Written for THE SPIRIT OF KANSAS.

After the address committees on officers for the ensuing year, the next place of meeting, next orators, etc., were appointed, after which an adjournment was taken to the Young Men's Social Club Hall to attend the ball and banquet given by our citizens.

As a result of one of these "evenings at home" recently, we wrote a little story telling of a May day party at an old mill, long unused, where the children chose to have the crowning of their May Queen.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE!

We feel positive that every man can have perfect success in applying KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE, and perceive in bad cases of long standing. Read below the experience of others.

FROM COL. L. T. FOSTER. Youngstown, Ohio, May, 10th, 1880. Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable horse named 'Buckeye' which I prized very highly...

FROM REV. P. N. GRANGER. St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 20th, 1880. Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed.

FROM A. WILSON. Fremont, Ohio, Jan. 15th, 1881. Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—I think it my duty to render you my thanks for benefits and profits which I have derived from your invaluable and far famed Spavin Cure.

FROM A. WILSON. Republican City, Neb., March 31st, 1880. Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co.—Gents: I tried your Kendall's Spavin Cure and it had the desired effect. It cured the spavin which other treatments had failed to do.

FROM A. WILSON. Hamilton, Mo., June 14th, 1881. Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co.—Gents: This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure and have found it to be all it is recommended to be, and in fact more so.

FROM A. WILSON. Chillicothe, Ky., Feb. 20th, 1879. Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co.—Gents: I have tried your Spavin Cure on a chronic case of bone spavin, which has been treated by two of the best doctors in the land.

FROM A. WILSON. Patten's Mills, Washington Co., N. Y., Feb. 21, 1878. B. J. Kendall, M. D.—Dear Sir: The particular case on which I used your 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' was a malignant ankle sprain of sixteen months standing.

FROM A. WILSON. Bakersfield, Vt., Dec. 23, 1879. Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co.—Gents: I wish to add my testimony in favor of your invaluable Liniment, 'Kendall's Spavin Cure'.

FROM A. WILSON. Patten's Mills, N. Y. Kendall's Spavin Cure is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach any deep-seated pain, or to remove any bony growth or any other enlargement if used for several days...

Milk Fever.
A writer in Bell's Weekly Messenger indorses the position taken by Dr. Stuart on this disease. He says it does not arise in free flesh forming animals, but in heavy milkers. If the latter are fed up to an abnormal state before calving, it is but natural that the blood will become heated, will refuse to perform its normal functions to assimilate itself to milk, the veins will be unduly charged, the blood will press upon the brain, and cause what is known as milk fever. I have not known a case of genuine milk fever occur after forty-eight hours had intervened after calving. If owners of cattle would but take a few lessons from the human family, and apply them to their treatment of cattle, less illness, less losses would result. Keep cattle in a natural state before calving, a fair proportion of dry and green food, ordinary exercise, and as bran is a luxury, that, or something of a like nature, will assist parturition, and prevent fever after calving. Under the same mistaken principle of treatment, I recently read a report that when cattle showed the least symptom of scour, turnips, linseed cake, and all food of a laxative tendency were at once stopped. Could anything be more injudicious, anything be more calculated to incur heavy veterinary bills, and probably lead to a fatal result? The first symptom of scour, or relaxation, I take it, is a premonitory symptom of a cessation of the functions of the digestive organs—that is, when the relaxation is only partial, and is attended by pains in the animal. In this case it is evident that a stoppage has occurred, and that the relaxation is only the escape or vent of a portion of the natural excrement, the rest being held at the stoppage. The feeding of dry food upon this undigested mass only intensifies the evil. Rather would I give a dose of linseed or castor oil, to assist digestion, and render it more easy for the stoppage to pass away, than gradually lessen the laxative food until the animal regains its ordinary state of health. In the case of a violent scour, known to have been brought on by a change from dry to green food, then even it is not wise to make a too radical change in the diet, but to do it gradually, lest you lead up to a worst evil. So long as the bowels are in a relaxed state, they are not difficult to deal with, but if you lead them suddenly up to the opposite extreme, then the treatment is difficult and often proves fatal, even in the hands of a skilled veterinary surgeon.

Sun Storms.
A great spot was visible on the sun during the fore part of last month, without the telescope, and it was thought it had something to do with the late splendid auroral displays and electric disturbances. The spot referred to cannot be seen without telescopic assistance, but it is described as a wonderful sight still. It has been closely studied at all the various observatories, and on the 16th of April was approaching the sun's disk. It was then that it showed the greatest disturbance. The accounts say that a section of the sun's surface, more than a thousand million square miles in extent, was heaving and tossing and whirling under the vast elemental forces that were at work; that chasms, some of them several thousand miles across, yawned in this vast area, with their shining edges and dark abysses showing in full splendor through even small telescopes. By observations made at early sunrise on the day following the 16th, the astronomers were able to connect this sun-storm with the auroras and magnetic disturbances which crippled the telegraph and telephone wires and the Atlantic cable. The tornadoes and other atmospheric disturbances of the past month are also believed to be due to the disturbances in the sun.

Entirely Satisfactory.
Ladies wishing a perfume combining novelty and excellence, find Floreston Cologne entirely satisfactory.

The Oklahoma Squatters.
The government seems to be having a good deal of trouble with the perverse and lawless people who persist in squatting upon the Oklahoma lands. They are entirely without apology for their persistence. They know that the territory has been set apart for the Indians, and that the government is pledged in the most solemn way not to allow any white settlement there. Yet these obstinate people insist, year after year, in violating the law, and though they are always compelled to go as they came, they seem determined to keep up the invasion. Perhaps if they were punished somewhat more sharply, they would be more amenable to the law. A government which seems afraid to protect itself against the most impudent lawlessness, and which contents itself with simply ejecting them from repeated trespasses, is not likely to convince them that it is dangerous to proceed. "Captain" Payne and his raiders would be very much less likely to continue their intrusions of the law if they were put in jail for a year or so. It is the people of the United States whom they are outraging, and that kind of wrong ought to be punished with some severity. The consequence of too great leniency are already seen in the renewal of the invasions, and if nothing more than ejection is ever to follow these breaches of the law it seems possible that they may go on indefinitely.—Leas Times.

We Told You So.
The month just passed has been the cloudiest and coldest for fifteen years. As follows is the—
WEATHER REPORT FOR MAY, 1882.

FROM OBSERVATIONS TAKEN AT LAWRENCE, KANSAS, BY PROF. F. H. SNOW, OF THE UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS.

The coldest May on our fifteen years' record. The cloudiness also was excessive. The rainfall, though not quite of the average amount, was ample for all agricultural needs. The heavy white frost of the 22d produced no serious results.

Mean temperature.—60.27 degrees, which is 6.28 deg. below the average May temperature of the 14 preceding years. The highest temperature was 90 deg., on the 4th; the lowest was 36.5 deg., on the 22d; monthly range, 53.5 deg. Mean temperature at 7 a. m., 54.95 deg.; at 2 p. m., 68.50 deg.; at 9 p. m., 58.82 deg.

Rainfall.—3.53 inches, which is 0.57 inch below the May average. There was no snow. There were 2 thunder showers. The entire rainfall for the five months of 1882, now completed, has been 10.71 inches, which is 1.19 inches below the average for the same period in the 14 preceding years.

Mean cloudiness.—63.44 per cent. of the sky, the month being 15.07 per cent. cloudier than the average. Number of clear days 6, (entirely clear 3); half clear 12; cloudy 13, (entirely cloudy 7). Mean cloudiness at 7 a. m. 70.97 per cent.; at 2 p. m. 62.58 per cent.; at 9 p. m. 56.77 per cent.

Wind.—N. W., 25 times; S. E., 19 times; N. E., 17 times; S., 9 times; S. W., 8 times; E., 8 times; N., 6 times; W., once. The entire distance traveled by the wind was 13,010 miles, which is 770 miles above the May average. This gives a mean daily velocity of 441.77 miles, and a mean hourly velocity of 18.41 miles. The highest velocity was 40 miles an hour, on the 7th and 8th.

Mean height of barometer.—29.924 inches; at 7 a. m., 29.042 inches; at 2 p. m., 29.000 inches; at 9 p. m., 29.023 inches; maximum 29.372 inches, on the 2d; minimum, 28.564 inches, on the 7th; range, 0.808 inch.

Relative humidity.—Mean for the month, 66.4; at 7 a. m., 77.1; at 2 p. m., 49.7; at 9 p. m., 72.1; greatest, 100, on the 24th; least, 26.3, on the 16th. There was one fog, on the 29th inst. "Sun-dogs" before sunset, on the 30th inst.

A Portentous Discovery.
The way of the temperance reformer is set with thorns. Now comes the appalling tidings from across the seas that an Italian has discovered a method of reducing wine to a solid extract, and that a French chemist can transform brandy into a crystalline state, in which it resembles harmless alum. The widespread and disastrous consequences of this discovery will at once be evident to every advocate of total abstinence. Of what avail will it be to take away screens and glazed doors from bar-rooms when a man can carry his matutinal cocktail snugly concealed in his waistcoat pocket? To the great army of non-abstainers this invention of the adversary offers both secrecy and convenience in gratifying their perverted tastes. The results may be easily seen by tracing the career of the average citizen. He rises in the morning and feels it incumbent upon him to avert malaria by taking what has been appropriately termed an "eye-opener." But the production of a black bottle and the spirituous aroma that follows its uncorking never fail to attract the interested attention of the wife of the citizen's bosom and to induce an energetic remonstrance. Sometimes this has been said to have availed in turning the besotted man from the error of his ways. But see the effect of this discovery. In place of a bottle, he takes one or two lumps of an innocent-looking substance and slides them into his mouth, mumbling something about "cough candy." When he goes down town his pocket will contain a parcel of solidified brandy. It will certainly excite no scandal for him to take a piece of "cough candy" in the car, so that by the time his place of business is reached he will have arrived at a condition utterly unbecoming the time of day or the reputation of a discreet citizen. And on the other hand, the wife at home may be moved by feminine curiosity to sample the "cough candy," with consequences too disastrous to contemplate. The aspect of the bar-rooms will be changed. In place of rows of glittering bottles, there will be jars filled with a substance resembling raspberry jam but labelled "port," "claret," and "sherry," and boxes containing lumps of cognac, lozenges of "old rye," and sticks of "Bourbon." Men can offer and accept drinks in the street with the greatest ease and without exciting the slightest suspicion. In fact, it will probably be quite as correct to offer a friend a box of brandy pills as a cigar. Another feature of melancholy interest is that men of bibulous propensities who are induced by their wives to attend church will not be thereby restrained from gratifying their proclivities, but will be able to endure the longest sermon stimulated into a state of exhilaration by the aid of brandy lozenges. Further, this invention may be considered a direct blow at the ministry. "Clergyman's sore throat" is a disorder well known to ministers whose congregations can afford to send them to Europe. As a remedy for the affliction it is not unusual for the clergyman to take into the pulpit a box of troches.

Why Hunker for Congress?
It is evident that in the coming race for the nominations for Congress, some Kansas statesmen are bound to be left, and we deem it our duty, as a sort of preparatory comfort for the disappointed aspirants, to say that it is no great thing to be a Congressman after all. Whoever hears of the average Congressman outside of his own immediate district? Even his immediate constituents are hardly able to remember, in the course of a year or two after his term of office expires, whether they ever voted for him or not. Taking all this into consideration, is the nomination worth all the button-holing, wire-pulling and swapping of tally necessary to get there? In our opinion, it is better to be a poverty-stricken editor with no available capital except a railroad pass and a free ticket to the State fair, than to be a candidate for Congress and suffer the fibes and jeers of an outrageous opposition. The editor has nearly as much fame and more comfort. No one looks over the back numbers of his history to find out whether or not he ever appropriated his neighbor's fowls, or stole corn from a widow, or let his grandmother go to the poor house. This is our view of the matter and yet we do not suppose we can induce a single man to withdraw from the race and save his reputation.—Medicine Lodge Crescent.

Folly in Waiting.
It is folly to wait until you are in bed with disease that may last months, when you can be cured by a timely use of Parker's Ginger Tonic. We have known stekly families made the healthiest by it.—Observer.

A General Stampede.
Probably nothing has caused such a general stampede in the direction of any one of our business houses as that produced by the announcement that all sufferers could obtain a trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery free of cost, by calling at Barber Bro's drug store. This is the great remedy that is producing such astonishing cures everywhere, curing where everything else has failed. No person suffering with a severe cough, cold, asthma, bronchitis, consumption, hay fever, loss of voice, tickling in the throat, hoarseness, croup, or any other affection of the throat and lungs but what Dr. King's New Discovery will give instant relief. A single trial bottle will convince the most skeptical and show you what a regular dollar size bottle will do.

TO ADVERTISERS:
THE SPIRIT OF KANSAS is the best organ through which to reach the farmers of the West of any periodical published. It has a larger circulation than any agricultural paper published west of St. Louis. It also has a larger circulation than any two papers published in the country. Its patrons are cash customers.

TO CORRESPONDENTS:
In sending communications to this paper do not write on both sides of the paper. A departure from this rule will often withhold the article from publication till next week's issue if not altogether. Do not forget this.

JOSEPH K. EMMET, the actor, last week, purchased a St. Bernard dog twenty months old; weighs 200 pounds, measures seven feet from the tip of his nose to the end of his tail. Price paid for him was $2,500.

BENEATH the Garfield memorial tablet in the Baltimore and Potomac railroad depot, Washington, was placed on Tuesday, May 30, a rich token of evergreens and flowers, representing "the gates ajar," and the silver star on the floor that marks the spot where the martyr fell was covered with a large star of snow-white flowers.

A SALZBURG wine merchant was recently fined $125 and imprisoned for two months for adulteration. He had purchased 3,000 small casks of wine, which by additions of water, alcohol, potato sugar, wine dregs, and salt in enormous quantities, he had increased to 52,000 casks. This mixture, which was sold at five times its value, recalls the dying vintner's advice to his son: "Always remember that you can make wine out of anything—even wine."

Two English grenadier guardsmen lived in much peace and contentment during the first four months of the present year in the house of an aged lady at Croxden, who had not the remotest suspicion of the fact. She occupied the house herself all of this time, and never once came in contact with the intruders, who, of course, were in collusion with a servant. They remained indoors during the day and went out at night in civilians' clothes. They seem to have been satisfied with a snug home and a little pocket money, for they confined their operations to pawning jewelry worth about $500 and eating and drinking what they wanted.

Origin of the Sun's Light and Heat.
Dr. H. R. Rogers, of Dunkirk, New York, has come forward with a criticism of the existing theories of the origin of the light and heat of the sun from combustion, mechanical action, or shrinkage of the sun's mass, as insufficient and not adequately supported by the analogies of any fact with which we are acquainted, and has advanced a theory that they are the result of electrical action. The sun, he believes, is a cold body, like the earth, but so constituted and so situated relatively that a stream of electric current is constantly passing between the sun and the earth. These currents reach their points of greatest intensity within our atmosphere, where all the manifestations of force which we assign to the sun's surface really take place. Dr. Rogers also believes that the phenomena of gravitation may be traced to the same origin.

PONTOISE, a little town about nineteen miles from Paris, was visited last month by a large number of pilgrims. The majority are said to have been men. Their destination was the church of Notre Dame, situated on the banks of the river, into which the head of the statue erected in honor of the Infant Saviour was flung by some fiery Calvinist. The legend says that the watchman on the bridge cast his nets when the impious Calvinist had turned his back, and brought up the head, which is still carefully preserved. In the sixteenth century, when the plague broke out in Paris, a pilgrimage was made to Pontoise to the tomb of Saint Gautier. Over 30,000 people had died within the city, and the pilgrims represented every class of society. Their prayer was heard, the pestilence was stayed, and a century later Pontoise appealed under similar circumstances, promising to burn before the shrine of the Virgin every year three wax candles, each weighing 201 pounds. The vow was kept, and was registered in letters of gold at the foot of the shrine, where it may now be seen.

Office of the
LAWRENCE CHEMICAL WORKS.
JOHN WALRUFF, PROPRIETOR.
Manufacturer of the CELEBRATED STOMACH INVIGORATOR.
LAWRENCE, Kan., May 22, 1882.
Mr. L. W. Clay, Strong City, Kan.:

DEAR SIR:—On my return from the East I found your letter and postal card, also received this morning your postal card of yesterday, instructing me to stop sending you beer until further orders. You ask me for my advice. If you do not want to sell during the season of the court, you better go somewhere; you need not go far, but don't tell anybody where you go. After court adjourns you come back, and if you can make any arrangements with your city council you better do so. If you are arrested, the main point is get the sheriff or constable on your side, so that you get at least one juror whom you can depend on, who will hang the jury until doomsday. This is the only advice I can give you in regard to this matter. Now one thing more: I do not know your politics, but one thing we must unite on, and that is, we must work with all our might to send delegates to the State convention who are anti St. John first, last and all the time. Even if you should be a Democrat, you can work at the primaries quietly. If we beat St. John then the backbone of prohibition is broken. Please keep me posted as to the doings of the court. Respectfully yours,
JOHN WALRUFF.

If we are rightly informed the above first appeared in the Topeka State Journal, an anti-prohibition paper; then in the Leavenworth Standard, another anti-prohibition paper, and after that was grabbed up as if by a lot of "suckers" by the temperance papers of the State. John Walruff is a good business man, and no fool. If he wrote that letter at all he wrote it for publication. The anti-prohibition men have said all along that they wanted the lines squarely drawn; that they did not care for Republicanism, Democracy, or Greenbackism, but wanted a square top on prohibition. Such a letter as this would be most apt to drive the question to exactly that point. If John Walruff wrote that letter he wrote it thinking the nomination of St. John would help him and with the advice and assistance of those who are joined with him. We cannot swallow quite so big a pill all at once. At a certain place in this city we saw a large number of extra copies of the State Journal containing this letter, and the men who were handing them out were not by any means the strongest advocates of prohibition. This letter means devilry. It did not start right. The nail on which that argument is hung is rusty and liable to let its entire load fall on all who stand under it. Look at the liquor cases in this city,—the best of law talent has been employed; the liquor sellers and liquor dealers are as numerous as if they had been embalmed for one thousand years. Now comes a complete revelation to a man who is a comparative stranger. There is no legal advice in that letter. It is too thin to wash. Common talk on the street among whisky men says: "This is good enough for us; we don't ask for anything better." If they cannot elect a man directly opposed to prohibition they prefer St. John. What they want to do is to run a man in direct opposition to prohibition; then they say, "If we win we win the whole, if we lose we simply have St. John and just what we have got now."

A Matter of Asparagus.
Happy is the man who has asparagus beds this year! The plants are splendid. How to eat them: If you are a gourmet of simple taste, cold, with oil. Fontenelle always ate them after this fashion. But his friend, the Abbe Terrasson, preferred them hot with melted butter. One day the abbe called on his friend, and wanted an improvised dinner. Fontenelle, with a noble disregard of self, ordered half the dish of asparagus, which he had culled for private delectation from his kitchen garden, to be served with butter for his friend. But just before dinner the abbe had a stroke of apoplexy, and fell dead. Fontenelle, after making decent arrangements for the interment, shouted to his cook, "None of your butter; serve the whole with oil."

The relative cost in wear and tear of gold coin as compared with bank notes has lately been investigated in England, and the advantage has been found to be largely with the coin. To manufacture a million of sovereigns costs $10,000, or about a cent apiece. In fifteen years they lose in weight one-half of one per cent., or about $25,000, and become too light for further use. This makes their total expense as currency for the fifteen years $35,000. The paper and printing of a million one pound notes would cost, it is estimated, four cents apiece, or $40,000 at the outset, and during fifteen years they would have to be replaced at least three times, or with active use, six times, thus requiring an outlay of certainly $160,000, and perhaps $280,000 for the same period that a million sovereigns would remain in circulation.

ANOTHER "LIBERAL (?)".
SALINA, Kansas, May 28, 1882.
EDITOR SPIRIT:—Enclosed find one dollar which must be about the amount of my arrears on the paper.
In the last issue of THE SPIRIT I find two slurs on Col. Ingersoll, one of them headed "Ingersoll's Sham Sample." Reading these brought to my mind one of the Colonel's lectures wherein he says: "One by one the instruments of torture have been torn from the cruel grasps of the church, until now within the armory of Orthodoxy there remains but one weapon—slander." If the good old SPIRIT is turned into an orthodox creed mill, I have no further use for it.
Yours truly,
HENRY ROSMOND.

The article Mr. Rosmond refers to was copied and credited to the New York Times, and shows the estimate of that great Republican organ. Here is one from the New York Sun of last Friday. The Sun is the recognized organ of the Democratic party. We give these extracts to show the tendency of public sentiment:
"The fact that a professed infidel, a man who denounces the Scriptures and pours scorn and insult upon the Christian religion, could be brought forward as the chief orator on such an occasion as the services of Decoration Day in this city, appears to us something of far greater import than any of our correspondents have taken it for, although they have discussed it with zeal and ability.
Twenty years ago it would have been utterly impossible for such a man as Mr. Ingersoll to be chosen for such a purpose. And what is the meaning of his selection now?
It means, in our judgment, that there has been a general decline in religion; that infidelity is spreading in the community; that there is doubt and denial where there was faith before; that there is scoffing now where reverence and adoration formerly prevailed. If this process continues for fifty years, the Christians will form a very small minority of the people of this country.
But perhaps some new manifestation of religious life may arise among us to arrest the spread of infidelity. We lament to say it, but the churches seem to be almost powerless."

A FEW years ago large farms were all the rage in England. Small holdings were scouted, and confident predictions were made that they would share the fate of the hand loom and the spinning wheel. Now the tide has turned, and it is running as strongly in the other direction. Large farms cannot be let; small holdings are snapped up at once. According to Land, there is all through the west and the midlands the competition for small farms, and men who a few years ago were in possession of farms of 200 or 250 acres, without possessing the capital necessary for their proper cultivation, are now taking farms of forty or fifty acres, upon which, if they have less capital than they had five or six years ago, they will have a larger capital in proportion to their holding, and better security than they had to encourage them in the free use of their capital and skill alike. An agricultural, if not an agrarian, revolution is thus going on silently, which can hardly fail profoundly to modify both the political and social condition of English rural life.

THE "Tamarack Swamps," near Sharpville, Penn., were supposed to be an innocent sort of bog until the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio Railroad Company undertook to lay a solid roadbed across them. At first a few thousand cubic yards of earth were dumped upon the surface by the contractor with careless generosity, as much as if to say, "That will satisfy your appetite, my soft friend." But when the earth immediately disappeared, and left no trace behind, a coarser diet was substituted. The company purchased from a furnace the accumulated cinders of ten years, and since January about 5,000 carloads of this substantial provender have been dropped into the swamp's voracious maw without visibly decreasing its capacity. Occasionally at night there are evidences of repletion, but in the morning the murky water presents an unruffled face and asks for more. A solid roadbed could be laid close by, entirely avoiding the swamp, but the company has elevated its corporate back and does not intend to be beaten by a miserable tamarack swamp as long as there is a dollar in the treasury.

SPRING BALLAD OF A CITY FARMER.

The yellow ochre blossoms now adorn
The tall and stately oaks,
And from her nest in yonder pumpkin tree
The tuneful crows croak.
The cauliflower slowly seeks his gloomy cell,
The sun's too warm for him;
And purple dahodils, all mellow-ripe,
Hang from each burdened limb.
The plumed cabbage pipes a merry lay
Beside the turtle dove;
The crow is warbling in the turnip vine
His melodies of love.
Oh, come, then, lady, come and stroll with me
Where streams of older flow,
'Neath the umbrageous sweet potato tree
I'll whisper soft and low.
We'll talk of ensilage and cows and swine
And you shall share a part
Of countless other June-time joys that thrill
Your farmer lover's heart.

In order to do suitable honor to the French Minister of Agriculture, who happened to be passing through Avignon, and to exhibit himself in an agreeable light to that august functionary, the Prefect of Avignon recently decided to go to the expense of an official dinner. Invitations were sent to the select few, and everything pointed to a happy display of magisterial hospitality. But some wag whose claims perhaps had been ignored, securing one of the cards of invitation, had duplicates struck off, and sent them to a host of small officials, who, flattered by this unexpected attention, flocked unannounced to the Prefect's house at the appointed hour. To entertain them was impossible, and to get rid of them was a problem. At last they all withdrew in a dungeon, leaving the Prefect in angry embarrassment. Meanwhile, the joker rejoices in secret, for all efforts to discover him have failed.
No one imagined how vast a number of deer still remained in the swamps of Louisiana until the high water of the present season drove them from their impenetrable retreats. Thousands of them have crossed the river in the immediate vicinity of Natchez.

SAMARITAN
NEVER FAILS.
NERVINE

The only known Specific Remedy for Epileptic Fits.
SAMARITAN NERVINE
Cures Epileptic Fits, spasms, Convulsions, St. Vitus Dance, Vertigo, Hysterics, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous Diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicates the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.
SAMARITAN NERVINE
Cures Female Weakness, General Debility, Leucorrhoea or Whites, Painful Menstruation, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel, Inflammation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no Female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System, and gives rest, comfort, and nature's sweet sleep.
SAMARITAN NERVINE.
Cures Alcoholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever beset human humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it, but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends. Little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon his system, leading him on to his own destruction. The habit of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first induces the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the ribs and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm it cries "Give, give, give," but never enough until its own rapid and fatal destruction. Samaritan Nerve gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.
SAMARITAN NERVINE
Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the Urinary Organs. Nervous Debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this invincible medicine. It only adds to middle-aged and old men, who are covering up their sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer until it saps your vitality, and destroys both body and soul, thus afflicted, take Dr. Richmond's SAMARITAN NERVINE. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, and impart tone and energy to the whole system.

The youthful color and a rich luster are restored to faded or gray hair by the use of Parker's Hair Balsam, a dressing highly esteemed for its perfume and purity.

Sudden Death.

Mr. H. C. Ensign, an elderly citizen of Topeka, State agent for Appleton's Encyclopedia, started to come to Lawrence yesterday. He was a little late, and ran a long distance in order to catch the train. In about ten minutes after entering the car he fell over and died, it is supposed from heart disease.

The twenty-fifth anniversary and first reunion of the first school established in Lawrence was celebrated at the old school room, the basement of the Unitarian Church, last Thursday. The Journal and Tribune give the proceedings in full, covering some thirty columns. They are full of interest to every old settler, but a little lengthy for our use.

Geo. Cartwright, of Eskridge, an old resident of Lawrence, called upon us Monday. He lost his all in the grasshopper scourge, then emigrated to Wabasha county, and last year lost the little he had accumulated since the grasshoppers by the drought. Mr. Cartwright is not totally discouraged, however, and proposes to hold the fort for some time to come. He is now selling one of the best farm pumps we ever saw.

Mr. JOHN ANDERSON, of this city, has just returned from a trip through Nebraska. He reports the crop prospects of that section as very flattering, and thinks Nebraska a good place to live. Mr. Anderson, we understand, has partly negotiated to enter the land department of the B. & M. railroad, a position for which he is peculiarly fitted. Probably no one man has influenced more Swede emigration to this section than Mr. A., and with the advantage that connection with a railroad would give him, he could of course accomplish very much more.

Increase in Population.

Mr. Charles Garrett has finished his census of the city. On the north side of the river there are 1,695 inhabitants, and on the south side 3,885, making a total of 5,580, or about two thousand more than the government census of two years ago. The increase in personal property is fully equal to that in population. Just now Mr. Garrett is taking the census and assessment of church property, showing the value of church property held by each church and the number of members of each church. The last he has but just began.

Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters.

Frazier's Root Bitters are not a draw-shop whisky beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity.

For dizziness, rush of blood to the head, tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, tetter and ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes, and for young men suffering from weakness or debility caused from imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: "I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as I ever did. I consider your medicine one of the greatest of blessings."

A FOUL MURDER.

COMMITTED FOR MONEY!!

THE MURDERERS ARE ARRESTED.

Saturday afternoon the city was all excitement over a body found in the river above the ice houses, supposed to be that of a murdered man. As the express wagon bearing the body drove through the streets hundreds followed after to view the remains and see if it was anybody they knew. The body proved to be that of David Bausman, of Globe, this county. As our space is limited we give the testimony of one witness at the Coroner's inquest, simply saying that the testimony of this one witness proves to be substantially true. As follows is his testimony:

Grant Blackman was with Charley Allen when he saw the murder committed. He testified as follows: "I am twelve years old. I live with my uncle, Wright Lane. Robertson and King live in Eudora, but have lately lived with the Vinegars. I saw the body when it was taken out Saturday. It was that of the man who was going up the bank with Sis on Wednesday night. That night I heard Robertson say, 'Oh, I'm on to something.' Robertson and King went up by the ice house. They sneaked up the bank on to where Sis and the white man were, and hit the man. He yelled 'Oh, I'll get up,' three times and yelled as loud as he could. Sis said 'don't kill him, I've got his money,' and then she ran home. King said, 'what are we going to do with this,' and then they put him in the river. When they had gone I went to the place and saw the man in the water and his hat and cane floating down stream. Sis told us not to say anything about it, and she would give us each a dollar. After the killing Robertson and King went into the house. I saw the hickory club and hammer and an iron about as big as my thumb and two feet long. Saw them take these tools out of their pockets and throw them on the ground in Vinegar's yard. The club Ike had up his sleeve. They told Lizzie to take them into the house and hide them. Skip Matthews was at Vinegar's after the murder. Lizzie took the tools into the house past Pete Vinegar who was sitting in the door. Dora and Lizzie were close enough to see the killing when it occurred. They hit the man after Sis had gotten up. Sis didn't give us the dollars next day. She said she had the money buried, and when she took it up she would pay them. Sis called me to her the next day and said not to say anything about it and she would pay us after a while. Pete was in the same room. King and Robertson called me to them and said: 'You and Charley were in a dangerous place that night, if I'd have had my revolver I'd have shot you sure.' I told Emma Thompson about it, but she didn't believe it was true, and she told Wright Lane, and he said he didn't believe it either. Sis had a hand-full of paper money; I saw it next day. She had it down her stock; I got it. Sis said, 'Here's some of the money,' I told Mr. Eldridge about it. The body was right by the same place where it was put in. I saw it there that night; saw the body pulled out of the same place on Saturday. I know it was the same as the man that was killed by his red beard. King told Joseph Vinegar to take the tools to the lot and put them away. King saw the body just after it was pulled out of the water. That night Sis told King and Robertson that he had a lot of gold money and they went back to look for it, but couldn't find the body and thought it had floated over the dam. They said let's go up to the side walk and make out as though we were just coming from the south side.

The body was taken out of the water and conveyed immediately to the morgue in rear of Bailey & Smith's. King, the principal in the murder, followed down the street and pressed in with the others to view the remains. He looked at the face of that man whom he had cowardly stricken down without a shudder; he walked out and quietly did some trading before leaving the city. Substantially the story of the murder is this: David Bausman came to this city on Saturday, and had on his person a considerable sum of money. He went in some of the saloons with King and Robertson, they noticed the money and resolved to get it, and so laid a plan for it. They called to their assistance "Sis Vinegar," a notorious colored harlot, who they got to entice Bausman off. Then these two able bodied men followed, and alone in the shadow of the ice houses beat his brains out. The story told by this witness is horrible enough for anybody, yet we cannot but think he presents the best side. Robertson was captured first, near Independence, Mo., on Monday. He confessed to being present when Bausman was murdered, but said King did the deed. He also confessed that he and King knocked down a man near Yoho's grocery a few weeks since, and took sixty dollars from his person. Yoho himself left this city to buy goods some six months ago, and from that time to this has not been heard of. It is now thought that these two men murdered him and threw his body in the river. About six weeks since a man from near the lake was found on the track near the Zimmerman place, his body horribly mangled. When last seen that man was in company with Robertson and King, and it is no great stretch of imagination to believe that they killed him and threw his body on the track. The Journal of Tuesday morning tells of the capture of King as follows: "The large posse of men who went down to Eudora yesterday, searched the woods east of there until about six o'clock. King finding them getting too thick for him, concluded to surrender, and coming out of the woods gave himself up. He was brought to town in a wagon. Somehow the news had spread that he was coming, and a large crowd gathered upon the street fully determined to LYNCH THE VILLAIN if possible on his arrival. The officers with the prisoner foresaw the trouble and ran the team down Massachusetts street at a break-neck pace. The crowd could not catch them and the man was jailed successfully. Thus in fifty-three short hours after the finding of the dead body, the murderers are in the hands of the officers of justice."

The crowd on the street made so much noise that nearly half the editors at Liberty Hall ran out to see what was the excitement, and perhaps take a hand in the lynching. If perfect justice is meted out, all good citizens should be content to bide that event.

Correspondence to "The Household."

DEAR FRIENDS:—Since I have written you weeks have come and gone, and here we are now nearing the last of the last month of the spring of 1882.

I do wish I was as familiar with all their real names as I now am with sister Roser, of Burlington, and Brother Anderson, of Salina.

I was very sorry our good friend Brown left us so unceremoniously! We had been long waiting to see a better arrangement...

true gentlemanly courtesy in publishing our articles. There can be no doubt but that many of our religious opinions and views are erroneous...

About the 10th of last month I left Soldier City, Jackson county, for Wagon, Chase county, and came through by private conveyance.

At Bismarck we shall have a building built of straw lumber; quarters that we expect to be proud of.

Doing Up Wool.

A correspondent of the Farm and Fireside, referring to this important subject, says: "The fleece should be put up so as to be comparatively loose, light, and easy to inspect and handle. Lay the fleece on the table, turn in the head, tail, and flanks, and roll it up commencing at the tail end. Tie with two strings to keep the roll in place, and then with one about the ends. The strings can be laid in grooves sawn into the folding platform, so that the fleece can be tied quickly."

THIS is about the size of it, as the Chicago Journal says: A few years ago the young State of Kansas astonished all its older sisters by raising a bigger crop than any of them. Since then the grasshoppers and other enemies have interfered with the growth of that cereal, and Kansas had to take a back seat in the agricultural tables. But now the cheering news comes that her present wheat crop will be the greatest ever known, which will again place her at the head of the heap.

Crossing or Mixing Fowls.

Many times for both eggs and flesh, it is a good thing to cross fowls. Two good breeds in this manner often make fine fowls, which are solid flesh makers and good egg producers. The Dorkings are fine birds, uniting beauty, delicacy of flesh, compactness of body, smallness of bone and good egg production. Taken altogether they are excelled by none. The Brown Leghorns are also a fine breed, standing at the head of a long list of competitors, they lack only size to make them first of the barnyard sorts. This deficiency often recommends them to the few who are fond of the small, delicate birds. For egg producers they stand unexcelled. They mature and come into profit early, thus making them desirable for those wanting early returns. The crossing of these two breeds make a nice fowl for both table and egg. When the colored Dorking is used—both have penciled necks, and salmon breasts in hens, and black cocks—the difference in that point is not great in the offspring. In the plumage, however, the Dorkings are the strongest, and the color and markings resemble that side. They make hard birds, easily reared, whereas the pure bred of either variety is rather more delicate. In rearing chickens, it is better to keep the chicks of each variety separate when very young, and indeed it is better that they be kept by themselves altogether. Some are easier of control than others. I never saw any fowls so easily governed as the Brown Leghorns. With all their alertness and disposition to scratch, they are easily guided, where only Leghorns are together, and the keeper exercises patience and perseverance. They bear confinement better than any breed I know of, and yield profit according to their feed and care. The Dorkings are a little more difficult of restraint. Notwithstanding their heavy bodies, they are good flyers, and fond of wandering. They seldom do much damage by scratching.—Michigan Farmer.

WEEKLY WOOL CIRCULAR.

Receipts for the past week amounted to seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds, most of which found a ready sale on arrival, at prices quoted last week; though, if we expect selections, there was lacking that spirited activity and eagerness on the part of buyers which characterizes an advancing market. Considering the tone of depression from the eastern, and the actual decline in some of the western markets, we are fortunate in maintaining former prices here. As above indicated, however, we may look for some slight concessions on all except the selections of medium and fine wools until a more favorable report comes in from other markets. In view of this fact we think it advisable to shade our former quotations, not so much from sales made as from what we anticipate will be the ruling prices the coming week. We therefore quote as follows: KANSAS AND NEBRASKA.

Table with 2 columns: Wool type and Price. Includes Choice Medium, Fair, Low, No. 1 Light Fine, No. 2, Heavy Fine, Coarse Wool, Burry, black, and unmerchantable sell for 2 to 10 cents per pound less.

Yours truly, PRICE, MARMADUKE & CO. ST. LOUIS, June 1, 1882.

THE announcement is made of the arrival of 158 head of fine western cattle in New York, shipped from Chicago, in improved stock cars, so constructed that there was no crowding or injury to the cattle, and provided with facilities for watering and feeding them without unloading. The experiment shows that cattle can be shipped without the practice of cruelty, and if it is claimed that it is more expensive, there is the offset in the shrinkage. Under the old system the shrinkage in weight of these cattle would have been nearly 15,000 pounds, while the actual shrinkage of the lot was 3,228 pounds.

Cheese as Food.

It is often remarked that the value of cheese as food is not fully appreciated, or more of it would be used. The National Live Stock Journal, Chicago, says the consumption of cheese in the United States is pretty small, 250,000,000 pounds annually for over fifty millions of people, or about five pounds per capita. The analyses laid down for cheeses show it to be rich in fat, and much richer in flesh-forming matter than even flesh itself, which is largely water. Yet a pound of cheese seldom brings more than a pound of meat. The prices of cheese and bacon have run nearly parallel for many years, and the price of the latter has, to a large extent, controlled that of the former. When bacon is lower than cheese, it is taken in preference by laboring people. In the United States, where nearly the whole community are able to select such food as their appetite prefers, cheese meets with much less patronage than meat, when the prices are equal, while chemistry would give the preference to cheese nearly two to one.

To induce a more liberal consumption of this article, there must be placed before the public a cheese so soft and soluble, so ripe and rich and inviting, that it will be preferred to meat, both for food and as a luxury. It will then need no chemistry or argument to extend its use. Pleasing the taste will accomplish more than logic.

Roup.

The New York Sun says a white film of matter about the head and eyes of fowls indicates the disease called roup. It is often fatal to entire flocks, if not cured speedily. Place all the affected fowls in a warm but well ventilated room, and give warm, stimulating food every morning, using plenty of red pepper, chopped meat, and onions in cooked meal. Use what is called Douglas mixture in the water given the fowls to drink. This mixture is made as follows: Half a pound of sulphate of iron and one ounce of sulphuric acid, dissolved in two gallons of water. One teaspoonful should be added to every pint of water given to the fowls. It is also well to wash the heads of the deceased birds with warm vinegar, or with a weak solution of sugar of lead.

THE American Association of Nurserymen, Florists, and Seedsmen, will hold its seventh annual meeting at Rochester, commencing Wednesday, June 21, and continuing three days. It is expected that there will be a large attendance from all parts of the United States and Canada—Rochester being so accessible and so well known as a great center of the nursery and seed trade. The objects of the association are: 1st, To afford the members an opportunity to cultivate personal acquaintance, and 2d, The discussion of subjects of practical interest to the trade. All who feel interested in the work of the association are invited to attend and participate in the proceedings.

Farm Notes.

There are nearly 12,000,000 horses in the United States. Illinois leads the list with 1,100,000.

Damp stables cause many diseases, such as bad eyes, coughs, fevered legs, scratches, and greasy heels that careful grooming cannot alleviate.—Indiana Farmer.

Harvesting wheat was in progress in Georgia last week, and sowing wheat was going on in Dakota and Minnesota—facts which convey an idea of the capacity of our country. Whether an animal will suffer or not from eating mould vegetation depends very much on the constitution of the animal. One animal will suffer no bad effects from the same fungus which will destroy the organs of another animal as a malignant parasite.

In several counties of Indiana farmers who kept few sheep on account of the dogs, are since the new dog law went into force preparing to largely increase their flocks. The Indiana Farmer says the law is becoming very popular where it is best enforced, and will eventuate in great good to the State.

The practice of thinning potato vines to two stalks in the hill, when they exceed that number, has been annual with a correspondent of the American Cultivator, and his father before him, for fifty years. This is done at hoeing time—the superfluous (weakest) stalks being treated as weeds. The effect is, as may be supposed, an increase of large handsome tubers. The object of cutting seed to single eyes is in part to prevent over-crowding and competition of stalks.

Can't Get It.

Diabetes, Bright's disease, kidney, urinary, or liver complaints cannot be contracted by you or your family if Hop Bitters are used, and if you already have any of these diseases Hop Bitters is the only medicine that will positively cure you. Don't forget this, and don't get some puffed up stuff that will only harm you.

An enterprising Yankee has been caught in Texas vaccinating negroes with beeswax. He found it a busy business, and waxed fat. But now he languishes in a cell, with numberless strings of conscience, as he contemplates a sweet time of it in the penitentiary.

Keep the Tools from Rust.

The simple preparation employed by Prof. Olmstead, of Yale College, for the preservation of scientific apparatus, and which he long ago published for the general good, declining to have it patented, is made by the slow melting together of six or eight parts of lard to one of resin, stirring till cool. This remains semi-fluid, always ready for use, the resin preventing rancidity and supplying an air-tight film. Rubbed on a bright surface ever so thinly it protects and preserves the polish effectually, and it can be wiped off nearly, if ever desired, as from a knife-blade; or it may be thinned with coal oil or benzine. A writer in the Forest and Stream says that if oxidation has begun, no matter in how slight a degree, it will go on under a coating; it is therefore essential that the steel surface be both bright and dry when filmed over.—Western Farmer.

As an exhibition of the intrinsic worth of St. Jacobs Oil, we think the case referred to, that of Mrs. O. W. Hubbard, of this town, cured of sciatic rheumatism of long standing, by the Oil, is certainly striking, and beyond all doubt, conclusive as to its efficacy. The remedy has our indorsement.—Sparks (Wis.) Herald.

He had owned a setter dog and this was the story he told: "Yes sir; the way that dog was devoted to me was just amazing. Why, he heard me say to my wife that I was pressed for money and he went and died the day before the dog tax was assessed."

Trial by Jury.

Some believe that even this form of trial is not perfectly free from prejudice. But in our section, St. Jacobs Oil has been tried by that great jury—the public—and been judged the infallible cure for rheumatism and all painful diseases.—St. Louis Chronicle.

The Advantages of Being a Farmer.
 The Springfield Republican thus sums up the advantages of the farmer's occupation: "There are advantages in being a farmer that he ought to think of, these times. His lot may be hard work and no end of it, but he is the only man in the country who commands safety. The forehanded farmer has always the assurance of his living, and it may be a very good living, while he is equally sure that what he produces will be wanted by others.

And if times are hard and prices low, he doesn't have to shut up his shop, fold his unwilling hands and see his property depreciate in idleness, as many a manufacturer does. He does not need to venture highly, and if he makes no brilliant profits, he runs no risks. It is estimated from actual figures that out of 1,000 traders, but seven can acquire wealth. Of 1,112 bankrupts who took the benefit of the bankrupt law in Massachusetts, only fourteen were farmers; and of 2,550 in New York, only forty-six were farmers. Less than two per cent. of the bankrupts belonged to the agricultural population twenty-five years ago, though that population so largely exceeds that of all other vocations.

Starting Right.

The farmers of Jefferson county have started a move that may well be followed by every county in the State, and we reprint from the Kaw Valley Chief in the hope that their example will be followed:

The undersigned have been requested to urge you each to do something to help Old Jefferson make a county display at some of the fairs this fall. To this end we would urge you to save samples of all kinds of grain and grasses in the straw, all pulled up by the roots and hung up in the shade with the tops downward that it may retain its color when curing. Also keep your eye on choice specimens of fruit and vegetables that they may be preserved for the collection and don't forget the stock. If we had been well represented in stock at Bismarck last fall we might have carried off a much larger prize than we did. Let us all do our best, and see our county march to the front.

We shall urge upon the directors of the Oskaloosa and Valley Falls fairs to offer premiums for best displays of farm products by farmer's clubs or any other organizations, with the understanding that the collection can go into the county display, if one is made; after which the articles can be returned to the owner unless otherwise provided for.

Each township or club can send a committee to look after their collections, and see that it is properly arranged and that the necessary space in the county display at Bismarck or Topeka, or elsewhere.

Now is the time to begin. Call neighboring meetings at once. Let a few enterprising citizens offer small prizes for the best samples of everything you desire in your collection. This will bring together the best of everything, and when these neighboring collections are brought together, it will make a display of which all may feel proud.

Respectfully,
 J. N. INSLEY,
 J. P. WILSON.

Chat by the Way.

A man thinks he knows everything when he really knows nothing, and he thinks he knows nothing when he knows pretty nearly everything.

When a man has positively nothing to do the devil regards it as a first class opportunity. Pope said that narrow-minded people and narrow-necked bottles are alike, for the less they have in them the more noise they make in pouring it out.

Don't grumble at your lot. Your own burden galls you less than any other would.

Fuller said in one of his grand sermons, "He that spends all his life in sport is like one who wears nothing but fringes, and eats nothing but sauces."

Quaint old Quarles once said, "Give not thy tongue too great a liberty, lest it take thee prisoner. A word unspoken, is like the sword in the scabbard, thin; if vented, thy sword is in another's hand. If thou desire to be held wise, be so wise as to hold thy tongue."

"When I have a cold in my head," said a gentleman apologetically, "I am always stupid." "And I have never seen him when he didn't have just such a cold," whispered a third party in an aside.

"Are you going to church this evening, my son?" said an anxious mother to the oldest of her offspring. "No, I thank you," was that hopeful's reply. "I was at the morning performance."

One may be witty even at the last moment, though it is not usual. "What a spectacle," said a tender-hearted man as he saw a poor fellow dangling in the air at an execution. "Yes," grimly replied a prisoner; "and when my turn comes there will be a pair of spectacles."

When a public speaker puts his foot into it, as the saying is, the only rule to be observed is to go on as though nothing had happened. If you try to make things better, you are sure to make them worse. General McQuade probably wanted to say in his neat little speech at the Academy that neither politics or religion interfered with the soldier's faithful performance of his duty, but what he did say was that "in the army we had neither politics nor religion." Then, seeing that he had not expressed his meaning properly, he added, "but we had chaplains, though," which, of course made the audience roar. It was pitiful to have no religion in the army, but to have plenty of chaplains and no religion was a little hard on the chaplains. It is very easy to criticize an extempore speech, but very difficult to make one unless you carefully prepare beforehand.

Another over-fond father has given to his dear boy a gun. The boy has the grandest sport with it for five days, knocking off the heads of chickens, killing chipmunks, grazing the scalps of a couple of his admiring followers, and making the entire neighborhood feel the uncertainty of life. On the sixth day the gun, unloaded, of course, was aimed in mockery at a comrade, and although there was nothing in it, and nobody touched the trigger, the thing went off, and there is to be a funeral. The incident is looked upon as a mysterious visitation of providence and not to be regarded as warning not to put large guns into the hands of small boys. Boys like gunpowder, and why shouldn't they have it? There is, however, a certain close relation between fatherly fools and children who get shot by accident, which sometimes makes us feel that this talk about a mysterious Providence is a little bit wanting in logic.

"The doctors said my wife had consumption. Tried 'Lindsey's Blood Searcher,' and she had better health than ever." G. H. Hubbard, Hampden, Ohio.

Tree Culture.

The United States consul-general at St. Petersburg, says concerning tree culture in that country:

"Russia has perhaps the best system of timber culture in the world. In this branch of her service she has several thousands of officials, and while the expenses of maintaining this staff are very great, yet these are not only met out of the revenue arising from the sale of timber, but a large surplus annually is returned to the State besides. Nor is this all. By this system she has preserved the fertility of her good lands, and reclaimed others from the deserts and waste places."

Learning to Swim.

The bathing— I might say the drowning—season is about to begin, and many lives will unhappily be lost. As the human frame, bulk to bulk, is lighter than water, all that is needed to save life is to permit the body to sink until it shall display as much water as equals the body's weight. Then paddle gently, as the lower animals do, with hands and feet, the head being held erect, wherever it is desired to go. This direction being carried out is absolutely all that is needful under ordinary conditions to save life. These few directions should be stuck up in every bathing place— every bathing and skating place—in the three kingdoms. Children in every instance ought to be made to tread water from their earliest age, say in shallow slate baths with blood-warm water or, when suitable, in some river, pond, or in the open sea. A leather belt with ring, and a stout rod with line and hook, are employed by the Portuguese mothers to instruct their children. The mother, rod in hand, stands on the brink. The child leans in the water. In Paris swimming schools the same procedure is resorted to. The business cannot be begun too soon. I saw mere infants sustaining themselves perfectly in the tepid waters of Africa. Treading water is far safer than swimming in a broken sea. Every adult man or woman, who has no practice, should begin. Once the conviction instilled that the body is lighter than water, the risk of drowning is reduced to zero. The process involves no uncertainty, no delay. Very different from swimming it can be acquired at once.—Nature.
