He held the position of assistant superintendent until the early 1930s, retiring a short time after the mill property changed hands.

Mr. Walker had many phases to his life, which was enriched by his association in many fields, the church, lodges, the library, the Academy, and sports.

its own in numbers, though many are killed by the train.

Speaking of game, he pointed out that black bear are known to be about this section, a bear and two cubs reportedly seen at Memphis Mountain, at Washington. He himself has seen but one bear, and that was within the past few months, shortly after midnight at East Union Village. In 21 years, he has seen but one bobcat, but he knows that they are on the increase.

During his two decades of service, he worked for one time as head farmer, at Swan's Island, Richmond.

His first warden training came 10 years ago, at Camp Keyes, Augusta, for at first, he was merely given a badge, and as he terms it, turned loose in the woods. He considers the waiting of trappers to visit traps, the most tiresome part of his job.

In his time, he has had a few accidents, among them, going through the ice of South Pond, with snowshoes and his winter clothing on, and another, when thrown into the waters of the Georges River above Hart's Falls, with rubber boots on, when his boat upset.

For equipment, he at one time used a horse, and later a model T Ford, equipped with trailer, on which he hauled a Merrimack skiff. He recalls that game wardens had their first uniforms in 1927.

In his time, he has worked under the following chief game wardens: Fred Smallwood, Earl Bradbury, Arthur Rogers, and Charles Head.

Speaker of the evening was Gene Letourneau, sports writer of the Press Herald, who made a recent trip to Alaska, and who spoke of the advantages of hunting in Maine, as compared with other States and territories.

Two sound technicolor movies were shown, one hunting on the Maine coast, the other pleasant hunting.

Eight received into membership of the Association, were William Blake, David Paulitz, Joseph Leonard of Rockland, Ronald Moody of Appleton, Wendell and Elmer Henderson and Roger Libby of Thomaston, and Kenneth Bennett of Union.

Supper was served by a committee from Ivy Chapter, O.E.S. Mrs. Marion McCluskey was assisted by Mrs. Raychel Durant, Mrs. Emma Norwood, Mrs. Margaret Sawyer, Mrs. Avis Norwood, Mrs. Mildred White, and Mrs. Ada Spear. Miss Joan Maxey of the Rainbow Girls also assisted.

William Snow of Winthrop, former marine sergeant in the Gilbert Islands during World War II, will replace Warden Davis in this district. He already has been assisting the past four months, and is located at Waldoboro. Previous to being placed in this district, he has had six months experience in Washington County, and a special course of three weeks at a special warden school.

An Exciting Display

Winter Crafts Exhibit For Farnsworth Museum In February

America House, a non-profit organization of craftsmen with headquarters on Madison avenue in New York will loan a selection of its best work to the Farnsworth Museum for exhibition in February, it was announced by Director James M. Brown today.

New designs and interpretations combined with old techniques will make this a most exciting display, both for the craftsmen and for those who enjoy American handicrafts. Silver and metal work, ceramics, printed textiles, hooked rugs, and pottery will be featured in this stimulating exhibition.

Mr. Brown stated in announcing plans for the exhibition that one function of the Museum should be to bring the best in contemporary design before the public. The Museum then becomes a real benefit to those who plan to decorate and to those who produce. We want our local craftsmen to see what is being done in other parts of the country.

This exhibition will be the Museum's first American craft show and it is planned that one of the main events of the Museum's Summer program will be a comprehensive exhibition of the arts and crafts of Maine. This will be presented at a time when craftsmen wish particularly to have an out of State audience.

Carl D. Lane To Speak At Camden Chamber Of Commerce Annual Meeting

Carl D. Lane, novelist, author of several classics on sailing, will be the speaker at the annual meeting and ladies' night of the Camden-Rockport Chamber of Commerce at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 3, at St. Thomas Parish House.

Lane, who moved to the Camden-Rockport area recently, will give a humorous talk on what he terms "this crazy business of writing and publishing." It was announced by William P. Kelley, chairman of the committee in charge of the program. Assisting Kelley on the committee are Charles Lowe, Camden, and Albert Jones, Rockport. The inauguration of the new president of the Chamber, and the introduction of the new officers and directors, will be other highlights of the program.

Title of Lane's talk will be "Writers Are Businessmen, Too," Kelley said. A former resident of Vermont and Connecticut, where he has been in great demand as a speaker, Lane is a man of many talents. He is an artist and craftsman as well as an author, and also is interested in boat-building and an associate of the firm of Simmons & Lane, Friendship.

Lane's book, "River Dragon," published this Spring, was recently awarded the New York Herald-Tribune Juvenile Book Week Prize. Other fiction includes a novel, "Pleat in the Forest," a juvenile, "Paddies to the Sea," the story of the first steamboat that Robert Fulton built, will be published in 1949 by Little Brown, Boston. He has had many short stories in the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, American Adventure and other magazines. A three-part serial, "Sailors Have Honor," a costume sea story, is currently running in "Argosy."

Sailing enthusiasts know well his books of non-fiction, especially "Boatman's Manual," which has gone into many editions and recently been published in a Swedish translation. Some of his other books on sailing are "How to Sail," "Boat-owner's Sheet Anchor," and the "Cruising Manual." His "Cruisers' Manual" is to be published in March. For the Boy Scouts of America he has written "The Sea Scout Manual," "Crew Leader's Manual," "The Cub Denbook," "The Day Sailback Stories," and the "Explorer Scout Manual," as well as several Merit Badge Pamphlets.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Allard of Masonic street spent the week-end in New Bedford and Fairhaven, Mass., guests of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Murley.

"House Of Magic"

Many Fascinating Things To Be Seen At Community Building

ROBERT E. HUMPHREYS

Have you ever heard of "The House of Magic"? That's the name a great journalist—the late Floyd Gibbons—gave to the General Electric Research Laboratory at Schenectady, N. Y. For there he saw so many unusual, fascinating things that he just couldn't believe they were real. Many of the exciting things he saw are coming to Rockland for you to see. "The 'House of Magic'" show, which has been enjoyed by 13,000,000 persons since 1933, will be at Community Building, Oct. 27 at 7:30. Tickets are absolutely free. Get your tickets early—for yourself and your entire family. You won't want to miss the artificial fever machine, the explosion of paper, the demonstration of motionless motion, the train that obeys spoken commands, the electric lamp that is shaken with a match, the man who shakes hands with his own shadow, and many other surprising events.

Robert E. Humphreys, who will present the "House of Magic," is a young engineer who is well qualified to demonstrate the marvels of modern science.

Mr. Humphreys, who until recently has been living in St. Petersburg, Florida, was graduated from Georgia School of Technology in 1945 with a bachelor of electrical engineering degree. Going to Schenectady in December, 1945, he joined General Electric as a student engineer on the company's Test Course. After completing this course, he transferred to the G-E Industrial Control Engineering Divisions, and then entered the Advertising and Publicity Department.

The new "House of Magic" is the latest version of the show which has played before approximately 13,000,000 students, adults, and service men since 1933, when the science show made its debut before the Chicago Century of Progress World's Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Simmons have moved to the Martin farm for the winter.

Hartwell Carter and Wilson Collamore are employed at Prock's Mill in Noblesboro.

Religious Book Week

Nationwide Observance Begins Sunday—On the Best Seller List

The sixth annual nationwide observance of Religious Book Week, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews to stimulate the reading of books of spiritual value, will open Sunday. Publishers, bookstores, libraries, book reviewers and editors as well as noted literary figures, educators, and religious leaders of all faiths will support the event as never before, according to Ellen O'Gorman Duffy, director of the observance.

Prominent Protestant, Catholic and Jewish committees have selected 35 outstanding books as recommended reading for adults and children in each religious group, each list being chosen by a committee comprised of authorities in their respective faiths. An additional list of 35 titles will comprise the goodwill list selected by an interreligious committee for use among all faiths to create better understanding and mutual appreciation.

The list will include classical works, modern fiction, and non-fiction in the fields of biography history, philosophy, sociology, and poetry. All will be carefully annotated to help guide the reader to select the books most likely to appeal to his individual taste. Many of the books recommended are on the best-seller lists in both the fiction and the non-fiction fields. First on most current non-fiction lists is the late Joshua L. Liebman's Peace of Mind. Appearing on both the Goodwill and the Jewish Book Lists is Father and the Angels, by William Manchester. A novel also on the best-seller list is Alan Paton's Cry, the Beloved Country. Other novels for recommended reading are The Dry Wood by Carryl Houselander; The Woman Who Was Poor, by Leon Bloy; The Other Room, by Worth Tuttle Hedden; The Power and the Glory, by Graham Greene, and Dust on the King's Highway, by Helen C. White.

HOPE SUPPER A SUCCESS
The benefit supper held at the Hope Grange Hall Tuesday night for the school was a success, nearly $60 being netted in spite of bad weather. The committee in charge thanks all who helped in any way. On the committee were: Mrs. Agnes Hart, Mrs. George Brownell, Mrs. Elizabeth Wellman, Mrs. Mabel Wright.

RECALLING DAYS OF YORE

Former Camden Man Preserves Interesting History of the Penobscot Valley

By Frank H. Miller
(Chapter Twelve)

Major General Henry Knox resigned from President Washington's cabinet as the new nation's first Secretary of War late in 1794. Early the next year he left Philadelphia at that time the capital, for Maine. On his way he stopped in Boston and arranged with architects to build a home, stable and other buildings in Thomaston, where he knew he was going to locate. After about a year they had erected for him the mansion "Montpelier" at the foot of what is now Knox street in that town, at a cost of about $50,000.

In 1774, about a year before "Lexington" and "Bunker Hill," he was married to Miss Lucy Plucker, whose parents were Tories and very influential in Boston. It made no difference with Knox, for he enlisted in the Continental Army and served with distinction throughout the war.

At the end he was mustered out a Major General, second only to the "Commander-in-Chief." He worked so appreciated by Washington that he was chosen to disband the army at West Point, and see that the soldiers left immediately for their homes, even though they went without pay.

Upon his arrival in Thomaston his first interest was to locate the extent of the Waldo Patent, which he was destined to own, or, at least, to control.

Mrs. Knox's family left Boston with other Tories and their property was confiscated. Her father was a large owner in the Waldo Patent, and having married Hannah Waldo, he, of course, would have left that share. Upon settlement, it left Mr. and Mrs. Knox practically the owners of the Patent which included a large section around Penobscot Bay and much of the land inland to the Kennebec River.

Gen. Knox was considered a wealthy man for those days, and he must have been, to go into business as extensively as he did. He went into limeburning, brick-making, farming, shipbuilding, lumbering and other things. To carry on these industries, it was necessary for him to advertise in newspapers for skilled help, for there were not enough men in the small towns to carry on the work he was planning.

The most extensive business he carried on was lumbering, for there was a good market in Boston for all kinds of lumber, and as he had the vessels for its transportation, it was for him to put the men into the woods at once.

He owned extensive wood lots in Union, Appleton, and Seamsmont, where there were no roads built for teaming. There was just one way for him to get his product to Thomaston, and that was by canal to the head of the tide at Warren. There were saw mills at Warren, Upper Falls, also at Hart's Falls, farther up the river. Mr. Knox bought these and moved the mill at Hart's Falls down to the Upper Falls, where he made improvements and enlarged both mills.

In the Spring he could easily float logs down the St. Georges River, through Senebec and Seven Tree ponds, to the mills. From there it was necessary to have two sets of locks. There was a vast difference between rafting the logs down to the mills and getting the finished product to Thomaston. It involved the building of gondolas and flat bottom barges of the proper size to go through the locks.

Mr. Barrett, who was a friend of Gen. Knox, had charge of the work along the river. He met with difficulty at Hart's Falls and was obliged to put flush boards on the dam at the Upper Falls to raise the water sufficiently to get the logs from the dam at Hart's. This, however, occasioned trouble the next Spring, 1796, during the freshet. It resulted in taking away the mill at Hart's, which was purchased by Mr. Knox. Barrett was entrusted with building the first locks at the Upper Falls, but not having had the experience necessary for that kind of work, he determined to put the locks in the middle of the river. This necessitated taking a piece out of the dam, resulting in too much current to operate the locks.

After spending several thousand dollars he gave up the work and Gen. Knox himself took it over, and after several unsuccessful experiments, completed the work by placing the locks on the eastern side of the river. The work at the Lower Falls, or Warren Village, was more difficult, as it was necessary to have two locks.

When the loaded barges got to these and were lowered to tide water the hard work was over, and the trip down the river to Thomaston was comparatively easy. Everything went well until the sudden death of Knox in 1806, when all work in the lumbering business stopped and the locks gradually went to pieces.

It was not until 1845 that the Georges Canal Company was organized to repair the locks and revive the industry started years ago by Gen. Knox.

The new company was incorporated in 1846. The citizens of Warren alone took stock to the amount of $80,000.

If the stock was being offered in a project of that kind today one of the first questions that would be asked is "How long will the lumber lots last in the three towns where operations are planned?"

The work lasted only a few years. Gen. Knox operated for several years before the Georges Canal Company started in that section, and the best lumber was no doubt taken out by him. However, they rebuilt the locks more extensively and probably spent more money than Gen. Knox, but the project was short lived. It was later attached and sold for debt.

While it was operated the company built a small steamboat to tow the loads down river and it was quite a sight to see in those days and attracted a lot of attention. While there does not seem to be any record, it would be interesting to know how long it took to make a round trip to Appleton through the locks at Union and Warren and on to Thomaston, a distance of about 20 miles each way.

As stated, in Gen. Knox's time, there were no roads and the lumber had to be brought out by water. But when the Georges Canal Company began to operate, roads had been built from the upper towns to Belfast, Camden and Rockland, and some of the business went that way.

This proved true to quite an extent in the Summer when the water in the upper river would be too low to operate with much of a load. Conditions in Gen. Knox's time were of the best for all kinds of lumber, shipped into Boston. Farmers cleared their farms and instead of cultivating them they could not resist the good money and cleared their wood lots as well. Business was good for the canal company as long as the lumber lasted, but, as they were more or less confined to the three towns, Union, Appleton and Seamsmont, their product, there was bound to be an end to it. There is some of the stone structure of the locks still in place in the river, but it will never again be used.

CAPITOL STUFF

By Governor Horace Hildreth

Augusta, Oct. 18.—The week-end of Oct. 23 marks the passage of a year since Maine's destructive forest fires. It also finds the reconstruction of the Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial Laboratory at Bar Harbor well on its way. The rebuilding is not completed, however, and it cannot be completed without a last intensive effort by all its friends everywhere.

I feel sure that the people of Maine will see to it that this very important project is completed. The fact is that 150 major cancer research laboratories in this country were forced to slow their own work dangerously because they were dependent upon the hundreds of thousands of inbred mice that are raised and studied at the Jackson Laboratory. I know that our citizens will accept willingly their share of responsibility toward our State's most important scientific institution and will, in fact, set an example for the rest of the world to follow.

I hope that everyone will come to know of the splendid work that is being done by the first chapter of the Maine Rifle Instructors Club. This Portland organization has trained 27 members as qualified instructors who will be available to any youth organization in the State for the purpose of teaching the safe and sane handling of firearms. I join with the Maine Rifle Instructors Club in the hope that this movement will spread so that, eventually, young people in every section of the State may have an opportunity to learn the ten commandments for the safe use of firearms. Perhaps the rifle and game clubs will lend their support to the movement.

Our State is determined to meet the growing problem of mental deficiency. Evidence of that determination was apparent at the Fall meeting of the Northeastern Section of the American Association at Pownall last week-end. I had the pleasure of joining that group when they made an inspection tour of the new buildings at Pownall State School. It is very satisfying to me to find this important work expanding. It means that we shall be able to bring the priceless gift of mental health to many who otherwise would spend their days in the half-light of mental deficiency, of little use to themselves and the community. We all should be grateful for the high character and ability of the men and women who are engaged in this work.

Maine housewives will be the chief beneficiaries of an egg-candling and grading school which will be held at the State Grange Home in Augusta, Oct. 28 and 29. The Department of Agriculture tells me that the objective of the meetings is better graded egg products and that some 50 representatives from the State's biggest firms handling eggs will attend. Alfred Van Wagon, acting managing director of the Northeastern Poultry Producers' Council will supervise the school, assisted by Frank L. Reed, poultry specialist of the University of Maine Extension Service. The Department of Agriculture will have the co-operation of the Maine State Grange, Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, and the Maine Poultry Improvement Association in this worthwhile project.

Watching Kansas

Sixty-Eight Year Old Prohibition Amendment Is At Stake

Bone-dry Kansas will give its voters a chance Nov. 2, to have their say on repeal of the State's 68-year-old prohibition amendment.

Eight other States—Arkansas, California, Colorado, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Washington and Massachusetts—also are posing liquor questions to their electorates.

The hotly-contested constitutional amendment on the Kansas ballot provides that the legislature may regulate, license and tax the manufacture and sale of liquor and regulate its possession. Neither major party has taken a stand on the issue but Randolph Carpenter, Democratic nominee for governor, is opposing prohibition as a "disaster failure."

If the amendment is approved the legislature still would have to dispose of the dry statute on the Kansas lawbooks. And there is some doubt that a repealer would pass the legislature because the small counties, which outnumber the large ones, generally want the State to stay dry.

In Arkansas, a referendum is on the ballot to require that local option elections to legalize the sale of whiskey, wine and beer be held only in connection with the regular biennial general elections.

In Colorado a proposed constitutional amendment would let any voting district ban the sale of intoxicating liquors within its boundaries. This would permit any of the State's 1702 precincts to bar liquor sales, as well as any county, city or town. Under present law, only cities may vote on the dry question.

North Dakota will vote on a constitutional amendment to authorize municipal liquor stores, while South Dakota will put two related questions to its voters.

One, an initiative, would forbid the sale of alcoholic beverages on premises where anything except tobacco and soft drinks are sold. This would, in effect, divorce liquor from food sales. The second, a referendum, provides that no alcoholic liquor may be sold in containers holding less than one-tenth gallon, and that all whiskeys must be at least three years old.

On the Pacific Coast, California has two constitutional amendments up for decision. The first provides generally for more local and less State control over retail liquor establishments. The second would permit local control of the sale of intoxicating liquors but does not affect the manufacture, transportation or possession of them.

An initiative in Oregon would permit the sale of liquor by the drink in restaurants, hotels, clubs, and on railroad trains. In Washington State, one initiative would restrict the sale of beer and wine of State liquor stores, thus halting present sales at taverns, restaurants and other places.

Another initiative on the Washington ballot would permit sale of liquor by the drink in hotels, restaurants and other public places with restaurants facilities. Sale of liquor by the drink is now prohibited, except in private clubs.

A Massachusetts statute permits a local option vote every other year.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. To Spend Millions

What Sun Oil Company Is Doing In The Way Of Expansion

Sun Oil Company is spending $70,000,000 this year to maintain and increase the output of petroleum products through modernization and expansion of equipment and an intensified search for new crude oil sources. This was revealed by Robert G. Dunlop, Sun president, as the petroleum industry throughout the country prepared to report to the communities of America on Oil Progress Day, Oct. 14.

Of the $70,000,000, approximately $48,000,000 is going for new or improved equipment in the oil fields, refineries, marine and other transportation operations and in marketing facilities. About $22,000,000 is devoted to the proving and development of prospective oil fields.

Sun's efforts to meet higher customer demands have had these results:

1. Rated capacity of the Company's Marcus Hook (Pa.) Refinery has been increased by 5000 barrels, or 210,000 gallons, a day of crude oil throughput. Thus the Marcus Hook Refinery now has a rated daily crude oil distillation capacity of 140,000 barrels, or 5,880,000 gallons, making it the sixth largest in the United States. Distillation capacity of Sun's Toledo (Ohio) Refinery also has been increased by 2000 barrels, or 84,000 gallons, a day.

2. Sun's crude oil production to day is running approximately 18 percent ahead of last year.

3. Two ocean-going tankers and two smaller ships have been added to the Company's fleet.

4. Two large marine terminals, one at Ingleside, Texas, and the other at Detroit, have been completed.

5. Improved transportation and storage facilities have speeded the movement of products to the market.

Additional results of this year's expansion efforts will become effective next year. Sun's president pointed out. For example, the capacity of the Toledo refinery will be almost doubled by the end of 1949 by construction projects now underway.

Mr. Dunlop warned, however, that at today's inflated prices the $70,000,000 being spent this year will not permit the amount of building and expansion a similar sum would have in 1941 or even during the peak war period.

Mr. Dunlop declared that about three-quarters of Sun's cost of replacing or modernizing oil plants and building new ones would come out of the Company's net profits. The remaining replacement cost will be provided by allowable depreciation and depletion.

"If it were not for these profits such an expansion program would not be possible—and our ability to serve the needs of our customers would be seriously impaired," he said.

He pointed out that capital expenditures for this year are twice as large as Sun's net earnings for the first half of 1948.

To Be Feature Of Poultry Show—Former Rockland Man In Charge

An egg show in which poultrymen are entering 1000 dozen eggs will be an added feature of the Maine State Poultry and Trade Exhibition, to be held at the South Portland Armory Nov. 18, 19 and 20.

The Maine Department of Agriculture said that the Maine State Poultry Association, of which Herbert M. Tucker of Augusta is president, will hold its annual exhibition with the cooperation of the newly organized Trade Exhibitors' Council of Portland and the Maine Poultry Improvement Association.

Earle Conant of Oakland, formerly of Rockland, chairman of the Exhibitors' Council, is general manager of the show. Waldo Chick of Wells is president of the Maine Poultry Improvement Association.

The Portland Poultry Show, which has been a Fall feature of the industry for many years, has previously been held in the Exposition Building in that city, but has been moved to the South Portland Armory. Conant said today, in part because of better parking and meeting facilities.

The egg show will include five classes for which cups have been donated by interested commercial sponsors.

Other events during the three-day show, will include a Future Farmers of America judging contest and 4-H demonstrations on poultry subjects. Five out-of-State speakers will conduct discussion periods on educational subjects during meetings on Thursday and Friday afternoons.

INDIAN SUMMER

Days enchanted, with a golden haze hanging low at morn's breaking. And yonder hills a maze Of smoky silliness betaking. Drab and drear the meadow-lands are laying.

Winter has stalked here and her frosty hand's been playing. Tricks in Summer's fair garden-lands Royal-hued the lonely woodland stands. No gay chirpings and songlets of nest-frightened feathered mates.

Frighted they've flown before Winter's hating. In rugged cornfields yellow pumpkins glow. Before a busy breeze the dry leaves scurrying go. And yonder hills a maze Of smoky silliness betaking. Drab and drear the meadow-lands are laying.

Even the choked streams no longer try to rush. Falsely with us these Summer days lay. Tomorrow the sharp voice of Winter may demand full sway.

President Bicknell Of the Junior Chambers Tells Of Its Accomplishments

Speaking on the Rockland Junior Chamber of Commerce, Charles Bicknell, 2d, gave Rotarians and guests an interesting review of the workings of the Chamber since its inception.

A sound round of applause and good wishes were extended to "Bob" Lunt, superintendent of the local schools, to take with him on his new venture.

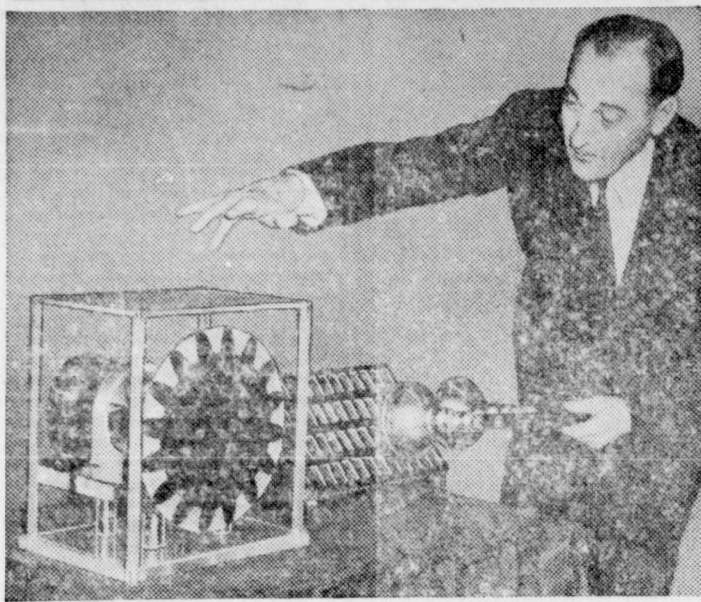

"Ken" Crane told the "smile for the day." With "Staff" Congdon at the piano and Harold Jameson conducting, the song period reached its peak as to harmony and volume. President "Jerry" Burrows presented Charles Bicknell, Rotarian and president of the Rockland Junior Chamber of Commerce, as the speaker.

The Rockland Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Bicknell says, was made up originally by a nucleus of 20 young men. This has expanded until at the present time the membership numbers 85. The membership in the Chamber is limited to young men between the ages of 21 and 35 inclusive, with the reservation that present members may become associate members after passing the age limit of 35. This affords the privilege of attending the meetings and giving counsel, but not the right to vote.

Mr. Bicknell went on to say that the Junior Chamber of Commerce provides responsibility for the younger men in community affairs and for that reason has the tendency to create leadership, character, and pride in civic affairs which could not otherwise be gained until a later period in life. A very good example of this, the speaker said, was the renovation at Community Park. The Junior Chamber of Commerce members, set to with a will, and did an excellent job in making the Park a credit to the city.

Mr. Bicknell mentioned that in the nine months that the Chamber has been instituted it has been active in many projects. Essay contests have been set up in the High School for Juniors and Seniors, welcome signs have been placed on the entrances to our city, the process of dredging of Back Cove has been started, industrial promotion is well underway with Harold Col-both as chairman, the Lobster and Seafood Festival was put on and proved a success. Clean-up Week was instigated.

Along with all these activities the Chamber is making plans for more assistance to the conventions to be held in Rockland, also being active in getting a greater appropriation for the Maine Development Commission.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce started in St. Louis in 1917 as a dance club and seeking to correct corruption there, has spread until it is international in its scope, serving in 85 countries. Maine alone having approximately a membership of 8000.

President Of Jolly Time Pop Corn Believes In Newspaper Ads

Newspaper advertising was acclaimed as one of the chief factors in the success of Jolly Time Pop Corn by Howard C. Smith, president of the American Pop Corn Company.

"Of all the advertising we use," Mr. Smith said, "there is much we would do without before we would consider dropping our newspaper advertising."

"Sales surveys show that in cities where Jolly Time Pop Corn is continually advertised, it is also first in sales." He said, "We could ask for no better proof of the power of consistent newspaper advertising than what is reflected in our sales records."

This season will see the largest advertising campaign in the history of Jolly Time Pop Corn, or for that matter, in the history of any pop corn. Over 100 newspapers in all parts of the country will carry Jolly Time ads. "We have increased our newspaper advertising each year, and each year our sales have shown a corresponding increase. We are now so firmly convinced of the effectiveness of newspaper advertising," Mr. Smith said, "that we have entirely discontinued the use of other advertising medium in order to increase our newspaper advertising."

SERMONETTE

Onward, Not Backward

Education is vital to the men and women of today. There can be no question as to that, but the vision of its place in America is not a product of these times, but came with forebears across the seas when they first stepped upon these shores.

They were not ignorant explorers; they came to secure freedom to worship God, and establish a new order of things in a new world. Before they stepped ashore, they drew up a compact in the cabin of the Mayflower, that disclosed their aspirations and purposes in the nation yet to be.

First in their conception of a government for a free people, came the church and then the school, and firmly grounded in their minds was the separation of Church and State. Religion was the basic urge of all the early explorers. They took possession in the name of their Sovereigns and set up a cross to honor their Redeemer.

Surely one does not have to be too critical to note that there is something radically wrong with the present system of education. One cannot go back to the days of the little red schoolhouse that served its purpose and served it well. Can as much be said for the elaborate graded schools of today? If you answer affirmatively, how explain the unrest and uneasiness as indicated all over this land, by the Parent-Teacher organizations?

It is not necessary to look over the country or even in New England but to note the change wrought in the State of Maine in its moral leadership within the past 60 years and there will be found what, in a large measure, is the trouble with education. Also note how people have fallen from the high ideals entertained by the early citizens.

—W. A. Holman.

1 1/2 Billion Dollar Road Block!

RAILROADS MUST OPERATE around the clock every day and night of the year.

Although they know this, leaders of 16 railroad unions are demanding a five-day, Monday through Friday, week for one million railroad employees.

They want 48 hours pay for 40 hours work—in itself a 20% wage increase.

They also demand a minimum of 12 hours pay for any work performed on Saturdays, and 16 hours pay for any work performed on Sundays and holidays.

On top of all this they want an additional increase of 25c an hour for every employee!

You'd Pay The Bill!

Summing up these demands, they mean that these union leaders seek to force the railroads to give one million employees an annual raise which would average $1500 per employee!

The total cost of this would be no less than 1 1/2 billion dollars per year, which is more than twice the expected net income of the railroads this year.

You'd pay the bill, because if these increased costs are forced on the railroads, they must have still further rate and fare increases.

Demands Unreasonable

These employees have had substantial raises during and since the war. Their average weekly earnings are higher than the average weekly earnings of workers in manufacturing industries. They have more job security than the average worker in American industry. They also enjoy paid vacations, a retirement system and other advantages more generous than the average worker receives.

In contrast with the demands of these 16 unions, which add up to the equivalent of 48c an hour, the Conductors and Trainmen recently settled their wage request for an increase of 10c an hour.

Railroads Run for Everybody—Not Employees Alone

The railroad industry must serve not one but many groups—producers, businessmen, shippers, passengers and the general public—night and day, every day of the year. These unions are proceeding in utter disregard of this important difference between railroads and other industries. Industrial plants can be shut down over weekends and holidays, but freight, mail, express and passengers must continue to move. Everybody who enters railroad employment knows this.

Strike Threat

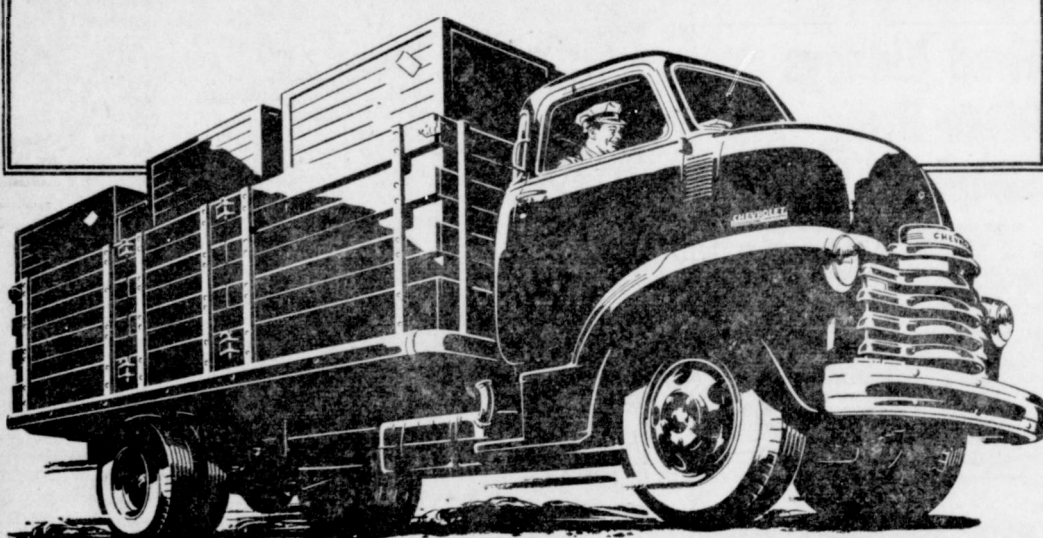

On September 18, 1948, the leaders of these 16 unions began taking a strike vote. But the threat of a strike will not alter the opposition of the railroads to such unreasonable demands!
