Dear John

Thanks for yours of July 11th, and let me take this opportunity of saying how delighted I am that everything is proceeding so satisfactorily. As you may imagine, too, I am really very pleased indeed that everyone responded to our suggestion of Bill Webb so generously, and so enthusiastically.

On first sight, there are two tiny points which I think should be taken into consideration for an official memorandum:

Number 5: I think we agreed the fifth judge should be a 'literate' person either in the book world or not, though if in the book world, not a novelist - we talked, for example, about important non-fiction writers.

Number 11: this obviously needs to be elaborated incorporating that dinner!

Hope to see you next week.

Yours
