A Guide to Business and Economics Databases

How to find journals by title

How to find journals by title:

Sometimes a lecturer may recommend a journal, but not any particular articles for you to read and you can use the Library Search to help you find it.

- 1. Go to the library home page and choose the default Library Search search box or enter: https://oxfordbrookes.on.worldcat.org/discovery
- 2. In the search box, enter the title of the journal or article title. You can use quotation marks to retrieve exact title.
- 3. If we have the journal, you will see a link to any databases where it can be found, and the publication years covered.

- 4. Select the link that covers the years you want. I selected Emerald as it has the longest date range covered. Click to go through to the database.
- 5. You will be taken to the Brookes Login screen where you enter your student/staff number and your Brookes password (tip: the same one you use for email and PIP)

6. The databases will all look different but you can either use the volumes and issue numbers to navigate or search within the journal for a topic of interest to you.

Further help:

🌀 Link

- links you to the full text of articles

• When searching databases, look out for the full text finder link ^{SLink} which will find the full text of a journal article even if it is not available in the database you are currently searching in.

No full text access available?

When we do not have access to the full text you will not see the link but articles and books can be obtained from other libraries:
 Use the InterLibrary Loan service.

If you know the details of a particular article you'd like to find:

- Go to the library home page where the default tab for searching is LibrarySearch.
- You can enter the whole article title or part of it in the search box. Putting "quotation marks" around the phrase can help to find exactly what you need.
- Click 'View full text' to see the article

If you would like to find any articles about a topic but don't know of any particular resources to look for:

- Search the journals databases found on the Business Subject Help pages instead.
- You can then use keywords which describe your topic to find articles and other resources. Some databases have more information about some topics than others, so you should try searching a few different databases for all your research areas

If you are having problems with any of this, please contact the Business Academic Liaison Librarian team for help by emailing businesslibrarians@brookes.ac.uk or phoning 01865 485851.
