Theme

TO the four corners of the earth, across the seven seas, from the boundless icy wastes of the northern lands to the sandy stretches of the vast African desert - - - in these phrases lie the romance and scope of the commercial enterprise of old Salem. On the epic of the ship do we base this Year Book of the Class of One Thousand Nine Hundred and Thirty-Five. We, who are about to leave you, use the theme set forth in this book as an expression of our mission in life, that of guiding the minds of young America to the port of true happiness, laden with a rich cargo of learning.

The Horace Mann Training School

In the library of the Salem Teachers College is a fine portrait of a gentleman who may well be called the "Father of Teacher Training Institutions." To us, it seems that this portrait could not be placed more appropriately. When one considers the fervor that Horace Mann manifested in relation to education in general and to teacher training in particular, it is altogether fitting that his name be remembered in this connection.

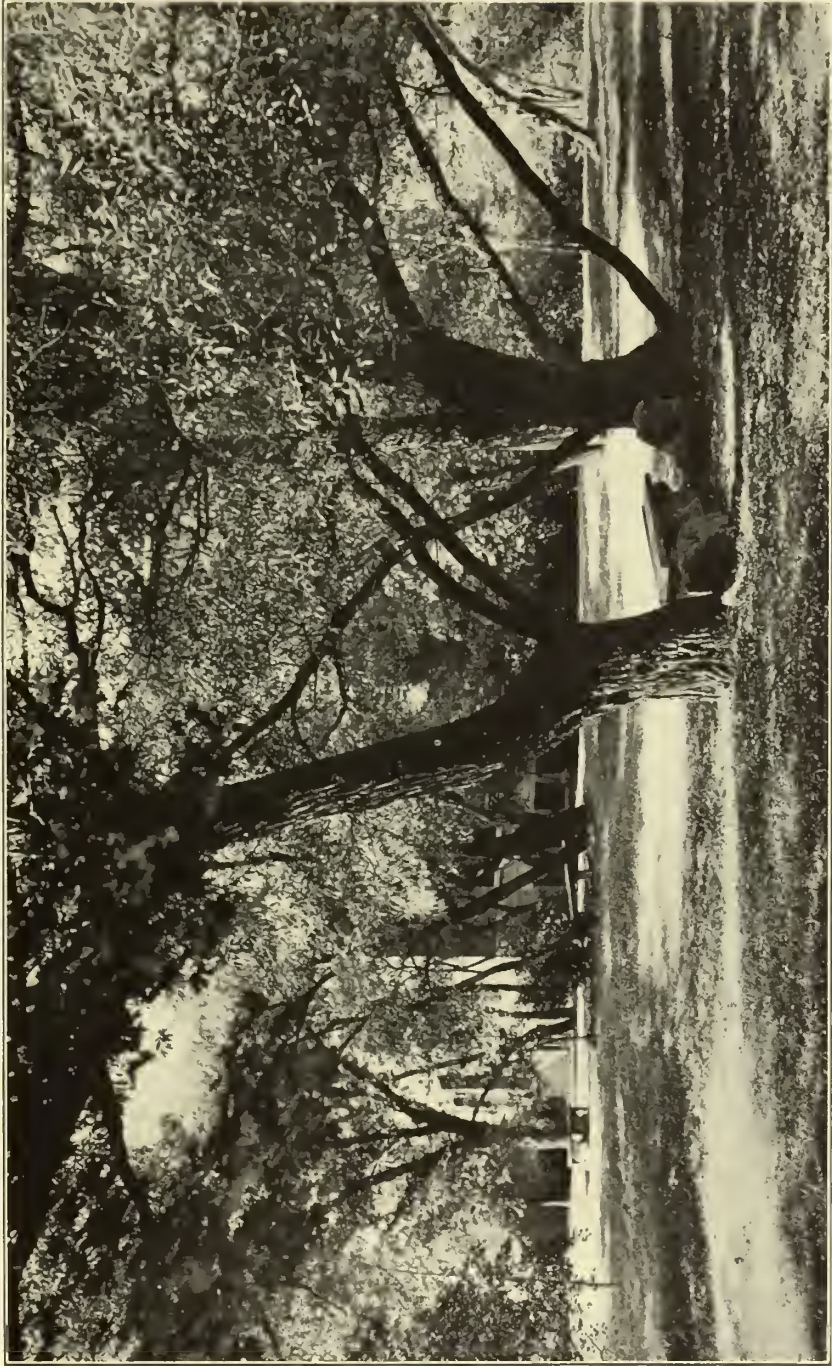

The Salem school board, acting on the suggestion of Dr. J. Asbury Pitman, our president, with the approval of the Massachusetts State Board of Education, formally decreed that the training school of the State Teachers College at Salem should henceforth be known as the Horace Mann Training School. This is a simple statement, yet it expresses a century of educational progress in our commonwealth. It tells that the work of a great educator has been commemorated in an appropriate manner. The name in itself will serve as an inspiration to all students training for a professional career.

An Outstanding Professional Problem

No single definition of education, numerous and comprehensive as many of these are, includes all of the duties, responsibilities and opportunities of the teacher. And all of these obligations and privileges, according to the needs of the individual student, the field of service in which he is engaged and the particular demands of society in any given age, must determine the matter and method of instruction and the degrees of emphasis which should be placed upon any phase of education.

In recent years, no educational program seems complete without at least some reference to "a changing world." To be sure the world, fortunately, has always been a changing world. To borrow an axiomatic truth from an ancient philosophy, "All life is a perpetual flux." A changeless world is a dead world. A changeless civilization leaves society absolutely without hope. But there are periods in history in which changes come with such a degree of rapidity that society is wholly unprepared to anticipate them or to solve immediately the pressing problems which are thrust upon it in quick succession. In these years of your professional training, we are living in just such an age of change and uncertainty which places squarely upon us, the teachers of the country, most serious and solemn responsibilities.

Not the least of these is the problem brought by the enforced unemployment of both the youthful and adult population and the greatly increased amount of leisure of all classes, including the children in our schools. Upon the solution of this problem which involves the proper use of leisure time depends, in very large measure, the physical, mental, and moral salvation of the generation of pupils who are now in our schools and who will constitute the adult society of tomorrow.

I make an earnest plea for a form of education that will create interests, abilities, and habits which will make for the health of the individual, insure his productive power so that he shall be both self-supporting and self-respecting, and which shall enrich both his own life and that of the community in which he lives and serves. This implies the discovery and development of his inherent interests, which in turn requires of the schools more of vocational guidance in a more scientific way than in the past. It calls for the promotion of avocations as well as major vocations; for they possess not only an economic value in that they greatly enrich life, but, because of their enticing interest, they crowd out of life much that is relatively worthless or which is positively vicious. This guidance must be accompanied by a variety of desirable experiences and real vocational training, and it should also lead to the development of cultural interests which shall enrich life and the formation of habits which shall lead to the highest type of citizenship.

Commercial Senior Prophecy

Last month I attended the International Educational Congress held in connection with the World's Fair at Topping, Esticiana, and although this is only 1954, I found that many of my classmates had already risen to fame (or perhaps fame had stooped to them).

Isadore Komarin was the first one whom I met. He is the Publicity Manager of the Fair. He tells every one what to see, but after hearing Komarin, why waste time looking at anything? Helen Brown was on the athletic field. She gave up teaching long ago and is now training a special brand of athletes known as the "Can-Never-Be-Beat" athletes. Helen told me that Ruth Whitney is now the head of the North Shore Kindergarten School.

In the Hall of Music I found Ursula Whitmore (shades of Wellesley) giving a lecture on "How Music Soothes the Wilder Side of Human Nature." Lyman Butler was in the Vestibule of Drama doing interpretative reading. Remember Hamlet? Mary Grimes did better. She is now on the stage because she felt that the whole public should have the benefit of her joke-telling ability.

Earl Rock was made a Kentucky colonel recently as a reward for the splendid work he did in discovering the Mammoth Cave while on that famous 1934 expedition from S. T. C. Barbara Doyle was in one of the booths selling notes for Sociology in a special notebook which prompts the student if he forgets. Near by, Mary Conway was distributing her own pamphlets entitled, "Bigger and Better Americans via the Night Schools."

Betty Ryan is running an employment bureau. She was offered so many positions while in school which she couldn't take, that she decided to make money passing them out to somebody else. She told me that Alli Partanen is the owner of a riding school. Alli furnishes the atmosphere only. She also told me that Arthur Skandalis has just opened the "Skan's Cookee Schoolee" for men with fastidious gastronomical predilections.

In the Psychology Division I found Dan Colby demonstrating his ability to divide his power of concentration. He was fixing a stalled car with one hand, while in the other hand he held a volume of Ibsen, which he was reading with great enjoyment. George Husson was also demonstrating. His theme was: "How to Be a Man in Four Dimensions." He was using himself as the example.

Elda Del Ciello was not at the Fair, but I saw her book on "Cost Accounting for a College Bookstore." At present she is working on the principles governing the use of Suspense Accounts—between recitations in Sociology. Ethel Ehler is compiling a history of the Commercial Senior Class of 1935 in 104 volumes, including all the stencils, carbon copies, shorthand notes, old stories and "stalls." Kay Phelan is contributing to the "Lives of Great Women" magazine. Edna Morrison is working on her Master's thesis, the subject of which is: Correlation Between Knitting and Time Wasted in Class.

There were a number of prominent lectures at the Congress, among whom was Dorothy Littlehale, who gave an inspiring talk on leadership as a direct result of personality. Blanche Gay has put Plainville on the map at last. She was lecturing on the subject of rewards of quietness, efficiency, and patience.

Mr. Doner must have left quite big footprints on the sands of time for I saw Norton Demsey and Isabelle Griffin following in them. Molly Goldberg has made her extra-curricular activity, bridge, her vocation. She was showing a set of slides on playing and winning at bridge made according to the Professor Phillips' formula.

Mary Greenberg turned to the practical side of things. She is running a line of row boats from Manchester-by-the-Sea to Salem. A small extra charge is made if one wishes to fish while traveling. Helen Stanwood is selling air-conditioning appliances which she guarantees to be non-freezing. (The class sighs: "Too late.")

Elmer Le Lacheur occupied a chair in science. He is a professor of Ornithology and Herpetology. (Birds and reptiles to those not versed in "ologies.") Helen Skornik is conducting an Institute for the Betterment of International Relations on a lonely desert island in the Pacific. Grace Russell is editing a women's magazine in which she is giving out for the first time the secret of her success in domestic relations.

Lil Ward has opened a child guidance clinic of her own. Her book on psychology is one of the best sellers of the year. Esther Peabody was another one of those missing. The Professor told me that she was at home keeping the fires burning and reading up on Ornithology. Miriam Staples is a designer of dresses with an exclusive shop on $3\frac{1}{2}$ Avenue in Squarecorners. Sarah Tolchinsky turned out to be an elocution teacher, giving special lessons on the reading of Brown's Cases. Kay Mooney is singing over the radio with one of the popular orchestras. Eileen Sullivan is her manager, and also the one who collects the checks.

Sara Waldman, I heard, is the treasurer of the Waldman Credit Union. This firm uses the "Flying Squadron" type of auditing procedure. Vera Chudleigh was advertising her model school for charm known as the "Madam Vere Chudleigh Gracee Scholee." Gertrude Szczepanska is an airplane pilot six months of the year and a submarine pilot the rest of the time. Virginia Vaughan is selling rings of every description: gold rings, silver rings, piston rings, coffee rings, etc.

Lil Cornwell has turned out to be a domestic science teacher. Only full-fledged members of the guild are let into the secret of making her delicious cakes. Alice Leahy is also making money on a secret. She is selling a rubber clock which stretches the day into 43 hours and 12 minutes.

What a day this has been! I am thankful World Fairs don't come every day and that there are only forty in our class.

C-ALL-NO-ALL.

Commercial Seniors -

Last Will and Testament of Commercial Senior Class, Salem Teachers College

*County of Deadline
State of Desperation*

To all who would benefit by these words of wisdom—hark!

We, the Commercial Senior Class of Salem Teachers College of 1935, being as sound in mind as can be expected under the circumstances, and of sound body, due to the efforts of the physical education department, the lunch room chefs, the W. A. A.'s requirements for numerals, and the M. A. A.'s rigid requirements for nothing, on this 21st day of March, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five A.D., about to depart from this habitation of study, mental stress and distress, to haunt the office of any and all superintendents from June 14 until we are finally persuaded to sign "on the dotted line," do hereby declare this to be our last will and testament.

The joint bequests of the class are as follows.

To our faculty:

1. Dr. Pitman—a pledge of everlasting faithfulness and undying gratitude for his guidance and encouragement.
2. Mr. Sproul—to our loyal and helpful drierctor, we leave the gap that can never again be filled when the second largest commercial class to be graduated from State Teachers College leaves only memories behind.
3. Miss Edwards—a fund to be used to purchase electric plugs for the bookkeeping machine. We hope that this will rest the nerves of Miss Edwards and Mr. Tredway.
4. Mr. Phillips—a shipment of "set-up's" and "don't laugh's" together with a Kodak and a supply of film. The last two we hope will be helpful in the Extra Curricula Activities course.
5. Miss Badger—our artistic typewriting ability, to be distributed in small doses to any needy student.
6. Mr. Woods—an efficient method by which he can find out who is missing from Chorus without taking half the period to call the roll.
7. Miss Gourville—our voluminous notebooks, answer keys, etc., so that she can assist the Commercial classes in finding time to go out for sports.
8. Miss Ware—a perfect set of lesson plans and units which we have completed. We hope that Miss Ware will use this set as an exhibit for future method classes, as we feel that said classes will be encouraged to see what can be accomplished in only 4.865,945 hours and forty-five minutes.
9. Miss Harris—our unfulfilled desire to study poetry and our growing appreciation of Ibsen.
10. Miss Cruttenden—our ability to do special topics with a complete list of references.

11. Mr. Doner—a set of Old English notebooks, the first ever done with such startling originality.
12. Miss Roberts—a Sergeant-at-Arms automaton which will serve at all future Parliamentary Law meetings, and will take its orders from the President and not the Referee.

To the classes of Salem Teachers College:

1. Juniors, we leave you our recipe for laughter, fun, and good health. We wish that we could leave you all notebooks, projects, etc., that we had during our last year, but we are sorry, it can't be done—we must now give them back!
2. Sophomores—the small ability we have in commercial geography we leave to you with the hope that it will be of some value in the methods course which lies ahead of you.
3. To the present Freshmen, we leave three more years of study, but hours and hours of enjoyment and fun—we hope.
4. To the incoming Freshmen, a one hundred pound bag of salt, with the following dose recommended: One grain with every remark made by an upperclassman.

To the janitors we solemnly bequeath a vacuum cleaner which is guaranteed to pick up a scrap of paper at fifty feet, and to clean out desk and table drawers a row at a time.

The intent of the individual testators is herein contained and will be presently disclosed:

1. Helen Brown wills to the classes at large her athletic ability and sense of clean sportsmanship. Her successor as queen of sports will do well to study her technique for rapidly covering the gym territory.

2. Lyman Butler is glad to leave his comradeship, co-operation, and cheerfulness to brighten the days of any tired class. To get in touch with him quickly, call any of the following telephone numbers: Butch-123, Schrod-456, or Speed-789.

3. Vera Chudleigh gives the "Finney" reference book that always came to her rescue in sociology class to any student capable of its interpretation.

4. Daniel Colby has consented, though reluctantly, to leave his firmness of purpose to any vacillating Freshman.

5. Mary Conway has agreed to leave her ability to meet any situation without batting an eyelash to the most deserving Commercial Junior. If enough Commercials feel the need of instruction in "Not Batting an Eyelash," Mary will be glad to come back to teach them once a week—during the Chorus period.

6. Lillian Cornwell bequeaths her voluminous notebooks and her habit of coming late to class.

7. Elda Del Cielo leaves her ability in playing the piano to any Junior who will be down in the gym every lunch hour next year.

8. Norton Demsey wills his creative ability in lettering to any one who wants an "A" from Mr. Doner.

9. Barbara Doyle is willing to leave her suave manner to any one who can carry it with as much zip as she does.

10. Ethel Ehler leaves her knack of pulling out ties to any girl who thinks that she can get away with it. With it, Ethel leaves this warning: "Never wear bows."

11. Blanche Gay leaves two things—her accuracy in making payrolls, and her blush.

12. Molly Goldberg confers the knack that goes with explaining adjusting entries to the Freshmen to the bookkeeping "star" in the Junior class.

13. Mary Greenberg, although it is against her better judgment, leaves her luck at the raffle to some less fortunate underclassman.

14. Isabelle Griffin leaves her mastery of penmanship to some left-handed Freshman, and she leaves her unique method of making faces to an upperclassman.

15. Mary Grimes bequeaths the ability to say "No" when the occasion arises to some meek Junior.

16. George ("E. P." to his friend A. S.) Husson leaves a small booklet of 780 pages to all future representatives to the council. These brief instructions will show the correct interpretation of council doings.

17. Isadore Komarin wills his ability to manage parties to the Junior who is capable of taking on such a responsibility.

18. Alice Leahy leaves the good effects which her likeable personality has brought about in the S. T. C. Commercial Department.

19. Elmer LeLacheur leaves an answer key for all questions asked by Mr. Sproul.

20. Dorothy Littlehale leaves her giggle for any underclassman to claim.

21. Catherine Mooney leaves her melodious voice to "Phil" Brown of the Junior Class.

22. Edna Morrison wills her ability to do handwork to any one who wishes to occupy herself profitably during the class periods.

23. Alli Partanen bequeaths her good taste in dress to Mary Bohenko. She also leaves a piece of poetry, written especially for her, to be framed and put in a prominent place in the library.

24. Esther Peabody is willing to leave cancelled car tickets to Danvers to be used for exhibition purposes only.

25. Should it develop that any capable Junior is selected to keep the accounts of the Bookstore during the coming year, Catherine Phelan leaves to that fortunate person all the old books with mistakes corrected.

26. To the next basketball manager, Earl Rock leaves his enthusiasm and capacity for hard work.

27. Grace Russell leaves a course in auto mechanics to any member of the Sophomore Class who has to commute any distance.

28. That happy disposition and those smiling Irish eyes of Betty Ryan are left to some incoming Freshman who wants to charm the faculty.

29. Gertrude Szczepanska leaves her collection of airplane models to Mr. Phillips, to be used in motivating a lesson in transportation.

30. Arthur Skandalis leaves his art of explaining his actions. If any one wishes to possess it, he may call at Mr. Phillips' room before school opens.

31. Helen Skornik solemnly bequeaths her understanding of the Russian situation, including a complete interpretation of the Five-Year Plan and a prophesy as to its outcome, to the president of I. R. C.

32. Helen Stanwood leaves ten tanks of that strange odor called fresh air to the Juniors.

33. Miriam Staples wills her own invention, an automatic arm, to any Junior who feels the need of getting the teacher's attention in order to recite several times during the period.

34. Eileen Sullivan bequeaths her quiet classroom manner to any one who wants to prove the value of a professional attitude.

35. Sara Tolchinsky leaves her ability to read any paragraphs in a voice that pleases every faculty member.

36. Virginia Vaughan leaves her place on the ring committee with a feeling of relief to one of the Juniors. She also leaves a dark-room in which to place the rings while the students make their final choice.

37. Sara Waldman wills to a financially-minded Junior the class treasury folder and twenty thousand check marks to assist said Junior in keeping the record up-to-date.

38. Lillian Ward confers her psychiatric vocabulary on the most deserving Junior, to be used in any (and preferably all) classes.

39. Ursula Whitmore leaves a few locks of her "aura of gold" to be used as a challenge to all incoming students to match their beauty.

40. Ruth Whitney leaves her air of efficiency to any Junior whose shoulders are broad enough to carry the responsibility of such an appearance.

We, the Commercial Senior Class of 1935 nominate Mary Grimes to be executor of this our last will and testament.

In witness whereof, we hereunto set our hand and seal this 21st day of March in the Year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five.

(Signed) COMMERCIAL SENIOR CLASS OF 1935,
Salem Teachers College.

- 13 Try-outs for Dramatic Club play.
- 14 Miss Florence Bernard formerly of Brookline High School gave us talk on Money Management.
- 17 Miss Edwards—another test. Told to beg, borrow or steal to get pen for test. Also told that men think that they are better "sizer-uppers" than women. Phillips' definition of education: Education is what you remember after you've forgotten what you were supposed to have learned. Last year it was: Revamping the human mind to think properly. Then you have Huxley's definition. Take your choice.
- 18 Mr. Sproul: What do you do on Monday night. Miss Doyle? Admission outside of class that she goes to bed early. Mr. Sproul: What time do you get home at night, Miss Russell? Kinda, rusty, heh, Grace? But the questions are all from an educational point of view.
- 20 Miss Harris tells us that life is a series of steps to climb up. Yes, and some one is always willing to block the passage. Training School children put on good Christmas program. Mary Conway suggests to Miss Harris that we pass our literature work in all at once—transportation cheaper, notes Miss Harris. "Izzy" Komarin wins first prize in Camera Contest.
- 19 First Commercial Club Christmas party went over with a bang. Santa Claus was there with his dog—pardon, I mean reindeer. Presents galore. Elda plays the piano. Some one gets Alli Partanen's number and gives her toy horse with inscription: Be on your horse and be off.?
- 21 Time out for Christmas vacation.
- 26 Saw S. T. C. take Gloucester High after a hard fought battle.

JANUARY

- 1 Happy New Year—anyway, it's a suggestion.
- 2 Back to college with the greeting: You may open your books to page 215. What, "recitations" so soon? Found: Owner of rare intelligence. Mr. Sproul confesses and—(blushes). Twins: Major and mijor. Notice, faculty member. Heard of teacher who went around world after she retired four or five times. And did you hear of the woman who made $92 a week for punching a comptroller operator?

- 3 Spin ball in gym. Heated situation. Convinced that the more we learn about accounting the less we know. "Butch" and "Speed" as good general nicknames—Butler's contribution to conveniences.
- 4 George E. Nihan, member of Lynn School Committee, tells us that "Citizenship Training is Need Today" and we wholeheartedly agree with him. Grace tells Mr. Sproul that he might put her on the defensive, but that he doesn't crimp her style. "Obnoxious" misunderstood for "bump-tious."
- 5 And now we are told that civilization is nothing but a veneer.
- 7 Railroad syllabus due. Betty Ryan and Mary Grimes lunch with Butler—an eating proposition staged in the accounting room.
- 8 Ruth Whitney accused of leading tender youth astray.
- 9 Dan Colby leads today in Assembly period. Somebody wants to know what we have learned at college and why we are keeping it a secret.
- 11 W. A. A. and M. A. A. Formal tonight. Helen and Earl have worked hard to make affair a huge success. Announcement of positions held by commercials on Year-book Staff. Vera Chudleigh, Helen Skornik, Alice Leahy, and Norton Demsey represent our department in enviable positions.
- 14 Shorthand test today.
- 15 Tests and more of them.
- 18 Gorham Normal beats us at basketball—we beat them at the banquet—that is, in eating.
- 21 New semester, new resolutions. New, knew what?
- 22 Molly Goldberg heads delegation to take over Mr. Phillips' accounting classes while he is out.
- 23 Miss Ware puzzled as to the force which holds forty of us together.
- 24 Snowbound and do we know it!
- 25 Murdering cold! Extended week-end in evidence—no session today either.
- 28 Parliamentary Law class steaming with interest.
- 30 Thoroughly enjoying Ibsen and his plays. Geography themes getting ripped up the back. No zippers.
- 31 Papers turned in to Mr. Sproul listing our choice of subjects to be taught.

FEBRUARY

- 1 No more assemblies on third period Friday. Remember the initiation of this event with double periods in geography?
- 5 Teachers up on wrong side of bed this morning. We suffer the consequences.
- 6 Good game with B. U. Freshmen. "Izzy" right in there.
- 13 Motivation bothering us and Miss Ware. Slides in extra-curricular activities.
- 14 Valentine party in lunch room. Sweets to the sweet.
- 15 Bridgewater and Salem have a lively game of basketball. Helen Stanwood simply must give us a fresh supply of air so we can fall asleep healthfully in class.

- 18 Book review by Miss Cruttenden on The Great Wall Crumbles. Sally Tolchinsky busy collecting all contributions to snapshot page. Mad scramble to hide all those which do not flatter us.
- 19 Big day—Seniors have graduation pictures taken. Hamilton Booth Ward gives interpretation of Hamlet. Vacation begins when we stop thinking about homework.

MARCH

- 4 Get proofs from photographer, but proofs of what?
- 5 Education class unusually interesting—getting pointers on right technique. Home with Ibsen's "Ghosts"—finishing touches on notebooks.
- 7 Marine problem dictated by Mr. Phillips, rounding up all questions in accounting.
- 8 "Double Wedding" takes place tonight.
- 12 W. A. A. gives tea and dance in gym.
- 13 Plenty of make-up in geography. Miss Harris entertains us from Maeterlinck.
- 14 Snapshots taken to be placed on identification cards—and to think after four years it has come to this. Motions are everywhere in Parliamentary Law procedure.
- 15 Last day for six weeks. Will they miss us, we doubt it. Men's basketball game and supper at night—evident success.
- 18 Accepting the reward of our four-year course—our six weeks of training. Our class of forty represented in twenty-two different high schools. We are using all the common sense we have and praying for just a little bit more. Suggestion offered by Mr. Sproul.

MAY

- 6 Our vacation ends (imagine, that is what some teachers have called our training period), and we are all aspiring to be Mark Hopkinses. Exchange of friendly greetings and wiser glances. Made use of Fresh-Fill Ink Station. Graduation pictures exchanged—considered exchange of equal values.
- 17 Council Dance—Identification Cards—and all our friends.

JUNE

- 13 Senior banquet.
- 14 Graduation—"The web of our life is a mingled yarn."
- 14 Senior reception.

—ETHEL EHLER.

Junior High Class History

In September, 1931, our group of prodigies kissed their fathers and mothers goodbye and set out for unexplored regions.

Chapel did not begin until 9.30, but we were gathered in front of the office at 8.30. It was probably the only occasion upon which we were so prompt. How we succeeded in finding our Senior brothers and sisters amid the babble and chatter is something of a miracle.

Quietly we entered the Assembly Hall where Dr. Pitman welcomed the new Freshmen. How he and the other members of the faculty must have been impressed by the beauty of the Junior High girls and the intelligent appearance of the Junior High boys! Every one found seats—every one except Dudley, who did not wish to crease his new first pair of long trousers, and the twins, whose feet just couldn't reach the floor. The first day at Salem Normal School was spent in signing our names, wandering through the building, and becoming entangled in the maze of rooms. Little brown bags and notebooks were much in evidence on the second day, and by the third day we were exhausted.

On November 20, the Seniors initiated us, putting us through a series of stunts designed to test our mettle. Gradually we settled down to our daily routine. We carried our books home and listened eagerly to every word from our teachers. The Junior High prodigies were welcomed into the various organizations of the school, for never before had Salem seen such Freshmen. During this eventful year the school became the State Teachers College at Salem.

Days of hard and concentrated study sped by, and rest finally came for the weary in the form of a vacation. Our first summer vacation was spent telling every one that we were Sophomores at the State Teachers College at Salem, Massachusetts—as if they couldn't tell by the many stickers which covered our brief cases, notebooks, books, jackets, and automobiles!

Summer ended. That mysterious time had come which took us from the baby realm of Freshman locker rooms and placed us in the haughty, glittering kingdom of Sophomores, with locker rooms on the first floor with the Seniors. We carried fewer books, report cards became a matter of course, and teachers less formidable. At last our genius was discovered. In athletics Cecelia Henry, the Eades, Emma Goulart, Zelma Habalow, and Hilda Joyce shone. The Middle Class Council was formed and Zelma Habalow was elected secretary. Bill Nolan became the treasurer of the Student Council.

Secretly and mysteriously we worked planning our Pageant, the crowning success of our Sophomore year. At class day our friends and relatives did not recognize us dressed as Swiss, Dutch, Indian, German, Chinese, and other foreign peoples. Shall we ever forget lovely Helen Topkins as the Queen and handsome Ralph Murray as the King?

Summer. Swimming. Motoring. School again. We were Juniors, wise and witty. This was our busiest year, for many affairs and clubs claimed the attention of the famous Junior High Juniors. The Middle Class Council this year had Emma Goulart as treasurer. Jack Cunningham became manager of the M. A. A. basketball team on which Bill Nolan, Ralph Murray, and Al Rousseau were players. Dudley Briggs showed his versatility by acting as President of the M. A. A. and by winning the second prize in the Class Song Contest. Bill Nolan wrote the sport news of the Log. Janet Moakley and Lucy Hosker were presidents of the Girl Scout Club and the Art Club respectively.

Perhaps the most novel of all experiences was the harbor trip. Miss Ware warned us to dress warmly; so, like good little boys and girls, we wore our grandparents' flannels, woolen socks, and heavy clothing. It turned out to be a warm, sunny day. Those who visited the fish pier will never forget it. Remember the Charles River in the afternoon?

During the year we were given the opportunity to show that we were really teachers. The supervisors at the Training School welcomed these well-known prodigies to their rooms. We cannot forget the outing held at Wingershaek Beach in Gloucester. Oh, those clams and frankfurters! "Let joy be unconfined" was the slogan for the day. We broke the tradition of the school and instead of the usual pageant decided to give the Seniors a garden tea. The campus was set with colorful beach umbrellas and tables, but the prevailing weather for special events sent down torrents of drenching rain. However, it was held indoors and all who could find seats and sandwiches were merry.

The last summer vacation sped by and we were back at school in September, 1934. It took a little while to become accustomed to the appellation "Seniors." We soon began to get ready for Commencement. Class officers were chosen and Ruth Flewelling, a former Junior High, and Mary Keefe were elected President and Vice-President respectively. Many of our classmates became presidents of organizations; Goldie Stern of the Math Club, Jack Cunningham of the International Relations Club, Hilda Joyce of the Glee Club, and Janet Moakley of the Student Council. Finally, our Year Book Staff was chosen with Bill Nolan as editor-in-chief. This year we again had the opportunity of displaying our teaching ability and showed the teachers in our own towns what marvelous training Salem had given us.

We all wish that we could be together longer than these four years, for we shall never forget the endearing associations we have made at S. T. C. There can never be another group of prodigies to equal the Junior High Class of 1935.

JUNIOR HIGH SENIOR I

Junior High Senior Class Prophecy

Into the fathomless depths of green plopped Muriel. And there was Dudley.

Muriel: Well, what am I doing here?

Dudley: An extremely prosaic remark, may I suggest. I could answer you, but it will be much better for you, pedagogically speaking, to find out for yourself.

Muriel: Oh!

Dudley: You recognize your surroundings, don't you? We are being nautical this year, you know.

Muriel: But I'm not amphibious—.

Dudley: Don't use that word. You have no idea how it babbles on.

Neptune (appearing suddenly): It babbles on, amphibian—Aphrodite—ships—water—wet—all wet—.

Dudley: Neptune! Hello, old fellow!

Muriel: Neptune? I've seen that face somewhere before.

Dudley: Hush! No calumny! This is a serious business. We are, as it were, at the old boy's mercy, snatched out of the thin air by a train of thought—association of meaningful words made meaningless. I don't know—you've read about it anyway. Front page stuff, it was!

Muriel: But why—?

Dudley (interrupting): The one question you must not ask. It won't withstand analysis. No answer!

Muriel: Oh!

Dudley: Since we're here we might as well adjust ourselves to the situation—a rather puny attempt at humor—.

Neptune: I have been taking a course in the clipping, pasting, mounting, and underlining of newspapers. Inadvertently, I read one of the clippings which I had been underlining. That old Junior High Class of yours has been breaking into the news. I, for one, don't consider such publicity professional. Come, what have you to say?

Dudley: Professional, you say! I'm willing to wager that out of the whole lot we have no more than two teachers.

Neptune: Well, of course, it was only one clipping that I read. Miss Giles, a teacher in Aroostook, has instituted in the local newspaper a new column "Topics of the Day."

Dudley: Let's go through the rest of those clippings, Neptune. We may not be able to keep in touch with the class through teachers' conventions, but our members have been sufficiently in the lime-light for the newspapers not to let us forget them.

Neptune: We'll do that, but it does seem to me that a class so imbued with the spirit of service would teach in spite of all obstacles.

Dudley: Here's a clipping for you. Hilda Joyce, advertising editor of the New York Times has just purchased Mount Washington where it is rumored that she will indulge in her two hobbies—opera singing, and herb gardening. No teaching there, but certainly a carry-over from Salem.

Muriel: Speaking of opera singing, this is a write-up about Mary Joyce, the famous coloratura soprano. "This charming celebrity is noted for her poise, her wide circle of friends, her decided opinions on all subjects, and her startling idiosyncrasy—the refusal to be photographed without a handkerchief." Oh, and it's signed by E. P.—you know, Esther Payne, who has written a delightful sequel to The Sweet Girl Graduate. I read the latter just recently, and on the jacket was a picture of Esther herself. The book is said to have broken all sales records.

Neptune: Any more authors?

Dudley: Yes, Zelma Habalow. This clipping says that she has just been awarded her M.A. from Salem because of her work as editor of the S. T. C. Alumni Magazine, which she founded. Elsie Neal, well known for her sympathetic character studies, has just published another book written in her own inimitable, witty, and sagacious style.

Muriel: This article informs us that Freda Berry, who has spent many years delving in the archives of her home city, has produced an authentic and amusing treatise, Rocked in the Cradle of Dorchester.

Neptune (with a twinkle in his grey eyes): As you were reading the names of your several writers, I chanced upon this clipping and wondered if I dared to suggest Becky Patten as the most accomplished personage of the class. One of the few reporters who has succeeded in obtaining an interview with her says in substance that Rebecca Patten, now happily married, has converted one room of her spacious dwelling into a literary den. Great minds the country over await the products of her pen.

Dudley: I remember—.

Muriel (interrupting): Here is one who has combined writing with lecturing. This article says that The Voice of the People, by Goldie Stern, country-wide platform lecturer, has just been turned off the press.

Dudley: Pretty good, Nep. Classified, huh? Well, that should simplify matters. What next?

Muriel: Let's see if we have any orators.

Neptune: Well, I believe that one is doing rather well for herself. Here's Janet Moakley, successor to Margaret Slattery, firing youth with an enthusiasm to answer her nation-wide challenge, "Life—What Is It?"

Muriel: Don't tell me she's given up her æsthetic dancing.

Dudley: Muriel, listen. Good old Tom Crowley has finally got a chance to impede business in the U. S. Senate with Cecelia Henry, Chairman of the Committee for the Aid of all in Need.

Muriel: Yes, and it looks as though Charlotte Cummings would earn a seat in the new Congress with her strenuous campaign for the return of prohibition.

Dudley: Isn't there something about Dotty Neagle in that group?

Neptune: This clipping from the Alumni Magazine reads, "Our ambitious Dot, we understand, has considered her recent broadcasts on style notes as a mere stepping stone to greater achievements and is at present working with her publicity manager in a new effort. This time she is to appear on Broadway and give her own Shakesperian interpretations."

Muriel: We are well represented in cultural and social organizations also.

Dudley: Yes. (picking up clipping and reading): "Gertrude Holt, organizer of the movement for the revival of culture, recently presided over a convention at Hampton Beach. Among those present were Doris Daigle, President of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs; Lorinda Folsom, cited as an example of perfect housekeeper and perfect mother, who also has enough energy to lead women's club activities; and Helen Hammond, principal of the new Marblehead Junior High School, known for her theory of discipline through personality. One of the entertainment features was a presentation by Bernice Dahlen, popular character actress, of an excerpt from Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Muriel: In the social column is the description of a dinner which was presided over by the "charmingly sophisticated Mrs. —, formerly Dorothea Brown. Her distinguished guests included Natalie Burke, internationally known traveller, especially fond of China where she rides up and down the Yangtze River in the pilot's house; Janet Brock, wife of the wealthy contender for this year's yachting cup; Emma Goulart, personnel manager of the exclusive Foxcroft School for Girls; and Dorothy and Hazel Eade, dare-devil parachute jumpers, who have recently celebrated the anniversary of their double wedding."

Dudley: What has happened to the men of this class?

Neptune: Here's a headline. "Bill Nolan, Incarcerated for Questionable Cartoons and Communistic Chatter, Found to Be Conservative at Heart." There's one of your men. Another clipping announces the opening of a nature-study academy by Eleanor Titcomb and Ralph Murray. Ralph does professional pall-bearing on the side.

Dudley: Haw, haw, this is good! Jack Cunningham, snatched from the teaching profession by Lucy Hosker, commercial artist, who has spread from coast to coast his picture with the slogan, "Keep That School Boy Complexion."

Neptune: Do think that's good? Listen to this: "Alfred Rousseau, sheriff, and superintendent of schools in Elmville has won fresh acclaim for his enthusiastic leadership of the community song fests.

Muriel: Now, don't be modest, Dud; it isn't like you. I'll read yours, if you won't. "Dudley Briggs whom we remember for his meteoric career as a jazz-band leader, his symphony, several volumes of poetry, and his commercial artistry, is on the eve of renouncing this world's pleasures to devote the remainder of his life to science. Congratulations to a great mind!"

Dudley: If we must be personal, I'll read a clipping I found about your being a perfect example of a happily married . . . "

Muriel (interrupting): Speaking of marriage—Marguerite O'Hara, proud wife of an absent-minded professor, has done much to further the Home Beautiful movement in Salem.

Dudley: Seems to me as I look back that we had a very egotistical class.

Muriel: Oh, there were a few philanthropic souls. Let's see, we have Margaret Lally, State Investigator of Labor Problems; Phyllis Robinson, a national Girl Scout leader; Margaret Driscoll, a social service worker, whose tact and level view have accorded her great success; and Marjorie Buck, a mother who looks as young as her daughter, now devoting much of her time to the Y. W. C. A. Camp. And what do you think of Evelyn Chartier, renowned woman defense lawyer of the East? She gained her fame by guaranteeing acquittal to all her clients, regardless of charge.

Neptune: They've shown a splendid spirit of service. I think. Commendable, in fact.

Dudley: I always thought Gusie Pulsifer would lean toward social service. What did become of her. Muriel?

Muriel (reading "Hollywood Highlights"): Gussie is in Hollywood, in one of the science laboratories, conducting an investigation of the photographic theory. "Good-looking people never take good pictures." Margaret Hayes and Mary Haverty are in Hollywood, too, writing dialogue for the Metro-Goldwyn Studios. You know, of course, that Woody is now married to a prominent director. She makes a marvelous wife and mother—sews, cooks, and knits the duckiest sweaters for herself and her twins.

Dudley: So Woody has turned domestic! What about Smitty? She's just taken her plane and hopped off to Norway, where her inspired interpretations of the fiord are winning her a place in the first ranks of art. Pappy is in Greece where her skill in sculpturing is rivaling that of the ancients.

Neptune: Your class has made a rather remarkable showing for itself. I should say. I'm proud of you. But you know there's one thing I came across in my clippings—the old argument about whether brains and beauty go together. What do you think?

Dudley: Well, there's Esther Payne—we've already spoken of her, or Mary Keefe, our nominee for Phi Beta Kappa, and is the toast of all the college boys.

Muriel: You haven't even mentioned the person whom I consider the best living example of brains and beauty—Helen Topkins. She is Harvard's first woman professor and her husband's favorite model.

Neptune: That's what I call an accomplishment. I consider my course in clippings justified now. You know"

Dudley: He's beginning to look a bit queer, don't you think?

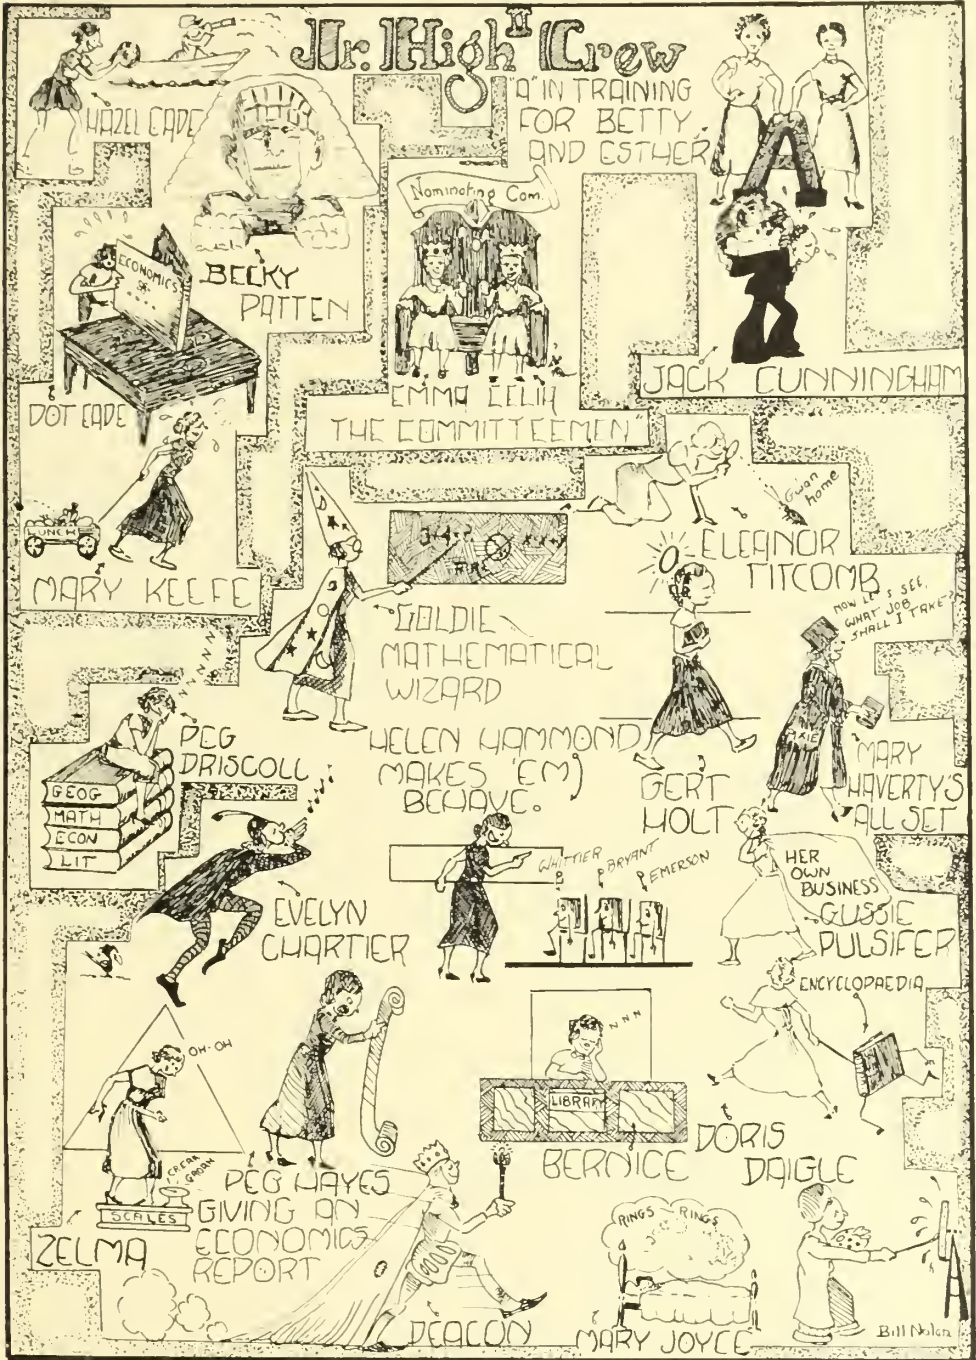

Muriel: This has been a long lapse from sanity. Shall we leave him and go back to earth?

Dudley: Delighted. We'd better leave Neppy to complete his train of thought. You know, I rather dislike the thought of suspension in mid-ocean.

Muriel: I, also. All this dampness is bad for one.

They vanish and Neppy is left surrounded by the sea green water. He sits, a solitary figure mumbling on. "Teachers, teachers everywhere"

Junior High Seniors -

Last Will and Testament of the Junior High Senior Class

*County of Bliss
State of Exhaustion*

To all who may or may not have any concern with our legal documents.

We, the Junior High Senior Class of 1935, belonging to that class described as "superior or genius," and being of a very sound mind (although much has been said to the contrary) owing to our strenuous mental activities, do declare this to be our last will and testament and do hereby bequeath the following:

To our Faculty—Forty-eight hours in one day so that they may gauge the hours we are supposed to spend on each and every project assigned.

To Miss Stone—A wide-awake, inspired-looking class on Friday the fifth period, and on Monday the first period.

To Miss Roberts—A treatise on the understanding of the motions, questions, and debates of a junior high senior class.

To Miss Bunton—Those valuable possessions—our training marks.

To Miss Cruttenden—A new economic order, a different social world, and the making of a new history—by Junior High Seniors.

To Miss Flanders—People who can take time out to answer her long, thought-provoking questions.

To the incoming Seniors—Clipped Heralds and New York Times.

To the new Junior class—Chapel silence, quiet conversation, everlasting content and all other things for which we have been especially noted.

To the Sophomores—The advice first given you, an encouraging pat, and a "beat us, if you can."

To the Freshmen—The joy of becoming a senior. (if they can find it).

Because he is so gifted, each member of this notorious class has something of his own to bequeath.

Dorothea Brown will dispense with some possessions which every senior should have—serenity, dignity and poise.

Dorothy Neagle leaves her ability of making effective, dramatic, late entrances to class.

Dorothy and Hazel Eade bequeath their identification cards.

Lillian Smith leaves to the juniors her "absorbed" interest in the economics course.

Doris Daigle and Charlotte Cummings will bequeath to any one who will see them personally, their method of getting work done on time.

Lorinda Folsom bestows on the college the proof of the theory that Genius can be human.

Janet Moakley bequeaths to those who would succeed in collegiate life her charm of personality.

Dudley Briggs gives to other clever people the advice that knowledge acquired should be used to assist others.

Augusta Pulsifer bequeaths a ready smile—except at the photographer.

Goldie Stern and Freda Berry have written and published a treatise entitled "How to Keep Out of an Argument," which they bequeath to all.

Marguerite O'Hara leaves that unusual ability of falling asleep in certain classes and not being caught.

Hilda Joyce leaves her ability of being able to sidetrack a lesson when no one is prepared for said lesson.

Elsie Neal will dispense with her ability of getting certain teachers "all mixed up" when mathematics happen to enter into a discussion.

Marjorie Buck leaves a bottle of free fountain pen ink in the library so that future occupants will not have to borrow from their neighbors.

If you are interested, Evelyn Woodason bequeaths her complete knowledge of history "dates".

Phyllis Robinson and Mary Joyce leave their zealous efforts to future Girl Scouters to help them put that organization "over the top."

Jack Cunningham leaves the solution of any problem, as long as it is not mathematical.

If you wish to be let in on a secret, visit Mary Haverty and Margaret Hayes and they will leave you the subject of their class conversations.

In order to help the incoming seniors with their garden plans, Evelyn Chartier leaves 5 points: 3 parts to a garden plan—round, straight, diagonal, crooked, angular; Part I, Part II, Part III.

Each and every female wishes to have her hair well groomed. Thanks to Lucy Hosker you are bequeathed a complete hair-waving set, with the art for "setting" included.

In order that the seniors may have cheerfulness, Janette Brock and Bernice Dahlin bestow their sunny dispositions.

Margaret Lally leaves the proof that perseverance will eventually triumph over inexhaustible worries.

We know that you all are going to rush to Helen Hammond when you hear of the ability she will bestow on you—that of getting five "A's" on one report card.

Zelma Habalow bequeaths her aptitude for personal transfiguration.

Here is another nature study bequest. Eleanor Titcomb leaves a collection of conifers to be identified.

Esther Payne bestows her secret of success in the social and educational worlds.

Mary Keefe bequeaths her contagious laugh, recognized 'round the world.

William Nolan leaves as a guide, "How to Bluff Your Way Through College," in two volumes.

Nathalie Burke and Muriel Daniels bestow their "Pepsodent Flashers" on any one who wishes to take a good photograph.

Helen Topkins and Emma Goulart leave to less fortunate individuals their ability to conquer hearts.

Cecelia Henry has decided to dispense with her "art of knowing how."

Ralph Murray bestows on the "stellar attractions" his "way to dignity."

Vasilea Papamechail bequeaths an alarm clock to the juniors in order that they may arrive at school at 7.30 A.M. and spend a most enjoyable day until 5.00 P.M.

Underclassmen! Make use of Rebecca Patten's bequest, the ability to say it and to write it.

Elizabeth Giles bequeaths to a junior a snapshot so that said junior will not have to ride home alone next year.

Gertrude Holt bestows her sweet personality.

Thomas Crowley bequeaths a pamphlet, "How to Save Carfare."

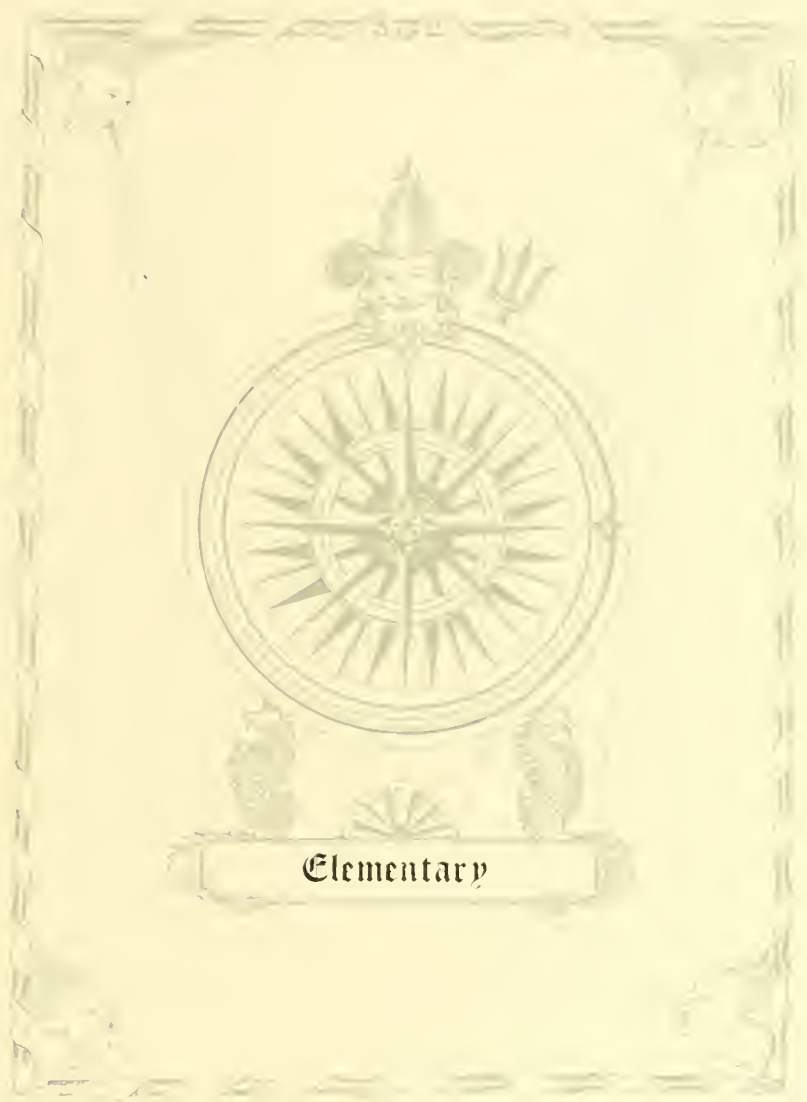

Alfred Rousseau has decided to relinquish his long-coveted position as secretary of the literature class.

In testimony whereof, and in the presence of witnesses, we hereby set our hand and declare this to be our last will, this fourteenth day of June, 1935.

A Ship at Anchor in the Bay

A ship at anchor in the bay
 Hugs romance fast in every hold,
 And each worn rope and spreading spar
 Brags of a glory old.
 A pastelled silhouette of Time,
 She swings against the blur
 Of Pharaoh's lotus-petaled barque,
 Of Immortality's allure,
 Ulysses, Carthage, Tripoli,
 The buccaneers, the Virgin Queen;
 Tall Yankee sea-men, hard and shrewd;
 And gallant clippers, swiftly-lean.
 A ship at anchor in the bay
 Hugs romance fast in every hold,
 And each worn rope and spreading spar
 Brags of a glory old.

—RUTH ELLIS.

PRIZE WINNING CONTEST SONG
1933-1934

Log of S. S. Elementary

FIRST VOYAGE 1932-1933

- September 14—Date of sailing. New crew of sixty embarked on S. S. Elementary. Veteran sailors predict month or two of smooth sailing until gobs get "sea legs."
- September 30—Beginning to feel like ancient mariners. Crew thoroughly mixed. Questionnaire in art class reveals that an Amesbury gob thinks she ought to be proficient in art because everybody speaks the same language at home.
- October 6—Gob tea today, given by third and fourth trip sailors, in the Psychology Salon. Usual quota of forsaken sailors silently munched cookies and peanuts in the corners. Gobs learned much from the seniors on how to give a tea creditably.
- November 10—Officially recognized as part of the working crew on S. S. Elementary this evening, after subjecting ourselves to severe humiliation at the hands of the senior sailors.
- December 2—First treat on board. Pops Concert in Main Salon. Had initial experience of going through reception line after being properly primed by seniors.
- December 9—Several cases of sea sickness aboard. A few thinking seriously of chartering tug back to land.
- December 23—Ship docked in Vacation Bay. Sailors on leave for Christmas.
- January 10—Ship heading into squall. Bad weather predicted for next two weeks. Drawing near Reefs of First Semester. Several fear shipwreck. Gobs praying fervently.
- January 15—Storm breaking overhead. Never sleep without life belts.
- January 18—Sailed past reefs safely with crew intact. Those washed overboard returned by tramp steamer.
- February 10—Gobs present "Solemn Pride" during assembly in the main salon. Greatly pleased with our efforts.
- March 8—Midshipmen and senior sailors think us too independent and proud of ourselves because of our success in dramatic and musical performance.
- April 11—Big basketball game tomorrow. We escort the pedagogues. Busy going through the ritual for escorting the members of this strange society.
- May 19—Art lesson on the promenade deck today. Fun having art under the sky, though many a sock was ripped, and many a gob solemnly promised to take along a pillow next time to protect herself against the elements.
- May 24—W. A. A. Country Fair. Farmer Girard from Lynn accompanied by daughter, Grace, caused much excitement. Square dances and music a treat.
- June 1—Drawing near Reefs of Second Semester; several tremors felt; storm warning sent out; several lightning storms expected. Gobs making ship water-tight for the ordeal.
- June 5—Storm strikes in science. Hole pierced astern. Water rushing in almost swamped boat but, by steady pumping, ship held her own. Must put into Weekend Bay for repairs.

- June 8—W. A. A. Banquet. Sumptuous feast for a hungry crew.
 June 9—Play Day. Gobs all agreed it was more like work than play.
 June 13—Land sighted! Homesick sailors long for the freedom of home.
 June 14—Docked today. Dashed down, lowered gangplank to get some common soil on our feet again. Half the summer will be over before we get back our land-lubber legs. Seasoned sailors predict that if we are not careful we shall always walk like sailors.

SECOND VOYAGE 1933-1934

- September 13—Pulled up anchor and set sail on second voyage. Although several of crew, unfortunately, did not return after summer shore-leave, we have two new midshipmen on board. Evangeline Nicholaides and Margaret McCaffrey.
 October 23—Several gobs gaining ship's recognition. Janet Cannon promoted to General Welfare Committee and May O'Rourke to Assembly Committee. One of Janet's duties is to see that the Crew take no side excursions.
 November 10—Great ship sing. Blue ribbon went to us midshipmen for our class song "Salem T. C." Lucy Del Rossi, the ship's nightingale, sang the solo and we chorused. Feel very proud of ourselves at present.
 December 5—Picture of all of us midshipmen in the Log. Made headlines because of our song.
 December 15—Dramatized Bird's Christmas Carol in the Training Ship, main salon, today. The Ruggleses, disregarding all the careful coaching by Catherine Brown, as Mrs. Ruggles, brought down the ship with their side-splitting absurdities. They were cleverly portrayed by Frances Allen, Muriel Adams, Grace Johnson, Lucy Del Rossi, Dot Landall, Mary Carter, and Mary Crotty. The nurse (Elsa Franzen), and Uncle Jack (Janet Cannon), enacted their little love scenes to perfection. Mrs. Bird (Mary Bradley), Mr. Bird (Kay Cargill), and the butler (Marie Hanley) almost died with Carol (Linda Betts) when the lights went out in the death scene. Midshipmen had an angel in their midst for once during the trip. The angel was Anne Cunningham, who has not been the same since.
 December 22—Ship sailing into port for Christmas vacation. No rest for us—projects!
 January 18—Several stranded on the Geography Shoals at low tide. Feverishly hunting for that missing day around the International Date Line.
 January 24—Ship foundering badly. All feared lost. S. O. S. wirelessly.
 February 2—Part of crew entertained in main salon with display of dress and music from 1830-1930. Complimented upon collection of costumes. Much research done to find music of same period as costumes.
 February 3—Pulled through somehow. Four life boats lost in the storm.
 February 10—Several midshipmen have turned printers. Result is The Potpourri Jar, a book of poetry, in the Training Ship printing department.
 February 16—Dramatic Club presented its first play in Training Ship Salon. Three of Elementary Crew performed—Mary Michaels, who made a - handsome man, Margaret Murphy, a charming young wife, and Edythe Riker, a quaint old aunt.

- March 14—Several gobs busy telling stories at the House of Several Gables. (Seven, to be exact.)
- April 9—Whole crew had opportunity and thrill of listening to Zona Gale in the main salon today. Rush on her books expected.
- April 29—Co-operative Council dance. Refreshments and balloons enjoyed by all.
- May 17—Entire crew put on old grey bonnets and went to W. A. A. Country Fair.
- June 13—Ship docked at Wingersheek Beach, Gloucester, for annual picnic. Several midshipmen got their money's worth in the form of gastronomical disturbances. In evening, majority of the crew departed on the bus for unknown destination, waving farewells.
- June 14—As a P. S. to the trip several midshipmen returned to help the veterans graduate. Those of our crew were Mary Bradley, Edythe Riker, Dorothy Landall, Erma Buker, Elsa Franzen.

THIRD VOYAGE 1934-1935

- September 12—Veteran sailors now. Third trip, and we feel as experienced as Sinbad as we sail out of harbor. Crew divided into four sections this year, one section at a time is transferred to Training Ship every nine weeks.
- September 20—Reception tendered gobs with all due ceremony.
- October 19—Crew happy in their new-found importance and worship in the eyes of gobs—some gobs terrified, others bold and daring.
- December 21—Children of Grade Six in Training Ship entertained crew with play, "Christmas in Action," which was much appreciated. Pulled in to Christmas Harbor—can enjoy vacation this trip—no projects.
- January 7—Grand rush to larboard to keep from listing; overloaded on one side. Much shifting cargo about to get a balance.
- January 21—Have about faced; full speed on homeward stretch of last trip.
- January 30—Much talk and excitement over losing salon programs each week.
- February 7—Ship's songsters made public appearance in operetta, "Trial by Jury," given in main salon, festively decorated. Good time enjoyed by all.
- February 8—Special treat in Training Ship Salon. Dr. Rushford spins a true yarn about lamps. Has treasures in lamps thousands of years old.
- February 15—Fourth Grade of Training Ship portrayed—"Elsie in Bookland" for Training Ship. Some of crew attended.
- February 23—Short stop at Winter port—vacations enjoyed this trip.
- February 27—Training Ship renamed the Horace Mann Training School, in honor of famous educator whose centennial approaches.
- March 12—Sad to learn that a beloved officer, Miss FitzHugh, must leave us for a while, but welcome Miss Goodwine from Texas, and adopt her as new officer.

- April 8—Todd Lecture today. Dr. E. L. Thorndike speaks to us of punishment, reward, and their effects. Bits of it sounded familiar.
- April 11—Training Ship presents operetta "Hansel and Gretel." Excellent!
- April 15—Interesting lecture on child welfare by Dr. Cheney Jones of Home for Little Wanderers. Every one enjoyed lecturer and liked his personality.
- April 25—Last stop—spring overhauling.
- May 15—Preparing for vernal equinox. Life Savers made ready.
- May 20—Final day ceremonies being prepared and rehearsed. Excitement aboard. Pictures, rings, and pins much in evidence.
- May 24—Council Dance in main salon pronounced successful. Big crowd.
- June 11—Midshipmen give tea in honor of senior sailors.
- June 12—Crew picnic on rocks outside harbor. All enjoyed day and returned much sunburned.
- June 13—Crew Day. Gay in spirit. Enjoyed last repast on old ship.
- June 14—Receive final papers. Farewells and Bon Voyages exchanged as old friends leave ship. Reception held in main salon. Have been waiting for this three long years. Night of mingled festivity and sorrow. Time spent in farewells and promises of reunions. After reception gangplank lowered and crew disembarked. Here endeth the Log of the S. S. Elementary.

LINEDI BETRIK.

If

If you can keep your head while Proffy gives a test:
 If you can pride yourself while all others fail;
 If you can refrain from tittering, while Anna Rain snickers:
 If you can keep your savoir-faire while placing Kalamazoo, right there!
 If you can teach the melodic minor without a wink;
 You are impossible, my dear, absolutely impossible.

If you can abstain from talking while in the chapel hall
 If you can draw the Lift Pump while Mr. Whitman watches all,
 If you can rattle off the stock market while silence reigns supreme,
 If you can write to music when you really can't write at all,
 Or, if you can refuse a ride, my dear,
 You'll be supreme in any roll call!

—M. O'ROURKE.

Cargo of Crax

Shipped by: Elementary Fourth Year Class.

Date: June 1935.

Consigned to: State Teachers College at Salem.

Checker: C. Francis Woods.

Rita White's ability to talk extemporaneously on any subject—especially in geography class.

Ruth Goldwaite's ability to get all her work done and still have leisure time.

Jean Butters' ability to read a book at one sitting (if she sits long enough).

Our eternal love and interest in the faculty and the college of S. T. C.

Ruth Cleverly's faculty for doing odd things at odd times and in odd places, such as typing very important manuscripts while seated in coupes.

Regina's ambitious way of taking notes in class on index cards and then filing them neatly. She now has a small library full.

Helen's smooth dancing and grace on the gym floor at noon.

Eletta's ability to read a play, with one eye, a novel with the other, and listen to the instructor at the same time.

Eleanor's ability to take parts of freshman, sophomore, junior and senior courses, all at the same time and not get mixed in her classes.

Helena's wish to establish a course in knitting at S. T. C. next year.

Louise's surprising ability to remain placid and calm for months, and then say something that convulses the class.

To Miss Wallace, our thanks for her comradeship in gym classes and a few extra hours a week to take care of all those extra gym periods.

To Mr. Woods, glasses which adhere firmly to the nose from morning till night, even under extreme stress of emotion.

To Miss Porter, our unanimous vote of appreciation for the introduction she gave us to American Literature.

To Miss Smith, a robot to chase those people who neglect to fill out the all-important absence slips.

To Miss Stone, another class to appreciate her ability to arrange teaching steps in logical order.

To Miss Ware, the results of our hard labor in the form of our first thesis.

To Miss Harris, another group that will appreciate her interpretation of drama.

To Mr. Whitman, a class of ardent star gazers who will be willing to arise at 3.30 in the morning to look at Vega.

To Miss Perry, a good secretary to keep her assignment book in order.

To Miss Bunton, the hope that she may find a class that will keep her as merry as we did.

To Miss FitzHugh, more and better sociology novels.

Diary

The Special Education Department of 1935 began with the mystical number three, jumped explosively to fourteen, and took a step back to make an even dozen.

We lived at S. T. C. until November 14—On this day we visited the Cobbett Junior High School in Lynn. Mr. Piper, the principal, after greeting us cordially, introduced us to the teachers and made us feel comfortably "at home."

December 5—We again departed from schedule and sought the Walter E. Fernald Institution at Waverly. We were met by Miss Brazier who kindly took complete charge of us and made the day successful.

January 21—Training—Special Eds scattered far and wide for nine weeks.

January 22—Conference at Arlington.

January 25—Conference at Lynn.

April 1—Returned to school awaiting—on May 9—The trip to Paul Revere Pottery Works at Brighton and the visit to Danvers where Dr. Bonner conducted us through the State Hospital for the Insane.

June 14—Last and most important date. Presented with the honored degree and perhaps new dignity.

The Measurement of Intelligence

One C. A., two I. Q., three M. A. make . . .

See a test, read a test, take a test. Testing, testing tests, and tests . . .

And out of this haze, this maze, this hazy maze come forth twelve brave and strong to eat lunch 'ere their return to "hear ye all" the results of the lengthy prognostic test which has so recently come to its termination.

The roll is called, the twelve lend an ear.

"Tillie Cooper, you show your ability to run an orphanage for stray cats and rats (white preferred)."

"Eleanor Russell, this test foretells of your fame in grand opera. Famous La Russell will sing the lead in 'Madam Brudderfly'."

"J. Morson, in future years, you will be known as the prosperous owner and manufacturer of long, contagious giggles."

"'Murph', you will be radio broadcaster for Mouse's Food Company."

"Mari-Ann Webb, fate casts you as adviser in a Y. W. C. A."

"'Bob' Stanley, we cast you as one of the favored few. You will marry a widower, and will mother his ten sons who will be between the ages of 12 and 23."

"Dot Tahany, your case is the exception to all rules. Your I. Q., which is ? now, will suddenly rise, and you alone will be endowed with sufficient intelligence to solve Miss Hoff's present problem of how to get work out of students without driving them."

"I. Cohen, through this test you have expressed your innate desires to travel in far off 'i-c' regions to get new ideas for friezes."

"Gillie, you will become a woman of world wide fame with your theories pertaining to the effect of dynamic theses and thoses. 'Shir-r-r-r'."

"Carol Thompson, you will be official hostess of the League of Nations. Your duties will be to attend all social functions held by this august body and keep all members calm and pacified . . ." Shlarztchka!

"MacDonald, late to class, you miss the test, but you have confessed your supressed desire to 'put the finishing touches' on all wedding cakes."

"'Halo' Flewelling, your fate is sad, for you are doomed to be the king's jester: but, alas, the king is dead!"

All things must pass, so in this next realm the first shall be the last and the last shall be first. The jester is Queen! She walks through her new realm and there are:

Mr. Whitman, merrily flipping his little paddles to see if the angels can guess how the spots moved.

Miss Perry, from dawn to dusk painting the clouds with silver linings.

Mr. Little, who steps up to an angel and says, "Angel, will you pardon me a moment please while I solder your golden wing?"

Miss Walker standing on a ladder, cutting holes in Miss Perry's clouds so that the silver linings can show through.

Miss Hoff, accepting all picayune details at the gate and filing them in her "Monumental Museum."

Miss Gourville, giving hot and cold showers to wash away all stain.

Miss Munyan, crocheting new gowns for the angels, doing her best to make them "hole-y."

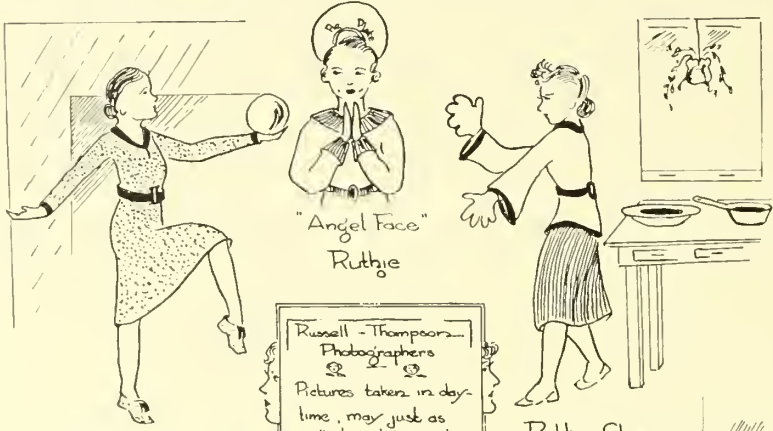

Mr. Woods, raising his baton instead of his voice, to put the angels where S. T. C. chorus should be.

Co-operative Council

The Co-operative Council consists of a representative from each class division and each club in the college, totaling thirty-one. There are also four executive officers and three faculty advisers.

The Council has sponsored a Freshman reception, an address on America's foreign policy by Professor Anton de Haas of Harvard University, and a lecture by Mr. Morris Shoemaker of Trenton, New Jersey, on the use of live animals in the classroom. The social event of the Council year, the Invitation Promenade, took place May 24th at 8 o'clock.

This year the Co-operative Council has sent the three presidential nominees to New York to represent the college at the convention of the Eastern States Association of Professional Schools for Teachers. A Council party was sponsored early in April to raise funds to aid in sending one man delegate.

This year marked the beginning of a plan of holding Chapel meetings after every Council meeting in the room of the faculty adviser of each class. The purpose of this plan has been to bring about more active participation on the part of the members of the whole Co-operative Association.

The faculty advisers of the Council for the year have been Miss Gertrude B. Bunton, Miss Elizabeth Roberts, and Mr. Walter Whitman. The officers are: President, Janet Moakley; Vice-President, May O'Rourke; Secretary, Miriam Staples; Treasurer, Lillian McHugh.

First Row: H. Regish, D. Covell, H. Benjamin, M. Otto, E. Peabody, A. Leahy, F. Grove

Commercial Council

The past year has been one of considerable interest to the members of the Commercial Council. Great co-operation has been shown in taking care of the candy counter at lunch time, the returns of which were divided among the different clubs in the school to be used for Year Book expenses.

Part of the profits apportioned to the Commercial Council was used to install an ink filling machine outside of the assembly hall to aid any student whose pen happened to run dry—a great help to the student body.

On May 16 the second annual banquet of the whole Commercial Department was held in the gymnasium at which a delightful time was had by the large number of students present.

MIDDLE CLASS COUNCIL

Second Row: E. Driscoll, M. Tanner, A. Burnham, W. Dowd, D. Lewis

First Row: C. Cotter, D. Mizzi, Miss Goldsmith, Faculty Adviser; A. DePippo, M. Boisclair

Middle Class Council

The Middle Class elected its officers and council last October. Domenico Mizzi, president; Mary Boisclair, vice-president; Claire Cotter, treasurer and Anthony De Pippo, secretary. The council consists of one member from each of the middle classes.

Miss Goldsmith was elected faculty adviser. The middle class have had a very successful year. Meetings were held every week and free open discussions took place. The dues were reduced to one dollar and a half for every one. Half of this money was used to entertain the seniors and half for the middle class. A tea, dance, and entertainment were given on June 11, at which the middle class was host to the seniors. For its final meeting the middle class had an enjoyable outing.

John Burroughs Club

As a means for a more thorough and appreciative study of Nature the John Burroughs Club offers limitless opportunities.

Programs for this year centered around familiar birds of related families. By dividing the membership into committees every one had a chance for active participation.

The most interesting phase of our work was the field trip and included were walks about the campus and a bird walk in the Danvers Woods.

Other activities included an Acquaintance party, a visit to the Ropes Memorial in Salem, a St. Patrick's Day party and a White Elephant sale.

Officers for the year 1934-935 were: President, Anne Cunningham; Vice-President, Edna Gainey; Secretary, Helen Nolan; Treasurer, Donald Collins.

CAMERA CLUB

First Row: L. Hatfield, A. Perry, S. Nelson, Mr. Whitman, Faculty Adviser; S. Razumny,

Camera Club

The Camera Club has had a very successful year under the inspiring guidance of Mr. Whitman, its faculty adviser. Every member has acquired some skill in the fundamental processes of photography such as taking good pictures, developing and printing. Some of the more experienced members have become skilled in the art of enlarging pictures; others have been tinting with a new set of oil-paints. Different types of trick pictures have been demonstrated by Mr. Whitman and members of the club.

This year the Camera Club sponsored a picture contest for members of S. T. C. It hopes to conduct another contest next year. The class of 1934 presented the Camera Club with an identification camera. After a great many experiments the club has taken a picture of every student.

The officers are: President, Sara Nelson; Vice-President, Alice Perry; Secretary, Margaret Tanner; Treasurer, Gertrude McVann.

PHYSIOGRAPHY CLUB

Second Row: E. LeLacheur, M. Brown, G. Robinson, A. Monagle, I. Komarin, R. Murray
First Row: E. Johnson, A. Partanen, Miss Ware, Faculty Adviser; M. Grimes, G. Szczepanska, R. White

Physiography Club

The growing demand for more physiography has resulted in the reorganization of the former Georgraphy Club into the Physiography Club.

The purpose of the club is to study the physiographic features of Massachusetts. The club, this year, is specializing in coastal features, such as the building of beaches and peninsulas, wave action of the ocean, rock formations, and many other interesting physiographic characteristics of our shore line.

Field trips have been made to Cape Ann, Nahant, Salem Willows, Lynn, Marblehead, and other nearby beaches.

Under the guidance of Miss Ware, faculty adviser, valuable information has been gathered. During the recent northeast storms, club members have been able to observe the terrific force that so influences the formations along our coastline.

The officers of the Physiography Club are: Isadore Komarin, President; Mary Grimes, Secretary; Alli Partanen, Treasurer.

International Relations Club

The International Relations Club this year has had four meetings a month: two required, a business and a current event session; two voluntary, a current event session, and a speaker.

Among the worthwhile speakers have been: Reverend Ralph Barker, from Gloucester, who gave an account of his experiences on a recently completed tour of the leading industrial areas in the United States; Dr. Pitman, who spoke on his European trip; Mr. Wolfgang Stolpher, a German student from Harvard, who interpreted conditions in his native land; Miss Porter, who described a world tour which she took last summer. The club sponsored a series of seven broadcasts on outstanding current events such as the Saar Basin, World Court and the Abyssinian question.

Last fall, two members attended a conference composed of the delegates of the different International Relations Clubs of New England where round table discussions took place and prominent lecturers were heard. For a third summer, it is hoped that one or more members will be able to take a ten day course given at Wellesley on international relations.

At the fifth anniversary banquet, on May 10th, before a large and enthusiastic audience of present members, alumni and faculty, messages were heard from the past presidents and honorary members, and then the remainder of the evening was given over to the guest speaker, Reverend George L. Paine.

The officers of the International Relations Club are: John Cunningham, President; Olga Williams, Vice-President; Elda Del Ciello, Treasurer; M. Ursula Whitmore, Secretary; Ida Cohen, Librarian.

Literary Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club, the youngest club at the college, has completed its second year of activity. With an increased membership and a successful season behind it, the club has now become firmly established as a prominent school organization. A broadening of the club's aim enabled this year's programs to include phases of dramatics other than the actual producing of plays.

"A Double Wedding," the first three-act play ever given by the club, pleased a large audience on Friday evening, March 8th. This was the club's annual "big" production. Numerous one-act plays, pantomimes, and readings were enjoyed by members at the meetings, as well as discussions of the many techniques connected with play writing and production.

A bigger and better season is ahead of the Dramatic Club next year, for its field of endeavor will grow with its age. Miss Verna B. Flanders, faculty adviser, is a source of able assistance and contagious enthusiasm for the members of the club.

President, Margaret Murphy; Vice-President, Mary Michaels; Secretary, Winifred Dowd; Treasurer, Lillian Cornwell.

The Log

The particular goal toward which members of the Log staff of 1935 have worked this year has been to make the college more "LOG-conscious" than it has ever been before. The largest staff in the history of the school, combined with an increase in the number of contributors have worked toward the attainment of this goal.

Again, as last year, delegates were sent to the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Convention in New York. They returned with numerous suggestions and constructive criticism destined to improve and raise the standards of the newspaper in future years. Their report showed that the LOG ranked among the highest of teachers college publications in New England.

While Michael Koskey, Editor-in-chief, was in training, John D. Roderick, Managing Editor, issued the February edition and was assisted in issuing the March edition by Amy A. Allen, Associate Editor.

The advertising for the current year, under the supervision of Isadore Komarin, has substantially increased. Alli Partanen, Business Manager, and Gertrude Robinson, Circulation Manager, worked efficiently throughout the year.

MATHEMATICS CLUB

Second Row: R. Hall, E. Neal, H. Hammond, C. Cummings, E. Payne

First Row: V. Bauer, B. Dahlen, Miss Stone, Faculty Adviser; G. Stern, M. Daniels

Mathematics Club

The program of the Mathematics Club for the year 1934-1935 was of a two-fold nature. The club concluded its Personal Money Management program by presenting to the school Miss Florence Barnard and Mr. Lawrence Brown of the American Association of Economic Education. Both spoke on the subject of money management. The club also sent representatives to take the money management course offered by the State Extension Courses.

The new work consisted of mathematical recreation. In preparation for a puzzle party, open to members of the school, the club collected and made recreational devices of a mathematical nature. These included rebuses, anagrams, magic squares, and geometric puns. This material organized into booklet form, will be available to those interested in junior high school mathematics clubs.

The officers for the year 1934-1935 were as follows: President, Goldie E. Stern; Vice-President, Bernice Dahlen; Secretary, Ruth Hall; Treasurer, Virginia Bauer; Publicity Manager, Muriel Daniels; Faculty Adviser, Mildred B. Stone.

GLEE CLUB

President, Hilda Joyce; Vice-President, Erma Buker; Treasurer, Dorothy Neagle; Secretary, Gertrude Holt; Librarian, Doris Carter; Accompanist, Clara Morson; Faculty Adviser, C. Francis Woods

Glee Club

The Girls' Glee Club with its one hundred thirteen members had a very successful season under the leadership of its officers: Hilda Joyce, President; Erma Buker, Vice-President; Gertrude Holt, Secretary; Dorothy Neagle, Treasurer; Doris Carter, Librarian; Sophie Zmijewska, Custodian; Clara Morson, Pianist. Mr. C. Francis Woods acted as adviser and conductor.

New members were welcomed at a "Get-Acquainted" baby party in October. Early in December the club made its initial public appearance, when it sponsored a Pop Concert. Musical selections by the Girls' and Men's Glee Clubs, the featured Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera, "Trial by Jury," "pop" refreshments, and dancing were highlights of this affair. In May our club joined with the Men's Glee Club of the University of New Hampshire in presenting two concerts—one in Salem, and the other in Durham, New Hampshire.

Regular informal meetings were held and short programs for various occasions were arranged. These events made the season of 1934-1935 a happy one for every member.

Tri Mu Club

Organized primarily for the purpose of promoting friendship among the boarding students, the Tri Mu Club has realized its aim fully this year. From the initiation of new members in October to the Baker's Island boat trip which will close the year's program, the officers and club members have succeeded in making week-ends and holidays occasions for varied kinds of fun, helping freshmen to become acquainted with each other and with Salem. Much of the success of the club is due to Miss Lillian Hoff's interested co-operation and guidance.

Nearly the entire membership enjoyed the pleasant monthly parties, held at the various boarding students' houses, and the mid-winter sleigh ride was a gay affair to which many Tri Mu members will look back with pleasure.

The students of the college who attended the sixth annual Ball, held on May 31, reported a most enjoyable time.

The officers of Tri Mu are: M. Ursula Whitmore, President; Esther Shirt, Secretary; Myrtle Otto, Treasurer.

The Girl Scout Club organized for the year 1934-1935 with the following officers: President, Ruth Whitney; Vice-President, Phyllis Robinson; Secretary, Dorothy Littlehale; Treasurer, Peryl Harris; Faculty Adviser, Miss Gertrude Bunton.

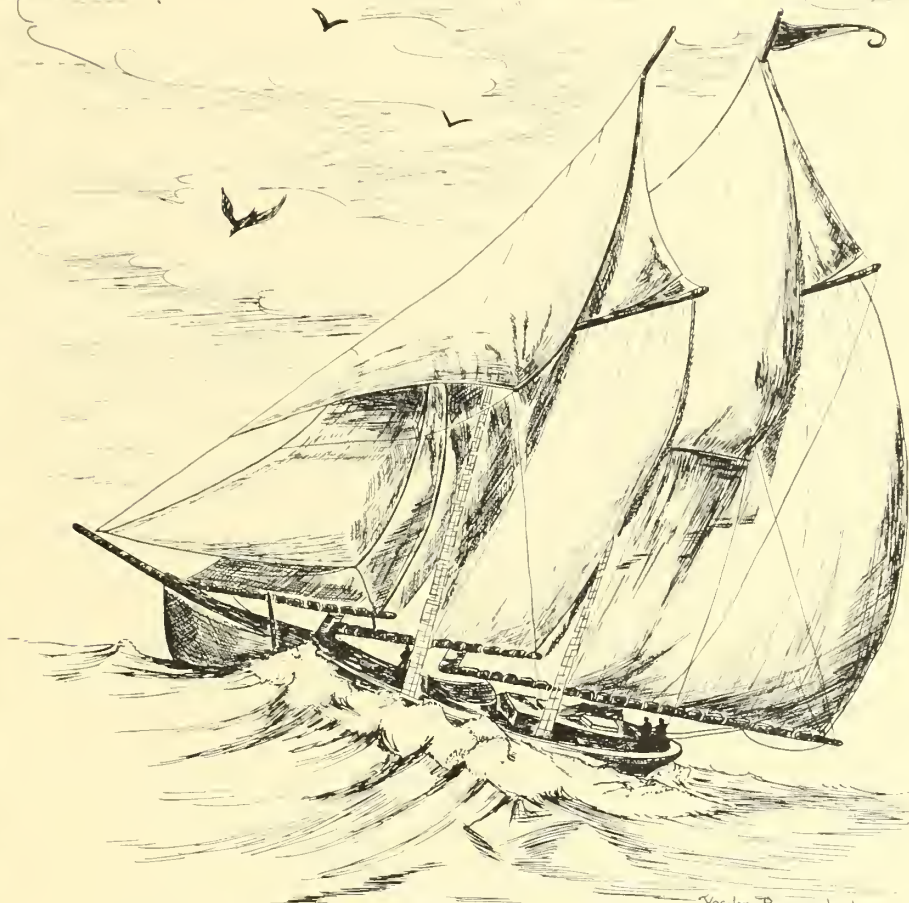

The meetings this year were centered around outdoor activities and craft work. During the fall the club attended the Campcraft Course sponsored by the W. A. A.

The winter meetings were devoted to crafts. A series of luncheon meetings were also held.

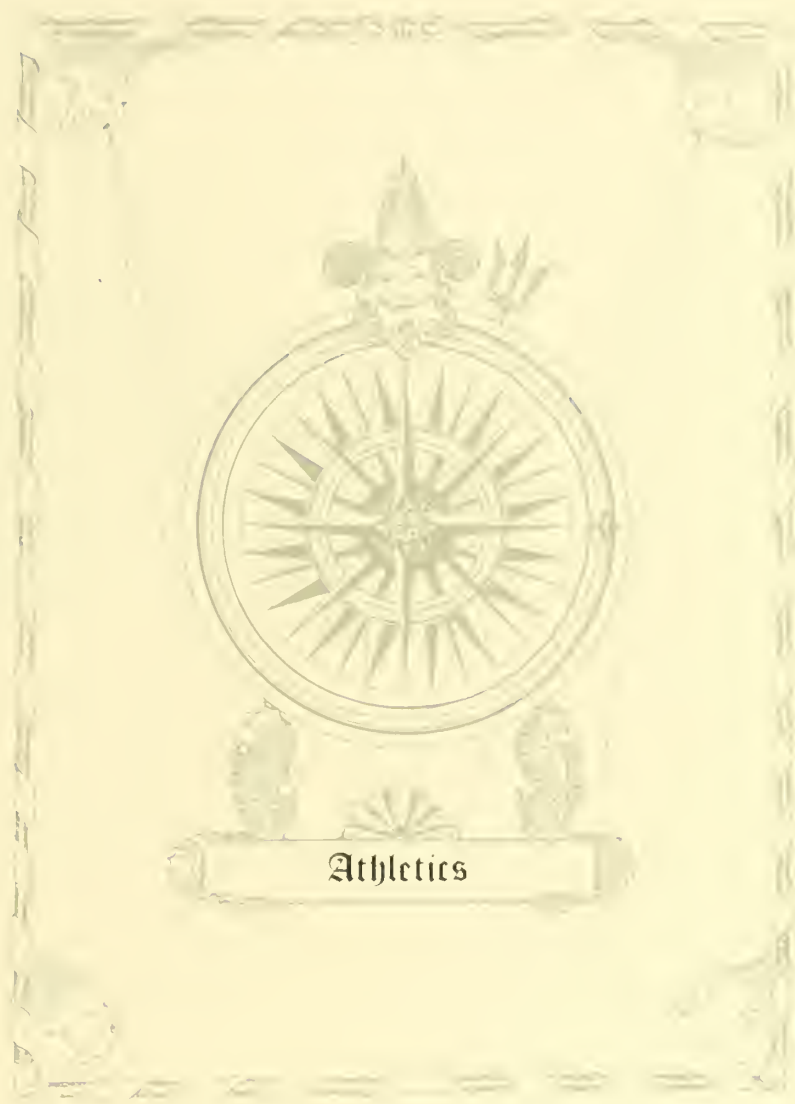

Two outstanding events of the year were the winter tobogganing party and the annual week-end in camp, the first week in June.

The New Deal

In September the fifty-one members of the Men's Athletic Association launched a New Deal Program under the direction of President Earl Rock. Plans were made for an Armistice Day Program, and every man co-operated in making it a success.

On Friday evening, January 11, the Association united with the W. A. A. to sponsor a formal dance, the first of its kind in the history of the college.

One of the goals under the New Deal Program was to send a man to the New York Conference. The Student Council co-operated, and through the generosity of the alumni, Francis Carr was sent to represent Salem Teachers College.

Perhaps the outstanding event of the year was Alumni Day, March 15. Old and young graduates and undergraduates of S. T. C. gathered at the college, and after playing a strenuous game of basketball, sang and banqueted. Every one present expressed the desire that it become an annual affair.

Captain Al Levy and his team can well be proud of a fine year in basketball. The bus trips which enabled students to go to other colleges to see the boys play have done much in the way of promoting school spirit.

Mr. Phillips, the faculty adviser, is to be congratulated upon his untiring efforts to make this year a successful one.

M. A. A. ASSEMBLY

Armistice Day Program

The men attempted to show the futility of war when they presented an original Armistice Day Program this year. Captains Pickett and Morrison of the local Field Artillery co-operated with the association in furnishing uniforms for the scenes.

The enlistment scene showed men from all walks of life enlisting for service. A camp scene showed soldiers around the camp fire singing old songs and longing for home. Then came the decoration after battle, and the men's return to civilian life. The three scenes following showed men in the bread line, in a park, poverty-stricken and despondent, and in a hospital suffering as a result of horrible war.

The playing of Taps by the buglers was very impressive. The program closed with the entire audience rising and bowing their heads in tribute to those who died in the World War.

The association is indebted to Dr. Pitman and Mr. Phillips for their advice and help, and to Mr. Woods for coaching the program.

Women's Athletic Association

An extensive sport and social program of the Women's Athletic Association was launched this year with Helen Brown at the helm, ably assisted by the Executive Board as co-pilots, with Miss Wallace and Miss Gourville guiding the fleet to a successful docking.

Our pleasure cruise started off with the frosh welcome at which time all were enrolled for service on the battleship Harvard or Yale. The recruits proved themselves excellent material—capable of carrying on in the future as officers of the W. A. A.

Interspersed with many hard fought friendly battles at field ball, hockey, Newcomb, basketball, volley ball, tennis, bowling, and ping pong, were many joyous shore leaves at which time both teams flew the flag of truce while they combined forces to make a rollicking success of the "Pioneer Prance," the Mid-Winter Semi-Formal, the March Tea, the Alumni Basketball Game and Supper—activities which have made the W. A. A. synonymous with hearty good times.

The crew reached shore June 6th for the annual Banquet, at which time each midshipman was duly decorated for his term of service with an A. A. triangle, numerals, school insignias, or gold pins by our W. A. A. Chief, Miss Wallace.

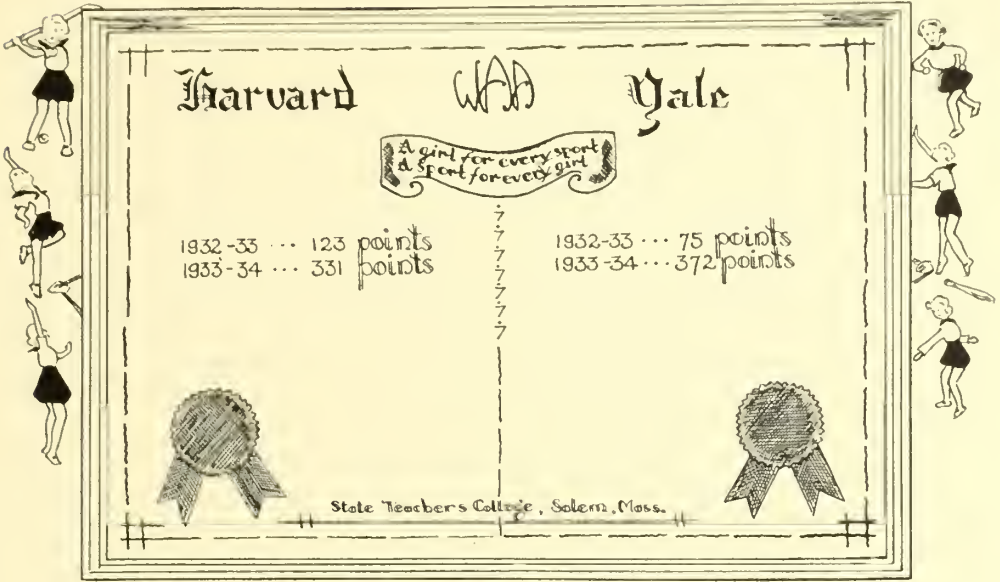

W. A. A. Conference

On November 16 and 17, 1934, the Women's Athletic Associations of the Massachusetts State Teachers Colleges met for their annual conference at Fitchburg. It is the purpose of this organization to have the delegates of the several state teachers colleges discuss mutual problems and exchange ideas.

At the conference in 1933 at North Adams, Salem was assigned the problem of "Intra-mural vs. Interscholastic Sports." In order to make a thorough and complete survey of the situation, a questionnaire was compiled and sent out to two state colleges in every state. Several answers were received from colleges scattered in different parts of the United States.

The data were compiled into a detailed report. To bring out some of the important phases of the survey a map, showing the various activities engaged in in the United States; a chart, showing the numerous awards given; and a series of booklets analyzing the point systems of different colleges, were made.

The other colleges participating in the conference appreciated our work, and showed a keen interest in the data received. For this reason the entire report was circulated to the various colleges for further study.

Harvard — Yale Plaque

What for? Who for? What's the plaque for? Harvard! Yale! Will the mighty bull dog take a bite of old John Harvard's other leg this year? Perhaps John Harvard will awake from his slumber of 1934 and march forward to victory. Each year the points scored by the Harvard and Yale teams are added and the results are placed on the plaque, which is awarded to the captain of the winning team at the Banquet in June. Every one waits with joy at the final gathering of the Harvard and Yale teams to see the outcome of the bloodless battle. Come on, you loyal members of the Red and Blue, get behind your team and watch those points chalked up!

Sports Flashes

RECREATION ROOM!

Walking past the Hygiene Room on any Thursday afternoon, one hears sounds of laughter and good cheer mingled with the rat-tat-tat- of ping pong balls. Don't be content to walk by—walk in. What ho! The classroom has been transformed into a recreation room, where eager players, who wish to forget worries for a while, challenge you to a game of your choice, be it ping pong, chess, checkers, camelot, carom, dominoes, or backgammon.

FIELD BALL

September 20, 1934—Today 44 freshies and 40 upper classmen reported to the athletic field. The field ball season is on. The freshies showed the old timers a thing or two in the line of speed and skill.

Salem, Mass., October 13, 1934—Harvard won the field ball series, but only by a slight margin.

FIELD HOCKEY

Given a strong welcome by 178 participants, field hockey was ushered in as a new sport at Salem, showing prospects of its becoming one of the most popular.

NEWCOMB

Before the mud of field ball had dried on sneakers, the first indoor sport of the season, Newcomb called 450 sport fans to test their skill at tossing a ball back and forth across the net. January saw the finals played off with the sophomores winning the laurels.

BASKETBALL

Many humorous daily incidents and the friendly rivalry between the Harvard and Yale teams were responsible for maintaining keen interest and enthusiasm throughout the entire basketball season.

The second Alumnæ game and supper took place on April 5th with our girls victorious over the "old faithfuls" in all three games.

BOWLING

Rip Van Winkle could have seen no fairer or cleverer maids on the bowling green when he awakened from his long slumber than we have in our gym during the bowling season.

BASEBALL

In spring a young girl's fancy turns lightly to thoughts of baseball. The Babe Ruths of the Harvard and Yale teams are indeed well represented.

VOLLEY BALL

Volley ball maintained its high standing of popularity with the fair ones this year as they sought not only to reduce excess poundage, but also to run up high scores that would assure them of walking off with the treasured A. A. Placque in June.

TENNIS

Tennis at S. T. C. gains its popularity because of the mastery it affords over the curves on the ball and on the plumper members of the student body.

SWIMMING! SKIING! SKATING! These three sports in their seasons are very popular and are the ones most participated in by the students. We also have groups for Archery, Horse-shoes, Badminton, and other sports, all of which are thoroughly enjoyed by their respective players and help to keep the girls in perfect health.

W. A. A.

W. A. A.—We'll sing your praises clear

W. A. A.—We'll sing and loudly cheer
 With a voice two hundred strong
 We'll offer you a song

W. A. A.—To us you are most dear.

To play upon the level was your very first command,
 To be upright in every way, to keep ourselves in hand
 To be good sports with honor bright
 To be good losers in a fight
 To do our best, to reach our goal
 To keep a mind that's clean and whole.

W. A. A.—We're here to take your part

W. A. A.—You're dear to every heart
 We'll not forget or cease to prize
 Your precepts or your guidance wise

W. A. A.—From you we'll ne'er depart.

The Orange and the Brown

In the quaint old town of Sa-lem There's a dear old Nor-mal School, Where Through the hap-py hours at Nor-mal, In the rooms we loved so well, With the loy-al-ty's the watch-word And sym-pa-thy's the ruse We will friends we met and cher-ished, There a charm up-on us fell. Oh, that charm can nev-er per-ish, We feel it still when we Far from Sa-lem we are fen-ders of the Or-ange and the Brown. We will own no oth-er bet-ter No one awan-dring And look back in mem-o-ry shall put her down While we can stand de-fen-ders Of the Or-ange and the Brown.

Results in

can be measured

In no other subject can results be so accurately checked from day to day and from week to week.

GREGG TYPING

... the latest book in the "Rational Series" maintains its popularity and position of leadership largely because it produces tangible, measurable results.

Theory, guess work, and opinion have little place in the proper appraisal of a typewriting instruction book. The strength of a typewriting book can be determined only by the achievements of its students.

Superior teachers will obtain satisfactory results with almost any book—or without any book. But even superior teachers recognize the economy, the value, and the joy of effective teaching materials and lesson plans developed and proved by years of teaching experience and scientific research.

Select Gregg Typing for your next class. Your surest guarantee of satisfaction lies in the ACHIEVEMENT of students trained the "Rational way."
