OUR PURPOSE

For many years it has been the practice to print articles in Bar Briefs dealing with problems of the Association and matters of interest to the legal profession. The quarterly issues of the magazine have, during the period of its publication, contained treatises on legal subjects that were of great benefit to the lawyers of the state because of the many intricate legal problems brief and discussed therein.

The publication has at all times had the cooperation, the good will and the active support of the legal department of the University, its instructors and students. The practitioner too has given of his time, his thought, his best efforts and his wholehearted cooperation to make of Bar Briefs, the outstanding legal publication of the northwest states, to the end that it has acquired an enviable place among the legal publications of the nation. The high standard which years of arduous work has gained for Bar Briefs must be maintained. We must continue to have printed therein those timely and scholarly articles on legal subjects that have proved so beneficial to the profession. We too must continue the publication of articles that have to do with the problems of the Association. All articles so published must be free from political or personal grievances. In that manner and following that procedure only, can we hope to continue Bar Briefs on the high plane it has established for itself.—
PRESIDENT CAIN.
