By DAVID MOFFIT JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. (UPI) - Atlanta Falcons football coach Norm Van Brocklin isn't out to win any popularity contests.

Shrine All-Star Game Will Be Played At Stanford

SAN FRANCISCO UPI - The Shrine East-West college football classic, pitting most of the nation's leading players in the oldest All-Star Game of them all, will be played in the 87,000 seat Stanford Stadium this year.

Saturday's schedule will feature six interleague games, highlighted by the world champion New York Jets' trip to St. Louis to take on the NFL Cardinals and Weeb Ewbank's son-in-law, Cardinal Coach Charley Winner.

There's no reason for him to be ashamed of it. True it isn't much but it's a marked improvement over the explosive 135 he fashioned all last year with Detroit.

There is no guarantee the East-West game will come back to Candlestick even after the park has been renovated and expanded.

When the trade winds blow, our Rebels must go.

We must make room for the 1970 cars. Our intermediate-size Rebels have been priced lower than many compact models all year long. Right now during our Trade Winds Sale, you can own a big, roomy Rebel for less money than ever before.

There's no reason for him to be ashamed of it. True it isn't much but it's a marked improvement over the explosive 135 he fashioned all last year with Detroit.

Observers are having to draw their own conclusions about Falcon prospects for 1969. The fact that Van Brocklin is the coach does tell us one thing: They'll put a lot more emphasis on their offense than during their first three seasons.

There's no guarantee the East-West game will come back to Candlestick even after the park has been renovated and expanded.

My Psalm

The clinched fist and the hesitating step show the danger which doubtless has caused this heart to throb. But the face is lighted by the silver lining and hope and trust will drive out the fear. Every man walks, some day, through the valley of the shadow, along a dangerous path. Suffering and opposition and uncertainty are our common lot. But God is our shepherd and no matter how unequal we feel, He will carry us through. His rod and staff must be our comfort for "My Psalm" says so. And if He walks with us through the valley, every darkness will give way to light. His church is on the corner to help us. The Book on its pulpit will give us direction. The faithful company, the appointed which My Psalm talks about, will be as His rod that drives away our foes. Then, surely, we shall not walk alone for goodness and mercy shall follow us and we shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever. A-men.

You In The Church

BOATING

By JACK WOLISTON
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Preliminary work already is underway at the Morgan Yacht Corp. plant in St. Petersburg, Fla. to build the 12-Meter yacht Heritage, which will seek the right to defend the America's Cup in 1970.

The decision to build Heritage at his own yard was taken by Charles E. Morgan Jr., when he ran into several snags in negotiating for construction of the craft at a New York area site.

The step marks a first in the 118-year history of the America's Cup, most coveted prize in international sailing competition. It is the only time a yacht pointing toward Cup competition has been designed, owned and built by one man.

Not only that, Morgan may well name himself skipper when intensive trials begin next June to select a defender against a challenger from either Australia or France. Morgan is a veteran helmsman in sailing competition.

Morgan's St. Petersburg plant mostly produces fiberglass sailboats which he designs. America's Cup contenders must be built of wood, but Morgan doesn't think this will present any problem and already has craftsmen preparing facilities for Heritage's construction. The yacht will be put together in a new building at the Morgan yard which is due to be completed by late summer.

Morgan's original plan was to have Heritage built at the Bob Derektor yard at Mamaronck, N.Y., but that possibility fell through when Derektor got the nod to build another America's Cup candidate, an Alin Stephens designed yacht for the Bob McCullough syndicate.

"That blocked the New York avenue," Morgan said, "but all along we have been aware of certain advantages of building Heritage in St. Petersburg where I can see her being built step-by-step simply by stepping out of my office."

"Heritage is still in the tank-testing stage, but we have advanced far enough to order materials, some of which have arrived. As things stand, we are on schedule. Heritage on the waters of Tampa Bay by January is a possibility."

The America's Cup eliminations and challenge take place off Newport, R.I., in the summer and fall next year. Seeking the honor of defending the Cup for the United States in addition to Heritage will be Intrepid, successful defender against Britain in the most recent competition in 1967; the new McCullough syndicate boat, and at least one California boat, Columbia.

France and Australia also will sail a series of trials at Newport next summer to determine which shall have the right to face the winner of the U.S. eliminations.

ARRESTED AGAIN—Marquette Frye, whose arrest triggered the riots in the Watts area of Los Angeles Aug. 11, 1965, was booked on suspicion of murder in connection with an attempted robbery of a restaurant in Los Angeles. One holdup man was shot to death and another wounded critically by the shotgun-wielding son of the restaurant owner. Frye was picked up at the County-USC Medical Center, where he went for treatment of head cuts from flying glass.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Last week's turnabout of the stock market was more convincing than the Spring rally, but not sufficient to justify a conviction that a sustained advance is about to begin, said Wright Investors' Service.

The market should establish a base and then prove its validity before it can be said with much conviction that we are finally out of the woods, Hayden, Stone, Inc. feels.

Pessimism in Wall Street reflects domestic money and credit restrictions, the Vietnam impasse, the continuing Middle East crisis and the decline in the short position, the firm said.

While last week's action improved the market's technical underpinnings, a period of testing and base-building is required before a meaningful advance can occur, in the opinion of Thomson & McKinnon, Inc. The firm noted that odd-lot sales recently bought heavily on balance, but odd-lot short sales jumped impressively.

The stock market has gone

OPPOSES OILMAN — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee on Latin America, tells newsmen in Washington that he will do everything he can to oppose confirmation by Senate of Texas oilman John Hurd to be ambassador to Venezuela. Church declared Hurd should be disqualified because he had been actively engaged in a movement for tighter oil import quotas.

Where journalism grads go
PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Daily newspapers continue to attract the largest percentage of journalism graduates, but gains by the public relations field were impressive in 1968, The Newspaper Fund reports.

Graduates who accepted daily newspaper jobs increased by 54 per cent, 490 to 756, since 1964. Graduates entering public relations jobs increased by 170 per cent, 192 to 519. Graduates entering wire service work increased by 91 per cent, 32 to 61.

Fifteen Presidents of the United States were members of the State Militia or National Guard.

SINGERS' COMPOSITION—Singers Claudine (Longet) Williams and her husband, Andy, introduce their new son to news photographers at St. Joseph's Hospital in Burbank, Calif. The 7-pound, 6-ounce boy was named Robert Andrew after the late Sen. Robert Kennedy.

"GLAD TO DO IT"
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Nixon has admitted that following her husband around the world on his recent tour was an "exhausting" experience, but "I was glad to do it." She is preparing for the first family's move to the West Coast Saturday for a three-week stay at the San Clemente White House. Wednesday she was invited to visit San Diego in connection with the city's 200th anniversary. "I wouldn't miss it," she said. "We'll be in and out of San Diego many times."

APPROVES BILL
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House labor subcommittee has approved a bill to set limits on how much coal dust should be allowed in mines, in order to attack the so-called black lung disease. The measure would provide for compensation for miners disabled by black lung to a maximum of $272 per month. It also would impose either a $10,000 fine or a year in jail, or both, on mine owners who do not meet the coal dust standards.

The first toll roads built in Kentucky in 1836 cost $5,000 a mile, compared with more than $1 million per mile today.

too far in discounting concern over the near term course of the economy, according to Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis.

While the Nixon administration's efforts to curb inflation thus far have been unimpressive, investors seem to fear they will turn out to be too successful and that it will be impossible to stem the effects of economic restrictions in time to avoid a recession, the firm said.

California's population increased 65 per cent in the 1920s, largest rise in the state's history.

POLICE ATTACK IN BELFAST RIOTS—A blazing barrier built by rioters is a backdrop as police charge down Shanklin Road in Belfast, Northern Ireland, during a new outbreak of violence between rival Roman Catholic and Protestant mobs. Two days of fighting left more than 100 persons injured and 55 persons under arrest. (Cablephoto)

Seaworthy Chapeaux Offer Flattery And Protection

A SOFT BUBBLE CROWN brimmed with garland of rubber petals makes flattering swim hat in red, blue or pink.

BE A LACEY LASS when you hit the waves wearing frilly and feminine cap with an inner rim that keeps out water.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

EVEN women who shy away from hats the rest of the year wear them in summer. We're talking about swim hats! You can't properly call them caps any more because they are styled with as much fashion flair as the finest millinery.

Think back to the swim cap of years ago. It fit the head like a second scalp and did nothing at all by way of flattery. It was exceptionally unbecoming if the wearer had a full face.

Anyone can pick a becoming swim hat these days because there are styles to suit every facial shape. The seaworthy chapeaux pictured here from the Kleinert's collection give a good idea of the many trimly tailored or frilly and feminine designs that are available. They provide flattery as well as protection from salt water or chlorine.

THE BERET IS BACK in a saucy swim style (left) done in red, white and blue. Another Kleinert's cutie (right) has a romantic brim of fine mesh and crown of ruffled nylon net.

Broadway

By JACK GAVER
UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — This summer, and for months beyond, visitors to New York—and New Yorkers, if they will cease their incessant scurrying for a moment—may watch construction of the first legitimate theater in the Broadway area in 38 years.

The site is that recent prodigious hole in the ground between 44th and 45th Streets, Broadway west to Shubert Alley, that was topped for 60 years by the famed Astor Hotel.

There are bound to be those who will shed a reminiscent tear as they realize the irrevocable demise of the Astor, where they may have honeymooned, or had a party, or simply used as a home away from home on periodic trips to the Big Town. To mention only one, New York will never be the same to Jimmy Durante.

Actually, the "sidewalk superintendents" probably will not see the theater taking form. But it will be there, a 1,650-seat house tucked into a 54-story skyscraper with 1.4 million square feet of office space that will be known as One Astor Plaza.

This represents implementation of the recently revised building code under which it is at long last possible to insert entertainment auditoriums into office and apartment complexes.

The same structure also will house a 1,500-seat motion picture theater and a rooftop restaurant, all fronting on Broadway. The legitimate theater foyer is on the third floor level, to be reached by escalators. Film patrons will descend two floors from street level to their theater.

It would be no more than poetic justice if the first show in the new legit house, expected to open sometime in 1971, had a spot for musical star Ann Miller, currently playing the title role in Broadway's "Mame." For Miss Miller was there the other day to help the Bethlehem Steel workers insert the drift pins to connect the first column to its base plate.

A publicity gimmick? Of course. Show business would die without same.

One of the major hopes of the coming Broadway season is David Merrick's production of John Osborne's "A Patriot for Me," starring Maximilian Schell and Dennis King. Here is a tip on how you can do a little home work before seeing it.

Bantam Books recently published a paperback edition of "The Panther's Feast" by Robert Asprey which probably didn't make back its production costs in the hardcover original put out in 1959. Its reissue now in an inexpensive format undoubtedly is due to the fact that Osborne's much-anticipated play covers the same ground as Asprey's non-fiction work, if, in fact, it was not inspired by it.

Both are based on the case of Col. Alfred Redl, brilliant intelligence deputy of the Austro-Hungarian Empire whose homosexual bent led to treasonous acts that helped lead to his country's downfall in World War I. Asprey's book is fascinating reading.

Osborne's play was produced in London in 1965, with Schell, at a private subscription theater. The censor, no longer operative, would not allow it in general circulation as written.

There is an amusing story circulating about the dickering between Merrick and the prestigious Dennis King, who will play a colonel.

"King," Merrick is supposed to have said, "how would you like to play a queen?"

"Well, old boy, that would depend on the jack, wouldn't it?" Apparently, the "jack" was forthcoming.

Fascism Today: A World Survey by Angelo Del Boca and Mario Giovana (Pantheon, $10)

This is a fat bad book. Written in Italian and translated into English, it is an attempt to lick off signs of the survival of fascism and nazism in the generation after the death of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

The book fails for these reasons:

Quiet Drunks Okay

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — More than 40,000 drunks were arrested by Helsinki police last year but there is expected to be a sharp drop in the number for 1969.

Since the first of this year, it has not been a crime to be on the streets in a "peaceful" drunken condition. Drunks can still be arrested if they are disorderly, however.

The Second D-Day By Jacques Robichon

(Walker, $6.95)

On Aug. 15, 1944, Allied troops stormed the beaches of the French Riviera. It was an invasion hardly anyone remembers — except people who were there.

Jacques Robichon's The Second D-Day, written in French and translated by Barbara Shuey,

BOOKS

The Three Daughters of Madame Liang, by Pearl S. Buck (John Day, $6.95)

Mrs. Buck's latest is a novel with a message. But is it a plea for understanding the Chinese character, past and present? Or a warning against the Red Chinese enemy the West faces?

Throughout the book, various characters reiterate the idea first expressed by Mme. Liang to the eldest of her American-educated daughters: "In reality all good things began with us."

"We are the oldest people on earth and the wisest," says a young Chinese fanatic. "We are superior to the West in everything except firearms."

"...ours is the only true civilization!" says a high-ranking official to the husband of Number Two daughter.

The book is subtitled "A novel of China today." It pictures life there through the eyes of the two of the three daughters who return against their mother's wishes. Mme. Liang, a matriarchal widow, earns a comfortable living with a fashionable Shanghai restaurant frequented by influential government officials, but she holds secret reservations about those in power.

Perhaps the message in this usually interesting but only occasionally suspenseful novel is that Chinese-style Communism has not yet managed to obliterate the feeling of superiority and traditional class consciousness of the educated upper class Chinese.

Jeanne Lesem (UPI)

is the first book devoted entirely to the southern landings.

Even at the time, D-Day South was something of a sideshow. It was nice that Our Boys had liberated Nice, but Gen. George Patton's tanks were thrusting toward Paris, and that was the action most people followed.

Casualties were light in the south but it wasn't all a piece of cake. Troops of the 36th (Texas) Division were driven back by the bristling defenses of Frejus (where there was no real need to land, anyway).

The southern landings helped to awaken Hitler to some semblance of reality, and his staff at last was able to persuade him to order a general withdrawal from France.

Robichon employs what has become the standard approach in his story of the invasion, combining official information with personal touches obtained by interviewing survivors.

The Second D-Day is an interesting, readable account of a military operation that is no less exciting for having been little heeded nor long remembered.

Doug Anderson (UPI)

The Hungry Grass by Richard Power. (The Dial Press, $5.95)

Father Tom Conroy was a selfish corrupt old man to the young priests of his parish. His contemporaries of the cloth considered him a prickly but engaging companion. Some of his parishioners held him in awe as a wise, all-seeing sovereign.

But this interior novel probes the mind of a rural priest in a decaying Irish parish and is more concerned with what Father Tom thinks of himself.

The old priest feels death coming on like the slow gathering of an Irish night. In his final months, he attempts to understand the internal forces that shaped his existence. Was he to blame for the decrepit state of his parish where the young emigrated as soon as they could?

Was he to leave anything worthwhile behind him, or did his life represent the waste of a human being? The author writes with a blackness that suits his theme. But his humor and grace of style rescue his story from any heaviness.

Notes from the Century Before by Edward Hoagland. (Random House, $6.95)

There probably is more wilderness left in North America than almost anywhere else in the world, but it may not last the century.

The difficulty in preserving wilderness is that it repeatedly comes under attack. While campaigns were being waged to create a Redwoods National Park in California, Walt Disney won the right to use 3,000 wilderness acres in the Sierras for a ski resort.

TV CAMEOS: Peter Jennings

Cuban Kids Love Fidel, Jennings Says

By MEL HEIMER

THE FEELING exists among many Americans that Cuba today is a deflowered, broken, impoverished land, a last sinkhole of chaos, a prime example of how Communism can ruin a nation—but Peter Jennings says hold on a minute. Mr. Castro's commune, he notes, is a long way from Eden but conversely it is not yet at death's door.

"I went there with an all-out attempt to be detached," says Jennings, the handsome brown-haired Canadian who is ABC-TV's national correspondent (that means he goes where the action is), "and I hope I succeeded, at least partly.

"For one thing, while Cuba is communist, it still has a flair, an individuality, about it that I didn't find in East Germany, the Soviet or Poland. Culture still is highly respected. Illiteracy has been wiped out almost completely; prostitution is a dead issue and I didn't see anyone really badly dressed."

TO BALANCE these gains, Peter adds, the other side of the coin is that Cubans still are fleeing the country at the rate of a thousand a week, everyone seems terribly tired, most commodities are rationed—even cigars—the food is terrible, the people are badly informed by the controlled news media "and I never saw a glass of milk all the while I was there."

Jennings came back with a huge batch of film—"I got about, oh, 60 per cent cooperation from the government, which still is a lot better than I received in Russia or behind the Iron Curtain," which he hopes to fashion into some kind of special or series for ABC. He already has a one-hour Canadian Broadcasting Co. special in the works—and, incidentally, was able to get to Cuba and travel there so widely because he still has a Canadian passport.

"I HAVE to say," he says, "that there still is quite a love affair between Castro and many of the people. The kids 15 and under adore him as a god. The university students get in his corner. The small farmers and shoeshine boys love him. Only the older citizens, those who had it better under a private enterprise system, are not in his corner."

Chafing at being tied to a desk, Peter Jennings (r., with an ABC crew in Saigon) broke his bonds and is the network's national correspondent. "Best job in the business," he says happily.

Cuba has gone almost completely agrarian, Jennings declares. Everyone's in the sugar fields, trying to reach that 10-million-ton goal that has been set, and Havana was almost deserted when he was there. "Castro hates that city," he notes, "and seems to be letting it rot. It's really a shame to see a beautiful place lapsing into so depressing a state."

Anti-Americanism, of course, still is the rule of thumb in bureaucratic circles ("and bureaucracy is on the increase"), and "Granma," the only daily paper, blasts away at the U.S. steadily, as does government TV. However, when I was there, there was great anticipation over the American moon-shot," Peter adds.

For nearly three years, the RIGHT NOW, he looks forward to another two or three years abroad—the Middle East again—Africa, etc.—and then who knows? "If I had to settle down," he meditates, "I'd like to live in London—but the truth is, I sleep better on the road."
