America's Energy is Mindpower

Don B. Young, Sr.

As an alumnus having two degrees from Morehead State University and working in education at every level for over 25 years, I feel compelled to express my concern over recent developments in my profession.

It seems ironic that at a time when our country and our state faces innumerable problems which will require maximum mindpower to solve, that the leaders of our government feel compelled to trim, cut and critically wound one of the greatest educational systems ever known. Universities have provided the mindpower to extend life, send man to the distant planets and create a society which although not perfect, is far beyond the dreams of the wisest man of two centuries ago.

For great numbers of us, Morehead State University provided the only opportunity for a chance at a college degree. And with this college degree, our graduates have excelled in many diversified fields throughout the world. I will concede, however, education at every level needs to continually improve in order for us to compete as a nation and be first in today's complex world. Improvement, however, does not come about by cutting programs or eliminating the opportunity of many students to attend college by pricing its cost beyond their means. If the education from which we have all benefitted is to improve or even continue at its present level, it will require each of us to look deep within ourselves and make a commitment to our present youngsters and future generations in order that they might have the same opportunity that we were privileged to have.

The problem of education today cannot be solved by people who are not willing to get involved; or those who are willing to let someone else do it; or those having had the opportunity to complete their education, feel they have no obligation to help others. None of us are asking for permission to be extravagant or wasteful. We are simply asking for the opportunity to continue developing the greatest natural resource America has, the minds of its young people.

The problems that we face now will be insignificant when compared to the ones we will face tomorrow if we decide that the chance for a higher education is only for a special few. If you believe in the value of the human intellect, join us in preserving our only source of energy that can not be depleted and will insure the existence of man forever.

Giving Campaign Launched

Cash, property and pledges totaling more than $179,000 were received as MSU launched its 1981-82 Annual Giving Campaign.

Dr. C. Louise Caudill, Morehead physician and campaign chairperson, described the initial response as "a tremendous beginning."

In her challenge to nearly 100 volunteers at the Kickoff Brunch, Dr. Caudill called on those who support the University to "give and give and cause others to give."

"This is no time to be bashful about talking about money," Dr. Caudill said. "The University does not have the state support it needs and we must help make up the difference. Every person in this region needs the university and the university needs us. It is time to stand up and be counted."

MSU President Morris L. Norfleet announced that the campaign would give special attention to building the University's student aid endowment to finance scholarships and work-study programs.

"The University has lost nearly $2 million in state budget cuts and we obviously have many pressing financial needs," he stated. "Our most critical need is to improve our ability to counter the reductions in federal student aid programs. We must have more resources for scholarships if this is to continue to be an institution of opportunity for people of Eastern Kentucky."

Of the total given and pledged, about $67,000 went into the Eagle Athletic Fund to support intercollegiate athletics. Student financial aid received more than $33,000. Nearly $32,000 was committed to the University's greatest needs and $20,000 will go to support programs in the Department of Agriculture.

"We are most grateful for these gifts and pledges and for the others to be received during this campaign," Dr. Norfleet said. "And we are especially thankful for the dedication, hard work and generosity of our volunteers."

The largest single gift received at the brunch was $20,000 from Ashland Oil, Inc., for greatest needs. Several friends of MSU's agriculture program combined their gifts totaling $20,000 in livestock and farm equipment.

Instructional equipment valued at $11,000 was given by Tri-State Testing Co. of Ashland and the E.O. Robinson Mountain Fund of Berea contributed $8,000 for scholarships and research.

Robert Nally of Louisville gave $5,625 in art works to be sold for greatest needs. Kentucky Publishing Co. of Morehead donated $5,000 for journalism scholarships, athletics and greatest needs.

Thank you for your help.

Dr. C. Louise Caudill of Morehead has been named national chairperson of Morehead State University's 1981-82 Annual Giving Campaign.

In announcing the appointment, MSU President Morris L. Norfleet described the Morehead physician as "a person of the highest integrity with a lifelong record of dedicated service to the people of Eastern Kentucky."

"We are privileged to have Dr. Caudill's strong leadership in this year's campaign," Dr. Norfleet added. "Her wholehearted support of our institution and her success as a manager of volunteer efforts make her well prepared to provide direction to our fund raising program."

A native of Morehead and an MSU alumnus, including an honorary doctoral degree, Dr. Caudill has been practicing medicine in Morehead since 1948. She served nine years on the MSU faculty, including the directorship of women's physical education.

She holds a master's degree from Columbia University and the doctorate in medicine from the University of Louisville.

Dr. Caudill spearheaded the drive to establish a hospital in Morehead and St. Claire Medical Center was named in her honor when it opened in 1963. She was selected in 1979 as Kentucky "Woman of the Year."

In addition to being active in various medical and civic organizations, Dr. Caudill served eight years on the Kentucky Council on Higher Education. She has been president of the Peoples Bank of Sandy Hook since 1968.

"It is my hope that we can convince others who love and appreciate Morehead State University that private gifts are needed now more than ever," Dr. Caudill said of her appointment. "Recent changes in state budgeting procedures and reductions in state general support make it imperative that the University generate new financial resources to remain viable and continue serving this region with distinction."

Dr. Caudill will be the chief volunteer in a six-month campaign to raise funds through the MSU Foundation, Inc., to benefit all areas of the University, including athletics.

had not been any expenditures since the last council meeting, and he had not received the printout from the business office, therefore, the financial report was the same as at the August 15 meeting.

Mr. Young also informed the council that a fellow graduate, John R. It was also requested that a personal invitation be sent to the past presidents of the Alumni Association and a table be reserved at the luncheon so these persons might have a chance to visit. The council agreed to man a table in the lobby on second floor of ADUC to collect membership dues and sell eagle prints, note sheets, etc., during the luncheon.

Dr. James Smiley, chairperson of the Awards Committee, presented the following nominees to receive awards at Homecoming: Hall of Fame to Dr. Marshall Banks, John R. Hall, B. But in order for us to accomplish our goals, it will take the help and support of every graduate of Morehead State University. We sincerely need you as an active member.
