In 2015 I made a google web site to a communicate to students activities and trips for a LTA funded drawing group.

After the google site failed

I was told by students –
“Put it on Facebook - students wont look otherwise as they receive lots of uni info and ignore much of it.”

Set up sept 2015

Sheffield Hallam Drawing Group Animation and Games

This is an opportunity to draw collaborative, share ideas and support each other by visiting a range of interesting drawing venues. The group will fund the entrance costs and travel to the sites and provide some materials. To keep costs down some local visits will require travel paid for by students.

The group is a pilot project funded by the university through an LTA bid.

To start off the group will go on organised site visits. These will be at identified local sites with each visit having a loose theme. The first site visit will be organised by staff with the aim of then opening this up to the student group to take on. It is hoped that it will become a self supporting group run by students and supported by staff.

The group will be open to students from the 2 courses and across all year groups.

Once up and running potential development for the activities of the group will be open for discussion and students could look at things like arranging visits to events or setting up events at public venues such as pubs or clubs.

This is a site for Games and animation students at SHU. As well weekly drawing topics, you can post good links to competitions, information and anything else drawing related..

Site uses - has meet the main criteria -I.e. Initially as a sketching topic format with weekly drawing topics – like daily spit paint for current examples.

<https://www.facebook.com/groups/134140930266295/>

Users

Is only for current students and Alumni - access has been restricted to safeguard improper use by non- accountable users.

Alumni have been very helpful - Tom bagsshaw,s post encouraging preserverence and showing a comparison of old and new work was genuinely inspirational.

We're looking for someone to create some character art for our current game demo. The game is going to be showcased at this year's EGX, so it's a really good opportunity to get your work seen.

Details are in the attached PDF. Let me know if anyone's interested, either PM me or contact me on the email address in the document.

Critiques

The use of critiques offered by students has been a success and become one of the main uses of the site.

There has been good Communication - between year groups

Example- Really useful for 1st years last year.

This is for the "Environment" drawing we have to do. I've never done anything like this before so I didn't exactly have any idea how to approach it properly aside from what we did in class. It's supposed to be like an India/Venice type thing. Feel free to suggest changes.

 Ben Whitelaw I'm assuming the black at the bottom is meant to be water? If you look at reference photos of water at night you'll see that there are still light reflection on the surface, it's not reading too well atm

Running the site

I original thought the site would need regular admin by staff.

Through time The site has developed independently off with occasional input from staff.

The importance of having a committed admin volunteer cannot be overstated.

Students have kept the site relevant - when on 1 occasion students started to post general info this was discussed and dealt with by the users themselves. This is a good indicator of the students taking ownership of the group.

The Future

Encourage a wider use -not universally used- Same students

Reboot weekly topic

Restate that development work from all is welcome - work can be a simple sketch to a completed illustration

Add another Admin to share workload

Conduct a user survey ?

Use of Facebook for Level 5 Integrated Project

- Something students were familiar with
- Able to communicate regularly with each other
- More immediate and user friendly than email
- Able to brainstorm and share ideas
- Showcase progression
- Showcase ideas and get feedback
- Lecturers able to see who is engaging
- Lecturers able to see what the dynamics of the groups were
- Lecturers able to see any issues that are arising – and problems with groups
- Lecturers able to input ideas and feedback when necessary
- Evidence of student participation

So far it's just pretty much a mock up to see how both layouts would work together but it's still going pretty well. I'm still trying to get the cogs to rotate indefinitely or to work at all as they are already animated but not rotating.

Responses from students

'Communication was vital for this – in which case we mainly used Facebook; a group chat and page, as well as email communication. Using a combination of the two ensured a fast response from any team member, which was important in case any member of the team ran into problems or needed advice.'

'We made sure we were supporting each other by keeping constantly in contact through a Facebook group, which everyone was in, as well as meeting up regularly to make sure the project was heading in the direction we all thought it should be.'

'We created a Facebook group where members would post their work or inquire about it in the time outside of the lesson. This, alongside an active Facebook chat allowed communicating between my teammates to work smoothly.'

Melvyn Ternan Finally a group and not a page. Me doing that was the equivalent of an old person calling an MP3 player a 'wireless'

Hi I am looking for a rotoscoping artist, who can rotoscope a product shot from a moving clip and replace it with new product. Price is negotiable. Thanks!

Please comment if Interested and I will supply the clip.

Hi all,

Cubic Motion in Manchester are looking for animators currently. They do facial animation for AAA games (like Until Dawn and Shadow of Mordor). Not sure if they've got a specific link on the page at the moment but if you direct it to David Barton in an email you'll be alright. He wants to see some examples of facial animation in a demo reel (though I wouldn't worry about it being anything extravagant, just a bit of lip-sync and knowing phonemes will help). If you guys want some more information just give me a shout, I've been here a while now 😊.
