Theme: Salem in the Seventeenth Century

Though "merchants may lie by authority," we have tried to keep our YEAR BOOK close in spirit to that which a Merchant living in the Seventeenth Century in Salem might have seen himself or might have heard from the mouths of very honest persons of experience and knowledge. We have kept in mind, in our free mingling of past and present, a Merchant's Memory Book.

The Merchant of the Seventeenth Century opened the way for his more famous successors. There were few more prosperous areas in the Colony than the Township of Salem which, in 1635, included Danvers, Beverly, Manchester, Wenham, part of Lynn, Middleton and Topsfield, and Marblehead, in addition to the present limits. Development was rapid in this territory on which, in 1626, Roger Conant landed with his twenty-seven companions. One of Higginson's early letters states that "Naunkecke" contained "half a score of houses, built, and a fayre house newly built for the Governor and about 200 planters settled." Pioneer Village shows this earliest type of dwelling. Before 1700, the Corwins, Brownes, Pickerings, and others were approaching Old World standards of living.

Our Merchant's interests were not in trade alone, and the "goose-quill" man could write verses on his "letter-sheets behind the propped-up ledgers," and read the Song of Solomon "so many verses before bedtime, because it was the Bible." Before the end of the century every English ship was bringing books, and whole libraries came for Harvard College or to be broken up and sold to the public. There was a steady sea of traffic and an active correspondence with English scientists, divines, and men of letters, broken only during the Restoration. A London bookseller, visiting Boston in 1686, found the city stirring with his kind, and Salem was the third town in Massachusetts to set up its own public printing press. As the Merchant was thus familiar with both Cavalier and Roundhead literature, it is natural to find echoes of Herrick, Pepys, and Carew, as well as of Bunyan, Fuller, and Milton. The Merchant of the literary type, so well represented by Thomas Maule, was of broader culture than the superficial observer has realized.

The Witchcraft Delusion of 1692 showed the age at its worst, but we have the memory of Samuel Sewall's public apology. It was the time and not the place which caused the reign of terror. A bright spot in the dismal picture is the fact that it was here in Salem that the delusion was finally dispelled, causing a general awakening all over the country and in England. Superstition was not caused by lack of education, for that was ever dear to the hearts of the founders of Salem Town.

Between 1626 and 1700 came a rapid and significant change in living conditions; the pioneer huts and slab houses, cheerless and crude, gave place to comfortable and substantial dwellings; the rude furniture was replaced by finer pieces; the Bible and a few schoolbooks were augmented and became libraries; the herb garden expanded into a "pleasance" spot. Such progress is a tribute to the Salem Merchant.

Popular Education, Then and Now

A nationally known university professor deplores the fact that there is no evidence that a single volume of Shakespeare was brought to America by any of the early settlers of either Plymouth Colony or the somewhat younger colony of Massachusetts Bay; but, be that as it may, they brought with them their Bibles and a great thirst for a knowledge that is fundamental to the creation of a great Christian commonwealth.

It is an inspiration to know that the immediate region served by the State Teachers College at Salem was the centre of the great movement which gave free popular education to America and that it had begun even before the coming of Governor Winthrop. Unfortunately, there are few early records of the evolution of the Colonial schools, but, from the views, habits, and relations of these pioneers, the education of their children must have been one of the chief matters of their concern. As early as 1628, Governor Cradock recommended that Indian children be trained in reading and religion. Certainly not less attention was given to the education of the children of the colonists.

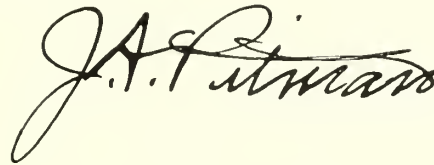

Although it is probable that the first free school in America was established in Virginia in 1621, there is little doubt that the first free school in Massachusetts was founded in Boston in 1636, the record of which is still in existence. Although private instruction had been given children in Salem before 1641, that year provision was made for the payment of tuition by the town, when necessary, in order that all children might attend school. The location of this first school is not certain but it is believed that it was on what is known as the Endicott farm in what is now Peabody. The third free school in the Commonwealth was established in Ipswich in 1642.

In this year, the General Court ordered the selectmen of every town to "have a vigilant eye over their brethren and neighbors" to see that they shall not neglect to teach their children and apprentices the English language, a knowledge of the capital laws and "some short orthodox catechism," and "that they be brought up to some honest employment profitable to themselves and the Common Wealth." This carries with it the implication of vocational training.

In Salem in 1640, the town "chose young Mr. Norris to teach Schoole" and he continued to perform this service until 1684, when his resignation was accepted, and the town voted him as a pension, the sum of fifteen pounds, which was the rate of his salary for the previous year, "to smooth the passage of so worthy a man to the grave." May not this have been the beginning of our teachers' retirement systems?

Higher education in America had also its birth here, and our oldest college might have been located in Salem instead of at Cambridge, land for this purpose having been made available "beyond Forest River." Later, Salem in common with other towns, made generous contributions to the funds required for the maintenance of Harvard.

Then was the day of "the three R's"; of thorough factual instruction in a limited number of fields; and radical indoctrination in education, politics and religion. Now there are taught, somewhere in the elementary schools of Massachusetts, probably as many as thirty different subjects; children are encouraged to take the initiative in their own education and to reach their own conclusions in the light of all the facts which are fundamental to their reasoning. In every community, the public high school has almost literally become the people's college. Practically free higher education is provided in numerous state-supported colleges and higher vocational institutions, and numerous free scholarships are available for worthy and ambitious students who desire instruction in privately supported universities. Thus, in the short space of three centuries, our great system of American education has evolved from the small beginnings made by the forefathers who, in the haste of their departure from Old England, forgot to bring to New England at least one copy of Shakespeare.

"For seven months in the warmer part of the year the master shall every day begin to teach at seven o'clock in the morning and dismiss the scholars at five in the afternoon, while in the colder and darker months of the remainder of the year he shall begin at eight and close at four. There shall be a midday intermission from eleven to one, except on Monday when the master shall call his scholars together between twelve and one of the clock to examine them what they have learned, at which time also he shall take notice of any misdemeanor or outrage that any of his scholars shall have committed on the sabbath."

"Every town shall maintain, for at least one hundred and sixty days in each school year, unless specifically exempted as to any one year by the department of education, a sufficient number of schools for the instruction of all children who may legally attend a public school therein. Such schools shall be taught by teachers of competent ability and good morals, and shall give instruction and training in orthography, reading, writing, the English language and grammar, geography, arithmetic, drawing, the history and constitution of the United States, the duties of citizenship, physiology and hygiene, good behavior, indoor and outdoor games and athletic exercise. In connection with physiology and hygiene, instruction as to the effects of alcoholic drinks and of stimulants and narcotics on the human system, and as to tuberculosis and its prevention, shall be given to all pupils in all schools under public control, except schools maintained solely for instruction in particular branches."

DR. J. ASBURY PITMAN, President

"Wise and discrete and well-spoken, having a grave and deliberate utterance, of a very cheerful spirit, very sociable and pleasurable amongst his friends."

The Good Schoolmaster

"He studieth his scholars' natures as carefully as they were books, and ranks their dispositions into several forms:

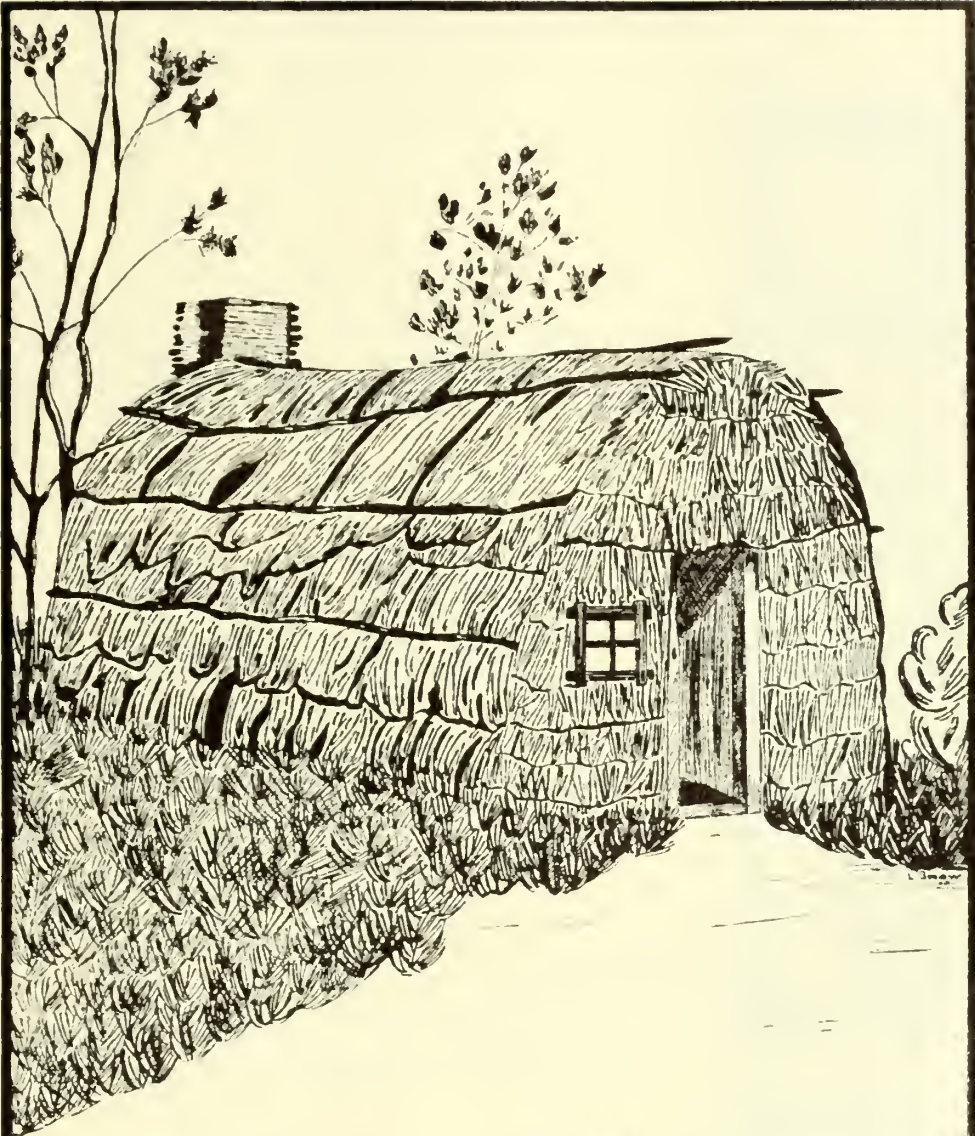

1. Those that are ingenious and industrious. The conjunction of two such planets in a youth presages much good unto him. To such a lad a frown may be a whipping, and a whipping a death; yea, where their master whips them once, shame whips them all the week after. Such natures he useth with all gentleness.

2. Those that are ingenious and idle. These think, with the hare in the fable, that running with snails—so they count the rest of their schoolfellows—they shall come soon enough to the post, though sleeping a good while before their starting.

3. Those that are dull and diligent. Wines, the stronger they be, the more lees they have when they are new. Many boys are muddy-headed till they be clarified with age; and such afterwards prove the best. Dull natures of youth acquit themselves afterwards the jewels of the country, and therefore their dullness at first is to be borne with if they be diligent. The schoolmaster deserves to be beaten himself, who beats Nature in a boy for a fault.

4. Those that are invincibly dull, and negligent also. Correction may reform the latter, not amend the former. All the whetting in the world can never set a razor's edge on that which hath no steel in it. Such boys he consigneth over to other professions. Those may make excellent merchants and mechanics."

Commercial Class History

We sometimes derive as much pleasure from thinking and talking over our doings in the past as we do from planning for the future. Everything we have done at S. T. C. has brought us closer together, has given us a better understanding of each other and has made our school life a thing never to be forgotten.

How amusing we must have appeared to the confident, men-of-the-world upper-classmen—forty-five timid, bewildered, lonesome little Freshmen. But it didn't take long before each one of us had forty-four good friends and one or two especially close ones. Then we began burning the candle at both ends. From high school seniors who had carried away the honor marks with little or no work, we had become Freshmen again—Freshmen who found that it took all they had to produce the minimum in quality and quantity.

But the best work must be mixed with a little play. One day we were all quite excited to find beautiful maple leaves with an invitation to a Freshman Reception given by the Commercial Seniors pinned on the back. Miss Flanders had a difficult time trying to keep our minds on geography that period! It might have been a kindergarten party with the girls in short little dresses with sashes, socks and hair ribbons and the boys in short pants. It was a glorious party, the cider tasting like nectar and the apples like ambrosia. Then our typewriting class picnic at Forest River with Miss Badger. The winning team ate heartily of the lunch provided by the losers, and after the lunch Miss Badger very thoughtfully produced some tonic as a surprise. Some of the students found it hard to drink through a nipple. We had often heard of Miss Flanders' hobby—collecting odd pieces, but had hardly dreamed of seeing them. Were we thrilled at her invitation to an afternoon party at her home in Swampscott! A strawberry party with strawberry ice cream, dainty cakes with strawberry frosting and other tasty delicacies. We forgot lessons while playing games and listening to Miss Flanders' interesting stories, told in her own amusing way.

Our dramatic ability was displayed to the school through a "Parade of Professions" at a morning assembly. We hope everyone appreciated the results of many hours of planning, rehearsing and trying to find a time for rehearsals when everyone was free.

All those trips to Boston, week-ends and camping parties are too numerous to talk about but not to be remembered. Our Harbor Trip on a cold, windy, clear day was perhaps the most novel of our experiences. Those of us who braved the fish refrigeration plant will surely never forget it nor forget to keep away from it. The only thing that bothered us was the fact that we didn't have eyes on all sides of our heads to see everything around us. After our long day on the boat, we thoroughly enjoyed a happy night in the big city, a place we never tired of.

Corinne Gately as our representative took very good care of our business in the council during this, our first, and perhaps most eventful year in college. Bea Edmondson was elected council representative for our sophomore year—the busiest year of our four.

Our month's leave to work as clerks came at the end of a hectic period of geography notebooks, typewriting projects, arithmetic notebooks and Gillespie outlines. Most of us came back glad that we did not have to stand behind a counter for the rest of our lives.

We ended the year with a luncheon party in the lunchroom with Miss Edwards and Mr. Sproul as guests. Somebody overrated our appetites; we could have fed the school with what was left after we had all eaten to capacity.

Those wonderful spare periods of our Junior year! At last we had time for outside activities. Many members of our class joined the Girl Scout Club and helped make its convention at Cedar Hill a success. Our own E. Oliver was President. Many other members belonged to the International Relations Club of which Helen Sacco was Treasurer. Edna Leavitt was secretary of the council and had the honor of being sent to New York to represent our school. Hy Gordon capably captained the men's basketball team. Leslie Faulkner represented us in the council.

We shall never forget Mr. Phillips' beach party at Preston Beach. The swimming, playing, delicious chowder, sizzling frankfurters and spicy spaghetti all contributed their part. And the ride home—with how many in your five-passenger car, Mr. Phillips?

Many of us attended the Invitation Promenade to welcome our own Dr. Pitman home from Europe. We also attended a few operas at the Boston Opera House, "Madame Butterfly" and "Il Trovatore" among them. Then there was the enlightening afternoon at Mr. Whitney's. After becoming acquainted with his trees, flowers, and birds, we received lessons in the choosing of colors in our dress. We hope that other classes may have the privilege of visiting his beautiful home.

So much to do and only one year in which to do it. First, we chose Alice Pelletier for our council representative, and Edna Leavitt began her successful year as council president. Corinne Gately and Evelyne Oliver were elected Vice-president and Treasurer of the Senior class, respectively. Corinne was also Associate Editor of the Log and Ernestine Maynard the Business Manager.

The Freshmen were duly initiated at a successful reception. Those of us who had to stay and clean up often wondered just whose initiation it was.

One of our classmates, Bea Edmondson was elected president of the Literary-Dramatic Club which she worked hard to establish. We can never repay Miss Edwards for all the hours she spent with us getting this club on its feet. Hester Irving was president of the Tri Mu Club and Helen Sacco of the International Relations Club.

Four years is such a short time when one thinks back. We wish that we could be together many years longer. Work is easy when one has the pleasant associations with which we have been blessed.

Commercial Class Will

Now about to withdraw from this long-favored territory, we, the Commercial Seniors of 1934, realizing with fullest appreciation the great sorrow our departure inflicts upon those whom we leave behind, do now bequeath numerous prized possessions as slight consolation to our sorely-bereaved mourners.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS that we, the Commercial Seniors, being of sounded minds (sounded by the faculty) and exhausted bodies, now make, publish, and declare this to be our last will and testament.

FIRST: individually and separately we do give, devise, and bequeath the following properties, real and unreal. To wit:

Alice Dugan leaves her unfailing capacity to enlighten any dull half hour by her ability to pronounce the awe-inspiring name of Lake Chaugago

Mary Marie Duncan, Hester Irving, and Helen Syzdlowski, our three real Titians, leave their fame to those would-be red heads so numerous among the underclassmen, hoping these aspirants may some day achieve less multi-shaded tresses by their mighty efforts.

Faulkner, Fouhey, and Gordon, authors, bequeath to the rising generation of the senior bookkeeping class their most important document on Corporations, the only defect in said masterpiece being a few misplaced pages caused by an oversight on the part of the publisher (the first of the aforesaid illustrious authors).

Louise Gagnon leaves her unequaled distinction of having ancestors who came over with Lafayette.

Corinne Gately leaves her amazing dexterity in the art of graceful falling, whether it be falling into White's Pond in autumn or tumbling noiselessly off the stage the night of the L. D. C. Plays.

Esther Hanson, Edna Leavitt, and Florence List leave to any girls disturbed by the inconsistency of the male sex three old faithfuls, namely Henry, John, and Frank.

Ernie Maynard leaves her ancient prerogative of calling Themistocles, that renowned Athenian, leader at Thermopylae, by an intimate nickname.

Eileen Murray and Helen Sacco bequeath to any budding De Valera or Mussolini their eloquence in defense of the credit of Ireland and Italy respectively. For further details see Mr. Phillips, overwhelmingly defeated on the battlefield.

To anyone interested in versatility, Ev Oliver gives a dozen facial expressions, guaranteed to cover every situation from extolling a free fish from the boatmen at Commonwealth Pier, or withdrawing from an exclusive cafe after a glance at the bill of fare and a hasty comparison of prices and pocketbook.

Alice Pelletier and Peg Welch extend to excursionists a valuable fund of knowledge on Boston-bound Fords and travel on the narrow gauge—a science not to be sneezed at by the most experienced peregrinator.

Dot Prestininzi leaves her ability to maintain an unruffled calm in the midst of a class of clamoring, arguing seniors.

Dot Sidmore grants her ability to maintain a four-year constant companionship without interruption or eruption to any two commercial juniors. May we suggest Esther and Elmer look into this?

Gen Tinkham leaves a shining example of triumph over inexhaustible worries to anyone sinking under the anxieties of college life.

To any three worthies, Vic Borys, Kay Dennen, and Bea Edmondson bequeath their indisputable right to appear, bedraggled and dripping from the shower room, 10 to 20 minutes late for geography class on the third floor.

To all desiring knowledge of the intricacies of the Carioca or any other dance they may wish to execute at the Senior Reception, we offer the services of Marion Wheeler, our expert and ever-patient dancing instructor.

Florence White leaves her amazing knowledge of the art of constructing and administering true and false banking tests. References supplied by the seniors.

SECOND: Jointly and together we assign the following:

To Mr. Sproul we leave our sincere thanks for his patience and persistence in his efforts to make 17 reluctant and sedentary seniors transportation-minded. Coördinator Eastman may have our advice upon request. We also leave memories of our alacrity in supplying figures—120,000,000 people in the U. S.

To Mr. Phillips we entrust all our secrets and also give him our permission to drive serenely about the country-side in a car loaded with hot-dogs while 30 starving picknickers anxiously await his return.

To the Commercial Juniors we assign our fortitude and courage to shoulder the blame for the misdeeds of the junior high seniors, such as populating the telephone booth with such notable gentlemen as Davies, Barnes, and others.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF we have set our hand to this our last will and testament by making our X.

Commercial Class Prophecy

Early in the year 2000, Miss Corinne Gately, for many years the brilliant editor of The Lumber, was surprised to find in her morning mail a note from the editor of The Log, newspaper of the State Teachers College at Salem. "The Log of January, 2001," it read, "is to print a record of the alumni of the Commercial Class of 1934. Some years ago we decided that it would constitute an excellent incentive to the girls if the paper were to publish in the January issue of each year the outstanding accomplishments of the alumni of one class. This January, the newspaper will print the news of 1934 and if you could possibly furnish us with data concerning it, we should be greatly obliged."

Miss Gately was distressed to find that the entire class save herself and one other now lived within the high white walls which girdled Heaven. This other, Eileen Murray, who had recently won great renown through her writings and her series of lectures proving conclusively that Bacon wrote Shakespeare's plays offered to go with Miss Gately as reporter. Scarcely had they reached Heaven's walls when they were recognized and immediately admitted. Upon learning their mission, St. Peter offered to conduct their tour personally. After signing the visitor's book under the direction of Marion Wheeler, St. Peter's personal secretary, they were taken to the newly-erected radio station and were just in time to hear Florence White, the charming prima donna, singing one of Leslie Faulkner's new operas.

They took their leave of Miss White and Mr. Faulkner and proceeded to the newspaper office where, they had been told, they would find more of their old friends. They first met Ernestine Maynard, editor of the Daily Chronicle of Heaven. She called in her business manager, Florence List, who easily found time from her extensive financial activities to guide her former classmates through the building. They were greatly amused to find one of the most vivacious members of the Class of '34, Alice Dugan, conducting a column on "Advice to the Lovelorn." Unfortunately, they missed seeing Marguerite Welch, staff photographer, who was out getting pictures of Genevieve Tinkham, who was just leaving to do missionary work in Tartarus.

Having finished their tour of the newspaper building, St. Peter now offered to take the visitors to a basketball game to show them the recreational facilities of Heaven. On the way they were attracted by the appearance of a mob of people held spellbound by the voice of a young woman orator. They stopped to listen and recognized Helen Sacco as the fiery young speaker. She was giving an impassioned talk on the necessity of establishing friendly relations with Hades. St. Peter told the reporters that Miss Sacco had made great progress toward the founding of a League of Nations.

They then proceeded to the basketball game where they met Catherine Dennen, coach of the All-Elysium basketball team. They watched the game for a time and were delighted to find that Evelyn Oliver, brilliant and outstanding figure, was instrumental in ending the game successfully for her team. At this time, feeling the pangs of hunger, the visitors looked about for a place in which to eat. At St. Peter's recommendation they entered the shop of Helene Szydowski, where they were greeted by Mary Duncan, who informed them that Helene had established a chain of successful stores in Heaven. Mary herself was an efficient young hostess with a talent for making the customers feel at home. Mary told the reporters that Edna Leavitt was also employed there as dietitian, and that she spent a great deal of time collecting and trying new recipes to delight the customers.

As it was too early to go to the theatre, the sightseers went to see Esther Hanson. She was married, had two beautiful children, and was one of the most popular of the young matrons. Here they also met the celebrated inventor, Hester Irving, who invents business to keep teachers in the office during recitation periods for which their students are not adequately prepared. However, the inventor informed Miss Gately and Miss Murray, that two clever teachers, Dorothea Prestininzi, teacher of book-keeping, and Dorothea Sidmore, teacher of shorthand, had seen through the ruse.

It was now time for the theatre, and the party started out. On the way they passed an ultra-modern modiste shop owned by Alice Pelletier, who created her own designs and had already made a great name for herself through her distinctive gowns.

The party finally reached the theatre and settled in their seats just as the curtain went up. The opening number was a ballet led by Victoria Borys, premiere danseuse, who had recently made a tour on earth which had met with great favor. She was followed by Gerald Gordon, tap-dancer, who performed intricate steps with the utmost ease. There was an intermission while the scenery was being prepared for the play to be presented. During this interval, a familiar voice was heard offering candy for sale. It was none other than John Fouhey.

The house lights darkened again and the curtain went up on an exquisite stage setting designed by Louise Gagnon, who was the most sought after stage manager in all Heaven. The star of the play was Beatrice Edmondson, famous for her characterizations of Irish maids. Her popularity was evidenced by the thunderous ovation the audience gave to her. When the play drew to a close, the visitors hurried to take the last elevator leaving for earth. They arrived home in time to send their copy to the editor of The Log for the January edition.

Elementary Senior Class Chronicle

How we actually did it is one of those absolutely unfathomable mysteries all snarled up with outer space, surprising jolts to our ego, and certain indelible lines inscribed on our lives. "Did what?" say you. Ah, now we come to the crux of the whole affair! The inexplicable phenomenon alluded to is that we managed somehow to survive three years at Salem Teachers College.

Perhaps the title of this history is misleading. Chronicles merely set forth the sequence of events in an uninteresting manner, with no regard to the importance of the tabulated occurrences. Here lies the subtle difference—for, to us at least, the past three years of our lives are ones so interesting and so full of important events that none of us will soon forget them.

Entering in September, 1931, we, as a class, (then large—now sadly depleted) went through the usual and venerable indoctrination process ably sponsored by the upperclassmen and the faculty. Through that first year we laughed, soared, sank, sighed, bungled, and frequently doubted that we were meant to be teachers.

On October 5th the upperclassmen entertained all the Freshmen at a tea and entertainment. Imagine our astonishment when we beheld our sophisticated, blasé Senior sisters cavorting through a modern version of The Woman in the Shoe. Later the official Elementary initiation was held. For days we wore hair ribbons, name plates, bibs, one sneaker and one shoe—and spent our free periods, lunch time, before and after classes, in cleaning Seniors' very black sneakers and tidying up their very dirty lockers, buying our dear Senior sisters' lunches et cetera. Altogether we were very generally abused that week. To end it all, on Initiation night some of us were even more abused—swallowing mixtures of vinegar, lard, marshmallows, salt, and what not. This was perhaps the last of our innocent Freshman memories. Receiving marks in February we were a saddened class. But things had to turn for the better.

Our iconoclastic second year lived completely up to its reputation as a dispeller of illusions. It was during this year that we became absolute and chronic pessimists—"I may as well leave now; I'll never be a teacher anyway. I can't even do these problems myself—let alone teaching them to pupils." Beset by many new responsibilities; watched like hot-house buds on all sides to determine whether we really were of the stuff of which good teachers are made; staggering under projects, normal learning curves, physics, innumerable activities; trying hard to achieve some of the august dignity the Seniors so lightly displayed, and quite naturally being sadly ingenuous.

With the dawn of our third year we suddenly assumed dignity, Freshman sisters, and a reputation which must be upheld. How well we upheld it only the future will tell.

Here we are at the end of three years of vigorously trying to discover whether we really have the essential qualities of a good teacher. Now we are finished here—which naturally implies that many interesting possibilities lie in the immediate future.

A Character

THE HONEST SCHOOLMISTRESS

Justice is her first guide; the second law of her actions is expedience. She looks not to what she might do but to what she should. Her word is her parchment and yea her oath; which she will not violate for fear nor for loss. All her dealings are upright and above reproach. She bewrays the fault of what she sells, and restores the overseen gain of a false reckoning. She esteems a bribe venomous, though it comes gilded over with the colour of gratuity. Her cheeks are never stained with the blushes of recantation. When her name is traduced, her innocency bears her out with courage; then, lo, she goes in the plain way of truth, and will either triumph in her integrity or suffer with it. In all things, good or ill, she respects the nature of the actions, not the sequel. If she sees what she must do, let God see what shall follow. Her ear is the sanctuary of her absent friend's name, of her present friend's secret; neither of them can miscarry in her trust. She would rather want than borrow, and beg than not pay. Her fair conditions are without dissembling; and she loves actions above words. Alms and prayers fall from her without a witness. Falsehood knows her not, truth is her law. She is no man's enemy; and it is a question whether more another man's friend than her own. If there were no heaven, yet would she be virtuous. Finally, though faith and hope are her lodestones, yet is charity her companion.

Diary, After the Manner of Samuel Pepys, Esq.

September 13, 1933—To the Salem Teachers College which this day did open its term for the coming year, and I pray God the term be auspicious.

September 28—To Boston Harbor with Mistress Ware and the Elementary Seniors and the Commercial Sophomores, being mightily pleased with the sight and well content with the discussion about Harbours.

November 10—Today did enjoy musick of the Annual Sing, all words original and mighty loud in praise for the school and good to hear. Well, them who won the Sing were the Elementary Sophomore 1 and the Elementary Senior 2 and they did truly shine with the blue ribbons which were given them.

November—Am much pleased that the Seniors dispatched their elections with sense, them who did get the highest voses being Mary Shaughnessy for President and Corinne Gately for Vice-President and Charlotte Marshall for Secretary and Evelyne Oliver for Treasurer.

November 17—Tonight did go to the initiation of the Elementary Freshmen and observed how the Elementary Sophomores did seem engulfed in pleasure at the discomfiture of them whom they initiated, they pronouncing tasks that the Freshmen should perform as do those in gaol. I thought the Freshmen did bear themselves well.

December 8—This night did take the greatest pleasure in the Pop Concert which was given in the College hall, I and my Lord sitting at one of the little tables, and both of us uncommon pleased with the Glee Club which did sing many most musical numbers. Walter Smith trumpeted and his two sons aided him well. The school orchestra was uncommon good and afterwards there was dancing, all the company being merry. And so to bed.

December 14—Today did eat a mighty neat dinner at the College which was for them of the Farmington Normal School who did play at basketball.

December 23—Saw old Mystery Play, The Nativity, done with scenes very well.

January 12, 1934—To a Formal Dance, the first one which yet the Women's Athletic Association has sponsored. And the clothes and the conduct of the persons was indeed very pleasing and worth my coming, being never likely to see more gallantry.

February 8—Today after a dinner did play against them of Gorham Normal School at basketball at which we did carry the score 52-38.

February 10—Went with many others on the Snowe Train and when we reached our stopping place in New Hampshire there did I see people skiing and coasting and sliding with their skeates, which is a very pretty art, and also throwing snowe about.

February 16—The Literary-Dramatic Club did present two plays of one act each at the Teachers College this night, but before they could act on the stage the basketball teams of Keene and Salem played a brave game. The house by frequent plaudits, did show their sufficient approbation.

February 20—Today no school at the State Teachers College, the snow falling most heavily, that nobody could reach the school in vehicle, it being the first time in seven years that this has occurred.

March 21—Today edified by the discourse which was given by Mr. Walter Trumbull which did recall the olde days, wherein he did tell of his trade with them of Zanzibar and how he visited other mighty strange ports where he should get ivory.

March 23—There was give a concert by the Salem Teachers College Glee Club and them who come from Worcester Polytechnic Institute. Here the best company for musique I was ever in in my whole life. After the concert we fell to dancing which we did with mirth and staid dancing until twelve o'clock. And so to bed.

April 6—Made myself as fine as I could and put on my velvet coat, it being made in old fashion for the Mock Man Dance at the State Teachers College. And so into the hall I got where there was none but ladies although some dressed like men.

April 9—To a mighty fine lecture by Zona Gale which did treat on fiction, her saying how them who wrote one hundred years ago did all things make over pretty, and how them who write today are uncommon fond of unplesunces, her thinking that to walk in the middle path the most excellent. And this makes me mindful of other discourses that were delivered from time to time, them who spoke being Dr. Griggs who told of the worth of the masters, such as Goethe and Plato, and Dr. Snell who did once teach here and who did speak on South Africa.

April 13—A pleasurable exposition of Choral Speaking which them of the Junior High Sophomore 2 did, showing how poesie may be spoke by many voices in choruse.

April 23—Discourse of them returned from New York, them telling of the present state of education in the colleges and of the doings of youth. There was nineteen from the Salem Teachers College at the conference.

April 25—To the contest which was for them of the State Teachers College who sunge in choruse with musick supervisors from afar as adjudicators. Them who did win were the Freshmen.

April 27—This night to the dance which them of the Council offered to the school. And the hall was very fine with decoration and full of brave company.

June 13—To the Senior Banquet where a most princely dinner. And we did eat till full but we could not eat all, there was so much good victuals.

June 14—To Class Day where did amuse myself mightily, both them who are Seniors and I being highly pleased with the management of this day. This afternoon to a Garden Party which was give to them who graduate and to their parents, and there was tea and musick. And the clothes mighty elegant and dainty fine.

June 15—Today them who are Seniors did march in procession, some having their bachelor caps put on, and others finely arrayed in white, they all looking happy that they had earned their freedome, but sad that they should leave such a brave school.

WE ARE THE CLASS OF CLASSES

HERE IS THE CLASS OF CLASSES MARCHING ON;
 WE ARE THE SENIORS OF THE COLLEGE.
 WE HAVE THE PEP, THE VIM, THE SPIRIT, TOO,
 EVEN THOUGH WE LACK SOME KNOWLEDGE.
 FOR WE ARE OUT TO MAKE THIS CLASS THE BEST,
 TO CONQUER ONE AND ALL.
 FOR WE ARE PROUD OF THIS, OUR CLASS, YOU SEE, ONE AND ALL, THE SENIOR CLASS OF S.T.C. RAH! RAH!

On Books

"Some books are only cursorily to be tasted of: namely, first, voluminous books, the task of a man's life to read them over; secondly, auxiliary books, only to be repaired to on occasions; thirdly, such as are mere pieces of formality, so that if you look on them you look through them, and he that peeps through the casement of the index sees as much as if he were in the house. But the laziness of those cannot be excused who perfunctorily pass over authors of consequence, and only trade in their tables and contents. These, like city cheaters, having gotten the name of all country gentlemen, make silly people believe they have long lived in those places where they never were, and flourish with skill in those authors they never seriously studied."

THOMAS FULLER—The Holy and the Profane State

UPON BECOMING A TEACHER

It pleaseth me to think that now
I, who have absent been so long,
May make the other subjects bow
And join the governmental throng.

Junior High Fourth Year History

FOREWORD

We have been informed that the world of progressive education anxiously awaits a distinctly novel way of recording history. We hope that our method of presenting the history of our illustrious group will serve as a valuable inspiration to future world historians.

PART I

Natural Environment and Its Influence Upon the Development of the Group

I Nature of the Environment

- A. Isolated from the upper locker rooms and forced to occupy an insignificant corner among all-knowing and highly-sophisticated freshmen
- B. Four flights removed from literature and biology rooms
- C. Existing ratio of 15 to 3

II Immediate Results of Environment

- A. General adoption of a super-sophistication and a dignified, condescending air of reserve
- B. Communication from remote muscular regions
- C. Supremacy of the militant 15

PART II

Chronicle of Important Events

- I Restored to our rightful place in Chapel, continued to inspire the Faculty
- II Parliamentary Law Club founded and overwhelming victory won by Mr. Eaton, elected as our first president.
- III Chapel Program given, in which we attempted to discover the theories, practices, accomplishments, and weaknesses of Italian Fascism. Despite supreme efforts to maintain a truly scientific attitude, our presentation so convincing and so conclusive that we were generally accepted as official agents of Il Duce.
- IV Program on Communism presented before members of Young People's Society of Maple Street Church in Danvers.
- V Delightful Christmas Party held, at which all received appropriate toy gifts, including a machine-gun for Gus and a coupé for Irene.
- VI Trip to Peabody Museum made even more interesting when Rose and Leo found themselves behind a sign reading "Insects of Massachusetts."
- VII Varied biological pursuits carried on, from planting bulbs and planning gardens to dissecting fish.
- VIII Experiment by Mr. Eaton to prove that he could easily reach four feet to weed his garden.

PART III

Problems Requiring Further Scientific Research

- 1. Why did Anna interrupt Chorus and suddenly withdraw?
- 2. Where did Gus leave the roll book?

3. What girl who wears a green beret went to the W. A. A. Victory Tea?
4. Where is Ely?
5. Why doesn't Ruth Tarbell's alarm clock ring?
6. Why do term papers cause nightmares and a certain far-away look?
7. What is a Principle of Education?
8. Why did Helen say, "I do!" so emphatically?
9. What is Thelma Bailey's greatest ambition?
10. Why is Mr. Cole our old friend?
11. Why didn't our bulbs blossom?
12. Why were the intentions of Tom Corey misunderstood?
13. Why is art, ART?
14. Why has Congress never taken a course in Economic Geography?
15. Was the "Black Maria" a "one-hoss shay"?
16. Are sheep grown or raised?
17. Why is the motion to adjourn not in order at all times?

PART IV

Dramatic Moments

Instructor (calling on students for individual reports): "Who had Charles Kennedy?"

S i l e n c e

Marion (suddenly arising): "Oh, that's my man!"

Anna: "Oh, I'm part of the theater!"

Bright Boy: "What part? Second balcony?"

The Cause: Mr. Eaton: "I'm afraid you don't see my point." "I question that."

The Result: Debate: Resolved: That the Opinion of the Minority Should Be Heard.

A TYPICAL BASKETBALL GAME

Casualty List:

1. Sylvia's hurt knee after sudden and unexpected contact with Marion.
2. Thelma's descent upon her elbow after a sky-ward ascent.
3. Irene's ruffled face after close association with many blouses.
4. Anna's pet scratch requiring constant attention because of repeated irritation.

REMARKS THAT MADE HISTORY

Apology

(With further apology to John Bunyan and Pilgrim's Progress)

When first I took my Pen and down me sat,
 I knew not where my Thoughts would find me at;
 And conscious only of the great Desire
 To set forth certain Whims of Mine, I did aspire
 To catch a vagrant Mood and it imprint,
 As painters seize and hold a sunset tint.
 But when I found I must decide
 Upon what wings I'd let my Fancy ride,
 Then was I faced with Proposition grave
 Of what was good or bad and what to leave or save:
 For it is obvious that should I write
 Of This or That, I must the Other slight
 And yet it were perhaps about as well
 To make a start at Something! That the Swell
 Of Thoughts within my Head might outlet find
 And let relief descend upon an overburdened Mind.
 With this my Thoughts took Wings and in a Tumult rose,
 Displaying not the order found in any flight of crows,
 But each one crowded to the fore and for an instant brief
 Appeared in my Perception in somewhat vague relief;
 And when the brilliant Flood had passed
 I saw and stood aghast
 That out of all this gleaming Lot
 I'd passive sat and Nothing caught.
 Whereon, may I apologize and take upon my Head
 The blame for having talked so long and nothing seemly said?

To All Maidens

Come, maids, and gather flowers early—
 Roses, lilies—ere the burly
 Sun scorch them with his ray
 And wither them away,
 Maids, wither them away.

Come, maids, and gather columbine
 And daffodils and the wine
 Of violets, for charms decay
 And age will have his way,
 Maids, age will have his way.

Spring Doth Blow Whitely

Spring doth blow whitely with hawthorn, my love,
And soil is sweet with the turning,
But summer comes soon and autumn, my love,
Is brief as thy candle a-burning.
So come trip it featly with me, dear my love,
For the dance will not be repeating
And many a spring may blow whitely, my love,
Ere thy kiss seem so precious a greeting.

Special Class Will

VERY SPECIAL—LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT
MOST SPECIAL—EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, SALEM, MASSACHUSETTS

We, the remains of the Special Class of Nineteen Hundred Thirty-Four, being infirm of mind and body according to analysis by John J. B. Morgan, believe that they are wise who profit by the experience of others, deem it necessary to dispose of our wealth, both tangible and intangible.

1. To Dr. Pitman—bigger and better Special Education classes.
2. To Miss Hoff—an aggressive class endowed with a reasonable degree of intelligence; a time clock so that she can tell whether or not to keep the students overtime, and a secretary to work in her private office.
3. Miss Walker—a beach wagon to convey her class to the various points of the compass; an invisible chamber to be used for observation purposes by the Special Class.
4. Miss Perry—a law saying that all students must pay an equipment fee on the first day of school; a class that has ability in design.
5. Miss Gourville—a new basketball; an outline of Physical Education for Special Class.
6. Mr. Whitman—an ideal junk pile from which all material may be obtained, enabling the students to complete their experiments.

7. Mr. Little—best wishes and a "Special Ed" class that contains wonder painters, carpenters and cabinet makers.

8. Miss Munyan—a set of new ovens, a place for dishwipers, and the memory of her first "Special Ed" class.

AS INDIVIDUALS, THE SPECIALS BEQUEATH THE FOLLOWING:

1. Eleanor Birch leaves her temporarily-abandoned skill in applying cosmetics, and prowess in carrying on a conversation regardless of the situation.

2. Dorothy Litchman bestows upon all who do not find time to prepare their lessons, her secret recipe for the situation, also her ability to bisect a sandwich and still follow the rules of good etiquette.

3. Doris Chick leaves to all the dance fans who frequent the gym at noon, her ability to play the piano. Also, she bequeaths (with pleasure) her place in the rumble seat of a certain car, especially on stormy days.

4. Ruth Talbot gives to all lovesick S. T. C. pals autographed copies of her latest book, The Ties That Bind.

5. Anne Adleberg leaves her ability to find excuses for every situation. Lest we forget, Anne bequeaths to all the lassies of S. T. C. her unusual athletic ability.

6. Miriam Hill, the girl with the sweet disposition and charming personality, agrees to part with all the knowledge that she has grasped during the past year. (We hope that it will be a help to some other "Special Edder" who is in distress.)

7. Frances McDonald will relinquish her freckles to all the "pale-face" beauties, also the secret of her success in accomplishing her work in a certain class.

8. Yvonne Mongeau bequeaths her unusual ability in sewing and other types of handwork—also her primness and shyness toward certain members of the school.

9. Edith Manuel leaves her artistic ability and her fondness for athletics.

10. Ella Warren leaves her attractive accent that was acquired while at school way down in "Virginny."

11. Philomena Buccelli leaves her outstanding ability; that of meeting people with ease and carrying on a conversation in the same manner. Here is another lady who bequeaths her "do or die" spirit in athletics.

The Special Education Class bequeaths to the State Teachers College at Salem, the wish that the Class of 1935 will always uphold her fair name and will bring honor and glory to her Alma Mater in the future years.

Wherefore, in the presence of witnesses, on this 20th day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four, we do hereby affix our signature.

SPECIAL EDUCATION OF 1934

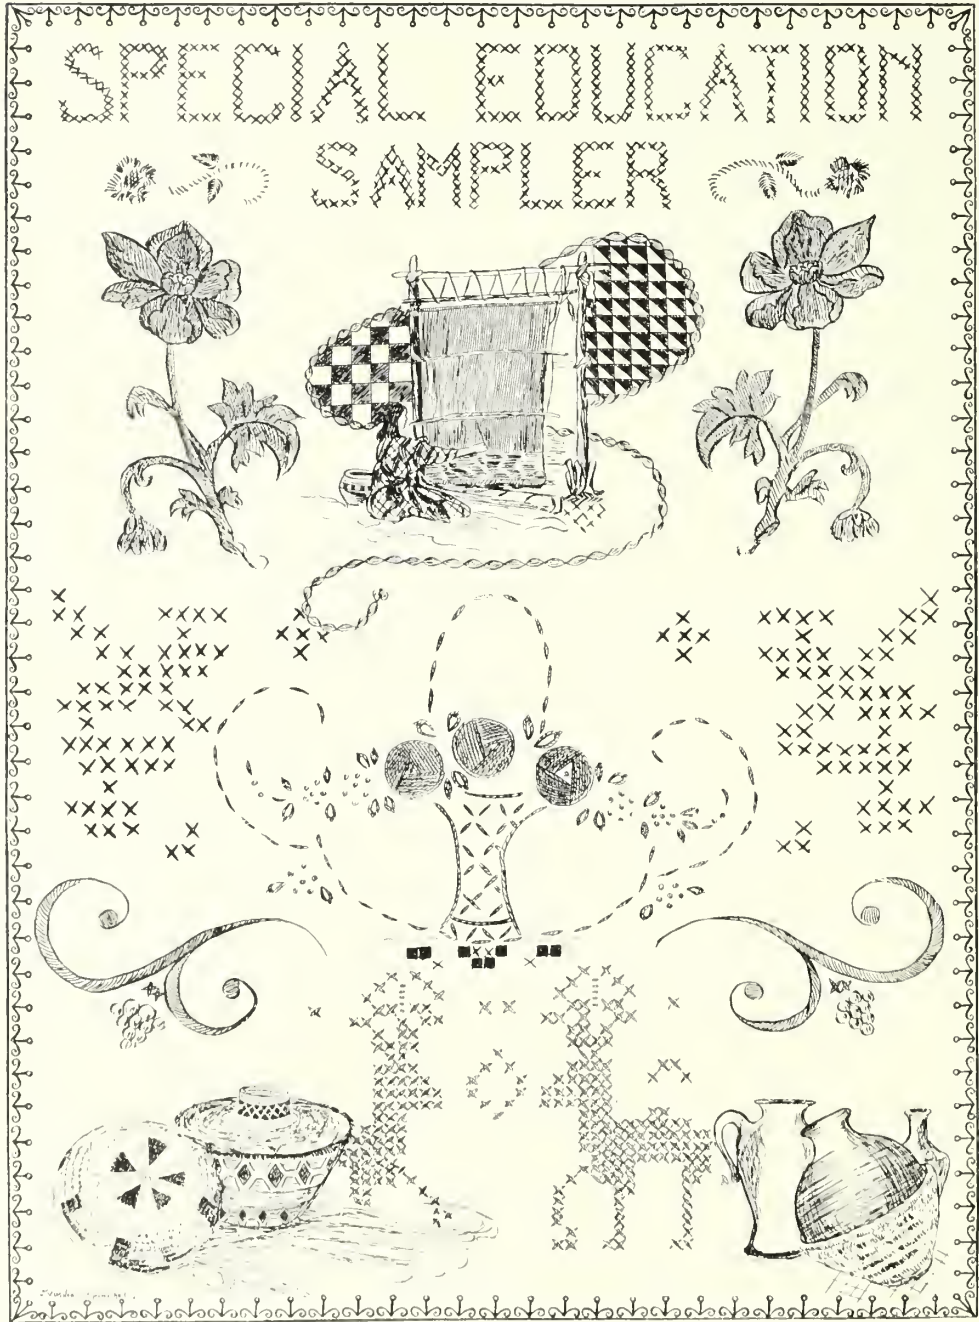

In witness of which we, the undersigned, do hereby sign our John Hancocks.

NEWS OF THE HOUR

Scientist MacDonald, returning from Xyzpopopolos, brings many startling facts about the redeveloping of films. She is remembered here for her reorganization of the science department, as she installed immovable chairs in the lecture room and placed suitable signs on all mysterious doors.

SOCIETY

The former Miss Ruth Talbot is presenting the oldest of her four daughters, Jacqueline, to society on Thursday evening at her spacious home in Beverly Hills, California. The alumnae regret that there is not a boy in the family to carry on the name that they heard so frequently at S. T. C.

COLLEGE NOTES

Phil Buccelli, assistant to Miss Gourville in the Physical Education Department at S. T. C., has launched her spring program of sports. We hope that this season will be as laurel-crowned in basketball as the past one has been. As of old, in her modest way she replied to our interviewer, "The secret of my success, you ask? I have neither secret nor success."

HANDBOOK OF ATHLETICS

by ANNE ADLEBERG
Price 5 whistles

In reviewing this book we wish to say that Miss Adleberg has compiled a tremendous amount of valuable material from her wealth of experience with athletics, both here and abroad.

PERSONAL

Yvonne Mongeau, Supervisor of Handwork at Waverley, has divulged to her associates the fact that in her spare time she is revealing her philosophy of life in a book to be entitled, The French Girl with Other Ideas.

Do you want to be the most attractive girl at the party? Do you want all eyes turned upon you when you enter a room? If you do, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me at the Personality Dept., Bog Office. DORIS CHICK

Miss Warren's Boarding Hall

A selected place for selected students

Under the capable direction of Miss Ella Warren, Teachers College graduate and mistress of boarding-house arts. She features the ad libido plan for meals.

Several times a week Edith Manuel interprets and gives special instruction in the Dance of the Elves for the undergraduates of S. T. C. It has been found to be a valuable procedure.

PSYCHOLOGY

The travelling psychological and psychiatric clinic has been here this week to analyze the small town situation. It is also giving some advice to those teachers who are having difficulty with boys in the Special Class. It is willing to offer suggestions to those who are thus troubled; however, no cure is guaranteed. Eleanor Birch and Dorothy Litchman are members of this clinic.

Diary of a Special Education Student

After the manner of Samuel Sewall

September 13, 1933—I, together with ten other girls, was admitted into the ranks of that very special group, the Special Education Class.

Monday, September 18—Having difficulty adjusting to one's environment. Attempted to evolve from the depths of our minds the reason for our return.

Thursday morning 21—Introduced to Hollingworth and Terman.

Wednesday morning, September 27—About nine of the clock our jolly little group in company with several other schoolmates, set sail from the Warren Street Bridge for a trip around Boston Harbor. Great must be our liking for Special Education, as no one expressed any desire to jump overboard or to be upon the liners sailing down the harbor. Our happiness was evident as we blended our sweet voices in song.

October 5—Luncheon headquarters changed to shower room because of lack of space and a desire for privacy.

Friday, October 6—A Downpour of assignments after a dry spell of idleness.

November. Third day, November.—Busy developing "muscular coördination" and trying hard to become "mechanically-minded" by making footstool upon which to place our weary feet at the end of a long, long day.

We set out about three hours by the sun for Waverley and arrived before the appointed time. Had interesting visit trying to distinguish the cretin and hydrocephalic. Stayed close together in fear of being mistaken for an inmate.

December 5—Developing great lung capacity by blowing glass. Our desire—a good junk pile in which we could find lead pipe, tin cans, bottles, stoppers, et cetera.

Thursday, December 7—Teaching the special class is the reason for worried expressions on our faces and our more numerous dashes to the training school.

5th Day, January 18, 1934—Mental relaxation needed after struggle with "warps" and "woofs." Desire granted by celebration in lunch room, followed by slight regression to childhood, demonstrated in music room.

January 22nd—Off on our professional careers at last! Great hopes and ambitions.

February 5th—Working hard trying out our numerous plans and suggestions. Applied methods learned at S. T. C. with success in some cases.

Thursday, February 15th—Confident of ability to write a book on childhood problems and their solution, after completing our case studies.

February sixteenth, Friday—Grateful to Miss Hoff for those promised visits and for information concerning ourselves, imparted to us in those short interviews.

Monday, March 5—This day rode to Boston to meet my fellow-Travailleurs; then proceeded to the conference. Pet phrase of the day: "Where have I heard that before?"

March fourteenth—Latest discoveries—two eyes and two hands insufficient when peace and order are desired in our classrooms; ingenuity required, to carry out unit of work, especially under close supervision. Making frequent references to notebook.

First day, April—Back to the labors of our special course, much against our wishes. A few attacks of indigestion after first cooking lesson. Diagnosis unavailable.

April seventeenth—Successful in attempts at duplicating the "Walls of Jericho."

May 7—Precaution suggested when working around science rooms: Danger of opening wrong doors.

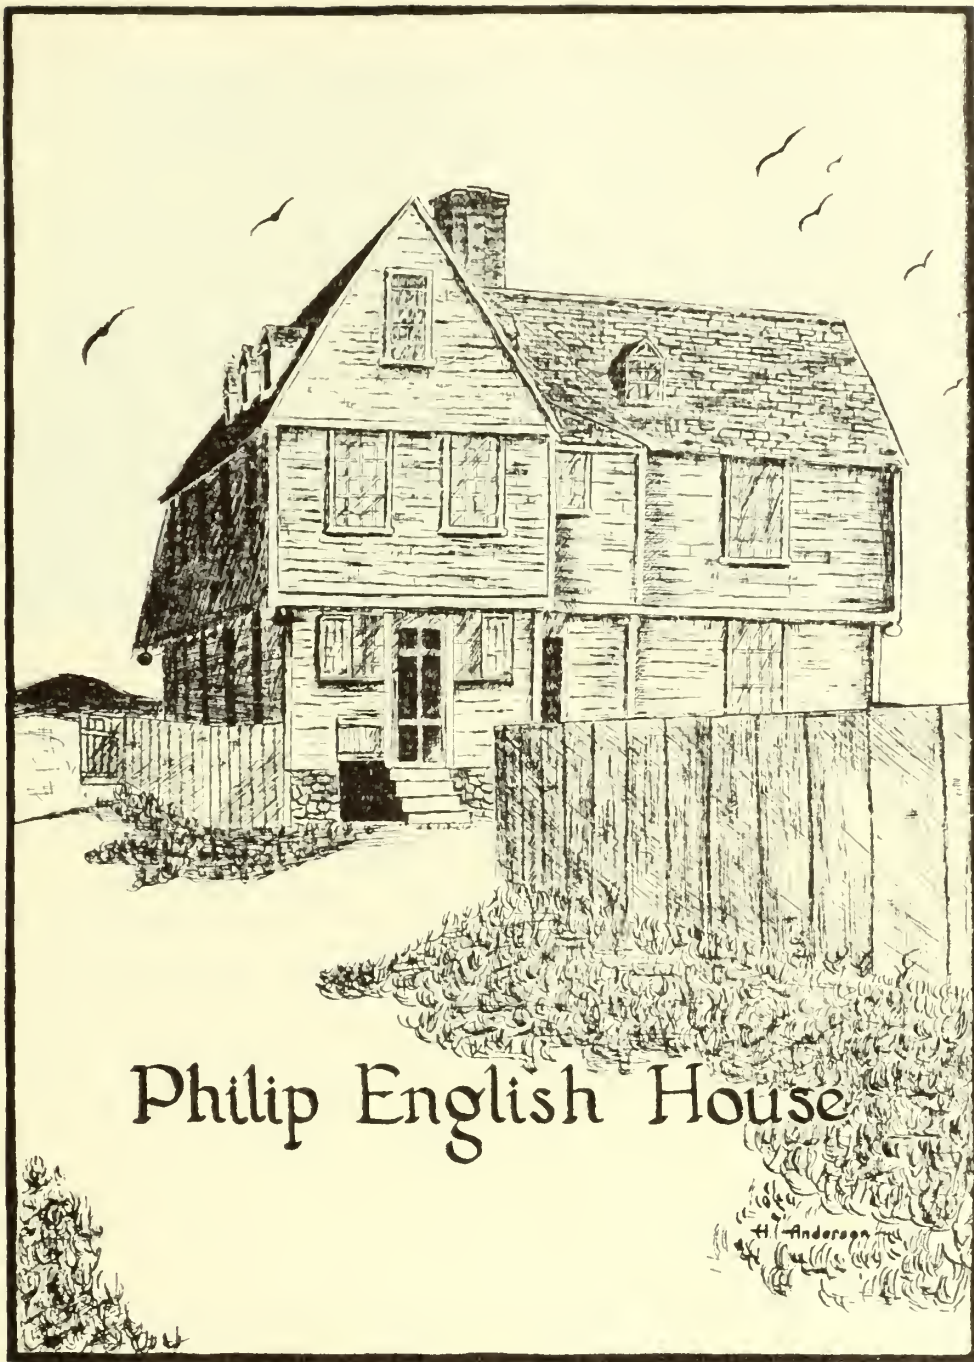

8th May—The Virginia Reel chosen as the form of activity desired for our informal gym period, and wondering afterwards for what level of intelligence it is suited. Possibly the morons?

Wednesday, May 9—All more or less worried about our "repressed desires." One never knows what they may lead to, does one?

May 14—Reading The Mind That Found Itself in the futile research for our own.

June 1—Class in reminiscent mood but not forgetting to look forward to the 15th and still further to the day when we "take our own class in September."

Midweek June 11—Like all good students of Special Education, keeping busy up to the last minute. Although the road traveled was a rocky one at times, the past year has its pleasant memories which will always be our subject of conversation at the numerous reunions to follow.

COÖPERATIVE COUNCIL

Third Row: R. Goldthwaite, A. Davis, C. Yagjian, K. McCarthy, C. Benner, M. Shaughnessy, D. Hooker, A. Maloney, J. Cannon, E. Franzen, M. O'Rourke, R. White
Second Row: B. Edmondson, A. Pelletier, H. Irving, A. Keane, A. Rousseau, J. Roderick, Mr. Whitman, Faculty Adviser; G. Cotter, E. Gainey, A. Ringer, S. Myers
First Row: Miss Bunton, Miss Roberts, Faculty Advisers; C. Henry, C. Richardson, E. Leavitt, L. McHugh, D. Littlehale, H. Sacco, M. Staples, J. Moakley

Coöperative Council

The Coöperative Council consists of thirty-four representatives from the various classes and clubs, four executive officers, and three faculty advisers.

The portion of the blanket fee allotted for entertainment purposes this year has been spent for a reception to the freshmen, for an address by Dr. E. Howard Griggs, and for a formal dance. The Apollo Male Quarter was also presented to the school through the coöperation of the Council and the Glee Club.

This year a New York Savings Fund was sponsored by the Council for the purpose of enabling students to save money for the New York convention. Besides the three delegates sent by the Council, one from each department, fifteen students were able to attend this April convention because of the Fund.

The officers who have led the Council activities for this year are as follows: President, Edna Leavitt; Vice-President, Lillian McHugh; Secretary, Dorothy Littlehale; Treasurer, Christine Richardson; Chairman Social Committee, Genevieve Cotter; Chairman Assembly Committee, Lucille Davis; Chairman General Welfare Committee, Janet Moakley. The faculty advisers were Miss Gertrude Bunton, Miss Elizabeth Roberts, and Mr. Walter Whitman.

COMMERCIAL COUNCIL

Second Row: Mr. Phillips, Faculty Adviser; J. Welch, R. Amiro, J. Fouhey, L. McMenimen, Mr. Sproul, Faculty Adviser
 First Row: I. Komarin, D. Sidmore, E. Maynard, M. Cormier, A. Leahy, D. Covell, K. Lichman, N. Demsey

Commercial Council

The Commercial Council, comprised of twelve members of the Commercial Department, three from each class, was reorganized this year with Mr. Sproul and Mr. Phillips as faculty advisers. The following members were elected to serve as officers for the term: Chairman, Alice Leahy; Treasurer, John Fouhey; Secretary, Norton Demsey.

The Visual Education Committee assisted by other members of the Council conducted a survey of all of the films, slides, and projectors available in the college and training school. This list is to be catalogued and placed at the disposal of all desiring reference to such information.

Having learned how to operate the moving-picture machine, the members of the Council are always ready and willing to present educational films for the benefit of any class requesting this service. The Business Organization Class has profited greatly by the presentation of a series of these films depicting several United States' industries.

The Council has inaugurated this year an annual banquet and entertainment for the Commercial Department.

The year has brought to the Council an increased vision of its opportunities and a deeper understanding of its purpose. The Council has had to progress slowly, but from a humble beginning it is bound to assume a place of growing importance in the life of the Commercial Department.

John Burroughs Club

The John Burroughs Club caters to the interest of nature lovers. Interest this year was centered on New England birds, both residents and visitants.

An Arbor Day program was given by the club for the student body.

Visits to Peabody Museum and Ropes Memorial greenhouse were made in the winter and a bird walk in Danvers Woods was taken in the spring.

In the social calendar are included a Salmagundi Party, Acquaintance party, and a White Elephant Sale.

To close the year's activities the entire club spent a day in Boston visiting the Natural History Museum and the Arboretum.

The club is advised by Miss Gertrude B. Goldsmith; the executive board is composed of Edna Garney, President; Marie Mullen, Vice-President; Anne Cunningham, Secretary; Dorothy Hooker, Treasurer; Margaret Berkeley and Mary Bradley.

CAMERA CLUB

Second Row: E. Gauld, E. McGlew, M. Johnson, C. Atwater, M. Wells, G. McVann, C. Susco, D. Yaffe, J. Grossman, E. Posner
First Row: R. Southwick, C. Richardson, C. Yagjian, P. Cutter, Mr. Whitman, Faculty Adviser; T. Crowley, K. Hackett, A. Perry, B. Hingston

Camera Club

The members of this year's Camera Club have been zealously attempting to learn many new phases of photography. Mr. Whitman, our adviser, with his indefatigable patience and broad knowledge has aided us in all our efforts. After each business session, a new section of photography has been demonstrated by Mr. Whitman.

The making of silhouettes seems to have been one of our most delightful activities. Each member present at the meeting posed for his silhouette showing himself engaged in some sport or other activity, thus bringing to light many of the interests of members. After the pictures were taken they were immediately developed in the "dark room." On the next day, groups were to be seen hurrying to the Camera Club to observe and comment on the pictures.

In addition to the silhouettes the work has included tinting with both oil and water colors, enlarging, copying, and trick photography. These have been practiced by the members during their individual work periods, with much success.

The Camera Club bulletin board has been a source of news for members as well as a place to display samples of the work which they have done.

LITERARY-DRAMATIC CLUB

Third Row: A. Pelletier, V. Borys, M. Duncan, E. Gilman, E. Russell, D. Petersen, C. Dennen, M. Murphy, E. Oliver, H. Szydlowski
Second Row: E. Riker, D. Mott, L. Cornwell, L. Gagnon, H. Irving, M. Michaels, M. O'Toole, L. Glueth, G. Solar, A. Dugan, M. Welch
First Row: I. Griffin, M. Grimes, M. Wheeler, E. Murray, A. De Pippo, Miss Edwards, Faculty Adviser; B. Edmondson, G. Tinkham, F. List, L. Keith

Literary-Dramatic Club

Through the efforts of a small number of literary and dramatic enthusiasts, a new organization, the Literary-Dramatic Club, began its official career in September, with Miss Alice H. Edwards as faculty adviser, and the following officers: President, Beatrice Edmondson; Vice-President, Mildred O'Toole; Secretary, Agnes O'Laughlin; Treasurer, Victoria Borys.

The regular meetings of the year were grouped about such topics as plays, books, and poetry. In the fall, the club appeared in the foreground of the College activities by presenting in assembly a comedy entitled Suppressed Desires. The Christmas season was celebrated by a party at which the members represented Charles Dickens, Robert Burns and other celebrities. An interesting introduction to the study of poetry was given at an English Tea with Reverend W. F. A. Stride as guest reader.

The big event of the Club's year occurred in February, when the members presented two one-act plays, The Teeth of the Gift Horse and Mrs. Oakley's Telephone. These proved interesting and profitable both to the audience and the club members.

The first year's activities seem to prophesy a promising future for the Literary-Dramatic Club.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

First Row: A. Partanen, H. Skornik, S. Waldman, E. Rock, Miss Cruttenden, Faculty Adviser; H. Sacco, I. Cohen, E. Ehler, M. Staples

International Relations Club

On regular club days the members studied the Latin-American countries and the work of the League of Nations. Current events were discussed at other meetings. A new feature was the club reading table at which members met for one half hour weekly to read current literature and to review many new books received during the year. The bulletin board was both interesting and beneficial with its array of clippings.

Many outside speakers addressed the club. Miss Hoff presented a most interesting account of her travels abroad; Mr. Cronkhite spoke on international drama; Mr. Matthews gave an illustrated lecture on India; Mr. Donald Woods presented several aspects of international government.

Coöperating with Dr. Pitman the members collected pictures of leading American cities, which were sent to Venice, Italy, for use in the elementary schools. Ten members attended the Model League Assembly held at Harvard College March 8, 9, 10.

On May 18 the club presented its annual assembly program. A petition urging that the United States reinforce the League's contribution to peace by stating terms under which membership would be possible was presented to the student body.

 First Row: M. Koskey, C. Gately, L. Betts, D. Hooker, Miss Edwards, Miss Porter, Faculty Advisers; R. Gaunt, E. Maynard, A. Rousseau

Log Staff

The Log staff of '34 feel that they have completed a very busy and a very pleasant year together. For the first time since the Staff's organization, delegates were sent to the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Convention in New York. With the realization that contacts with other school press representatives and people prominent in the world of journalism are invaluable in maintaining and furthering a good school paper, the convention is certain to be an annual feature on the staff program. The rating of first place in the convention contest is a challenge to all future staff members.

While the Editor-in-Chief, Rowena Gaunt, was in training the paper was issued by the following: Corinne Gately, Managing Editor, the February number; Dorothy Hooker and Michael Koskey, Associate Editors, the March and April numbers, respectively. This plan was inaugurated to give the assisting editors a real chance to handle all the details in the editing of the paper. Ernestine Maynard acted as business manager throughout the year.

With the election of the new Staff in May a get-together is being planned at which the new members will be duly introduced to their duties.

MATHEMATICS CLUB

Second Row: M. Lally, M. Carter, G. Stern, E. Neal, R. Hall, V. Bauer, A. Pinto

First Row: B. Dahlen, A. Maloney, Miss Stone, Faculty Adviser; R. Patten, D. Thompson, L. Betts

Mathematics Club

The theme around which the Mathematics Club chose to weave its work this year was Money Management. Questionnaires on various phases of this subject—allowances, earning money, prices of food and clothing—have been formulated by club members and given to the student body. Factors so revealed have appeared in each issue of the Log.

Several members of the club attended a university extension course in money management.

Information gleaned from the questionnaires, the Money Management course, and a visit with Miss Barnard to the schools in Brookline furnished the basis for the club's assembly program.

The club's leaders for the year 1933-1934 were: President, Anna Maloney; Vice-President, Rebecca Patten; Secretary, Dorothy Thompson; Treasurer, Bernice Dahlen. The club's faculty adviser is Miss Mildred Stone.

GLEE CLUB

President, Ruth Goldthwaite; Vice-President, Hilda Joyce; Treasurer, Mary Dillon; Secretary, Ruth Marcus; Librarian, Erma Buker; Accompanist, Clara Morson; Faculty Adviser, C. Francis Woods

Glee Club

The Glee Club marks the year 1933-1934 as one of the most successful and enjoyable in its existence. The list of concert engagements was officially opened with a typical Pops Concert in December. March brought the young engineers of Worcester Polytechnic Institute to Salem for a joint concert. In April, the girls went to Worcester for a return concert. Various picnics, parties, and a dance filled out a happy year.

The standard of excellent singing which has always been maintained in the club is due to the tireless efforts of Mr. C. Francis Woods, director, faculty adviser, and true friend of the ninety girls constituting its membership. Every Thursday afternoon throughout the year the Glee Club met for an hour of enjoyment in singing familiar songs and learning new ones under the skillful baton of the director.

TRI MU CLUB

Third Row: M. Otto, H. Regish, L. Cornwell, R. Southwick, A. Leahy, D. Littlehale, D. Covell
Second Row: F. Allen, E. Shirt, Miss Hoff, Faculty Adviser; L. Gagnon, H. Wardzala, S. Tolchinsky
First Row: M. Zmudsky, H. Stanwood, H. Szydowski, H. Irving, U. Whitmore, A. Dugan, A. Partanen

Tri Mu Club

The Tri Mu Club, organized primarily for the purpose of uniting, through various social activities, the boarding students and those students who reside in Salem, began another year's work by initiating the new members on the evening of October 17.

Each monthly party was successful, owing to the large number who attended, but especially to be remembered is that gay affair, the Christmas Party, with holly, wreaths, a small Christmas tree, and even small gift jokes. Miss Hoff, in a most interesting manner, made the holiday more beautiful and sacred by telling of her journey through the Holy Land, and by showing us the many souvenirs and coins that she had brought back to Salem. The Club, as has been its custom for several years, sold attractive Christmas cards bearing the school seal.

After the many enjoyable winter parties, the members are looking forward to the annual May dance and to the boat trip to Baker's Island—two events which will close the activities of the Tri Mu Club for another year.

The officers of Tri Mu are: President, Hester Irving; Treasurer, M. Ursula Whitmore; Secretary, Helena Szydowski; Faculty Adviser, Miss Lillian Hoff.

Girl Scout Club

The Girl Scout Club aimed this year to carry out a program centered around the training for Scout leadership. Our first speaker, Mrs. Sargent H. Wellman of the Massachusetts Girl Scout Headquarters, aided in the realization of our aim by suggesting an interesting and flexible program for the year. With this as a foundation, the meetings were planned so that definite scouting activities were combined with games and good times.

The Christmas and March 17th meetings were occasions for enjoyable parties, and the spring meetings were held outdoors as frequently as possible. One week-end was spent at a Girl Scout camp. Four members attended the Inter-Collegiate Girl Scout Club Conference at Cedar Hill in April. Miss Bunton was the faculty adviser of the Girl Scout Club.

The officers for the year 1933-1934 were: President, Janet Moakley; Vice-President, Phyllis Robinson; Secretary, Helen Brown; Treasurer, Ruth Whitney.

First Row: T. Bailey, M. Kiernan, Miss Perry, Faculty Adviser; L. Hosker, C. Santoliquido, I. Brooking

Art Club

The Art Club, one of our long-established groups, organized early in September with the following officers: President, Lucy Hosker; Vice-President, Sylvia Myers; Secretary, Thelma Bailey; Treasurer, Marjorie Kiernan; Publicity Chairman, Curbina Santoliquido; Faculty Adviser, Miss Perry.

With the suggestions and interest of students from the Massachusetts School of Art who have been assisting in the Training School this year, the Art Club has held many unusual meetings. In October there was a Hallowe'en party with appropriate decorations, games, and refreshments. A new process of celluloid etching was demonstrated at the November meeting. During the Christmas season, block printing was the chief activity. In February the Art Club spent a pleasant afternoon at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. April meetings were devoted to craft work. A sketching trip and a picnic ended the year's activities.

For its assembly program the Art Club presented to the entire school a three-reel film, "From Clay to Bronze."

Two art clubs have been formed in the Training School through the efforts of Art Club members. It is hoped that the new organizations will prove so successful that they will be carried on again next year.

Women's Athletic Association

Coöperation was the theme chosen by our executive board in planning, organizing, and carrying on all athletics and social activities of the Women's Athletic Association this year.

The guidance given us by our able director, Miss Wallace, and the enthusiasm contributed by our loyal coach, Miss Gourville, helped to make this year a most successful one.

The board, increased to twenty-one members, with Rita White as president, outlined at the first annual meeting in September its extensive plans for a very active year. Among the new activities planned and carried out this year were: the Poverty Party, the Mid-Winter Formal, the Snow Train to New Hampshire, and the first Alumni Basketball Game.

The Harvard-Yale competition has continued at fever pitch throughout the year with Yale having a slight edge on Harvard at present. It is possible that John Harvard may have to relinquish his proud position of first place to old Eli. Both Harvard and Yale have maintained in all their games high standards of coöperation and fair play. May this spirit of coöperation which has been our goal this year, continue unflaggingly as Harvard and Yale renew their struggle for supremacy in athletics.

The bulletin board features several posters and notices:

WAA BULLETIN BOARD

The Bulletin Board

Every morning, noon, and afternoon find W. A. A. members congregating in the Hygiene Room. The center of attraction is the bulletin board, which, under the able supervision of Anne Adleberg and her assistant Carolyn MacDonald, has truly become the official organ of the W. A. A.

Every day on the bulletin board are seen flashing posters magnetically focusing the eyes of Yale and Harvard members, arousing their spirit of courage, determination, loyalty, and coöperation. Under the various heads are placed team lists, schedules, and other material of interest to members of the W. A. A.

It is on the bulletin board that the Harvard versus Yale results of all tournaments are published. A chart depicting the various sports and victory-loss proportions was made. On this chart were recorded the positions of the two major teams. The 1933-1934 competition aroused much enthusiasm, as Yale awoke from the inertia of last year and dragged Harvard to defeat in the soccer-fieldball series. Basketball, volleyball, bowling, baseball, and other tournament games were interestingly recorded on charts.

The bulletin board is a faithful recorder of the ups and downs of Harvard and Yale in the various tournaments. Other activities as the Mid-Winter Formal, the Poverty Party, the Victory Tea, the Country Fair, hikes, and other events have been effectively heralded by this mouthpiece of the Women's Athletic Association.

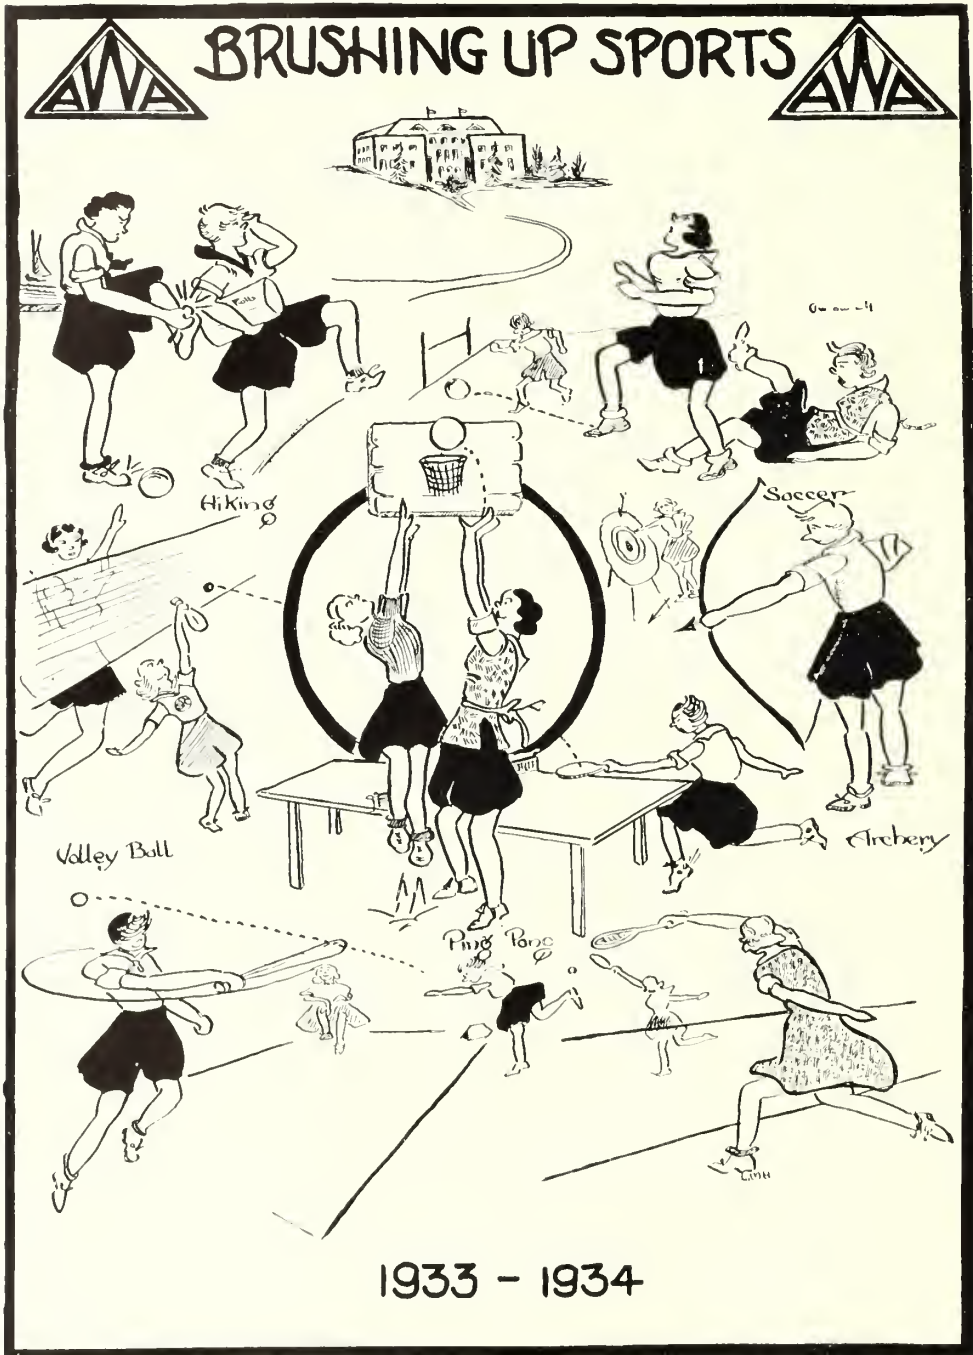

W. A. A. Handbook

The increased membership of the W. A. A. has necessitated the publishing of a handbook to bring closer to the students the meaning of the Women's Athletic Association.

During the past years, it has been customary to hold monthly meetings to explain the sports carried on, and various functions of this association; but due to the growing membership, it is impossible to conduct these meetings.

This handbook will endeavor to explain to the students the activities in which the association takes part, the functions which it sponsors, the point system and awards, the constitution of the Women's Athletic Association, and the songs and cheers of the W. A. A.

We greatly appreciate the efforts of Mr. Little of the Salem Training School Faculty, who has made it possible to publish this handbook, and we extend our thanks to Miss Mira Wallace and Miss Marguerite Gourville, our advisers, and to the Chairman and the staff of her associates, through whose efforts a Women's Athletic Association Handbook has been made possible.

The Country Fair

The merry month of May marked the date of the W. A. A.'s second annual revival of that rapidly disappearing phenomenon, the Country Fair.

Gaily decorated game booths, brightly colored grab bags, fortune tellers, barkers, exhibits, prizes, old-fashioned dances and entertainment—all revived once more the typically gay, colorful atmosphere of a country fair.

Everywhere, joyous whoops and merry laughter preceded groups of Hiram and Mirandys as they tried their skill at the tempting game booths, took a turn about the floor in time to a good old tune, or leisurely strolled about the grounds, contentedly enjoying lolly-pops, peanuts, delicious cake, and other refreshments.

The untiring efforts of the W. A. A. to make the Country Fair the outstanding social event of the year were doubly rewarded by the wholehearted attendance of both the members of the faculty and the student body. Their obvious enjoyment and appreciation of the Country Fair has most assuredly established it as a delightful and worthwhile event, here to stay with us as an annual affair.

Victory Tea

On April eleventh, the Yale team introduced a new event into the social calendar of the W.A.A. A victory tea was tendered to Harvard as a tribute to Harvard's stirring victory in the basketball series. The tea was a very successful affair. Red and blue dresses were proudly worn as emblems of team affiliation, but the distinguishing feature of the whole affair was the spirit of non-partisanship. Yale members were proud of their team's work and yet sincere in their congratulations to the victors.

Dancing was enjoyed for an hour, and refreshments were served throughout the afternoon. The pourers at the tea were Miss Harris, Miss Cruttenden, and Miss Munyan.

The idea of a victory tea is a new one at S. T. C., and it is sincerely hoped that it will become as firmly established a custom as other social activities of the W. A. A.

W. A. A. Formal

The soft glow of shaded lights; the haunting strains of sweet dance music; and smartly dressed young ladies with charming escorts, all set down amidst the glitter and sparkle of an invigorating snow scene, was the setting for the W. A. A.'s first Mid-Winter Formal held in the College Auditorium.

The reception line, consisting of Dr. and Mrs. Pitman, Miss Wallace, Miss Gourville, Miss Stone, Miss Burnham, Rita White, Anne Adleberg, Florence List, and Lucy Del Rossi, made a most inviting picture as they beamed their cordial greetings on the guests.

"Marching Along Together" was the rollicking tune that sent the couples off in swinging steps around the gay hall for the Grand March, at the conclusion of which bookmarks bearing the college seal were presented to each couple.

Delicious refreshments were served in the Pedagogy Room, with its gaily covered, red-checked tablecloths and glowing candlelight.

Snow Train

"All aboard for a day of 'roughing it' and fun galore!" 'Course they aren't the exact words of the conductor on that East Jaffrey bound train, but they are our interpretation.

Such a stacking of lunches, balancing of skis in safe places, and peeling off of jackets, sweaters, and coats. The latter procedure, when ended, suggested that there were many brothers at home searching for missing apparel.

Arriving at Jaffrey, a noisy disembarkment ensued. A fast and furious battle was unanimously agreed to be a good way to start things humming. And hum they did! With snow whizzing to the right and left, Yale came through the victor, after a successful coup d'état in which Harvard lost its banner.

A baseball game kept us busy for a while, digging up lost balls, and working up an appetite. Then those who still felt that they could take it followed Kay Cargill in a merry Hare and Hound chase. The Hares were run down, gasping for breath from laughter and showing signs of having leaped barbed wire fences.

While waiting for our train to return with our lunches, we enjoyed watching Madeline Donovan show her prowess as a face-washer (as long as we weren't the victims) and paying homage to our snow queen, Helena Anderson.

The Poverty Party

Any rags, any bones, any bottles? Not to be thrown at the Harvard members but for a party, because Yale was good-natured enough to realize that "to the victor belongs the spoils." For the small sum of three cents, Yale members each took a Harvard friend to an afternoon of merriment.

Upon arriving, each guest was changed to some famous personage by having a card pinned upon her back. After frantic questioning, the poor unknown realized what great personality she really was. This fascinating game soon gave way to a heated spelling contest as Harvard and Yale competed to form words with letters found in their new names. Then, sitting upon the poverty-stricken chairs and upon newspapers, the guests were entertained with charades, cleverly acted by Yale members. The Freshmen shone with their brilliant guessing in discovering the hidden meanings of the acts.

What were those shrieks and yells? Oh, yes! It was a game of pig. Clothespins and cards flew, as everyone clutched the all-important clothespin.

To some, the pleasantest episode of the party came when the bread-line formed under the balcony to receive rations. Sandwiches were handed out, and tin mugs were filled from the community coffee pot. Then, games all played, food all gone, Harvard and Yale members started towards their lockers, not as victors and vanquished, but as true friends and appreciative guests.

Mock Man Dance

"Those were the good old days" was the thought uppermost in the minds of those who attended the Mock Man Dance on April 6, 1934. The Gay Nineties were indeed brought back to life at this party which was characterized by all things old-fashioned. For the most part, those who attended were dressed in costumes of long ago which fitted in well with the historical scene pictured about the gymnasium.

Our good-looking "men" appeared particularly smooth and gallant in their well fitting swallow-tailed coats and tall hats as they pranced gaily about with the ladies of their choice.

It was a gala night with its Virginia Reels, beautiful ladies and dapper gentlemen, all attesting to the fact that women may conduct a successful dance without the aid of real men.

Privately Printed

The 1934 STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE YEAR BOOK is a fine example of a limited edition, privately printed.

The staff of this book and an increasing number of other private publishers have been turning to organizations which specialize in the production of fine brochures, magazines, and privately printed books. For more than a century The Andover Press has served such publishers, planning and printing class annuals, descriptive booklets, genealogies, and other quality publications.

THREE QUESTIONS TO THINK ABOUT

1. Is your advanced shorthand course as well organized and as definitely planned as your theory course?
2. Is there a noticeable let-down in the interest of your shorthand students during the advanced stages of the work?
3. Do your advanced students make the same measurable day-to-day progress that they make during the earlier stages?

These and similar questions are frequently asked at conventions and wherever shorthand teachers meet.

GREGG SPEED BUILDING

by

JOHN ROBERT GREGG

The book with a well-defined and teachable speed-building plan, is the solution to your speed-building problem.

No more lesson assignments to prepare—no more worry about keeping up your students' interest or building up their speed.

When you use GREGG SPEED BUILDING you are following such a definite scientific speed-building program that both you and your students have a feeling of absolute confidence in the final results.

Try this new book with your next advanced or speed class.

Back of its Scholarship & Accuracy

That is why The Merriam-Webster is the "Supreme Authority"; is the most widely used reference work in the world; is universally accepted in the courts, colleges, schools, and libraries.

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

"The Supreme Authority"

Every State that has adopted an unabridged dictionary for use in its schools has chosen exclusively The Merriam-Webster.

Nearly 100% of all schoolbooks are based on the New International for pronunciation, spelling, compounding, and division of words.

The Colleges voted overwhelmingly in favor of Webster as the standard of pronunciation, in answer to questions submitted by the Chicago Woman's Club.
