Quotes From The News

by United Press International

WASHINGTON — Rep. Arnold Olsen (D.-Mont.), confident despite a defeat in the House that the Senate would pass a bill providing for the minting of more silver dollars: "I believe we will win in the end."

TOKYO — U.S. Ambassador Edwin O. Reischauer, commenting on an attack by a Japanese youth in which he suffered a knife-wound in the thigh: "My only concern about this small incident is that to some people it might seem to mar the deep friendship and cordial relations that exist between our two countries."

GENEVA, Switzerland — President Johnson, in a message to the United Nations trade conference pledging U.S. cooperation in a worldwide effort to raise standards of living in poor nations: "The great task of our time is to bring the fruits of economic well-being to all peoples in a world of peace and freedom."

WASHINGTON — Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, suggesting the United States should agree to negotiate revision in its canal treaty with Panama: "Surely in a confrontation so unequal, it is not unreasonable to expect the United States to go a little farther than half way in search for a fair settlement."

Hermit Sees The Day When His Island Will Be No More

Nearly Two Million Fish Are Stocked

FRANKFORT, Ky. (Special) — Nearly two million fish were stocked in Kentucky waters by personnel of the Division of Fisheries in 1963, according to figures furnished by Bernard Carter, director.

Carter made the following breakdown on stocked fish: 920,000 fish in 2,225 farm ponds; 100,000 fish in 50 streams; 286,000 fish in 19 state-owned lakes; 443,000 fish in 40 sportsmen's club lakes, and 138,000 fish in three major impoundments. Of the total 1,887,354 fish stocked, 961,680 were bluegill; 686,618 were largemouth bass; 107,582 were channel catfish; 70,582 were trout, and the remainder were mixed lots of various species.

"Carter, in anticipating the 1964 stocking program, predicts a possible record number of farm pond applications from throughout the state, especially Western Kentucky. The director feels that, since so many farm ponds dried up during the drought last year and even more were cleaned out due to the extreme low water, farmers would want to have these new and clean ponds restocked with fish.

In order to have a pond stocked by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources free of charge applications must be made out in detail.

The application forms are in the hands of all conservation officers who will, upon request, come to the farmer's pond, make necessary measurements of the pond or ponds and after filling in all information needed will forward them to the central office in Frankfort for processing.

Fishery personnel make deliveries to a central point in a county where farmers (having been advised by mail as to where and when to meet the delivery truck) will pick up their fish in plastic containers furnished by the Department.

Bluegill are delivered in the fall, as a rule sometime in October, then in the spring the bass delivery is made. Carter said that the bluegill will have a chance to mature and reproduce about the time that the bass are two inches in length. This will give the bass an ample food supply necessary for a fast growth, thereby producing a healthy crop of bass.

his home and family for 75 years. At 90 years old, Capt. Neil Byrn lives alone in a small, wooden shack atop a rebuilt Indian mound on Robinson-Croose Island. His only company is three dogs — which he doesn't like — and a radio-set.

He has a two-burner coal stove, a "coal oil" lamp and gets his water from a deep well about 100 yards from his shack. He has a couple of boats, but seldom uses them. The old riverman's hearing is poor, his eyes are failing and last July he "suffered a light stroke which left me dragging my leg."

But he is content to stay on the slowly diminishing island three miles upstream from Memphis. "I don't like people and I don't like towns," he tells his infrequent visitors, "so why should I move? People don't care about me. They sometimes pull up their boats out here and stare at me like I'm some curiosity. I'm better off here than in a town."

Byrn was born at Memphis and took to the Mississippi as a dishwasher on a riverboat when he was 15. In later years he worked the inland waterway system as a deck-hand, oystercatch skipper and packet boat captain.

He quit the river once to work in a store. "But I only stayed about three months. Didn't like all them people." Byrn settled on Robinson-Croose island 23 years ago, about two years before he retired. There were six families living on the strip of land then, including the landowners. One by one the others left.

Few of the other homes remain; the landowner's big house — once 100 yards from the river bank — tumbled into the flooded river two years ago.

Robinson-Croose becomes an actual island only when the river is flooded. At other times Byrn can walk to the Memphis & Arkansas Bridge, cross the river and do his menial marketing. "Sometimes I walk and sometimes I ride in a truck with a man who lives in Arkansas. He charges me $3," Byrn says.

Until a couple of years ago, when Byrn took to wearing spectacles, he used to entertain himself by reading books and newspapers. "But I don't see so good now and I don't read no more. Mostly I sleep, or listen to the radio or watch the river."

Byrn keeps abreast of current events. He knew about President Kennedy's assassination "about two hours after it happened" and is familiar with Britain's singing Beatles. "But they are not on my wavelength." When political news is broadcast Byrn switches off "because I don't like them politics."

He admits to being a good forecaster of river conditions and predicts the river will not reach its flood stage at Memphis this year, but it might next. He is convinced this will be his last year on the island, "it keeps falling away. It may not be here after next year."

But he is concerned about the prospect of having to move. "What would I do?" he asks, "in a city with all them people? People don't care nothing for me... Tell me, what would I do?"

Backstairs At The Whitehouse

By ALVIN SPIVAK
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UP) — Backstairs at the White House:

The word is out to a limited number of people that the limousine President Johnson has been using — particularly on out of town trips — is a 9,000 pound vehicle with bulletproof glass which had been assigned to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Sharp-eyed spectators in St. Louis were certain that this was the auto Johnson was using when he motored through that city during a speech-making visit eight days ago. There has been no official comment on whose limousine Johnson rode in during visits in the last three months to New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis.

Called Hoover's Auto In New York, someone in Johnson's party was overheard describing the limousine as "Mr. Hoover's." That was when Johnson was in Manhattan Dec. 8 for the funeral of former New York Gov. Herbert M. Lehman.

The President also used the visit to call on a predecessor, Herbert Hoover. It was assumed that the "Mr. Hoover" whose limousine it was, but on the basis of the St. Louis report, the indication is that it was the FBI chief's instead.

While this kind of bullet-proof vehicle provides safety for Johnson along motorcade routes lined by many thousands of people, the President is not considered happy at the lack of visibility the closed limousine provides those spectators.

When his election campaign begins in earnest, he will want the maximum exposure to the public — within the Secret Service hopes. Limits of safety. So it is expected he will use the "bubble-top" vehicle which was the favorite parade limousine of the late President John F. Kennedy — and was the one Kennedy occupied when he was shot to death in Dallas Nov. 22.

Bubble-Top Revamped The "bubble-top" auto has, since the assassination, been undergoing a refitting to provide armor plate and a bullet-proof dome. The President's Secret Service bodyguards will urge him to keep that transparent top in place rather than use the limousine as an open convertible.

To let himself be seen while driving past crowds estimated at 100,000 in St. Louis, Johnson had his driver show the closed limousine from time to time. And the President on several occasions, at stop-offs, walked over the edge of throngs for some handshaking. As a continuing safety measure in Washington on formal occasions, as well as out of town — the Secret Service has been insisting on police motorcycle escorts for Johnson's auto caravan.

It was reported that St. Louis police were embarrassed when the Secret Service asked for an escort of 13 motorcycles. The St. Louis traffic department, according to this report, virtually had phased out motorcycles in favor of auto cruisers and they had to do some borrowing from suburban communities.

The men fought the blaze and saved the Barrow garage and home where Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Vaughn reside. The flames then spread westward toward a wooded area on the west side of the farm and were brought under control there about 4:30 p. m. by the Division of Forestry heavy equipment and with the added aid of the Rescue Squad.

Mrs. Boyd called the fire tower about 1:30 p. m. for help and immediately afterwards all telephone communications in the area were closed as the telephone company was laying a new line on Highway 121 near the Nanny home.

The Division of Forestry arrived with a bulldozer about 3:30 p. m. and another dozer from Graves County arrived about 4 p. m. They immediately made fire breaks stopping the fires which were quickly spreading through the grass fields. In going westward the fire had jumped a large ditch.

other parts of the country, are highlighted in a study of data from the Commerce Department's Census of Housing.

In addition to the 77 percent of local households who had wood or coal stoves in 1940, there were 18 percent who used kerosene or other liquid fuels and 1 percent who relied on gas. Other bottled or piped in. Only 4 percent of them were equipped with electric stoves.

The changes since then have been dramatic. Wood, as a fuel, is now to be found in 4 percent of the kitchens in the area. Coal and coke are in use in less than 1 percent of them and liquid fuel in another 1 percent.

The current figures show that 11 percent of the families in Calloway County are cooking with gas and 83 percent with electricity. At the national level, the survey reveals that, nearly two-thirds of the homes across the country are now using gas for cooking. Although gas holds a commanding lead over electricity, the lead is being whittled down rapidly.

Radical changes have also taken place in recent years in the way homes are heated, the survey shows. Only 12 percent of them are being heated by coal today, as against 55 percent in 1940. Wood dropped from 23 percent to 4 percent.

The big gainers were liquid fuels and gas. Gas usage rose from 11 to 44 percent in the period and oil and other fuels from 10 to 32 percent.

In the number one spot in Calloway County at the present time is coal or coke, which is the heating fuel used in 32 percent of local homes.

Dear Abby . . .
NO GROUNDS FOR REVIVAL!
 Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who used to arrive on my doorstep daily for a two-hour coffee break. I finally had to tell her that I didn't have time for it. She is the sensitive type who is easily hurt, so ever since then, she has acted very cool towards me, and hardly speaks. I must admit that I enjoy the freedom from these coffee breaks, and therefore hesitate to revive our friendship. However, our children play together and I would rather be on friendly terms with her. How can I accomplish this without getting back on those two-hour coffee breaks?

DEAR PUZZLED: You can't leave well enough alone. You don't know when you are well off.

DEAR ABBY: A second man has entered my life. I am a church woman, but if you will let me explain, perhaps you will find some compassion for me. I think it was his eyes that first breached my reserve. Always beautiful, they sometimes appear gray and turbulent, like mountain lakes whipped to anger by a passing storm. His hair, rivaling the beauty of his eyes, has the wind-blown freshness of the open field. His physique is as perfect as his smile is disarming. And when he looks into my eyes, as he did tonight, I

LUCKY?
DEAR LUCKY: Yes, and I was getting ready to reply, "It will never work, forget him!"

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who says, "I am going to GET a bath." I keep telling him that he should say, "I am going to TAKE a bath." Who is right?

PASSIO
DEAR PASSIO: One who bathes himself TAKES a bath. If he is given a bath by someone else, he GETS a bath. Unless your friend is at an age where his mother is still bathing him, he is all wet.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BETSY AT LOCKHEED: I think you are wise to wait. A man who has been divorced three times is a very, very poor risk.

Book Review

"The Lovely Sergeant" by Alan Burgess. With the outbreak of war in August, 1914, Flora Sandes, daughter of a village rector in England, jumps at the chance to volunteer for service as a nurse in Serbia. Once there, in her devotion to the patriotic Serbian cause, this "lovely sergeant" exposes herself to typhus, constantly risks capture, torture, and death, and inspires hard-fighting units of seasoned mountain troops by her courage and refusal to quit.

"The Lovely Sergeant" is also the poignant story of twice-found love amid the tension and exaltation of war and in post-war service as an officer in the Serbian army — Flora's bitter-sweet romance with a Serbian captain later killed in action, and the affair with her own sergeant which resulted in marriage that brought her lasting happiness.

Unusual and dramatic, this gripping story of a courageous and fascinating woman is brilliantly told by Alan Burgess. With rich immediacy, the Serbian mountains, the snow, the clear starry nights, the sights and sounds of battle come vividly alive in the pages of a magnificent book that is an unforgettable reading experience.

"The Lovely Sergeant" may be borrowed at your Murray-Calloway County Public Library.

Easter Eggs Speak Language Of Own At Each Season

By JEANNE LESSEM

NEW YORK (UPI) — Easter eggs speak a language of their own.

The exchange of colored eggs as gifts at spring festivals pre-dated Christianity in Egypt, Persia, Greece and Rome. Red eggs represented joy, fire, and the morning sun. In Christian times, red came to represent the blood of Christ's sacrifice. The primary colors, favored in early days sometimes were made from vegetable dyes — not the conveniently-packaged powdered dyes now used, but water in which such vegetables as beets, onion skins or spinach had cooked. Eggs were cooked in the vegetable water instead of plain water, says one American painter, Stokely-Van Camp, who turned up this and other facts and legends about Easter eggs.

A spokesman added that Greek children and men will follow an old custom of carrying red eggs to church on Easter Sunday for a ritual that follows the services.

The congregation gathers outside the church to greet one another. The greeting, "Christ is risen," receives the response, "He is risen indeed," and is followed by an egg-cracking contest.

The second person to speak gets first tapping rights to produce egg shells so hard that he won all the Easter eggs in the village.

Egg colors also have meaning in Poland, says a Polish friend. Pink signifies friendship, red is for love, and yellow for jealousy. Green is for hope and blue for health. In England, sweethearts once exchanged Easter eggs as modern sweethearts exchange Valentines, wrote Joan Clibborn in "Cooking the British Way."

The Pennsylvania Dutch also prepare red eggs, but shell them after cooking and immerse them for 24 hours or more in the liquid from pickled beets. The eggs acquire a

FOOD MYTHS
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Myths about nutrition cited in a recent bulletin of the Food and Drug Administration include the following:

The myth that all diseases are due to faulty diet. Fact: the few diseases caused by dietary deficiencies are rarely found in the United States. And the myth that soil depletion causes malnutrition. The fact is that there's no scientific basis for the notion that crops grown on poor soil with the aid of chemical fertilizers are nutritionally inferior.

Species Once Dead Is Gone Forever

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — A species that once dies is forever dead. That fact, stressed by evolutionary biologists, helps explain the fervor with which conservationists resist any action by man that might threaten the survival of some bird or beast or tree.

Black Hills To Receive New Monument

SPEARFISH, S.D. (AP) — The Black Hills of South Dakota, already famous for the Mount Rushmore national memorial, are going to get another monument — a 300-foot statue of Christ.

Simpson Outlines Views

Simpson, professor of vertebrate paleontology at Harvard University, makes this statement in a forthcoming book on the development of living forms.

The causes of evolution are many and random. They began operating when life first appeared on earth. Many species evolved only to perish "without issue."

"The existing species," says Simpson, "would surely have been different if the start had been different and if any stage of the histories of organisms and their environments had been different."

"Thus the existence of our present species depends on a very precise sequence of causative events through some two billion years or more. Man cannot be an exception to this rule. If the causal chain had been different, homo sapiens would not exist."

"Both the course followed by evolution and its processes clearly show that evolution is not repeatable. No species of any larger group has ever evolved, or can ever evolve, twice."

Would Become Extinct

The same is true of the dodo and the passenger pigeon and the many other species of life exterminated by man. It will be true of the grizzly bear and the condor and many another threatened species if they are allowed to become extinct.

It will be true, for that matter, of man. Man is certainly unique on earth, according to the evolutionists. When he is gone, he will be gone forever.

But astronomers say there must be millions of planets in the universe almost identical with ours, and that intelligent beings like man must inevitably have evolved upon some of them.

In view of the "essential non-repeatability of evolution earth," this assumption strikes Simpson as "plainly false."

The chances of such duplication on other planetary abodes, he says, are "vanishingly small."

Braves Outfield Problem Is Solved So Things Looking Up

By LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI Sports Editor

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves think they have solved the outfield problem which has plagued them since their National League pennant winning days in 1938. In doing so, however, they may have created a pitching shortage.

Manager Bobby Bragan does not go along with that feeling on pitching, though.

"We wouldn't have made the deal," he said, referring to the one in which the Braves obtained outfielder Felipe Alou from the San Francisco Giants, "unless we felt we had youngsters ready to take over."

The Braves gave up pitchers Bob Hendley and Bob Shaw and catcher Del Crandall for Alou, catcher Ed Bailey, pitcher Billy Hoft and infielder Ernie Bosman. Shaw is the big pitching loss, for although he had only a 7-11 record, he became an outstanding relief ace during the latter part of 1943 and was credited with 16 saves.

Power Is Key

Battling power will be the key to the 1944 Braves.

Bragan is counting largely on Alou, rightfielder Hank Aaron, third baseman Eddie Mathews, catcher Bailey and Joe Torre, and Gene Oliver who may finally find a permanent home at first base.

He has problem in getting the bats of Torre, Bailey and Oliver in the lineup at the same time.

The solution may be that Torre will play at first base with Oliver when Bailey catches. That would be against righthanded pitching. Against lefthanded pitching, Bailey would be benched with Torre catching and Oliver playing first.

Bragan wouldn't trade his catching for any other in the league. In addition to Torre and Bailey, Oliver also can catch as well as play the outfield.

He may lead off again with second baseman Frank Bolling batting second, followed by Mathews, Aaron, Alou, Torre or Bailey and Oliver. That leaves the eighth slot in the lineup for the shortstop. It could be the veteran Roy McMillan, still a fine play maker, to start the season with Dennis Menke eventually taking over. Menke will step in the lineup as soon as Bolling, Mathews or McMillan falters, because he can play every position.

Spain Top Pitchers

Warren Spahn, the amazing 42-year old southpaw, will head the starting pitching rotation. He was 23-7 last year and shows no signs of slowing up.

Behind him will be righthanders Tony Cloninger (9-11), Bob Sadowski (5-7), Henry Fischer (4-3) and lefthanded Denny Lemaster (11-14).

Bragan tabs righthander, Daniel Schneider, who won only four games while losing three in the minors last year, as a possible starter.

Righthanders Frank Funk (3-2) and Ron Piche (1-1) and southpaws Bobby Tiefenauer and Hoeltz, 2-0 with the Giants last season, form the bullpen brigade with Jack Smith, a Los Angeles Dodgers cast-off, another relief possibility.

Bragan is the first to admit it doesn't add up to a championship staff, but pins his hopes on young stars like Cloninger, Fischer, Lemaster and Sadowski, coming of age and starting to win big.

Dodgers In Bind; Howard May Resign

By FRED DOWN
United Press International

Say "Frank Howard" and the Los Angeles Dodgers cringe, say "Bill Skowron" and they're likely to cry out in horror.

Howard is the 250-pound right-handed slugger who may quit baseball and leave the Dodgers pining fully shy of long-range hitting power. Skowron is exactly the type right handed slugger the Dodgers need to protect against that possibility.

The catch is that the Dodgers sold Skowron to the Washington Senators last winter for a mere $25,000 — about half of what they willingly give to a good high school prospect.

The Dodgers were made painfully aware of the curious spot they've contrived for themselves Monday when Skowron hit a pair of two-run homers to lead the Senators to a 7-3 victory over them. It was the second straight game in which Skowron's hitting was the difference. On Sunday his two-run homer was the big blow in a victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Hit Well In Series

Skowron batted .385 for the Dodgers in the World Series sweep of the New York Yankees but the Dodgers had already agreed on the basis of his 202 season average to sell him to the Senators.

Both of Skowron's homers off Larry Sherry, hard-throwing relief hero of the Dodgers' 1959 World Series win, are making a comeback. Tom Brown also homered for the Senators while Wes Parker, a rookie outfielder, had a double and a triple for the Dodgers.

Deron Johnson, Mel Queen and Hal Smith homered to lead the Cincinnati Reds to an 11-3 win over the Kansas City Athletics. Chet Nichols went the first four innings to pick up the win for the Reds. Nichols shut out the Athletics for three innings and then yielded all three runs in the fourth.

Jack Fisher became the first New York Met pitcher to go six innings and yielded four runs in a 7-6 triumph over the Twins. Bob Allison hit a two-run homer for the Twins who suffered their sixth straight exhibition game defeat.

Three Pirates Homer

Willsie Stover, Dean Ciendenon and Bill Mazeroski each homered off Roland Sheldon as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Yankees, 9-2. Vern Law, making a strong comeback effort, yielded two runs in five innings. The Pirates now have hit 18 homers in eight games while Elston Howard's homer Monday was only the third of the spring by the Yankees.

Bob Lillis' three-run triple was the big blow of a 15-hit attack that carried the Houston Colts to an 11-2 win over the St. Louis Cardinals. The Colts bombarded Ray Sadecki for nine runs in three innings to raise their spring record to 7-3. Lillis, Rusty Staub and John

There Is Something About The Yankees That Makes The Mets Play Major League Baseball

By FRED DOWN
United Press International

There's something about the New York Yankees that makes the New York Mets play like the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Well, like a major league team anyway.

The undisputed sack of the majors the last two years, the Mets nonetheless have managed to win four of six games from the Yankees in various exhibitions, charity affairs, etc.

Yogi Berra matched wits with former boss Casey Stengel for the first time Tuesday and the result was a 1-0 victory for the Mets. Oakland Cepeda's three-run homer was the big blow as the San Francisco Giants shaded the Cleveland Indians, 9-8, in a seven-inning game called at Tucson, Ariz., because of cold and wind. Bob Shaw was the winner although tagged for six runs and 10 hits in five innings.

Senators Down Tigers

John Kennedy and Ed Reinman hit homers to lead the Washington Senators to a 9-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers. Al Kaline, Jake Wood and Mike Roarke homered to produce the Tigers' runs.

The Milwaukee Braves scored their fifth straight triumph and their ninth in 11 games when they beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-1.

Continues Heavy Hitting

Outfielder Dave Nicholson continued his heavy hitting for the Chicago White Sox with a two-run tie-breaking eighth-inning triple in a 4-1 win over the Dodgers. Nicholson now has hit two homers and two triples in his last four games. Ron Fairly doubled home the Dodger's run.

Phil Gagliano, making a strong bid to stick with the St. Louis Cardinals as a utility infielder despite an unimpressive .242 batting average for Atlanta last season, raised his spring average to .308 with a double and triple as the Redbirds downed the Kansas City Athletics, 12-3. The win was the Cardinals' ninth in 12 exhibition games.

Indians Shade Cubs

Al Lupton hit the first pitch of the game for a homer and the Cleveland Indians went on from there to shade the Chicago Cubs, 6-5. Gary Bell, Don McMahon, Ted Abernathy and Pete Ramos each pitched a shutout inning to hold the lead for the Indians after the fifth inning.

Chuck Hiller, Cap Peterson and Randy Hundley had two hits each as the San Francisco Giants beat the Boston Red Sox, 7-4. Igr their 13th victory in 15 games. Gaylord Perry went the last five innings for the Giants allowing only four hits and one run.

Warren Spahn allowed only one hit and one run in five innings and Tony Cloninger completed the four-hitter to lead the Milwaukee Braves to a 4-3 decision over the Detroit Tigers. It was the Braves' eighth win in 10 exhibition games.
