MANY students are not careful of their spare moments. Instead of passing them in pursuit of profitable work, they spend them in idle talk, playing games, etc. The right improvement of spare moments is what gives to students the opportunity to gain many valuable lessons which they would otherwise miss. We do not go to an institution of learning to become experts in chess or checkers, but that we may be prepared to fight the battle of life. The greatest men in all departments of life are those who, while in college, spent their spare moments in going deeper into the well-spring of knowledge and finding therein pearls which repaid them amply for their work.

THE student body, a short time ago, had the pleasure of listening to an address on "The Modern Newspaper and How it is Made," by Wm. H. Zeller, Esq., of the editorial staff of the Philadelphia Times. The address was very instructive. Mr. Zeller said that in the making of the newspaper the two important instruments are the scissors and the pen. He gave us a clear insight into the process of constructing a paper both in its reportorial and editorial departments.

THE Rev. Dr. James Crawford of Christ Reformed Church, Philadelphia, preached the June sermon before the students of the College. His text was taken from verses 5 and 6 of the first chapter in the second epistle of Paul to Timothy. In the treatment of the text he set forth the importance of early religious training as exemplified in the life and ministry of Timothy. The chief elements in Timothy's instruction were the faithful teachings of his grandmother Lois and his mother Eunice. This influence was impressively emphasized by the preacher in the christian training of youth. The faithful and thorough treatment of the subject was well adapted to leave deep impression upon the hearers.

THE most striking evidence afforded by the new catalogue of the modern spirit of the present management of the college is the announcement that when the new courses of study go into full effect, the degrees of Bachelor of Arts will be conferred upon the graduates from all the courses. There will be no more B. S.'s and B. L.'s to indicate that the graduates have pursued courses differentiated from that which has been handed down from the time when language and literature constituted the only liberal studies. We believe in the innovation, because we have respect for the achievements of modern times in the vast domain of science and have confidence in the scientific method for educational as well as practical purposes.

THE change in dropping the scientific and literary degree is a step in advance, not only from the point of view of those courses, but equally so from the classical side. As long as the ancient languages had the field to themselves, the subjects studied constituted only an incidental element in the conception of the meaning of the degree A. B. It stood for a liberal education. It carried with it the idea that the bearer of it had attained to intellectual breadth and freedom by a long course of mental discipline.

WHEN scientific and modern literary subjects were introduced into the college curriculum, for which it was deemed necessary to give special degrees, the A. B. degree commenced to suffer. From being a sign that the recipient was a liberally educated man, it was forced to stand for the subjects which he had studied. The idea of the course over which he had traveled was made to take precedence over the idea of the effect of his studies upon his intellectual development. This change of meaning in the A. B. degree was a distinct loss to the classical graduate, which can be made good to him only by cutting off other degrees with which the A. B. is contrasted, and admitting to its honors men who have pursued courses other than the classical. Only in this way can the original significance of the A. B. degree be restored. And when the classicist has become fully acquainted with his fellow student, returning from scientific and literary fields, he will find the A. B. fraternity enriched by his presence.

EMANUEL LONGACRE, DECEASED.

Minutes Adopted by the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors.

The Executive Committee of the Directors of Ursinus College assembled in regular monthly session this 5th day of June, 1894, with profound sorrow makes a record of the death of one of its members, that of Mr. Emanuel Longacre, which took place at his late residence on Saturday last, June 2d.

Mr. Longacre was one of the charter members of the Board of Directors of the college, and served on the Executive Committee from the date of the organization of the institution in 1869. For twenty-five years he traveled with conscientious faithfulness from his home to the college, by day and by night and at all seasons, to attend the meetings of the Committee and of the Board. His loyalty to the principles on which the institution is founded, his faithfulness in the discharge of every duty assigned to him, his equable temperament, his judicious counsel, his genial companionship and high Christian character, not only endeared him to the members of the Board personally, but rendered him a valuable servant of the college who approved himself to his associates by his unchanging devotion to the interests in whose management and control he bore his full share of responsibility. We mourn his loss as that of a faithful friend and beloved brother, and his gentle spirit shall ever abide with us, to chasten the deliberations of the body, whose councils his presence helped to temper with prudence and wisdom.

The BULLETIN joins the authorities of the college in expressions of sincere grief over the death of Mr. Longacre, not only because of his high personal qualities and the services which he rendered to the institution, but because of its high regard for the noble sons of Mr. Longacre, who have been students of the college. To these the entire student body extends the sympathy and condolence of brothers.

LITERARY CONTRIBUTIONS.

Xenophon and Herodotus.

These great and renowned Grecian historians were born in the fourth century before Christ.

They were sons of noble families and each received an education. Xenophon, however, had an advantage over Herodotus, for he was under the direct influence of Socrates.

Xenophon left his native city for the purpose of joining himself with the army of Cyrus which was going on an expedition. He went not as a soldier or general, but for the purpose of seeing the countries through which he would pass. After the death of Cyrus he was elected general and led the army home. He was banished from Athens and never returned to it, although the sentence of banishment was removed. Herodotus also left his native city. He left it for the purpose of escaping the tyrannical government which was exercised there. Unlike Xenophon, he returned afterward and took an active part in the government of the city. He was never banished, nor was he, in any way, connected with an army.

Xenophon wrote the history of the countries through which he passed while connected with the army. Herodotus traveled for the same purpose; namely, of writing history. His works are more extended than Xenophon's, for he traveled through more countries and cities. He traveled through Asia, Africa, Europe, and was especially acquainted with the cities of Greece and Asia Minor.

Xenophon wrote in the pure Attic style; Herodotus used the Ionic and sometimes intermixed Attic and Doric forms.

Both men were diligent, impartial, and clear in judgment, and their works are trustworthy.

The Growth of Plants.

Every sound seed contains an embryo. Although alive, a seed may for a long while show no signs of life. If the seed is alive it will germinate. When the seed is put into the ground and has sufficient warmth and moisture it first imbibes moisture through its coats and swells. The embryo is an imperfect plant, consisting, if bicotyledonous, of the caulicle and two cotyledons. In its growth the caulicle lengthens and its end bursts through the seed coat which is thrown off. The caulicle continues to grow and feed on the nourishment which is in the cotyledons themselves, if the seed is ex-albuminous, or one that which lies around the embryo, if the seed is albuminous, and forms a root which afterward provides the nourishment for the plant. The stem continues to grow upward by nodes and internodes, while the root grows downward by adding to itself at the tip. As the cotyledons or seed leaves continue to grow a bud called the plumule is developed on the top of the stem between the two seed leaves.

The branches arise from the axils of leaves. They first appear in the form of buds. Buds generally develop in summer. During the winter, in a climate like ours, they are protected by scales. The following spring they continue to grow.

Plants are divided, according to their character and duration, into annuals, biennials and perennials.

Annuals grow from the seed, blossom and die in one year. Corn is a familiar annual.

Biennials vegetate but do not blossom the first year. They die to the root at the end of the season, and the next year after blossoming and bearing seed they die. The first year they store up nourishment and expend it the next season in flowering and fruiting. The turnip and the carrot are biennials.

Perennials live year after year. In the summer they store up nourishment which develops the buds in the following spring. The pine is a perennial.

The two essential conditions for the growth of plants are moisture and heat. These increase as we go from our position on the globe toward the equator, where the growth of plants is most luxuriant. As we go from the equator toward either pole, heat, one of the essentials, decreases, until in either frigid zone a point is found where all vegetation ceases to exist.

In our climate, in spring time, all plants dress themselves in green. The warm sunshine and rain give what is sufficient for their growth, and then it happens that the buds which grew the summer before uncoil into leaves and flowers, or lengthen into twigs and branches, and the earth is as gay and bright again as if it had just come from the hands of the Creator.

NOTES OF SOCIETIES, ETC.

Schaff Society.

The society at a late meeting held a mock political convention to nominate candidates for President and Vice President of the United States. Much enthusiasm was manifested. Paul Isaac Deppen was nominated for President on the third ballot and Robert Brady Rodgers was nominated for Vice President on the second ballot. Both gentlemen made speeches accepting the nominations.

On the 1st inst., the society elected the following officers for the ensuing term: President, G. W. Shellenberger, '95; Vice President, G. W. Zimmerman, '96; Recording Secretary, Edward Emert, '96; Corresponding Secretary, R. H. Spangler, '97; Financial Secretary, John K. McKee, A.; Chaplain, Geo. A. Kosier, A.; Editor, R. M. Yerkes, '97; Critic, R. C. Leidy, '95; Treasurer, J. E. Stone, A.; Organist, Stanley Casselberry, A.

Alumni and honorary members, do not forget the annual reunion of the society on Wednesday, June 20, at 3.30 p. m. You are cordially invited to attend.

Zwinglian Society.

Friends and honorary members of the Zwinglian Society, don't fail to be present at the reunion on Wednesday, June 20th, at 3.30 P. M.

Friday evening, June 1st, two of the society's honorary members, Miss Carrie Schieber and Miss Laura Koons, and their friend, Miss Hipple, paid a visit to the society. The society is always glad to welcome its friends and honorary members.

Rev. E. C. Sult, one of the honorary members, visited the society a few weeks ago, encouraging the members in their work and urging them to still greater things in the future. He said, "Perhaps you cannot see it, but I, who was here several years ago, can see a marked improvement now in comparison to what the society was then. You must not be satisfied with this improvement, however, but push on to still greater things."

A large hall with handsome carpet upon its floor and containing a beautiful upright piano, does not look well with the walls bare. The Zwinglians, realizing this, have decorated their hall with five paintings and etchings, one of which was presented to the society by Rev. Elwood Middleton. With these pictures upon the walls, the hall presents a beautiful appearance.

Y. M. C. A.

The last three meetings of the Y. M. C. A. have been well attended by the students. The meeting on May 16th was led by Mr. Wharton A. Kline, whose text was, "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? By taking heed thereto according to Thy word." May 23d the meeting was conducted by Rev. E. C. Sult, who spoke on "our duty to our fellowmen and to God."

Perhaps one of the most interesting and instructive meetings held for a long time was held on the evening of June 6th, when Prof. M. N. Frantz spoke on the subject of Missions. After mentioning some of the discouragements and encouragements connected with the work, he said that those who thought of entering the mission field should first be certain that they were called of God to the work, then being certain about the call, be thoroughly prepared for the work and enter into it with all the earnestness possible and have only one object in view, namely, the winning of souls for Christ.

The second annual commencement of the public schools of Collegetown and Trappe was held in Bomberger Memorial Hall on Tuesday evening, June 5, at 8 o'clock. It was well attended and highly appreciated. After the presentation of diplomas, addresses were delivered by Prof. C. W. R. Crum, M. D., Rev. J. H. Hendricks and Rev. H. T. Spangler.

Personals.

C. P. Wehr, '95, spent several days at home over June 6th.

F. P. Steckel, '96, spent May 26 and 27 at his home in Slatington.

Mrs. Schryock, of Baltimore, Md., is the guest of Mrs. Prof. P. C. Mensch.

Rev. L. M. Kerschner, of Parryville, was the guest of his son Harland, on June 6th.

Mrs. L. O. Oberholtzer, of Phoenixville, was the guest of her son George, on May 29th.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Landis, of Pennsburg, were the guests of their son Calvin, on Saturday, June 26th.

O'Donnell and Steckel, '96, remained in Philadelphia for a while after the P. M. C. ball game.

Owen, '94, and Conkle, '95, with their lady friends, visited Valley Forge to see the sights on Decoration Day.

Earnest Paxon, of Philadelphia, was a visitor at Ursinus, June 1st. He intends taking a course preparatory to the study of theology.

Mr. W. H. Zeller and Hon. H. K. Boyer, of Philadelphia, were guests of Prof. F. E. Kavanaugh, on May 15th.

Rev. J. W. Crawford, D. D., of Philadelphia, preached the monthly college sermon for June, on Sunday afternoon, June 3d.

Mr. J. A. Strassburger, Esq., delivered the last of his series of lectures, on the Constitution of Pennsylvania, to the Seniors on Thursday, May 31st.

Emanuel Longacre, a resident of Yerkes, and one of the directors of our institution, died on Saturday morning, June 2d. The funeral services were held at St. Luke's Reformed Church, of Trappe, and were attended by the members of the faculty and students in a body.

ATHLETICS.

The practice of doing things well makes perfect; therefore, the practice of playing good ball makes good ball players. That the team is playing well can easily be seen by looking at the following scores:

The North End A. A. base ball team, of Philadelphia, came here on the 11th ult. The team is a very strong one, but several of their players could not stay, as the game was called in the afternoon. Several of the second team played with the visitors. The score follows:

Struck out, by Miller, 1; by O'Donnell, 3; by Verkes, 5; by Chorlton, 5. Time of game, 1 hour 30 minutes. Umpire, Johnson.

The next game was with the Central Young Men's Union, of Philadelphia. This team played us a ten inning game last year and has been very successful this year. After the second inning O'Donnell pitched good ball. The game was lost for us through costly errors in the second and fourth innings. The score:

On Decoration Day the first team went to Norrison town to cross bats with the Y. M. C. A. team of that town. As this team had given the collegians two good games last year a good game was expected again, but the Y. M. C. A. boys did not seem to put any life into their playing. For our team, O'Donnell pitched a fine game, the opposing team being able to hit him for but four small hits. He was well supported. The work of Steckel behind the bat and the fielding of Royer and Rahn was of a fine order. With the exception of the third inning none of the Norristown boys reached third base. The score is as follows:

The next game played was with the strong team of the Pennsylvania Military College, at Chester, on the 2d. On account of the strong game which this club gave us last year, our boys were somewhat doubtful of the result. They were determined, however, that the game should not be lost on account of any misplay by them, and so they began to play in earnest.

We began to score in the second inning and continued to score in the third, fifth and sixth, while the Chester boys scored in the fifth only, when through two hits and a wild throw by Steckel, they were able to make their two runs. To make special mention of the playing of any man on our team would be doing an injustice to the other players. The playing of Carr in left field and of Collins behind the bat for the Cadets was very good. The score:

The second base ball team went to Pennsburg on the 26th ult., and defeated the Perkiomen Seminary team in two games. The first game resulted in a score of 8 to 1 and the second 8 to 2. In both games the runs for the Seminary were scored by members of the East Greenville club, through errors on the part of our players. In the second game three of the weakest of the Seminary players were relegated to the bench and their places filled with the heaviest batters of the East Greenville club. The pitching of Kavanagh and Rahn and the fielding of Heberlig and Zimmerman for the home team, and of Clemmer for the Seminary were the features of the game. Following is the score of first game :

On the 9th inst. the Spring City base ball team came here to play another game with our boys, and, as they had won the preceding game from us, they thought they would easily carry off this one, but before the game had gone far they changed their mind, and said they would have to work hard, as our boys were putting up a fine game. This game continued for four innings, when it became a game of errors. In the first inning our boys scored three runs through three hits and a wild throw by Hennessy, while the Spring City boys generally went out in one, two, three order until the fifth inning, when through Stubblebine missing a grounder and making a wild throw, two runs were scored, and they continued to score, through errors, until they had five to our three. Our time was to come, however. After this inning our boys settled down to ball playing, and in the seventh inning made nine runs, five of which were earned. In this inning all but three men had a second chance at the bat. The Spring City team were not able to recover from this onslaught and the game was ours. The score:

URSINUS SUMMER SCHOOL.

June 25—July 28, 1894.

The Ursinus Summer School is conducted under the authority of the faculty of the College. Its immediate management is entrusted to a corps of instructors consisting of members of the faculty and others appointed to teach in the school. The same credit is allowed for work done in the Summer School as for the same amount and kind of work in the College. Students of the school, who may not enter Ursinus College, will receive certificates of attendance and of satisfactory work, signed by their instructors and by the President of the college.

The object of the school is: (1) To provide the advantages of college work to those who find it convenient to study during the summer months. (2) To afford students, who may be deficient in a few branches, opportunity to complete their preparation for college. (3) To give students who are irregular or conditioned in their collegiate courses opportunity to make up their conditions and to attain regular standing without further examination than is required in the Summer School. (4) To afford teachers and others not intending to pursue a collegiate course, facilities for study under the direction of regular professors and with college equipments.

Recitations or lectures are given every day except Sunday. In all important subjects two lessons a day are given. Thus by reciting six days a week, the student is enabled to do in five weeks what is equivalent to a term or more of regular work, provided he give his undivided attention to one or two subjects.

With the steady advance in the standard of requirements for admission some students who are not fully prepared to enter college are tempted to take an inferior course in institutions where the requirements are less rigid. All such students are urged to make up their deficiencies in the Summer School, that they may enter college without conditions or attain creditable advanced standing rather than sacrifice the thoroughness of their scholarship.

The tuition, payable invariably in advance, is ten dollars for one subject, and five dollars for each additional subject. Incidental fee, one dollar.

The college grants the use of its dormitories to Summer School students free of rent. The rooms are furnished with bed, wardrobe, washstand, table and chairs. The student furnishes his own towels, sheets, pillow-cases, blankets, lamp and mirror.

Board may be obtained at rates varying from $2.50 to $4 a week.

Rooms completely furnished, and board, may be obtained near the college at reasonable rates.

The term opens on Monday after Commencement and continues five weeks. Students will be received at any time, but no reduction in tuition will be made for absence at the beginning or at the end of the term.

Correspondence with reference to the school is solicited, and may be addressed to "Ursinus Summer School," or to the President of the College, Collegeville, Pa.

GENERAL COLLEGE NEWS.

Adelbert is soon to build a $50,000 physical laboratory.

A woman's glee club of sixteen has been organized at the Chicago University.

More than four thousand American college men are now preparing for the ministry.

The American University at Washington has received $102,000 to endow the chair of history.

Of the three thousand students enrolled at the University of Berlin, eight hundred are Americans.

President Andrews, of Brown, has declined the offer of chancellor of Chicago University and head professor of philosophy with a salary of $10,000 and six months leave of absence, and intends to remain at Brown.

The American School of Athens, working on the site of Argos, has laid bare a large marble building, which is supposed to be the gymnasium, and have uncovered many very early tombs like those which Schliemann found at Mycenæ.

After this term there will be no more examinations held at the close of each term at Cornell. The student's knowledge will be decided by the character of his daily recitations and by short examinations during the term.

The inter-collegiate Y. M. C. A., started at Princeton sixteen years ago, has now a membership of 30,000 from 450 American and Canadian colleges, and also has its agents promoting the work among the colleges of Europe and Asia.

Philadelphia will soon have a Hebrew college. The college is to be established next fall with the income of a fund left by Hyman Gratz nearly forty years ago. The new college will not teach Hebrew theology nor establish a regular collegiate course, the idea being to confine the lectures principally to Jewish history and literature.

A systematic study of manners has been introduced in the curriculum of the Elmira Female College. All disputed points are referred to a Council of Etiquette, which decides according to the best standards. About once every fortnight a member of the council reads an original paper before all the students. This study has been very helpful to the members of the college, and it is something worth the greatest interest and attention of every collegian.

There are at least four Japanese girls in different colleges in the United States. One is at Radcliffe College (Harvard annex), another at Bryn Mawr College, another at Wellesley, and the fourth, Miss Fuji Tsukamoto, is at the Wilson College for Women at Chambersburg, where she is regarded as one of the brightest students. She graduates this June, and on Commencement Day will lead in a debate on the interesting question, "Has the more recent influence of the Occident on the Orient been a benefit to the latter."
