Nixon Will Meet With Advisors

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon today marshaled his top foreign policy and military advisors in Hawaii for Sunday's descent upon Midway Island and a summit conference with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Sparks indicated he sees nothing beyond reach in the proposal. The committee, which now consists of seven members, was created following a disturbance in a women's residence hall May 13.

Life Raft With Men Aboard Is Spotted In Bering Sea

TOKYO (UPI) — The crew of an American search plane today reported spotting a life raft in the Bering Sea with four or five men aboard, probably survivors from a Strategic Air Command RC135 that crashed three days ago.

The Japanese Maritime Safety Agency said it had received a message from the U.S. search plane pinpointing the raft's location so Japanese fishing vessels in the area could go to it quickly. The fishing boats were en route, the announcement said.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:
One of the contestants in the Indianapolis 500 mile race in 1912 was an ex-farmer. While he was just a nobody among a collection of world-famous drivers, he had that inherent dream of youth of winning the race and becoming famous himself. If fame was to be his, this was not the day for him to acquire it. Before the race was half run, he had to quit. As he rolled back to the pit in his cheap little car, depressed and discouraged, a grizzled old mechanic walked over to him. "I know you think you're a failure—a quitter, son," the old man said kindly. "Maybe you think you'll never be a driver because you couldn't finish in your first big race. Well, I've been around a long time and I can tell a dare-devil when I see one. You're going to be one. Don't ever quit, no matter what the odds may be."

The boy took the advice and entered other races and he never quit again. Before too long he had passed, he was the auto speed king of America and his name was immortalized.

Spiritualists Assembling Again in Lily Dale, N.Y.

The plaque commemorates the Fox Sisters of Lily Dale. A guide, Kenneth Cross, holds a cone used to reproduce sounds which the sisters recognized as messages from the spirit world.

By BERTHA Y. KRAMER
Written especially for Central Press and This Newspaper
MEDIUMS from all over the world come to Lily Dale, N.Y., for an eight-week session from June through August.

The religion of Modern Spiritualism is the belief that the dead survive as spirits, which can communicate with the living through a medium. Mental and spiritual healing are prominent factors.

This 90th Assembly of Lily Dale is offering a summer program consisting of lectures, demonstrations, study. Classes will be held in clairvoyance and thought exchange.

NEAR the wooded area is the Fox Cottage, which is called the birthplace of Spiritualism. Here the Fox sisters, Katy and Margaret, lived. Through their mediums, communication with the spirit world was established.

THE SCENE of this center for the religion of Spiritualism is a spectacle of natural beauty. 16 miles from Chautauque Lake, eight miles from Lake Erie, Spring waters form a chain of lakes.

Income Tax Questions and Answers

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q - I didn't have to file an estimated return in April but you mailed me a reminder notice about the June installment. Do I have to pay anything?
A - If you do not meet the requirements for filing an estimated tax declaration please ignore the notice. Reminder notices for the June 16 installment were sent to all those who were mailed the new estimated tax packages in February based on possible liability for payment.

Q - I've moved since I mailed my tax return. Will my refund check be sent to my new address?
A - Your refund check will be forwarded if you have left a change of address with the post office at your old address. If you did not, you should notify your IRS Service Center.

Q - I've heard all your taxes have to be paid before IRS will let you leave the country. Is that right?
A - U. S. citizens are not required to obtain tax clearance when going abroad. However, many aliens are required to obtain a tax clearance before their departure from the U. S.

Q - I teach and plan to go to summer school. Can I deduct the cost of my courses?
A - Generally, educational expenses are deductible if they are expressly required by your employer or if they are necessary to maintain or improve your skills in your present position.

Q - We are expecting our first child next month. When can we start taking a withholding exemption for the baby?
A - You can make a change in your withholding anytime after the child is born by filing a new Form W-4.

Q - What records do I need for tax purposes on gifts to charity?
A - To substantiate a charitable deduction, you will have to show the amount of the gift, the date and the name of the organization.

Q - For additional details send a post card to your district director requesting a free copy of Publication 505, Income Tax Deductions for Contributions.

Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial, Begun in 1923, Now Nearing Completion

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga.—The nation's largest sculpture, begun more than 45 years ago and thrice interrupted, is being completed this summer on Stone Mountain, dubbed "the world's largest piece of exposed granite."

THE LEGISLATURE stipulated completion of the sculptured project which was suggested in 1914 by the United Daughters of the Confederacy. The women's organization felt that Stone Mountain, estimated to be more than 200 million years old, was just the place to memorialize the Civil War and the Confederate leaders.

THE FARM BUREAU is on record as favoring the strike ban, and consumers have good cause for joining with the Bureau in requesting legislation with this provision. The overall farm union drive is not in the interest of 200 million U. S. consumers.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing
EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT
Southern States Industrial Council

THE ADMINISTRATION'S COURSE

Consumer's Rights Threatened
The danger of union violence being carried to the supermarkets and grocery stores of the nation is far greater than most people realize. Legislation now before the Congress may determine whether this violence is to be prevented and whether consumer rights are to be protected in future.

Farm union organizers are working overtime to get a tight grip on agricultural production and veto powers over what farm products are offered for sale at retail outlets. Farm unionists in California grape - growing areas have demonstrated what lies ahead for consumers if unionists have their way.

Clearly, the public has cause for concern about this situation. Among those who already are deeply concerned to the point of doing something about the situation is State Senator Lorraine Beebe of Michigan. Senator Beebe, who is chairman of the Consumer's Rights Committee, recently said it is "only a matter of time before supermarkets and grocery stores are faced with demands to remove any number of thousands of items carried on grocery shelves: cherries from Michigan, oranges from Florida, dairy products from Wisconsin, and brand name products of all kinds."

the Rev. Wayne Hartmire, director of the California Migrant Ministry. He urged boycott supporters to "make a scene every time you are served tablegrapes in restaurants, camps, church dinners, etc." Misguided church groups, such as the controversial National Council of Churches, have become deeply involved in the California grape situation on the side of the union bosses.
In view of the danger of outright union violence and intimidation of grocery store operators, it is imperative that Congress pass protective legislation. Senator George Murphy (R-Calif.) has introduced a bill to that end.

TVA NEWS LETTER

Manpower training for jobs in the forest products industry has expanded rapidly in the Tennessee Valley since 1965, according to a new TVA report, but more training programs are needed to fill the predicted need for skilled workers in this field.
The report, covering the first phase of a manpower training survey, shows a large number of Tennessee Valley technical, vocational and high schools offering courses related to the forest industry, TVA said. A second phase of the study will assess the industry's training needs from the industry manager's viewpoint.

The number of trainees in the region now totals about 300 a year, the report says, but this is far from adequate in view of the estimated 50,000 additional trained workers needed by the end of this century.

The Forestry and Wood Technician School at Quicksand, Kentucky, trains forestry and engineering aides in a two-year course, also woodworking equipment operators in short courses.
Northwest Alabama State Junior College, at Phil Campbell, began training technicians in forest production and harvesting in 1968. Haywood Technical Institute at Clyde, North Carolina, has or will have two-year technician programs in forest management, wildlife management, forest recreation, and primary wood utilization. This same school will also train sawyers, saw fillers, kilo operators, and lumber inspection as soon as a sawmill laboratory complex is completed. Three other North Carolina technical schools are Wayne Community College, Goldsboro; Caldwell Technical Institute, Lenoir; and Chatwa Valley Technical Institute, Hickory.

A number of vocational and trade schools offer classes in carpentry, cabinet making, and furniture upholstery. The American Pulpwood Association sponsored pulpwood harvesting courses in 60 southern high schools in 1968, and twice that many this year. There are also a number of adult education programs including wood carving, upholstering, furniture making, etc. Almost all segments of the timber industry have active associations working toward full development of the forest resource, and many of them are also interested in training. The Manpower Development Training Act of 1962 provides for training and retraining in skill areas where job openings trol forest and rangeland fires, also is proving effective as a fire retardant for lumber. Fire tests of wood impregnated with diluted 11-37-0 fertilizer are described in a paper now available from TVA, Muscle Shoals, Alabama.

The tests were a joint project of the U. S. Forest Service Forest Products Laboratory and TVA's National Fertilizer Development Center.

Black Bass Can Be Taken In Mid-Summer But They Must Be Pampered

By HOPE CARLETON

"Catch black bass all summer long!" Most bass fishermen will find that hard to believe. However, a small and dedicated group each year, from June through August, harvests from Kentucky waters many fine strings of these gallant game fish.

Most bass fishermen will only ply their skills during the spring and fall periods when bass are most active. During these two seasons the blacks feed over longer spans of time and also water temperatures and colorations help to make bass fishing productive.

Catching bass during the summer is a real test of skill and patience. During the day the waters of the major lakes usually are being whipped into a foam by the heavy boating activities and when the sun is high and the tourists are taking in a lot of sunshine in connection with their boating pleasures, that's the time for a summer bass fisherman to take refuge in a quiet, air-conditioned motel or lodge to sleep.

Then in late afternoon the sleepy fisherman should arise from his long and restful slumber, bathe and eat a hardy meal, fill the thermos jugs with an ample supply of coffee and pack sandwiches for a midnight snack. The best fishing at this time of year takes place from about the time the sun begins to set until the sun's rays hit the water the next morning.

There is very little activity by the boating public during the night and as the waters begin to calm down and darkness approaches bass will move out from their places of hiding and search for food.

Bass fishermen now have a wide range of angling methods to practice during this ten to 12 hour period. Top to bottom fishing is the choice and when the right combination has been found, strikes and good battles will result.

In the late evening or early morning just before or right after darkness, surface lure fishing may be just the trick to produce fast action.

These lures come in a wide variety of shapes and colors and are to be fished in such a manner as to cause the bass to believe what they are seeing is an injured minnow, sluggish frog or stalled bug. The fisherman who masters the technique of working these lures in such a manner as not to scare off the bass but to entice him to rise and strike the tantalizing lure will catch the most fish.

The lures with spinners are most often fished too fast. The lure should be cast to the desired spot, allowed to stay where it fell until all ruffles have died away. Then, with the slightest twitch to the rod tip, the fisherman allows the spinners to turn over only a couple of turns and again waits until the water has become still. Once again the spinners are put into motion by the slightest de-

Each surface lure has its own action and other enticements for fish. It may be that only one of the series of surface lures will tempt a black bass on a given trip.

The lead headed lures equipped with either hair or feathers with a pork rind, too, are highly effective when bounced along the bottom.

Some of the likely spots to try the plastic worms or doll flies are over sunken islands, steep drop-offs, points and where submerged rocks and stumps are found.

Some lures are equipped with long lips that allow the bait to run deep and have a built-in action. When these are allowed to bump and bounce along the bottom, stirring up trash, they will often produce violent strikes from feeding bass.

The weighted spinner-equipped lures will run at whatever depth desired by the angler. When allowed to sink to the bottom, from ten to 30 feet deep, and retrieved slowly along the bottom, good catches are expected.

So in summer fishing the fellow who harvests fine strings of bass must fish from dusk through the night and into the early morning. And he must try top to bottom lures. If he does this, he'll be pretty apt to catch black bass all summer long.

be allowed enough time.

Creepers and Crawlers: These lures are usually fished on the very bottom. Those fished with spinners also are effective lures. Some have built-in action while others are given their action by the maneuvers of the fisherman.

New Color Series Is Announced

Washington, D. C. - The National Wildlife Federation has teamed up with Burrud Enterprises to produce a new color television series "Animal World" now appearing on the CBS television network Thursday nights at 7:30 p.m. EDT.

"Animal World" is a documentary of the world's exotic, unique and often endangered wildlife. Many years in preparation, the series is the product of four camera crews ranging the globe to film the whole spectrum of wildlife, from cougars in Utah to the "Strange Creatures of Galapagos."

The series premiered May 8 on CBS with "Adventure Antarctica" which was highlighted by spectacular, unique footage of a giant leopard seal crashing up through the polar ice to capture a penguin for lunch. Future programs such as "Mexican Grizzlies," "Pelican World" and "Seals of Pribiloff" contain unique footage telling the story of some of the world's most interesting creatures.

"Animal World" - Schedule of Shows for the CBS Run - 7:30 p.m. EDT.

May 8, "Adventure Antarctica"; 15, "Rison Roundup"; 22, "Sharks" (W. Marineland); 29, "Amboseli: Struggle for Survival" (Kenya).

June 5, "Mexican Grizzly" (Mexico); 12, "Creatures of the Nile" (Uganda); 19, "Killer Cougar" (Utah); 26, "Winged Treasure of the Jungle" (Ecuador Birds).

July 3, "Killer Cats" (World Wide); 10, "Waylego" (New Zealand Sheep Dog); 17, "Life Down Under" (Australian Barrier Reef); 24, "Pelican World" (Utah); 31, "Jaguar".

August 7, "To Catch A Deer" (New Zealand); 14, "Hollywood's Animal Stars"; 21, "Guardian Angels"; 28, "Raccoon Story"; Sept. 4, "Seals of Pribiloff"; 11, "Strange Creatures of Galapagos"; 18, "Looney Gooney" (Midway).

Take time to be careful...the Corps of Engineers wants all boaters to enjoy the lakes, again and again. Obey safety rules and know your boat. Take time to balance all loads from bow to stern and from side to side. If you enjoy boating, use safe practices...stick around to enjoy this activity for a long, long time.

Never take chances on the weather, especially if you're boating. Weather can be as unpredictable as a woman when it involves large bodies of water. Don't gamble that a summer storm will blow over or go around...play it safe...don't take chances.

Ever try to save a drowning person? Do yourself—and the person—a favor...don't try to be a hero. Try to throw the person something which will keep him afloat, or can be used to pull him ashore. A rope, articles of clothing, an oar, a tree branch...anything which will reach him will save his life. If he is too far out for you to reach, use a boat to go to his aid, then let him hold to the boat and pull him ashore. Swim to him, or take hold of him only as a last resort; because he is likely to pull you beneath the surface. Stay calm—and save two lives.

There's a time to stand up and be counted...but not in a boat. Jumping up or moving about in a moving boat is inviting disaster. Never walk in your boat unless it is absolutely necessary...your life depends on it. When you must stand, be careful, try to stay low. Remember, a sudden motion may throw you over the side. So keep your seat and stay alive.

Be sure the load in your boat is balanced. By placing equipment carefully, you can avoid hazards. Remember, too, never exceed the load limit of your boat. It is better to leave something behind than to overload. A little care in the present is an investment in the future. Take Safety With You.

If your boat capsizes, stay with it...it's your best bet for survival. Don't try to swim to shore. A boat filled with water or turned over—even an ear-will support you until help can arrive.

Don't panic...caution is the one thing that will save your life. Use reason, stay with the boat and try to attract attention—it's the safest thing to do.

Water sports are great...but careless "sports" on water are deadly. When you're tempted to do something that seems a little foolish stop and think...then forget those foolish things. Think and Live. Don't let a tragic accident mar your enjoyment of the water.

The more the merrier...but not when boating. The load limit of your boat depends upon conditions. Use common sense when making your decisions. Your boat won't necessarily carry as many people as there are seats. So keep things merry—don't overload your boat.

How Much Do You Know About Bass?

How much do you know about bass? If you want to see how your knowledge of bass stacks up with the experts, try the following quiz which comes to us from Dick Kotler. Score yourself 20 points for each correct answer, and subtract 25 points for each one you miss. A score of 500 puts you among the experts and 300 is average. If you score 100 or under just go fishing and don't worry about answering questions.

- Smallmouth bass are most often found in waters with a) gravelly b) muddy bottoms
- Largemouth bass are more likely to be found over muddy bottoms than are smallmouth bass
- The black bass family is commonly divided into three species, smallmouth, largemouth, and a) male b) female
- The nest of the largemouth bass is guarded by the a) male b) female
- Surface plugs are generally more productive for bass if worked a) slow b) fast
- A five-pound female largemouth bass will lay about a) 2,000 b) 25,000 c) 50,000 d) 250,000 eggs per year
- The surest way to tell a smallmouth from largemouth bass is a) teeth on the tongue b) jawbone lines up with eye c) dorsal fin of smallmouth not as deeply notched in middle as is that of largemouth
- The world record smallmouth is closest to a) 9 b) 12 c) 13 d) 22 pounds
- Bass tend to take on the color of the water where they live
- The world record largemouth bass was caught in a) Georgia b) Florida c) Kentucky

Ever heard that it's never late until two...then it's too late? Well, it's too late to discover how far you can swim when you've reached your limit. Never try to see how far you can swim by trying to swim across a large body of water—like a lake. Never swim alone. Never swim into areas where help cannot be given if you need it. Don't forget—your life depends on it. If you swim only so far—then it's too late to start back.

"Be prepared"...just like the Boy Scouts...be prepared for boating emergencies. ALWAYS keep a life jacket handy. NEVER place other equipment on your life jacket, or bury it under fishing gear. The Corps of Engineers reminds you to be careful at all times when boating—but when an emergency arises—be prepared. Have your life jacket where you can use it.

Quotes From The News

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. — Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais, who led his troops up Hamburger Hill, defending the right of congressmen to criticize the bloody battle: "I think that anybody... the military... would be quite remiss if he felt our congressmen and our elected officials had to be muzzled."

SAN FRANCISCO — Mayor Joseph Alioto, dedicating a 13 foot statue of St. Francis, cast partly from 2,000 guns turned in by citizens following the slaying of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy: "Guns melted to a symbol of peace become an instrument of peace."

CYPRESS, Calif. — Rev. Reynolds S. Ven Omu Kirk, president of the Los Alamitos Rossmore Ministerial Association, raising a decision to leave undraped a replica of Michelangelo's statue of David: "If the statue is unclean it's in the mind of the beholder."

IRVINE, Calif. — Dr. Leroy Voris, of the Federal Food and Nutrition Board, recommending frying bacon and eggs in an iron frying pan as a way to supply the body with needed iron: "While you gradually eat away the frying pan along with the bacon and eggs, your nutrition will probably improve."

Down the Garden Path

By Mrs. W. P. WILLIAMS

Several people in Paris have complained of having trouble with Aszales leaf gall, a grayish hard fungus on the ends of the twigs of the plants. I called Mr. Curtis Shearon, Agricultural Agent for the County as I didn't know what to do about it. He says that the only thing to do now is to pinch off the gall and burn it or put it in a tight container in the garbage can.

The best method of control is to prevent it. This can be done in the early spring just as the new leaves are beginning to unfold. The plants should be sprayed with Bordeaux Mixture, 3-3, or either of two preparations called Zineb or Maneb.

The galls disfigure a plant and are quite heavy. They will pull the small twigs down with their weight. I don't know whether they will actually kill an azalea or not but they will certainly not help it in looks or vitality.

The Assistant Pathologist at the U. T. Extension Department at Knoxville says they are called Pinkster Apples and are actually good to eat. But please don't call me for a recipe as I don't believe I would relish such a dish.

One of the delightful plants for partly shady places is any one of the Hosta family. Of Eastern Asiatic origin, we are told that a study of Japanese art will emphasize the usefulness of the Hosta or Plantain Lily.

Some of these have clear green leaves and some have wide margins or stripes of white. Blossoms of the plants are lilac or white and most of them are very fragrant.

But I think the foliage is as attractive as the blooms, especially those of the Indulista variety, with rather small leaves and low growth. The leaves of this kind are twisted and splashed with white and are most decorative. The leaves of this sort can add spice to any arrangement.

Hybridizing has brought greater variety and hobbyists are looking forward to an even wider selection of types in the future.

Dappled shade is fine and plants of strong growth need rich soil. With plenty of moisture and good soil they will respond with a wealth of beauty for the entire season.

The one threat is that in moist, shady places slugs may abound. A poison bait consisting of one ounce of calcium arsenate to sixteen ounces of bran mixed well and slightly moistened, will be effective if scattered evenly over the surface of infested areas. Cleaning up any rotting vegetation; weeds or rubbish of any kind will discourage them.

We find there are over 40 species of Hosta, but only a few are supplied by nurseries. But among these few are some very lovely varieties that will add much to a border or a shady spot where many other sun-loving plants would not do well. Try some this year and enjoy the wonderful foliage in your yard and in your home.

Piano Pupils Of Mrs. R. L. Wade Have Special Party

Mrs. R. L. Wade, piano teacher, closed the year's work by entertaining her students at her home on West Main Street.

Each of the students played one or more selections from memory. The class was divided into groups according to the number of years they had been taught. The one with the most memory work received large musical statuettes, the second received musical plaques, and the others were given smaller statuettes.

Receiving the large musical statuettes were Mary Ann Wheatley, first year; Susan Rogers, second year; Jimmy Burken, third year; Patsy Burken, fourth year; Tommy Parrish, fifth year.

Second place winners were Penny Wheatley, first year; Beverly Rogers and Glenda Scarborough, second year; Barbara Sled, fourth year.

Others were Kevin Vaughn, Rhonda Sled, Gregg Vaughn, Guy Stinson, and Cheryl Milam. Jimmy Burken and Jimmy Cain were unable to attend the event.

Arrangements of flowers were used throughout the house. A social hour was held with refreshments of white frosted cupcakes decorated with musical notes and symbols, cookies, nuts, and pink punch being served by Mrs. Wade, assisted by Patsy Burken and Barbara Sled.

Letter To Editor

(Continued From Page One) name was a household word. When World War I broke out, he learned to fly and became America's ace aviator. He was shot down time and time again, but he survived each time.

When peace returned, he came home hailed as a National hero. When World War II broke out, although he was past the fighting age, he worked for the government in another capacity. While flying on a secret mission, he was forced down at sea and for twenty-five days drifted on a life raft on the vast Pacific Ocean. Almost miraculously he was rescued and saved from a watery grave at sea.

After the war he once again returned to accept a challenge — that of running a large airline.

Even now, over 55 years later, and after his inauspicious participation in the "Indianapolis 500", people remember the name of "Captain" Eddie Rick-enbacker.

Thank you for listening C. Barnhart Hardin, Ky.

Dog License Tags On Sale July 1st

FRANKFORT — Agriculture Commissioner J. Robert Miller has announced dog license tags for the 1969-70 fiscal year will officially go on sale at county court houses July 1, although some counties may have them earlier.

Counties which have vaccination clinics for dogs in June will sell license tags at the clinics.

Counties are requested to meet two basic requirements in order to sell the tags. They are urged to employ a dog warden to issue tags, investigate claims and impound stray dogs; and establish an animal shelter or dog pound.

The annual license fee of $1.50 is broken up in the following manner: 25 cents is retained by the warden making the sale; 50 cents is refunded to the county for operation of the dog law program; and the remaining 75 cents is deposited in the State Livestock Fund after the department's administrative costs are deducted. The Livestock Fund is to reimburse property owners for damages caused by unknown or unclaimed dogs.

Kennel tags are $10 per year for a kennel less than 10 dogs and $15 annually for a larger kennel. Single tags will be yellow and kennel tags will be green.

The new tags will expire June 30, 1970.

Jonkridge and the Japanese ship Shioi Maru joined two U.S. Coast Guard cutters and 10 Navy planes in the search area, about 700 miles from the Soviet mainland and 800 miles from Alaska.

Winds reported at 30 miles an hour there, with seas running eight to 10 feet and the cloud ceiling hanging low at 1,000 feet — not ideal conditions for a search at sea. There had been no clues prior to the reported sighting of the life raft.

Hughes has been a member of the Murray Rotary Club since 1947 and is a past president of the club.
