Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Mr. Joe Parker in to get some gourd seeds.

Thanks to Mrs. Hafford James for the nice note about her Cub Scout Den's visit to the Ledger and Times.

"The boys really paid more attention than we thought. We talked about it afterward and they remember a lot of the processing you go through. It's quite an operation."

Mrs. Pauline Knott of Murray wrote four years ago. She reports that Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Knott held a 25th wedding anniversary on March 13. Sorry we did not get this note in sooner. The Knotts have one son, Stephen Knott of Murray Route One.

Mrs. Knott also enclosed two different kinds of pepper seeds. We will be glad to share with anyone.

One is called yellow squash pepper. These peppers grow to the size of a half dollar and many grow larger when watered and fertilized well.

The other is red pepper and is a somewhat type of pepper.

Mrs. Knott says she understands they are edible. She has counted 12 and 13 on one stem. This cluster at the end of the stem. This makes them look odd or unusual.

Any pepper fans who do not possess seeds of these two peppers are welcome to some of ours.

E. Pierce McDougal of Murray has been named to the Board of Directors of the Kentucky Angus Association.

The Murray Women's Club is seeking to upgrade street lighting in the city. They are conferring with E. S. Ferguson at this time for recommendations.

Four lanes on the Hazel Highway south past the city limits is in the works. We hope the four lanes extend well over the hill south of A. W. Simmons, Jr. in order to reduce the possibility of accidents.

Received in the mail from American Heritage, an 8 x 10 print of John James Audubon's drawing of the Pileated Woodpecker.

This is the giant bird with a huge bill and great red topknot.

We have not seen one in years.

John Neuhauer, our Chicago correspondent, sends us clippings from the Chicago Daily News filled with interesting observations and opinions.

John lives in Chicago, but owns some property down on Kentucky Lake. He is a great booster for this area.

An article by John Steinbeck on his travels through England, Europe, Israel, and the U.S. He was sickened by the long hours in all these nations whose principal occupation seems to be doing nothing.

"The third activity was downright disheartening to an old and passive appreciator of a difference, a concerted and successful effort by boys and girls to look, talk, and act a like, either a homo-hetero or a hetero-homo. And do you know, they succeeded. To find out our had to use the method reserved for reserved for snakes and newborn kittens. You couldn't find out what these boys and girls wanted, because they had it, or as much as they could use, since most of their energy went to hair. Hair is strenuous."

Hazel And Concord PTA To Play Ball

Plans have been completed for the special basketball game to be played Friday, March 18, at seven p.m. at the Hazel School. The game will be between the Hazel PTA and the Concord PTA. The admission is 15 and 25 cents and the public is urged to attend.

Pictured above is the permanent home of the Kindergarten at Robertson School, which has been an eleven-year project of the Sigma Department of the Murray Woman's Club.

The following is the first in a series of articles which was compiled by a committee of ladies of the Murray Woman's Club for use in a scrapbook contest on Community Improvement. Each of the articles deals with a different improvement project which was sponsored by a department in the Murray Woman's Club.

Kindergarten is a little bit of Heaven. It is said that a rolling stone gathers no moss. If that is true, the Kindergarten at Robertson School, by that same philosophy is an example. Since its birth in the Sigma Department of the Murray Woman's Club 11 years ago, it has rolled from place to place five times. Now that it is permanently located, the rolling stops are compared to the inspirational popular song, "... just roll around Heaven all day."

A committee met with the school board and a local banker and proposed to furnish the money to build a room out one of the elementary schools where an addition was being built, if the board would allow it to be used indefinitely for kindergarten. Of course, we then had to convince the banker that we could repay the $1,000 loan we were asking of him to be used to finance the room.

We convinced both the banker and the board.

Gemini 8 Space Venture Moved Up to Wednesday

By AL ROSSITER JR., United Press International. CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — Space officials today postponed the Gemini 8 hookup and spacelink spectacular from Tuesday to Wednesday at the earliest because of leaks in the rendezvous target's Atlas booster and the capsule's breathing system.

The double trouble shattered a smooth string of preparations for the ambitious three-day spacelink of astronauts Neil Armstrong and David Scott.

"The March 15 launching of the Gemini 8 mission was postponed for a least 24 hours today," the Federal Space Agency said.

The agency said leaks were discovered in the Atlas late Sunday night during fueling checks and other leaks were found in a Gemini spacecraft system that supplies oxygen to the astronauts' space suits.

Technicians at pad 14, site of the four-jet Mercury rocket, noted the Atlas trouble when they found kerosene fuel at the foot of the 104-foot rocket. Engineers were having difficulty, however, in locating the leaks.

The oxygen leak was traced to a device that separates moisture from re-circulated cabin air, engineers reported.

The Miami weather bureau reported that weather conditions for Wednesday launchings of the Atlas-Agena rendezvous rocket and the Gemini 8 spacelink were satisfactory with partly cloudy skies expected at the launch site.

Project officials are trouble shooting the Atlas fueling system on complex 14 and the spacecraft environmental control system, at pad 19 to determine the exact cause of the leaks, the agency said in a statement.

If the troubles are corrected in time, the Atlas-Agena rocket will be launched at 10 a.m. EST Wednesday with Armstrong and Scott following in pursuit 101 minutes later.

The mission, one of the most ambitious yet undertaken in the U.S. man-in-space program, calls for two rendezvous attempts, four two-orbit flybys and a record space stroll by Scott.

Sunday was a rainy day of review and rest for the two astronauts. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) reported they spent the entire day in their plush quarters at the new moonport west of the Cape.

Their final training ended Saturday with the last of a long series of practice sessions in a capsule mockup that does practically everything but fly.

Their 100,000-mile space chase was scheduled to end about 5 1/2 hours after launch with a rendezvous with the orbiting Agena in a repeat of the maneuvering Gemini 6 astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford first accomplished in December with Gemini 7 as their target.

A Bible Thought For Today

I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto thee; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. — Psalm 32:5.
Unconfessed sin is one of the greatest causes of frustration and misery. Happy is the man whose sins are confessed and is the man whose sins are confessed and forgiven.

Veterans News

Q — How much time remains to obtain the re-opened GI insurance, so-called?

A — Eligible veterans (those with service-connected disabilities even though they receive no compensation payments and those with non-service-connected disabilities who are too disabled to obtain commercial insurance) have until midnight, Monday, May 2, 1966, to obtain the re-opened insurance. By that time, however, they must have sent not only their application but also sufficient funds to cover the initial premium payment.

Q — I hear my child, age 21, is now entitled to educational assistance even though my peacetime service terminated before 1940. My service-connected condition is rated as permanently totally disabling. What would his monthly allowance be if he enters college?

A — Yes, your child became eligible under a recent change in the law extending War Veterans' Educational Assistance to children, generally between ages 18 and 24, of both war time and peacetime veterans from the beginning of the Spanish-American War period provided their permanent and total disability or death is service-connected. Allowances for institutional type training are: $120 monthly for full-time study; $60 monthly for three-quarter-time study; and $30 monthly for half-time study.

John Oldham Gratified With Toppers' Win

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — A bad fall cost Western Kentucky the chance of a lifetime.

That's the opinion of Hilltopper coach Johnny Oldham who said today he is gratified with the Toppers win over Dayton in the consolation game for third place, but is still bothered by that one-point loss to Michigan.

The Toppers led 90-79 to Michigan in the first round of the Midwest Regionals at Iowa City, Friday night.

Michigan won the game with 11 seconds remaining on two foul shots by Cassie Russell.

Russell went to the charity stripe after a foul was called on Greg Smith during a jump ball by the Western goal.

"Smith did not foul him," Oldham said of the controversial call. "I have looked at those films 40 or 50 times. I've looked at them a frame at a time."

The ball was thrown up on Cassie's side and he didn't jump," Oldham said. "Smith leaped over to tap it."

Oldham said Western had the chance of a lifetime in the consolation game because the field was so wide open.

Western clobbered Dayton 82-68 in the consolation game after advancing to the Mid-East finals by beating Loyola 106-86 at Kent State.

The Western win avenged a 25-point defeat at Dayton.

"The loss to Michigan broke our hearts," he said. "But it really makes you feel great when the kids can come back and win like that."

Clem Hawkins and Steve Cunningham led the Western scoring with 20 points each. Henry Flaked had 11 for the Flyers.

Western may get a chance to make up for that referee's call next season; all starters will be back except Cunningham.

PILL TRADE

WASHINGTON — The black market in barbiturates and other pills is so big it overshadows the illicit trade in narcotics, according to a Food and Drug Administration official.

A. E. Loder said Friday at an FDA conference that 4.5 billion barbiturate and amphetamine capsules were sold in black market channels each year. "The illegal traffic in such drugs is enormously profitable and has attracted organized criminals," he said.

By GALE GARRISON
The Carlisle County Crushers defeated the South Marshall Rebels Saturday night, 59 to 51 and will advance to the State Tournament, to be played this week.

Carlisle jumped out to an early lead and held on to it throughout the game. Their longest lead came in the third quarter at 17 points. Both teams hit a good percentage from the field. Carlisle hit 22 of 47 for 46.8%, and South hit 21 of 46 for 45.7%.

Carlisle will meet Central City Wednesday night March 16 at 6:30 in the opening round of the State Tournament.

Three 300 Games: Dick Weber's Triumph in '65

The odds against a 300 game in bowling are at least half a million to one. They go down considerably when the bowler behind the ball is 1965 Bowler of the Year, Dick Weber. But even when Weber is through, the ball you can hardly expect the fantastic feat he accomplished in Houston last September.

The Houston Open was a low scoring event in comparison to other pro tournaments. An average of 203 earned a berth in the 35-man final, while normally a 206 average is needed.

Then it began. The fans went wild as Weber rolled a 300 game during a qualifying round on September 25th. A perfect game is trifles on the bowling arena, but Weber came back in the 12th game of the final to bowled another 300 game, and the fans ran bug-eyed for the record book. They didn't have time to leaf through the pages, because in the 15th game the St. Louis wizard banged the record book. The three 300 games brought his lifetime total to only two better than the all-time leader, George Blinick of Fort Worth, Pa.

"It was probably my greatest thrill in bowling," said Weber. "I felt I'd get the second one, I had eleven balls sold but the 12th was left, right on the nose. And in the third 300 I had another lucky hit."

Weber used his first 300 game in 1952 when he was 23-years-old. Since then he has rolled 300's in 11 different locations, including perfect games in the 1962 All-Star and the 1962 World Invitational.

Two of the 300 games in Houston came in head to head matches. One was against Norm Meyers, from Los Angeles. Ironically, Norm is Weber's brother-in-law, the husband of Dick's sister, Sharon.

The other came against Billy Hardwick, the man who beat Weber in the Tournament of Champions.

"A 300 game is something you can't get used to," says Weber. "I still get butterflies on that last ball every time, even when I'm out on exhibition for AMP, or rolling a practice game. I don't know if I could ever roll three of them in competition in two days."

This is the fourth of a five-part series.

Zsa Zsa cast an eye on London's grey skies and told her husband: "I don't worry, darling, whenever I come to London I always bring the sun."

Mrs. Gooden 43, and Gooden, 51, were married in California on Wednesday. They said after London they may go to the continent for the rest of the honeymoon. "We haven't really decided yet," Gooden told reporters.

THAT CALLAHAN SPUNK!

by FRANCIS AMES
From the novel published by Doubleday & Co. Copyright © 1956 by Francis H. Ames. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

NEARLY HAPPENED
AFTER HIS dramatic escape from the "army" of his father, Pa, Callahan Spunk was in a bit of a fix. He was in a rooming house in a town called "Coyote Wells" and he was in a bit of a fix. He was in a rooming house in a town called "Coyote Wells" and he was in a bit of a fix. He was in a rooming house in a town called "Coyote Wells" and he was in a bit of a fix.

CHAPTER 9
Ma and I drove down the one street of Coyote Wells to the hitch rack in front of Brannigan's mercantile store, where they sold just about anything a person could want.

When we got down off the wagon I noticed that passers-by, some all dressed up and some in working clothes and some wearing cowboy boots, hats and spurs, all tipped their hats to Ma and smiled at her sort of admiring like Ma looked up per skirts in one hand and moved into Brannigan's store, but Pa stopped to read a poster tacked to the wall.

"By gravity," he exclaimed. "They're holding a stock auction down at the stockyards. Run in and tell your ma that we're going down there for a spell."

I ran in and told Ma and then we went down the street to the railroad track and down the track to the stockyards. All the towns I'd seen from the train since the prairie had started and these places to pen up stock for shipping, and at times I'd seen stockyards way out on the plain, where there was no town. Coyote Wells had a big stockyard, and there were a lot of folks gathered here, there a big man with a red face was standing on a barrel yelling his head off.

"What am I bid," he yelled, "on this prime two year old speak up man. Do I hear forty, forty, forty?"

Someone called out "Forty" and then the red-faced man yelled, "Forty I'm bid. Do I hear forty-five?"

There were two cowboys riding prancy horses around among a herd of cattle in a pen. They'd move their horses around so that they drove a steer out from the pen and then the red faced auctioneer would call for bids. As soon as the steer was sold a man at the gate would open it and the cowboys would drive the steer into another pen.

Pa didn't do any bidding until the only critter left in the pen was a real sad looking cow, with a little red cat at her heels. "This was the sorriest appearing cow that I had ever seen. It was a red cow except for two white spots at its eyes that made it look like it was wearing spectacles. It was so thin that its ribs showed through its hide, but the cat seemed fat and fleshy.

The cowboys and the cattle men looked at this gaunt critter with expressions of disgust, but Pa looked up his head and spotted a cool drink of water on a hot day.

"By gravity," he said, "this ain't a range cow. This is a milk cow."

He jumped down off of the stockyard fence where we were sitting and went over to inspect the cow.

"Here," yelled the auctioneer, "is the personal cow of Jess Hooker. What am I offered, gentlemen? Do I hear a bid?"

"Two cents," one man called, and he laughed.

Everybody looked at Pa as though he were a bit daft. A big, wide shouldered, sort of portland man, wearing a white stetson hat and corduroy pants called out, "Fifteen dollars."

"This is going to be good," I heard a man beside me say to another. "Jess Hooker is bidding in his own cow against that greenhorn teler, Conway, from back east."

"Twenty dollars," Pa bid.

"Most of the big fat steers and range cows had sold from fifty to sixty dollars, so I knew that this red of bones couldn't be worth beat that much. But Pa kept right on bidding against Jess Hooker, not knowing that he owned the cow."

"Twenty-five dollars," Hooker said.

"Twenty-six," Pa countered.

"Thirty," Hooker bid.

Pa got a look of exasperation in his face.

"I'm going to bid just once more," he declared, "on this heap of bones, and if this feller in the white hat opens his trap again he has vent and bought himself a skinny cow. Thirty-one dollars."

Jess Hooker grinned in triumph at the crowd and turned away.

"Sold," yelled the auctioneer, pointing his finger at Pa. "To the feller with the trick music."

The cowboys drove the cow and calf out and put a rope around her neck, and I noticed that one stood quietly while they did this, with that awful sad expression on her face.

Pa had nearly lifted the cow when Jess Hooker came out of the stockyard and grabbed the red cat.

"You should have bid in my calf while you were about it, Conway," he said. "Seeing you didn't make a sea out of it." "So," Pa said, red slow like. "You are Jess Hooker. You know as well as I do that when a cow is drove into an auction ring with a unswayed calf at her heels, the calf goes with the cow at the bid price."

"Not this time," Hooker said, wrinkling at the bystanders. "Eastern fellers like you, Conway, can't come out here and tell folks how to run an auction. The calf is mine. If you want it I'll cost you an extra ten dollars."

"So," Pa said quietly, "that's the way it is. I am a peaceable man and don't want no trouble, but take your hand off that calf."

Pa reached out and took Hooker's arm from around the calf's neck.

"Here it comes," I heard one of the onlookers say, and right then Jess Hooker moved like lightning. He grabbed Pa's wrist, whirled to get Pa's arm over his shoulder and threw Pa head over heels to the air.

Pa came down on the ground with a thump that tossed up so much dust that I could hardly see him, and out of the dust I heard Pa's yell of rage and knew that he had his Callahan blood up.

Pa booted up out of the dust and rammed into Hooker so hard that he drove him back against a sign that said that the Sandling Circus was coming to town. Pa grabbed Jess Hooker by the front of his vest. He twisted the vest and lifted Hooker clean off the ground against the sign. He drew back his big fist and shot it forward. Hooker jerked his face aside just in time and Pa's fist drove right through the sign.

"Don't play games with me," Pa yelled. "By gravity, I was here first. I'm a peaceable man, but sure as my name's Callahan I'll . . ."

"It was only joking," Hooker yelled. "The calf's yours, of course, Conway. Let me down man—let me down."

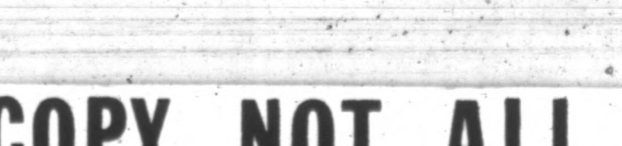

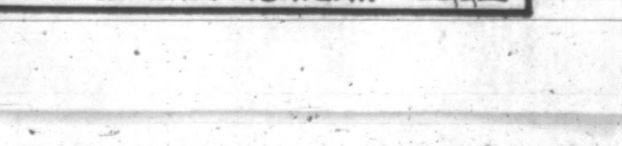

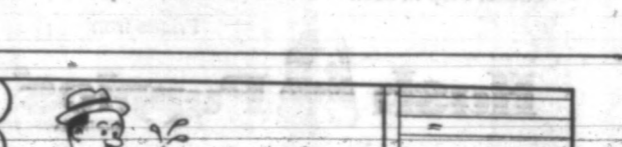

Pa let him down and Hooker stood there with his vest twisted and his pants jerked clean up on his legs, sort of shamefaced, as Pa walked back to pick up the cow's rope.

"Shoo that calf along," Pa said to me as he started leading the cow up the railroad tracks.

As we left I heard somebody say, "Check, I thought that eastern feller's name was Conway."

"Maybe," Pa said, looking at me out of the corners of his eyes. "I should have dickered with that feller a bit more peaceable like. But he got me riled. It don't pay to get riled, son, and don't let me catch you doing it, neither."

KINDERGARTEN

and the Board of Education. The room was to belong to the Board of Education, and the board was to furnish utilities and playground for the children. While moving into our beautiful new room we decided to go all the way and cast off the old furniture that we had been mending and repairing every year and purchase new tables, chairs, paint, mats, teacher's desk, file cabinet, and other supplies and equipment that would make our kindergarten one of the best equipped as well as modern.

Our real work came when we started planning projects to earn money to reduce our debt. During one club year (1964-1965) we prepared and served dinners for the Lions Club, Rotary Club, district P.T.A., sold Christmas Cards, sponsored a beauty contest for the County Fair and gave an amateur theatrical production called "Sigma Chaperes".

The Sigma Chaperes gave us our largest single income and although it took many hours of planning and work the Chaperes was a success and all proceeds were applied to our bank note. Not only did all our members and many husbands participate in the show, but we exhibited the talents of many others. Some of the senior members of our Women's Club performed as "Flappers" and prominent business men and city and county officials such as our Mayor and County Judge were clowns. Our debt has been reduced to $1500 at this time and another "Chaperes" is scheduled for October, 1966. We expect to pay off our debt completely from this event.

Kindergarten is in its second year in its new home and both sessions are always filled. The tuition for each child pays for the teacher's salaries, school insurance for each child, daily milk and crackers and weekly readers. The kindergarten secretary, a Sigma member, keeps the books and handles all the business.

We do not feel at all immodest in saying that every member of the Sigma Department has a right to feel proud at having undertaken a project of such magnitude and paying for it completely in the short span of two years.

Dear Abby

Wife Must Make a Choice

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am the same lady who wrote to you some time back telling you my relationship with my husband was very one-sided. You said we should go see a marriage counselor. Well, I showed your reply to my husband, and he said he was not going to any marriage counselor, that if I kept my big mouth shut we would get along just fine. How can a wife keep her mouth shut when her husband comes home from work with lipstick all over his shirt, and the smell of perfume so strong he could knock a person over? He sends her rights, and I can't see how a bartender can get that close to women if he stays on his side of the bar, can you? I used to go sit at his bar to keep an eye on him, but they don't have television there and I hate to miss Johnny Carson. What else can you suggest besides seeing a marriage counselor?

BOMBOR'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: I think it's more important for you to watch your husband than it is to watch Johnny Carson. (You could tote a portable TV to the bar and do both!)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WISHING ON A STAR"
IN ATLANTA: Don't expect him to call you. A man is not likely to run after a train he has already caught.

PROBLEMS? Write to Abby, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. For a personal reply, include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HATE MY NAME
DEAR HATES: If you're a girl, in due time some nice young man will come along and change it. So, until then, develop a "deaf" ear. If you're a boy, develop a good left hook.

DEAR ABBY: In your column I read: "Consider your mother. She better off in a rest home than living with a daughter who doesn't love her." I would add, "And consider the daughter who knows better than her husband how she and
