Digital Object: NA 1402, photograph, p04873a: 1938 Abstract: Black and white photograph of two men bucking up a large pine tree. Joseph G. Deering tentatively identified the location as the Kennett lot near the train station in Cornish, Maine. Deering identified the photographer as John Marshall from Portland. This was a period of economic crisis in the timber industry following the "Great New England Hurricane of 1938." The Category 5 hurricane caused an estimated $306 million (1938 USD)about $18 billion in 2010 USDand approximately 600 fatalities in Long Island. Without warning, the Cat-5 storm made landfall on Long Island as a Cat-3 on September 21, 1938. Acres and acres of timber were downed by the storm, also called "The Long Island Express."
