PRESIDENT'S PAGE

The American Bar Association at its annual meeting held at Grand Rapids, Michigan, last summer outlined four very important and worth while subjects upon which to focus special attention during the coming year. They are:

- Criminal Law and Its Enforcement
- Legal Education and Admission to the Bar
- Unauthorized Practice of Law
- Selection of Judges

It was the hope and wish of the American Bar Association that the various constituent associations would also devote special attention to those subjects and word has recently been received from its national headquarters that splendid cooperation is being obtained from the various bar groups.

It is my opinion that four of the most vital and far-reaching problems of the legal profession have been singled out and centered upon for the concentration of thought and endeavor this year. We are all cognizant of the need for improvement in each of these phases of our profession. It is very clear that law and order can never reach the high point of efficiency nor can justice be as well administered as we all wish until decided improvement is made in each of these four points.

It is with this in mind, and in the spirit of cooperation with the American Bar Association that I propose to the members of the North Dakota Bar Association that we place special emphasis and stress on those four projects outlined above, in our program for this year.—PRESIDENT CAIN.
