North Carolina Poverty Program Receives Aid

Education is a difficult and complex process even under the best of circumstances; if the child being educated is from a poverty home, the process is even more difficult.

"Educating the children of poverty IS a terribly hard process — but for that very reason, it is also more rewarding," says Michael H. Law-

Lawler, coordinator of field activities for Youth Educational Services (YES) is heading a $149,-000 summer tutorial program for disadvantaged children.

The Office of Economic Opportunity has just announced the grant for programs in Boone, Charlotte, Greensboro, Raleigh, Laurinburg, Fayetteville and Bertle County.

YES is a private, non-profit confederation of college students inter-ested in North Carolina's educational and social progress.

"We feel our summer program will be tutoring with a difference,' says Lawler.

What are these differences? "For one thing, these tutors can provide a vision of what's possible for disadvantaged children," says Reverend R. A. L. Walker, student chaplain at Meredith College in Raleigh. Reverend Walker is working with the YES program to help recruit tutors. "Tutors can provide encouragement to help the child break through the pattern of disinterest that leads to despair," he says.

A gap often exists between a child's education and his everyday life. YES's tutors will try to erase this gap by living in the poverty neighborhood where they will be working.

Reverend Walker points out, "These college students are not educational experts. But they can become a friend in the life of the

Prospective Graduates

"They can overcome environ-mental factors, especially the factor of 'nobody cares'."

YES will draw summer tutors from its existing 26 tutorial projects. As much as possible, tutors will be assigned near their homes. Neighborhood workers - some paid, some volunteer - will be recruited to aid the college tutors. Jean Allen, East Carolina College student who will be on the Raleigh staff, tells what YES looks for in its tutors:

First, of course, is an interest in people," she says. "Also, a lack of prejudice. Then, patience to teach children who have been frustrated a long time."

YES has no intention of usurping the school systems' tutorial

"There is more than enough room for the efforts of the schools and that of YES," agrees Fred Cundiff, director of Title I programs of the Elementary and Secondary Educational Act for the Greensboro city schools. (Cundiff is working with schools. (Cundiff is working with YES in recruiting.)

"YES's program is neighborhood-based, whereas ours is school-based," he says. "Then, too, we stress academics compared with the emphasis YES places on the total child."

YES uses the term "enrichment" to refer to non-academic aspects of its tutorial program.

Lawler says, "As we use it, 'enrichment' means exposing the chil-dren of poverty to things which other children take for granted: books, magazines, nature study, films, parks, zoos, libraries.

"Basically, it's a matter of pushing back the walls which poverty has thrown up around these children," Lawler says.

The tutor will benefit from his expereince, YES personnel feel. Reverend Walker says, "The experience will make the college students more keenly aware of the problems in this state, and really, of the world. In short, we feel tutor ing makes for bigger persons." The grant from OEO will provide funds for five full time staff members to help with school tutorial projects from this September until March, 1967.

YES was formed in January, 1964, when Terry Sanford, then governor, challenged college civil rights demonstrators to "turn toward civil enterprise and translate physical action into intelligible dialogue with the entire commun-

Economics Club Tours Bank To Gain First-Hand Experience

By JOYCE M. GADSON

The Economics Club toured a Federal Reserve Bank of Charlotte in Charlotte recently

Upon arriving at the bank, a guide was presented for the tour. The tour covered the entire bank six floors. The group was acquainted with the security measures of the bank: the pistol range, security court, various guard stations and the secure (13 ton) vault.

Federal Reserve notes were observed being classified according to the bank or district. Worn and deteriorated currency is removed from circulation and replaced by an equal amount. The currency that is removed will have holes punched through it and cut in half. The first lower half is sent to Richmond, Virginia where it is destroyed. The other half is destroyed later. This is to prevent civilians or counterfeiters from re-using the money.

The Verifying Department was responsible for the classifying of checks according to member bank and district. As a branch bank, it operates as a "clearing house" for checks, drafts, and similar items. Member banks route these items to the Reserve Bank, which in turn sends them to the proper places for collection. In this same department, the Fiscal Agency and Credit Department are located, also. The Fiscal Agency Department issues bonds and government securities. It also redeems bonds and government securities. The Credit Department makes loans to the member banks. It is a banker's

Next, the tour proceeded to the Accounting Department and the Transit Department. In the Accounting Department the bank was observed in action as a fiscal agent for the United States Treasury. The Transit Department was concerned with the transfer of funds from one part of the country to the other by the use of the wire. The final processing of checks by IBM computers took place in this department also

The tour ended with the viewing of a film and an informal questionand-answer period with the officials of the bank.

Joann T. Elliott To Head 1966-67 Women's Council

Recently, Joann Thelma Elliott was elected president of the Women's Council for the 1966-67 school year. Other officers elected on Tuesday, May 11, were Audrey Sutton as vice president, Kathleen Bradshaw as secretary, Marian Gailes as assistant secretary, Barbara Blackmon as treasurer, Brona Cheek as chairman of the program committee, and Gloria Diggs as chairman of the awards committee.

The voting took place in the girls' dormitories. Only about one-third of the off-campus and dormitory female students polled their vote. This year the nominees did not carry on campaigns in the dormitories. In the future, if such cam-paigns are carried on, perhaps more enthusiasm will be created in the elections. In past years only the president of the Women's Council was elected in the spring, but a change was made this year. All of the officers were elected to serve for the 1966-67 school term. The new officers will soon start making plans for next year's activities.

The second group will concentrate on secondary edu-cation, agriculture, communica-tions and transportation, public ad-ministration, and cooperatives and credit union organization.

New Law Provides Assistance To Veterans Who Qualify

By JUNIUS RUSSELL

The dean of students office has recently received information on the law passed by Congress providing educational assistance for Veterans who served on active duty after January 31, 1955, with the Armed Forces. Persons qualifying may receive assistance in obtaining education or training for a career or better employment opportunities. Financial aid to those who qualify will be made for periods on or after June 1, 1966. There is a limit-ed number of application forms available in the dean of students office for those that are eligible.

The following is submitted for information and guidance:

1. Who Is Eligible? a. A Veteran, honorably discharged or released, who has served 181 days of continuous active duty, any part of which was after January 31, 1955.

b. A Veteran who served less than 181 days if he was discharged or released be-cause of service connected disability.

c. A person who is in service if he has served on active duty for at least 2 years.

2. What Schools to Attend?

An approved course of study may be pursued at a college, vocational, business, high school, or correspondence school.

3. Amount of Education

The limit is 36 months. Veterans who served less than 3 years may receive one full month of educational assis-tance allowance for each tance allowance for each month or part of a month of active duty on or after February 1, 1955.

4. Limitation of Time The time limit for a Veteran whose service ended before June 1, 1966 is May 31, 1974. Training may not be provided after 8 years from date of last discharge or release from active duty if either is on or before June 1, 1966. 5. Filing Application Write or visit the VA office nearest your place of resi-

This office will be pleased to provide assistance. The first step is to apply if you are eli-organization. Although the C-I unit is a noncredit organization and offers little in the line of monetary or other material gain, the twenty-two participating cadets are very enthu-siastic about the unit. In fact, when participated in the unit, evaluates it as good preparation for summer camp with good concentration on patrolling, rigid field problems, physical training, outdoor life, and escape and evasion techniques. Capt. Tilley, the unit's advisor, relates that he is very much impressed with the unit as it is doing a "Beautiful job!" He says that the unit is an aggressive force and its participants often conduct themselves as professionals. He sincerely hopes that the unit will continue to function in years to come, implies the captain. Next year, however, it will be more of an independent effort with some assistance of the cadre staff. The captain is fairly confident that the unit will continue because of the morale and "Esprit de Corps" the men display. Many participants have been lost, he says; but the cream of the crop has been sal-

The A&T College Army R. O. T. C. Counterinsurgency Unit is most definitely an asset to the college. High schools, students, and even other colleges seek information on the C-I unit. Beware of the men on campus who represent this quite notable organization. The "Esprit de Corps", the gold cord, the camouflage-green ascot, and the black beret, signify the men of A&T College Army R. O. T. C. Counterinsurgency as they con-stantly live their slogan, "When the going gets tough, the tough gets going."

Eric Teele feels that the unit is an introduction to the Rangers and Special Forces as it trains for guerilla and counter-guerilla warfare. The program he said has enlightened him greatly on the "real" South Viet Nam situation. James Dunson, another C-I participant insists that the unit instills confidence, both mentally and physically, in the cadet which is over and beyond that of an ordinary cadet. He recognizes an "Esprit de Corps" which radiates from the motivation and inspiration of the C-I members. ## Tennis Team Concludes Season With 4th Place Win In CIAA

Tennis team recently completed a fairly successful season by cap-ping a fourth place finish in the CIAA Tournament this past weekend. The team is fairly young, composed mainly of juniors and sophomores. Of the six members of the team, only one will be leaving next year, Orson Kirk, the number one man.

Other members of the team are Ernest Taylor, Richmond, Virginia; and C. J. Hayes, Raleigh, juniors; Edward Anderson, Charlotte; and Plato McCollum. Clinton, sophomores; and Haven Cocker-

mon of A&T won two first places each and teammate Steve Dixon captured one in the 45th annual CIAA track meet last week at Virginia State College in Petersburg.

Maryland State won the team title with 40 points. Morgan State was second with 37 points and A&T finished third with 33 points.

In the tournament action, Edward Anderson finished third in the number three singles division. He was defeated in the semifinals by Charles Parks of Hampton.

Plato McCollum finished fourth in the number four singles division. He was defeated in the quarter-finals in a match that set a record for the time length of a tournament match.

The doubles team of Anderson and McCollum finished fourth in the competition.

Bethea set a record of 60 feet, 21/2 inches in the shotput and took the discus with a toss of 163 feet. 7½ inches. Another Aggie, Henry Hipps, finished second to Bethea in the discus.

Beamon won the triple jump with a leap of 49 feet, 7 inches and the long-jump with a mark of 24 feet, 11 inches. Dixon joined Bethea as a record breaker with a mark of 212 feet, 4 inches in the javelin.

Defending champions, North Carolina College, finished far out of the running when its sprint ace, Olympian Ed Roberts, fell down and failed to finish in the 100yard dash and was second in the yard dash and was second in the 220. Ray Pollard, of Morgan State, won both events. Sam Marsh, of A&T, tied for the number-one posi-tion in the 100-yard dash with Roberts, during the qualifying, and was number one in the 220; but he suffered a pulled muscle and was unable to maintain his position in the finals.

Although he was suffering from an injury, Marsh placed third in the 100-yard dash and fourth in the 220.

Michael Hart, a freshman highjump artist from A&T, placed fourth in the high-jump.

August Clinic Schedules Three Stars To Head Coaching List

ics titles.

Three big names in football and basketball coaching circles will highlight the annual Coaching Clinic to be held here August 4-6,

Heading up the football section is Lou Saban, former head coach with the Buffalo Bills, and for basketball, Dave Strack, head basketball coach at the University of Michigan and Johnnie McLendon, head basketball coach at Kentucky State College, will share lead

Saban, now head football coach at the University of Maryland, as head man at Buffalo for four years, won American Football League championships, and was named "Coach of the Year," in 1964 and

A star player at Indiana University, Saban for four years play-ed for and captained the Cleveland Browns. Besides a one-year stint as head coach for the Boston Patriots, he previously held head coach positions at several colleges and universities in the mid-west.

Strack, considered one of the top basketball strategists in the nation, is best known for the job he performed at the University of Michigan, his alma mater. In five years, from 1960 to 1965, he brought the Wolverines from the bottom of the cellar in the "Big Ten," to the top. In 1965 he was named "Coach of the Year."
