James Gantt

Starting stupidly out the window yesterday morning when all of a sudden here comes this full grown rabbit. He was really picking them up and laying them down.

We wondered what his hurry was that early in the morning and this question was soon answered when we saw two dogs come into view. They had their noses glued to the ground and were hot on his trail. The last we saw of the dogs they were still going south.

About five minutes later here came the rabbit, jumping slowly along going north again. He was in no hurry this time. He had simply eluded the dogs, cut back on his trail, then leisurely made his way back home.

Spotted that big hawk again Monday evening. He was sailing along just outside the woods line looking for supper. Just imagine, if you will, the amazing structure of the hawk's eye. When he is way up in the air his eyes are tele scope. He can see a field mouse a hundred yards away. So he dives on the poor mouse, and what happens to his eyes. They merely change with the distance and he can focus all the way to the ground. By the time he gets to the mouse, his eyes change to vision somewhat like our own so he can see his prey clearly.

We never cease to be amazed at Supreme Court rulings. They are not only amusing, they are downright tragic.

Scouts Follow Rugged Road In The Cold

"Follow the rugged road" became more than just a challenge to Boy Scout Troop 45 last weekend; it became a reality.

Equipped with sleeping bags, blankets and other winter clothing, thirty-five scouts and five leaders spent the weekend on a camping trip and hike at the Columbus-Bellmont State Park on the banks of the Mississippi River.

After surviving Friday night of camping in zero degree weather on the bluffs of the Mississippi River, thirty-four scouts completed the twenty-mile hike in weather that finally reached 20 degrees.

This was not the first time many boys in the troop have braved the weather as they have never left the chill of winter stop a camping trip. Eleven campers took the second night of camping much easier as the night time temperature warmed up to 13 degrees.

The George Rogers Clark Trace is an approved Boy Scout Hiking Trail under the supervision of the Four Rivers Council.

The frostbitten leaders of this "Polar Bear Camp" were Ed Vessey, Bill Donan, Don Sutherland, Maj. Robert Waters and Bonnie Simmons. Bill Donan and Ed Vessey are students at Murray State serving as assistant scoutmasters for the troop.

WILLIAM F. FOSTER

WESTERN Kentucky and the State lost a strong personage yesterday in the death of W. F. Foster of Mayfield.

He has remained as a central figure in Western Kentucky industrial, civic and political life for a number of years.

Perhaps one of Mr. Foster's greatest attributes is that he proved that a young man of initiative, ability and merit could climb in the business world. He joined the clothing industry in Mayfield as an office boy and through his business acumen, initiative and industrious behavior rose to head the giant Merit Clothing Company which today hires about 2500 persons.

He was born in a log cabin southeast of Mayfield.

Mr. Foster won many honors during his lifetime and was a member of many boards on the area and state level. Perhaps the one honor which he cherished the most was one he received last year when he was the 1966 recipient of the Horatio Alger award in New York City.

Mr. Foster was known by many local people and in November of 1965 he was the featured speaker for the Chamber of Commerce annual dinner.

The removal from the civic, industrial and political scene in Western Kentucky of such a strong individual as Mr. Foster, will be felt for many years to come.

A BIT FROM THE BIBLE

By GEORGE M. LANDIS

Text: "The Spirit of the LORD is upon me, because He hath anointed Me to preach the gospel to the poor; He hath sent Me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and opening of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised" (Luke 4:18).

In his first recorded sermon by the Lord Jesus, He addressed Himself to five great needs of the sinner: the bankrupt, the broken hearted, the bound, the blind and the bruised.

Perhaps you are wondering how He could do all this. Let us consider what it cost Him to be able to meet all these needs of sinful man. That there might be a gospel to preach to the poor, the bankrupt, "though He was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor, that ye through His poverty might be rich. From the time He was born in a stable until He was buried in a borrow sepulchre, poverty marked His career on earth.

To heal the broken hearted, He endured every disappointment, even being forsaken by God Himself, as He says prophetically in the words of the Psalmist: "Reproach hath broken my heart; and I am full of heaviness; and I looked for some to take pity, and there was none.

Book From Alcoholic Is Aid To Women

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

United Press International
NEW YORK AP - A woman uncovers the top from a bottle or lets out the cork. She goes on an alcoholic foot.

The noise isn't heard 'round the world. But it would help if her silent pleas for aid were heard.

What happens, though, is this: She drinks until the booze leaves innumerable tracks on her anatomy.

To give signal to the blind, let us remember the words of Luke: "And when they had blindfolded Him, they struck Him on the face, and asked Him, saying, 'Prophesy who is it that smote Thee?'"

That He might heal those bruised by sin, remember the words of Isaiah: For He was wounded for our transgressions. He was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon Him, and with His stripes we are healed. He was scourged, smitten with a reed, and pierced by thorns, nails and sweat. What a price to pay for our redemption! What a debt we owe Him!

O Head, so full of bruises, so full of pain and scorn, 'Midst other sore abuses, Mocked with a crown of thorn! Healed ere now surrounded With brightest majesty; In death once bowed and wounded, Accused on the tree."

name? No one knows her name, come to think of it. But she's written a book under the pseudonym of Patricia Kent. But she's been through the ordeal of alcohol.

Shattered Life
Her book—"An American Woman and Alcohol" Hot, Rhinehart Winston—takes the reader through the smashed life of a woman who couldn't free herself from the grip of liquor.

In every other paragraph is the red flag for other women who might be on the same track. It goes like this: seek help. From your minister, priest, rabbi. From your doctor, dentist or psychologist. Whatever you do, don't keep it to yourself.

This woman who wrote this book has been on the grand slide into nothing. Because she made it to the bottom of the barrel and hid to work herself out of it, she felt compelled to write this book.

selecting it is an experience to any woman who likes to look in the mirror and tell herself that those three martinis bought before a cocktail party don't really show.

"Half-Yale Sighs"
"The ravages of alcohol are far worse than the ravages of time," Miss Kent says. "It can turn a 30-year-old woman into a 40-year-old woman into an old woman. And it doesn't take long."

The sights as she documents them: Skin peels loose, taken on a sick yellow-grey. Pores enlarge. Nails break. Odd blemishes appear. Your speech, you haven't noticed but friends have, becomes hoarse. Movements become jerky. Floating appears about the chin and the waist.

Miss Kent has been through it. And she came out of it.

If you are having a problem, she suggests you seek help at once. Otherwise, she maintains, you're on a collision course with outside on the installment plan.

Vocational Education is offered to youth and adults in high schools and area vocational-technical schools.

WHERE THE ACTION IS

SIX MAJOR OFFENSIVES in the stepped-up ground strife in South Vietnam are these "Operations..."

SEEN & HEARD

(Continued From Page One) ally has to have a lawyer with him even if he is hauled out of a bank vault with his booty...

The criminal has to be advised of his rights, or the whole thing is illegal.

What makes it so ridiculous is that a fellow killed his wife and five children the other day and he was freed because he was not told of his rights.

Yesterday we read that a young man raped a 71 year old woman and he went scot-free because he was not advised of his rights.

The Supreme Court has gone off into pure theory and as a result the rights of the victim have been lost in the shuffle.

The wife and five children surely had some rights, but they have been twisted until they protect the criminal.

Our laws should protect the victim or potential victim, but they have been twisted until they protect the criminal.

And don't think the criminal is not quick to latch on to this new found "right". After a law officer has read those "rights" to a suspect, this tip him off and makes him realize that he has an "out".

It is for rulings such as this that the Supreme Court has reached a new low in the sight of people. When we were a kid, the Supreme Court represented the heights of integrity, common sense, and good law.

We got our license plates yesterday. Paul Daily, Jr. signed. We should have been an early bird, but you know how things are. You keep putting them off until you find yourself there with a bunch of other folks who have been putting it off too.

Human nature is the same as it was five thousand years ago. After the Lord has watched people since the beginning of time, He has them pretty well figured out.

Well, at least we obeyed the law. We'll have them by March 1, and that's pretty good even if we did just barely get under the wire.

Lady the dog gets all shook up if Sport looks into the living room from the back porch. Sport just stands there and gazes into the living room, much to the great frustration of Lady. Lady figures the carport is the place for Sport, but Sport has other ideas.

Kentucky Women's Club Sponsors Art Talent Contest

The deadline for the art talent contest for high school seniors sponsored by the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs is March 15, 1967. Mrs. Sam Berry, Jr., district executive, announced today.
The Kentucky winner will compete for one of three national scholarships offered by Hallmark Cards, Inc., Kansas City, Mo. The scholarships of $1,000, $750, and $500 are for tuition and fees at the college, university, or art school selected by the student. Alternates will be selected and in the event any of the top three winners cannot take advantage of their scholarships, the alternates will move up.
The competition is open to seniors at public or private schools who will enter college or university in the fall of 1967. Mrs. Berry said. Students should enter through an affidavit clip in their home town or school district. If that is impossible, entries will be accepted by state officials.
A jury of judges will select the winning painting to represent Kentucky in the national competition. This is the 15th year the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the firm have co-sponsored the event. More than three million students have competed since 1953 with 45 winning scholarships.

Tips Help Family Figure Net Worth

NEW YORK — Even if you don't know the old math or the new so well, you can figure your net worth the way family finance counselors do.
Simply list all assets, then liabilities. Subtract the latter from the former and you have the net worth.
If the accumulation is less than you think you need, says the Foundation for Commercial Banks, this "can spur you on toward better money management. If it's more than you thought, perhaps you can stop worrying so much and start devoting yourself to living a life.
To get the picture of what you own, divide possessions into three categories — fixed assets, equities, and miscellaneous assets.
Fixed assets include cash on hand, money in checking and savings accounts, current value of U.S. savings bonds held, current cash value of life insurance. Annuities and retirement funds also have a cash value. And if the wage-earner's firm has a retirement plan, there is a current cash value there, too.
Equities include the home. The entry here should be its current market value. What other houses of similar size in the neighborhood are selling for is probably the best guide. Other entries in this category: mutual fund shares, stocks, bonds. List here, too, any real estate of business investments.
Miscellaneous assets include the car. A new car depreciates about 30 per cent the first year, between 15 and 20 per cent the second, and about 10 per cent the third. List all other personal property — furniture, appliances, china and silver, jewelry, any collections of value, sports equipment. Mark down what they would sell for now, not the original price paid.
Looking to the other side of the ledger, there is the liabilities heading. Divide these into current charges and time payments.
Unpaid bills go into the current charges category. Include payments due on charge accounts and credit card accounts. If installments on income taxes are due, list them. Ditto for real estate taxes.
The full amount owed on long-term loans goes into the time payment category. List installment plan balances, outstanding loans against insurance, any bank loans. Add mortgage balance.

"Whatever our tastes, we should stand up and live use our eyes and ears and feel things and perceive all that is around us," the speaker added.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Phillip Mitchell, Mrs. Mildred Carman, Mrs. James Doane, Mrs. John Paaco, Mrs. W. J. Pittman, Mrs. William M. Porter and Mrs. Gladys Revere.

Dear Abby

Circumstances Can Change the Picture
By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: I was invited to spend a week-end at a friend's home. I arrived on Saturday morning and spent a lovely day with my hostess and her husband.
On Sunday morning I came down to find something to eat. All this time my hostess was upstairs sleeping. Since I was an invited guest, was it not up to her to get breakfast for me? Or have times changed?
DEAR WONDERING: Times have not changed. Common sense still transcends protocol and etiquette. Something should have been said about plans for breakfast before you retired. But since it wasn't: Why there a restaurant across the street? Or were you out in the wilderness? Did you have a car? Or were you stranded?
Was your hostess young and healthy, and not elderly and ailing? Or per chance was your hostess elderly and ailing? Or were you young and healthy? Circumstances would determine my answer. Fill me in and I'll tell you what I think.
DEAR ABBY: How does a man get rid of a woman he doesn't love? I have lived with my wife for 18 years and have given her every ease in the book to throw me out, but she keeps on "forgiving" me. We have three kids who are getting the worst of it because I can't keep my mind on being a good father. I keep telling my wife I don't love her, never did, and CAN'T love her, but she says she loves me anyway - no matter what. I have told her I am having my fun and she should have hers, but she doesn't see it that way. I really think she's a mental case, but I don't dare tell her that because she'll accuse me of trying to put her in the state hospital just to get rid of her. What can I do?
DEAR ABBY: I don't know whether your wife is more intent on punishing YOU or herself, but whichever it is, she is yours, forevermore. So relax and enjoy it.
DEAR CO-WORKERS: She was anyone who would exit so abruptly after nine years because she didn't get a "going away present" gave you one. Her departure.

Bunning, who has recorded 19 victories in each of his three seasons with the Philadelphia Phillies, became the highest salaried player in the club's history Monday when he signed for an estimated $80,000.

Two other pitchers had reason to celebrate Monday but for different reasons. Left-hander Steve Barber of the Baltimore Orioles and right-hander Jim Bouton of the New York Yankees tested their sore arms and both were aglow with optimism.

"The arm feels great," he said. "Nothing like it did the last two springs. I have picked up right where I left off last fall and unless I get hit by a truck I'll be back as a winner."
