Swedish Deaths in New York City 1820-1849

Nils William Olsson

New York City Archives possesses microfilms of death records of those who died in New York City from 1795 to 1865. The information contained on these microfilms is quite valuable to the genealogist in that such vital information as the name of the deceased, his country of nativity, residence in New York City, date of death, age and cemetery where he or she was buried are listed. Though the cause of death is also given, this important information has been blacked out, for some unknown reason. That it should be based on the right of privacy is difficult to comprehend since the deaths occurred 150-175 years ago. In a few cases the black tape covering the cause of death column was exposed, showing the cause of death, As a sample of what may be found on these microfilms I have excerpted a number of deaths, taking as a sample those who died between 1820 and 1849. Unfortunately the names have been Anglicized to such an extent that they are not recognizable as being Swedish. This may be due to the fact that most of the deaths were those of Swedish sailors, who on signing aboard a foreign vessel, often chose to hide their nationality and real identity behind an Anglo-Saxon name. The information given for each person is given as found on the microfilms except that since all were natives of Sweden, this fact has not been included.
