Dear Consumer:

The abundance and quality of Missouri agriculture is evident in the wide variety of fresh fruits, vegetables and bedding plants Missouri producers grow for market.

Fresh produce and bedding plants represent a growing segment of the state's agricultural production. Through farmers' markets, u-pick operations and roadside markets, these products have become more readily available to consumers. More importantly, these markets showcase the freshest fruits and vegetables our state produces, and every dollar spent at these operations stays in Missouri to benefit the state's economy. A trip to these special farms and markets also provides a fun-filled outing and a memorable shopping experience.

The 1994 Consumer's Guide to Fruits and Vegetables and Other Farm Fresh Products will help you locate markets near you that offer Missouri's finest plants, produce and specialty items. This handy guide lists farmers' markets, roadside markets, u-pick operations and greenhouses. The directory provides important information about the produce and specialty items offered, notes the business hours and gives directions to the locations.

I hope this guide helps you when shopping Missouri's home-grown markets for produce, plants and specialty items such as baskets, floral decorations, honey and crafts. Once you have experienced the enticing flavors and engaging sights of Missouri's produce markets, you will discover why so many consumers are hooked on AgriMissouri products.

Sincerely,

John L. Saunders
Director of Agriculture

Dear Consumer:

Once again, Lincoln University Cooperative Extension is pleased to present the 1994 Consumer's Guide to Fruits and Vegetables and other Farm Fresh Products.

For the past 14 years, the Consumer's Guide has benefitted consumers by enabling them to locate farm fresh produce that has been grown in Missouri.

We urge you to take some time to visit the pick-your-own operations, roadside stands or Missouri Farmers' Markets located throughout the state. You will find a wide variety of quality products and you'll be assured that they are "Missouri fresh"!

Sincerely,

Mary C. Wyatt, Ph.D.,
Administrator

USING THE GUIDE

The 1994 Consumer's Guide to Fruits and Vegetables lists Missouri farm operators who sell farm fresh products directly to consumers. While each operation is unique, these operators take great pride in providing nutritious, quality produce and products, along with personalized friendly service. A trip to the country can be more than a pleasant drive; it can be an educational and fun family outing. You will see how Missouri agricultural products are grown and harvested and meet the people involved.

There are four primary types of operators:

- ◆ Pick-your-own operations are located on the individual farm. You, the consumer, are able to select and harvest your own produce at its peak freshness.
- Roadside stands may be located at or away from the farm. The stands sell picked produce and offer a wide variety of other related goods.
- △ Greenhouses sell crops that need protection from winter cold such as bedding plants, vegetable transplants, house plants, cut flowers, potted plants and many others. Most greenhouses have plants and/or produce available for sale year round.

Farmers' Markets enable farmers to bring their produce and other products to sell at a common location. The variety of produce and goods is often very diverse. Because the produce available is determined solely by the growers participating, individual commodities are not listed. At many Farmers' Markets, the demand is high, so plan to arrive early. A special section highlighting Farmers' Markets located throughout the state begins on page 91.

The Consumer's Guide divides the state into eight regions. The counties within each region, along with the businesses within each county, are listed alphabetically. Also, each entry contains the name of the business, the contact person, mailing address, telephone number, directions to the operation, type of business, days and hours of operation as well as a list of produce sold.

A state map is located on page 3 to help you locate a particular county or region. If you want to know what is available locally, look under your region of the state and read through the entries in local counties.

NET WEIGHTS AND YIELDS OF FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The fresh fruits and vegetables listed are grown in Missouri and are sold at roadside stands, farmers' markets and pick-your-own farms. Common retail units, their equivalent weights and approximate yields for canning and freezing are tabulated for use in this section.

RETAIL CONTAINERS

Many different kinds and sizes of containers are available for retail selling. Some of the more common ones are listed below.

Wood Baskets - round wooden baskets in sizes of 1/4 peck, 1/2 peck, 1 peck, 1/2 bushel and 1 bushel.

Boxes, shipping cartons and hampers - usually made of corrugated paper, often waxed and ranging in size from 1/2 peck to 1 bushel.

Trays - shallow corrugated paper trays are often used on pick-your-own berry farms. Common sizes hold 6 to 8 dry quarts (10 to 15 pounds).

Fruit and vegetable baskets - often made of corrugated paper in sizes from 2 to 8 dry quarts with carrying handles.

Fruit tills or cups - small containers of 1/2 dry pint to 4 dry quarts. They are made of several materials: pulp, cardboard, corrugated paper, plastic and wood. Quart berry cups are familiar in most markets.

DEFINITIONS AND CONVERSIONS

Bushel = 32 dry quarts, 64 dry pints or 2,150 cubic inches.

Peck = 1/4 bushel, 8 dry quarts or 538 cubic inches.

Gallon = 4 quarts or 231 cubic inches (liquid measure).

Quart = 58 dry cubic inches.

Kilogram = (Kg) 2.205 pounds.

Liter = 1.057 liquid quarts.

AGRIMISSOURI PROMOTION PROGRAM

AgriMissouri is the Missouri Department of Agriculture's marketing tool designed to identify food and fiber products grown or processed in Missouri. In other words, the Missouri Department of Agriculture wants consumers to have a choice between home-grown products and those grown outside the state.

AgriMissouri is increasing visibility to every level of the food chain; from soil to supermarket. Promoting Missouri products with Agri-Missouri is generating lasting impressions. Consumers in Missouri are recognizing products of Missouri producers and processors. Product recognition and consumer acceptance throughout the program are increasing. Sales of Missouri products have increased 25-50% when promoted with promotional materials furnished by the Missouri Department of Agriculture.

The primary goal of the program is creating brand awareness for products. Creating a positive image of the quality and awareness of distribution outlets for AgriMissouri products is also being achieved. The program is creating a higher awareness of what Missouri offers and optimism for economic growth.

Call or write the Missouri Department of Agriculture, Market Development Division, AgriMissouri Program, P.O. Box 630, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102, or telephone 314-751-4561 for information on membership, promotional items available and assistance in developing the AgriMissouri Program.

IF WE MISSED YOU

The Consumer's Guide is a joint project of University Extension at Lincoln University and the Missouri Department of Agriculture. Every attempt is made to include as many Missouri horticulture marketing operations as possible. If you wish to be included in the next year's Guide or desire other information about the Guide, please contact one of the addresses below. We will mail you an application form in the fall seeking information for inclusion.
