on the north ends of the South Mountain or "red brick" dorms—Fremont, Muir, Santa Lucia, Sequoia, Tenaya and Trinity Halls.

The system is what is known as an active system, Risser said. Water is pumped to the collecting panels, heated by the sun, stored in holding tanks and then pumped through conventional water heaters to assure it is at the proper temperature before going to sinks and showers.

Risser said installation of the system should be completed by the end of November.

According to Risser, the investment company will get the majority of the savings for the first five years, while the university will save five percent on heating costs. After the five-year period, the university will have the option to keep the system or have it removed. If the university keeps the system it will save 25 to 40 percent.

Until the system is completely turned over to the university, the investment firm will take care of maintenance costs.

Originally, the plan included the North Mountain dorms, Risser said, but the design of the buildings presented installation problems.

Risser said there have only been two problems since installation began. At one point a roof leaked, but has since been repaired. Also, the noise of the mechanism starting up in the morning awoke residents. Now the system is set so it will not start up until after 10 a.m.

Risser said a study will eventually be done to see if it is feasible and practical to install similar solar heating systems in the other residence halls.

Risser said the money saved with the system can be used for other residence hall needs.

The limits of faculty response

Cal Poly faculty—what's your problem?

An assumption one has to make when entering a university is that the faculty will take an active role in education.

But it has been proven this is a farce. A majority of the faculty have refused to respond to students' requests for educational aid.

The Mustang Daily conducted two polls last week on next week's presidential election. One polled students. The other polled faculty.

After consulting with political science and statistics professors, the Mustang Daily devised a system to conduct a scientifically random sampling. The number of responses required to make the poll valid was 160 faculty out of about 730 faculty.

Thirty-three faculty responded.

Last month fourth year architecture students conducted a survey of faculty to determine its response to building a faculty club.

One hundred-forty faculty were polled.

Forty responded.

Last year ASI attempted to put together a student opinion booklet of faculty to help students make informed decisions on classes to take. The faculty were asked to distribute questionnaires to their classes and return completed forms to ASI. Faculty cooperation was so poor the booklet, which could have been very valuable to students, flopped.

Faculty groups have been very active in community activities, such as Concerned Faculty, Staff and Friends. But the concern is mainly for environmental issues. Which is a notable and valuable concern—but what about the students?

Faculty apathy toward its students is not a trait we can't pin on every individual instructor. In fact, there are a number of faculty at this university who go out of their way to assist a student having problems in a class. But our education here doesn't start and end in one classroom, with one subject. The faculty should be involved in other aspects of our education as well. The statistics from the cited polls show that there truly are quite a number of faculty who aren't cooperating.

So faculty involvement is proven—and some faculty prove it continuously—but why is there such a huge gap in involvement with the students' education?

Maybe the education the faculty are giving us is that there are people out in the "real world" who won't care and who won't help us out.

There have been comments that perhaps the Mustang Daily faculty poll was not scientific and therefore invalid. But Mustang Daily is a learning lab—we're doing this for our education.

In response to the lack of response to the Mustang Daily poll, we have reissued the poll. Faculty, this is your chance to show that you care about our education.

Letters

Biking suggestions questioned by former UCSB student biker

Editor:

This letter is in response to "Six Bike Rules to Ride and Live By" (sic) written by Mr. Rick A. Davis to the Mustang Daily on Oct. 30.

First off, this is my first quarter of master's work here at Poly after graduating from UCSB last March. Mr. Davis made reference to the bike lanes at UCSB and feels that a similar concept be put into use here on campus. I used the bike lanes at UCSB almost daily for three years and feel I am somewhat of an "authority" as to their utility and merit. Mr. Davis fails to mention that UCSB has no automobile traffic within the campus core, thus putting it into a different category from Cal Poly. UCSB's campus is designed for bikes, Cal Poly's is not. There is no significant intention to separate cars, people and bikes at Cal Poly. This is the underlying problem. At UCSB the separation between pedestrians and bicyclists is very well defined, and, both the pedestrian and bicyclists act accordingly. Here at Cal Poly there is little or no separation (except for the green section of the road on Via Carta which Mr. Davis assumes domination). Thus, how should pedestrians know exactly where to walk? I pose this question as a biker and as a pedestrian. So how can Mr. Davis refer to pedestrians as "lame" and "mindless" when there is no true standard to be followed by pedestrians or bikers.

As you point out, Mr. Davis, be aware of your surroundings (i.e., Cal Poly is not made for bicycles and pedestrians). And the next time an "ignorant" cyclist nearly skewers me on a sidewalk, should I stuff his bike down his throat?

Student gives credit to oil glut

Editor:

Let us give credit where credit is due. We do not have President Reagan to thank for our economic recovery. We have a world glut of oil (that was created by the inability of a stagnant world economy to use all the oil that was being produced) that forced the price of oil down, which slowed the rate of inflation, which enabled interest rates to drop allowing business to reinvest...to thank for our economic recovery. And let us not forget that the world glut of oil will diminish with time, and that with a national debt of historic proportion holding our futures all hostage, it is only a meter of time before we enter our next recession, and our next recession...

The newspapers recently have been talking about the possibility of President Reagan winning all 50 states. The last President to win such a vast majority of states was President Nixon who won 49 states, whose administration ended in disgrace. After his landslide victory I asked myself how so many people could be misled. President Reagan is not that much different than Richard Nixon. Both rely on charisma and a carefully packaged image to ensure their popularity. President Reagan has been lucky so far. The world economy is on a gentle upswing due to forces beyond his control.

Writer interprets Scripture

Editor:

In regards to James McAndrew's letter of Oct. 29, I admire Jim's religious zeal and his boldness. I have learned many things by his remarks, however. His comments are in definite opposition to Scripture. There was a giant misrepresentation concerning God's character and the power He possesses.

Did Christ ever tell men to make a choice for fellowship with Him? No. Instead He said, "No one comes to Me except the Father draw him," (John 6:44). Further, does Scripture say that people play the game of chance? No. Instead Scripture says salvation depends on God and His mercy (Romans 9:16). Finally, did Christ ever say, "It doesn't hurt to believe in God" or "It doesn't help not to believe?" No. As a matter of Scripture, man is not saved by his own merit but by God. For example, Christ condemned the rich young ruler even in his false belief and in his attempt to follow God's ways (Mark 10:17-2). Christ told the religious Pharisees to flee from Him because their attempts were of their own merit and not of God.

I disagree with urging people to accept Christ (or God) if done blindly or without understanding sins devastating power because biblical men such as Paul, Peter, and Christ himself did not preach in this way. Rather, men must understand the concept of sin and what it has done to him in his relationship with God, and search for the wisdom of who God is and what Christ has done for man. If this were the plea, there would not be a question as to why men do not "accept God." Today's evangelism is very inconsistent with Scripture.

The power of God and His loving grace are the means of man's salvation (Ephesians 2:4-9).

It is absurd and unjust to tell a man to "take a chance on God." According to the Bible, chance is not an attribute in God's character. God ordains all things (Romans 8:28, 9:18-20).

The true evangelist encourages men to flee to Christ for repentance like John the Baptist preached; or encourage men to search to find out who God really is.

Jim, I do not mean for this to be derogatory or sarcastic in any way. I am just a man under the dominion of God — as we all are. The Lord has stirred me to comment and as a servant to Him I have done so.

OPEC says it will create oil shortage

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — OPEC pledged Wednesday to create a temporary world oil shortage this winter in a bid to reverse a downward trend in prices.

Analysts questioned, however, whether all cartel members would resist the temptation to pump more oil when demand picks up during the heating season.

"For now it's a paper agreement because it can't be tested" until the oil producers are faced with turning away their oil buyers, said Walter Levy, an oil consultant in New York.

The 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed on the third day of an emergency meeting to cut their production ceiling by nearly 9 percent starting Thursday.

The cartel said in a final communique that cutting overall daily production from 17.5 million barrels to 16 million barrels would be shared by 11 of the member countries, Nigeria and Iraq were deemed to be hardship cases and thus were exempted from the reduction.

Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister, said OPEC projected that demand for its oil during November and December would jump to nearly 19 million barrels a day because of the usual increase in heating oil requirements during those months.

By restricting its output to 16 million barrels a day, OPEC will create a temporary shortage in the market and drive up prices, he said.

"Our decision today is to create the necessary shock in order to increase the price faster," Yamani told a news conference after the oil ministers completed their talks in a Geneva hotel.

"We think the action will be felt in the market the minute the oil companies try to find a barrel of oil and are not able to find it easily," he said.

"We now are in a position to fight back and to put the price back up where we want it to be," he added.

Yamani stressed, however, that the cartel did not want to drive prices higher than the official OPEC level of $29 a barrel. He said that if prices on the open market moved "much" above OPEC official level, the cartel would meet again to loosen its grip on supplies and temper the price rise.

"We are not interested in driving prices to uncontrollable levels," said Ali Khalifa Al-Sabah, the oil minister of Kuwait.

SEEING YOUR POTENTIAL

Just as a master diamond cutter can see the potential in an uncut stone, NEC can see the potential in the individual about to graduate from college.

Putting that belief into action has enabled us to become the third largest semiconductor manufacturer in the world. And we're growing stronger all the time.

For the emerging graduate we offer an environment that develops new facets to your current capabilities, which will take you from the novice to a top professional in the semiconductor field.

For instance, the growth opportunities at our Roseville facility (just outside Sacramento) are exceptional. This state-of-the-art VLSI manufacturing plant will be the largest and most advanced wafer fab operation in the U.S. It will supplement our successful Mountain View, California operation as well as our Technology Center in Natick, Massachusetts. This center, with over 80 engineers is a unique institution where semiconductor technologies developed in the U.S., Japan, and Europe are combined, enhanced, and applied to the needs of the U.S. market.

We're looking for dynamic people who respond to the challenge of putting their scholastic skills to the test. This is the opportunity to become a polished professional in the diverse world of NEC.

On Monday, November 5, NEC will be holding INTERVIEWS at the Placement Office for the following majors:

Pumpkins are fun for needy kids

By CHRIS COUNTS
Special to the Daily

Delta Sigma Phi fraternity helped 26 underprivileged children celebrate Halloween a day early this year.

The children who live in the low-income housing project on Madonna Road, just west of Los Osos Valley Road, took part in the fraternity's annual pumpkin carve Tuesday afternoon. The pumpkin carve is coordinated by Delta Sigma Phi and Grassroots II, a local social service.

Delta Sigma Phi President Jim Beckel said, "This is one way we can help the less fortunate have a better holiday season."

"We've received a lot from this community and the pumpkin carve is one way we can put something back into it," he said.

The children were delivered to the fraternity house in Delta Sigma Phi's 60-year old fire engine. Returning the favor, the children surprised the brothers by giving break dancing lessons.

Jonathon Monfort, the fraternity's social director, enjoyed the pumpkin carve as much as the kids.

"It brings the brothers together and gets the little sisters involved," Monfort said. "The kids get a chance to carve some pumpkins and get into the Halloween spirit."

Teen victim is number 15 in gang wars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nine teen-year-old Rebecca Ayala spoke out fearlessly against gangs, and she was killed by gang members — not out of revenge, but in a random, senseless spray of bullets after the rip-off of a portable stereo.

She was the 15th person killed in a wave of unprecedented gang violence since Oct. 12 and at least the 144th this year, police and sheriff's deputies say.

"This shouldn't have happened to her," said neighbor Dilly Titus, 18. "She cared about practically everybody. She'd be talking to a lot of kids. She'd usually tell them they shouldn't be in it (gangs)."

The shooting Monday caught Ms. Ayala sitting on her mother's car outside their home on Washington Avenue near Compton, just a few blocks from the Los Angeles River.

Sheriff's Deputy Dave Tellez said three youths approached Ernesto Ganavos, 18, Ms. Ayala's boyfriend, who was listening to his stereo on the sidewalk about 50 yards away from Ms. Ayala.

"This guy got out of a Pinto and walked towards us," Ganavos said. "He took out a gun and pointed it to my face. He said, 'Hey, blood-sucker, give me your box.' I gave it to him."

Afterward, as they drove away, six shots were fired randomly from the car. One of them hit Ms. Ayala.

"We were all outside of the house," said her mother, Helen Arechiga. "I saw her get hit. I ran to her."

"I saw her lying on the ground," said Ganavos. "I ran up to her. I tried to calm her down. I was talking to her, 'You're going to make it, babe.'"

Friends and family recalled that Ms. Ayala saved news clippings on street violence and urged neighborhood youngsters not to join gangs.

"She was telling people to watch out, don't dress that way and get out of the kick of it," said Mrs. Arechiga, 43.

Theater founder dies near SLO

SANTA MARIA, Calif. (AP) — Michael W. Leibert, founder of the Berkeley Repertory Theater, has died after abdominal surgery at the age of 44.

Leibert died Monday night following abdominal surgery at the Marian Medical Center in this community south of San Luis Obispo. Unofficial cause of death was listed as renal failure, said hospital spokeswoman Cheryl Davidson.

Leibert founded the acting company 15 years ago on a shoestring, operating out of a storefront and evolving into Northern California's second-largest professional theater after the American Conservatory Theater in San Francisco.

In 1980, the troupe moved into a $2 million downtown Berkeley theater.

Leibert acted in or directed productions at the Oregon Shakespeare Festival at Ashland, Ore., and the Pacific Conservatory of Performing Arts in Solvang.

In 1968, Leibert left graduate studies at the University of California to establish "The Theater" in a converted store.

Leibert is survived by his wife, Kimberly King, a former wife, Alexa McGurrian, and a son and daughter.

UCSB rocks to an 80s premier group, ar

By JEFF CHACON
Special to the Daily

"Talking about stealing the show, no one would know..."

When Fixx lead singer Cy Curnin croons these words from "Deeper and Deeper," it's an understatement. Not only does he steal the show, he is the show. Emerging from a trap door in the floor of the stage after the rest of the band has assembled, he is the leader. Dressed in a black suit with white shirt collar turned up, looking very much like Count Dracula, Curnin emitted an aura of mystery.

Not that his band is a mystery, though. The Fixx has been one of Britain's most popular exports since their arrival on the scene in 1982. With their political lyrics and emotional music, they have attracted an ever-increasing number of fans of many types, as indicated by Sunday's concert at the UCSB Events Center.

The audience was diverse, with punks, mods and even rockers enjoying the show. And enjoy they did.

The Fixx performed many of its hits, including "Stand or Fall," "Saved by Zero," "Reach the Beach" and their most recent hit, "Are We Ourselves?" from their latest album, "Phantoms."

The band, made up of Curnin on vocals, Jamie

West-Oram on guitars, Adam Woods on drums, Rupert Greenall on keyboards and Dan K. Brown on bass, performed well during the hour and a half set. Although none of the band moved around on stage at all, the sound was good. West-Oram's guitar, which frequently drives the Fixx' sound on record, was also outstanding.

Woods' enthusiastic drumming and Brown's thumping bass formed an exciting rhythm section, while Greenall's eerie keyboard riffs added a feeling of suspense to the whole. But the Fixx, besides Curnin, is not a show band. They are energetic, yet don't show a lot of enthusiasm on stage.

The Fixx's lack of enthusiasm directly contrasted with Curnin, the main attraction. Whether directing the crowd in a sing-along during "Red Skies" or posing behind one of the three screens behind the stage during "The Fool," he was the show.

During "Saved by Zero," one of the group's early hits, he teased the audience by reaching out for them, then quickly pulling away when they got close. "I go to the edge the I look down," he sang in "Deeper and Deeper," before disappearing back down into the trap door. After "Red Skies," the band lined up, prepared to leave the stage, while the crowd yelled and screamed for more. They stopped, looked at the crowd as if to consider not leaving, the left. The crowd had obviously not had enough. They screamed

Amy Grant

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Amy Grant's "Age to Age" album has been certified gold, which means it has sold more than 500,000 copies. The unusual thing is that it's a religious album — they don't often go gold.

In October, Miss Grant sold out 6,000-seat Radio City Music Hall in New York. She had a seven-piece rock band, in which her husband, Gary Chapman, plays guitar; three backup singers and a sophisticated lighting system. The songs were mostly loud, with a rock beat. Miss Grant, her long, curly hair loose and trendily dressed, is 23, pretty, wholesome-looking, and projects a likable sincerity.

Her eighth album, out last spring on Myrrh Records, is "Straight Ahead." In an interview, she says, "I can't imagine anybody who isn't at least interested in what I'm singing about rushing out and buying a bunch of Amy Grant records. But people will tell me after a concert, 'I never heard of you until tonight. A friend suggested I come.'"

"It's rare that one circumstance, like one concert, will change a person's entire life. But in a concert I think I have an opportunity to present a realistic picture of God alive and working in our lives today, that some young person might not have seen.

"With every song, my goal is to say I believe that God is who He said He is and there's an eternal scheme of things we've got to plug into.

"For two and a half hours, every person there is in a circumstance where they can choose to decide who God is instead of society or parents or school or peer pressure choosing for them."

Lyrics of songs she writes and songs she chooses to sing don't deal with such topics as drugs, Miss Grant says. "I would say I'm not dealing with the resulting problems, but dealing with the symptoms. My songs talk more about for more and the Fixx delivered. After a couple of minutes they came back out and launched into a three-song encore, the last song, "One Thing Leads to Another," their biggest hit to date. Curnin once again led the crowd in a sing-along, displaying his wizardry as a showman and bandleader.

The opening band, General Public, consists of ex-members of former British groups The English Beat, The Specials and Dexy's Midnight Runners. Vocalist/guitarist Dave Wakeling and vocalist Ranking Roger, both of English Beat fame, are clearly the leaders of the band, handling all the vocals and most of the songwriting. Their association with the Beat is obvious, with most of the songs by General Public running parallel with the Calypso/Caribbean influenced songs from the Beat's last album, "Special Beat Service." And this association is going to be hard for this young band to get away from, as the Beat was one of Britain's more popular bands before "creative differences" tore it apart last year. While most of General Public's tunes are good, strong songs, it will be hard for them to get out from under that shadow that is the Beat.

During its 55-minute set, General Public played many songs from its new album, "All the Rage," including their newest single, "Hot You're Cool," "Tenderness" and their trademark song, "General Public." Wakeling handled the lead vocals, with Roger backing up, continuing the sound that was the Beat. Ranking Roger was the party man, consistently dancing all around the stage, and encouraging the crowd to clap hands with the music.

Decked out in a jumpsuit and sporting a black skunk tail afro, Roger looked the part of a court jester. His enthusiasm seemed to spark the band, as bassist Horace Panter (ex-Specials) and lead guitarist Kevin White warmed up and danced around the stage after a few numbers, too.

With the General Public eyes lighting up on the stage backdrop, the band was in its place.

However good the sound and appearance, the band had some problems. About halfway through the show, after Ranking Roger had repeatedly tried to get the lackluster crowd excited, he exclaimed, "I think you need a fix." Despite the irony, the band launched into a mediocre rendition of the Beat's "Save it for Later," which the crowd definitely approved of. From there to the remainder of the set, the crowd was more responsive.

Surprisingly, the band didn't play an encore. Maybe General Public felt it wasn't necessary, or the crowd was anxious for the Fixx. Whatever the reason, seeding these two bands on the same night on the same stage was definite entertainment.

hits gold singing for Jesus

our self-esteem and who we are in God's sight. If you don't feel like anybody gives a flip about you, it's hard to care that much about yourself.

"It's hard for anybody to grasp that, 2,000 years ago, God loved me enough to come in the form of man and die for me. Jesus is saying, right in the midst of whatever bad stuff you're doing, I love you.

"I just want to tell kids they're important. I need that myself; I need to feel like somebody cares.

"It's funny the things that insecurity will make you do — draw attention to yourself, do stupid or self-destructive things. Hopefully my songs deal with more the root instead of saying you've got to live by my rules."

"When I started writing songs I wanted to shy away from having people not understand what I was saying because they didn't understand the words I was using." The religious, like the computer mavens, have a jargon and Miss Grant doesn't use it.

Miss Grant often is asked if she's going to move into pop music. She says, "My heart is really in what I'm doing. Singing about something so much bigger than me really puts life in perspective. And singing is a release. The release is not just the sound and feel of it but what the song is saying. I'll be singing at concerts sometimes and thinking I'm getting more out of this than anybody."

Animal heart transplant working fine

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Baby Fae spent her sixth day with a transplanted baboon's heart "gulping down her formula," sucking on a pacifier, yawning and being rocked by her mother while showing no signs of rejecting the organ, doctors said Wednesday.

"The mother is in the room with a rocking chair, rocking the baby," said Dr. Ted Mackett, transplant services chief at Loma Linda University Medical Center, where the historic, controversial transplant was performed last Friday.

"The mother and father have both caressed the baby. Pediatricians I think call it bonding," he said.

Pediatrics chairman Dr. John Mace said he "was pleased to see the big yawn (from Baby Fae), like she's bored by all our interest." He said the parents are with the baby "a great deal of time."

The 2½-week-old infant, whose name and exact age have been withheld at her parents' request, is the world's longest-lived survivor of an animal-to-human heart transplant. The old record was held by a South African accountant who lived 3½ days with a chimp's heart.

Surgeon Dr. Leonard Bailey, who hasn't appeared before reporters since Sunday, has said he performed the surgery because the baby faced death within hours from the inadequacy of her underdeveloped heart.

Dr. David Hinshaw, a surgeon, said there is no "threshold" after which Baby Fae will be safe from rejection of the primate's heart, but that her chances improve with time.

Questions persisted Wednesday about whether Baby Fae would have been better served by an experimental corrective surgery — her doctors said no — but most attention focused on the infant and her activities.

Boy dies as parents wait for Medi-Cal

MARYSVILLE (AP) — The parents of a 14-week-old boy who died of starvation told sheriff's deputies they were waiting for a Medi-Cal card to take their child to a doctor, according to court documents.

Dale Baldwin, 18, an unemployed cook, and Jimeise Baldwin, 18, both of Linda, have pleaded innocent in Yuba County Municipal Court to charges of murder and felony child neglect resulting in death.

Their child, Michael, was pronounced dead at a Marysville hospital Oct. 22. An autopsy indicated he died of emaciation.

Judge Donald Wahlberg this week ordered the Baldwins held in Yuba County Jail in lieu of $50,000 bail each pending a Friday bail hearing. A preliminary hearing on the charges is scheduled Nov. 13.

Mrs. Baldwin told a sheriff's investigator she was concerned about her baby's weight loss, but didn't have a Medi-Cal card and transportation into Marysville from their rural cabin, the documents stated. Medi-Cal is a government health-care program for the poor.

The sheriff's report filed in court said the Baldwins noticed in early October that the baby was "skin and bones" and talked to relatives, who suggested a change in formula and medical care. But Baldwin said he was waiting for a Medi-Cal card, the report said.

Emergency sirens go off

Special to the Daily

San Luis Obispo residents were caught unaware when emergency test sirens accidentally sounded off Tuesday morning.

Police and county officials were inundated with phone calls from frightened residents during an annual mock emergency drill among PG&E, the Federal Emergency Management Agency and Diablo Canyon personnel.

"This mistake raises serious questions," said KVEC Operations Director Bill Benica. KVEC is the emergency broadcast station for this area. "If they (PG&E) can't get a siren to work properly for a drill, what will happen in a real emergency?"

According to Benica after the sirens resounded at 10:30 the KVEC "Ring Down Line," a direct emergency telephone line from the sheriff's office to the KVEC newsroom, was in use. At 10:50 the sheriff's office ordered the radio station to activate an E.B.S. (Emergency Broadcast System) to notify everyone that "the siren was part of a test."

"The problem with this reasoning is that the public was never informed that the siren would be activated," said Benica. "Perhaps they didn't want to tell the public it was a mistake, because they didn't want to get the public any more confused than they already were."

Sandwich Plant will be redone

By KIM MILLER
Staff Writer

A newly remodeled Sandwich Plant will offer students more variety, less waiting time and a larger facility, but the renovations will take some time, said the Foundation executive director.

Alfred Amaral said, "We are trying to be of better service to our customers by offering more services, more effectively than those supplied by the present Sandwich Plant."

The facility will close for construction at the end of the Fall Quarter at the earliest and construction will take approximately three months, said Robert McKee, assistant to the food service director.

"The earliest it could possibly reopen would be the middle of March, or the beginning of the Spring Quarter," he said.

The new $300,000 sandwich shop was originally scheduled to close for construction in October, but the Foundation is still working on design details, Amaral said.

Students will no longer have to wait in those winding lines for their peanut-butter and jelly sandwiches. When the new facility finally reopens, it will be complete with a walk-up window and five-minute service time, he added.

"The expanded facility will enhance catering space available in the evening," Amaral said. Clubs who wish to use the space and have food catered will have that service offered to them.

"We need to do a better job keeping up with our customers," Amaral said the Foundation's plans for food service don't end at the Sandwich Plant.

The construction must be funded through internal sources, meaning the government will not contribute to the funding, so Amaral could not say exactly how long the complete renovations will take.

Even though the Cal Poly Mustang women's volleyball team routed Cal State Fresno Tuesday night in the gym, its playing had much to be desired. In fact, head coach Mike Wilton said the women looked as though it was playing in a fog.

"They've been having tule fog over there lately, so maybe they were more comfortable here (because of Tuesday's fog in San Luis Obispo)," said Wilton. "I know we were in a fog on our side of the net."

Raiders not use to second place

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Coach Tom Flores says the Raiders don't have the luxury of dwelling on a defeat.

"Every game we play seems to be an emotional one," Flores said Wednesday, talking about the Raiders' 22-19 overtime loss Sunday to the Denver Broncos. "We had enough chances, but we just blew the game to Denver."

"It was a pretty quiet Monday around our facility," said Flores of his team's first practice after the loss. "But we don't have the time to suffer a letdown. It's over. You carry that into the next week and you lose sight of what you're trying to, which for us is to prepare for the Bears."

The Raiders, 7-2, dropped into a second-place tie with Seattle in the American Football Conference West Division, one game behind the Broncos. It's the first time since the team moved to Los Angeles that the Raiders have not been in first place in their division.

Two Soviet coaches say 'nyet' to Seoul Olympics

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet coaches have suggested that the 1988 Summer Olympics, scheduled to be held in South Korean capital of Seoul, should be moved to another location in Europe.

Writing in the government newspaper Izvestia, handball coach Anatoly Yevtushenko said Wednesday that Olympic officials should take "concrete, wise steps" to preserve the ideals of the Games.

His suggestions echoed an article by national wrestling coach Ivan Yarygin published Tuesday in the sports daily Soviety Sport.

"The fate of the world Olympic movement now is of great concern to the public. That is why it is important today to speak aloud of what is threatening the Olympic Games," Yevtushenko said. "The time has come to take concrete, wise steps for the preservation of the Olympic ideals on earth."

Yevtushenko said the choice of Seoul for the 1988 Games was made in a "secret vote" at a September 1981 Olympics meeting in Baden-Baden, West Germany.

UCSB beats Poly in overtime, men at home Friday

Neither Division I powerhouse UC Santa Barbara nor the Cal Poly men's soccer team could score during the regular period Tuesday night in Mustang Stadium, but the Gauchos scored in overtime on a breakaway goal, beating the Mustangs 1-0.

Cal Poly had numerous scoring opportunities, said head coach Wolfgang Gartner, but the Mustangs failed to score from a combination of "bad luck and bad shooting."

Santa Barbara has one of the better teams in the nation, he added, and Cal Poly played an "excellent game." He said freshman Markus Von Kopf and Pat Dwyer played good defense, adding goalie Dan Aguiar played well, allowing only the overtime goal.

Cal Poly will be at home on Friday night for a game with Cal State Bakersfield. The Mustangs will then hit the freeway for a game in Orange County against UC Irvine.

With the loss, Poly's record drops to 3-5-4 in league and 5-8-4 overall.

As a Marine Officer, you could be in charge of a Mach 2 + F/A-18A, a vertical take-off Harrier or one of our other jets or helicopters. And you could do it by the time you're 23. But it takes a special commitment on your part. We demand leaders at all levels. We teach you to be one. If you're a freshman or sophomore, ask about our undergraduate officer commissioning programs. If you're a junior, check out our graduate programs. Starting salaries are from $17,000 to $23,000. And you can count on going farther...faster.  We're looking for a few good men.

SPIKERS

No cat feet here. The Poly spikers were blanketed Tuesday night.

The Mustangs came out the victor against the NCAA 18th-ranked Bulldogs in three straight, but unexciting games, 15-13, 15-4 and 16-14.

"This wasn't a fun match to play and it wasn't a fun match to watch, especially as a coach," Fresno coach Leilani Overstreet said.

Poly, which maintained its No. 3 rank in the NCAA volleyball poll and rose from No. 5 to No. 4 in the Tachikara Coaches poll this week, played before a smaller than usual home crowd of 945, but managed, through sheer guts or thoughts of a victory party at Foster's Freeze, to pull through on top.

Although the Mustangs were featured in the November issue of Volleyball Monthly, as one of the best, but least recognized teams in the nation, Wilton was shaking his head after the match. "We didn't have any resolve tonight," he said. "We just showed up and everything we talked about before the game went out the window."

Fresno's blocking proved a challenge to Poly's kill attempts, but the Bulldogs, although probably more of an opponent than expected, seemed to be at a low in their performance also. Neither team seemed as "up" for the match as they had been when Poly beat Fresno earlier in the season at Fresno, 15-17, 6-15 and 14-6.

In the second game, when the score was 11-4, senior middle hitter Terri Willis decided it was time to wrap it up. She served three aces in a row and combined with a kill by Carol Tschasar, who had the highest hitting percentage of the game, and a ball hit out by a Fresno player, the second game was won. Willis was one of two players to have three service aces for the game.

The third game began with Wilton substituting junior hitter Lynn Kessler with all-American player Ellen Bugalski, who came back to playing after a brief hiatus. "Ellen came in and did a great job for being away for nine days and having only one practice this week," Wilton said.

The only real apprehension of the match came during the third game when, after an ace by Tschasar to bring the score to 14-9, the Bulldogs took advantage of Mustang shortcomings to even the score at 14-14.

Up until the third game, it seemed dinks were wasted effort for both teams—either they were blocked or dugged on both sides of the court, but Poly found the right technique in the last game as sophomore setter/hitter Vera Pendergast easily tipped one into a void of emptiness on the Bulldog court and another careful dink by Willis, which was hit out by a Fresno player, gave the Mustangs the game and match.

"We were just out to lunch mentally," said Wilton, who is looking hopefully toward Thursday's game against U.C. Irvine at Irvine. Tschasar had one explanation as to why the Mustangs had difficulty concentrating. "Everyone was just spacing on the court, I think when we play a team like this, we play down to their level, but when we play better teams we get more fired up."

Wilton is hoping the fog will lift and the team will be sparked to a win when it plays in one of the most competitive pools in the National Invitational Volleyball Tournament at UCLA, Friday and Saturday. The Mustangs will be up against No. 3-ranked USC and No. 14 BYU, as well as Cal State Northridge and Lamar.

Concentrating on getting the ball up is Dede Bodnar. The Mustangs will be on the road this weekend for the NIVT. Cal Poly will get a rematch against BYU at the tournament. Last week BYU upset Cal Poly in a game up in Utah.
