NEW YORK STATE BAR ASSOCIATION
COMMERCIAL & FEDERAL LITIGATION SECTION

The Cardozo Data Law Initiative and the Commercial & Federal Litigation Section of the New York State Bar Association invite you to:

Electronic Information in Criminal Cases

Electronically-stored information, or ESI, is becoming as important in criminal cases as it is in civil litigation. Join us at Cardozo School of Law as our distinguished panelists explore this common and increasing feature of criminal investigations and prosecutions. Electronic information raises issues involving the Warrant and Particularity requirements of the Fourth Amendment, the third-party doctrine, and corresponding protections under New York law. Compelling access to encrypted electronic information presents issues of self-incrimination. Electronic information also leads to disputes about preservation and spoliation by law enforcement and "cooperation" during discovery and about admissibility. Key cases on these issues have been coming down almost monthly. Come hear about the latest developments in this fast-changing area of law.
