MAY QUEEN

Floy Lewis

Floy Lewis Named Queen

In a reelection held on Wednesday, the WSGA president, Floy Lewis, was chosen to reign as Queen of the May for the annual event scheduled for May 14. In the initial election, conducted before the vacation period, the required quota was not reached, and a run-off between the top three candidates was necessitated.

Local NSA Leaders Choose Philadelphia For Convention Site

by Sara Weirich '52

The National Students Association of the eastern sub-region of Pennsylvania has planned its annual convention for 1949, the campus committee has recently announced. LaSalle College, Philadelphia, will be host to the workshops of the convention which will meet on February 19, 1949. Aside from the regular convention routine, the sub-region of Pennsylvania will sponsor a banquet in honor of the National President, Ted Harris. The banquet will be held at Mitten Hall, Temple University.

This NSA convention affords an excellent opportunity for college students to meet, discuss, and exchange ideas in its various section meetings. Representation is determined for each member institution. (Continued on page 8)

Enrollment Hits 1009 As 28 New Students Begin College Life

708 Men, 301 Coeds Registered; Six Resume Former Studies

by Beverly Johnson '51

Amid the confusion of a new semester, the campus unites in welcoming the twenty-eight new students and six former students who have joined the "ranks." Never let it be said that Ursinus students do not appreciate new faces. The girls, especially, are in luck since twenty-nine of these students are males. Only seven of our old colleagues failed to make the grade and, consequently, are no longer with us. The total enrollment is now 1009 of which 708 are men, and 301 are women. It is estimated that about 665 are resident students and 364 day students.

The new students are: Laura Bechtle, Jersey City, N. J.; William Beckley, Audubon, N. J.; Rhoda Blumenthal, Atlantic City, N. J.; James Buck, Philadelphia; Richard Buckwalter, Philadelphia; Jeanne Careless, Mt. Airy, Pa.; John Conrad, Allentown, Pa.; Arthur Dostrow, Philadelphia; Herbert Elwell, Philadelphia; Charles Fach, Camden, N. J.; David Hallstrom, Palmyra, N. J.; Mary Lou Henry, Philadelphia; John Irwin, Bridgeport, Pa.; Charles Klaus, Pottstown, Pa.; Alex Koval, Pottstown, Pa.; Robert Krause, Nanticoke, Pa.; Michael Kuroczko, Bridgeport, Pa.; Edna McLaughlin, Philadelphia; William Shakin, Drexel Hill, Pa. Former Mayorality Nominee To Expose Corruption in Philadelphia Government

by Jean Stewart '52

One of the most timely, and certainly one of the most controversial, issues in the state of Pennsylvania at the present time will be discussed by the Honorable Richardson Dilworth, Esq. when he speaks this evening at 8:00 p. m. in Bomberger Chapel. Mr. Dilworth will speak on "Political Corruption in Philadelphia." There has been so much publicity concerning this topic that no one can afford to miss this vital and informative talk.

GUEST SPEAKER

Richardson Dilworth

Everyone who has heard this eminent lawyer and civic reformer speak during his campaign for mayor of Philadelphia knows that he has been carrying on a vigorous battle against the corruption and political machines in that city. He is a courageous speaker and well-qualified to discuss politics in Philadelphia, inasmuch as he has been active in city affairs almost continually since 1928.

Mr. Dilworth was born in 1898 in Pittsburgh and entered the Marine Corps in 1917, when he was 19. He fought in the Belleau Woods campaign, was wounded, received the Purple Heart, and was discharged in 1919. After the Armistice was signed, he went to Yale University, where he played football and was a member of the rowing crew. He was graduated with honors from (Continued on page 8)

Frats Begin Rushing Week

by Walter Rohlf's '49

This is the week for the Greeks to howl. Rushing for the five men's fraternities began last Thursday with the Ape's stag party at Green Gables, and it will extend until noon of next Monday, at which time final bids will be made to prospective members. This week, Sigma Rho will continue the festivities with a stag party at Geen Gables tonight, while Demas will hold forth from the same spot on Thursday. Beta Sig's party will be held at the Norris Tavern on Tuesday, and on Friday, Zeta Chi will trek to Allentown.

To fill their quota of 45 members, the Apes expect to bid 15 men. Sigma Rho is allowed to admit 16 new men, while Demas has 13 vacancies, Beta Sig has 21, and Zeta Chi has 24. The maximum allowed each fraternity is 6 percent of the male enrollment.

The officers of the various fraternities will be elected tonight. (Continued on page 8)

BUS AD CLUB

A special business meeting of the Business Administration club will be held tonight at 7 p. m. in S-12. It is important that all interested persons attend if the club's activities are to continue.

Frosh Girls Slated To Receive Colors At Annual Program

The freshmen women and the one new preceptress on campus this year, Mrs. Virginia Siple, of Lynnewood Hall, will receive their charges as official members of the College in the annual Color Day ceremony to be held in Bomberger Hall at 4:30 on Thursday. The ritual is sponsored by the Junior Advisory Committee of the WSGA.

Beginning the festivities will be a traditional candlelight procession which will include Dean Camilla B. Stahr; Mrs. G. Sieber Pancoast, and the presidents of the WSGA, WAA, and YWCA.

Mrs. Pancoast, the guest speaker, will have as her topic, "The Meaning of Ursinus Colors." Barbara Shumaker '50, vice-president of the WSGA, will explain the origin of (Continued on page 8)

Lauterbach Outlines Proposed US Policy In Mid-Week Forum

by Frank M. Edwards '50

Last Wednesday, Mr. Richard Lauterbach, noted author and foreign correspondent, addressed a well-filled Bomberger Hall on a subject which might aptly be titled "Is Russia Really a Menace to World Security." Charging each member of his audience to "imagine that you are an average Russian, forty years of age, and that in your lifetime your country has been invaded and ravaged three times," Mr. Lauterbach justified what he terms the suspicion of the Russian people toward foreign governments. Citing the Churchill bid for an Anglo-American alliance, Mr. Lauterbach said that it was natural for the Russians to be suspicious; was not the proposal directed against the U.S.S.R.? And the unwillingness of the U.S. to give con- (Continued on page 8)

How Could Your College Life Be Improved?

by Frank M. Edwards '50

Harry Schalek—"All in all, I've enjoyed my stay at Ursinus, but I think life here would be improved greatly if the dining hall were less crowded. Getting into a seat at a table is like running an obstacle course."

Martyne Bentzen—"I certainly have enjoyed my four years at Ursinus. However, I could have improved my life here had I participated in more extra-curricular activities, especially dramatics. I could also have taken several courses which I think would have been of great benefit to me."

Ruth Pettit—"My life at Ursinus could have been improved had there been more time for friendly 'hello's,' more time for the Physical Education student to take electives, and if there had been a swimming pool in the old gym."

Burt Landes—"I think that life in general at Ursinus would be improved if there were a better sports program, if the classes were smaller, and if there were more emphasis placed on school spirit. More personally, my stay at Ursinus would have been much richer had there been more contemporary history courses."

Harold Brandt—"Since I am a day student and since I must use many of the facilities which are reserved for day students, I feel that, if these facilities had been improved, my stay at Ursinus would have been much more enjoyable. I also feel that a general reception hall would be of great benefit to all."

Pat Ellis—"My stay at Ursinus has been wonderful, but there are some things which would have made it even better. I feel that there should be a wider range of subjects, additional athletic facilities, such as a swimming pool, and good library."

GAFF from the GRIZZLY

or What's Bruin

The grimness of the old headache "getting back to the books" is anointed by the spring semester's soothing social calendar. There is nothing like a dance to ease the cares of the day, and before our arms had felt the weight of the textbook, our legs had slid across yards of Thompson-Gay dance floor. Five days later, on Friday night, the song of the Lorelei had lured us to the Sunnybrook dance and had banished all thoughts academic.

It felt good to be back last Monday after those last few days at home had begun to drag. The ten day mid-year absence from our cohorts made the ordinary record dance sponsored by the Ruby an unusual occasion. Among those socialites who attended the first dance of the spring semester were Dick Gradwohl and Janice Gault, Dick Harris and Marjorie Taylor, Cliff Jewell and Grace Matthews, Ken Sell and Betty Haas, and Bill Weber and Dot Freking.

Ursinus weather prophets who foresaw a blizzard accompanied by a fifty mile per hour gale for last Friday night were disappointed no end. Breaking a time-honored tradition of foul weather, the best elements could whip up for our Lorelei Dance was a toe and ear numbing cold of eighteen degrees.

Chuck Gordon scored some points in favor of the non-name bands and helped to settle a recent controversy. His local outfit provided smooth, danceable music that appealed to all. Better learn to rhumba, Bub; it's here for quite a stay. The jitterbug is becoming an extinct species and his popularity has been usurped by our hip-wriggling good neighbor from south of the border—the rhumba. Eileen Lockhart, Cookie Carter, Carol Schoeppe and Carol Strode were some of the Ursinus ex-coeds back to their favorite haunts. Other graduates were Manny and Reid Porter, Dan Chance and Ruth Reese, Mary Kay Evans and Ray Hallman, and Doris and Charlie Collins. Ray MacQueen and Ruth Preston and Wilmer Trinkle and Nancy Mattson were seen acting very strangely. The same type of behavior is exhibited by the positive poles of two magnets when placed side by side. Repulsive, aren't they?

Campus Daze

Of course the Lorelei was the big topic of discussion this week-end. There were several very interesting aspects to this gala occasion when the women really got the situation well in hand.

First, there was the weather. Things weren't quite up to par, since there was no rain and the snow was already a day old. The weatherman was so darned busy in the west that the Lorelei must have slipped right by without his noticing it.

Then there were the corsages which the women presented to their dates. It seemed to be a contest to determine the most foolhardy man on campus. An inconspicuous, yet attractive model whose flowers projected three to four feet into the air, was discovered gracing the hood of a car on Saturday. These clever women — you just can't beat them, can you?

While the Lorelei may be the beginning of many beautiful friendships, it may also be the end of other beautiful friendships, for from somewhere there springs up the nasty suggestion that, since the women take the initiative in inviting dates and in supplying corsages, they should also make a mad dash to pick up the check. Girls are rather generous people; there aren't many who begrudge a man his cake — but give the men an inch and they take a mile and order a hamburger, too. We didn't really mind that too much but we felt that one guy went too far in expecting his date to give him a nickel to make a phone call.

We can't forget the Lorelei without recalling the two open-minded roommates who nearly threw two women's dorms into a state of panic, when they called for each other's date, because it was a turnabout dance. There's no getting away from it—these men are just loaded with originality.

Unfortunately for the women, this Lorelei idea is spreading. An article in the Philadelphia Inquirer magazine section yesterday stated that, contrary to present popular opinion, men are actually the weaker sex and should be coddled by women. The radical article even suggests that women should give up their bus seats to men. Of course, men will never gain much sympathy by appealing to our motherly instincts, but nevertheless we mustn't let this idea of male frailty get out of hand or they'll have us catering to them.

Before we know it, they'll think they are entitled to wear jeans on campus! Just as we said, "Give them an inch!"

EDITORIAL

The new semester is only one week old and yet, already the events of the past semester have become dim in our memories. There is however one phase of the past exam period which seems definitely in need of some constructive action before it slips from our minds. This is the problem of cheating, which probably reached its zenith during this period.

Certainly no student here at Ursinus can claim to be unaware that cheating is being carried on in an increasingly greater degree. On the contrary, this situation is frequently the subject for discussion by both the reluctant offenders and the rapidly decreasing number of non-offenders.

It is the cry of many of the offenders that the blame lies with the faculty for not rigidly enforcing the rule. Many say that cheating is now a necessary prerogative for a diploma and that they, as individuals, never cheated before coming to college. All of this may be true to some degree. Yet, how can we as intelligent and conscientious adults push the blame for our own weakness on the faculty and condemn them for something which is actually our own responsibility. Without a doubt, we need their cooperation in wiping out cheating here on campus but let's not fool ourselves. We must make the initial step in that direction.

To overcome cheating in classes and in examinations permanently, it will be necessary to build up an attitude which will envelop every student on campus. However, until this can be attained, there must be some forceful incentive produced for honesty. Perhaps expulsion seems like rather drastic punishment and yet it has proved successful in other schools in obliterating entirely the problem of cheating. Of course, before such final measures are taken, there must be adequate warning in no uncertain terms by the faculty of the regulations and punishment, and the enforcement must be made uniformly strict or the situation will not be remedied. While some offenders go unpunished, the problem will not be solved. Without a doubt, this is neither the most desirable nor the most effective way of combating this menace to scholarship. It is only intended as a suggestion. But, unquestionably, there must be some positive and immediate action on this problem.

The Student Councils have at times thrown out the challenge that they have nothing really big to do. This is a fine opportunity to show that they are capable of attacking really difficult problems. The Men's Student Government has had several cases of cheating brought before it and punishment has been meted out. But this is not quite enough. The Men's and Women's Student Governments, by working in a joint committee with faculty representatives, could undoubtedly form a workable plan for permanently overcoming and destroying the cheating problem at Ursinus. It is the role of the students to take the initiative in suggesting some action.

B-Listers Take Lead by Tripping Imbeciles

Bouncing back from a 77-23 defeat handed them by the Ursinus Quiz Kids during the spring term of 1948, the local Dean's Team tripped their more intellectual classmates, 120-110, in a battle of wits during the past semester. Continuing to show more favorable success in the colder months of each year, the Imbeciles matched last year's 107-84 January victory to take possession of first place in the novel world series. THE MAILBOX

January 12, 1949

Dear President McClure,

When I returned from a trip in Europe on behalf of displaced persons and children, I was welcomed by the best possible surprise—my garage almost full of clothing and toys which had been collected through the efforts of students of Ursinus.

When one has actually seen the people and their needs, it is very exciting and encouraging to find people in this country who are willing to make the effort to help give these people in Europe comfort and happiness.

The money that was collected by the classes is a very generous sum and will be used to buy additional clothing. Will you please convey in as public and personal a way as you can my gratitude to the students? I understand that the YMCA and the Social Responsibilities Committee were very active.

If any group of students would like to have me come and describe some of the people and conditions that I saw, I shall be glad to do so.

With best wishes for the New Year and the continued success of your College.

Sincerely,

—Gertrude Ely
Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Dear Sir:

"The next time you listen to a prejudiced follower of a court aggregation complaining about the refs—take heed. He's probably right, because very few officials call 'em all in this day and age."

With these words, "Sports Slants" concluded for the first semester, giving food for thought to many basketball fans. Certainly the author was correct in his diagnosis of foul-calling. Too much is missed by present-day referees, and some better system of detecting serious rule infractions could probably be incorporated. However, I find two faults with the article and sincerely believe that 90% of the nation's court fans would concur.

In the first place, the great number of fouls called in every game is the chief obstacle to spectator appeal in basketball as it is played today. Most college coaches seem more concerned with the possibility of revising rules to eliminate much needless foul-calling, rather than to encourage more of the same.

Secondly, it hardly seems proper for a college sports editor to encourage discontent between the fans and the officials. Rather than take heed of these prejudiced followers, I suggest we begin a concerted drive to eliminate the disgraceful exhibitions of sportsmanship presented at practically every court contest.

—Hopeful

Dear Sir:

Your sports editor, in his column published in the last issue of The Weekly, has finally come up with the idea to top all ideas. With fans all over the nation clamoring for rule changes to eliminate the myriad fouls tossed by opposing teams in each game, he has suggested that what basketball really needs is a few changes so that more fouls will be called.

.. I'm Working My Way Through College. "

Basketball is a game of action—its spectator appeal depends directly upon the speed with which it is played. No longer can a team like Penn State, with its cautious zone defense, draw half the crowd which a team like Rhode Island State, with its point-a-minute basketball, can pull into the arena. The Basketball Association of America has recognized this by outlawing the zone defense, and almost every coach in the nation is giving considerable thought to rules changes which will eliminate some of the needless fouls called by officials.

The fans want action from the floor—not from the foul line. The Weekly's viewpoint is as outmoded and absurd as the idea of introducing the center-tap after each basket.

Retreat Held by Y; Letters to Congress Sent by Commission

by Bob Herber '51

With the arrival of the Spring term, the YM-YWCA is offering a semester of social and religious activities for every Ursinus student. Already, during this past week-end, the cabinet members held an abbreviated Y Retreat on campus to discuss future plans and gain the fellowship and inspiration necessary for the execution of their ambitious program. In addition to continuing the commission and association meetings, fireside chats, and Vesper services, the Y will sponsor a Religious Emphasis Week, a Y Retreat, and Wednesday morning Lenten services. These are a few of the special activities and they will be combined with an improved commission program, designed to encourage more students to become active members of the Y.

The Political Action Commission, carrying out one of its prime duties—that of political action—has sent letters to the Congressmen who represent the several members of the group. A copy of this letter, showing the attitude of the group toward the Taft-Hartley Law following a recent discussion, is posted on the Y Bulletin board.

Student Life of Faculty Members Uncovered in Old Yearbooks

In years gone by, the Ruby was as much a humor magazine as the New Yorker of present days, and comments on seniors were designed to bring as many chuckles as was humanly possible. To give you an idea, we're reprinting, split infinitives and all, a few articles on present faculty members—and we hope you'll enjoy them as much as we did.

Norman Egbert McClure

"A solemn youth with sober phiz,
Who eats his grub and minds his bizz."

Long before Whitey Price put Ursinus on the map, a youth was born in Norristown who was to make his town famous at some future date. This youth was called Norman Egbert McClure. For six years Norman remained at home and acted as an alarm clock for the entire neighborhood. Every morning at six o'clock he would awaken and howl lustily so that he not only aroused the neighbors from their sleep, but also received several titles which the Dean refuses us permission to print.

At the age of six he went to public school in Norristown and there, with the aid of a hickory stick, became a good boy. Continuing his studies, he went to high school, from which institution he was graduated in the spring of 1911.

In the fall of that year Mac came to Ursinus and joined our ranks as a full-fledged freshman. During his first year here Mac was rather quiet and always applied himself diligently to his books. As a Sophomore, he woke up considerably after taking History I.

Mac has always been a good student, but not what you would term a grind, because he spends much of his time in developing his aesthetic temperament. Mac does not take any active part in school activities, as much of his time is consumed in riding to and from college.

For his life work, Mac is undecided whether to become a missionary or a teacher. He has ever cherished the thought of entering the service of the church, but now fears that his association with Betty and Doc Krusen has unfitted him for the work. So there remains but the profession of teaching.

Mac has not been successful in winning the heart of any of our co-eds, but he has succeeded in winning the esteem of his classmates and friends. If he finally decides on teaching, we feel assured that his course in psychology and sociology will fit him for his task. Our best wishes will go with him.

Donald Lawrence Helfferich

Behold before you the mighty Hercules of the class of 1921, Donald Lawrence Helfferich, born and reared at "Wash.," Pa., sometimes called Bath. Until the arrival of Donald at Ursinus, Bath had been an unheard of place, but now the very atmosphere vibrates with the presence of the man whom the town has sent to our institution. Donald, alias "Ty" and "Dutch", spent his preparatory days at the Bath High School and at Mercersburg Academy. It was at the latter institution, however, that he distinguished himself as an athlete, debator, scholar, and gentleman. Upon his arrival on the Ursinus campus, in the autumn of 1917, the school realized the value of our reknowned "Ty". He immediately proceeded to help the class paint the town grey with the numerals of '21. The same year, through his hard work, he also represented his class by winning a berth on the varsity football team.

Donald is by no means behind the lines when the fair sex are in view. As goes the old story concerning spring, so goes "Ty's" heart. When spring comes around, "Ty" regularly falls under the spell of those long spring evenings. He has had such remarkable success with his "cases" as to almost have a berth among the real, genuine heartbreakers. But his ventures of this kind we readily forgive. He has done much for the class of 1921 and all appreciate his hard and untiring labors.

Charles David Mattern

For some unknown reason, we have always called this man "Joe," so that now many persons about the school do not know what his name really is. "Joe" is not intimately known by very many people on the campus because he never goes out of his way to make the acquaintance of anyone, but those who room near him in the dormitory know what a good fellow he really is. He has two favorite pastimes in this world: studying and whistling. If you ever hear a solitary whistler in the night piping away at "That's you, Baby" or "Mean to Me," you may place your bets three-to-one that it is "Joe" bound for Curtis Hall from parts unknown.

Calvin Daniel Yost, Jr.

If it be true that professors' sons are generally intellectual nullities, Calvin is a conspicuous exception to the rule. Indeed, he is nothing short of a versatile genius, as evidenced by his successful participation in numerous activities. Again, his home environment was tempered by his delight in sharing the pranks of dormitory life with his fellow students, so he is a college student in the truest sense. Perhaps his greatest work was in the role of editor-in-chief of the Weekly, which "Cal" very ably filled and demonstrated his journalistic prowess.

J. Foster Dennis

"Dill, the diddler," is the other half of the Dennis-Meckly combination that transplanted itself from West Milton to Brodbeck four years ago, and immediately proceeded to help make the walls of that building historic. After a year in the upper regions, "Dill" became one of the famous dungeon-rats, where his clarinet was an appreciated addition to the walls of that region, while his throwing arm held a value of its own. Upon becoming a Senior, however, "Dill" was siezed with a spell of gravity and moved upstairs.

On a spring afternoon, the casual spectator can see Mr. Dennis, clothed for the occasion, darting to and fro in connection with the regular baseball practice. Dill played various positions on both freshmen and varsity squads, but finally settled down as first baseman on the 1930 varsity, where he blossomed forth as a home-run hitter.

Doug has been a studious recluse for most of his four years. He carried this demeanor into the library, where he did a capable job at the circulation desk. He also slaved out of proportion to the attendance to plan interesting IRC programs. As a member of the Weekly editorial board, he was responsible for the unique bits of journalistic expression that appeared over his name. He plans to teach.

John Harold Brownback

This sweet-tempered, gentle-looking personage, commonly known as "Brownie," became famous many a year ago. In Collegeville High School, for example, he was noted for his habit of secreting candy just as a dog hides a bone. Strange to say, he always hid it in the same spot, behind the dictionary, and what could be expected but that the girls should want to look up the meaning of some obscure word about that time. By this odd method of charming, he captivated the hearts of all the girls, especially—no we aren't going to mention her name; it wouldn't be nice—only to forget her when he entered college.

In college his studies in chemistry and biology soon made him so proficient that, when war broke out, we were not surprised to see "Brownie" in the Chemical Service of the Navy. When he came back from the war, he resumed his pre-war scientific study. But his work was not one-sided, for, as stage manager of the Junior Play, as class president, and in many other activities his services were much in demand. But work did not take all of his time, for—Lois Hook-ed him. It was then that we saw "Brownie" making pilgrimages to Fort Washington as well as to Shreiner.

This year finds "Brownie" busier than ever. As guardian of the Bio-Lab, he has become Dr. Allen's right-hand man. If we judge the future by the past, we can truthfully predict a wonderful success for "Brownie."

Mr. and Mrs. Roger P. Staiger

Popular Couple Wins Laurels in Print For Countless Services to Student Body

Have you heard about that certain professor with a harum on the campus? Not only has he a bevy of thirteen beautiful girls, but a charming young wife and an irresistible three-year-old son to boot. If you've been to just one of the Saturday night dances, not to mention countless sorority and fraternity functions and various activities of other campus organizations, you'll see what I mean.

Professor Roger P. Staiger, worthy instructor in the booming chemistry laboratories and friends of erstwhile third floor Pfahler students, combines hard work and recreation in a very successful manner with a definite show of interest in his students and in his professional field.

With thirteen daughters, all of them seniors, and her active son Roger, Mrs. Staiger combines the jobs of house-mother and mother quite capably. Rimby's is noted for a buoyancy of spirit—with thirteen especially compatible seniors this is readily understandable—so Mrs. Staiger's duties are many and varied.

The Staigers were both students at Ursinus, she an English major and he a science student. They were graduated together in 1943 and, a year later, were married.

Both students and administration can be sincerely grateful for the fine spirit which this enterprising young couple has created in the roles of preceptress, instructor, chaperones and advisors.

Senate Adopts New Election Plan

A plan for revising the present system of electing dormitory officers was accepted at a meeting of the Senate last Monday. The senators of each dorm were given copies of the plan. The committee included Doris Gray '49, Jane Hellie '50, and Marilyn Jean Miller '51.

The same committee is now working on the three-minute talking restriction and the no-dating rule applicable to freshmen women.

Recruiting Officer to Visit School

On Monday, February 21, Lieutenant Grant N. Essex, from the Navy Procurement Office, will be in Bomberger Hall to meet interested students, men or women, and to answer questions about the various opportunities in the navy for college trained people. These include openings in aviation, civil engineering, supply corps, naval reserve, and regular navy and WAVE commissions. He will be available for interview between the hours of 10 and 4 in the corridor near room 1 at the front of Bomberger Hall.

Remember?

Ten days off and a week back in school already. There's lots of work ahead, but there's lots to remember from last semester. Remember:

How our gridders collapsed after tripping Drexel and lost seven straight ball games.

How Bomberger turned up with a hideous pinkish-purple color to replace the worn-out cream colored walls.

How the seniors were acclaimed the winners of the table decoration contest at the Christmas banquet, but the decoration made by the Juniors was set up in the Library as an exhibit.

How a few men were actually caught cheating.

How the History and Bio students were shocked by those easy finals.

How two-thirds of the campus coeds donned sparklers on their left hands.

How the interest in basketball dropped so low that the cagemen weren't even called back during vacation for some much-needed practice.

How McCluskey got his name in Gaff every other week.

How the "Weekly" editor was accused of poor journalistic practices by one "fan" and of aping Winchell by another.

How Vera and Bill continued the longest courtship on campus, and how they denied the dining hall announcement which claimed they were engaged.

How Rocco's took over Gertie's business.

How the graduation of Bob Juppe almost caused the closing of the Trappe Tavern.

How the Eagle's Nest refused to handle stags after the elite of the school held a Christmas "tea" at the famed spot.

How the campus was plastered with anti-Wieneke posters after several football losses.

College Offers More Scholarships

Ursinus College has announced extension of the number of open scholarships from five to eight. These scholarships are open to all high school seniors and are awarded on the competitive results of the College entrance board exams. Previously, these scholarships covered only part of the tuition, but a recent decision of the board has provided that the scholarships will cover the entire tuition.

The World in Review

by Fred Nicholls '50

Foreign Minister Harvald Lange of Norway arrived in the U.S. capital last week to discuss with Secretary of State Acheson and President Truman the possibility of Norway's entering the proposed North Atlantic Alliance. The alliance includes the U.S., Canada, Britain, France, and the Benelux countries. The Norwegian foreign minister had just received a note from the Soviet government warning his country of participation in the contemplated pact. However, Norway was determined to investigate the possibility of achieving collective security through a defense pact with the Western nations. Later in the week the Moscow radio also attacked French adherence to the pact.

The U.N. Security Council rejected a Soviet proposal that every member of the Big Five list its armed strength and its armaments. President Truman commented that the number of U.S. atomic bombs was not a matter for public discussion.

Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary was convicted of treason against the state and of black market activities by a Communist court and was sentenced to life imprisonment. The Roman Catholic Church and also members of other faiths protested strongly against the action. Secretary Acheson said that it was "a conscienceless attack upon religion and personal freedom that sickened and horrified the U.S."

Shigeru Yoshida, a member of the ultra-conservative party, was reelected Prime Minister of Japan. He formed an anti-red coalition to combat the growth of Communist strength in the recent Diet elections.

In Northern Ireland the voters in a general election chose to remain a part of the United Kingdom instead of joining the Irish Free State.

In Washington—

President Truman claimed last week that inflation controls and tax increases were still essential despite price drops.

Governor Dewey spoke before a Republican Lincoln Day Dinner and claimed that his party was split down the middle. He declared that all Republicans should either support the social welfare plans embodied in the party platform or leave. He attacked any return to the economic ideas of the 19th century and, in actuality, advocated policies of enlightened conservatism.

Senator Vandenberg announced that he would quit politics at the end of his present term in 1952. He also advised Republicans to adopt a "center" role in domestic affairs, while continuing the bipartisan foreign policy.

The House of Representatives passed a bill restoring the Hull reciprocal trade program as it was before the 80th Congress changed it.

The army announced that it would hold enlistments to 5,000 in February. It plans to cut its strength to 677,000 by July 1. This will lower the army's strength by about 7,000 per month.

How rhythmic can a rhythm song be?

You'll know when you hear Blue Barron's new waxing for MGM Records—"Powder Your Face With Sunshine"

The Barron has a foot-tapping arrangement here—a combo of Dixie, shuffle and 2-4 time. It's sure-fire styling for a danceable hit tune. And on the flip, Blue puts "Cruising Down the River" into fast waltz time. Blue Barron likes to mix his rhythms—but in smoking, he sticks to one brand—Camel. Here at the right, Blue is telling his vocalist, Betty Clarke, about Camels.

How MILD can a cigarette be?

Make the CAMEL 30-DAY TEST... and you'll know!

Yes, make the 30-day Camel Mildness Test. See for yourself how mild Camels are. In a recent test of hundreds of people who smoked only Camels for 30 days, noted throat specialists, after making weekly examinations, reported

I KNOW HOW MILD A CIGARETTE CAN BE! I'VE SMOKED CAMELS FOR YEARS!

Pete

In contrast to the dour facial expressions usually displayed by current basketball officials, the countenance of a certain popular Pete Lewis is a welcome change. It is indeed a variety to see a hoop referee enjoying his work nowadays but the aforementioned Mr. Lewis a prominent figure in Norristown athletic circles, pleases players, fans, and coaches alike with his enthusiastic, yet extremely competent, style of "calling 'em as he sees 'em." No matter how dull or one-sided the ball game may seem, if Lewis is one of the officials working the fray, you may rest assured that his pleasing personality will pick up the tempo of the tussle. Another factor resulting from Lewis-worked clashes lies in the fact that Pete always keeps the contest under control. He is master of every situation and woe betide the unfortunate player who exhibits the crying towel in his presence.

Certainly he makes mistakes, as do we all, but he calls his shots the best way he knows how, and keeps all of his games from ever getting out of hand at any time. His popularity manifests itself in the fact that Mr. Lewis is requested to officiate quite frequently at Philadelphia's Convention Hall, Palestra, and Arena, and he has even broken into New York's so-called select circle, consisting of Madison Square Garden.

Pete never fails to amuse the crowd with his assortment of acrobatics when he believes a performer to be wayward in his court-side behavior. His clear-cut voice and angular finger waste no time in hailing a rule breaker for an infraction. Harsh as he may seem at times, Lewis never overlooks the welfare of a ball player, as do so many other refs. Conscious of the fact that basketball is still considered a "sport" by many colleges, and not a gamblers' paradise, Pete demands good sportsmanship on the part of the coaches and the performers in the fray. He always halts the action as soon as possible when a player is hurt in a melee of any sort, and sees that the husky receives medical attention.

Summing it all up, we feel that the Southern Division of the Middle Atlantic Conference is plenty lucky to have a canny old boy like Lewis tooting that whistle.

Side Court Stabs

Lanky, lithe Art Baron, baseball chucker, really looked great in his hoop inaugural last Wednesday night before the Ursinus basketball fans. The six foot one pivotman, wearing Jayvee spangles, bulwarked the Cubs' offense against the PMC Reserves. Could be that Arturo may cop a varsity berth later in the campaign, if the status quo is maintained on the Ursinus court.

The loss of giant reserve, Hal Swayze, hit the Seedersmen where it hurt. Swayze provided the rebound corps of Jaffe, Myers, and Forsyth with some relief when performing in our new (how we hate that word) gym, but now the Bear vets will have to ward off those flying knees and elbows by themselves.

Coeds Score Second Win As Rosemont Bows 34-23

Marguerite Spencer Tallies Sixteen Points to Lead Beurette Attack; Squad Shows Depth of Reserves, Strength in Every Department

by Joanne Duncan '50

Coming from behind, the Ursinus' coed basketball team defeated Rosemont on the loser's court last Thursday 34-23, as freshman Marguerite Spencer led the attack with 16 points. The Belles scored only 5 points in the first quarter on 3 foul shots by Joanne Duncan and a field goal by Spencer.

With the substitution of Anita Frick and Shirley MacKinnon, offensive play picked up late in the second quarter and Ursinus led 16-14 at half time. Spencer collected two more field goals, Anita Frick, a field goal and foul shot, and MacKinnon, one field goal.

Rosemont was held to only 6 points in the third quarter by the excellent play of the Ursinus guards, B. J. Moyer, Mary Evans, and Floy Lewis. Ursinus connected with their shots at that time, with Connie Warren, Joanne Duncan, and Spencer as forwards. The passing improved and the forwards seemed to have solved the problem of Rosemont's zone defense. Connie Warren put in two quick field goals and Spencer collected three more to end the period with Ursinus leading 26-20.

Rosemont dropped a long set shot early in the last quarter, but that was their last field goal of the game. In this period, Spencer connected on a pivot shot, Duncan on a set shot, and Warren on a one-handed push shot. With about a minute to go, Edith Calhoun reentered the game and immediately scored on an underhand lay-up to end the fray.

Inside on Intramurals

by George Saurman '50

Since the social calendar for February is filled almost to capacity, there is little room for squeezing in intramural contests. In fact, there are only four nights on which games can be scheduled. To alleviate this situation a plan for Saturday intramurals has been conceived by student organizer, Luther Wilt. All those interested in joining this program are requested to sign the notices found on the Bulletin Boards in Bomberger and Pfahler Halls. This new league begins on Saturday. Students need not be here every Saturday to enter the league.

Now it can be told—the details for the gala evening of intramural competition have been completed, and final arrangements are being made for the festivities scheduled for March 21. Here are the sports which will highlight the evening's entertainment.

Table Tennis: Lists have already been posted on the bulletin boards to register those who wish to compete in the elimination tournament, which will culminate in the final play-offs on Intramural Night. This Wednesday is the deadline for signing the rosters. The elimination contests will begin on Monday, February 21. The schedule of games to be played will be posted in Rec Center.

Foul Shooting: Everyone interested will be eligible for the preliminaries in this department. Each contestant will be given twenty-five free throws. From these results, teams will be chosen to represent the dorms. The team members will each have fifty trials and the average will then be taken. The team having the highest average will be acclaimed the victor, and the individual having the highest score will also be honored.

Wrestling and Boxing: These sports are divided into the following weight classes: 121, 128, 136, 145, 155, 165, 175, and heavy-weight. A requirement of two weeks training has been imposed upon applicants, and Mr. Gurzynski will be in the gym every afternoon until the big event to help with instruction. There will be three rounds of two minutes each. This phase of the roster should provide plenty of thrills and, quite possibly, a few laughs.

Immediately following the completion of the regular interdorm court season, a volleyball league will be formed and games will be played in the new gym after the spring vacation. This sport is another newcomer to the campus activities of recent years, although it was a popular outlet for surplus energy in past decades here at Ursinus. Athletes have also to look forward to the regular season of softball, which will run concurrently with the varsity baseball season.

Opponents Replace Pressing Defense with Brilliant Passing Attack; Bruins Fail to Threaten Despite Efforts of Jaffe and Bahney

Minus the services of Chips Marcavage, one of the conferences leading scorers, PMC's onrushing Cadets vaulted into undisputed possession of first place by rallying in the second half of Wednesday's tilt on the home court to trip Jerry Seeders' Bruins for the second time this season. The final count, 55-40, was indicative of the Cadets' superiority, for the Chesterites were never forced to display their finest talents, though they led by only 29-24 at half-time.

Beaver Meet Looms As Local Mermaids Improve Technique

by Jean Heron '51

The swimming team is preparing for its first meeting on Thursday against Beaver, but a lengthy period during which no practice was held has had its unfortunate effects on the squad, and few of the coeds remain in top condition.

At a practice last Thursday, the team stressed speed and endurance. The girls were clocked individually as each one swam four laps.

Mary McPherson, Pat Ellis, and Jean Cilley are trying hard to gain more speed and to perfect their form while Marge Grauch, Jean Leety, and Pat Pattison are diligently practicing diving techniques in order to take honors at the Abington YMCA.

Despite the lack of practice and coaching, the team has a good bit of enthusiasm and is looking forward to a winning season.

Forsaking their usual pressing defense, furious offense, and the two platoon system, the visitors produced a superlative passing game and the keen marksmanship of pint-sized Al Ingber and Walt Udovich, who collaborated for a total of 39 points. Norristown's Bob Jaffe again led the Bruin marksmen by garnering 12 markers, while Dave Bahney connected on 3 set shots and 3 fouls to follow closely with a total of 9.

The Cadets, who jumped into an early 3-0 lead, battled on almost even terms throughout the first half, but Udovich and Ingber were more than the home club could cope with in the final stanza.

Unbeaten Record Slashed As Bruinettes Lose 32-24

Mary Frank Tallies Nine Field Goals, Four Fouls for Immaculata; Ursinus Forwards Fail to Display Customary Offensive Punch

by Joanne Duncan '50

The Ursinus coeds' basketball team met defeat for the first time this season, 32-24, when they clashed with Immaculata Saturday afternoon at West Catholic Boys' High. The game started out slowly with Immaculata breaking through to score twice before Ursinus connected with field goals by Joanne Duncan and Connie Warren. This was the only time Ursinus tied the score in the game; during the remainder of the contest, Immaculata was ahead. Marguerite Spencer substituted for Edith Calhoun early in the game, but except for a foul shot by "Dunc" and another field goal by Connie, Ursinus was unable to bring up their score sufficiently.

At quarter time, Anita Frick and Shirley McKinnon entered the game. Mary Frank made almost all of Immaculata's points in the first half, scoring a total of 13.

In the third quarter, "Spence" and Anita each scored a field goal. Edith Calhoun and Joanne Duncan re-entered the game, and although this group scored more points than the other combinations, they were unable to reduce Immaculata's lead. Every time Ursinus scored, Immaculata worked the ball in for a goal to match it. Warren made two field goals from the corner, but the forwards lost the ball again and again without taking a shot for the basket. Gradually, Immaculata increased its lead to eight points and held this margin until the final whistle. Mary Frank was high scorer of the day with twenty-two points, while Warren led the losers with 10 points.

Pettit Tops Offense As Junior Varsity Captures Two Wins

by Jean Heron '51

The coeds of the Jayvee basketball team travelled to Rosemont last Thursday to defeat the Rosemont Jayvee team. The final score in favor of Ursinus was 17-13. The first half of the game was very close; as the teams seemed very evenly matched before half-time, when Rosemont led by a score of 7-6. However, during the second half, Ursinus displayed such skill that the Rosemont team was not able to stay in the lead.

Ruth Pettit, the captain of the team, was the high scorer for Ursinus with a total of five points, and Jane McWilliams was next with four.

On Saturday the Jayvees travelled to Philadelphia to beat the Immaculata subs 32-22. The game from the beginning was clearly a display of the passing and shooting ability of the winners. Immaculata was unable to pile up any lead over Ursinus, and at half-time Ursinus was in front 12-9.

Again Ruth Pettit was high scorer with a total of 14 points. In racking up this record, Ruth Showed an unusual ability to make most of her shots good.

The American Way

Little Boy Boo

Oh give a sigh for old Ref O'Dowd Who gets it from players, coaches and crowd; His striped shirt and dull gray pants Mark him for jeers and Bronx-like chants. No longer does he interpret the rules, He just signals the fouls that stir the fools To concerted derision, jeers and boos So easily forgotten if rivals lose, But leave the poor ref, sweaty and shaking, Wondering if it's all worth undertaking Subjecting his health and good reputation, His expert knowledge of rules application, His honesty, his truth and his self-respect, To unthinking mobs who unthinkingly suspect The sincerest motives of any and all Whose unpleasant duties compel them to call Infractions of rules, as they note them occur. Do you think the rooters will ever concur? One half will cheer; the others will gripe. The refs ability is so much tripe. He stinks! He's a bum! he must be blind! These epithets and others, unkind, Must be borne in silence as part of a job. For nine bucks a game, the ref's thrown to the mob! The time has come for all good sports, And to partisan fans of various sorts To realize the value of a good referee, And to accept like good sports whatever they see Called by the man, whose judgment and skill Make the players conform, say what you will, To standards of conduct and rules of fair play. This, my good friends, is the American way.

Initial Match Fatal As Ford Grapplers Wallop Bruins 23-11

Cox, Turner, and Helfferich Win; Late Start Injurious to Bears

by Bob Gehman '50

Wrestling before a large crowd of enthusiastic fans on Saturday afternoon, the local grapplers fell prey to an experienced Haverford mat team, losing 23-11. The Mainliners, sporting victories over Delaware and Drexel, took advantage of the Bruin matmen's first match cautiousness and jumped to a 15-0 score before the Grizzlies registered their first victory. Jim Cox, Bill Turner, and Bill Helfferich all won their bouts for Ursinus.

In the initial match, scrappy Joe Bechtle, a veteran of last year's campaigns, succumbed to a body press in the second period. New-comer, Phil Kelly, showing the effects of a 20 pound drop in weight brought on by careful dieting and rigorous training, was pinned via a figure-four scissors. Jim Duncan, usually reliable 136 pounder who had amassed an enviable record last year until a broken arm halted his winning ways, was upset by a digestive disturbance Saturday and was the recipient of a double arm lock which pinned him late in the second period.

The Bears first tally was scored in the 145 lb. class, when Jim Cox, team captain and ex-Annapolis student, lived up to pre-match predictions by decisively outpointing Haverford's Clark Lightfoot, 10-4. Cox, in danger only once, outmaneuvered and outclassed his adversary throughout the match, and only by some desperate defensive squirming did Lightfoot keep himself from being flattened.

With the score at 15-3, Bill Turner narrowed the gap by flashing the same superlative style which carried him through last season in grand style, as he pinned Ian Walker with a half-nelson and body press. Another plebe to Collegeville wrestling ranks, Galey Chandler, dropped a 4-0 decision to Gov Cadwallader, while Doug Leander, Grizzly 175 pounder, showed plenty of grit and form as he outpointed his rival for two periods only to be caught and pinned by a crotch hold and half nelson in the final setto. Bill Helfferich, giant heavyweight, chalked up the final Ursinus win by outpointing Bill Rodewald, Ford ace who was previously nursing a two year winning streak.

Bears Drop Fifth Tilt As Drexel Wins 75-61

Bob MacCart and Mel Savchak Combine to Secure 40 Points; Bob Jaffe, Reliable Bruin Scoring Ace, Records 19 Point Total

Sparked by the sensational marksmanship of Bob MacCart and the steady rebound work of Mel Savchak, Drexel's once beaten quintet bounded into second place in the Middle Atlantic Conference by thrashing Jerry Seeders' five, 75-61, in Saturday's tilt on the home court. The loss, number five for the Bruins, left them standing at the

Jay Vees Drop Two; One Point Decides As PMC Wins 45-44

by Richard Hanna '50

Playing two games on the home court within the past week, the Jay Vee basketballers lost to the PMC juniors 45-44 on Wednesday and to the Drexel five 58-51 on Saturday.

In the PMC game, the Bruins took a one point advantage at the half, 23-22, on a foul shot by Art Baron. The second half was close all the way, and with two minutes to play the score was tied at 43 all. A set shot by Bob Joyce of PMC gave the visitors the lead with a minute to go. George Bock then sank a foul to end the game. Bock was high man with 15 points for the night.

Drexel, using a fast break, held a slight advantage at the half, 29-27. The Dragons caught fire at the start of the second half and picked up a 36-27 lead before Bob Reichley finally broke the ice for the Bears with a two pointer. For the remainder of the game the two fives were even in scoring, the final score reading 58-51.

MacCart's brilliant one hand shots accounted for 23 of the winner's points, while Savchak followed with 17. Bob Jaffe paced the losing cause with a 19 point effort.

The Engineers took a 4-1 lead on two shots by MacCart; but Bertel sank two fouls, then drove in for a lay-up to give the Bruins a 5-4 margin. Five times the lead changed before the Philadelphians moved in front, 17-15, on Savchak's tap-in; and from this point on, the home club could do nothing to stop the Dragon attack. Breder's set-shot ended the half at 40-29, and the Bruin subs, plus Jaffe, concluded the rout.

He was appointed Assistant City Solicitor in 1928, a job which was to be only the first of a series of important positions. In 1934, he became Deputy General and served until 1936 as counsel in charge of legal work for closed banks in Philadelphia.

Almost at the very outset of World War II, he re-entered the Marine Corps and served in the 1st Marine Division on Guadalcanal in 1942. He remained there during the balance of the campaign. He stayed to do reconnaissance work for future landings, then returned to this country in 1943 and was put in command of the Navy Fighter School, St. Simon's Island, Georgia. It was there that he remained until given command of a fighter director battalion in 1944. He was discharged with the rank of Major after having received the Presidential Unit Citation and the Silver Star.

All members of the Ursinus faculty, staff, and student body, as well as all interested residents of Collegeville, are invited to attend this important public lecture which will be presented by the Ursinus Chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

trol of the A-bomb to the U.N. further agitated Russian distrust.

As to the outlook of future hostilities with the Soviet Union, Mr. Lauterbach believes that the Russian people are just as anxious for peace as are the majority of Americans. Furthermore, he stated that in order to achieve this peace we must deal with the realistic men of the Kremlin over the conference table, rather than on the battlefield. In answer to the question of how much the Russian people influence the actions of their government, Mr. Lauterbach said the job of the party worker is not only to "funnel down" the dictates of the Kremlin but also to "funnel up" the opinion of the Russian public. He pointed out that the present government relies as much on the will of its people as any other government which expects to succeed.

Mr. Lauterbach concluded his talk by outlining a policy which the American government should follow in its relations with Russia. "Patience is the alternative to war, and we must be patient." In today's world it is "no longer a case of saving face; it is a question of saving civilization."
