ABSTRACT

Prasetiyo, Wahyudin Eko. 2019. The Effectiveness of Using The Process Approach in Teaching Writing Skill of The Eleventh Grade of MA. Bustanul Ulum Sumberkarang in academic year of 2018/2019. Skripsi, English Language Education Study Program of Teacher Training and Education Faculty of Universitas Islam Majapahit, Advisor (I) Rini Lindawati, M.Pd. and Advisor (II) Wiwik Mardiana, S.Pd, M. Hum.

Keywords: Writing, The Process Approach, Quasi Experiment

The aims of this study is to find out the effectiveness of using The Process Approach in teaching writing skill of The Eleventh Grade of MA. Bustanul Ulum Sumberkarang in academic year of 2018/2019.

To achieve the objectives of the study, the researcher conducted quasi experimental quantitative research. The experiment was hold through pretest and posttest equivalent group design. The population of the research was the eleventh grade students of MA. Bustanul Ulum Sumberkarang, Mojokerto. The researcher choose the sampling randomly, there were two class from the total of the number. In the first and second class there were 36 students. The researcher treated one class with the process approach as an experiment class and one class with conventional method as a controlled class.

The data were collected through pretest and posttest both of the class. The result of the Paired Sample T-test shows that value of significance level was 0,00. It was lower than 0,05. It could be concluded that there was significant difference in the achievement between the students who are taught by using the process approach in experimental class and students who were by using conventional method in controlled class.
