Assalamualaikum Dr Syahriah,

First of all, thank you again for coming on board to share your expertise on urban mobility. The main aim of the webinar is to discuss how change because of Covid-19.

Since PEREKABANDAR's concern is about urban design and the quality of the built environment, urban mobility thus plays a very important role of public spaces directly. So we are very interested in your views about how Covid-19 has affected urban mobility, for example in how requirements, and other forms of mobility that might have emerged, or not, given the different contexts.

Taking the above into consideration, perhaps you can prepare your 10-15 minute statement accordingly. As I have mentioned before, we will start the Q&A, and you are welcome to share your slides if you have any.

I will pick up the points from your presentation to formulate my questions for the discussion, but nevertheless, these questions should cover

- New meeting
- My meetings

1. If we looked at places like Milan and Bogota, and later on Oakland, these cities were quick to reclaim some space from cars here. Why do you think that is?
