Architecture

A guide to finding information

1. Books

If you are looking for a particular book and know the author or title, you can search the Library catalogue to see if that item is held. The catalogue entry will give the exact location (shelfmark) for that book.

You may also wish to browse the shelves – here are some key shelfmarks:

Building regulations	692.9
Landscape architecture	712
Architecture	720
Architectural theory	720.1
Sustainable architecture	720.47
Ancient architecture	722
Twentieth century architecture	724.6
Twenty-first century architecture	724.7
Building types	725
Bridge architecture	725.98
English church architecture	726.5
Vernacular architecture	728.6
Architects' working details	729.2

Shelfmarks are on the 3 floors as follows:

000 - 499	Level 2
500 - 719	Level 3
720 - 999	Level 4

We have a large collection of ebooks. These can be accessed via the library catalogue.

2. Journals

Both print and electronic/online journals are listed by title on the Library catalogue. (NB: look under the journal title, not the title of the article you need).

3. Indexes to journal articles

Avery Index to Architectural Periodicals -is one of the main databases for research in architecture and is an index of journal articles relating to urban design, historic conservation and urban planning history. The database surveys at least 2,500 international journals and has records going back to the mid 18th century. It is up-dated weekly. The interface is available in many languages including Japanese, Korean and Chinese. Please note that this is a US publication, so subject terminology and spelling may be different to British practice.

British Architectural Library Catalogue – is produced by the librarians at the Royal Institution of British Architects Library (RIBA) and covers all aspects of architecture. This includes the Architectural Publications Index (API) which is the biggest index of architecture articles in the world. There are podcasts on how to use this on the architecture subject help page <http://www.brookes.ac.uk/library/arch/archdatab.html>

PADDI – index to articles relating to Irish architecture and planning.

Once you have some useful information about specific articles (references), check the Brookes Library catalogue to see if the journal is held – and where it can be found. Remember to search under the title of the journal, not the title of the specific article you wish to find!

4. Online collections of journal articles, ebooks and reports

Academic Search Complete – covers many subject areas including those relating to architecture.

Art full text – full text coverage from 1997 onwards, indexing from 1984. Subjects covered include the visual arts, architecture, archaeology, art history, design, fashion, film, television and video.

Business Source Complete – contains journal articles relating to business and commercial buildings. It is also useful for information on green buildings.

Construction Information Service \(CIS\) – Provides full text architectural, construction and planning information which includes: BRE, CIBSE, CIRIA and JCT technical reports and papers, architects working details, journal articles such as Architects' Journal and New Civil Engineer, seminal books in the built environment subject area, the building regulations and specification material.

Detail Inspiration - Full text database of projects from Detail magazine in English (1987-) Each project has been individually indexed and the records provide a brief description, reference images, PDF and link to the relevant company website

OnArchitecture - is an audiovisual library of contemporary world architecture. The videos feature interviews with prominent architects, records of their main works and installations, and interviews with users of the spaces

5. Architectural Images

ARTstor- a database of more than a million images, covering a wide range of subjects, which is available via the Oxford Brookes Database page. Images from this may be used for coursework and classroom presentations.

Images of England – produced by English Heritage is a photographic library of England's listed buildings, recorded at the turn of the 21st century. You can view over 300,000 images of England's built heritage from lamp posts to lavatories, phone boxes to toll booths, mile stones to gravestones, as well as thousands of bridges, historic houses and churches. Available at <http://www.imagesofengland.org.uk/>

RIBApix - An online collection covers world architecture of all periods together with related subjects such as interior design, landscape, topography, planning, construction and the decorative arts. Available at <http://www.ribapix.com/>

6. Building Price Information

Building Cost and Information Service (BCIS) - provides online building and construction cost and price data. It is a collaborative venture for the exchange of information so that subscribers involved in design, construction and property can have ready access to the best available data.

7. Newspapers online

Factiva – full text database of newspaper articles for UK national and international newspapers. It houses a large number of full text journals, and is useful for researching international architecture.

LexisLibrary – full text database of national and regional newspapers.

8. Dictionaries and Encyclopedias

Most of these are shelved at 720 – 729 and are good print resources. The following are some suggestions for general reference:

Elements of style: an encyclopedia of domestic architectural details	728.03 ELE
Encyclopedia of the vernacular architecture of the world	728.6 ENC
(2004) Phaidon atlas of contemporary world architecture	724.7 PHA

11. Dissertations, research and conferences

Oxford Brookes undergraduate and postgraduate dissertations for architecture are held in the Built Environment Resource Centre (AB 215, Abercrombie Building). ALL Brookes's PHD theses are held in the library – ask to view these at the enquiry desk.

The following book may be useful when you are planning your dissertation:

Farrell, P \(2011\) Writing a built environment dissertation: practical guidance and examples 808.06669/FAR

ProQuest dissertations & theses : UK & Ireland \(Abstracts / Index\) provides a list of theses with abstracts accepted for higher degrees by universities in Great Britain and Ireland since 1716, and can be found by clicking on Find a database. The theses can then be obtained via inter library loan.

12. Other Sources

Buildings of England

Pevsner, N (ed) (1951-) This is a series of county guides to the architecture of England, each catalogued and classified individually. An index to the complete series is available on CD-ROM (at 720.942 PEV). This enables you to find building types etc. across county volumes. Similar series exist for Scotland, Wales and Ireland. The series also now includes individual city guides.

Maps and Atlases

These are housed in Level 3 Zone E Headington Library
Electronic maps of the UK are also available via Digimap.

Working Details

Working details from the Architects' Journal are available as books on the ordinary shelves (729.2 ARC). These can also be accessed from the Construction Information Service database.

Your Academic Liaison Librarian (Geoff Morgan) – is available to help you use the library's resources and find the information you need. Please contact him via email: g.morgan@brookes.ac.uk or phone: 01865 483137 and in person at his office on level 3 of the library (JHB 310). He also has a subject help page which you can access via the library's home page by clicking on Subject Help and then selecting Architecture from the list.
