Volume 1 | Issue 3 Article 4

3-15-1972

In Sacred Time

Anonymous Poet

Follow this and additional works at: https://dc.swosu.edu/mythril

Recommended Citation

Poet, Anonymous (1972) "In Sacred Time," Mythril: Vol. 1: Iss. 3, Article 4. Available at: https://dc.swosu.edu/mythril/vol1/iss3/4

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the Mythopoeic Society at SWOSU Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Mythril by an authorized editor of SWOSU Digital Commons. An ADA compliant document is available upon request. For more information, please contact phillip.fitzsimmons@swosu.edu.

Mythcon 51: A VIRTUAL "HALFLING" MYTHCON

July 31 - August 1, 2021 (Saturday and Sunday) http://www.mythsoc.org/mythcon/mythcon-51.htm

Mythcon 52: The Mythic, the Fantastic, and the Alien Albuquerque, New Mexico; July 29 - August 1, 2022 http://www.mythsoc.org/mythcon/mythcon-52.htm

Abstract

Breathing in step we walk through the night stride through dreams

Keywords

Poetry; Mythril; In Sacred Time; Anonymous

WEEDING CARROTS A Parable

BY MARY MCDERMOTT SHIDELER

A gardener went forth at the crack of dawn, one spring morning, to hoe in her garden. Looking this way and that to see what most needed doing she observed weeds among the carrots. Squatting upon her heels, because neither carrots nor weeds were more than an inch high, she applied were more than an intending, she applied herself forthwith to plucking out the weeds. After some thirty seconds of this exacting work, she espied between her thumb and forefinger a carrot top. And she spoke to herself thus:

"Looky, sister, the weeds can't be hurting the carrots that much. In another week--or two--you can take on this little job and get somewhere. Let the tares grow with the--I mean, let the weeds grow with the carrots until they're big enough that your fingers can get the ore without that your fingers can get the one without hauling out the other. It's a noble work, but this isn't the time for it." So she straightened her knees and her back, and hoed the peas instead.

- Morals: (1) There is nothing covered up that shall not be revealed.
 - (2) If you want to separate tares from--I mean, weeds from carrots, don't be in too much of a hurry.
 - (3) A parable may be susceptible to more than one interpretation.
 - (4) In understanding an agricultural parable, there's nothing like a spot of gardening to clear the mind.

IN SACRED TIME

ANONYMOUS

Breathing in step we walk through the night stride through dreams ride the night striding striving arriving

Softly then, we wander back through layers of pride, of pretenses, of polished defenses to the time when the world was young or we were

No fever now but the quiet morning of experience Finger tips gently trace the edges of being Drawing a circle of protection around this place and this moment that is us

We surrender to the drift of the time-exiled world of first-feeling nursing each other on trust (we must) returning to security, like the first-love's dealing acceptance of our holding, sucking, needing like a mother feeding her child again.