

Editorial

It is a great satisfaction to present the 22nd number of Jahr – European Journal of Bioethics. The amount and variety of papers are preserved, and this issue has a special focus on the bioethical analysis of different aspects of education, bringing many fresh insights and important contributions. This is especially stressed by giving space to some of the papers initially presented last year at the international conference Bioethics and the Challenges of Contemporary Education, dedicated to this topic.

The general section consists of two articles, the first closely related to the medical topic in bioethics, and the second could be seen as a contribution to political bioethics. The first is concerned with the place of big data in contemporary vaccinology. In the second contribution, you can read about public diplomacy and related concepts.

As already mentioned, the additional space is given for the publication of twelve papers from the aforementioned conference, which are adequately presented in a special Guest Editors' Editorial. I would like to take this opportunity to thank Tomislav Krznar and Silvia Rogošić for their intensive cooperation and final enrichment of this number of Jahr.

Two book reviews are also a part of this issue.

I would like to thank the members of the Editorial Board, peer-reviewers, and all other associates included in the creation of this issue. I owe special thanks to the Executive Editor, Managing Editor, Guest Editors, and our Language Editors for their tremendous help.

Enjoy reading Jahr!
