

Fire (1) by Tom Holmes

Smoke rises through the hearth's cracks like paintings through a cave wall or the dead returning, like flaring manure dollops and mosquitoes fleeing, like fires stroking the high grass and wolves tracking flames to sniff out cooked mice and bobwhite quails pecking charred grasshoppers,

I understand fire as paint it corrupts what it stains and indicates life once happened here.