Cover photograph: The peaks of Thamserku and Kangtega tower above Khumjung village, Sagarmatha National Park, Nepal. The park is inscribed as both a natural and cultural World Heritage property, the area is part of the Sacred Himalayan Landscape and it is the traditionally governed and conserved territory of the Sherpa people.

Source: Ian Pulsford.

Special note: The Buddhist chorten shown was built and dedicated to distinguished international conservationist Mingma Norbu Sherpa following his untimely death in 2006. Mingma was born and raised in the national park and was the first Sherpa to serve as its warden. The inscription reads: 'Dedicated to the memory of MINGMA NORBU SHERPA He was a conservation leader in Himalayas and Globally'.
