

11-15-1987

cicada heritage

Charles Rampp

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dc.swosu.edu/mcircle>

Part of the Children's and Young Adult Literature Commons

Recommended Citation

Rampp, Charles (1987) "cicada heritage," The Mythic Circle: Vol. 1987 : Iss. 4 , Article 9.
Available at: <https://dc.swosu.edu/mcircle/vol1987/iss4/9>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the Mythopoeic Society at SWOSU Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Mythic Circle by an authorized editor of SWOSU Digital Commons. An ADA compliant document is available upon request. For more information, please contact phillip.fitzsimmons@swosu.edu.

To join the Mythopoeic Society go to:
<http://www.mythsoc.org/join.htm>

Mythcon 51: A VIRTUAL "HALFLING" MYTHCON

July 31 - August 1, 2021 (Saturday and Sunday)

<http://www.mythsoc.org/mythcon/mythcon-51.htm>

Mythcon 52: The Mythic, the Fantastic, and the Alien

Albuquerque, New Mexico; July 29 - August 1, 2022

<http://www.mythsoc.org/mythcon/mythcon-52.htm>

cicada heritage

tree limb ends are brown.
 (except poplars escaped.)
i had forgotten that from seventeen years past.
we were forest-camping, vacation time for six -- (tent fee we could afford) and the kids watched "bee-bees," wondering -- tried to count all but the bright crisp song.

this summer dead end-branches hanging down bring quickly to remembrance old histories, metallic fire-scorched, ahead of fact, sere, anticipating nuclear spite-storm.

 i sought the little people -- friends,
 mentors from a kinder past,
 not believing they were gone.
 city trails are thin,
 hard to follow
 screened by smog,
 gnat-weak,
 cold.

yet i found some, carefully hidden now,
not in the thicket patches of scrapwoods whose clearing-expenses builders had shunned -- (though sometimes they slip out and round-dance there.)
but they hide here on the steep stream banks which almost dry creeks have cut long ago, before the springs that fed them were destroyed and runoff waters diverted to drains.
(one close by here is still called 'herring run,' although most days it would not float minnows)

so few are left, and they are hidden well, quickly out of sight, bridge-glimpsed rarities
like our hopeful views of kids' heritage.
tree limb tips fall, but deep tap roots searching,
well supply the great stem (water as life)
in spite of metal eggs slit into bark of our world's culture and the spying eyes, doubtful -- mistrusting most of all, themselves, cannot destroy trunk-stalwart root courage and propaganda's chorus of death dies for another cycle -- green leaves wither, as quietly another ring is grown.

-- Charles Rampp