What search tools does Waldo use?

Basic keyword searching

Features Waldo will use AFTER a keyword search:

Facets (if available)

"Did you mean?" features

"Other suggestions" features

Waldo will not use Boolean Logic or Advanced Searching

How will Waldo evaluate his sources?

He probably won't

*This is not always a bad thing, either!

(Consider the intent of his searching - Facebook surfing doesn't require authoritative sources.)

What will he use to look up information?

Usually a computer or laptop

But increasingly also mobile devices

This means we have to give concise but descriptive information

Mendon May Day— 1901

She Remembers That Day In May Seventy-Seven Years Ago— At ninety-two, most of the memories of Charlotte B. Richards are between the covers of her precious book. And she can look at them all —the happy ones, the terribly sad ones— calmly, philosophically. One of the memories is of that day in May, seventy-seven years ago when she was Mendon's May Queen. Her dress was of pink organdy with lace and garlands of roses decorating it. The petticoat was even more wonderful— "It was all tucked with lace insertions and it looked so grand through the pink organdy," Mrs. Richards remembers. "They wouldn't let me choose my escort. They gave me Emir Richards and I did so want LeRoy Baker." "My maids were Alice Ladle, Artemisia Richards, Jennie Richards, Clara Sorensen, Edith Sorensen and Mabel Gardner. They are all gone now." "We still had the old rock church then, and they had the crowning of the May queen and the dancing of the maypole on the grass by the church, just like they do today." "When it was over, my mother invited the marshal of the day, all the band members, my maids and their escorts, fifty in all to dinner. We had a grand time." Mrs. Richards was born in Mendon, December 28th, 1885 to William and Elizabeth Matilda Wennergren Barrett. She grew up there and attended the old rock school. She married her Roy after he came home from an LDS mission to the southern states, on December 11th, 1907. They had a marvelously happy but brief time together. He died of diphtheria eight months and thirteen days after they were married. Their baby son was born six weeks later and only lived six months. She went back to her parent's home to live. "I prayed to die. I didn't want to live," she said. Then members of the Logan LDS Temple presidency spoke to her parents about her coming to work at the temple. She worked there for ten years until she married Willard Richards. They had three children. Mr. Richards died in 1961 and their oldest son has died. She has a son Joe who lives southwest of Mendon and a daughter LeOra Valdez who lives in Ogden. She has twelve grandchildren and eight great grandchildren. Mrs. Richards is proud of the fact that she is still able to go to church services and Relief Society. "I made 100 percent attendance when I was ninety. I missed one meeting when I was ninety-one and 100 percent when I was ninety-two and 100 percent so far this year," she said. She is especially grateful to her niece Mrs. Mozelle Sorensen who takes her to church and to Relief Society meetings. She misses the old days when people used to visit more, and "all those grand pioneers were alive," but she gets along well. Her nephew has lived with her for thirty-five years and helps to take care of her. When she learned that this year's May queen was Tresa Quinlan, she invited her to come for a visit and congratulated her on being chosen. Tresa will be crowned Saturday at 10:00 a.m. on the lawn by the Mendon LDS ward church. If the weather is bad, the ceremony will move indoors. Mr. Richards plans to be present as she has been every year for the past seventy-seven. Picture Caption: A photograph from Charlotte Richards' scrapbook shows her in the pink organdy dress she wore seventy-seven years ago when she was crowned Mendon May Queen. Picture Caption: Her face lights up into a smile at the memory of the May Day celebration by the old rock church in Mendon. Mrs. Richards can readily name her maids, her escort, and the young gent who she really wanted for an escort. In a more thoughtful moment, right photo, she recalls also the tragedy of her first brief marriage.

Charlotte Barrett— Her dress was of pink organdy with lace and garlands of roses decorating it. The petticoat was even more wonderful— "It was all tucked with lace insertions and it looked so grand through the pink organdy," Mrs. Richards remembers. "They wouldn't let me choose my escort. "When it was over, my mother invited the marshal of the day, all the band members, my maids and their escorts, fifty in all to dinner. We had a grand time."

To My Dear Mother— When I was sixteen years old I was chosen queen for the May Day celebration. Emer Richards was my Arch Bishop. I wanted LaRoy Baker but Emer had been chosen. I had several of my friends for maids, they had their escorts. Joseph Hancock was Marshal of the day. Mendon had a band, mother invited them all to dinner, fifty in all. Father killed a calf for the occasion, this was a happy day. In the evening we went to the dance in Richards Hall. Thanks to dear mother, Elizabeth Barrett, from your loving daughter, Charlotte B. Richards.

What does this have to do with Archives?

Finding guides are metadata

...when they are structured (i.e. xml)

The question for the user is...

What should they do with it?

Sweet! I found some. Now what?

About Sarah Josepha Buell Hale

Sarah Josepha Buell Hale, author and editor, was born in Newport, N.H. in 1788. She married in 1813, and when her husband died suddenly in 1822, she began writing to make a living. Her stories and poems attracted a large audience, and in 1828 she accepted a job as editor of the Ladies Magazine, later called Godey's Ladies Magazine, "the best known of all American periodicals for women."

About the Sarah Josepha Buell Hale Papers

There are three letters written 1830-1855 to various correspondents, and two holograph manuscripts, one untitled and the other identified as "The Way to become a Christian."

Considerations
• Consider the long-term searchability
• Is your content "marked up"?
• What key words are you using?
• How well is Google indexing your records?
• What does your user need?
• Do they need to access a digital copy?
New Possibilities

The way in which Andraka developed this revolutionary testing method is a bit unique. During an interview he said

> "I definitely could not have done this research and project without the use of the internet".

He also stated that google played a role in his research, using Google to look up cancer statistics, studies and publications on pancreatic cancer, which, according to him, furthered the development of his ideas and research.

We need to think of them as not just consumers, but also as Creators
